TERRY COUNTY ISSUES MORE TAX RECEIPTS THAN IN 1924

Poll tax payments in practically all the heavy voting counties fell way off from the 1923 payments, the reason given being that this was an "off election" year. Most of the central West Texas counties found about the same conditions, and not a few of the better developed South Plains counties failed to reach the record of 1923 payments.

Terry county, however, was an exception, having issued exactly 144 more receipts for 1924 than for 1923. This goes to show that despite it being an off election year, that the incoming people from other sections more than overbalanced that condition. The following is the payments according to boxes:

LOCAL RECRUITERS FOR STATE TEACHERS' ASSN.

Fort Worth, Feb. 6.—O. W. Fagala, superintendent of the Brownfield schools, will direct the enlistment of teachers of this city as members of the Texas Teachers Association. H. R. Winston, of Brownfield, superintendent of Terry county schools, will lead the campaign outside the independent districts. Cochran and Yoakum counties will be enlisted by Co. superintendent John H. Doyle, of Levelland and H. P. Mooreland, respectively.

Miss Laura V. Hamner, of Amarillo is the general director of the enrollment of the 18th Congressional district, to which Terry, Cochran and Yoakum counties belong. The aim is to get a minimum of 1000 members in each congressional district. These three counties are expected to enroll 100 percent.

DEATH

Miss Lillian Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Webb, died at the family home Friday morning of heart trouble made acute by an attack of influenza. She lived only a few hours after her case became serious, despite all efforts made to revive the patient.

Miss Webb was prominent in social and religious circles in Brownfield, and she had a host of friends who join with her parents and brother in mourning her departure. She was a member of the Presbyterian church. Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church as the auditorium was larger. Services were under the direction of Rev. J. W. Baumman, former pastor of the Methodist church here, assisted by Revs. C. E. Ball and J. P. Watson.

The body was taken in charge at the door by the ladies of the Ku Klux Klan and carried to the cemetery, where it was buried according to their rites.

LUBBOCK TO HAVE $350,000 HOTEL IN NEAR FUTURE

The citizens of Lubbock have just completed a campaign in which they raised $150,000 in the city for an up-to-date hotel, the other $200,000 to be supplied by out side capital providing the citizens raised the above mentioned amount.

At a recent meeting of the stockholders after the campaign was finished the following officers were elected: R. W. Blair, president; W. A. Myrick, Sr., vice-president; E. L. Kleit, secretary and Sam C. Arnett, treasurer.

Plans of the building are being worked out by Sanguinet-Staats & Hedrick, of Fort Worth, and everything will be made ready for the contract to be awarded and construction work on the building to be started when incorporation of the institution has been completed.

For a peace loving world we certainly are interested in armaments.

CITY COUNCIL CONSIDERING 24-HOUR SERVICE SOON

We have it on good authority that the Brownfield city council are seriously considering 24 hour electric light and power service for the near future. This is not only in line with their progressive policy, but also in view of the fact that business now justifies such a measure.

It has been something of a task ever since the first engine and generator was installed to keep supplies on hand fast enough to provide for new customers, and for a few weeks before the big engine was installed, they had to positively forbid any new additions to the use of power and light.

Before long the city must use electricity to pump water into the big reservoir on top of the tower in order to keep the everything in shape in case of fire. Not only that, but the Texas Utilities will require quite a lot of power and water too for that matter in making ice, not to mention hundreds of other things that are requiring more and better service ever week and month.

THE SENIOR SCHOOL STUDENTS STAGE GOOD PLAY

"Little Miss Jack" was the title of the very interesting and well rendered play put on by the senior class at the high auditorium last Friday evening, and those who ventured out in the rather uncertain weather were well rewarded for same.

The large auditorium was well filled when compared to other entertainments that have taken place in it for the past season, and the boys and girls did themselves proud in their various character portrayal.

School students are now in the making to take the place of us older folks in the near future, and their encouragement now may mean much to them in future life.

LOCAL DENTIST HAS AN IDEAL OFFICE NOW

While making an inspection of the new Alexander building on the north side of the square recently, especially the upper floor, we dropped in to see Dr. H. H. Hughes, who has recently opened quarters in two of the southeast rooms, and we found one of the neatest and cleanest dental parlors to be found anywhere, with everything handy and well arranged.

The Dr. informed us that he had an electric lathe and a fountain cuspidor ordered and would be installed as soon as they arrive. An agent of one of the best X-ray machines will be in Brownfield in the near future, the next three weeks to be exact, at which time Dr. Hughes will purchase a machine large enough to not only meet his requirements in photographing teeth, jaw bones, etc., but any portion of the body as well.

We are glad to make note of the rapid progress this young dental surgeon is making here.

H. ALEXANDER AND AMERICAN TAILOR SHOP MOVE

H. Alexander is this week opening up one of the neatest and most up-to-date gents furnishing stores to be found on the plains in the new Alexander building on the north side of the public square. Mr. Alexander has had quite a lot of experience in this line in some of the best towns and cities in Texas, and is not only putting in a stock that will appeal to the lovers of style and good quality among both the young and older men, but he is putting on a price in line with good quality. Mr. Alexander is also installing some very nice fixtures. The place will be known as "Henry's".

O. L. Jones, popular proprietor of the American Tailor Shop this week moved also into the Alexander building in the rear of "Henry's" store, where he will be pleased to meet his many customers, being better prepared than ever to take care of their demands in the tailoring line in the way of cleaning, pressing and altering. Mr. Jones is too well known in Brownfield and surrounding territory to need any long winded editorial from us. Note his removal notice in this issue.

THE BROWNFIELD BAKERY CHANGED HANDS LAST WEEK

Hancock & Rambo sold the bakery last week to a gentleman living at Tahoka, whose name we failed to learn. Mr. M. O. Hardegree, of Winters, Texas, has leased the bakery, and he and brother are now conducting the same under the name of City Bakery. "We welcome these fine young men and families to this city."

Messrs. Hancock and Rambo have not indicated their intentions for the future, but it is believed that both will arrange to remain in Brownfield in some other line of business. The Herald hopes so, anyway.

J. L. CRUCE AND WIFE BOOST BROWNFIELD

"J. L. Cruce and wife of Brownfield, Terry county, Texas, came in Thursday to buy dry goods and a general line of merchandise. They are veteran patrons of the market and reported West Texas conditions as excellent, with prospects bright for a banner business during 1925."—Friday's Dallas Morning News.

That is the way for our people to do when they go to market. Let the world know that we are doing and expecting something out here. Don't be ashamed to open your mouth and spit out some news of this section when approached by a newspaper reporter. Mr. and Mrs. Cruce are opening up a dry goods store in the Alexander building on the north side of the square.

Why is it as easy to forget the things you should remember as to remember the things you should forget.

ELECTION NOTICE FOR COURT HOUSE AND JAIL RUNNING

Elsewhere in this issue and for the next four issues will be found an election order of the Commissioners Court for a bond issue of $70,000 for a court house and jail, the election to be held on the 21st day of March.

Let the voter read and study this matter that they may be qualified to dispose of this issue in a way for the best interests of the county, taking into consideration the future growth in population and increase in physical valuation, remembering that with the incoming thousands in the next few years, that you are going to have a lot of help in retiring these bonds, and at the same time we can be using a nice, neat and clean building.

If the average voter will hang out at the courthouse for one day and get a full day's whiff of filth and dust, observe the crowded conditions and general disarrangements under which our county servants have to labor, we believe they will vote yes on March 21. Terry has too much pride to tolerate an old eyesore of a shack for a courthouse, any longer, we believe.

T. & P. MAKES SURVEY OF MIDLAND & NORTHWESTERN

Midland, Texas, Feb. 10.—Chief Engineer Pennybacker of the Texas & Pacific Railway offices in Dallas made a survey of the Midland & Northwestern this week in a motor car. Mr. Pennybacker traveled the 65 miles of the road from Midland to Seminole to make an appraisal of the physical value of the line.

Clarence Johnson, general agent of the T. & P. at El Paso, spent the entire week making a survey of the traffic possibilities of the line. He went over the farming and cattle lands of Midland, Andrews and also Gaines counties, Texas and Lea county New Mexico. He went as far north as Seagraves, a southern terminal of the Lubbock branch of the Santa Fe.

A PROPOSITION

To the Religious World: This church is willing to pledge itself to abandon anything and all things shown to be unscriptural and to accept and adopt anything shown to be commanded by the word of God, all for the sake of Unity and the answering of our Lord's intercessory prayer. Who will meet us on this ground? Which do you love most the work of God or traditions and opinions. You say we are all trying to go to the same place—"Heaven." Come and we will all ride the same train and let Christ punch our tickets and not man. Meet me at the Christian church, Sunday.

G. W. Davis, Pastor

As long as we can remember Congress has spent its time on unfinished business.

THE SIGNS ARE POINTING TO A GOOD CROP YEAR

Any man who has spent from 10 to 30 years on the Plains will tell you that the signs are right for a good crop in 1925 with plenty of moisture for all needs. Our dry and wet years seem to come in cycles of from five to six years. In 1914-15 and 16 were reasonably wet years with a taper down as they came until a rainfall of only 5.50 inches was recorded in 1917, and then the gradual climb started up again when the maximum was again reached in 1920 of 26 inches. The scale then turned down again until less than 8 inches was recorded here last year. Now the climb will start back up with increasing rainfall for the next few years.

Inasmuch as we absolutely missed our usual fall rains the past year, we are expecting an abundance of early spring rains in April and May, so that the crop will be rushed through to maturity with dispatch.

We are no prophet or son of one, but we have lived sixteen years on the ballies and doubt seriously if Foster or many other long distant prognosticators ever saw this country or gave it a thought. They probably think twenty inches of rainfall annually a pronounced drought, and it would be where they live, but we can make a bumper crop on 16 inches if it comes in the growing season.

Mr. New Comer, it is our experience here, if that will do you any good, not to expect much rain until April or May. Occasionally we have a good one after the middle of March—but not often. So don't become uneasy or discouraged, but prepare your land for the reception of rain and it will come in plenty time for your needs. Experience has also revealed the fact that you will throw away your seed to plant before the first of May usually.

TO SHOW "HUSBANDS AND LOVERS" HERE

Carrying out their policy of exhibiting only the best productions for Brownfield theatre goes, Managers Jones and Bynum have succeeded in getting John M. Stahl's latest masterpiece "Husbands and Lovers," for a two day run in the Pastime Theatre, beginning next Monday, February 16th.

It is rated as one of the best pictures and one of the finest entertainments to reach the screen this year. Probably the foremost of the many great qualities to be found in "Husbands and Lovers" is its absolute portrayal of life. Based on the intricacies of domestic happiness, the story presents people and situations that are familiar to everyone.

Three main characters, two men and a woman, hold the spotlight, but not as the eternal triangle. There is a romantic triangle, to be sure, but it is a new one and is handled in a new way.

Clever, subtle comedy is the outstanding element of "Husbands and Lovers," although the picture contains some dramatic scenes that arouse the emotions as do few more serious plays. Lewis Stone, who also played Stahl's "Why Men Leave Home" and "The Dangerous Age," heads the cast, and Lew Cody and Florence Vidor are among the other members of the all-star cast.

NEW GIN TO BE BUILT AT WELLMAN

At a meeting at the Wellman school house, Monday, the citizens of that community discussed the plans for a new gin, which were adopted, and a committee appointed consisting of G. W. Edwards, H. C. Stout, and S. Z. Paul for the purpose of securing lots.

Seagraves business men were well represented at this meeting, and are in full co-operation with the people of that community for the gin.

E. B. Harrison, gin man of Brownfield, was present and agreed to build a gin equal to the one he built at Brownfield last year. The committee was in Seagraves Monday evening and closed a deal with the Spearman Land Company for a five acre block and plans are now under way for the beginning of the gin—Seagraves Signal.

GOOD REVENUE PRODUCER

It is reported that hereafter Australian citizens will be fined $10 for failure to vote. Such a law in the United States would produce a revenue of millions annually for the United States Treasury.

TEXAS UTILITIES GRANTED FRANCHISE FOR HIGH LINE

The Texas Utilities Company, represented by their attorney, Mr. J. B. Scott, made application and was allowed by the Commissioners' Court of Terry county, Tuesday, to construct and maintain a high line on substantial poles at least 22 feet above the roads and street.

From what a representative of the Herald could learn from Mr. Scott, it was the intention of the Utilities Company to run out a high line from Lubbock to Meadow and Ropes for the present at least. He said the company had no intention at present of operating in Brownfield, unless, as we understand it, they are able to purchase the city plant, and get a franchise from the city of Brownfield, which the Commissioners have no power to grant, this being an incorporated city. The reference made to streets only pertained to towns not incorporated.

The franchise runs for a period of 50 years.

The Commissioners and other citizens present had quite a little fun at Mr. Scott's expense, when he was reminded that two cars ago they asked Brownfield some $80,000 to come to Brownfield when we wanted lights and power. Mr. Scott took the jest good naturedly, saying that no man could then foresee the development now taking place.

BRICK WORK STARTED MONDAY ON THEATRE BUILDING

Contractor Roy Wingred started a large crew of brick masons to work on the new theatre building on east Hardin street Monday, and they expect to have a full crew at work by the middle of the week, and construction will be rushed just as fast as weather conditions will permit.

When the building is completed, no citizen of the town will have to apologize for the looks of their theatre, either exterior or interior, or for the size of the building. It will be 40x120 feet long with balconies, and completed and furnished worth in the neighborhood of $25,000.

The latest purchase of the Pastime is a reproduco pipe organ.

COCHRAN COUNTY TROUBLES STILL A PROBLEM

While Cochran County was supposed to have officially organized, and a full set of public officials were elected in the general elections, that that county is not as organized as would seem to be the case, according to authentic reports circulating in Hockley County and in Lubbock.

Morton has been selected as the site of county government but the dispute between the big cattle interest and the agricultural interest has not been settled. An argument has arisen among the ranks of the commissioners as to the eligibility of County Judge J. D. Caldwell to serve. It is claimed by some that Caldwell never was a citizen of Cochran County and that his home is in Lubbock. He is one of the pioneers of this section, having formerly operated the Lubbock Mercantile Company, at Broadway and Avenue I.

Due to the moving of his family that his children might go to school at Ligon, an argument was raised concerning the eligibility of County Commissioner L. Shipman to serve. That question, however, has been settled.—Plains Journal.

CITY COUNCIL PURCHASES INTERNATIONAL FIRE TRUCK

Mayor Joe J. McGowan informed us last week that at a meeting of the council recently they had purchased a large International Fire Truck, which would be used in carrying chemical tanks and hose when the city waterworks system is complete. The truck will be painted a glowing red, will be equipped with a siren whistle, and have "Brownfield Fire Department" painted on it. The truck will be brought down from Amarillo in a few weeks.

HOW THE GOVERNMENT HELPS THE PRINTER

The Government has just contracted for twelve billion stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers which it will sell at retail for a trifling sum more than the cost of the stamps and then throw in the printing for another trifle, beating the printers and stationers out of millions of dollars worth of business which properly should go to them.

One of these days some clerk in the Postal Service will persuade Uncle Sam that it will be a great convenience to the public to sell dry goods and groceries and other commodities at less than cost, the business being carried on in a public place visited daily by the bulk of the people, while the overhead and all other expense absorbed in the postal deficit, and then the printers will have the laugh on business men who talk "buy at home" for the benefit of their farmer trade, but who cross their fingers when it comes to buying their own supplies.—Exchange.

If the Government was selling dry goods and groceries at less than cost instead of printing, the injustice would not be so great. Nearly everybody buys dry goods and groceries. We could all buy from the government and in general taxation the loss in the government's merchandising would be paid principally by those who bought the goods for less than cost. But who benefits by the government's printing activity? Does the farmer taxpayer buy government printing? He helps, through his taxes to make up the deficit in the postal department. Under the present arrangement, the merchant and big business man gets the entire benefit of cheap government printing. The farmer helps pay his printing bill. Does the farmer know this? Surely not. The main scheme of taxation is to extract the money from the taxpayer with the least possible pain. This means keep the taxpayer in the dark as much as possible about what his tax money goes for. If he knew he was helping to pay his merchant's printing bill he would not like it. If it was known that the merchant was not "trading at home" he might be embarrassed. Let's keep all this secret, for "what we don't know don't hurt us" and the printer is the principal sufferer.—Rotan Advance.

RESOLUTIONS

Brownfield, Texas, Feb. 10, 1925. Be it resolved that the First Baptist Church of Brownfield, in conference assembled, conforming to the disciplinary rules of the Church Covenant of the Baptist Church, that dancing is wrong, both public and private, and is a public offense against the church.

Therefore, be it resolved, that hereafter, an member of the Baptist Church, of Brownfield, charged with dancing will be notified to appear before the Church Conference assembled and openly apologize for this wrong; failure to do so they will be excluded from the church.

Be it further resolved that we condemn as a public wrong, the act of any teacher in our public school drawing money for their services, engaging in public or private dancing.

Be it further resolved, that we condemn the practice of opening up business houses in the town of Brownfield with a Public Dance.

Be it further resolved that these resolutions be read at the Sunday morning services for the next four Sundays, that a copy be spread on our minutes, a copy be published in our local county paper, as well as the Baptist Standard.

Did on this the 10th day of Feb. 1925, by order of the Church Conference Assembled.

WAGE EARNERS COLLECTING DIVIDENDS

A marked difference is seen in the class of people now holding the securities of our great corporations and the holders of such securities a few years ago.

In 1917 dividends collected by wage earners amounted to but 9.5 per cent of the total. In 1918 this figure had risen to 14.1 per cent, and by 1921, to 22.7 per cent of the whole.

The number of stockholders in the country increased from 4,400,000 in 1900 to 14,400,000 in 1923, while the average number of $100 shares decreased from 140 to 50.

The ownership of our industries is passing rapidly into the hands of the wage earners, not by a wave of the political wand, but by sound business methods.

Early Fur Trade Had Plethora of Romance

The romance of the fur trade is not over. The wreck of the Hudson's Bay company's steamer Lady Kindersley, with a million dollars' worth of furs, in the Arctic ocean, was an adventure as thrilling as any on the sea.

Unlike the earlier vessels in the trade she was equipped with radio apparatus, which helped to acquaint the outside world with the plight of the crew. But when the voyager and trader of old struck out into the wilderness they left the world behind them and steered their course by the stars over river and plain. The most remarkable of these star gazers was probably David Thompson, the accuracy of whose boundary surveys remains undisputed.

The "Adventurers of England Trading Into Hudson's Bay" was the only corporate company which ruled over an area as large as Europe. With it will always be associated the name of Donald A. Smith, who, starting as a lad on the bleak coast of Labrador, where he spent 13 years, rose from the position of clerk to governor, and finally took his seat in the house of lords as Lord Strathcona, says the Toronto Globe.

But there was not much romance in his snowshoe tramp of a thousand miles to Lachine to consult a doctor about an affliction of the eyes which threatened blindness. One incident of his life in Labrador was revealed at a meeting of the railway committee of the house of commons when he was a member. An enthusiastic promoter wanted to build a railway from Quebec to Hamilton inlet, which, he declared, was an open port all the year round.

The old fur trader rose and remarked that was news to him, for he distinctly remembered walking across the inlet on snowshoes in the winters of the '40s. That, of course, killed the bill.

The romantic features of the company probably reached their zenith under Sir George Simpson, whose movements by canoe and saddle earned him the title of "fastest traveler in the north." Romance was continued for many years in the fiction of Reid and Oxley, and fortunately sufficient interest has been maintained in the real history of the fur trade to preserve the facts in many well known works.

Onion Only Eatable Lily

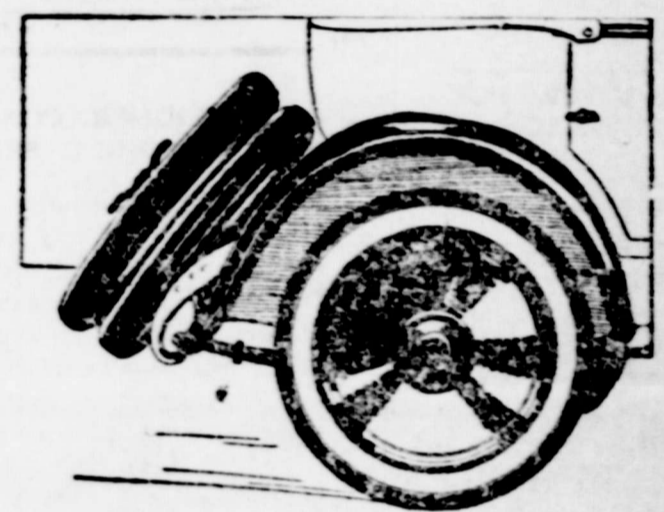

The chief value to man of the lily family, to which the onion belongs, is a purely ornamental one, says Dr. A. B. Stout, director of laboratories of the New York botanical garden. In the Detroit News, Doctor Stout is an expert on lilies.

A general survey of the true lilies and their near relatives reveals that the lily family contains relatively few plants of importance as food and fiber crops, says Doctor Stout. Of these the onions are perhaps most important. The young shoots of asparagus are among the delicacies of the spring season. Bulbs of certain of the true lilies are eaten by man, especially in China. The seeds of a Ruscus are used as a substitute for coffee. One member of the lily family, New Zealand flax, yields fiber. Several members yield medicinal products; of these sarsaparilla (from smilax) may be mentioned. The list of important economic plants in this family is, however, not a noteworthy one.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE PUBLIC—THEIR DUTIES

Roy W. Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, discussing what newspapers owe to the public, says first of all a newspaper must be a good citizen and a decent neighbor.

He says they should encourage tolerance and never forget that a smile has an asset value even in the midst of a fight. He would not print a story that puts a criminal brand on a young person.

He thinks no story should be printed that raises a question on the part of a clean minded boy or girl that cannot be answered or explained by the parents familiar with normal realities in life.

This is a fine stand by an executive of a group of papers that go to working people in hundreds of thousands of homes, registering a tendency toward cleaner journalism.

This new order is bound to minimize crimes, scandals, details of social and moral delinquencies, and substitute more space for industries and enterprises by which nine-tenths of the people make a living.

HANDS OFF THE RAILROADS

The Railway Age recently asked officials of the railroads to express their opinions as to what was most necessary to solve the present railroad problem. Consensus of opinion seemed to be that, more than anything else, they need to be left alone to run their business as other industries are allowed to do.

W. B. Story, president of the Santa Fe said:

"One of the greatest handicaps under which the railroads had to labor prior to 1920 was the uncertainty bred by the succession of new and varying laws. The legislative stability since 1920 has been attended by only numerous threats of substantial change. The railroads can adjust themselves to any fair legislative requirements and if the public would rest content with such requirements there would cease to be a problem, as the adjustment would constitute the solution."

Dog Carried Danger Signal

A motorist who was driving through a small town in Canada one night was astonished to see a little red light dancing about close to the ground on the road ahead. As he drew nearer he saw that it was an electric bulb fed from a dry-cell battery fastened on the back of a little dog. The owner, a woman who was walking nearby, explained that the dog refused to stay off the streets at night, and that to keep him from being run over she had contrived the canine tail light, so to speak. No doubt the dog will soon become familiar with the rules of the road—will slow down and bark at all crossings, keep always on the proper side of the highway and never go more than 40 miles an hour except when he sees a cat ahead.—Vancouver Companion.

Stars in Southern Cross

The Southern cross is not a phenomenon. It is the popular name for a Southern constellation situated near the Antarctic circle, and therefore never visible in northern latitudes. It consists of four bright stars, to which fancy, aided by Christian associations, gives the cruciform shape. Two brilliant stars, which mark the summit and foot of the Southern cross, have nearly the same right ascension. The constellation, therefore, is almost vertical when passing the meridian, and these two stars act as pointers to the Antarctic pole.

Early Monopoly

Monopoly in America began in 1823, declares Edward MacMahon, associate professor of history in the University of Washington. A cow was brought to a Pilgrim colony from England. Professor MacMahon said, and allotted to several families, including Capt. Miles Standish, a bachelor. Captain Standish soon bought control of the cow, share by share, and he and his relatives enjoyed an abundant supply of milk while neighbors went without, related the historian.

In Duty's Path

Do the duty which lies nearest thee. Thy second duty will already have become clearer.—Carlyle.

Uncle Horace Adams and wife, accompanied by their son-in-law, Lester McPherson, of El Paso, left last week for that city, where they will try that climate for their health. Their son, Orel drove them through to Midland, where they took the train for El Paso. We hope this good old couple will find El Paso well suited to their infirmities and will soon be enjoying better health.

Mr. Robert James of Livingston, N. M., was a pleasant caller at the Herald office, Monday. Mr. James at one time made his home here.

Miss Ora Richards, of Seagraves, is the guest of her friend, Miss Murree Bell, this week.

Rev. J. F. Curry and family have moved to their new home west of O'Donnel, and are now further improving the place. Rev. Curry's work as a missionary has taken him to all parts of the Plains country and had his choice of many places to live but decided that none of them offered such exceptional advantages as this country. He will have about 400 acres in cultivation this season, the greater part of which will be planted to cotton. The Currys formerly lived at Tahoka.—O'Donnel Index.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Terry County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon W. A. Craver by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the nearest county to your county, to appear at the next regular term of County Court of Terry County, to be holden at the Courthouse thereof, in Brownfield, on the Fourth Monday in February, A. D. 1925, the same being the 23rd day of February, A. D. 1925, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 12th day of December, A. D. 1924, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court, No. 197, wherein W. B. That said note bears interest from date at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, and was due five months after date. That said note also provides for 10 per cent addition on the amount of principal and interest as attorney's fees if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, whereby said defendants became bound and liable to pay and promised to pay plaintiff said sum of money in said note specified, together with all interests and attorney's fees thereon. That on November 10, 1924, there was paid on said note which was duly credited the sum of $50.00; that said note is past due and unpaid, and although often requested so to do the defendants have failed and refused to pay said plaintiff's damage in the sum of $127.18. That on said May 15, 1924, the defendant, W. A. Craver to secure the payment of the principal and interest and attorney's fees specified in said promissory note according to the tenor and effect thereof, executed and delivered to plaintiff his certain chattel mortgage on the following described personal property in the County of Terry, described as follows, to-wit: One Ford touring car, 1920 Model, engine No. 366170 and all the cotton grown on 20 acres of land by said Craver for the year 1924, on the McCrummins place seven and one half miles southwest of Gomez, less the landlord's part of one-fourth conditional for the payment of the sum of $150.00, and interest thereon at the rate and in the manner as specified in said note and mortgage and according to the conditions and terms thereof; which said chattel mortgage was duly recorded in Vol. 8, page 194 of the record of Chattel Mortgages for said County which by reference thereto is hereby made a part hereof.

That said note has been placed in the hands of R. L. Graves for collection and plaintiff has agreed to pay him the 10 per cent as his fees contained in said note and mortgage.

Plaintiff prays judgement against said defendant for the sum of his debt, interest, attorney's fees and costs, for a foreclosure of his chattel mortgage lien on the above described property and for such other and further relief, both general and special in law and in equity to which he may be entitled to receive.

Herein fail not but have before said Court, at its aforesaid regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Brownfield, on this 12th day of Dec., A. D. 1924.

We had another jam up good West Texas "Rain" last Saturday but we are afraid it wasn't the kind that will help us to plant cotton and corn.

The Herald man is not planting much cotton and corn nor does he intend to but he has seen too many dry Januaries in old Terry to become much worried about the condition of the country yet a few days.

A good many of our small boys have been apprehended for breaking into houses and stores lately, and others are marked for the same disaster. And in most instances they are not newcomers, but boys that have been raised here and with the best of family reputation. In most instances the rod ought to be brought vigorously into play again.

In line with the Dallas News' "More Cotton per Acre" campaign, Governor Ma Ferguson is offering four prizes to the four prize farms on the same basis, equal to one month of her salary as governor. Possibly such steps as this will have a tendency to lessen the overdrawn condition that has been so prominent in the penitentiary for the past several years.

We call your attention to the ad of Mr. Paul M. Ivey, local salesman of Dodge Brothers cars and parts in Brownfield. Mr. Ivey is situated at the Markham Garage and is going to push the sale of this popular car for all it is worth by both newspaper publicity, demonstrations and the already well established reputation of Dodge Brothers products. If you are contemplating the purchase of a Dodge car, call on him.

Henry Ford Says: "The local paper is the small town's greatest asset. No town should fail to support its local paper to the extent of liberal patronage." This coming, as it does from the world's greatest financier, should claim the attention of all who grudgingly support the home paper, and make them stop long sufficient in their mad rush for more gold, to try to think what their home town would be without some means of outside publicity.

Speeders are getting their these days in Lubbock, eleven being arrested in one day to donate to the city chest. Some of them are being halted in Brownfield also, and we have noticed some improvements, especially around where an officer is likely to be stationed. It is indeed strange what a big hurry some people get in sometimes to get nowhere in particular. If they were just endangering their own lives, no one would care a straw, but they usually endanger the innocent and sensible more than they do their own lives.

Well, this old sphere is still on its usual 24 hour journeys despite what a group of religious fanatic over in California predicted. We call this a Christian nation, and claim to believe the Book and yet people are included as such who publicly repudiate the Bible which plainly says that the angels of heaven, let alone man, will not know the day or the hour when Christ appears again. Such deluded mortals, to our mind, are still grouping in infidelity to that extent as if they openly declared there is no God. It seems to us those of them with just a little bit of brain matter would get out of that mess right now while the getting is good.

What is the difference between a "cold" and "hot" check has been worrying us ever since we heard a worthless check called by both monikers. About the only solution that we have been able to figure out is the "hot" check must be the "nearly-good" check, because it is returned to the victim marked "insufficient funds," while the "cold" check returns to the man with the bag to hold marked "no account." We want all our readers who hold any claim of being in the inner financial circle to help us out of this. We recently observed a man who got a whole handful of these worthless pieces of paper in one days mail. Such frauds as these should be punished with a good sized penitentiary sentence, and a bill to that effect is now pending at Austin.

One thing that Brownfield is now in need of that should be looked into and put on a business basis as soon as possible, and the sooner the better for the public as well as those seeking help. We speak of a charity fund, and a committee in charge of same to examine applications for charity, and its proper dispensation. Here of late this place of business and we guess others have been invaded by absolute strangers in quest of funds for certain cases of sickness supposed to be at a certain wagon yard, and maybe very next day some one else will be in on the same mission. We do not deny that there are people sick, or that they need help, but people should investigate these cases we know and have confidence in. Personally the Herald is willing to subscribe a stipulated amount each month for charity purposes if the town will get together, elect a committee as stated above, and let the city officials keep all strange solicitors off the streets. What do you think, neighbor?

The Merkel Mail has never at any time published anything that was in any way detrimental or reflecting in the least upon any person or firm in this city, and there are but few who have not at some time, and some of them many times, received a boost that was helpful in a personal or business way. We always buy our needs in Merkel. Can you say the same for and of the Merkel Mail?—Merkel Mail.

No, they cannot, unless perchance you have an unusually home loving, home buying population. This too, has been the policy of the Herald, but occasionally it gets the hot end of the poker. That is, it is asked to run the free boost dope and the other fellow way off some where gets the coin.

World Loses Another of Its Historic Spots

There is a dingy old building at the corner of Dock and Moravian streets in Philadelphia which is about to be torn down to make way for a new structure. With it will vanish a spot about which memories cluster dim but poignant.

In 1837 William E. Burton founded the Gentleman's Magazine, in imitation of the famous English periodical of the same name. Shortly before, Edgar Allan Poe had come up from Richmond to seek a wider field for his poems and stories. His occasional contributions to contemporary journals attracted the attention of Burton, who engaged him. In July, 1839, to sit in with the editorial staff of the Gentleman's Magazine, at a salary of $50 a month. Poe had previously declined to accept any editorial position, fearing that the confinement would handicap his powers. His child wife, Virginia, soon began to develop the terrible disease which was to take her from him, however, and in his desire to provide her with comforts he was constrained to accept regular employment.

For three years he sat in the corner room of the second story at Dock and Moravian streets and wrote his immortal criticisms and essays. Then he and his employer quarreled over Poe's prospectus for the Penn Magazine, and in 1842 their connection ceased.

But the dark little room has seemed to be filled ever since with the atmosphere of his brooding spirit, and for many years it has been a mecca for all throughout the world who have read his songs and prose. Now at last it is to go and the place thereof shall know it "Nevermore."

Picea Engelmanni

Engelmann Spruce is essentially a Rocky mountain evergreen, for its geographic distribution is very largely confined to the Rockies. P. A. Smoll, Pa. Naturalist of the Rocky Mountain National park, tells us. It ranges from the southern limits of Arizona and New Mexico to well up into the Canadian Rockies, while a limited amount of it is found in the states of Washington and Oregon, apart from the Rocky mountain system. The name, Engelmann Spruce, is appropriate and well established among students of western trees, although among the lumbermen of the West, one may often hear the name "spruce" used when this tree is intended. The first discoverer of the tree cannot be named with absolute certainty. In the history of the Lewis and Clark expedition of 1805, mention is made of a "spruce" which may have been the tree which we now know as Engelmann Spruce, but, on the part of many of our early explorers, there has been much confusion in the distinction of the firs and spruces and therefore this conclusion is open to question.

Jealousy Analyzed

"There is, perhaps, no such thing as love without an occasional display of jealousy," says Burton Rascoe, writing in Hearst's International. "But in every case I believe it will be found that the one who is jealous has lost for the moment his or her self-assurance. It may be because of illness or overwork or a protracted lack of diversion.

"When I have been jealous or my wife has been jealous I have always noticed that our jealousy could be traced to one of these three things. When I have been jealous, they have been occasions when I felt myself at a disadvantage, when my egoism was not top-notch.

"The man who knows that he can depend upon his wife not to leave him in the lurch or desert him in a crisis or find some one else irresistibly more attractive, is pretty sure of himself, sure of his power to attract, sure of his worthiness as a man. This is true also of a woman."

Army Seeks Nonskid Mule

Whether to equip the army mule with vacuum cup or nifty tread horseshoes, or to go a step further and encircle his hazardous hoofs with an equine adaptation of balloon tires, is a problem perplexing the best brains of the United States army, by reason of the automobile's oily usurpation of the roads.

It is either a nonskid shoe for the old reliable government mule, or his displacement by motor-driven equipment.—Outlook.

EQUAL in laying ability. But the hen on the right was fed a common grain ration while the other was fed Purina Chicken Chowder and Purina Hen Chow. Grains have lots of material for yolks, but far too little for whites. As they can't lay yolks only, grain-fed hens lay fewer eggs.

DAY OF REJOICING AND LAVISH REPAST

Fijians Celebrate Anniversary Whole-Heartedly.

In Fiji, which has just celebrated 50 years of British rule, amid public rejoicing, the art of feasting has, according to Sir Maynard Hedstrom, commissioner from Fiji, been brought to a more robust pitch than in any other country in the world.

On the anniversary day nearly every village in the 250 islands of the Fiji group had its ceremonial feast, at which enormous quantities of food were divided among participants who have been making the event the chief topic of conversation for many months past.

Hospitality and good-fellowship are labor characteristics of every native Fijian. They are characteristics that have been handed down to him from long lines of savage ancestors, who, when not engaged in fighting their enemies, delighted to entertain their friends to lavish repasts.

In his everyday eating the Fijian is frugal enough, but upon ceremonial occasions all his inherited traits come into play, and he organizes feasts upon a gargantuan scale.

In the center of the feast ground, upon a structure of bamboo, the food is thickly piled. The delicacies are numerous and romantic; pigs roasted whole, wild birds stuffed with spices, baked snakes, taro, yams, pineapples, and all the luscious fruits of Fiji.

About this edifice the guests group themselves. They sit on their haunches, gay in ruffles of dyed feathers and kilts of colored cloth. They maintain a rigid and respectful silence, but every brown face is turned upon the stack of food with an expression of the keenest interest and pleasure.

To and fro about the stack move the masters of ceremony. They scan the food and the guests with anxious eyes, for theirs is the difficult task of making a fair division. A tactless distribution of the food may very easily cause serious offense or even lead to blows among the guests.

At a recent feast a huge shark, wrapped up like a mummy in palm leaves and baked whole, formed the supreme culinary achievement.

The method of catching the monster was spectacular in the extreme. From his canoe a valiant native lassoed the shark by the tail and then played it like a salmon, until, exhausted, it fell an easy victim to the spears of his friends.

Actor's Ready Wit

As a young man, Walter Prichard Eaton had the good fortune to hear the famous comedian, Peter F. Dailey, spring one of his best impromptu jokes during a burlesque performance of "The Merry Widow."

In his book, "The Actor's Heritage," he describes the scene in which Dailey is leaving a restaurant where the prices were something terrific. As he was making his exit, the comedian accidentally stepped on something and started to fall. Being an extremely heavy man, there was actual danger. The other players sprang to catch him and the audience gasped. But he righted himself and then in silence stooped down and picked up a tiny object on which he had slipped.

The play stopped. In an expectant silence, Dailey drew out a pocketbook, counted the money in it and then deposited the total sum in the head waiter's hands.

"Here," he said, "is $12. I stepped on a bean."

Yes and No

Tommy had been looking forward to Wednesday, on which day the druggist promised to give all the children a bird with each chocolate soda. Wednesday arrived and Tommy hurried to the drug store so he would get his "prize" before they were all gone. When he paid his check he looked at the clerk and asked whether he might have his bird. "Why," answered the man behind the counter, "you got a swallow, didn't you?"

It was a very sad but a very impressive lesson to Tommy. He decided the old saying, "nothing for nothing" was the truest ever spoken.—Indianapolis News.

Peking's Trolley Line

The first trolley line in China's capital was recently opened with great formality, and with the drinking of tea. After an address by the chairman of the French board of directors and Chinese officials the eight gaudily decorated cars started on an inspection trip over the new road, which is limited to the western part of the city. Other tracks are being laid. Opposition of the rickshaw men was overcome with the promise to build factories in which they would be employed when thrown out of work by the street cars.

Airbrake Thirty Years Old

The airbrake, the invention of George Westinghouse, which revolutionized railway operations, is now more than thirty years old, and it is used on more than two and a half million freight cars, not to mention all passenger cars on railroads throughout almost the entire world. This is the only railroad device that has a universal use throughout the world.

Hold Fast to Liberty

If there is anything of value, it is liberty. Liberty is the air of the soul, the sunshine of life, without which the world is a prison and the universe an infinite dungeon.—Robert G. Ingersoll.

Formation of Ice

The surface of a river or lake freezes into solidity, first at the top; as more water freezes it forms beneath that already frozen. Ice forms over fresh water if the temperature of the air has been for a sufficient time at or below freezing point, but freezing is only possible after the whole mass of water has been cooled down to its point of maximum density, so that the subsequent cooling of the surface can give rise to no convection currents, which would cause diffusion of heat.

Wisdom Teeth

A fair percentage of persons never have wisdom teeth, declares Hygeia magazine. These teeth generally erupt some time between the eighteenth and twenty-fifth year, although in many cases eruption is delayed. Frequently wisdom teeth form but remain within the jaw bone and never erupt. The majority of such teeth do no harm, although occasionally it is necessary to remove them if there is pain or some sign of infection.

Weather and Health

Different kinds of weather affect different people in different ways, but as a rule we feel better when the sun is shining. Damp is an enemy of health; a cool, bracing day a friend. Doctors frequently order their patients a "change of scene," and they are now learning that the benefits of such a change are greater even than they had thought, because a change of scene usually means a change of climate as well. Temperature, the amount of moisture in the air, the height above sea-level—all these things can affect our health.

Often Works

Therefore, be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Brownfield, Texas, that a special election be held in the City of Brownfield, Texas, at the Courthouse thereof, which is the regular polling place for said City, on the 24th day of February 1925, to determine whether said City shall adopt or reject the benefits of the provisions of Chapter 11, Title 22, Revised Civil Statutes (1914) of the State of Texas.

J. E. Shelton, Clerk.

Weather Experts to Make Study of Ocean

The influence which the ocean has upon the weather is very great. "The study of the waters of the oceans," declares Lieutenant Commander George E. Brandt of the United States navy, "will yield results worth millions of dollars to the agriculture and industry of the nation, because from this study we can get a better understanding of the weather, and will probably be able to predict the weather a year in advance, especially the periods of rainfall and drought and their duration." Commander Brandt says that the waters of the ocean are a great reservoir for storing and distributing the heat which comes from solar radiation. During each hour of sunshine more heat is being added to this great reservoir. This heat in turn is given off again by the ocean, influencing very materially the weather over land and sea. Observations made by the Smithsonian Institution show that the radiation of the sun varies considerably from time to time. It is this variation, says Commander Brandt, which makes the study of weather so complicated. "Since the waters of the ocean act as an intermediate reservoir," he says, "the full effect of a change in solar radiation is not felt until some years after the change takes place."

Porcelain Has Long Been Known to World

Porcelain factories and stores are mentioned in Arabia in writing of the period of 800 A. D. The Arabian geographer, Mohammed-el-Idrisi, who lived in Sicily at the court of Roger II, published, about 1154, a geographic work in which he told of the town of Djankoy, where "Chinese glass" was made. He added that there was "no finer trade than that of a potmaker or a pot designer," according to the Detroit News. Toward the middle of the Fourteenth century, Ibn Batuta, the Arabian traveler, described Chinese ceramic as the most beautiful in the world. The Chinese manufactured dishes and porcelain ware for a very long time. In the history of the great Chinese empire, one reads that only certain towns and villages went in for porcelain industry. The finest chinaware was made in the province of Saxi. It was so beautiful and so much like the finest crystal that it never was exported, but was exclusively reserved for the use of the Chinese emperors.

Italian Lazzaroni

The name "Lazzaroni" was given to a class of vagabonds in Naples, Italy, which, in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, formed a distinct caste. They annually elected a chief, called Capo Lazzaro, who was recognized by the authorities and frequently took an active part in political affairs. In 1647, headed by Masaniello, they overthrew the government and for a few days held possession of the city. In 1798, instigated by Cardinal Ruffo, and led by Michele Storza, they successfully resisted the attacks of the French. The Lazzaroni had no homes nor regular occupations. They wore ragged clothes, were filthy in their habits, and slept in the open air. They were so-called either from Lazarus, the beggar, or more probably from the hospital of St. Lazarus, which served as a place of refuge for the destitute of the city.—Kansas City Star.

Planes Spread Terror

The terrifying effect of airplanes upon wild fowl is so great that if any general use should be made of them in hunting, the result would be exceedingly disastrous, according to a bulletin of the biological survey of the Department of Agriculture. Probably no other single method of pursuit of wild ducks and other game birds could parallel their deadly effect in reducing the number of wild fowl. It is for this reason that the biological survey has called upon all sportsmen and conservationists interested in the maintenance of this country's supply of wild fowl to gather and forward to it in Washington accurate information concerning such violations of law.

Weights and Figures

The grain is the one unit which is the same in troy and avoirdupois weight. An avoirdupois pound is 7,000 grains, a troy pound 5,760. The avoirdupois ounce is 437.5 grains, and the troy 480 grains. A hundred avoirdupois pounds of gold would be worth $20,166.67.

The American billion is expressed by a unit and nine ciphers—1,000,000,000. In Germany, France and elsewhere in Europe the same figure is called a milliard. The British billion and the German, too, is expressed by a unit and 12 ciphers—1,000,000,000,000.

Pest Imported in 1885

The cotton boll weevil was originally Mexican, having been found around Monclova, state of Coahuila, Mex., where as early as 1856 to 1862 it did such damage to cotton that cotton-growing there was abandoned. In 1885 the boll weevil crossed the Texas border into the United States. It encroached steadily from year to year until, in 1922, it infested practically the entire cotton-growing region of the United States. The only extensive uninfested territory lies in west and northwest Texas.

Draws Sordid Sketch of London Slum Life

About nine o'clock the miserable little fish shops of London, which punctuate the obscure facades of the long tenement rows like big lamps, are crowded with women and children carrying dishes and baskets, writes Alfons Paquet in the Frankfurter Zeitung.

Even as late as ten o'clock children play on the pavements and weary, dowdy women sit on the steps of their tiny unlighted houses, whose windows glint vacant and dusty into the darkness. Women also gather in clusters on the street corners. Silhouettes of men stand out in front of brightly lighted soup and baked potato caravans. Candy stores and fruit shops are still open.

In the middle of a row of darkened show windows electric lights shine brightly on the varnished coffin of an undertaking parlor. All these little details stand out sharp and ruthless, as they do in China.

Until eleven o'clock the corner pubs are packed with humanity. Each has three or more entrances leading to a little narrow room separated from the private bar by a light partition extending from the wall to the counter. The bartender with his barmaid presides in the middle of this horseshoe counter, directing things in a fog of tobacco smoke and whisky fumes.

Men stand as closely together on the sawdust-covered floor as their half-dressed glasses on the wet, narrow ledge in front of them. Dirty hands empty again and again the pot of highly salted shrimps beside the door.

Yard Distance From Royal Nose to Thumb

More than eight hundred years ago there lived a king—an English king, one Henry, surnamed Beauclerc, Alexander McArdle relates in the Atlantic Monthly. Early in his reign gray-bearded councillors declared that in their opinion it would be nice to have a measure of length called a yard; and this should be the distance between the tip of royal Henry's nose and the end of the royal thumb.

The king's nose may have been large or small or tilted upward. Moreover, the distance may have been measured when the king's nose was swollen, for royal noses can hit a doorpost in the dark just like common noses. And the royal thumb may have been stubby or spatulate. Henry, too, might have playfully extended his fingers and wiggled them with his thumb not quite at, but very near, the end of his royal nose; or he might have wiggled eight fingers with the thumb of one hand touching the little finger of the other. Twirling his fingers thus he could delicately convey to the court scientists who were conducting the royal triangulation just what he thought of them. But at all costs the deed was done and the Englishmen of the Twelfth century achieved a yard.

A PUBLIC STATEMENT

A rumor has been afloat to the effect that Dr. H. A. Castleberry, of Brownfield, Texas, has been prescribing intoxicating liquors, and the same were being filled by G. S. Webber at the Palace Drug Store, of Brownfield, Texas.

Such a report is utterly devoid of truth, and undoubtedly conceived in the mind of one having a passion for prevarication. It is bathed in the blackest slime of falsehood and perpetrated for some selfish or personal motive. It is not necessary to issue this statement to those who know the sterling character and christian gentleness of Dr. Castleberry, and the high plane of ethics upon which the Palace Drug Store is operated. However, to those who do not know us, this statement is directed in order that such an unjust, baseless rumor will not confuse you.

Plan Observance of Railroad Centennial

Quincy, Mass., is preparing for the centennial observance of the first railroad built and operated in the United States, a line from West Quincy to tidewater at Neponset, over which was transported the granite used in the building of Bunker Hill monument, the New York Sun reports.

The Quincy road is generally accepted as the first American railway. It was planned 100 years ago, when the Bunker Hill monument was under consideration, and it was opened October 7, 1825. Its rails were of granite, its rails were of pine and oak covered with flat bars of iron, and the cars were drawn by horses. It was three miles long. In the century since the construction of this road the railway mileage of the United States has grown to 250,000 miles.

In the consideration of the development of the railway as a means of public transportation railroad men are not agreed as to the date which marked its beginning. While they do not doubt that the iron rail came in with the Quincy railway, many of them believe that the most important feature of this development was the introduction of the locomotive. The beginning of the steam railway is usually dated from the opening of the Stockton and Darlington railroad to traffic in 1825. It was at least four years later before the locomotive appeared in America, the first arrival being the Stroudbridge Lion, built in England and tried out on an iron track from Carbondale to Honesdale, Pa. It was not a complete success.

In 1830 the development of railroad transportation actually began. In that year the first regular train service was inaugurated and the locomotive was successfully operated. The Baltimore & Ohio had been incorporated, a South Carolina railroad had been chartered as "a steam railroad to be operated by locomotives for public service," and the West Point foundry was making its good locomotives as the English foundries.

In 1830 there were 23 miles of railway in operation; ten years afterward—an era of feverish activity and widespread interest in railroad development—the number of miles had grown to 2,818.

Company Struck Back

Suing the street car company of Budapest for damages carries with it a risk all its own.

The company recently repainted the seats in its cars, but with a paint that softens under the influence of water. It neglected to repair the windows of some of its cars; so the rain fell on the paint and the paint—well, it stuck to divers skirts and trousers of luckless passengers.

Thereupon great indignation, and a flood of damage suits against the company.

But the company, working already with a big deficit, didn't feel like paying up. On the contrary, it filed a counter suit against everyone, demanding damages, charging that the passenger had damaged the paint of the car and was therefore liable for the cost of repainting. Furthermore, as a warning, it started criminal prosecution against the indignant passengers, charging them with willful damage to its property.

Centennial of Benzine

Next June a hundred years will have passed since Michael Faraday announced to the Royal Society his discovery of benzine.

Faraday made benzine for the first time in the laboratory of the Royal Institution, where today Sir William Bragg continues the great search after truth in other directions.

Benzine has been one of our greatest benefactors, but the chemistry of the new compounds it introduced has proved the curse of civilization. Benzine is easily converted into carbolic acid, the valuable antiseptic that saves thousands of lives, but a "turn of the wheel" in the chemist's laboratory will convert carbolic acid into a dangerous explosive, and the study of such explosive compounds, in many of which benzine is the starting point, has led to the methods of destruction which form the great tragedy of science.—Children's Newspaper, London.

Great Inventor's Garret

The garret in Hothfield hall, near Birmingham, England, in which James Watt, the man who did so much to develop the steam engine, conducted his experiments, may find its way to South Kensington museum. Negotiations are now proceeding to this end. Watt's first came to Birmingham about 1768. He died in 1819. The room in which he worked was looked after his death and was not opened for many years. His tools, benches, even the leather apron in which he worked and which hung in the same spot in which he put it, have been undisturbed. The estate is being developed by a building syndicate, and if the negotiations are successful the room will be transferred bodily to London.

Temper Glassware

By tempering glassware its life can be greatly prolonged. To do this tempering the glass should be completely immersed in a pan of cool water and be brought slowly to a boil, kept there for a few minutes, and then allowed to cool off. Leave glassware in the water until cold. This method is especially valuable for ware which is to be subjected to extremes of heat and cold, as the breakage resistance is greatly increased.

May Tell State Secrets

The European chancelleries are said to be anxiously awaiting disclosures which possibly may be made in the memoirs of Frau Katharine Schrratt, the aged actress who for many years was the favorite and confidante of Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. She is popularly supposed to have had knowledge of the facts surrounding the murder of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and also secrets of international diplomacy preceding the World War. Frau Schrratt has often been pointed to as the one woman who could keep a secret, but it is now reported that she is willing to consent to the publication of her memoirs.

To Katharine Schrratt Francis Joseph is supposed to have divulged intimate secrets, which even his closest admirers did not know. The actress, who was a member of the Royal theater in Vienna when Francis Joseph met her, still lives in that city.

Innocere

John S. Sumner, superintendent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, said in New York the other day:

"The authors of erotic books and plays always claim that their work has a moral influence, that it makes for reform.

"These men remind me of a picture in an exhibition. It was a picture of a beautiful nude woman, kneeling, her head bowed.

"Fine, ain't it? a man said. He consulted the catalogue and added: "It's called 'Repentance'."

"Humph," said the man's wife. "You'd think if she'd repented, she'd put some clothes on."

To Preserve Wild Fowl

According to Dr. W. E. Neiso, chief of the bureau of biological survey of the United States government, the number of wild water fowl is gradually decreasing, but there are still more wild water fowl today than there are feeding grounds for them. Ducks get about 93 per cent of their food from vegetation and wild geese get 97 per cent. A move is on to establish feeding grounds in the sloughs and marshy tracts are urged to sow wild rice, pondweed, red head grasses, wild celery, spatterdock and musgrass for the benefit of these fowls.

Goldfish

The goldfish stand should not be set in the window, as light is injurious to the fish. A comparatively dark spot, therefore, should be found for the stand. The oblong shaped holder, set against a wall, has proved very satisfactory.

REFLECTIONS OF A MAN WITH THE FLU

The following are the progressive meditations of our friend, A. P. Stewart, one of the most prominent citizens of the county, while confined to his bed with flu. Mr. Stewart has a feeling for the best interests and a forward look for the progress of old Terry even while laid out with the most pessimistic disease known to the category of medical science. His letter follows:

Tokio, Texas, Jan. 4th.
Dear Jack:—
As we have been disappointed up to this good hour by not having time and opportunity of visiting the Herald in its new home, and getting on the right side of your ledger, and as the Stewart family just at this time are in the convalescent stage over a good case of grippe, you will find enclosed a check which we trust will keep the Herald coming another 12 months. And we want to thank you very much for the continuance of our copy of the Herald to this date, but we think you are familiar with our attitude in regard to the support of the home paper. While we may not be able to help you as long as we have some other county papers, in Texas, we want you to feel that we are still at this time and ever expect to be a strong advocate in support of the home paper, and as for that matter all other home institutions that can be depended upon for the advancement of the best interests of all concerned. We have lived 55 years in West Texas, our first home being in Grayson county, near Sherman, and from there to Cook county, and from there to Young county, and from thence to Terry county which we think just about completes our explorations of West Texas. Still we have no desire to take the back track should we decide to leave the South Plains for the reason that we have become so accustomed to the western people and the peace and harmony and good will that most always prevail, that we have concluded that we have as good as the best, and so we are not worrying over our mistakes, failures, etc., but striving to be content with our lot, and adding our mite to the betterment of the citizenship of West Texas.

We were pleased to note the many items of interest in the Herald, and especially do we commend the actions and recommendations of our County Judge and our Commissioners' Court. Also we believe that the Board of Trustees of the Brownfield school district are handling their part of the program to the best of their ability. Owing to the unforeseen of those who preceded them, these and many other things of interest in and around Brownfield are to be commended by the citizenship of Terry county. But don't you people get the idea that you are the only pebbles on the beach, for according to our viewpoint, Brownfield will have to get a hustle on herself less the surrounding territory out-grow the town to the extent that she will not be able to handle the situation as it should be done at the close of the season, 1925.

With best wishes for the Herald and all other interests that are worth while, we remain,
—A Reader

MUCH ACTIVITY IN REAL ESTATE IN LEE COUNTY

The County Clerk is snowed under with the work and has been kept busy ever since the first of the year. Real Estate transfers are coming in faster than they can be recorded with the limited clerical force allowed to this office under the new schedule of salaries.

Mr. Blackman says that there have been more legal documents filed for record during the last sixty days than ever before during the time he has been connected with the office.

The local abstract office is also kept busy and nearly every day has a call for a rush order to close up a deal.

All of which indicates that the eyes of the investing public and of the westward tide of home seekers are at last turned in this direction. With the close of the cotton picking season in Texas, many of its citizens who have for some time been interested in this section of the country, are coming to see it for themselves. And to see it is to become firmly convinced that some of the best inducements ever offered to homesteaders are to be found in the Shallow Water Belt of Lee County. Most of those buying this land are real farmers. They have been raising cotton for years in other parts of the country where they have had to contend with boll weevils and other hindrances which are unknown here. Having been forced to work in order to produce anything where they came from, they will make a success with the use of the same methods here.—Livingston Leader.

ONE SMALL GRAVE IS ALL YOU GET

By A. C. Martin
Brother has your heart grown cold
In your madening rush for gold;
Has not reason taught you yet,
One small grave is all you get?
Don't you know it to be true,
Earthly treasures are but few;
Though you may weary, sob and fret
One small grave is all you get?
Why be foolish then my friend,
Worrying onward to the end,
Tend the cares of life when met,
One small grave is all you get.

Just you love your fellow man;
Lend him all the help you can,
For your wealth you must profit;
One small grave is all you get.

BRIDGES-REED

J. R. Bridges and Miss Nora Reed were married Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. J. T. Howell.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Reed. The groom will be remembered by a good many of the Crosbyton people as he was once a resident of this city, but now of Brownfield.

The contracting parties will make their home at Brownfield, where Mr. Bridges is connected with the Cicero Smith Lumber Co.

CO BALES OF COTTON AND NO FREE HELP

All Texas Farmers ma not have had a successful crop year during 1924, but there is reason to believe that I. M. Smith of Terry County did. Mr. Smith is reported as producing a little more than sixty bales of cotton, plus 1500 bushels of corn and a lot of other feed stuff.

And Mr. Smith was without the aid of a big gang of boys to work the farm. He has only three small children.—Texas Commercial News.
