The north and south highway that is to connect the Panhandle and Winkler oil fields is being placed in condition for traffic, and in fact is carrying a considerable amount at this time. From Seagraves to Seminole a good grade has been put up and is in as good condition as any of the highways of this county. From Seminole south it is in fair condition, but has not been graded during the present year, except the stretch between Andrews and Odessa, which is newly constructed. The section between Brownfield and Seagraves is probably in as much need of work as any part and it can be traveled with speed and safety.

Grading was complete to the four mile corner on the east and west highway today, and the equipment is being transferred to the Lynn county line and will be worked back toward Brownfield, and as soon as this part is completed, it will be placed on the Lubbock-Meadow section. From this point all equipment will be transferred to other counties unless in the meantime an agreement is reached concerning the route to be taken or accepted to the west end of the county. It was thought that the grade would be constructed on the mile that is located north of Gomez, but land owners and Commissioners could not reach an agreement as to damages claimed.

At this time no highway activities which are being promoted by this organization has been brought to completion, but they are most all on the eve of full accomplishment, so it has been decided to secure additional connections and to this end an effort is being made to secure a better and more direct connection with Wichita Falls and points in Oklahoma, and letters have been written suggesting a line that would include the counties of Baylor, Knox, King, Crosby, and Lubbock, where it would connect with the Carlsbad, Roswell and re-ent line at Brownfield. With the exception of King county, and the eastern half of Dickens this is all designated and a lot of it has been secured. After a lineup is secured, a concerted effort will be made to secure designation for the King and Dickens portion.

Snake Bite Fatal to Lynn County Child

Arrest Earl Schnappa, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Schnappa living on the Buttler ranch five miles west of New Home, died in the Elwood Sanitarium at Lubbock Friday afternoon from the bite of a huge rattlesnake, received late Thursday afternoon while the child was in the field where its parents were planting cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Schnappa had taken their three children to the field in a trailer, which was left at the end of the rows with the children in it while the parents labored in the field. The little boy got out of the trailer and was undertaking to follow the father as the latter ran the plow. After driving some distance down the row, Mr. Schnappa looked back and noticed the little fellow was lying on the ground. He hurried back and found a huge rattlesnake with a few feet of the child, and the child was nonchalantly pitching dirt with hands on the head of the reptile. Grabbing up the child, the vicious snake struck at Mr. Schnappa but missed. The father found that the child had been bitten in two places on the arm. Binding the arm above the wound he hurried to the house and called a physician at Wilson. The child was taken to the Elwood Sanitarium that night, where physicians and nurses did everything humanly possible under the circumstances to save the little fellow's life, but he died next day at noon. The little fellow is said to have been afflicted with epilepsy and had never been mentally bright, not being able to talk.—Tahoka News.

Yes, Old Terry Will Produce Irish Taters

Something more than a year ago this great dispenser of news and general booster for this section of the grand old Lone Star, thinking it was up on its okra, advised farmers generally gainst wasting perfectly good soil to what is general and promiscuously called the Irish potato, as we felt we were some authority on the matter, having devoted hours of sweet toil on that plant only to be rewarded with flourishing vines or weeds, whichever you want to call them, and a few measly, knotty, little tubers underneath, about the size of the agate taws the boys play with on our streets. We advised 'em to use the rich grounds of Terry to the more lucrative yellow yam 'taters and black eyed Susan peas, Mexican frijolla beans, etc. We also gave as our expert and scientific advice that our soils, while rich in the minerals that produce most plants and vegetables abundantly, want lacking in the element that was needed to produce the Irishman potato.

In a week or two following, some of the farmers of this section brought in a few samples to show us to what extent we had prevaricated and smeared the good name of old Terry but as none of these seemed to have only enough for display purposes and none for us to actually taste, we said very little about the matter, for we are a firm believer in the old adage that somebody brought out a million or more years ago, during the dotage about "the proof of the pudding is in the eating." How was we to know their few samples, which they took care to pack back home in their pockets were produced in Terry? What was hindering them from getting 'em over in Lynn or Lubbock counties while visiting with the wives folks?

But now we are thoroughly convinced that Terry will deliver the good son Irish as well as sweet 'taters, for Frank Proctor, it seems had not thoroughly become convinced that we were converted, so last Saturday he brought in a big mess of his white Irish cobbler, and right off the reel told us he aimed for us to eat them; that he did not expect for to be satisfied by merely looking at 'em. And so we carried them home and have been eating some real fresh Terry county potatoes, which were, like our peaches, plums, grapes, and apples, abundantly endowed with that delicate and unmatched flavor so peculiar to Terry county fruits and vegetables.

And right here we wish to say that Frank gave us a tip or two that convinced us that we have gone the wrong way about raising Irish potatoes. He says he goes down deep in the soil with two good mules to his plow and plants them perhaps six or eight inches deep, and that sometimes they are a month or six weeks showing about the ground, but if given time will finally come through, and away down there is where he gets his fine tubers. We had been planting them with a push garden plow, so you may judge how deep we were getting them.

Then too, he says, you must get a seed potato that will produce in this climate, his favorite being the Irish cobbler, but has had some good production with Tennessee Triumph and the Early Rose, although the latter never gets large, but is a few weeks earlier than other varieties when all are planted at the same time. We just planted potatoes, probably the Greeley obtained in grocery stores, and intended only for eating purposes, and does not do well south of Colorado and Kansas. The only time we ever heard of them doing well in this section was one summer about 18 years ago when an old timer here by the name of Forrester produced a good crop of them on the old Scott place eight miles east of town.

Frank says that he seldom ever fails to produce all the potatoes they want, and to let our mathematicians have a little exercise during the hot summer days, will say that the potatoes Frank brought us would average the size of a goose egg; some were much larger and some smaller, and he got an average of five from under each vine. The vines were eighteen inches apart in three foot rows. How much did they produce per acre?

While they are figuring it up, we will take the time to thank Frank for these fine eating potatoes.

R. H. Earnest of Sag Angelo, was a business visitor here this week.

Drilling Resumed on Kingsland Well

For several days past the Kingsland well 12 miles east of town has been shut down on account of a broken part about the engine, but another part was obtained and put in and drilling resumed the early part of this week we understand. It is reported that they are still in the red gumbo but the rotary is making some 200 feet per day when everything is running good.

It was reported here the first of the week that the well and machinery has been roped off, presumably too keep visitors away. So far as we are concerned, this need not have been done, for we have never been closer to it than the Tahoka road, but we guess there are a lot more curious folks than we.

Anyway we will just continue to stay away until they bring in a gusher, and then we may decide that a rope won't hold us.

Cattle Industry on The Upward Trend

Washington.—With beef cattle commanding the highest prices this spring since 1920 and all other grades of cattle participating in the general advance, the cattle industry in the United States is faced with "very favorable conditions," according to a report of the spring cattle market issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The trend in production appears to be downward toward a more profitable basis, and the industry apparently is approaching that phase of production when the grower feeling confident of the future, begins to build up herds, retains stock for the full utilization of available pasture and range, and hold young stock for further growth and finish, says the report. This downward trend is in contrast with the movement in recent years, when the cattle industry was hurt by overproduction which resulted in curtailment, liquidation, heavy market receipts and consequently a high slaughtering ration to numbers remaining on farms and ranges.

The end of this period of overmarketing was declared in sight, and except for some further culling and liquidation of range periods this fall because of high prices and for marketing in spots because of drought conditions, the number of cattle forced on the slaughter market will be limited.

The present high price level for the better grade of fed steers is unusual, says the report, for this season of the year, and may be attributed partly to the fact that receipts of cattle at the principal corn belt and eastern markets during the first four months of this year were four percent smaller than during the same period last year. The premium for weight has also been a factor in raising the available price for the better grade of fed steers, it was stated.

MARRIED

Mr. Joe Bailey Price and Miss Bernice Miller, of the Challis community drove in last Saturday afternoon and secured license, and appeared at the Baptist parsonage, where Rev. V. E. May said the words that made them husband and wife. Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Price and was reared in this county. Mrs. Price is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Miller. Both are very popular with their many friends.

The Texas cotton crop is almost enough to supply the entire continent.

109 Cans of Cream Received Here Sat.

One of the local cream buyers informed us Monday that the three cream stations in Brownfield purchased a total of 109 cans of cream here Saturday, and figuring it at even $10.00 per can we find that the farmers and ranchmen of the Brownfield trade territory were paid more than a thousand dollars for this commodity alone last Saturday. And this is not to say anything about the grown poultry and the thousand of fryers and broilers now being put on the market, and the butter and eggs that are sold here. Eggs are not worth much, but a great deal of 'em bring in some money.

It is no wonder that our banks are way down in loans this year compared to former years, when we think of the fact that many, many families are actually making their expenses with these by-products of the farm, and if they can go on until fall making both ends meet without borrowing money or going the credit route, the later of which we also understand is not being extended as of yore, the crops of our farmers are going to be pure velvet this fall, and they can pay off old debts, if they have any, and put money in the banks for future needs.

With the present trend of affairs, if Terry can only make a light cotton crop, say a sixth or fifth bale per acre, and get another good corn crop, the county will be setting jake. But on the other hand if we borrow money to live on, or get credit at the stores, we will at the end of the season be in a better shape than last year. The only way to get ahead is to spend after it is made and not before.

Farm Bureau Reserve Fund Distribution Wed.

As directed by the board of directors all members of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association in Terry county who shipped cotton in 1921 will receive checks for the 1921 reserve fund at a county meeting in the court house at Brownfield on Wednesday July 6th, at 2:30 P. M.

J. A. Drennan, president of the Terry county Farm Bureau will have charge of this meeting, and M. Mitchell, field representative will discuss the Reserve fund and its uses. According to Mr. Mitchell several hundred dollars will be distributed to members of the association at this meeting and every member who has ever shipped in 1921 will have check in this distribution.

O'DONNELL MAN DIES FOLLOWING OPERATION

Ed Thompson, aged 19 years, died Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Sandifer Sanitarium at Lamesa, at which place he was taken two weeks ago and underwent an operation for appendicitis. He was the son of Dr. A. W. Thompson and was born and grew to manhood in the O'Donnell territory and has a wide circle of friends who join in extending condolence to the bereaved family. He is survived by a wife, father, two brothers and five sisters, all of whom are residents of O'Donnell, with the exception of one sister, Mrs. Phillips who lives in California, all being present at the funeral. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 at the O'Donnell cemetery by the Rev. W. C. Hart.—O'Donnell Index.

Texas stands high in value of its mineral production, being prominent in petroleum and sulphur.

Rotary Club to Sponsor Clean-up Campaign

At the regular luncheon of the local Rotary Club at the Hotel Brownfield last Friday noon, the subject of putting on a clean-up campaign in Brownfield, to be sponsored by the club was broached, and lengthy discussion ensued as to the best methods etc., to go about the work. But the burden of most of the talks seemed to favor offering prizes not only for the biggest piles of cans, trash, junk, etc., but for weeds as well.

Dr. C. W. Graves made a splendid talk and explained the case with which weeds might spread contagion from one section of the town to the other, and stressed the fact that all portions of the city be cleaned up.

Some one suggested that as the Maids and Matrons Club have always sponsored clean-up campaigns, that they be asked to cooperate with the Rotarians in this campaign. It was then remembered that this study club usually disbanded before this time each year until fall, but it is understood that the president can call them together anytime for important matters under consideration by the town or community.

The chair appointed committees to formulate plans for the campaign and by next week it is believed that they can be printed in these columns so that the boys may have something else besides nothing else to do for a while at least, and make some money on the side.

That our town is presenting a very ragged and unkempt appearance, no one can deny. There are sections of the city where old automobiles half overgrown with cockleburrs and tumbling weeds are absolute eyesores, and these and all other unsightly places should be given a genuine old cleaning.

The time of year has arrived when typhoid fever is likely to break out at any time, and all should be willing to do all they can to keep this dread contagion out of our city, because it usually leaves a high percentage of death in its wake.

EDITOR SMITH QUIETLY WEDS LAMESA LADY

Mrs. Belle Ridgeway and J. W. Smith, Sr., were quietly married at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in front of a hotel at Tahoka by the Rev. Mr. Pummerall, minister of the Church of Christ. Following the marriage they partook of a supper and returned to Lamesa, where they are at home to their many friends.

The wedding was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Travis of the Bryant-Link Co. of this city and E. I. Hill, editor of the Lynn County News. Smith went with his friends to Tahoka and secured his marriage license Sunday afternoon. Smith is owner of the Lamesa Reporter. The bride is well and favorably known here.—Lamesa Journal.

ROBERTS CASE REVERSED —NEW TRIAL ORDERED

The Adless Roberts case has been reversed and remanded for new trial, according to the mandate received by district clerk Happy Smith from the Court of Criminal Appeals a few days ago.

Roberts is charged with the murder of Calvin Pettit near O'Donnell on March 28, 1925. He was tried at the fall term of the district court in 1925 and the jury found him guilty of manslaughter and assessed his punishment at 5 years in the pen.

The case will probably be tried at the fall term of the court this year.—Lynn County News.

Ira M. Pittman, manager of the local organization, states that all arrangements have been made and the band will resume practice at an early date.—Levelled Herald.

Tahoka Parties Hurt Here Friday Night

As careful as we may be, we never know just what is going to happen the very next minute or even second for that matter. This minute we may be happy and gay without a care and the next may plunge us into the saddest gloom of despair. And this was about what happened to a party of three car loads of Tahoka young people who came over on a bathing party last Friday night.

After spending some time in the Brownfield Bathing Pool, these young people spread a lunch out on the bank under the light, and enjoyed a sumptuous repast together. Toward eleven o'clock they started home, and got out some four miles from Brownfield, when all of a sudden a bunch of mules—like they usually do—took a notion that it was safer on the outside of the road, and before the front car could make a move to check the speed of the car, the mules or horses started out of the dark and the car hit them full force. It seems that one boy and three girls in the front car were hurt more or less. One of the girls had quite a few abrasions about the head and a severe cut just over the eye. One of the boys had a badly cut hand on the windshield. We failed to learn any names except the two Knight boys. We understand the car was wrecked.

The wounded were brought back to Brownfield and their hurts were dressed by a local physician, and the party then proceeded home. The attending physician informed us that while the wounds were severe, in at least two cases, he did not anticipate any serious results.

Chevrolet Must Stand A Rigid Test

A romance of the General Motors Proving Ground at Milford, Michigan comes to light today with the announcement that Chevrolet test car number 112 has been retired from the Proving Ground service after withstanding the withering strain of 46,150 miles in four and half months over various types of roads and a wide range of driving conditions.

Number 112 has a standard light delivery panel body on the standard commercial car chassis and had been taken out of regular production at the Flint plant. When, in the course of the usual routine, it was replaced at the Proving Ground by another Chevrolet, it still had in it many miles of terrific test driving.

Forty miles out of Detroit in the hills and vales of Livingston county, where the great outdoor automobile laboratory is located, this Chevrolet, like others there, underwent supreme tests in the cause of improved automotive transportation. In the course of these tests, the car was called upon to go through all the types of service an automobile may be heir to—and more.

It was kept on test for 135 days, "working" on an average of 341.8 miles a day. There were days when it was driven more than 500 miles in order to try its stamina. In addition to the test work at the Proving Ground, the car carried mail to Detroit and returns each day, permitting of a study and check of the car under actual road traffic conditions.

Engineers and technical men who drove and checked the car at the Proving Ground had in mind the many difficulties an automobile has to contend with in its lifetime. They thought of the driver who speeds his car over rough, rutted roads; they considered the motorist who rides his clutch; they had in mind the man who habitually tramps on his brakes, another who races a cold motor, another who asks his car to pull out of a mud hole in high and so on.

Although they realized at the same time that only a very small minority of drivers do these things today, they wanted to study the ability of the Chevrolet to withstand these abuses and to be constantly on the watch for developments that might further improve the product.

Although the Proving Ground shows some fine stretches of pavement, number 112, during the four and one half months it was on test, never left the gravel and dirt roads, except on its trips out of the grounds as a mail car.

Asked why, a Chevrolet engineer replied: Concrete makes it too easy!

Official paper of Terry County.

It seems that acting Governor Barry Miller is using the pardoning power vested in him during Gov. Moody's absence from the state even more than the later has used it during his entire term. Maybe the fact that Barry was also Lieutenant Governor under Ma, has something to do with his sympathetic nature.

Next on program is Independence Day next Monday, and while so far as we know, there will be no set program, all will be expected to put out their flags. About the nearest big celebration that we know of is Big Springs. Owing to the fact that the rains come late, and Terry county farmers are very busy people, is one reason that no effort has been made here for a general celebration.

It has been reported that the Lamesa bank that recently closed its doors, will soon be reopened under new management, who will assume all liabilities as well as assets of the defunct institution. It is also said that this bank could have weathered conditions and come out alright had not rumors been circulated that it was tottering. Few people realize that such rumors are liable to send the starters and spreaders of them to a good long term in a Federal prison.

Our farmers have been a scarce article on the streets again this week, as many of them are still busy putting seed in the ground. However, it is reported that in a few sections of the county it is again too dry to get anything to come up. This section lies a few miles north and west of Brownfield, and is some eight miles wide, it is said. But we ought to have another rain around the glorious Fourth.

The Herald is sorry that we are to lose James A. Greer, editor of the Meadow Review, as a citizen and a booster of old Terry. He goes to take charge of the Rochester, Texas, paper, and we commend him to the good people of that city, and assure them that they will find Jim ready and willing at all times to do his share for the upbuilding of that community and that they will always find him on the right side of all moral question. In the meantime, we understand that Mrs. Greer and the boys will continue for the time being at least to guide the destinies of the Meadow paper until Sept. 1, when their lease expires, and we wish to say that they got out a creditable paper last week.

An editor is supposed to know a lot, but we have never seen one that even claimed to be a mind reader. In fact, most of our fourth estate fraternity have their hands full getting their own minds to properly function during hot wether, much less tell what's going on in the ivory dome of their neighbors. A fellow wrote us the past week on one page from a point in Okla., told us a great deal about the country and how he didn't like it, etc., and also wanted his paper sent up there for awhile. He never gave us the least hint who he is, or for that matter never finished the letter. We are at a lost to know what happened to him, or whether he thinks he was the only bird down here that took the Herald and that we ought to miss him. No, we are no Houdino.

We have seen Lindbergh on the screen lately; we have seen his picture in every paper we pick up; our pictorial magazine devoted a whole issue to him; we have seen his picture from the cradle up, including his pets and friends; every other column of our dailies fairly shout their headlines about him to the exclusion of plain and fancy bank robberies and murders; the people have talked him on the street until his left ear must be badly infected with the itch. We admire that birdman equally with the most patriotic of our citizens, and we hope we will not be arrested for a traitor or spy when we suggest that an article in our dailies even about hot weather diet would be a relief just now.

The small town editor has a hard time finding subjects for sizzling editorial during off campaign years, and generally has to neglect that column. The armers have just about got to the point that they wont heed our advice to them, and the young folks will ride in cars and court and spark in spite of all we say. There are no state candidates for us to fairly set fire to the south side of their pants when they are headed north—we're afraid to say anything about local grafters; they might come to see us. Even the women folks on the farms won't let us tell them how to raise turkeys, chickens or goslings. About all we have left to editorialize during off years is the weeds on vacant lots, and the scrap iron around the shops.

SKETCH OF NEW PRESIDENT OF ROTARY INTERNATIONAL

When Arthur Sapp of Huntington Ind., was chosen president of Rotary International at the annual convention of the organization, held at Ostend, Belgium, in June, isn't in court trying a lawsuit, it is a fairly reasonable assumption that he is trying to convince some trade association to adopt a code of ethical business practices. Mr. Sapp got into the habit of inducing business men to standardize their practice and go on record as to what should and should not be considered ethical when he was chairman of Rotary Business Methods committee in 1924.

He took the job seriously and, filling a suit case with facts and figures and a hand-bag with clothing, started out in search of trade associations. He found them in Mexico, Canada, and the United States. He traveled from coast to coast, for the privilege of appearing before a trade convention and explaining his idea of ethical business methods. Before they heard him, many of the trade associations were willing to get along without even a talk on business ethics, but before the end of the year, half a hundred trade bodies and professional associations had adopted codes of standard practice.

He talked with lawyers, doctors, manufacturers, retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers. As a result of his work and of his successor's in the chairmanship of this committee, a majority of the leading business and professional bodies have now standard codes of ethical practice.

As a result of the record he established as Chairman of the Business Methods committee, Mr. Sapp was named first Vice President of Rotary International at the Cleveland convention in 1925, and the following year he took over the chairmanship of the Constitution and By-Laws committee.

Mr. Sapp was born at Ravenna, Ohio, and spent his childhood and early manhood on his father's farm. He graduated from the Ravenna High School in 1903 and worked his way through Ohio Wesleyan University, from which he graduated with a degree of A. B. in 1907.

In order to become a lawyer, Mr. Sapp explains, it was necessary for him to learn tree surgery and boarding house management. He was a member of the first gang of tree surgeons which operated in this country. In this way and by managing a boarding house, he acquired enough money to complete his education. After graduating from college, he taught Latin in high school at Chattanooga, Tenn., and later engaged in educational work in Kansas City, Mo., and Huntington, Ind. He obtained his legal education from the University of Chicago Law School and at the Indiana Law School. He graduated from the latter institution in 1902.

He has practiced law in Huntington since his graduation. Three times the voters of his judicial district elected him prosecuting attorney.

Mr. Sapp is a trustee of Evansville College and has been prominently associated with DePauw and Wesleyan University of Ohio. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the National Laymen's Missionary Movement. He has served as director of the Y. M. C. A. in his home city and is a member and has taken a prominent part in the local and state and American bar associations.

Mr. Sapp joined the Huntington Rotary Club in 1917. He served successfully as secretary, president and member of the board of directors of his club. He has also served Rotary International as governor of the 20th Rotary district which comprises the state of Indiana.

DEMAND FOR CHEVROLETS CALLS FOR BUILDINGS

With production running at the record clip of more than 5,000 units daily and demand for the product constantly attaining new levels, the Chevrolet Motor Co. today, announces a $2,000,000 development of its properties at Flint, Mich., to relieve congestion brought about by steady increases in production.

This will include two buildings, a three story office building and a new parts building. The new buildings will be completed by Oct. 1, according to Charles F. Barth, vice-president in charge of manufacturing.

On the completion of the new building, the present office and parts buildings will be razed and a modern factory building erected in their place, Mr. Barth declared.

The new parts building will be a three story structure, 530X122 feet, and of concrete construction. The new office building, of brick and concrete, will be 260X60 feet.

Completion of the project will provide additional manufacturing facilities to a plant that is already one of the finest in the automotive industry.

A PLACE FOR BOYS

What can a boy do, and where can he stay.

If he is always told to get out of the way?

He can not sit here and he must not stand there.

The cushions that cover the fine rocking chair

Were put there of course, to be seen and admired;

A boy has not business to ever be tired

The beautiful roses and flowers that bloom

On the floor of the darkened and delicate room,

Are made not to walk on—at least not by boys;

The house is no place, anyway, for their noise.

Yet boys must walk somewhere, and what if their feet

Scuff out of our houses, sent into the street

Should step around the corner and pause at the door

Where other boys' feet have paused oft before;

Should pass through the gateway of glittering lights,

Where jokes that are merry and songs that are bright

Ring out a warm welcome with flattering voice

And temptingly say, "here's a place for the boys."

Ah, what if they should? What if your boy or mine

Should cross o'er the threshold which marks the line

"Twixt virtue and vice," 'twixt pureness and sin,

And leave all his innocent boyhood within?

Oh, what if they should, because you and I

While the days and the months and the years roll by,

Are too busy with cares and with life's fleeting joys

To make around our hearthstone a place for the boys?

There's a place for the boys, they'll find it somewhere;

And if our homes are too dainty and fair

For the touch of their fingers, the tread of their feet,

They'll find it, and find it alas in the street,

Mid the guilding of sin and the glitter and vice;

And with heartaches and longings pay a dear price

For the getting of gain that our lifetime employs

If we fail to provide a good place for the boys.—Boston Transcript.

WATCH THE DOG

Every few days we find in our exchanges reports of a growing prevalence of "mad dogs" in their respective neighborhoods. While some of these cases may only be a display of temper on the part of the canines there is no doubt but the next few months will bring forth many cases of rabies, and with possible serious results.

Personally we believe every dog-owner around Littlefield knows that the best way to protect a dog from rabies, or "going mad," as most people term it, is to provide it with plenty of drinking water. Keep it where they can get to it at all times. Don't depend on the dog to find drinking water, unless you happen to have a stream of running water on the place. If you are not so situated keep a pan of water where your dog can get a drink any time he wants it day or night. You will not only be doing a humane act, but you will also be protecting yourself and the neighborhood generally from what otherwise might prove serious.—Lamb County Leader.

TECH REGISTRATION MAY REACH THE 2,000 MARK

Lubbock.—Figures from the registrar's office show a total of 1,840 students have enrolled in Texas Technological College during the year. Taking into consideration that this is only the second year since the organization of the school, college officials believe that the above enrollment constitutes a record which has never been equaled in the history of American College and universities.

Texas produces more agricultural values every year than any other state.

"NECKTIE JOE" LIKES 'EM VERY, VERY LOUD

It is said that "Necktie Joe" the night foreman of the New York Sun, has to park his coat in the garage at night before the family can go to sleep. On Joe's calling card appear these verses:

Some Like 'Em Red

Some may long for the soothing touch
Of lavender, cream and mauve,
But the ties I wear must possess the glare
Of a red hot kitchen stove.

The books I read, and the life I lead
Are sensible, sane and mild.
I like calm hats, and don't wear spats,
But I want my neckties wild.

Give me a wild tie, brother,
One with a cosmic urge;
A tie that will swear
And rip and tear
When it sees my old blue serge.

O, some may say that a gent's cravat
Should only be seen, not heard;
But I want a tie that'll make men cry,
And render their vision blurred.
I yearn, I long, for a tie so strong
It will take two men to tie it,
If such there be, just show it to me—
Whatever the price—I'll buy it.

Give me a wild tie, brother,
One with a lot of sins;
A tie that will blaze
In a hectic haze
Down where the vest begins.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE CONFESSONAL MAGAZINES

In an article entitled "Truth and the 'True Story'" published in the June issue of the English Journal, Arthur McKeogh holds the so-called "true-story" up to the light of pitiless publicity, giving rules for the concoction of such stories and quoting figures that give one a startling understanding of the popularity of this type of writing. Of six magazines containing such stories, 39,000,000 copies are sold annually at a cost to the reading public of $9,750,000. Evidently it would be well for us to have a clear understanding of a thing that has attained such wide popularity with the people.

"The confessional periodical," Mr. McKeogh says "is a collection of from ten to twenty unsigned fiction stories written in the first person, dealing with the most rudimentary emotions in the most rudimentary English, and illustrated with posed photographs exclusively—just to prove that it all happened in real life.

"When the literate venture into this kind of composition, with narratives of their own experiences or those of their friends, the tempo and range of their efforts are rarely sensational enough to satisfy the editor and his audience.

"No, there are well formulated rules for the concoction of these stories. Thickly plied tragedy that ends happily. Consummate poverty that becomes wealth. Ill-gotten luxury that finally sees its error, and overnight taken on a sanctified aroma of simplicity and sweetness. Misguided virtue may drag itself through the whole decalogue of sin, but it must come forth shining and triumphant in the last paragraph. The magazine will protest editorially because it is forced to go into the "sordid places." But how shall one get at the truth otherwise? The Sanctimonious beating of its poor-brow will be followed by the boast of its "unwholesome influence in pointing out life's pitfalls," and showing how they can be avoided, with the wicked punished and the righteous winning every time. Of course righteousness may come into its own for the period of only a few concluding sentences, whereas the pitfalls are likely to yawn intriguingly for the course of five thousand words. But ultimately and unfailing you have to hand it to righteousness. If you don't the postal authorities at Washington may bar the periodical from the mails. On the other hand, some magazines never encounter the postal authorities because their copies are distributed exclusively by express. There are more ways of catering to the prurient than through the mailman.

Mr. McKeogh ends his article with the reflection that even with the wide popularity of this type of writing, its readers can, after all, form only a small part of the total population, and that we have many good magazines that are helping to elevate the tastes of those who now find their recreation in the lower-class periodicals.—Canyon Normal Prairie.

TECH RECEIVES NICE APPRO- PRIATION OF LEGISLATURE

Lubbock, Texas.—With an appropriation of $600,000 for buildings and equipment now definitely assured for Texas Technological College for the next two years the institution will enter a new phase of its unprecedented growth. A half million dollars will be used in the erection of buildings and $100,000 for equipment. An engineering building, a practice building for home economics, the first unit of an agricultural building, and a greenhouse will be the first year of the biennium and a science building will be constructed the second year.

The engineering building will cost $240,000, with $45,000 for equipment. It will be erected in the center of the space between the textile and administration buildings and will face east. The material and architecture will harmonize with the general plan outlined for the entire college group. It will contain two stories and a basement. Construction will start as soon as plans of the architect are completed and the contract can be let. Officials expect this building to be ready for occupancy by the opening of the fall term in 1928.

The practice house for home economics students is to cost $20,000 and $2,500 for equipment. This structure will be located between the home economic building and College avenue and will face east. The young ladies taking home economics, will live in this building in turn, thus getting actual experience in carrying out things learned in the class room. This building will be ready by the opening of the fall session.

Although only $10,000 was appropriated for the first unit of the agricultural building it will be one of the most needed structures as this department has been housed in overcrowded quarters in the home economics building. This first unit will be located in the aggie quadrangle midway between the main building and the stock judging pavilion. On the west side of this quadrangle will be constructed a hothouse at a cost of $7,500. Both of these buildings will be ready for use this fall.

These four buildings together with equipment will entail an expenditure of $325,000 during the first year of the biennium.

During the second year a science building will be erected at a cost of $225,000 with $50,000 for equipment. This structure will face the college square on the southwest corner. While in the beginning it will house the various sciences, it will be designated as a chemistry building. This will greatly relieve the congestion of laboratories which are at present crowded into the basement of the administration building.

TRACTOR PRICE THE SAME AS SLAVE OF 1850

Tractors of the smaller sizes can now be purchased for about the price of a good slave of ante-bellum days, says R. F. Hale, who is representing the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland experiment station in the study of economic conditions of a half century or more ago.

An inventory of the personal property of a tobacco planter in Prince George county in 1850 lists "Tom, aged 37, $550." How many farmers of the present day, without bringing ethical or moral principles into the question, would prefer to invest their money in human rather than machine power? The economic output of the slave, per dollar of investment, points out the Research Department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, was negligible compared with that of the present tractor of equal price. And so machine power continues to emancipate man from the drudgery and toil of farming as well as industry.
