"DO YOU KICK?"

Be quick to kick and make a fuss,
But when you kick, kick to us,
For that kind of kicking is our delight,
Because we always make things right.

Come or phone down to Magnolia oil station, headquarters for high grade Gasoline and Kerosene, clear and pure. Get your car to using Magnolene motor oils. PROMINENT CITIZEN CELEBRATES 75TH BIRTHDAY

All but one of the children living in this county, together with Mr. and Mrs. Harris, of Meadow, N. W. Jones and wife and part of his family, A. J. Stricklin and family, E. Christian and C. C. Bankhead gathered at the Jones farm two miles south of Gomer on Monday of this week to help Uncle Sam, eat, drink and be merry over the fact that he had reached the 75th mile pole of his life, but from his appearance one would think a little over a half century, instead of three-quarters would catch him.

An incident was related recently of an insurance agent that approached him, and after wasting a half hour of good breath on Mr. Jones, and winding up by telling him that he could not get insurance after he reached the age of 65, Uncle Sam got a word in edgewise and informed the agent that he was approaching 75 then. He had no further trouble with the solicitor.

The writer really felt sorry for all his friends that day that he knew were dragging their chairs up to the usual dish of red beans, for we sat down to a table loaded down with all the choice bits of the cook's art: chicken done several ways, including fried and baked; fresh string beans and potatoes, all kinds of salads, pies cakes, ice tea and ice cream. Man! it was a long time after our No. some odds went under that table before we "drug" 'em out.

Who else is going to have a birthday?

WHY BE A SUCKER?

The newspapers have recently been filled with numberless accounts of stock swindling operations. The old saying that a sucker is born every minute seems to be more than borne out.

The average man knows nothing about investments and too often seems adverse to securing advice. If the uninformed citizen before giving up his hard earned money for a scheme about which he really knows nothing would consult a bond house or banker and learn the actual facts in the case, the fake stock seller would soon disappear.

Mrs. B. M. Holt, of Bryan, is here this week. She owns quite a body of land in the old O. B. R. ranch that she aims to lease while here.

LAWN. Coffee and ice water furnished. Everybody bring a well filled dinner basket.

1:00 P. M.—Short Band Concert and String Band music concert on the Courthouse Lawn. OLD FIDDLERS' CONTEST.

2:00—PUBLIC SPEAKING—Endeavoring to bring speakers from Mitchell Creamery for Dairying talks, and speaker from A. & M. on Poultry and Hogs. Also from Fort Worth Stock Yards on live stock. Results announced later.

4:00—Rodeo Contest at Ball Grounds, east part of city. Sicer riding, steer roping and bronc riding. Prize list announced later. Entries register with Secretary of C. of C.

5:00—Base Ball Game. Arrangements announced later.

7:00 to 10:00 P. M.—String Band Concerts alternating with Brownfield Brass Band Concerts.

Prize lists will be worked up during the coming week for each event and published next week. Attractive offers will be made on each feature. Contestants are requested to register with the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce as early as possible and secure any further information.

How to Get Better Milk Prices

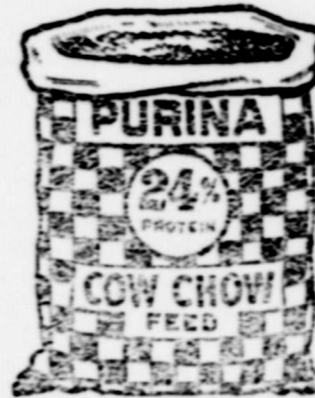

Now is the time to feed a real milk producing ration.

By raising the average of your winter milk deliveries with Cow Chow during the winter months you can expect better prices, and more milk accepted in the spring and summer.

The dairy farmer who brings in twenty gallons a day in the winter and then tries to deliver 40 gallons in the summer, gets the regular price for only 20 gallons, and the surplus price for the other twenty.

The dairy farmer who has a big fall and winter production establishes a high average for himself and gets a good price in the spring and summer on grass for as much milk as he made last fall.

Cow Chow now means more winter milk and more summer income.

SEND DONATION TO STORM
SUFFERERS IN MITCHEL CO.

Mr. M. B. Sawyer, one of the most prominent citizens of the county had to leave last Saturday to travel for the benefit of his daughter's health for the summer, and being anxious to contribute $2500 toward the sufferers of the big cyclone that recently struck Mitchell county before he left, he asked the writer to give other citizens of Brownfield and Terry Co. a chance to donate, as he had rather contribute with other citizens than by himself.

One hundred and three dollars was thus quickly raised this way and a cashier's check for the amount sent to the Mayor of Colorado City.

We met many in our rounds who had already contributed through other sources, thinking the local community would not get up any list. For instance C. Sears had sent one dollar for each member of his family, there being six in his family. Following is a list of contributors and amount:

Runs as Easily as a Single-Row Cultivator

Double the results of your labor whenever and wherever you can. Be a combined boss and hired man. It will give you a feeling of independence.

The McCormick-Deering P & O Two Row Lister Cultivator works just as easy as a single-row cultivator. Each gang follows its own team between the rows whether the rows are straight or otherwise.

One of the appealing features on the McCormick-Deering P & O is the wide range of adjustments for first and second cultivation, and the ease with which they can be made. The gangs have a double movement, either forward or backward, or in and out on the connecting tube. The weight of the gangs, whether in or out of the ground, is counterbalanced by the drivers weight.

These are merely a few features on the McCormick-Deering P & O Cultivator. Come in and give us a chance to demonstrate it.

MORNING AND EVENING

About ever so often the newspaper print the prose poem, entitled "Morning and Evening" by the late Gov. Bob Taylor of Tennessee. It is one of the most beautiful things that quaint character ever wrote, and there is no better season of the year than right now to print it. Hence no further apology need be made for reproducing this ever new tribute to the morning and evening:

"I saw the morning with purple quiver and burnished bow, stand tip-toe on the horizon and shoot sunbeams at the vanishing darkness of the night and then reach up and gather in the stars, then bend down and tickle the slumbering world with the straws of light till it woke with laughter and with song. A thousand bugles call from the rosy fires from the east heralded her coming, a thousand smiling meadows kissed her garments as she passed and ten thousand flowers flung a greeting to her. The heart of the deep forest throbbled a tribute of sonnets, and the bright waters rippled a melody of welcome. Young life and lover, radiant with hope and sparkling with dewdrops of exultant joy, came hand in hand, tripping and dancing in her shining train and wished that the heaven of morning might last forever.

"I saw the evening hang her silver crescent in the sky and rival the splendor of the dawn with the glory of the twilight. I saw her wrap the shadows around her and with a lullaby on her lips, rock the weary world to rest; then I saw her with a dipper full of dewdrops and her basket full of dreams, slip back to the horizon of morning and steal the stars again. The garden furled the flag flowers and the meadows fell asleep; the song of the forest melted into silence and the melancholy waters whispered a pensive goodnight to the drowsy birds and sleepy hollows. Life and love with a halo of parting day upon their brows and the starlight tangled in their hair, waked arm in arm among the gathering shadows and wove the sweet memories of the morning into their happy evening that might never end.

"Thus life steals from us that dust we wake to think and sleep to dream. We love and laugh and weep and sing and death sends us back to dust again."

MEADOW BRIEFS
By Asclepias

We are still doing business at the old stand. Meadow had her bond election Tuesday and very decently skinned those opposed to the measure by a margin of 15 votes, the vote being 48 against and 63 for it. The amount voted is $400,000.00, so Meadow will, in the near future have a creditable building in which to instruct the young ideas how to shoot. If any ill feelings exist between the contestants, forget it, for life is too short to carry about a grudge over such matters.

Let each try to give the trustees at least passive assistance. It will make a trying job much easier.

The following was handed in: The Intermediate Sunday School class of Meadow entertained the Seniors at the home of Miss Frances Parrish, Friday evening, May 18. After the music and games, lemonade and cake were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Wren, S.S. teacher, Mrs. Stevens, Halley and Joe Stevens, Bernice Watkins, Edna Mitchell, Era Watkins, Joe Freda and Clarence Duke, Molly Haley and brother, Ina Fortenberry, Ieta, Buster and Robert Stockton, Kate and Leslie Moorhead, W. G. Cook, Arthur and Sammy Parish, and Grace Smith. At a late hour the guests took their departure having voted a delightful time.

Mrs. Perry Hardin is quite sick at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Beavers, of Meadow.

Dr. Moorhead will make a talk at the school house in Meadow, Saturday night.

THE FIRE MURDERER

A request at the National Board of Fire Underwriters headquarters in New York City to be shown the records in the incendiarism and arson department would open eyes to dangers never before dreamed of.

If you saw a man arranging a bomb or rifle so it would kill unsuspecting persons you would not be satisfied until that man was put in a place of safe keeping where he could not further endanger the lives of the public. And yet day after day the National Board find arson "plants" arranged for starting a quick fire in factory buildings, work shops, store rooms etc., in the most congested districts in cities. The fact that the "plant" was discovered before the fire started or that the fire was put out without causing death or destruction of property does not lessen the criminal intent or responsibility that attaches to the person who sets such a deadly trap. Yet the public pays scant attention to this class of criminals and convictions for arson is most difficult to secure.

If a man carelessly or willfully runs over you with his automobile, you immediately demand damages. Yet, if he carelessly or willfully burns up your property or causes the death of your family from fire, you never think of attaching responsibility to him. It is this lack of public interest that causes American fire losses to amount to $300,000,000 annually with an annual death toll of 15,000 persons.—The Manufacturer.

The Secret Adversary
by Agatha Christie

PROLOGUE.—Realizing that she has a possibility of being saved as the Lusitania is sinking, a stranger gives a young American girl a package. She asks her to deliver it to the meridian ambassador in England. She is saved.

CHAPTER I.—In London, former Lieut. Tommy Beresford and Miss Prudence Cartwright, a nurse, form an organization, "The Young Adventurers." Prudence makes a business appointment with a man, Edward Whittington, who offers her employment, but on giving her name as "Jane Finn," which she had heard on the street, Whittington shows agitation and Prudence is told to return next day.

CHAPTER II.—In the morning the girl finds Whittington's office deserted. In answer to an advertisement signed "Jane Finn" she receives a note from "Mr. Carter" and "Julius P. Hershimmer." Carter is really a high grade detective. He speaks of a mysterious "Mr. Brown" as head of the "Bolsheviks" in England, and engages the pair to attempt to find Jane Finn, whom he is seeking for important reasons of state.

CHAPTER III.—Mr. Julius P. Hershimmer. Tommy indulged in a chuckle.

"My word! I don't wonder Whittington got the wind up when Prudence pumped out that name! I should have myself. But look here, sir, we're taking up an awful lot of your time. Have you any tips to give us before we clear out?"

"I think not. I have information that the big coup was planned for early in the new year. But the government is contemplating legislative action which will deal effectually with the strike menace. They'll get wind of it soon. If they haven't already, and it's possible that may bring things to a head. I hope it will, myself."

Prudence rose.

"I think we ought to be business-like. What exactly can we count upon you for, Mr. Carter?"

Mr. Carter's lips twitched slightly, but he replied succinctly: "Funds within reason, detailed information on any point, and no official recognition. I mean that if you

"What?" demanded Tommy, astonished.

"No, sir. As I said before, my father and her mother were brother and sister, just as you might be—Tommy did not correct this view of their relationship—but they didn't always get on together. And when my aunt made up her mind to marry Amos Finn, who was a poor schoolteacher out west, my father was just mad! Said if he made his pile, as he seemed in a fair way to do, he'd never see a cent of it. Well, the upshot was that Aunt Jane went out west and we never heard from her again.

"The old man did pile it up. He went into oil, and he went into steel, and he played a big game in railroads, and I can tell you he made Wall Street sit up!" He paused. "Then he died—last fall—and I got the dollars. Well, would you believe it, my competence got busy! Kept knocking me up and saying: 'What about your Aunt Jane, what about your Aunt Jane?' I worried me some. You see, I figured it out that Amos Finn would never make good. He wasn't that sort. End of it was, I hired a man to hunt her down. Result, she was dead, and Amos Finn was a bitter old fellow, left a daughter, Jane—who'd been tormented in the Lusitania on her way to Paris. She was saved all right, but they didn't seem able to hear of her over this side. I guessed they weren't hustling me, so I thought I'd come alone over, and speed things up. I phoned Scotland Yard and the Admiralty first thing. The Admiralty rather choked me off, but Scotland Yard were very civil—said they would make inquiries, even sent a man to look this morning to get her photograph. I'm off to Paris tomorrow, just to see what the Prefecture is doing. I guess if I go to and fro hustling them, they ought to get busy."

The energy of Mr. Hershimmer was tremendous. They bowed before it.

"But say, now," he ended, "you're not after her for anything? Contempt of court, or something British? A proud-spirited young American girl might find your rules and regulations in war time rather irksome, and get up against it. If that's the case, and there's such a thing as graft in this country, I'll buy her off."

Prudence reassured him.

"That's good. Then we can work together. What about some lunch?" Oysters had just been brought to Hershimmer.

"Inspector Japp, C. I. D. Scotland Yard again. Another man this time. What does he expect I can tell him that I didn't tell the first chap? I hope they haven't lost that photograph. That western photographer's place was burned down and all his negatives destroyed—this is the only copy in existence. I got it from the principal of the college there."

An unformulated dread swept over Prudence.

"You—you don't know the name of the man who came this morning?"

"Yes, I do. No, I don't. Half a second. It was on his card. Oh, I know! Inspector Brown. Quiet, unassuming sort of chap."

A well might with profit be drawn over the events of the next half-hour. Show it to any man, no such person as "Inspector Brown" was known to Scotland Yard. The photograph of Jane Finn, which would have been of the utmost value to the police in tracing her, was lost beyond recovery. Once again "Mr. Brown" had triumphed.

The immediate result of this setback was to effect a rapprochement between Julius Hershimmer and the Young Adventurers. All barriers went down with a crash, and Tommy

"Get my note? Sit down and tell me right away all you know about my cousin."

"Your cousin?"

"Sure thing. Jane Finn."

"Is she your cousin?"

"My father and her mother were brother and sister," explained Mr. Hershimmer meticulously.

"Oh!" cried Prudence. "Then you know where she is?"

"No." Mr. Hershimmer brought down his fist with a bang on the table. "I'm darned if I do! Don't you?"

"We advertised to receive information, not to give it," said Prudence severely.

But Mr. Hershimmer seemed to grow suddenly suspicious.

"See here," he declared. "This isn't St. Paul! No demanding ransom or threatening to crop her ears if I refuse. These are the British Isles, so quit the funny business, or I'll just sing out for that beautiful big British policeman I see out there in Piccadilly."

Tommy hastened to explain.

"Tommy felt in with the demon so far as he gave him a guarded version of the disappearance of Jane Finn, and of the possibility of her having been mixed up unwares in 'some political show.' He alluded to Prudence and himself as 'private inquiry agents,' committed to find her, and added that they would therefore be glad of any details Mr. Hershimmer could give them.

That gentleman nodded approval.

"I guess that's all right. I was just a mite hasty. Just put out your questions and I'll answer."

For the moment this paralyzed the Young Adventurers, but Prudence, recovering herself, plunged boldly into the breach with a reminiscence culled from detective fiction.

"When did you last see the deceased, your cousin, I mean?"

"Never seen her," responded Mr. Hershimmer.

"What?" demanded Tommy, astonished.

"No, sir. As I said before, my father and her mother were brother and sister, just as you might be—Tommy did not correct this view of their relationship—but they didn't always get on together. And when my aunt made up her mind to marry Amos Finn, who was a poor schoolteacher out west, my father was just mad! "Yes, I do. No, I don't. Half a second. It was on his card. Oh, I know! Inspector Brown. Quiet, unassuming sort of chap."

A well might with profit be drawn over the events of the next half-hour. Show it to any man, no such person as "Inspector Brown" was known to Scotland Yard. The photograph of Jane Finn, which would have been of the utmost value to the police in tracing her, was lost beyond recovery. Once again "Mr. Brown" had triumphed.

The immediate result of this setback was to effect a rapprochement between Julius Hershimmer and the Young Adventurers. All barriers went down with a crash, and Tommy and Prudence felt they had known the young American all their lives. They abandoned the discreet reticence of "private inquiry agents," and revealed to him the whole history of the joint venture, whereas the young man declared himself "tickled to death."

He turned to Prudence at the close of the narration.

"I've always had a kind of idea that English girls were just a mite moss-grown. Old-fashioned and sweet, you know, but scared to move around without a footman or a maid-servant. I guess I'm a bit behind the times."

The upshot of these confidential relations was that Tommy and Prudence took up their abode forthwith at the Ritz, in order, as Prudence put it, to keep in touch with Jane Finn's only living relation. "And put like that," she added confidentially to Tommy, "nobody could boggle at the expense."

Nobody did, which was the great thing.

"And now," said the young lady on the morning after their installation, "to work! We should map out a plan of campaign."

"Hear, hear!"

"Well, let's do it. To begin with, what have we to go upon?"

"Absolutely nothing," said Tommy cheerily.

"Wrong!" Prudence wagged an energetic finger. "We have two distinct clues."

"What are they?"

"First clue, we know one of the gang—Whittington?"

"Yes. I'd recognize him anywhere."

"Hum," said Tommy doubtfully. "I don't call that much of a clue. You don't know where to look for him, and it's about a thousand to one against your running against him by accident."

"I'm not so sure about that," replied Prudence thoughtfully. "There are places in London where simply anyone is bound to turn up sooner or later. Piccadilly circus, for instance. One of my ideas was to take up my stand there every day."

"Honestly, I don't think much of the idea. Whittington may be in London at all."

"That's true. Anyway, I think clue No. 2 is more promising."

"Let's hear it."

"It's nothing much. Only a Christian name—Rita. Whittington mentioned it that day."

"Are you proposing a third advertisement? Wanted, female crook, answering to the name of Rita?"

"I am not. I propose to reason in a logical manner. That man, Danvers, was shadowed on the way over, wasn't he? And it's more likely to have been a woman than a man."

"I don't see that at all."

"I am absolutely certain that it would be a woman, and a good-looking one," replied Prudence calmly. "Now, obviously, this woman, whoever she was, was saved."

"How do you make that out?"

"If she wasn't, how would they have known Jane Finn had got the papers?"

"Correct."

"Now, there's just a chance, I admit it's only a chance, that this woman may have been 'Rita.'"

"And if so?"

"If so, we've got to hunt through the survivors of the Lusitania till we find her."

"Then the first thing is to get a list of the survivors."

"I've got it. I wrote a long list of those I wanted to know, and sent it to Mr. Carter. I got his reply this morning, and among other things it inclosed the official statement of those saved from the Lusitania."

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS GRADUATING EXERCISES

One of the largest crowds in the past year school meetings of any sort were on hand last Wednesday night May 23rd to see the ten splendid boys and girls receive their diplomas from the Brownfield High School, showing that they had made a grade sufficient and had conducted themselves in a way to entitle them to this privilege.

The following program was carried out:
Processional, piano solo, "Vaterlandisches Lied," by Mrs. Rankin.
Salutatory, by Miss Helen Carles.
Miss Carles in her pleasing way gave a good report of the class, how it had worked toward that moment, and how they returned thanks to their instructors, members of the Board and citizens in general for giving them a chance for an education.

Miss Mary Shelton, a Senior for the coming year then rendered that very pleasing piano number, "William Tell."
The commencement address by the Hon. O. W. Gillespie was a masterpiece of advice and admonition to these young people now entering upon their careers. He told of the dangers of bolshevism and other radicalisms to our country, not alone in a political and financial sense, but such other going hand in hand with modern evolution ideas, was undermining our pure religious systems, said the speaker. He said it remains for the young generation to take up the work of protecting our nation from such horrors.

Miss Theresa Lemmon rendered a beautiful solo, entitled "Dawn Light and Bird Song."
The Valedictory delivered by Miss Tempia Shepherd was one of the best declamations on Americanism that we have ever heard, and it seems to us that no one after listening to such an oration could help living the life of a better citizen and be filled with greater patriotism to his country and its unselfish principles.

Supt. Rankin was to have delivered the diplomas after this address, but as they had not arrived, he called out the names of the ten graduates, and each arose at their name and were heartily applauded. A wind storm having arrived about this time, the audience was dismissed, or rather dismissed itself and went home.

As Explanation

I take this method of publicly expressing my deepest regrets because of the altogether unintentional omission of the name of one of the graduates Wednesday night. A disturbance in the dressing room at my back and in the rear of the auditorium distracted my attention. When my attention was called to the matter, the crowd was nearly all gone. I was so utterly worried in mind and body I did not understand even then the omission. I have publicly given the young lady preference throughout the year, and especially during commencement week, and had every reason for not omitting her name.—J. D. Rankin.

Thursday was picnic day when a great many of the junior and several of the senior students, accompanied by many of their parents gathered at the tabernacle at the noon hour and had a glorious old Terry county picnic together. After playing around the courthouse park for about an hour, a parade was formed by the little fellow, who marched around the square. The Brownfield band then gave them a concert.

REMEMBER—Good shows at the Legion Theatre every Friday and Saturday night.
Dr. W. N. Lemmon and family left last Thursday for Dallas, where they will attend clinics and we understand will put Miss Theresa in the C. I. A. at Denton for a course in dietetics.

SEVERE WIND STORM HIT TAHOKA RECENTLY

Friday evening just before dark a severe wind storm struck Tahoka and the surrounding community doing a considerable damage to property over the city. The worst damage was the brick home of W. O. Thomas, which was under construction in north Tahoka, tearing the walls down, and making it necessary to rebuild the structure from the ground up. We understand the brick work would have been completed on the Monday following. The damage was quite a loss to Mr. Thomas. Many windmills over the city were demolished during the hurricane, also outbuildings and other small buildings were blown down.

The high wind is said to have damaged young cotton over the country, making it necessary for some to plant over.—Tahoka News.

BURNS-FREEMAN
A wedding which was a surprise to many Lubbock people, was that of Miss Leona Burns of this city to Mr. James E. Freeman of Dallas, on Saturday morning, June 1st at 9 o'clock.

The bride is the charming and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burns. She is a graduate of the Lubbock high school, and for the past term has been a very successful instructor in the primary department of the public schools here. She has a host of friends who wish for her happiness and success in the future.

Mr. Freeman was for a time connected with the Spearman Land interests at Spearman, and is well known in this part of the State.
Mrs. Freeman has the distinction of being the first member of the Lockett Club to wear the emblem, but rumors have it that it won't be long in her possession, however.

They left immediately after the ceremony for their home in Dallas.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Good crowds Sunday morning and night greeted E. Christian, evangelist for the Church of Christ, as his reputation as a speaker was already well known here, and at all services splendid attention and the best of behavior has been manifested.

While the attendance has been a little lighter in the day time, those who have attended have heard some very interesting discourses on the Christian life and what it means to those who practice it. A cloud interrupted the services Monday night, but a nice audience was on hand Tuesday night.

SNAKE AND CENTIPEDE BITE

NEW MEXICO BOYS

Last Thursday morning while Chas. Smith Jr., son of C. A. Smith, who lives one mile north of Lovington, was herding sheep out near the High-sommes neighborhood, he ran his hand down a prairie dog den to get a centipede which he had been contracted to catch for the well, but his fingers were all around the hole and he was unable to get it out. He was in a bad way when he was taken to the hospital, but he is now recovering.

It is this frightful condition the boy who is about 16 or 17 years of age is now in. He is commended for his bravery. He was much older than he possesses such nerve. He extracted himself from the snake, cut a piece from the snake's body and bound on the wound after having sucked as much of the poison out as possible, took a shoe lace from his shoe and bound his wrist and then higher up on the arm.

All this he did as he was alone at the time, then walked a distance of three miles to the W. N. Johnson ranch where Mr. Johnson quickly had him immerse his hand in a vat of kerosene, and brought him to town in a car, where Dr. Deardoff dressed his wound and last report was that the boy was doing well.

A young man who was herding sheep for Mr. Hawk Medlin, was bitten by a centipede on the hand about midnight Wednesday night, while at the sheep camp. He shook it from his hand and would have killed it, but it darted off and he spent no time looking for it, but went to the ranch house about a mile distant, where Mrs. Medlin bathed his hand in kerosene, the quickest remedy, and her son, Buddy, brought him to town immediately in his car to the doctor. Thursday he returned to work.—Lovington Leader.

MEADOW AND HARMONY VOTE BONDS AND TAXES

We learned Wednesday morning that the bond election at Meadow on Tuesday resulted in favor of the bonds for $40,000 to build and equip a brick high school building by 43 to 42 votes.

They may look like a heavy indebtedness and it is now, but our prediction is that Meadow is not building more than four years in advance.

We also predict that all the people of Meadow are democratic, and will now join hands in putting across a real educational program.

We neglected to mention last week that the Harmony Independent District recently held an election for the purpose of voting bonds for a school building and also to raise their tax rates. Both measures carried 18 to 2.

Those people seem to have a good school is clearly demonstrated by the vote cast at this election.

NOTICE TO OUR PATRONS

It has been rumored that we are moving from here at once, and that Dr. W. N. has already left. We are sorry to have to resort to this means of correcting this rumor. We judge that the ones who started this report were so in hopes that it was true that they actually believed that they could tell it and get away with it.

Dr. W. N. left last week for the clinics and will be gone some two or three weeks. After his return Dr. J. R. will go to New York for a six months course, but one of us will be here all the time to take care of our practice.

We have traded the sanitarium building for the George Black section of land, but will not give possession until about August 1st. If the country seems ready for it we will consider putting in a brick this fall.

Respectfully,
Dr. W. N. and J. R. Lemmon

SACRED TO ALL GOOD TEXANS IS THE ALAMO

The Alamo is sacred to all Texans, and should be to all Americans and to all the liberty loving citizens of the world, for it was the scene of a sublime example of the cheerful giving of lives that liberty might live.

The Alamo was originally called Mission San Antonio de Valero, and was founded by the Franciscan Missionaries to christianize and civilize the Indians. It was a large industrial school, in effect, where the Indians were taught the arts of civilized life, house construction, agriculture, husbandry, blacksmithing, and to weave, sew, etc. They were also taught to speak, read and write the Spanish language and to sing, draw, paint and play on musical instruments, such according to his talents.

The dwellings for the missionaries, the school, granaries, store rooms, and the row of houses for the Indians were all surrounded by a high stone wall, making a walled city, as this walled establishment was expected to last for a long time of need.

The Alamo was used as a fort many long years of revolution, and encounters "between factions, filibusters, royalists and republicans.

Later, the struggle for freedom from Mexico's tyranny was begun in 1835. It is a long and interesting story. Its culmination was really the fall of the Alamo, March 6, 1836, for that made possible the triumph of San Jacinto, April 21, 1836. "If you lose your life you shall save it." So, by dying and losing all for the time being, the men who gave up their lives at the Alamo, saved Texas.—Publishers' Auxiliary.
