

THIS WEATHER IS STILL A MESS AS ANDY SAYS

The Farmers Are Worried Because They Can't Work, and the Business Men Are Worried Because the Farmers Are. Big Rain and Norther Wed. Night.

The people of Terry county are having a lot of trouble with the weather, we can assure you, and don't seem to be able to do anything about it. The Herald has been asked several times to intervene, but so far has failed of any favorable action. In fact, heretofore, every time we have promised sunshine, the weather man has doubled the dose of fowl weather, until we have just about decided to take a back seat and let it rave. If we have any readers who wish to take charge of the matter for awhile, our old Underwood has a new ribbon, there is plenty of paper handy and we'll bar no decent cuss words. Some how or another, though we believe all of us better lay off the weather until it gets over its angry attitude and settles down to normal.

Explanations have been offered, many and varied, but about the best one we have heard is that Mr. Weatherman took a long vacation along with J. Pluv this summer. Where they were is a mooted question, but many believe they left the gate open to the neither world, and just a bit of hades popped open on us while they were away. The sky of a large portion of the good old USA turned to brass, the crops withered up, and was followed by the grass and weeds. The natives mopped their honest brows and looked for the cloud no larger than a man's hand, but it failed to show up on the horizon. Some prayed, some swore and some took it easy, but the hot, dry, withering weather kept on at its trade. The wells in some sections failed, and the springs in the Kentucky mountains dried up so there was no more whisky. There was mourning and gnashing of teeth. There was nothing else to sooth their burning brows or to make them forget their despair. It looked as if old Satan's time had come and that h—l had broke loose among the yearlings. What was to be done? Nothing. We had lots of advice, but of most of this advice required money and we had none.

But the worm turned late in September. It is a long lane that has no ending. The Weatherman and J. Pluv returned from their vacations, finally. It appeared to them that the hogs had rocted the gate open to the regions below. The earth was sizzling hot and almost ready to blaze in places. They opened the windows of heaven and poured it on for awhile. At first it did not appear to faze teh raging heat, and when they let up for a few days, steam and smoke poured from the fissures of the super heated earth. On the hose came again and again. Little cotton picking weather or time to head maize is allowed between the drenchings. Old mother earth has to be cooled again. But the same time, they are storing plenty of moisture to start us off right for the year 1931, which at this time promises in every way to be the banner year of many in West Texas, especially.

But the Herald hopes that the next time these guys take a long vacation they will leave a forwarding address.

Cubs Hold Slaton to A Tie Game Friday

Brownfield has the best foot ball team in its history by far. Up to this time they have not lost a game, and last Friday was the first they have had that held them to a tie. In this one, they were out weighed by several pounds by the Slatonites, but the Cubs out classed them in the field, and most of the battle was done in the Slaton territory, according to those who saw the game as well as press reports. In fact, the Slaton bunch did not seriously threaten the Cub's goal but one time.

On the other hand, the Cubs had the ball within a few inches of the Slaton goal once, and some claim it rolled over but was put back by the referee from some cause or other. Brownfield fans do not think they have been given justice on several occasions, but being sports have said little about the matter. The Cubs has only one other game they have any fear of, and that is with the powerful Lamesa aggregation, who have not suffered defeat this season, but have won most of their games by overwhelming odds. But on the other hand, the teams they have defeated have been defeated by the local boys, also.

Fans who attended foot ball games say that there never was a bunch that worked better together than the home team. In fact, they say they go at it more like a machine than human flesh, so well are they trained to their parts by their coach, Mr. Hayhurst. If they can tie or defeat Lamesa on Friday 31st, they will have an excellent showing for the district championship, as the Lamesa team is about the only chunk in their machinery to dispose of.

Son of Arch Fowler Injured Monday Night

The little nine year old son of Deputy Sheriff Arch Fowler was hit with a car in the big jam here Monday night after the show was over. It seems the little fellow started across the street where he saw his father, and darting behind one car was not seen by John Gathing in the next car. He was hit by the bumpers of the Gathing car and seemed to have been thrown back on the radiator. The accident was unavoidable, and while he was skinned up considerably, was not seriously injured, according to the attending physician, and will be about as usual in a few days.

Arthur Lee, a nine pounder youngster took up his abode at the home of Elder and Mrs. A. L. Burnett, Monday.

Plans For T-P Northern Has Been Submitted

Austin, Oct. 14.—Plans for the Texas, Pacific and Northern call for the most elaborate rail construction program ever undertaken in the State, it was disclosed Tuesday when the Texas Railroad Commission received from George McGinty, secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission, a complete financial survey of the project. If the I. C. C. authorizes the program it will cost nearly $13,000,000, running from Big Spring to Vega in the Panhandle.

The Texas and Pacific, the record reveals, expects to construct two substantial bridges, one costing $270,000 over Palo Duro Canyon, all of steel, and another, concrete and steel, over Tierra Blanca Canyon, at an expense of $50,000. Concrete culverts will take $71,000. Highway underpasses are set down as costing $25,000; trestle bridges, $15,000; stations and offices buildings, $490,000; shops and engine houses, $250,000; roadway buildings, $350,000; water stations, $250,000. Eighty-five-pound rails will be laid, 44,600 tons of this type, while 3,750 tons of 56-pound track will be laid.

McGinty said that about 15 applications for intervention have been granted, most of them in behalf of the new extension, these including the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, and Dallas Chamber of Commerce. Four railroad systems have been allowed right to intervene in protest, including the Denver Lines, Rock Island, Santa Fe and Frisco.

Washington, Oct. 15.—The Texas & Pacific filed an application with the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to acquire the Texas & Pacific Northern, its projected line in West Texas for a distance of 333 miles by purchase of its $350,000 capital stock for that amount in cash. Another application was filed by the Texas & Pacific Northern for authority to issue the capital stock for the indicated sale.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Services last Lord's Day was well attended and interest was good. We want to endorse the movement to trade at home, and also to encourage loyalty tour home churches. The old fashion Bible study Wednesday is still going good, but we still have room for a larger attendance. Special sermon next Sunday night, subject: "The Great Day Is Coming And Who Shall Be Able To Stand." Come with us and we will do these good.

No one knows of any special privileges he enjoys except at home.

All Over the Dial

Interesting Broadcasts Over Local Station

Mr. Stephenson, owner of the Brownfield Broadcasting Station has been giving the radio owners of this section some very fine programs of late. Of course most of the programs have consisted of phonograph records, but his selections of these have been fine, and he has kept up to the last minute in new records. Of course he has these for sale, for that is partly the way he makes the station pay, but just the same, it saves lots of people the expense of owning both records and phonograph that cannot afford both. It also gives the radio owners chance to use them some in the day time when it is almost impossible to get distant stations.

Sunday noon, a splendid male quartette which was attending the singing convention here rendered some real good music over the station. Monday, two men, who are said to be here picking cotton rendered some real good instrumental music over the station, one playing the violin and the other a guitar. Just who they are, or where from was not announced, but it was announced that they would be on the air from time to time in the future. The Cotton Pickers was the name give the band.

Sunday at noon, Judge H. R. Winston gave one of the best Trade at Home addresses we have heard in some time if ever before. He has received numerous compliments on the address as well as one or two not so complimentary, we understand. But we heard one minister compliment the address from the pulpit Sunday night, as well as heard numerous favorable comments of it on the street since. If everybody sent off for what they need, we would soon have no town here, no market or anything, and we'd all just be a bunch of blowed up suckers. We'd have to send off then for a spool of thread or a box of pills and suffer with the bellyache while they were coming to us.

The people who care for church services are getting much out of the short services Sunday afternoons at five o'clock being put on by the minister and chorus of the Church of Christ. They are perhaps reaching many people who do not attend church. Mr. Stephenson is to be complimented for helping to put Brownfield on the map.

Man Seriously Injured With Ax Friday Night

A white man was brought in Friday night or Saturday morning from the Meadow section with an ugly wound on the side of the head. It was reported here that the wound was made while the man slept. A Mexican is held in jail here for questioning, but officers are not thoroughly convinced that the Mexican was the one that used the ax. It is alleged here that the white man had been having some domestic trouble in the home. The case will likely come up before the next grand jury.

It requires a good deal of courage to disbelieve in immortality.

Another Bakery Lo- cates in Brownfield

Another bakery is locating in this city this week. We have one good bakery, but perhaps two can be made to pay here. The Herald is not prepared to say, as it knows nothing about the business. People are at least eating more bread than ever before not cooked in the home oven, and the rate is growing. We at least hope that both can continue in business and make money, but two have been tried out several times to fail. But as we said above, people are continually eating more bakery products, and we know that our population is constantly growing.

The new bakery, which will be known as the Brownfield Bakery, will be located on west Main and run in connection with a cafe for the time being as no other building can be secured. It was moved here from Quitaque, by the owners, Messrs. B. T. Hawkins and Guy Cherry, who will not move here for the present. Mr. V. E. Mixon, who has been here some time in the cafe business, we understand will have charge of the bakery. We have been told that Mr. Mixon knows his baking, and will turn out a product worth investigating and buying.

The Herald welcomes this new industry to Brownfield, and wishes them all possible success.

Technicolor Production Of "Follow Thru"

THE GLORIOUS GOLFRETTE

Inspired by a pretty and famous woman athlete, produced by America's great stage generals, filled with catchy songs, pepped with screaming comedy, reveling in heart-tugging romance, "Follow Thru" swept Broadway off its feet, and for two years, kept Schwab and Mandel, its producers, hosts to an entertainment-hungry world.

But now, "Follow Thru" is on the screen, and, to all the charms of the sensational stage production, Paramount has added those two delightful screen favorites, Charles Rogers and Nancy Carroll.

"Follow Thru" is a musical slice of country club life, rippling with comedy situations, throbbing with a tingling love story, and it's all in Technicolor. Patrons who see it at the Rialto theatre, starting Tuesday, October 28 for 2 days, will see even more of a show than did the thousands who paid five and six dollars a seat to see it in New York.

CARLSBAD CAVERN WILL SOON HAVE $100,000 ELEVATOR

Sinking of the shaft, and the installation of an elevator at Carlsbad Caverns soon will be an accomplished improvement, according to information received from the office of the chief engineer of the National Park service at San Francisco who advises that advertisements have been issued for bids. The estimated cost of the proposed improvements is approximately $85,000 for the elevator and $15,000 for sinking the shaft.

Sidewalks Here Lined With Many Strangers

Take a march up and down the streets of Brownfield some afternoon when it is showering enough to keep people out of the fields, and that is quite frequently of late, and just try to see how many people you will recognize. Boy, there will be a lot of them that you can't remember seeing before. Some of them have a pleasant look. Some have a dry look as if all the pleasures of life had deserted them, but appear to have in time been prosperous people and good citizens. Some have hard faces and look as if they had as soon turn you a cat with a sand bag in a dark alley as to look at you. But they are strangers. What they are all doing or what their attentions are, we know not.

One day this week when a lot of people were in town on account of bad weather, we happened to be passing down the north side of the square and just kept a mental account of those we really know. There were several merchants out, as well as several farmers that we have known for some time. There were a few farmers we have a speaking acquaintance with who have been here just this year, but we noted that much more than half the people we met, or were standing on the sidewalk were absolutely strangers to us. They were here from some other section. Some perhaps have relatives here and they came to help them gather the crop. Others perhaps have drifted in expecting work in town or on some farm. Others perhaps are just passing through seeking green pastures elsewhere. Most of them looked like people who had seen better days somewhere. Literally hundreds are drifting in here from counties under the cap and all alike say they have come to the conclusion that this section is the safest farming section in west Texas, and they want to get a hold on some land or rent.

We hope that some of our land owners put in some new farms this year or build new homes and cut down the size of the farms, for some are so large they are being ruined by being half farmed.

METHODIST CHURCH

"At Evening Time There Shall Be Light" and "Forces for and Against the Christian," sermon topics. We are studying the Sunday School lessons a prayer meeting on Wednesday. Mrs. Longbrake conducted Wednesday's lesson. Let it rain, the the paragonage has been covered by Mr. Mangum for the Missionary Society and we are in the dry. We welcome the H. A. Stroup family to our fellowship. The League had a good business meeting last Sunday and elected Nettie Thompson President, Mary Kathryn Wilson first Department leader and Ruth Henson fourth Department leader. The leaguers there were chosen into two sides for a membership contest thru the month of November.

CITY SHOULD HAVE A FEDERATED CHARITY ASS'N

Merge Funds of Chamber of Commerce Exhausted. C. of C. Never Intended as Charity Organization. United Charities Only Hope For Relief.

There was no room in the manger for the child Christ. Neither is there any more funds in the Chamber of Commerce treasury for the poor. They are going to have to look elsewhere for help from this on, according to Secretary J. E. Shelton, of that organization. We have had the fair on us lately, and as the organization put up for that, and as it did not pay expenses, the local Chamber of Commerce finds that it will have to crimp down on charity cases at least for awhile until it can get out from under a lot of obligations to meet in worthy charity cases.

A good citizen of this city informed us last week that he and wife had called upon a woman, worse than a widow, as her husband is in the pen, that lives in this city, who is struggling hard to provide for herself and several small children, most of which are lots too small to work. This lady has not asked for charity, but is asking for work, but will accept whatever is offered her: in the way of food and clothing. Our informant says this lady is a proud woman, intelligent and he believes honest, but she must be helped. Already our informant says, that his wife learned from the lady that some of our "bloods" have already tried to take advantage of this woman's condition to approach her in an immoral way, which was resented to the fullest extent. Hurrah for her, and shame on her would be traducer.

There are perhaps many other like cases. We have no sympathy for strong, able bodied men who are by themselves begging. But if anyone has to care for the children, it falls on the women folks, and they should have some help. The county cannot help some cases unless they take a pauper's oath, and what self respecting person wants to do that? Therefore, it becomes the duty of the good people of the town, the churches, the civic clubs and other organizations to hand together in a federated organization. Get some good people who are not selfish and have humanity at heart to take charge of them. Let those who can give money—none need stint themselves if all who can, will help. Others can give clothing that has been outgrown or discarded by more fortunate families. True, most of the folks needing help are new comers here, but that should not make any difference. They are human and have a right to exist. We have known people in the years past to come here in pennury and turn out to be our very best and most progressive, ever ready to help the like of themselves in their lean years.

The Herald believes that some of the churches already have in storage somewhere clothing that was taken up last winter, that could be used to advantage to keep little naked hides warm through the winter. Then there must be something provided for the inner part. Another good way to help out is to look about you and see if there is not something that can be done on the place that will at least give temporary employment to some of these people. Although they may be poor, that is no reason they are not honest, and would give honest account of their work for the money received.

We know that we cannot keep a lot of people in luxury, but we can at least provide partly and let them help themselves for the rest. We love to talk charity; we love to read charity chapters from the Bible and proclaim from our pulpits that charity is what our churches stand for. Now is the time to quit talking religion and get down to earth and practice it out in our lives. We imagine this would suit Jesus better.

Local TCCA Has Hand- led Over 2000 Bales

That the cotton cooperative marketing movement is sweeping the State of Texas is indicated in deliveries already this year of more than 400,000 bales of cotton, according to Mr. K. E. McWilliams local representative of the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association.

Mr. McWilliams stated that he had just received word from the State Offices of Dallas that the 400,000 bale mark was passed with Monday's receipts, and at the rate deliveries continue to be made from all sections of the State, the half-million bale mark will be reached by November 1st. Mr. McWilliams also stated that similar reports of substantial progress were being received from other cotton cooperative marketing associations throughout the Cotton Belt.

"The bulk of deliveries are now being made to the Seasonal Pool," Mr. McWilliams said, "through which pooling plan the member receives a final return on the actual grade and staple of cotton delivered by him based on the season's average sale prices for each particular quality. In this manner, he does not receive either the season's high price or the season's low price, but rather the average price throughout the year."

The Association's 90 per cent initial advance on the market value of classified cotton continues, it was said. Deliveries to the channels of cooperative marketing this season are already 150,000 bales greater than at any time during the past ten years.

New members are coming in daily and progress of the TCCA is increasing rapidly.

The local Association office extends a hearty welcome to the entire citizenship of Terry, Yoakum and Gaines counties.

Local Scouts to Hold A Court of Honor

Everyone is invited to attend the Court of Honor which will probably be held at the Brownfield school Thursday night, October 30th. We are making an interesting program and are especially interested in getting the parents of all boys between the ages of eleven and fourteen years to stand together with their boys. All parents of scouts will want to see the progress their boys are making in scoutcraft.

More Office Room is Needed in Brownfield

As far as we are aware every office in every building is taken in this city, and there are demands for office room almost ever day. Men, professional men, come to the printing office every few days and beg us to agitate more office room in this city. People want to come here, but have no office room. Not only that, but there are no dwellings in which to move their families if they want to come here ever so bad. Every office is occupied. Every spare room is taken, and it has been the condition for the past several years.

What is the remedy? More office buildings must be erected by people who have the means or the lots. When the Holgate-Endersen building was erected, the proprietors talked of putting on another story. The same was true of the Bell building on the northwest corner of the square. One or both should have done this. However, it is not too late yet, as both buildings have been erected with foundation enough to carry from two to three stories.

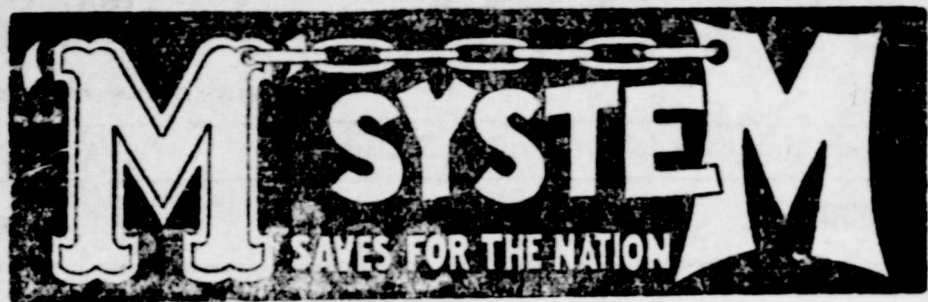

There is always a demand for dwellings, especially of the better class. To get the best renters, one has to provide modern homes for them. Lots of them don't care for a great number of room-four to six—but they do want modern conveniences. They want gas, electricity and want modern plumbing. You can always keep such cottages or duplex rented. Personally, the Herald believes that a small apartment house would pay here. Have you ever figured on one?

THIS FELLOW WAS WELL LOADED WITH WEAPONS

A man giving his name as Alexander Solimine, claiming to be a native of Italy, but more recently of New York, was picked up on the streets of Friona Monday by City Marshall A. B. Short. At the time of his arrest he had in his possession a .38 Colt's pistol and an eight-inch hunting knife, according to Short, who brought the well-armed foreigner to this city and lodged him in the Farmer county jail, where he is being held on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, according to county officials. In the meantime his weapons are in charge of Sheriff Martin—State Line Tribune.

OLD AND NEW WHEELS

It can be truthfully stated that American civilization came on wagon wheels. For centuries before, in other countries, explorers and pioneers had had made their ways into new lands and used the wheel as the means of moving their burdens. Today we take the wheel in its various forms as a matter of course—but upon it, every railroad train, every grain binder, every wagon depends. Yet only a relatively few years ago, observes the research department of the National Association of Farm Manufacturers, the inhabitants of North America knew nothing of wheels. They transported their belongings on the backs of horses, or on poles, dragged behind. Although the fact is not mentioned to any extent in history, it is true that when the North American Indian first saw carts and wagons carried on wheels he was intensely fascinated by these contraptions, new to him. Egyptians are given credit in the meager, recorded history of the wheel, for first developing the idea centuries before the Christian era. Following the development of sleds, the wheel principle was first used by placing rollers under the skids. Another development which embodied the wheel principle was used in construction of the pyramids. Large blocks of stone, with sharp corners, were bundled in small poles and tightly wrapped, so that they could be rolled. Ropes were then placed under the bundle and slaves could move much greater weights. From these beginnings came the idea that rollers could be made part of the sled. The first wheels were probably cylinder-like, but in time wooden or stone rollers were carved out to form an axle in the center, and from this step came individual wheels, crude as they may have been.

R. S. Heartsill of the Gomez community was in this week with Mr. J. M. Vickery and three husky sons who are here from Anderson county looking for a place to rent on shares. Mr. Vickery has rented his place down east and wants to try Terry county one year at least before making arrangements to sell down there and cast his lot here for good. He looks like a real farmer to us, and we advise some of our land lords to take him on.

Small Child Falls Into Well and Succumbs

An innocent child was the victim of one of the most deplorable accidents Wednesday which has ever cast its tragic shadow over this section.

Royce Olvin, the little twenty-one months old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Mauldin, while playing in the back yard fell in a bored well, lodging about forty feet below the surface, where in drilling the hole a few years ago a narrower bit had been used in finishing the well.

The well was curbed at the top with lumber for about two and one-half feet above the ground, except on one side where it only extended a distance of a few inches. It was not equipped with a windmill as is the rule in this part of the country and the water was obtained by drawing it up with a bucket. The chickens had begun to roost on the framing and shortly after sundown the father had forced them down. A few minutes later they again flew up on the timbers and the child attempted to scare them down. Stepping on the loose board that was used as a covering it tipped precipitating the child into the well feet downward.

By the aid of a flash light it could be seen below and the frantic parents called in the neighbors for assistance. As the alarm spread the crowd grew, many going out from town and by morning the country side had gathered with the hope that they might be able to do something to help save the life of the little sufferer. Strong men began digging a hole by the side of the well, which continued with frantic haste all through the night.

About daylight yesterday morning those working around the well succeeding in looping the child's wrists with ropes and it was pulled up almost twenty feet, where the body became fast. The cries of the babe could be heard but at this juncture it quit crying and by the light it could be seen that its head had dropped forward and fears were entertained that its neck had been broken.

By sinking an excavation down below the depth of the body, the child was taken out about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At first it was thought that life was not extinct, but on being examined by Dr. Lusk, who had been called in the night and who had been repeatedly on the scene, it was found that the neck had been broken and that the child had been dead for several hours.

The family came to this section about a month ago from Merkel and had decided to make their home in this country and were picking cotton in the locality where they lived.

The long suspense and grief brought about the collapse of the mother who is under the care of the physician. The family have the deepest sympathy of the entire citizenship. The funeral will be held here today and the burial will take place in the City Cemetery—Levelland Herald.

ON THE DOTTED LINE

Newspapers and billboards in many of our larger cities are carrying this warning in bold type: Read Before You Sign! The cost of putting the warning before the public is paid by business men of the various communities. And if people will only pause to consider its meaning it will prove to be one of the most valuable investments ever made in behalf of the general public.

We have had numerous instances in which it would have been worth a good deal to citizens around Brownfield if they had only stopped to read before they signed. A clear understanding is indispensable to the proper execution of any contract. The law merely requires that both parties be mentally responsible, that the contract itself be legal, and that both sides to it are in good faith. As a general thing, contracts are always drawn so they will stand in court once the names have been attached to it.

But before you sign anything, and especially when a stranger is asking you to sign, read every word carefully, even to the fine print. Often there is a "catch" in it, and that usually is concealed in the fine print. Many times it reads just the opposite to what you suppose it does. But once you have signed it, that ends it. It is binding then, regardless of how it reads. Your signature is important in a court of law and you should never use it without first considering what might be the consequences. There is but one safe way to treat any kind of document that needs your signature to make it valid—"Read Before You Sign."

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Perkins, accompanied by Jack Stricklin Jr., were visitors in Amherst and Sudan over the week end. Mrs. Perkins remained up there with her parents this week.

The Brownfield schools are now doing a fine work and are the pride of the entire citizenship.

One of the greatest drabbacks about dandelion wine is that when it is finished and ready for use it is still dandelion wine.

Business Men Give Car Feed to Rest Cottage

Mrs. Viola Dawson, financial agent of Rest Cottage, Pilot Point, Texas, which is maintained for wayward girls and their unnamed babies, was in this week, as she has been working in and out of this city for the past few weeks. She was accompanied by her husband and little son. It will be remembered that she delivered a very fine lecture at the school building before the PTA a week or so ago. Mrs. Dawson says she wants a space in the Herald next week to tell the finest lot of people on earth just how much she appreciates their help here.

She informed us that the business men of Brownfield and some of the farmers loaded out a solid car of feed here which was shipped Tuesday of this week to the home. As they have cows, work horses and hogs on the farm, this will come in mighty handy to tide them over from a short crop in Denton county this year. There are few communities in Texas the size of Brownfield that will crack down and aid a place like this that many have never seen and some have not heard of perhaps before.

Just a word about Rest Cottage. This place was established by people with sympathetic hearts and love for wayward humanity in order that expectant mothers out of wedlock might go there and find a home among those who could give them sympathy. There they are cared for and kept until they learn some useful trade and become women of character and can go back into society with clean hearts and clean minds. Their little offsprings are kept until a good christian home is found in which they are as full heirs to whatever the family may possess. These children grow as do other normal children and make as fine citizens as any. It is not so much the blood but the environments in which they are reared after all, that counts. The Santa Fe railway gave half rate on this feed to Sweetwater, and the T. & P. carried it on the Pilot Point free.

There was a great crowd here at the singing convention last Sunday, and some mighty fine singing. While they did not try to feed the Terry county people, all out of county people were taken care of in good style. Our big new high school auditorium failed to hold the crowd. A movement is under way to make Brownfield the permanent meeting place of the convention as it is centrally located and the new auditorium the largest in the county.

In running for the Senate the first essential is to lay aside a million or so for educational work in the primary.

Tremendous Power from the Wind

THE Aermotor Co. is now making a self-oiling windmill 20 feet in diameter. If you have a well 1000 feet deep, or if you want to raise a large quantity of water from a shallower well, this is the windmill you need. This new Auto-Oiled Aermotor weighs nearly 2 1/2 tons without the tower. It is a giant for power.

Whatever your water requirements may be there is an Auto-Oiled Aermotor of the right size for the work. They are made from 6 feet to 20 feet in diameter. Use the smaller sizes for the shallow wells and the larger ones for the deep wells or large quantities of water. Our tables, sent upon request, tell you just what each size will do.

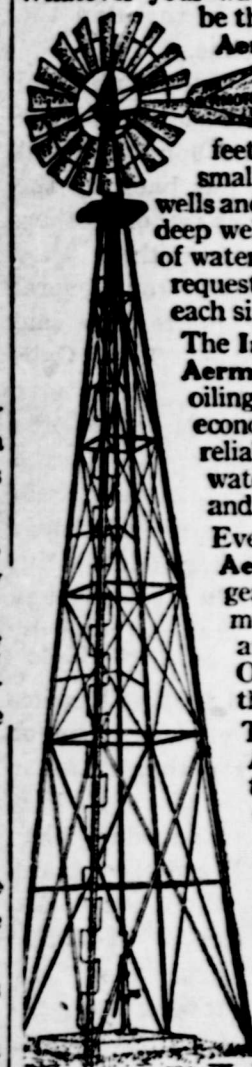

The Improved Auto-Oiled Aermotor, the genuine self-oiling windmill, is the most economical and the most reliable device for pumping water. It works every day and will last a lifetime.

Every size of Auto-Oiled Aermotor has double gears running in oil. All moving parts are fully and constantly oiled. One oiling a year is all that is required.

The Auto-Oiled Aermotor is made by the company which originated the steel windmill business. For full information write

O'Brien in Thrilling Western Movietone

Featured in 'Last of The Duanes' First of the Fox Great Outdoor Romances.

George O'Brien, athletic and handsome young screen actor has a new leading lady in "Last of the Duanes" the Fox Movietone soul stirring and pulse beating romance of the Southwest, which opens its engagement at the Rialto Theatre, for Friday and Saturday. She is Lucile Browne, petite and beautiful blond, recently recruited from the New York speaking stage.

The combination is a happy one, both O'Brien and Miss Browne being particularly well suited to their roles. In fact the entire cast is a carefully selected one with Myrna Loy and Walter McGrail portraying the other featured characters and James Bradbury, Jr., Lloyd Ingraham, Nat Pendleton, Frank Campeau, Blanche Frideric, James Mason and Williard Robertson in the supporting roles. Hundreds of extras, herds of cattle and many horses lend atmosphere to the production which was filmed and recorded in the wide open spaces of Arizona, famous for its beautiful and picturesque scenery.

The story was adapted from Zane Grey's widely read novel of the same name by Ernest Pascal and is the first of the Fox Movietone "Great Outdoor Romances." It deals with the romantic and exciting adventures of Buck Duane, handsome young rancher, who becomes an outlaw after he has killed his father's cowardly assassin. He later wins his pardon as well as the heart and hand of a beautiful girl, by aiding in the extermination of a daring and ruthless band of cattle rustlers and killers. It was directed by Alfred L. Werker prominent for his many "Westerns" for the late Fred Thomson and his Mary Pickford productions. His most recent pictures for Fox Movietone are "Blue Skies" and "Double Cross Roads."

There was two very proud fellows in Brownfield Wednesday when they had a wire from the Board of State Examiners at Austin to the effect they had passed all requirements, and were licensed to fill medical prescriptions. They were Ike Bailey and Glen Noble Webber. We understand that Geo. Bragg of Levelland was also notified he had passed.

Brownfield people had better dispositions before the auto came and they found that it is possible for a road to have more holes in it than there are holes in a bachelor's socks.

Found at 71 the Very Medicine He Required

Venerable Citizen Of San Antonio Tell What Konjola Did In His Stubborn Case.

MR. WILLIAM DAVIS
"It was nine years ago that I began having trouble with constipation, indigestion, bloating and poor appetite," said Mr. William Davis, 71, of 732 Kayton avenue, Dallas. "I took several kinds of medicine but nothing did me the good that Konjola did. I had to take laxatives daily and gas and indigestion followed practically every meal. At times the pain was so severe that I could scarcely bear it. My entire system was run down."

"I read so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. I noticed an improvement within three days and in three weeks I felt better than I had in years. I am telling all my friends about Konjola and expect to take it until I am free of all ailments."

Konjola has done as much for thousands when taken regularly over a six to eight week period. It is truly a master medicine for ailments of the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Brownfield, Texas, at the Alexander Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

New Doctor Decided To Cast Lot Here

Dr. M. E. Jacobson, of Kansas City, has decided to cast his lot with the people of this city, and become one of those who are making of this one of the finest spots in the southwest. He comes to us highly recommended as both a man and a practitioner. He has secured offices over the Palace Drug Store in the State Bank building.

Dr. Jacobson is a graduate of a reputable medical college, and after graduation, was submitted as an interne in one of the best hospitals in Kansas City. He successfully passed the rigid examination of the Texas State Medical Board, which recognizes only Class A Colleges, and his license is on record at our court house if any one wishes to examine them. The Herald welcomes this new comer to the coming city of the south Plains.

COURT REFORM IN THE OFFING

After years of discussing, in which Farm and Ranch has taken a prominent part, the outlook for constructive legislation in line with suggestions for "court reform" in Texas looks bright. We use the term "court reform" in its broadest sense, for the changes most desired have to do with procedure and the laws governing the selection of juries along with other changes over which the court (the judge) has little control.

At a recent bar association meeting, Judge C. A. Pippen made some suggestions which would materially speed up trials and reduce court costs. Among these suggestions we find that it is his opinion that there are now too many things which disqualify a juror and that too much red tape and too many technicalities make the selection of twelve men to try a case too tedious and too expensive. Judge Pippen is of the opinion that intelligent men should serve on juries and that the leading of newspaper accounts of a crime and that even the formation of an opinion should not disqualify a juror if he did not let it interfere with the passing of judgement on the evidence submitted. The Judge believes that jurors should be given the right to comment among themselves regarding the refusal of the defendant to take the stand in his own defense. He suggests that the law should provide certain questions which must be asked every venireman, and if he answers these questions satisfactorily, and the attorneys think he is not prejudiced, allow the man to sit on the jury.

In the opinion of Farm and Ranch, citizens would not be so wary of serving on juries under the reforms proposed.

Other measures of significant importance will be presented to the Texas Legislature in a court reform program next winter. Important among these is a law which will make it optional with the judge whether or not co-defendants have separate trials. A law that any person acquitted of crime on the plea of insanity, shall be sent immediately to an asylum will be submitted. Another important reform in our criminal laws has been suggested. A law which will remove the limitation on juries in assessing punishment in cases that have been sent back for a new trial. Under the present law, if a man has been convicted and given a sentence of less than five years, and the case is repealed and remanded, no punishment in excess of that previously assessed can be given him. The suggestions made will serve to speed up the trial of criminal cases, and if the members of the Legislature will give heed to public demand, they will be enacted into laws early in the session.—Farm and Ranch.

GOOD-BYE OLD DIME

(Robert Lee Observer)

There has been an old dime here in our little town for the last six months that everybody in town has owned, and it passed and repassed until it has purchased about a hundred dollars worth of goods right here in Robert Lee. Now there is something peculiar about this old dime, somebody punched a hole in it, and when one of us get it we say, "Well, there's my old dime come back."

Well, to make a long story short, everybody in town has owned the old dime, and the last time we saw it, we bought a dime's worth of ice with it, but some doggone rascal sent it off to a mail order house the other day and that's the last of our old dime.

Personally we'd rather get our picture in the papers by writing a testimonial for a patent medicine than for dropping 15,000 feet in a parachute.

Up in Newfoundland hailstones fell weighing 10 pounds. And after they busted all that was needed was liquor and mint.

WIFE SOLD AT A PROFIT

Few of the present generation, particularly in the North, know that before the Civil War a great many negroes in the South owned other negroes as slaves. Some interesting facts concerning the subject are given in Prof. Carter Goodwin Woodson's book, Free Negro Heads of Families."

He shows that as far back as 1830 one-seventh of the negroes in the country were free, some of them rich, owning large plantations and other valuable property. In 1857 one negro in South Carolina owned 200 slaves, in Louisiana four negroes owned respectively 91, 89, 50 and 47 slaves. Many others owned smaller numbers it being estimated that 40,444 free negroes owned nearly 100,000 slaves at one time.

The story is told of a Charleston negro who admired a female slave owned by a neighbor and bought her for a wife. Later on when she had failed to behave herself as he thought proper, he sold her at a profit of $50.

In making a speech recently, a banker used these phrases: "Advertise or fossilize. American ends in 'I Can.'" This is the year of cafeteria prosperity—help yourself. If a business man sits and waits for his ship to come in, it will be a receiver-ship.—Clarendon Leader.

Rent houses are badly in demand in Brownfield, and many people are kept away because they cannot get office room, and some of them represent some profession which we do not have at this time. The chamber of commerce can find a good work in interesting some financier to build more office room here.

The people of the United States are fast forgetting sectionalism. Just recently a Chicago youth who is attending a university in Virginia placed a wreath upon the tomb of the beloved General Robt. E. Lee on the occasion of his annual birthday. A portrait of Abraham Lincoln adorns the homes of many southern people these days.

New farmers are arriving here almost every day looking for places to rent, some few wanting to buy. These rent farmers for the most part look to be real dirt farmers, and seem to have made good where they came from, but have been up against the real thing the last few years. All say they believe Terry county to be the real safe all round farming section, and want to cast lot with us. A county agent from Young county was here this week, and said he made the trip here just to see real maize and corn one more time in his life. He saw it—plenty of it.

Dr. Paul W. Horn of the Texas Technological College has been appointed to revise and bring up to date data on Texas geographies in order to make them correct and more fittingly represent West Texas as it is today rather than half century ago. We understand that all geography publishers who furnish Texas, have agreed to make a new revision including new census figures. Information that Texas children were getting about their state in the old geographies was absolutely false at the present time, as well as misleading.

October 27th is Navy Day in the United States. We are so far away from salt water that we really have no occasion to remember the day, although we have several boys who sailed the briny deep during the 1917-18 disturbance. Navy Day is fittingly put on the annual birthday of the late President Roosevelt, as he was the man who really put the American Navy to the front. The big fleets will be scattered that day, and every available port will have some part of the fleet in that day to help in the celebration.

The United States is about the best regulated country on earth, and some of our lawmakers in order to catch the radical vote want more regulations. Even now, some want to regulate how much or how little a farmer may plant in his field. A little bunch of men in Washington can tell a railroad whether or not it can build a mile of new track or not. Another at Austin regulates their rates. Our railroads are regulated so well that it is a wonder that the people who own them would recognize them. The Texas & Pacific wants to reduce their passenger fare to two cents per mile to meet bus competition and to serve the people through the depression. But they had to ask the railroad commission, and it is very doubtful that the request is granted. The free old USA is the best bossed nation on earth. Also, the most criminal.

None of us are ever able to explain just why so much rain has come at gathering time here and hinder field operations, but it generally does. For one thing, it is generally dry thru the summer months and we get much less than we are entitled to receive, and this year finds west Texas at least three years behind with even an average rainfall, and the weatherman is trying to make up for lost time. Therefore if we get two or three times the amount we think we ought to have, we are merely receiving a surplus that should perhaps have fallen last year and the year before over west Texas. Portions of west Texas have not received a real deep season in three years, and it will take an abundant rainfall to even matters up. The Herald however, believes the whole of west Texas is in for a crop next year the equal of which we have not seen in many.

We do not believe that the trucks should be kicked off the highways. They are doing a great service for such towns as Tahoka. It would be little short of disaster to the business men of our town, for instance, if the trucks were given out of business. But there is a rising tide of resentment against truck operators throughout the state because of the disposition of so many of them to "hog" the entire road and drive cars into the ditch. The upshot of it is going to be that attempts will be made in the next legislature to put the trucks out of business. These efforts will probably not succeed but much stricter regulations governing their operation will probably be adopted and higher taxes imposed upon them. All of which is proper. Let 'em run but make 'em pay—and don't let 'em hog the highways.—Tahoka News.

The echo man knows a fellow in town that has sufficient of this world's goods for himself and family to live on for the remainder of their natural lives, and yet he is about to starve to death talking about hard times. He is always talking about what will become of him when he gets old and what will become of his loved ones after he is dead and gone. All the Echo man knows about this good friend is that he will never live to get old unless he will become so blue that he will literally starve to death, and his good family will have plenty to live on, to say nothing about that big life insurance policy that he has paid for. In fact, it begins to look to us that it would be a good thing for the old boy to turn up his toes some day and pass on. The Good Book says that when a man's work is ended he is called home. It won't be long now.—Hopkins Co. Echo.

Does advertising pay? No, says the man who sticks his ad in some time table or directory and expects people to walk around, look it up and by seeing his name break their necks to get to his store. The man who wants to get results out of advertising places his message in the home paper that goes to the homes of his prospective customers, and the readers appreciate the paper enough to pay to get it. A real concrete example as to whether newspaper advertising pays or not was shown in the strike of printers in New York City when the newspapers came out without any advertisements. During that time business in the department stores fell off 50 per cent. A wedding announcement stuck up on a fence or a billboard might be read by a few, but the same announcement in the local paper would be read by every subscriber. Don't put your light under a bushel, says the Scriptures. Put your advertising in newspapers that are printed for people to read.—Uvalde, Texas, Leader News.

MORE MILK FROM FEWER COWS

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture, sends out a warning against over-expansion of the dairy industry. This warning has gone out from time to time for a number of years, and producers have always met it by closer culling of their herds and by producing more milk from fewer cows. This reduces the cost of production and enables consumers to increase the amount of dairy products per capita. It is the best way to meet any threat of overproduction.

The dairy interests of the country have made larger proportional advances in economic production than any other branch of agriculture. "Better cows" has been the slogan here and continues to attract almost undivided attention. Capacity production has been secured in some few herds in the country, but here in the Southwest where the industry is new, we have a long way to go to attain even the average of the country. Nevertheless, our farmers and dairymen are improving rapidly in their methods of feeding and breeding. No one can consistently complain of the advance made during the past five years. Another five years will bring us pretty well up toward the country's average and no doubt, in many individual instances, we will have National famous animals.—Farm and Ranch.

Home is often a place where a Brownfield man goes after his day's work to take up his listening where he left off in the morning.

Self-Control Prominent

Attribute of Socrates

Socrates was a graduate of the school of hard knocks who learned to talk by talking and to preach what he had himself practiced.

His two main tenets were self-control and self-knowledge, and here the stories about him are quite consistent. When he made friends with people of means he could enjoy their luxuries. He outdrank Aristophanes at Agathon's banquet, but generally he preferred not to drink too much lest he might think too little. He believed in temperance, and when made symposiarch, or leader of the feast, he called for "little cups."

Good food he enjoyed, but he could endure the poor cooking of his wife. The same with clothes. During the campaign at Potidea, when others were clad in sheepskins and furs, he walked barefoot on the snow. But unlike many moral reformers Socrates did not insist that what he did was the only thing to do.

If the Greeks had smoked tobacco he would not have belonged to the Anti-Nicotine league. No, his doctrine of self-control seemed to be this: "I can do with, and I can do without, and I trust that you can do the same." Or, as he put the matter when present at the fair: "How many things there are which I do not need."—Woodbridge Riley in "Men and Morals."

Nothing to Distinguish

Murderer From Others

It has been discovered that only two per cent of the murderers in New York in the past fifteen years have been fat men, and that the most ghastly crimes are usually committed there by those who are devoid of vitamins. One of the most famous murderers in the world, Charles Peace, was described by a counsel who once defended him as "a small, spare man, clean-shaven, with a very prominent chin, which he could so distort as to make himself unrecognizable." The police description of him issued at the time was: "Thin and slightly built, 5ft. 4in. high, grey (nearly white) hair, beard, and whiskers." Crippen was spare of chest, narrow of shoulder, meager in height, and devoid of muscle, with protruding eyeballs which gave his face a meaningless stare. Scotland Yard was asked about the Cassius type, but no encouragement was given to the New York theory. "My experience is," said an official, "that murderers have few characteristics to distinguish them from the ordinary men you meet in the street, train, or omnibus."

Curling Requires Skill

The game of curling is played on a rink marked out on the ice, with large, smooth stones to which handles are fixed. The stones weigh from 30 to 45 pounds. There are usually four players on a side or team. Each player uses two stones, which he slides along the ice toward a mark 42 yards distant. The object is for a player to lay his stones closer to the mark than those of his opponents. After all players have "curled" or played, the side having stones nearest the mark scores a point for each stone so placed. In Canada and the United States iron curlers are sometimes used in place of stones.

Strand of Hemp

A South American woman living in Paris sued a furniture mover for $4,000 alleging that while transferring her household goods he lost a bit of a hangman's noose which she esteems as a bringer of good luck. The superstition is ancient. When Haman was hanged on the gallows he built for Mordecai it is likely that there was rivalry among Ahasuerus' people for a strand of the rope Queen Esther diverted from its original purpose. Gilderoy was hanged on a gallows tree so high that his kite was immortalized in a saying which endures to this day, and the hemp must have been in demand.—New York Sun.

Each in His Own Place

Let us be not pedants, dominating the whole place, but each one a member of an orchestra, content to bring all that we have and contribute it in music, while we ourselves for the moment keep our personality in shadow and subjection, that there may come to this world a greater harmony, a greater symmetry, a more perfect adjustment of conflicting loyalties, so that we may reach the highest ambition of all, which is, that we may have a name at which men and women, when they hear it, will smile gladly and be proud to claim it as the name of the Friend.—Rosslyn Mitchell.

Always Merry and Bright

A certain club had replaced its familiar black-coated servitors with young, and sometimes pretty, waitresses. One of the old die-hard members who had strongly opposed the idea dropped in to lunch one day. "How's the duck today?" he growled, glowering at the girl who came to serve him. "Oh, I'm all right," said the waitress, perkily. "How are you, sir?"—Brooklyn Eagle.

When

The family was expecting Uncle John for dinner Sunday. During the week father announced that Uncle John could not come because he had dislocated his shoulder. With quite a worried expression on his face Billy asked: "When does he expect to locate it?"

OH, YES!

"Hello, Perkins, where did you get that black eye?" "Oh, it was only a sweetheart's quarrel."

"Sweetheart's quarrel! Why, you girl didn't give you that, did she?" "No—it was her other sweetheart."

Hard are the ways of ease.

"I LOVE YOU"—IN 28 WAYS

There isn't a language under the sun that hasn't the phrase "I love you" or its equivalent. The same words in other languages than English follow (save them for possible future reference):

- Italian—"Vi amo."
- French—"Je t'aime."
- Greek—"Sas Agapao."
- Arabian—"Bahabbek."
- Polish—"Kocham cie."
- Dutch—"Ik Bemijn U."
- Egyptian—"N'achqeb."
- Yiddish—"Ich deb dir."
- Spanish—"Te Quiero."
- Rumanian—"Ve Inbec."
- Chinese—"Ono Ngai Ni."
- German—"Ich liebe dich."
- Hebrew—"Ani ohev osoch."
- Portuguese—"Eu Vos Amo."
- Russian—"Ja Vas Lioubliu."
- Danish—"Jeg holder af dem."
- Malay—"Dikasi Uleh Hamba."
- Hungarian—"En Oni Szeretem."
- Swedish—"Jag Tycker om eder."
- Armenian—"Yes Kee Seerem Kez."
- Turkish—"Ben Senee Sevseyroom."
- Annamite—"Toi Thu'o'ng be Lam."
- Hindu—"Main Tym Popijar Kar-yn."

- Hawaiian—"Nui Kouou Aloha No Oe."
- Persian—"Chouma ra Doust Dar-em."
- Cambodian—"Khnhom Nearth Sr-elanh."
- Japanese—"Watakusiwa Anata su-ki Masu."

WE VILL

"If you seem to be losing the uphill fight against nature," twinkled the professor of entomology in talking to a council of future farmers "take a tip from Chinese and see no weevil, hear no weevil, think no weevil."

"Didn't I tell you not to interrupt me when I had something important on hand?"

"How was I to know?" asked the differential secretary. "You didn't have your golf clothes on."

HAD HIM "BUFFALOED"

"Does yo' take dis woman for yo' lawfully wedded wife?" asked the colored parson, glancing at the diminutive, watery-eyed, bowlegged groom, who stood be side 210 pound of feminine assurance.

"Ah takes nothin'," gloomy responded the bridegroom. "Ah's bein' tooked!"

THEY FROM CONTENTED HOGS

Sign in a downtown butcher shop "Our hams are never cured—they were never sick!"—The Pathfinder.

The State Highway department has a truck up here which is said to have its third fine against it for law violations. The way this looks to the Herald, it would be cheaper in the long run to fix the truck so it would pass the most rigid inspection.

SEVENTEEN SPARE CASINGS

STOLEN MONDAY NIGHT

Tire thieves seem to have run riot here Monday night during the time the people were in the Sadler show, as some 17 reported missing. A deputy sheriff, informed us that he heard there was 21 missing. Anyway, lots of people were without tires when they left the show. But there were hundreds, perhaps thousands of cars here that night, not only from Terry county, but from Lubbock, Tahoka, Seagraves, Meadow, Ropes and other places, and so far as we know, there was no guard except the night watchman, and he cannot be everywhere.

A man ought to be employed on such nights to patrol the parking sections to watch for these thieves, as it is hard to catch them in their pestiferous work. One man was stopped and questioned, but he had carried a tire he had found to a garage to be returned to the owner if called for. As he had no other tires and the one he had would not fit his car, he was turned loose after further questioning.

GREAT OAKS

T. C. U. DEDICATES NEW

$350,000 ATHLETIC STADIUM

Fort Worth, October—One hundred and forty thousand tons of steel and 36,080 sacks of cement went into the construction of T. C. U.'s new $350,000 athletic stadium, dedicated Saturday, October, 11.

Three steam shovels moved 140,000 cubic yards of dirt in accomplishing the necessary excavation and grading, according to Ralph Carroll, superintendent of construction.

Four months from the time the first dirt was turned on the job, the stadium was dedicated with a football game. Mr. Carroll believes this to be a record for this type of work. During much of the time 300 men were employed on the project, working in three shifts covering the full 24 hours of the day.

The Herald want ads pay.

Waiter: "Zoup, sir? Zoup? Zoup?"

Guest: "I don't know what you're talking about."

Waiter: "You know what hash is? Well, zoup is looser."

Bricklayer (new on the job): "Guess I can't work here. There's no place to park my car."

Boss—"No, you won't do. We only hire bricklayers who have their own chuffers."

"Tommy, can you tell me one of the uses of cowhides?"

"Er, yes, sir. It keeps the cow together."

A man is expected to compliment his wife in company, and she is expected to chaff him.

FORD AUTOMOBILE 21 YEARS OLD STILL RUNNING

The oldest automobile in Crosby county and possibly on the South Plains, is housed here at the Brown Motor Company. The car, which is a 1909 model Ford, is the property of A. D. Caldwell, of Memphis, Texas, who is a brother of Sam Caldwell of this city. Sam is a rural carrier out of Crosbyton.

A. D. brought the car here and turned it over to Sam, as he had a good place to keep it. Sam invited the editor for a ride the other day and we took a spin around the city. The motor is in perfect running order and the car, at the present time, is in a state of good repair, and it is said that it has never had very little repairs, so far as known by the present owner.

When asked how much this car sold for back in 1909, Sam said about $1,100.00 or $1,200.00. It is about 18 inches higher off the ground than the present Ford cars, and outside the car by the driver's seat hangs the horn attached to curved brass tube. It has carbide lights and trimmed in brass, and also has the distinction of having a speedometer. It also has leather upholstery.

When it was suggested that this was perhaps one of the most durable cars that was ever manufactured, Sam said that if this be true, it was for the fact that it would only run from 35 to 40 miles an hour, as this is the limit of its speed and at that rate of speed a car would last a long time.

When asked how his brother came into possession of this ancient means of transportation, Sam said that this was more than he could find out, as his brother always said that he sent off tobacco tags, or something of that nature and got it.

Anyway, it is quite a curiosity, for an automobile that is 21 years old and still in running order, is something to excite the curiosity of the present day generation. More than that, when Sam starts off down the street in this 21-year old bus, he soon has it full and most of the town gazing at its performance.—Crosbyton Review.

KING'S MOUNTAIN

Home M. Price in Marshall News:

I listened over the radio yesterday to the 50th celebration of the battle of King's Mountain. The governors of North Carolina and South Carolina and Georgia, and the president of the United States were there. And the radio announcer said there were 75,000 other people there on that mountain side. I have a peculiar interest in that battle because there were three brothers from the hills of Eastern Tennessee who took their old long rifles and joined John Sevier on the march over the mountains. They were named Price and one of them was my great-grand-dad. If you don't believe it look up the list of those who fought at King's Mountain. And there is a young lady in Marshall—Miss Nellie Heartsill—who is a direct descendant of John Sevier.

There is one peculiar thing about this battle of King's Mountain, so far as I know, does not apply to any other battle. These old mountaineers from the Carolinas, Tennessee, and Virginia, when they got through with the job of putting the British under General Ferguson out of commission, disbanded and went back to their homes. They did this because the British had stirred up the Indians and the men went back to protect their homes.

But before leaving for home they absolutely destroyed Ferguson's army. Four hundred and fifty-six Red Coats were killed, Ferguson being one of the dead, and 648 taken prisoners. There wasn't a British soldier escaped. They were in the same fix as the Texas heroes at the Alamo—they had no messenger of defeat.

When I listened to those governors and Mr. Hoover telling of the heroism of those old pioneers, I felt proud that this forebear of mine was there. I suspect he was a man of no great amount of culture, he probably used a knife to shovel in the beans, and undoubtedly poured his coffee out in a "sassar." I am sure he never had his nails manicured nor wore a necktie, possibly never heard of Shakespeare, or knew (or cared) that Van Ludwig Beethoven composed Sonata Pathetique or the Oratorio of the Mount of Olives, but he knew how to shoot with his long deer rifle (it was a cap and ball gun) and he knew the Britishers were stirring up the Cherokee Indians to scalp his family, and so with 700 others they went after them Red Coats and changed the entire aspect of the war. Ferguson intended to cut the struggling colonies in twain by having his forces to occupy North Carolina, but the British Charge de Affairs set up a marker at Ferguson's grave over there on that mountain side yesterday. I'm proud of old great-grand-dad.

Middle-age is that period in a Brownfield man's life when he finds happiness in sitting on the front porch and watching some other member of the family mow the lawn.

The ideal husband is the Brownfield man who treats his wife like a new auto even after they're been married ten years.

HOG PRICES LOOKING UP

Farmers of the Southwest, especially those who were able to harvest a good feed crop, will be interested in a recent Government report in which the hog situation is analyzed. This report will be published in Farm and Ranch. However, it seems important enough to deserve editorial comment as well.

The feed shortage in many sections of the country, according to the report, will bring about a reduction in slaughter supplies of hogs during the next twelve months; also will put on the market lighter weights. The report goes on to predict that prices will rise sharply, but that the advance will be accompanied by increasing cost of feeds which, in a measure, will counteract the advantage of a better market for those who have not produced feedstuffs. Those who have the feedstuffs will be enabled to sell it through hogs at a fancy price.

Not only does the report call attention to the decreasing supply of slaughter hogs and their light weights, but also predicts that the pig crop will be reduced. Pork stocks in storage are 23 per cent smaller than at this time last year. This is equivalent to 1,600,000 hogs.—Farm and Ranch.

TIME TO WAKE UP

We read that in a neighboring state a short time ago a young man invited his mother for an auto ride and a little later suffered an accident in which she was badly injured. Her attorney promptly used the son for damages and the insurance company in which he had a policy covering personal injury to others had to settle. Of course it was a framup, yet it was legitimate in the eyes of the law. It doesn't make any difference who you invite into your car, or to whom you extend the hospitality of a ride—you are running the risk of a damage suit in case they are injured. The same thing applies to extending rides to hitch-hikers along the highways. The lowest hobo has a legal claim for damages against you if he should be hurt while riding with you, and there are lawyers in every community ready to take such a case and split the judgement with their client. Isn't it about time to wake up, your motorists around

'WARE OF LIVE WIRES

Two young men in the first bloom of manhood and a boy not yet attained to man's estate had their lives snuffed out over in Arkansas last Thursday when a radio aerial came into contact with an electric wire carrying 2,300 volts.

The safest way to put or take down a radio aerial is to take a position in the approximate middle of the street and watch the work done by an expert from a radio shop.

The tragic deaths of these young Arkansians might have been prevented by a little forethought. The first young man picked up the loose aerial after it had fallen across the power wire. The second young man, seeing the first in difficulty, grasped the wire and received the full force of the current. The third victim, excited by the fate of the other two, also grasped the wire and was killed. A young woman seems to have been the only one to use ordinary care. She picked up a stick and with it knocked the wire loose from the victims' hands.

A high-power electric light wire is the most innocent looking thing in the world. It looks as harmless and as lifeless as a wheat straw or a worn-out discarded automobile tire. But death lurks in its inert mass.

If you are called upon to play the rescue role, don't touch the victim's person. Grasp his clothing, or use a stick. Don't be deceived by the harmless appearance of the little black, silvery or copper wire. It biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

ENDORSEMENTS

Two endorsements of the many for the university land amendment are quite important. One of these is sanctioned by members of the board of regents of the university of Texas, owning 2,000,320 acres in 17 Texas counties; the other comes from the Association of County Judges and Commissioners of Texas.

For the regents of a school, whose property is affected, to endorse the amendment bespeaks the fairness, justice and equity combined in the proposal. For the county judges to do the same thing makes more apparent the logic of the amendment. They wouldn't want their counties to be hampered in their progress by having as much as 10 to 29 per cent of the acreage bearing none of the costs of public improvement. Tax discrimination in any county is a ball and chain on that county's progress, and Texans ought to be Democratic enough to right the injustice of the situation by adopting this amendment. It won't increase any county tax rates, but a pro-rata part on cheap land whose values will come from the state's general fund. The university burden thus will become equalized, and incentive to greater progress will be established in those counties who have uncomplainingly borne this burden for fifty years. They don't ask remuneration over the past, they want to commence with justice November 4

Looking over some old papers that were printed fifteen years ago, I find that many of the stores were advertising silk shirts, the price of which ranged from fifteen to fifty dollars. And this causes my mind to get busy with those wonderful scenes of the past when the lights glittered and gleamed for all on prosperity's golden shores. Many times have I seen young men drying wood or coal wearing silk shirts that cost upwards of ten bucks. I actually knew stores, during that wonderful reign of prosperity, to increase the price of suits of cloths in order to sell them. No one wanted a cheap suit, and many a merchant took a fifteen-dollar tag from a suit and replaced it with a twenty-five dollar tag. But let no person imagine that all was lovely and this old earth was a paradise when prosperity smiled so graciously on us all, for there was sore grief in every household. Many a housewife not accustomed to such drudgery had to go to the wash tub, the iron-board and the cook-stove, for Sookey and Dinah and Sarah absolutely refused to function in such capacities and men whose hands had known no corns were driven to the ax and the wood-pile. Being so engrossed with other duties that I had little time for the chores of the home, I approached a colored gentleman one day and timidly asked if he knew of a person whose services I might engage to split a little stove-wood. The sable-skinned gentleman promptly replied that he knew of no such person—that he had in fact spent the morning looking for some one to tackle the wood-pile at his home. Prosperity is to be hampered by a great thing, but it is much better for it to abide with only a few of us at a time. When it is universal, as

DR. HOLDEN WRITES NEW BOOK ON TEXAS FRONTIER

Lubbock, Texas, Oct.—"Alkali Trails" is the title of a new book by Dr. W. C. Holden, professor of history in Texas Technological College. The book deals with the social and economic movements of the Texas frontier from 1846 to 1900, the frontier life period in Texas.

Dr. Holden speaks authoritatively and with interest regarding early explorations, the buffalo hide and bone industry, the cattle kingdom, the advent of settlers, the coming of the railroad, agriculture, droughts, and the mineral craze. He also writes entertainingly of amusements, frontier journalism, the origin and growth of sectionalism, and the movement for the division of the state.

The work is based on original sources, including files of frontier newspapers, personal correspondence, diaries, ranch records, records of the War Department, records of the Adjutant General's office, the Governor's papers, and various archive materials. The book contains over thirty maps and charts.

ANCIENTS VALUED SANITARY PRACTICES

Development of sanitary water supply systems, available at a price within the reach of nearly all homes, has taken place recently. Yet, historians believe that the culture of ancient Carthage, center of world trade in 300 B. C., was made possible to a large extent through rather complete water sewage systems. An abundant supply of water encouraged liberal use of it by citizens, and is an explanation of comparative absence of plagues and pestilence from the city of Carthage.

Rome at its height was a center of development in sanitary practices. Lead was used in the piping and some of these pipes found today are capable of withstanding a test pressure of 250 pounds per square inch. Public fountains and baths required water to be piped more than fifty miles in some instances.

Post—Third oil test will soon be spudded on K. Stoker land.

it was in the days of which I write, many have to wear soiled linen, and there is a paucity of juicy steaks cooked to a delightful brown.—J. F. Lowery.

The World's Tired Feeling
 (Fort Worth Star-Telegram)

Roger W. Babson, able student of economic affairs and distinguished business diagnostician, makes the arresting declaration that what is the matter with the world and the world's business is that the people of the world are mentally and physically "tired out." Mr. Babson says that during the next few years the physicians can do more than the statisticians toward bringing back prosperity.

The reason why exhaustion, ascribed to the letdown from the severe mental and physical strain developed during the World War and continued since, is at the base of present business depression, is thus explained by Mr. Babson: The facts are that the world does not need to accumulate economic wealth; it already has that in great store. There is a financial surplus of almost everything—silver, sugar, coffee, rubber, cotton, wool, oil, wheat and other foodstuffs. There is a surplus wealth of steamships and railroad cars to transport these commodities, and a surplus of mills and factories to turn them into marketable goods. Money is loaning at 2 per cent, saving banks deposits are increasing and life insurance is being sold in an unprecedented volume. The world is over-stocked with raw materials and goods awaiting buyers. Statisticians say that the technical solution of this problem is "to increase the circulation of money"—that is, to get people to spend more instead of save more and hence actively use the ten billion dollars worth of savings which are now idle.

Now, says Mr. Babson, people buy 80 per cent of their purchases irrespective of how they feel, but the other 20 per cent—which 20 per cent really determines whether business is good or bad—depends on how they feel mentally and physically. Therefore, the best thing that industry can do toward speeding up business is to take active step to eliminate that tired feeling which is universal throughout the world today.

There is no doubt that men and women have let down. Captains of industry are tired out. Executives are tired out. Although they are going to business every day, being dependent on their salaries, many of them are merely going through the motions. They lack vigor, initiative and vision, the ability to think of new ideas and the ability to put them into effect. To a certain extent this also supplies to office help, wage workers and all others, because that tired feeling is contagious. The world is tired out physically.

Economists argue that it is foolish to speak of hard times in a Nation which has a surplus of all forms of wealth accumulation. Money has been driven into retirement from active work by sheer weariness of those who passes it, says Mr. Babson. It appears to be a sensible conclusion.

South Plains Has Good Exhibit at Dallas Fair

An agricultural exhibit, representing the fifteen South Plains counties, at the State Fair at Dallas, is one of the most complete in the entire building and is attracting much attention.

The exhibit is different from any other exhibit in that it has signs that explain and supplement the actual showing of products.

In addition to showing all kinds of crops grown on the South Plains, the exhibit has signs telling the average production of the crops, the use of the products, and other interesting data that is lacking in the regular exhibits.

The counties represented in the exhibits are as follows: Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, Dawson, and Borden. The exhibit has a map in the center of the background showing the State of Texas with the South Plains counties blocked off.

"The eyes of Texas are on the South Plains," a sign reads within the map. Other signs tell of pure shallow water in an inexhaustible supply, four million acres of fertile land awaiting the plow that can be purchased at from thirty to fifty dollars per acre.

A chart on one side shows the increase in land in cultivation from 544,000 acres in 1910 to 3,196,320 acres today. On the other side a chart tells of advantages for dairying and poultry raising, the yield of cotton and grain sorghums, the rainfall, climate, schools and other things of interest to a prospective new comer.

In the center of the exhibit a revolving wheel represented Lubbock's slogan, "The Hub of the Plains". This wheel carried the largest watermelon at the State Fair this year, in addition to grain sorghums, cotton, wheat, sudan and cane seeds, fruit and vegetables and miniature animals representing dairying, beef stock and hog raising and poultry raising.

Mention was given the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Technological College in the exhibit.

The exhibit was sent to Dallas by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. W. T. McKinley, manager of the Lubbock Poster Company assisted in putting the exhibit up and is in Dallas now looking after the display and telling fair crowds about Lubbock and the South Plains country.

SHOPPING INSTINCT

Young matron in whom the shopping instinct was strong, asked a German butcher the price of hamburger steak.

"Twenty-five cents a pound," he replied.

"But," said she, "the price at the corner store is only twelve cents."

"Well," asked Otto, "Vy you don't put it down there?"

"They haven't any," she replied.

"Ya, Ya," said the butcher, "Ven I don't have it I sell it for ten cents only."

W. C. Jones was in Saturday and took advantage of our bargain offer of the Herald and Farm News. He has sold his place south of town and now has a fine farm northeast of the city.

PROBLEMS OF EMPIRE

Texas in area and natural resources often has been called and rightly, an empire. It is the coming empire State, and within a generation will be admittedly a leading Commonwealth in the Union.

But this coming leadership demands that those who control the destiny of the State should have vision and foresight sufficient to plan in a large way a program as a guide for action in later years. Topsy "just grewed," but scientific growth is based on intelligent surveys of situations and wise judgements.

Texas has enormous natural wealth, but the wealth from the production of it enriches outsiders; little remains within the State. It has much capital in its financial centers, but comparatively little of it is invested in Texas industries. The purchasing power of its almost six millions of population is huge in amount, but the goods purchased mostly come from outside the State.

Through ignorance the fertile lands of Texas are declining in fertility because of erosion and a one-crop system! Its magnificent forests have been shamelessly wasted and practically no attempts made to reforest cut-down areas suited only to timber. Texas is an empire of natural wealth, but its economic leaders accumulate wealth for themselves with small forethought for the future generations of Texans.

The best wealth of Texas consists of the energy and brain capacity of its people. Among these is much dormant talent that should have opportunity for expression in action. But more than half the population are so poor that their standards of living are necessary low. In consequence, their children are worked prematurely, and, obtaining merely the rudiments of education, they become stunted in body and mind—the greatest waste of a wasteful State.

What Texas needs is a definite program set for the younger generation to accomplish in the next twenty five years. The resources of Texas should enrich Texas and Texans. Its farming population should own their lands, not be tenants in a condition quite like serfdom. Its empty forest lands should be reforested and exempted from taxation for the period of growth. Small industries should be established in every village and town of the State to supply work and to put on sale Texan-made goods. "Made in Texas" should be a guaranty of excellence in material and manufacture. Above all, the younger generation should be free to acquire a generous education, combined with a training for vocations on the farm and in the future industries of Texas.

Texas needs local Chambers of Commerce, civic improvement societies and city planning. It needs a new Constitution, a reorganized government, wise legislators who can think in terms of an empire State. It should place obligations on its professions to give to its people health, good laws, spiritual insight. It should aim to develop that broad intelligence that appreciates the value of the artistic in connection with vigorous applications of the many varieties of science to the problems of the State.

Talk Texas, think Texas, help make Texas famous for its comfortable homes and its wide-awake intelligent citizens.—Dallas News.

We see a good deal in the Knoxville (Iowa) Express about Dudley Reid, Dudley used to run a paper in Missouri. He left the state soon after the great 1901 drought. There was a reason. It was because the people could not put up with short crops and Dudley's poetry at one and the same time. The revolt took definite form when he put this one across:

The earth was parched and brown and bare.
I went and dug a well,
A hundred feet, and walled it up,
And then it rained like hell.

A GOOD PLACE TO TRADE BROWNFIELD, TEXAS

Jack Oakie, Jeanette MacDonald in the Paramount Picture "Let's Go Native." An original farce with music

Much Data to Be Collected on New Route

Many things that do not appear on the surface enter into the application of a railroad for permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to build a new line.

Particular interest is now being centered by a dozen or more towns on the South Plains in the proposed Texas and Pacific Northern line which would reach Lubbock as well as many other towns in this section.

Application First Step

The first step in the application was for the railroad, in this case the Texas and Pacific, to decide where it wanted to build its new line. Having made a survey of the South Plains to determine for officials that this was the best section to develop, the company set at work to get its preliminary plans worked out.

Starting with the incorporation of the Texas and Pacific Northern and the application for a charter from the state, the work was only just begun. Rail officials set a "zero" hour at which the campaign was to be given local publicity in each town and also visits made to chambers of commerce and "key" citizens to enlist their support.

Announcement of the plans came as a complete surprise as no hints had been given out as to possible plans of the T.-P. One or two men who knew something was in the wind, guessed but guessed in another direction.

Meetings Are Held

Since the first or preliminary steps have been taken, scores of meetings have been held with civic leaders to enlist their aid. All of this is but leading up to the biggest problem. The gathering of accurate information on this section.

Having asked the I. C. C. for a certificate of convenience and necessity, to build its subsidiary, the T.-P. is now at work preparing its side of the case.

The I. C. C., as soon as it received the application, set at work preparing a questionnaire to be sent the railroad, seeking information on which it may later base its decision. These questionnaires are generally made up of a number of questions, some with indeed three and four sub-questions to a main one.

Much Data Needed

Such information as the cost, method of financing, probable date of beginning and completion of the work, contour of the country, grades, bridges, etc., is sought. Also the commission would know of, in the opinion of the railroad, the territory to be touched is capable of developing revenue enough to sustain the proposed line.

Copies of the answers of the railroad are made and these are available to all intermenors. This includes railroads, cities and chambers of commerce, associations, towns, etc.

Gathers Information

Meantime the railroad gathers its information on probable revenue territorial development and the like and there submits it to the commission.

As soon as the date is set, intervenors begin their work. For example in the present application, the chambers of commerce of such towns as are touched by the proposed line, may intervene on behalf of the Texas and Pacific Northern. This permits Levelland, Lamesa, Brownfield, Dinmitt, Littlefield and other towns enter the picture.

In this particular case a general committee, composed of one man from each town on the proposed system, has been named. This committee is charged with the raising of a fund of approximately $300.00 with which to hire an expert to present the side to the commission. Fred N. Oliver, Washington, D. C., attorney, who is permitted to practice before the I. C. C., will handle the case for the committees.

This will not preclude the intervention of other towns or groups. The board of city development of Big Spring probably will intervene in the case on behalf of the railroad. Similar action will be taken doubtless by Lubbock and Amarillo.

Then the several groups in each town will begin to work preparing data on this territory. Witnesses also will be secured who can, of their own personal knowledge, back up the testimony in the case by oral statement. For example, when the local chamber of commerce, if and when it presents its side, has experts who can testify that the statements are true and correct, the brief will have more weight than the mere claim without supporting testimony.

One of the things to be shown the commission is the past growth of the South Plains. How many people now live here compared to 1920, 1910 and other years; how much cotton, wheat, corn, maize, kaffir, alfalfa and other crops were raised this year, last year, the year before, etc. What are the best crops; how much tonnage has been shipped out of these towns the past few years, the probable tonnage to be shipped in the next five or ten years; the amount of building materials, merchandise, etc., received and the probable amount to be received.

Other Information Coming

This and a lot more information on a dozen towns, as many counties and all, is prepared in compact for the consideration of the commission. For the most part it is best to have the same general form for each town or each county.

Then comes the setting of the date and the place of hearing. When this is done, the committees are notified and witnesses told when to appear etc.

An examiner is named by the I. C. C., to take testimony in the hearing. He is assigned a court reporter who takes down in shorthand the testimony, arguments, etc.

Hearing Not Formal

Hearings are much like court hearings except not so formal. Witnesses are sworn, of course, and give their statements the same as on a court witness stand.

Questions are more informal. There is very little objections, as a rule, to the way a witness is examined or cross examined. Opponents of the petition cross examine the same as in court.

Generally the examiner will ask questions if he is not clear on a line of testimony. Sometimes he will announce that he would like to know if other witnesses will testify to the same thing. This is done and their testimony taken as a group, for the purpose of shortening the hearing.

Opponents Not Idle

Opponents of an application are not idle in the mean time. They prepare their side, secure witnesses to support their claims that service at present is equal to the task of serving the community or whatever their claim is. They have their innings before the examiner and go through the whole thing the same as a defendant in court.

Two main questions are asked by the Interstate Commerce Commission of each applicant who would build a railroad. "Is your proposed line a convenience to the territory it would serve and is it a necessity for the public to have such a line built."

Much Evidence Given

Preponderance of evidence in support of these answers is the object of the petitioners and allies. Evidence that public necessity and convenience is not best served by the proposed line, is the defense of those railroads whose line and territory are invaded by the proposed line.

In the T.-P. hearing, which probably will be held in Lubbock, the Santa Fe, Rock Island and Fort Worth and Denver railroads will intervene in opposition to the proposed line.—Lubbock Avalanche.

HIS DEFINITION

Judge—"Now, John, tell us why you insulted this lady."
John—"Well, Your Honor, I picked this lady up in me cab and took her to where she wanted to go an' when she got out she gave me the exact change an' no more, an' I sez under me breath, 'You stingy ol' hen!' and she heard me."
Judge—"Perhaps, John you can tell us just what your idea of a lady is."
John—"Well, Y'r Honor, I picked up a lady the other day and took her to her destination an' she gave me a five dollar bill an' me being an honest man, I reaches fur me change, but she sez: 'Aw, t'hell with the change, go buy yourself a shot of gin.' Now, that's what I consider a lady."

FORRESTER ITEMS

Mr. J. A. Forrester returned from Lubbock Sunday.

Mr. Arthur Lee Rogers is still very sick with typhoid fever at this writing.

Mr. Truman Baldwin visited Mr. W. J. Baldwin and family Tuesday.

Several from this community attended the singing convention at Brownfield Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drury and family were Meadow visitors Sunday.

Mr. Joe Rogers is here visiting his brother, Mr. Arthur Lee Rogers.

The singing Sunday night was good. Several visitors were present.

The Epworth Leaguers are practicing hard on the program for Friday night, October 31. Every body come and they promise you a good time. The admission will be 10 and 15 cents. There will also be a carnival and the Missionary Society will serve eats and drinks.

Another thing that is easy to understand in these days when so little is hid, is why silk manufacturers have to pay much larger income taxes than the cotton planters.
