Chamber of Commerce CURRENTS By the Secretary

The City has passed an ordinance, which makes it necessary for all cars and other vehicles to be parked next to the curb and naturally this effects the trucks and wagons of farmers who bring their cotton and other products for sale.

It is stated that this order was made necessary in order that the traffic problem could be solved as on crowded days the streets are becoming congested with traffic and numerous accidents occur.

This brings on more talk and the Chamber of Commerce would like to know how many of the farmers in the Brownfield trade territory would like to have a block of land set aside for their use in marketing. If a majority of them desire a marketing block, we will undertake to secure it for them.

Petitions are prepared and will be found at each of the drug stores and banks, and as soon as these are signed with a sufficient number of names, a COMMITTEE composed of FARMERS will be appointed to select any block that they think will be suitable for the purpose and this will be acquired for their use.

Cotton pickers are scarce and hard to secure at present, but you are assured that the Chamber of Commerce is using all agencies in an effort to bring them in. It is thought that as the South Texas crop is nearly gathered that the next few weeks will witness a more liberal movement to this section.

For the Fair exhibit we have found Wheat, Oats, Rye, Barley, Clover, Millet, Alfalfa and Spelt. These of course are planted in small patches and are not in sufficient quantities to market, but they show the possibilities of the county and can be grown. Why not try some wheat this fall and oats next spring.

It was said in the year 1917, that cotton would not grow and mature on the sandy soils of this county, but it is. Last year was a good fall for planting wheat and this fall is another good one and oats will mature if planted at the same time as corn, as will millet.

Alfalfa and clover will also grow, but clover does better. Do not plant the yellow bloom as stock will have to be starved before they will eat it, but the white and crimson clover will do well, especially the white and it will not bloat stock as will alfalfa and besides it enriches the soil and is good in rotation planting.

At the district meeting of farmers and others interested in the cotton picking situation, it was brought out that about 18,000 would be needed in the South Plains country and also that the South Texas and Valley crop was harvested and that there was at this time over 12,000 pickers in San Antonio but that they were hard to move as they were holding up trying to secure $1.50 per hundred. The Lubbock meeting went on record as being strictly opposed to paying over $1.00 with board or $1.25 without board. It is also known that about 1,000 pickers are coming north each day and that this movement will continue for the next few days in about the same ratio, most of them seem to be headed for West Texas and the Plains country. The County Agent at Post City informed me that he was securing about 100 each day and another party stated that the highway between Sweetwater and Post was lined with people looking for cotton to pick. Think that it would be a good idea for persons wanting pickers to cover this highway and fasten on to some of them.

The present price of cotton came up for discussion and a resolution was passed that Ginnery would be requested to refuse to gin any pulled cotton until after the first freeze in order that the market might be held up to its present level or above. About 300 farmers were present at the Lubbock meeting. The writer was the lone representative from Terry.

BROWNFIELD PEOPLE TO VOTE ON STREET PAVING

For the first time in its history, Brownfield will soon have an opportunity to say whether or not they will take the business section of the city out of the mud and dust. An election was ordered for this purpose about two years ago, and would probably have carried then, but some of the wiser heads got the election deferred until a modern sewerage system was put down.

The city council met recently and ordered an election, order of which appears elsewhere in this issue for the first time, and within thirty days, the people will vote on whether or not they will authorize the Council to issue bonds in the sum of $60,000 for the paving of from fifteen to 20 blocks of our streets.

Of course this is going to cost the city something additional in the way of taxes, for you are not going to get any improvements for nothing, but we must also figure the value the paving will be to the city in the way of less cost of maintaining the streets, more money to be spent on the residence streets, cleaner stocks of dry goods, groceries, hardware, and in fact everything the merchants carry, and the value they will be to the city from an advertising standpoint, not to mention the enhancement of the value of property. No town can build a pretty little city without paved streets.

Then too, if oil should be struck in the wells now drilling and to be drilled, our already cut up streets would soon be impassable in either dry or wet weather.

OUR COMMISSIONERS GET LITTLE SATISFACTION

County Judge H. R. Winston, and Commissioners W. F. Stewart, T. O. Hooker and W. H. Black returned Saturday from Austin, where they met the Commissioners of Lamb, Hockley and Dawson counties in an audience with the State Highway Commission in an effort to get the road opened up from Stanton through Lamesa, Brownfield and Levelland to Littlefield. Our Commissioners were also after getting the road designated to Seagraves.

In conversation with Judge Winston on his return, he said they received little encouragement from the commission, that it seemed to him that a great deal of politics is being played. He also attributes their indifference to the fact that they are trying to make each county issue bonds and build paved roads. He says they seem to fairly despise dirt roads, and are designating just as few of them as possible.

He also said they had an audience with Dan Moody, but was promised little there, as he said he would probably be tied up with Ferguson appointments for some time after taking the office of Governor.

ANOTHER NEW BUSINESS HOUSE STARTED

Yes, old Brownfield keeps moving along in the even tenor of her way; no boom, but just real substantial building every day in the year. She has the land and territory back of her, and any forward looking individual cannot but help seeing a great future to the city. Therefore, men of vision are spending their money in good substantial property.

Mr. L. H. Plain, prominent business man has part of the material now on the ground to build a garage and drive in station on east Hardin near the Baptist church, size 25x100 feet, to be of steel, concrete and tile, with a well finished and architecturally beautiful front, and modern in every detail throughout the structure. Work will be rushed to completion before cold weather if possible, and we understand that it will be occupied for a garage and drive-in station, the lessee or owners to also carry a popular line of cars.

Rumor has it that another substantial brick will be started soon on the south side of the square probably 50x100 feet, but this is a little previous, and we will probably be able to give something definite in the next two weeks at least.

In the meantime, one only has to drive over the city most any day to see some new home just started.

EDITOR SEES SOME VERY FINE EXHIBITS

The editor was called to the residence of A. L. Burnett one day last week to see some of the exhibits Elder Burnett and Secretary Shelton had prepared for the Panhandle South Plains fair at Lubbock and the State Fair at Dallas. As fast as they were prepared, they were stored in Mr. Burnett's barn to cure out before being put on exhibition.

The collection consisted mostly of corn, maize, kaffir, higeria, fetaria, melons, squash, kershaws, etc., other stuff, such as fruits and preserves being held elsewhere, or to be gathered at the last minute. The class and quality of the exhibits were as high as one ever sees here, or elsewhere, and some of them were simply marvelous, especially the corn, maize and kaffir.

Messrs. Shelton and Burnett have worked hard in order that old Terry be fitly represented at these fairs, and they deserve the thanks of every citizen in the county. This is a job that no one seems to want, and it is a good thing that we have men like them that will take it on themselves to make these collections, classify and prepare them for exhibition purposes.

STYLE SHOW AT THEATRE DRAWS BIG CROWD

The fall style show at the Rialto Theatre last Thursday night drew one of the largest crowds of the season. Just whether mere man went at the instigation of friend wife or because he really likes to see his wife and daughters dress well and strut their stuff, remains a mystery, but just the same he was there to watch the performance, offer his criticism and commendations, and one rarely ever saw a lady enter without her usual escort.

The show was given under the auspices of the Maids and Matrons Club, who received more than $4 for their part of the proceeds. The Rialto management had obtained a picture for the night well in keeping with the occasion, "Fig Leaves," which was nothing more or less than a real style show from one of the large ladies apparel emporiums of Gotham. Some scenes in the picture, was what we rural people might term daring, but probably causes no undue emotions or comment in the larger cities. In fact, we are getting used to seeing so much even in the rural sections that ladies unmentionables no longer cause a riot.

The Jones, Collins, Chapman, Cook and Copeland Dry Goods stores all had a full line of garments and models to display them and those capable of judgement gave it as their opinion that the garments were the same as those that are being worn in the larger centers. The color scheme as well as the cut of the fall garments are pleasing, and among the most attractive of any creations for years. The Maids and Matrons Club, the Rialto Theatre and the above dry goods stores deserve credit for this splendid show.

The Brownfield orchestra rendered splendid music during the performance.

STOCKTON HENRY TO EDIT SEAGRAVES SIGNAL

R. B. Haynes, owner of the Seagraves Signal, accompanied by Stockton Henry, of Lubbock, one of the oldest newspaper men in point of experience on the Plains, passed through here Monday afternoon on their way to Seagraves, where Mr. Henry was to officially take charge of that paper. We know enough about Stockton to know the Seagraves paper is in good hands.

Mr. Haynes will go to Miami, where he will officially take charge of the Chief, which he recently purchased. His family are already living at Miami.

HAROLD LLOYD IS A BIG FAVORITE IN THE ORIENT

Harold Lloyd has something new to answer for. He may be responsible for making China laugh itself out of its "grouch" against foreigners. This is the opinion of Alexander Horne, an American, who has returned to the Pacific Coast after 17 years in China.

The Chinese are in store for another laugh-fest shortly, when "For Heaven's Sake!" Lloyd's first Paramount release produced by the Harold Lloyd Corporation, which will be shown at the Rialto Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, September 27 and 28, begins shedding sunshine throughout the celestial republic.

"Lloyd has become a virtual hero to the Chinese," according to Horne. "Lloyd glasses are all the rage in China today, and more than one optician has made a fortune by advertising them for sale. One enterprising eye adjuster, located on Wanking road, in Shanghai, put a great pair of Lloyd lookers in his front window and sold out the entire stock of rimmed spectacles in 24 hours. 'Maskee (Never mind) the eyes,' both old and new China is saying to the specialists who seek to examine their eyesight. 'Catchum Harold Lloyd glasses?' They put these on and race for the nearest theatre exhibiting a Lloyd film.

"China, you see, is far behind the times in the matter of motion pictures. Photoplays which were popular in this country as far back as eight or ten years ago are still being exhibited in China. Going deeper and deeper into the interior, they are chopped and pasted together with remnants of other pictures, anything, so long as it's funny.

TERRY'S FIRST OIL WELL SPURRED IN MONDAY

Well No. 1 on the M. V. Brownfield ranch, about nine miles east and two miles south of Brownfield, was spudded in Monday, we understand. It was to have been spudded in Sunday, but from some cause the drillers were hardly ready for spudding in but said they would have everything in shape for spudding in Monday.

In the meantime a new location several miles nearer town has been decided on, as the owners have two standard rigs, a derrick will be built at once, and as soon as it is completed well No. 2 will be spudded in. Mr. Brownfield informed the writer that the company putting down the wells on his ranch have good rigs, and that he expected the work of drilling to go forward with little delay.

The geologists and drillers alike are of the opinion that pay sand will be struck in the neighborhood of 2500 feet, but they are prepared to go much deeper if necessary. 3500 feet we are told.

The people of this section are watching anxiously the first real tests to be made in this section, and in view of the fact that every geologist who has examined this section say it is underlaid with a good oil strata, they will be badly disappointed if these wells are dusters. Another thing that keeps the citizens on edge is the fact that oil scouts who look the country over, are all ready and anxious to obtain leases even before any well was started.

LOCAL COTTON BUYERS COMPLAIN OF STAPLE

In conversation with a local cotton buyer this week, he informed us that there was not much demand, in fact none for foreign shipping purposes of the cotton now coming in, that while the lint was exceedingly white and pretty, the staple was very short.

There was two reasons given for this, one being the quick maturity of the present crop, something like 90 days when cotton usually required 120 for maturity, though he said the bolls were exceedingly large. Another was too much half-and-half cotton, there being no demand whatever for this breed. It is said that some east Texas bankers and merchants are refusing to loan on half-and-half cotton, or carry farmers who raise it.

This buyer still stays with his original estimate that Terry county will gin 30,000 bales this year.

LOCAL MERCHANTS BOOSTING SOUTH PLAINS FAIR

LUBBOCK, Sept. 22.—Next Wednesday the big Panhandle South Plains Fair will open at Lubbock for the 13th annual "Show Window of the Plains" and everything will be in readiness and the show window will be complete, according to fair directors and officials.

Large crowds are expected from every city, town, and community on the Plains and the best exhibits and attractions that have ever been assembled on the Plains will be witnessed. Practically every community will be represented with agricultural, garden, orchard, live stock, poultry, swine, and other exhibits. The free attractions, football games, carnival and other attractions will be the best ever offered to Plains people. The fire works will be the most spectacular that have ever been staged on the Plains.

Over the entire section, Plains people are showing an unusual interest in the coming exposition due to the fact that they realize that the fair is their fair and that the success of the fair depends on all the section and that its success will renounce to their benefit. The Panhandle South Plains Fair is to the Plains of Texas what the State Fair of Texas at Dallas is to Texas and the Southwest.

Merchants in every Plains town are assisting to advertise the fair and are boosting it and urging their customers to attend the fair and to see the products of the Plains. Local merchants co-operating in advertising the fair are: J. W. Chisholm, Hudgens & Knight, Collins Dry Goods Co., Palace Drug Store, Brownfield Hdw. Co., Bailey Bros., A. B. Cook & Son, Holgate-Endersen Hdw. Co., C. L. Williams Hdw. & Futra, Enterprise Market & Gro., J. L. Cruce Dry Goods Co., Chapman Dry Goods Co., W. R. Lovelace, J. E. Michie and Harris & Lindley.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS IN LOCAL TELEPHONE SERVICE

The local telephone system has changed the name from South Plains Telephone Company, and the headquarters of it seems to have been moved to Lubbock, as local subscribers are billed from that place. With the large additional holdings of the new company, it is now quite a large system, with extreme points from Memphis, Texas, to Artesia, N. M.

Before many weeks have passed the company will have completed three complete copper wire circuits from here to Lubbock, one of them being practically completed now, and the others will be rushed to completion as fast as workmen can assemble the material. Thus, three conversations between six parties can be going on all the time between the two places or other places beyond.

Another big improvement in the service here is an all night service. Also after 9:30 P. M. and during the rest of the night a half rate service has been put on from station. The local people no doubt greatly appreciate this added service.

WINKLER'S

Has Right to Title "Father of Want Ad"

In 1672 John Houghton, a fellow of the Royal Society, established a weekly paper for the improvement of husbandry and trade, and undertook to educate the merchants of England in the art of advertising. First he established a bureau for supplying servants to masters and masters to servants, carrying on operations through advertising. From this he went into the advertising of schools, houses and lodgings to let and so forth, laying down the idea of what has grown into our present "want ads." He instructed the public class by class, inducing lawyers, physicians and farmers to use his columns, and built up a large miscellaneous patronage for his paper. The clergy in particular found his columns an excellent medium for securing or disposing of second-hand sermons, for there were no Monday morning papers in those days, with ever-present reporters, and a sermon could be preached around in various parishes until it was worn out.

John Houghton was the first "little schoolmaster in the art of advertising," and his efforts resulted in great increases in the use of newspapers as a medium in furthering trade. Books continued to lead among the things advertised—particularly novels, which had an immense vogue during the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries. After the great fire of London the advertising columns of the paper were extensively used as a means of reuniting scattered families, and advertising was also in favor as a medium for perpetuating hoaxes on the public and of setting forth political opinions.

Daniel Defoe was the cleverest and most persistent advertiser of his day—from 1685 until 1728, when he published the last of a long list of miscellaneous books. Known now chiefly by his "Robinson Crusoe," it has been generally forgotten that Daniel Defoe was an active pamphleteer, writing upon topics that were uppermost in the popular mind and taking advantage of each whim or craze to sell his work.—Frank Presbury in the World's Work

CLUB LIBRARY OPENS IN THEIR NEW HOME

The Men's and Matrons Club Library, opened in their new home on the second floor of the courthouse Saturday afternoon as per the advertised schedule, and quite a nice crowd visited them during the afternoon to become better acquainted with the plans and intentions of the library. Quite a number of little folks also availed themselves of the opportunity of the story telling hour, and seemed to enjoy it hugely.

The club has received quite a number of new books this year, and if their plans work out well, they aim to add a great many more during the fall and winter. This all depends a great deal to the reception and patronage of the community. It is agreeably noticeable that a greater number of the ladies of the rural communities surrounding the city are availing themselves of the use of these books, and it is hoped some day to make this a real county library and its work greatly extended. These rural community ladies are more than welcome by the club to make use of the library.

Punch was served to visitors during the afternoon.

OLD COURTHOUSE FAST BEING DISMANTLED

Several workmen are busy dismantling the old courthouse, and by the time this week has passed, provided the weather remains favorable that old landmark of the pioneer days will have passed from view leaving the stately new modern structure standing in the middle of the park with its view unmarred by the old shacks surrounding it.

Mr. Will Adams will erect at least three nice farm homes with the lumber obtained from the old courthouse and two other of the outbuilding thus giving room for more settlers in grand old Terry.

It has been pleasing to the hells that few of our old business and public houses have gone up in flames. Most of them have been torn down and converted into good living quarters for new comers. Some people seem to figure that no one loses anything when an old building goes up in flame and smoke, except the insurance people, but just the same that much material has been forever removed from the markets of the world, and must be replaced from the slow growing forest.

Then, too, he that figures the insurance company loses, is just simply figuring backwards, for they collect from your neighbors in order to replace your loss, and the more buildings, through carelessness, you let burn makes not only yours but your neighbors insurance just that much higher. Yes, you are the one that really pays.

The fair edition of the Amarillo Daily News contained 96 pages. It was some journal all the way through.

A Jones county man found a snake in his bath tub. They have quit wearing boots down there since we left that county, we guess.

America is the first modern nation at least that can boast a billionaire, if that is anything to boast of. The individual is said to be Henry Ford.

Citizens of Hutchinson county recently voted to move the county seat from Plemons to Stinnett by a vote of 386 to 158, requiring two-thirds majority. Stinnett was on a railroad, while Plemons was off in the country.

An East Texas editor seriously objects to the proposed law permitting the tagging of all automobiles the owner still owes payments on. He is afraid they will carry it further and he might get his "britches" tagged.

The Herald has been presented with its issue of the 1926 edition of the Panhandle South Plains Fair catalogue. It was closely examined, and found to be full of useful information as is possible to get in that sized book, and neatly and carefully printed and bound.

Two hundred eighty-four Texans, big, little, old, and young perish in fires each year, many of which are preventable. This not to mention the millions of dollars worth of material, not to say anything about priceless heirlooms that go up in smoke each year. What is a small fee for inspection compared with all this loss of life and property?

The first week in October is Fire Prevention Week, and Brownfield should make arrangements to observe it, not only by a proclamation from its mayor, but if possible at least one day should be devoted to some kind of parade including the school children, and the rest of the day devoted to instructions of how to prevent fires and how best to control them after started, or how best to escape fires. In the meantime the Herald is in favor of the City Council appointing as many as is deemed necessary to examine every fire in the city, charging a small fee for the service, and new ones ordered where necessary. It will only be a few weeks before the heating stoves are started for the winter, and to prevent fires, they should be made safe. Also the fewer our fires, the lower our insurance rating.

THE DOLLAR SIGN OF SPORTDOM

No one desires to take away from Gertrude Ederle any of the credit that is hers for being the first woman ever to swim the English Channel. Nor does anyone deny that her pluck and skill are worthy of reward. Whether they are worth the $1,000,000 in swimming, movie and vaudeville contracts reported offered her is largely a matter of opinion. But in giving fair and judicious consideration to her achievement, this monetary element as well as others must enter in.

Miss Ederle said she swam for the glory of America. Mrs. Corson, who duplicated her feat a few days later, said quite frankly that she swam to make some money for my kids. Both are highly laudable aims. Miss Ederle got both glory and money; and it is to be hoped that Mrs. Corson will be equally fortunate. As individual cases there can be no quibbling over this. The dictum of the street—They earned the money; let them have it—finds ready response. But when the cases are considered in the larger phase of their bearing on the future of American sport, they assume a different tinge.

Miss Ederle was a professional when she undertook her successful swim; she had discarded her amateur status some months before. But it was as an amateur that she earned her first honors and won her fame. Her million-dollar triumph came close upon the precipitate plunge of Mile. Lenglen into professionalism a plunge which has worried followers of sport to a marked degree. Americans do not take kindly to the professionalization of sports long held sacred to the amateur ranks. Nothing better illustrates this than the open glee of leading newspapers at the defeat of Elizabeth Ryan for the American woman's tennis championship, a glee which was generated solely by the rumor that Miss Ryan would turn professional if she won. The fall in esteem of 'Red' Grange, erstwhile gridiron hero, is so well known as not to need mention.

America has gained preeminence in sport through the development of amateurs, not professionals. The game has been played for the sake of the game, not for the hope of material gain. Baseball to the contrary, professional sport is alien to the spirit of the nation. Baseball owes its success to the false inflation of publicity, and the commercialization of other sports is being accomplished by the same medium. Those who go to see an amateur champion, turned professional, go to see a tending wonder, not an excellent sportsman. Amateur sport for the sake of the game has proved a tremendous asset in American life. Amateur sport as a stepping-stone to profitable professionalism is stripped of most of its value.—Dearborn Independent.

"Things are in an awful shape out where I've been," replied the visitor to Farm and Ranch office, in reply to our question.

"I heard three men talking the other day, and they were agreed that business has gone to the dogs; they said prohibition was the worst thing that ever happened, and that farmers spent all their money buying radios and automobiles, and galloping all over the State during the summer instead of staying at home and tending to business. They voted unanimously that politics was rotten and was run by a clique of big guns; their town was dead and they didn't see why the stores didn't fire their clerks and close their doors; the banks, they said had plenty of money, but there was none in circulation. Then there was a smart-Aleck district attorney trying to send Bill Buster to the pen, just because he got teed up a little and ran his car over another man, and Bill's a good feller, too. There's no doubt these boys are up against it hard," he concluded.

"By this time we were sitting on the edge of the chair gasping for breath. We felt better a minute later, however, when the visitor explained who the gloom-hounds were.

"One was a hamburger man, one a taxi driver, and the other a bootlegger." Farm & Ranch.

He is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is to sit right where you are sitting, and, when you are gone, attend to those things you think are so important.

You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends upon him.

Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them. He is going to sit at your desk in the Senate, and occupy your place on the Supreme Bench.

He will assume control of your cities, states and nation. He is going to move in, and take over your prisons, churches, schools, universities and corporations.

All your work is going to be judged and praised or condemned by him. Your reputation and your future are in his hands.

All your work is for him, and the fate of the nation and of humanity is in his hands.

So it might be as well to pay him some attention.—Anon.

Bilious dull feeling

"MY old stand-by is Thedford's Black-Draught—I have used it off and on for about 20 years," says Mr. W. S. Reynolds, of R. F. D. 2, Arcadia, La.

"I get bilious and have a bad taste in my mouth. My head feels dull. I don't just feel like getting around and doing my work. I know it isn't laziness, but biliousness.

"So I take a few doses of Black-Draught and when it acts well, I get up feeling like new—full of pep and ready for any kind of work.

"I can certainly recommend it." In case of biliousness and other disagreeable conditions due to an inactive liver, Black-Draught helps to drive the poisonous impurities out of the system and tends to leave the organs in a state of normal, healthy activity.

Black-Draught is made entirely of pure medicinal roots and herbs and contains no dangerous or harmful mineral drugs. It can be safely taken by everyone. Sold everywhere. Price 25c.

Corn Binders

Five to seven acres a day with one-man outfit, and the one man does the work of half-dozen men with corn knives. McCormick and Deering Corn Binders are light, strong, and substantial. Roller bearings insure light draft. Both types do clean work, have ample adjustments for tall and short stand, pick up the down and leaning stalks, and make neat, easily handled bundles. McCormick and Deering Corn Binders are equipped with a smooth working bundle carrier and they can be fitted with wagon elevator, tongue truck, etc. These two binders have been standard for years. The McCormick binds the bundles vertically and the Deering binds them horizontally.

BANK AT LEVELLAND HAS NEW OFFICES

LEVELLAND, Sept. 20.—Moving into a new $20,000, two story brick building and showing a tremendous gain since its organization in 1925, the First National Bank, of Levelland, is symbolical with the growth and progress of Hockley county. The institution now has a total deposit of $125,000 it was announced yesterday. Officers of the bank include John H. Doyle, president; W. G. Frazier, vice-president; S. C. Roach, cashier; Robert House, assistant cashier; Lee Crownover, D. N. House and G. W. Alexander, directors.

Three million telephones are now in service on the farms, ranches and plantations of the United States, an unequalled world's record.

Local gins turned out 59 bales of cotton Tuesday and expected to get 100 Wednesday.

COW DOESN'T "MAKE" MILK WHEN MILKED

The old theory that a cow's udder held only a pint or two of milk at a time and that her "secret manufacturing plant" changed blood to milk while the teats were being pulled has been exploded by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in a post-mortem experiment recently. The government men found that a cow's udder is capable of holding from 11 to 20 quarts of milk at one time, two cows being killed and their udders removed and mounted on a frame work where they were milked. Thus it was proved that milk making is going on all time instead of being held off till milking time. The milking machine, which is now becoming an economic necessity in profitable dairying, naturally assumes a bigger place in the production of higher grade milk. Sanitary barn equipment, individual drinking cups, feed and litter carriers, ventilation systems, sanitary pens for the young calves and the herd bull; all these are aiding in developing cows of bigger milk capacity, says the Research Department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers.

GOOD CITIZENS ASSURE GOOD COURTS

Associate Justice Jesse W. Curtis, of the Supreme Court of California, emphasizes the close relation between our courts and the intelligence of our citizens. He says: "Our courts affect the interest and lives of all our citizenship—business men, working men, farmers—and, in turn, the stability and responsibility of our courts must rest steadily upon that citizenship. Our leaders and jurists have come from the homes of that citizenship—good American homes, many of them old-fashioned farmers' homes—and the closer our homes come to the fundamental American ideals, the better will be citizens they produce, and the higher will be the standard of our courts as they attempt to deal out justice between our fellow man and his neighbor."

FAVORITE HYMNS

The teacher, wishing to arouse the interest of her Sunday School class, asked them to write the names of their favorite hymns. All the pupils bent their heads over pencil and paper for a few minutes, and then handed in their slips—all except one. "Come, Mary," said the teacher, "bring your paper to me."

Mary, with downcast eyes, handed the teacher a slip of paper bearing the words: "Willie Smith."

Word was received from Austin this week that Mrs. E. Brown and daughter, Ola Belle, had reached the blind institute there alright, and that Ola Belle was about settled for another term there. Mrs. Brown will return home via Coleman, Abilene and Lorraine and visit relatives for some time.

Electra--Pipeline runs for week ended August 28, from various pools in north Texas district, showed average of 94,715 barrels daily.

The local Baptist church people are picking their cotton crop over the first time this week. They will get 1-4 bale per acre, they say.

The first car of this year's cotton was loaded Wednesday. It consisted of round bales.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON

The above slogan was the invention of old John Robinson, one of America's greatest circus managers, the esprit de corps of the whole organization.

This sentiment was drilled into the mind of every performer and employe—there was a date at the next town where the entertainment must be pulled off without fail.

A cyclone might prostrate the main tent, trains might be wrecked, lions, tigers, elephants or the monkey cage might mire down in bad road, but "the show must go on," and meet every engagement.

Just so with Our Country and its institutions. There will be storms and some of the wild animals in the political menagerie break loose, but all important functions of the great show called Government under the Constitution, must go on.

Congress, the Supreme Court, the federal and state institutions and departments of government must perform their parts in the program of self-government by the people, for the people and of the people—the show must go on.

None of the important features of the regular program demanded by the American people, can be missed or will be omitted at any date ahead where Uncle Sam has billed his continuous performance—the greatest and best show on earth.

J. W. YOUNG BRINGS FIRST BALE TO SEAGRAVES

The first bale cotton to be ginned in Gaines county this season was brought in by J. W. Young of the Lou community week before last and was ginned by Ernest Ownby. The bale was delivered on the station platform and shipped to the Texas Farm Bureau Assn., Dallas, Texas.

A premium of $52.75 was given Mr. Young by the local business men. He had brought to the gins here his third bale Wednesday of this week.—Seagraves Signal.

Horace Randal, brother of J. L. Randal of this city, also his son, Gibson and family, of western New Mexico, were here this week visiting with his brother, J. L. and wife. Mr. Randal was one of the oldest settlers of Terry and Lynn counties, coming here some 25 years ago. He is now doing police duty for one of the big mines in western New Mexico, but still loves to visit old Terry and renew acquaintances with the old timers.

Mr. J. Lee Johnson, of Fort Worth son of the president of the Cicero-Smith Lumber yards, had business in Brownfield this week.

D. A. Martin, of Abilene, owner of a fine half section of land in the Union community, was up this week looking after his property. He was accompanied by A. S. Hammons, of Breckenridge, who also has his eye on this section.

On account of some members of the band being in school and other could not easily get off, the proposed booster trip to Central West Texas had to be abandoned.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wells, of Amarillo, are here this week. Mr. Wells was the engineer in charge of putting in our sewerage system and we understand will be retained by the City Council to put down the paving if the bonds are voted.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 29.—Legislation for validating $100,000,000 worth of Texas road bonds was in full swing in both branches of the special session of the legislature which reconvened this morning after adjournment since Thursday afternoon, and efforts, according to leaders, to have all of the 556 road bills finally disposed of by the end of this week.

This is the first of 556 road bond validating bills to be passed finally by both branches of the special session and it will be the first to be sent to the governor for approval.

The senate unanimously passed finally without amendments senate bill number 1, the general validating measure and it now goes to the house.

The senate had on its calendar today 113 road bills and the house was to consider fifty one similar measures today.

RAISE FAIR CROPS ON SEMI-ARID SOIL

Zuni Indians Have Mastered Secrets of Nature.

Two thousand Indians in western New Mexico own something like 200,000 acres of land. This is the Zuni reservation. Two hundred thousand seem like a lot of land for so small a number of people to own, but an Indiana farmer seeing the country for the first time would consider it poor picking for cattle and hogs, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. And yet, the Zuni Indians make a good living off the semi-arid land, which is cut up into hills, mountains, buttes, mesas, arroyos and a few broad valleys, where corn and melons and squashes are raised. There is some irrigation, but even where there is no irrigation an Indian can, with a crooked stick, punch a few holes in the ground, drop in some grains of corn and raise a fair crop. "With all our scientific knowledge of dry farming and our improved machinery we cannot do as well," declare the white ranchers living in the vicinity.

Centuries of fighting for an existence in the midst of adverse climatic conditions have given the Indian an uncanny knowledge of nature in all her moods. In his own country, which was his when Coronado and the conquistadores came 300 years ago in search of the fabled seven cities of Cibola, he knows exactly where the underground water lies nearest the surface. It is there that he plants his corn, his squash and his watermelon seeds.

The Zunis, together with the other Pueblo Indians, have been able, for the most part, to hold on to their land because it came to them as an inheritance, or rather was left to them by the Spaniards when the latter relinquished their rights in the Southwest. In the treaty with the United States it was stipulated that certain lands surrounding the pueblos should remain in possession of the original owners forever.

The Zunis are independent and self-supporting. They know not the meaning of the word rations. The government furnishes them schools, aids them in obtaining water, improves the breed of their horses and sheep and provides dipping vats for the latter.

The Zuni is peaceable, kind in his family and devoted to children. No orphan in a Zuni pueblo is neglected. "I never heard a Zuni Indian speak a cross word in his home or to his wife, and I never will. It simply isn't done," was the statement made to two Hoosier tourists recently by the principal of the day school in the pueblo of Zuni.

Rose Bush's Odd Growth

A remarkable freak of plant life is to be found at the home of Mrs. Eugene Briggs, Lebanon, N. H. A rose bush growing just outside the door and beneath the living-room window, has sent out shoots in several directions, some of which have pushed their way into the cellar. From there they forced their way through the floors until they grew up through a tiny knothole in the corner of the living room and continued to grow, pushing toward a window, where the branches leaved out into a beautiful climbing rose, growing all over the window, filling the window with blossoms and the room with fragrance.

WASTED ENERGY

It's difficult to sit here in Littlefield and picture a mob of 50,000 people, mostly women and girls, fighting police and detectives to get into an undertaking parlor to see the dead body of a moving picture actor, and yet that very thing happened in New York recently.

It shows how people go wild over "hero worship" and it shows the power of curiosity. They talk about the small town being full of it, but the death of Rudolph Valentino proves that when it comes to curiosity and "nosiness" small town residents are left far behind by city dwellers.

It's the same kind of curiosity that makes the fake stock and shell game more easily worked in the city than in the small town: it's the same curiosity and lack of reverence for even the dead that causes boys and girls of our great cities to look lightly on morality and law observance. The smaller towns of the nation are short on a good many things and one of these things is the kind of curiosity that would make one human being fight with another for the privilege of gazing on a corpse.—Littlefield Leader.

LUBBOCK, Sept. 26.—Without arms can one be an artist, mix colors and paint beautiful pictures. Without hands can one crochet, embroider, sew, comb one's hair, cook, write a letter or do any one of the thousand things that one's hands accomplish through out the length of one's short day?

Miss Nanny Mac Cook, daughter of Hooper Cook, who lives about 3 miles directly west of Lubbock, at the former Warlick farm, has proven that there are a few things in the world one cannot do—provided there is a will.

PROCLAMATION

Year by year the destruction of property by fire in America has been mounting until the total annual loss is now more than $500,000,000. This means a waste each day of an average of $1,370,000 of resources which we can ill afford to lose.

But far worse than the destruction of valuable property is the toll of human life through fire. The average number of persons burned to death each day in the United States is stated to be forty-eight.

In our own great State of Texas last year there was more than twenty million dollars worth of property and 274 lives destroyed by fire. A most conservative estimate is that 85 percent of fires are from preventable causes.

NOW, THEREFORE, I Miriam A. Ferguson, Governor of Texas, do hereby designate October 3rd to 9th 1926 as FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

City officials, civic and commercial organizations, school officers and teachers are hereby requested, and urged to arrange meetings and exercises for the study of fire prevention problems, and for impressing upon the public the seriousness of the waste caused by fire and the need of the utmost care protecting life and property from danger. Editors and public speakers are requested to call special attention to this subject during that week. Our fire waste is already too large; we cannot permit it to increase. By united effort we can reduce it from year to year.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and affixed the Great Seal of the State this 18th day of August, 1926.

(Seal) MIRIAM A. FERGUSON,
Governor of Texas.

Emma Grisby Meharg, Secretary of State.

Interesting English Customs

Points in English life which have especially impressed American visitors in England for the first time this summer, says "the Landmark," the monthly magazine of the English-speaking union, are:

The absence of spring bumpers on motor cars, back as well as front, which are general in America.

The number of beggars in the streets of London.

The wearing of buttonholes by English gentlemen.

The little gardens attached to nearly all London houses.

The ease and smoothness with which English trains start compared with America.

The unhurried quietness of an English crowd, even those traveling in the underground in the rush hours. The deep green of the trees.

The "please" and "thank you" of the bus conductors.

The all prevailing knowledge of the London policeman.

FORESTRY BUREAU OF U. S. WARNS OF TIMBER FIRES

The results of disastrous fires in the nation's forests are strikingly shown in an exhibit by the Bureau of Forestry of the United States Government at the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, now being held in Philadelphia. The display has been so arranged, with genuine "forest giants" that the visitor gets the impression he is passing through a primeval woodland. More than 20,000 square feet is devoted to the exhibit in the Palace of the United States Government, opposite the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium.

The keynote of the display is tersely told in a message from President Coolidge which warns Americans against the wholesale destruction of the timber lands by fire through carelessness and wastage. Depletion which has taken place in the last one hundred and fifty years because of the forest fires, careless cutting methods and lack of forest culture, is graphically shown.

GAINES COUNTY FAIR AND RODEO SEPT. 27TH

SEAGRAVES, Sept. 17.—Everything is getting in tip top shape for the opening of Gaines County's Sixth Annual Fair and Rodeo. This fair will be held at Seagraves and the people of that county are preparing to furnish a good program of entertainment, and are advertising a free barbecue as one of the features of the day.

A very liberal premium list has been arranged for livestock and agricultural products, and it is expected it will be the most complete exhibit of farm, livestock and poultry that has ever been held in this county. It will be held on the 27th of this month.

COTTON ROT LOSS CALLED $50,000,000

DALLAS, Sept. 18 (AP)—Cotton rot is inflicting a loss of approximately $50,000,000 on Texas cotton growers, a resume in Sunday's Dallas News by Victor H. Schoffelmayer agricultural editor, will say.

MAY THROW LIGHT ON "LOST COLONY"

North Carolina History in Spanish Documents.

Discovery of documents which have lain untouched in the vaults of Spain for three centuries and more, has made available for the first time extensive outside information bearing on the early history of North Carolina and is expected to reveal the actual fate of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony on Roanoke Island.

Ten thousand pages of the ancient manuscript reports of Spanish explorers and adventurers in North America, beginning with a voyage into North Carolina waters about the time of the disappearance of the lost colony and continuing down through the Aaron Burr conspiracy and the negotiations between Spain and Col. John Sevier for the delivery to Spain of the territory now embraced by Tennessee have been secured. Photostatic copies of the archives have already been received by the North Carolina Historical society.

The records are mainly reports of expeditions sent out to explore the New world and to check the expansion of the English. The Spaniards found themselves shut in with only Florida undisputedly theirs. The British had taken the West Indies and were planning to colonize the mainland. The Spaniards were particularly jealous of the attempt to plant a colony in North Carolina. While complete translations of the records have not yet been made, enough has been done to indicate that the Spanish undertook an expedition along the North Carolina coast toward the end of the sixteenth century to put down the attempts of the English, and it is believed that the lost colony was destroyed by the Spanish at this time.

Additional interest in the manuscript lies in the correspondence revealed between Colonel Sevier and the Spaniards in which Sevier agreed to side with them and to take with him that part of North Carolina that is now Tennessee. Sevier later set up the state of Franklin but his secession attempt was frustrated and Franklin became Tennessee.—Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer.

Cabin John Bridge

A bridge northwest of Washington is called Cabin John bridge. This bridge is over Cabin John creek a short distance from where that little stream empties into the Potomac. Tradition says that in the early days a queer character lived in a cabin along the banks of this stream. This hermit was known by no other name than John. As time went on he became known as John of the Cabin or Cabin John, a name which was later given to the creek. A legend still survives in the vicinity that the hermit left a large amount of treasure buried near where Cabin John bridge is now located. But the story of Cabin John has never been proved. It may have had its origin in a fanciful attempt to account for the name Cabin John. Court records of western Maryland show that in 1749 the creek was called Captain John creek. It is probable that Cabin John was a corruption of Captain John.

Will Study Tablets

Religious beliefs regarding life beyond the grave, held by the Egyptians more than three thousand years before the birth of Christ, may be revealed in inscriptions on stones just discovered in the University of California museum.

Two stones on which inscriptions were carved served as the jamb and lintel of the tomb of Sennetum, which was explored by archeologists about the time the Civil war ended. Sennetum probably was an officer of the ancient king of Egypt. He may have been the founder of a hereditary line of keepers whose duty it was to guard the tombs from the depredations of grave robbers, a form of outlawry that is as old as mankind itself, says Dr. F. H. Lutz, professor of Egyptology. He expects to make known a translation of the inscription soon.

Mines Must Have Wood

There are mining and excavation operations of many different kinds. It would be almost impossible to continue mining operations without wood for mine props. This industry calls on the forest for 200,000,000 cubic feet of wood every year. To get out coal it is necessary to have wood.

China Easily Mended

By applying a little carriage varnish with a camel's hair brush to the edges of broken china, the parts being neatly joined together, the fracture will, when thoroughly dry, be hardly perceptible and the china will stand fire and water.

TECH FRESHMEN TAKE TOWN WITH SHIRT TAIL PARADE

Texas Tech is open, and the student body doesn't care who knows it.

They were in evidence Monday night at the pavilion, where eight hundred led by Yell Leader, C. A. Deese, raised the roof with "T-T-E-E-C-H-H-Tech Tech Tech--Yea"

They were in evidence on the streets a short while later, when three hundred or more freshmen boys double-timed down Broadway and up Main with their shirt tails flapping in the breeze, their trousers hoisted above the knees, and their sock-supporters--if they wore any--exposed to public view.

It was the first shirt tail parade of the year.

The citizenry entered into the spirit of the thing as the "fish," marshalled by upper classmen, took the town with yelling. Charlie Pierce declares he broke three fenders and the running board off his car when he smashed through traffic to lead the procession, making a complete turn at Avenue I and Broadway despite all regulations, and leading the parade back to Martin's coffee shop and through it.

The pep meeting which preceded the parade was the best ever held the students afterwards declared.

General Pangalos, President of the Greek republic, recently signed an order dissolving the famous religious community of eight thousand monks established in a monastery on Mount Athos.

Definitions Don't Count

A certain Indianapolis girl who permitted attentions by a very affable young man whom she suspected of imbibing too freely at times, had been told that persons who had "one drink too many" were unable to pronounce resonant sounding words distinctly.

On this particular evening she decided to make the test, and when her friend called asked him to pronounce "sequicentennial."

The young man, ignorant of the purpose, but willing to oblige, moved his lips silently in a struggle to form the word and then quietly said:

"One hundred fifty."
The girl is still wondering whether the test was satisfactory.

The Mayor is further authorized and directed to have said notice of election published in some newspaper of general circulation published in said City, to-wit: Terry County Herald, which notice shall be published once each week until the date of said election, the date of the first publication being not less than thirty full days prior to the date of the election.

"What will it cost?" asked the sick man faintly.

"Ninety-five dollars."

You'll have to shade your price a little," replied the purchasing agent "I have a better bid from the undertaker."

Wary Hawks Trapped by Ingenious Farmer

C. C. Conger, Jr., a Virginia farmer and chicken raiser, has established a state record by trapping 1,500 hawks in the last 20 years, says Farm and Fireside. The hawks made his chicken business unprofitable.

"I erected poles and placed traps on them. I found half the hawks too sly to light upon them and climbing up and down poles to take care of traps was very troublesome," writes Mr. Conger. "I then decided to try setting traps on top of wire-fence posts over the farm. A dozen steel traps covered nearly little territory on a farm of 230 acres, yet I began catching hawks. It occurred to me that if I could devise some way to make a few traps cover a large territory, I would have solved the hawk problem. I hit upon the plan of placing a trap on about every tenth fence post and driving a spike in top of posts not bearing a trap. I knew a hawk could not light on a post with an obstruction like a spike sticking up in its way.

"It worked fine from the very start, and I have not since lost two dozen chickens by hawks. Later I learned to save my spikes by using a piece of old No. 10 fencing wire. By cutting wire in pieces about 10 inches long, then taking a good grip on end of wire about an inch back with pliers, I found it easy to drive into end of post by striking pliers a tap with hammer.

"I keep my traps in position on posts by driving a few 6-penny nails around frame of the trap. This prevents wind from blowing the trap off the post.

"During the last 20 years two dozen traps, arranged on fence posts over the farm, have given me a yield of hawks running well over 1,500. I catch hawks of every species inhabiting the eastern part of the United States. I look at my hawk traps once or twice a week, never failing to bring in from one to a dozen dead hawks. My neighbors for miles around have got relief from the chicken hawk as well as myself. Quail and other birds have increased wonderfully."

Before the Day of Forks

The comments of Mr. Justice McCardie upon the "social affectation" of demanding two forks to manipulate fish seem to the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian to have been based upon historical knowledge. Forks were not introduced into England until 1608, and it is a notable fact that whilst we get Knifesmith and Spooner amongst our occupative surnames we find no Forker or Forksmith. Even the "Carver" had to use his fingers. In the "Boke of Kervynge" we find it set down, "Set never on fyshe, flesche, heest ne fowl, more than two fyngers and a thombe." The guest was lucky if he got a plate. Usually he was supplied with a round of bread, known as a trencher, upon which the meat was placed. It will be easy to understand why this was followed by the necessary service of the "Ewer" with a basin of cleansing water, and the "Napier," who proffered the towel or napkin.

Radio Chess in Far East

The first chess contest ever staged by radio in the Far East came to a successful conclusion when Shanghai chess enthusiasts defeated the Manila Chess club. Three players took part at both ends of the air waves and play waxed hot and furious until a misunderstanding over a lowly pawn threatened to break up the game. Rather than sacrifice a chance to win, Shanghai gallantly conceded the pawn and continued with the game, but not until some delay had been occasioned by unraveling Manila's instructions from the static and the greetings and news being exchanged by battleships in the harbor. It was 3 a. m. when the pieces were put away and Shanghai had won.

Rats Four Feet Long

Judging from specimens of Kenya rats just received at the London zoological gardens it is doubtful if the Pied Piper of Hamelin would ever have had the courage of tooting his tune if he had lived in Africa instead of Germany.

The Kenya rats are between three and four feet in length, with a row of teeth like a fox terrier. They are the titans of the rat world. To add to their ferocious appearance they have cheek pouches which they can fill up with nuts, fruits and grain until their heads bulge out to twice their normal size.

The child looked thoughtful for a minute, then beamed as she said: "I'm just like my daddy, so I'm gonna play the phonograph."

CHEVROLET CARS TO STOP SMUGGLERS

Smugglers and undesirable immigrants attempting to cross the border between the United States and Mexico will face a still more efficient barrier with the announcement that the government has purchased four Chevrolet touring cars for its immigration patrol squadron.

"Modern law evaders use automobiles and not horses," said D. P. Gay, Jr., border patrol chief, at Brownsville, Texas, where the United States Immigration Service purchased the four Chevrolets.

"With smugglers using cars to transport their contraband and aliens endeavoring to speed by our inspectors in fast automobiles, we decided to speed up our own organization with more cars. We must be equally as well mounted as our adversaries."

Illegal entrance to this country has naturally been sought by the smugglers at the most inaccessible points to the border, remote from well-traveled roads at spots where automobiles are subjected to the most severe tests in deep sand and gullies. Government inspectors found their transportation needs demanded a car of rugged construction, free from necessity of frequent repairs, and with ample cooling facilities to withstand the torrid heat.

The Chevrolets were purchased in open competitive bidding. In the official specifications it was detailed "the cars are for scouting work, will be required to run on an average of from 1200 to 1500 miles per month on both smooth and rough as well as rocky roads and through mud and sand country of mesquite vegetation."

Supervision of the border is exercised from the headquarters of the immigration service at Brownsville for hundreds of miles along the Rio Grande river.

A severe West India Hurricane has certainly been ripping up things along the Florida coast of late. This makes it difficult to keep that State in the eyes of the public as a resort, as this is about the second severe storm to visit them this year.

Mrs. C. A. McDaniel has moved to town from the Jack Bryan ranch and will keep the Bryan children in town for school purposes.

Mrs. A. L. Lowery, of Gunter, Texas, is here visiting her mother and brother, Mrs. P. K. Kinne and J. O. and family.

Mr. Clyde C. Coleman, oil operator of Artesia, N. M., had business in city this week.

The Copyright Act

The first act providing for the copyright of books and other publications in the United States was passed 132 years ago. The term of a copyright was then fixed at fourteen years, with a renewal privilege of fourteen years longer. In 1831 the period was extended to twenty-eight years and a renewal of fourteen years. For about a hundred years the principal protection of authors was extended only to citizens of the United States, while in England a similar injustice was practiced upon Americans.

International copyright conventions now exist between nearly all nations.

Theater for Children

A special theater for school children is being organized in Stockholm as an offset to the influence of the more commercial forms of entertainment. At the outset only matinees will be given at the Oscar theater. Under the leadership of their teachers the pupils of the Stockholm schools, public as well as private, will form an organization, the membership fee in which will entitle each member to attend at a low cost a certain number of performances. Classical plays, high-class comedies and recitals by capable artists will make up the program. The idea is to train discriminating audiences, rather than amateur performers.

City Without Amusements

Angora, Turkey, is believed to be the only capital in the world where there are no cinemas, no theaters, dance halls, cabarets or other places of amusement. Although the Anatolian metropolis has a population of 81,500, there are no recreations or diversions of any kind. This is not due to any restrictions of the Koran or Turkish religion, but to the fact that Angora is just emerging from a mud village to a modern capital. Mustafa Kemal, the Turkish dictator, promises that in time the Turkish people and foreign residents will have ample amusements. Plans are now under way for the erection of an opera house to seat 3,000 persons.

For Coolness in Homes

Cold distributed on the same general principle as heat is an innovation of the newer apartment dwellings in New York and other large cities in the East. Instead of installing bulky machinery in individual apartments for useless refrigeration purposes, one central machine is used in the basement. Just as one furnace or boiler is used. From this central plant the individual apartment housewife can control the cold in her useless refrigerator, turning it on or off as simply as she regulates a radiator.

MAIL ORDER HOUSE INFORMATION

Country merchants will be interested in learning where President Coolidge has been getting his prosperity figures.

It will be recalled that The President, recently on the fourth anniversary of assuming the presidency let it be known that he considered the last three years "the most prosperous of any similar period in the history of the country." Now comes the statement that up at White Pine Camp President Coolidge has received Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., who reported on business conditions. The press Dispatch adds: "As the directing force of a large mail order house Rosenwald has a large business experience and it in touch with many sections of the country."

Before the meeting of the President of the United States and the head of the big mail order house it was said, "It is the hope of Coolidge to receive a report from him (Rosenwald) of business and economic conditions in the country and to see whether he has any suggestions for improving matters."

Of course the head of the big mail order house was able to report business good and prosperity all that the President of the United States had represented, for in a long list of July sales by powerful retail firms, Sears, Roebuck & Co., lead all the rest, having made sales amounting to $20,011,479, in the one month. The trouble is that President Coolidge has been getting his information from the wrong source just as in this instance, and is traveling with the wrong crowd. If the country merchants and those in small towns and cities depending upon farm trade could afford to go to the President's palatial summer camp and tell their story it's dollars to doughnuts that it would differ from the report of Sears, Roebuck & Co's Mr. Rosenwald.—Sudan News.

A. V. Taylor and family were in last Friday from the farm near Tokio, and reported they had the worms about under control.

Quite a few of our citizens, especially the business men, attended the peddlers' convention (commercial drummers) at Lubbock last Saturday. They report a fine time.

SEMINOLE, TEXAS NOT TOWN WANTED BY LADY

The peaceful little village of Seminole, capitol of Gaines County, Texas, proved to be the wrong place entirely yesterday when one Miss L. E. Q. Moody, from anywhere, hit Seagraves enroute to that place.

It happened to fall on our fellow townsman and realtor, Charley Richards, who is ever obliging and courteous, to convey Miss Moody by automobile to her supposed destination. Upon their arrival, Mr. Richards was informed that she was wanting to go to Seminole, Okla.—just a slight error on her part.

She was returned here and spent last night in room 13, Hotel Simpson, catching the early morning train out for her intended destination—Seminole, Okla. Thanks, to Mr. Richards, —some 225 pounds worth.—Seagraves Signal.
