hamber of Commerce URRENTS By the Secretary

Be sworn please!

Now, let's take this new obligation. You will now stand before the mirror, look yourself in the eye, be honest with yourself, your fellow man and your Creator, and then repeat after us:

"The city of Brownfield owes me nothing. If the accounts were balanced to this date I would be the debtor.

"Haven't I, all these years lived in the city's limits and shared all its benefits?

"Have I not had the benefits of its schools, churches and public hospitality?

"Have I not had the use of its public places and enjoyed its public band concerts?

"Hasn't this city and community furnished the patronage by which I have succeeded in my profession or business?

Hasn't it furnished the best friends I ever had in my life, whose ideals have been my aspiration, whose kind words have been my cheer and whose helpfulness has carried me over my great difficulties?"

What have I given in return?

"Not simply the taxes which cover so small a part of which I have received. I should give more of my own free will; to give enough so that I can truthfully say: "This is my city." So that I can take just pride in its prosperity and progress, in the honor which comes to its citizens from time to time, and in all that OLD COURTHOUSE TO BE makes Brownfield greater and better.

Of course many are larger in the big cities, but no better material or classier furnishings are found in any of them, and no matter where our visitors come from, we can carry them to our show house satisfied that no disparaging remarks can be made of our local showhouse.

The size of the building, 40X120 feet is more nearly suited to a city of 15,000 or 20,000, but the builders. Messrs. Earl Jones and W. A. Bynum believe that Brownfield will reach the proportions of their theatre in the next few years.

The building will comfortably seat 800 people, and the cool air system for summer, and the hot air system of heating in winter is the very latest scientific system, and will keep the patrons of the show comfortable in the very hotest or coldest weather. The Methodist spent Sunday near Slaton celebrating Easter.

Beyond the above, Easter passed pretty much as other Sundays. In my boyhood Good Friday was generally observed as a day to plant gatdens, and never looked forward to the approach of Easter with any great longing for its arrival. I do not recall a sermon or service in which Easter was mentioned until I was grown up. Even then the Catholics and Lutherans were all that held special services on that day. From the information I could gather it was the time of expected frost and its constant change of date and occasionally the month also was quite a puzzle.

A young lady of marriagable age asked me a short time since, why we celebrate Easter. Well, the principle thing is we wish to show our new hat and dress, and get away from school and work. There is anothe and better reason to those who are really religiously inclined. Easter is that Sunday following the full moon. after the 21st of March, unless the 21st is Sunday, when it would be the next Sunday.

South made so little organize its industr agriculture and put its education; system on a sound basis. Today the South is not only solvent but rich be yond the dreams of the yourgest nen who surrendered to Grant and Sherman. What magic has made the South a land of plenty, an industrial giant, agriculturally independent, edicationally self-sufficing?

Few people in the North comprelend the great peace victory that the South has won. Mr. B. C. Forbe tells the story. It should be prefaced that since the opening of the century. and especially during the last ten ears, the South had to be "reborn" ntellectually, socially, industrially, agriculturally, financially, and tra portation-wise." Every second city has a college or university. Per capita the South now has more churches than any other section. It is spendig more money on hospitals. It is leading the country in building big otels. It is beautifying towns and cities with parks. "The South today, says Mr. Forbes, "is spending almost wice as much on its schools as the whole of the United States spent in 1900. "To put it into figures: $35. 037,000 in 1900 and $323,067,000 in 1922. The Julius Rosenwald fund alone has brought into being 2.000 negro schools." says he has seen no finer high school in the country than the Richard J Reynold's school at Winston-Salem The Southern universities are being iberally endowed; their enrollment in nany cases has gone up to thous ands: their standard of teaching has made the South independent of the North. Everywhere the civic spirit is robust.

At the close of the Civil War the roads of the South were often mere trails. Metal highways now abound. The sum of $140,000,000 is spent annually on new construction and repairs. Where does the money come from to pay for the new South? In 1923 the value of farm products was $6,127,400,000-trebled since 1909.

Dry weather still prevails in Terry county, though the eastern part got showers Sunday, but will not help much until the whole country gets well "wet up." And we don't expect this' condition of offairs until they begin having too much rain down in cast and central Texas.

O'Donnell had a real warm city election in which the candidates announced for the several offices, and paid for real advertising space. It is presumed, that O'Donnel, like Brown field pays no salaries to city officials except perhaps the city marshall, and at this distance it is hard for us to figure why the rush for the office. In Brownfield the office has to seek the man, and then has a hard time discovering him.

ENTERTAIN GRANDMAS

On Tuesday, April 14th, Mrs. I. I. Randal was hostess to the M. & M. Club in her lovely new home. This was the social event of the year with the grandmothers of the town as the special invited guests. About thirty grandmothers were present. The club was most happy to have as its honor guest, Mrs. W. R. Spencer, of Lubbock. Mrs. Spencer organized this club 19 years ago, and her gracious presence was not only an inspiration to the present members,but brought back delightful and tender nemories to the old members. The club quartet sang "Annie Laurie" and "Comin' thru the Rye." Mrs Fagala gave an excellent paper or The old Woman versus the New. Mrs. Wingred sang "Believe Me it all those Endearing Young Charms. One of the numbers most enjoyed was an old ballad, "Barbara Allen," sang by the most aged guest. Mrs Daugherty. Mrs. Spencer gave greet

A MGOD

(Dedicated to my mother, the source of all my inspirations.) cometimes the world seems harsh And just a little bare. Every hour seems heavily ladened With a wagon load of care. Love seems all gone, and life Seems-oh, so hard to live. Our world seem dark and barren With nothing else to give. That each day did impart: orgot to stop and leave a word To cheer a fainting heart. Or perhaps a prayer of thankfulness We did not say today, Darkened those golden hours that Left sunshine in our way. Still, nature goes on forever and The beauty will remain. The sky is just as blue and sunny, As when our life began. Our tears are only a burden to those We love the very most, and our smiles are a bit of sunshing To some dear soul that's lost. o smile and make the most of it: Let sorrow age with years. The great big world is sad enough. And does not need our tears.
