Cotton Pickers Arriving

Cotton pickers are coming in at a more rapid rate than for a while, but still not enough to anywhere nearly supply the demand. However we have gotten in touch with a Bureau of Labor man, who is now located at Lamesa, and he has promised to undertake to supply the deficiency and thinks that he will be able to do so. We asked him to direct them to come in over the Brownfield and Lamesa road. If farmers will keep a lookout along that line they may get their needed supply.

Trying To Avoid Duplication

At Lubbock, Tuesday, in a joint meeting of County and Home Demonstration Agents, Key Bankers and Chamber of Commerce Executives, which included officials of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The object of the meeting was to plan an agricultural program in such a manner as to avoid a duplication of effort that has heretofore been undertaken by the various agencies. County Agricultural Boards are to be formed, which are to be composed of farmers, key bankers and business men, in addition to community clubs that are to be created by majority selection out of each school district. The full plan will be made public as soon as it is received by the writer.

Wont Boss Farmers

It might be well to remark, that the Chamber of Commerce, at Brownfield, is going to stick to its policy of non-suggestion, so far as it applies to telling the farmers how to run their business, but we stand ready at all times, to lend our assistance in putting over any activity in which any considerable number of them believe to be desirable and if after the plan, which was adopted at Lubbock is made public and people in the county desire us to assist in putting it over, we will be very glad to cooperate.

Santa Fe's Objection

In its answer to the Texas and Pacific Northern Application to construct a line through this territory, which is pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Santa Fe, has as one of its main objections, that $13,000,000 is too much money for one railroad to spend on construction. It further says that it would not develop any new business but would cut existing revenues held into and none of them would make any money. The objection of the Denver, is along the same line. Now there wasn't any business for the Santa Fe when it first constructed its line across the Plains, but it soon developed. The Santa Fe also said that construction of the Denver into Lubbock, would not be profitable, but each one of them seems to be operating with pretty fair equipment and as the Texas & Pacific lies in different portion of the section, it would seem that it might be able to cause additional development and secure some business of its own creation. It does not seem reasonable that men, who are now, and who have heretofore been successful in railroad operation, would be likely to "slough" off $13,000,000 just for the fun of spending.

New Rail Line Rumored

And while we are on this railroad proposition, it is pretty strongly rumored that the Santa Fe, will soon make an application to construct a line from Seagrave by way of Hobbs to the Potash fields near Carlsbad and will connect with their own line at the latter city. This would be a pretty good thing for us and is one more time that we would line up with "Old John Santy."

Livestock Registration

Usually County Agents handle registration blanks for keeping records of registered livestock, but in view of the fact that we have no agent at this time and that there seems to be a demand for the services of some person to take care of this work, the writer is arranging for supplies and within the next few days hopes to be in a position to take care of all applications of this nature, through the office of the chamber of commerce. We have in fact secured

SCHOOL SUPT. AND THE WRITER VISIT RALLS FRI.

The Writer Sees Much Fine Country and Pretty Towns and Villages that Only Existed in Our Imagination. Ab Delivers the Goods, and Both Get Good Feed.

Supt. A. B. Sanders of the Brownfield schools had never told the Rotarians of Ralls all he had seen and heard while away at the International Rotary Convention at Vienna last summer. The reason is or was that when he returned he had to move to Brownfield at once, and just a report of the convention proper was all that he had given them. Therefore, he had an appointment with them last Friday to give them the low down on just what happened on the way over and return—at least as much as he would spare his immediate associates. Having to make the trip, and nobody else having the time to go with him, he invited the writer. Mrs. Sanders and little daughter went as far as Lubbock.

We are ashamed to admit the fact, but we saw three fine little cities beyond Lubbock that have existed and grown for some 20 years that we had never seen before, Idalou, Lorenzo and Ralls. The fact that we had never seen them was not from choice, but rather that we have been ground down here with a sentence of hard labor for the past 20 years and with meagre traveling funds. But it is no dishonor to be poor—now—we understand, and that is our reason for admitting the fact. But we saw on this trip as fine country and as fine towns and communities as one would wish to see. Then, too, the people are the salt of the earth, and after two years of drouth and one hailed out, can smile broader than most of our people after three good crops, just because they are not getting a big price for this one.

Arriving at Ralls near the noon hour, it was not long until a feed was ready for the Rotarians at their leading hotel, and we were fed into a dining room laden with good chuck. No indication of a depression was in evidence. But before sitting down they had a round of singing. And such singing! They fairly lifted the rafters. We have a good club in Brownfield, but we are sure they do not sing enough. Indeed, the Ralls bunch sang more last Friday than we have heard in our club in a year. And they'll make you smile if there is a smile in seven miles of you. They'll direct a smile verse at you if you look gloomy. They did us, but we were not conscious that we were looking like Gus. The matter with us was that the boys around our section had harpooned all the fried chicken, and we thought it was because chicken was scarce. Later we found that our thoughts were amiss, as the young ladies kept bringing it in from the kitchen just as long as A. B. Sanders and Murray Hargraves kept eating it. There was no scarcity of any kind of food. Those boys are just so full of life their hides won't hold all of it. After thanks offered by a local minister, the boys sat down and got busy—and how! After twenty minutes of rapid fire eating, most of us were through and the program started by welcoming the visitors. Ralls has 19 members and they are generally all there or go elsewhere to make up their time. Ab gave them a glowing account of his voyage across, including a few of the worst "boners," which greatly interested the Ralls boys. Indeed, Ab felt at home and really did the subject up in good style. The meeting was closed with some more good singing.

After lunch a round was made of the city, which is well built up around the principal streets and is well paved. The residence section as well as the business section show pride in their city, and that not a few of them are men of wealth and refinement. Of course we did not fail to go to the Banner office to see Dick Hyatt and his force and talk shop just a few minutes. Dick is kinder crippled up with rheumatism, but is getting better. Ralls people are proud of their paper and its fine editor.

Returning we had to stop in Lorenzo as we get the Tribune on exchange, and had a short call with the Westers. They have a nice town in a fine country and are getting out a newsy sheet. We also stopped awhile at Lubbock to visit sick friends at the hospital. While in the city we got to talk with some old friends, among which were our old friends Jim Dow and J. E. Vickers. Vickers is still for Ferguson for any office on earth. Jim isn't so fond of Mr. Hoover as he once was. Returning, we arrived in Brownfield about sundown after a very lovely day for which we wish to thank Ab Sanders.

Texas Pledges Cotton Crop Financial Help

Dallas, Oct. 24.—Texas tonight apparently had pledged to finance the holding of more than 2,000,000 bales of the 1931 cotton crop from the market until July 1, 1932.

J. W. Hoopes, president of the State Bankers' association, did not have completed figures, but tabulations made in the afternoon placed the state's total above 2,000,000 bales, previously estimated as Texas' quota of the 3,500,000 bales to be withheld from market by southern farmers.

Pledges from bankers continued to pour in today.

El Paso county bankers reported they would withhold 95,000 bales which placed it in the front rank.

Houston bankers pledged to finance the holding of 90,000 bales and Fort Worth, originally pledged 13,500 bales, raised its pledge to 21,000.

Lubbock county exceeded its quota by pledging to finance 10,000 bales.

Bell county pledged 5,000 bales and Cardwell county 2,500.

Literature and applications covering on Durocs, Poland Chinas and Hampshires and hope to have on other breeds of hogs and cattle within a short time.

Rate On Cotton Lower

Well we got another freight reduction on cotton to gulf ports, the rate being 72 cents per hundred as against 98 cents and makes a saving of $1.30 on each bale which is passed on to the grower. It means about $40,000.00 to the entire county on estimated crop.

"TRANSATLANTIC"

Latest Screen Effort Of Popular Star And Prominent Director; Lois Moran Feminine Lead; Hersholt, Halliday Nissen And Loy Also Featured

In one respect a motion picture star may be likened to a race horse. Both may be thoroughbreds, yet in the hands of a poor director the star is greatly handicapped just like the horse who is ridden by a second rate jockey.

That is why motion picture executives are constantly on the alert for star-director teams.

One of the most successful of these teams is Edmund Lowe and William K. Howard, the star and director of the new Fox drama, "Transatlantic," which opens Sunday at the Rialto Theatre, November 1st.

"Transatlantic" is the fourth picture they have made together and critics who have already seen the photoplay say it is by far their best.

Their first was "Good Intentions," which depicted Lowe in a novel conception of a big time racketeer. In addition to directing the picture, Howard also wrote the story.

Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran meet in "Transatlantic," a picture of intrigue, danger and romance beyond the twelve mile limit in the Fox drama.

Then came "Scotland Yard," in which both Lowe and Howard did some of the finest work of their careers, with Lowe portraying the man who came home from the war with a changed face and a changed personality.

Following this they made "Don't Bet On Women," with Lowe as the philandering young millionaire, in which Howard displayed his skill at handling subtle, sparkling farce.

In "Transatlantic," Lowe has the role of a notorious gambler of the Robin Hood type, who becomes strangely entangled in the lives of several of his fellow passengers aboard a de luxe ocean liner.

Howard has surrounded the star with an excellent cast which includes Lois Moran in the leading feminine role, Jean Hersholt, John Halliday, Greta Nissen, Myrna Loy, Earl Foxe, Jesse De Vorka and Rosalie Roy.

Being once a member of the Catholic faith, he seems to have a better insight of the workings of that church than most people, which the speaker without hesitation said was as much political as religious, and that they seemed to do better in countries that had not separated church and state, and gave reason for this. He also declared that the Rome church started the World War which had falsely been laid to the feet of Kaiser Bill.

Elder Dasaro is also a ripe Bible student, and his comparison of the portstant faith with catholic, were well drawn out and discussed, and both compared to what John saw on the Isle of Patmos. He received the congratulations of many after the sermon.

Clyde Gross says you can't tell him that they don't read the Herald ads. He runs an opening ad recently in which he offered gas considerably below the market price. He says they came for it from Ropes to Plains and from Needmore to Lou and Pride. Many of them told him they saw his ad in the Herald.

Prominent Man Closes Life Last Saturday

Andrew A. Copeland, 35 who has been a citizen of this section for the past 10 or 12 years, took his own life at an early hour last Saturday morning at the farm nine miles southeast of this city, by shooting himself in the head with a small pistol. On May 18th last, his brother, Morgan L. Copeland, suicided about the same way in a clothes closet at the Brownfield State Bank, of which he was cashier at that time. Andrew was also active vice-president at that time, but has not been connected with the bank in an official way since his brother took his life.

This last suicide, like the former, has left the people guessing as to the cause, but possibly no one will ever know, the cause has possibly been buried with them. It was found that the bank was in excellent shape after the death of Morgan, as was also the personal accounts of both men. So, if ill health was not the cause, no one will probably ever know, as neither left any statements for the public. At least outwardly, it could not have been financial worries.

However, Andrew was a World War veteran, and saw active service at the front, and possibly something happened to him at that time, like it did thousands of other boys, that was too horrible for him to ever speak of, and as far back as before the death of Morgan, it was believed that Andrew's mind was failing him. He has been carried to a number of hospitals for treatment, the last being at Indianopolis, Ind., and he seemed to have improved some, and was brought back recently. Andrew was an excellent fellow, although a bit harder to get acquainted with than his brother. He had hosts of close friends here who regret to see him climax his life in this way.

Deceased leaves both parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. N. Copeland, also a sister, Mrs. J. N. Campbell, of Pharr, Texas, as well as a host of friends to mourn his passing. All immediate relatives including Rev. and Mrs. Campbell and son, Paul, were here at the funeral.

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. J. M. Hale. Following a scripture reading and a short talk by the pastor, business associates and war buddies were called on to talk. This was done by Mr. W. H. Dallas, who was long associated with Andrew in the bank. This was a fine talk, and was followed by another from Homer Winston, who praised the war record of Andrew. Short talks were also made by Revs. H. D. Heath and J. B. Vinson and another whose name we failed to get. Hundreds of people attended the funeral.

Burial followed in the Brownfield cemetery in the Copeland burial plot.

Eli Perkins and wife went to Amherst over the week end to visit his mother who is just out of a sanitarium. Eli reports that his mother is not doing as well as he would like.

W. B. and R. E. Caffey of Seagraves were visitors in this city Tuesday.

ACREAGE CUT LAW VITAL TO SUCCESS OF HOLDING

Commissioner McDonald Advises All Farmers to Religiously Live Up to the Cotton Acreage Cut Law. This Law Was Enacted to Help Farmers. No One Else.

Austin, Texas, October 30.—Importance of the new state law restricting Texas cotton production to the plan of Texas bankers to finance the holding of a portion of the 1931 crop was emphasized in a statement today by J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture.

McDonald pointed out that the efforts of Texas bankers to assist farmers in gaining a living wage from the sale of their most important product would go for naught unless farmers cooperate to hold down 1932 acreage and production as the law provides.

"I have no doubt," McDonald said, "that farmers will obey the law. It is to their best advantage to do so. This comment simply is to point out the additional necessity for adherence to that law.

"The plan approved by southern bankers to help finance the crop contemplates a radical reduction next year. It presumes that farmers have learned they must cooperate, under the guidance of state laws, to hold their production reasonably within reach of demand.

"In our efforts to help the farmer through his difficulties, we should not lose sight of the fact that our present condition was brought about largely through continued over-production, to the point where the south was called upon to rid itself of the largest surplus in the cotton industry's history.

"We have not yet worked off that surplus. To add to it now, would be disastrous, and would render useless all efforts toward financing the crop. Their isn't enough money available to finance an ever-mounting surplus. That fact should be borne in mind by every farmer in the south when times comes for planting next year's cotton lands in compliance with the new 30 percent allowable cotton law."

PRESENTED WITH MANY KINDS OF EATS RECENTLY

Mrs. J. A. Forrester Rushes in With Vegetables; Mrs. Storey Thinks We Need Good Fruit. Ed Thompson Decides On Beef. All Make a Fine Balanced Ration.

Mrs. J. A. Forrester of the Forrester community came in last Friday afternoon after supplies and presented the Herald with a nice mess of turnips and turnip greens. These turnips were great big fellows of the globe variety, and free from path. In fact they were as sound as a dollar, and as good as we ever ate. Mrs. Forrester seemed to be in a big hurry and did not tell us how many turnips they had raised this year. Anyway they were good.

Mrs. Forrester is not the only friend the Herald has, either. Mrs. R. E. Storey, whose produce wagon sets on the east side of the square, brought us some nice apples and pears last week. Mrs. Storey always remembers us when she has an unusually nice lot of fruit, and she has it most of the time. We appreciate her thoughtfulness in always remembering that we love good fruit.

Then there is Ed Thompson, out on his farm four miles north of the city. There is no telling how much Ed Thompson has saved us in groceries this year by supplying our table with vegetables from his farm, and being playmates and school mates in years gone by, he just won't have anything for them. This week the wife made a raid out at the farm and brought in some green peas, watermelons and a nice supply of fresh beef.

As long as we have some good friends on the farm and in town, we'll keep the wolves away from the door.

Bryan Lane Hurt Badly Here Last Saturday

Bryan Lane, 20 son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Lane of this city, was badly wounded last Saturday morning early while about his duties as an employee of the Harrison-McSpadden gin. It seems that Bryan had upon some object to grease a shaft and had become too close to another shafting that caught his clothing, which pulled him to the shaft and began wrapping him around it before the machinery of the gin could be stopped.

After he was loosened from the shafting, which had practically pulled off all his clothing, it was found that his leg had been broken or crushed in several places, and at one or two of them the bone was protruding from his flesh. After the wound was temporarily dressed here, he was rushed to a sanitarium at Lubbock where he was put under anaesthetics and the bones of his leg were set and braced. Last reports were that he was resting as well as could be expected.

To make sure that he would have no lockjaw or blood poisoning, he was given serums for both, and physicians at the sanitarium believed that he would be out in about five weeks. They thought he would also be able to use his leg alright. It was his left leg.

Clyde Lewis D. G. Co. Put on a Big Sale

Right here in mid-fall season, right when you are ready to buy that fall and winter layout of dry goods, Clyde Lewis Dry Goods Co., are turning loose at greatly reduced prices a brand new stock at prices that are in every way in line with present cotton and corn prices. He has decided to forget about a profit and take his loss along with his friends and customers in Terry county.

One of the conditions Clyde made with the salesman who is helping him put the sale on, was that all advertising was to be done in Brownfield. Clyde says he knows that the Herald force will turn right around and spend the money with him or other Brownfield merchants, and every penny will be kept here. The Herald appreciates this attitude in Clyde, and we believe loyal Brownfield and Terry county people will also appreciate this and show their appreciation by their good patronage. The Herald is a Terry county institution that sticks up for Terry county through thick and thin. So does Clyde Lewis Dry Goods Co.

This big sale opens today with an array of bargains the like of which you seldom see. Be there early and get a choice pick.

The ginners report as of October 16th was a whopper, and had it not been for the fact that the government, banks of the south and other agencies were preparing to hold a lot of cotton off the market, old King cotton would have hit the bottom again.

Poppy Only Pleasant Memory of the War

I am sure many of us remember that horrible spring of 1918. Those who lived through it can never forget. Our newspapers told us the story of the terrible death and destruction which daily took tremendous toll as the armies staggered back and forth across Northern France in the great continuous battle which ended the war. Cable messages from France told us daily of a fresh list of American boys who had given their lives. Our soldiers, when they returned did not like to talk about it. It was too terrible, ghastly, and ugly. They wanted to forget. But there was one thing which the men who came back, did talk about—one thing of beauty and tenderness which they like to remember. This was the poppy.

Poppies grow wild in France and Belgium like daisies in our country. They continued to grow along the battle front, when almost every other form of life was blasted out by the continued pounding of the massed cannon of both armies. They grew over the graves of the dead, the only floral tribute which the gallant young men who laid down their lives for their country received.

The poppies still grow about the graves of the American boys, who are buried in the war cemeteries in France. Memories of the dead always bring thoughts of those men who were not killed in health. More than 30,000 of them are still spending long, tedious days in government hospitals, struggling to recover their health, or waiting for death to release them from suffering. For these men, too, the poppy has a meaning. They are the men who make the poppies. We will be happy to know that in purchasing a flower to honor the dead, we have contributed something to aid the disabled.

The Wm. Guyton Howard, Unit of Brownfield has planned to sell poppies on Armistice Day and the Saturday preceding Armistice Day. It's hoped the ladies will meet with a hearty response from the Public, and those who are able will help out in this way. Mrs. Jack Holt and her committee of industrious and attractive young women will be on the streets all day, with baskets of poppies, pinning the little flowers on all passersby.

Lamb County Farmer Takes His Own Life

After shooting away the left side of his face, W. T. Bishop, a farmer, residing one mile north of Fieldton, 14 miles east of Amherst, reloaded a shotgun and shot himself in the chest, falling dead with the weapon clutched in his hands, Sunday at noon.

Bishop, who was 75 years old, had been in ill health some time, and it is thought that this was the cause of his suicide. Funeral services were conducted at Littlefield Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

His wife and others in the house had gone to church and found the dead man when they returned at noon. Deceased leaves a son, W. T. Bishop of Haskell, besides his wife. They had been residing in the Fieldton community.—Amherst Argus.

CLYDE LEWIS DRY

Well, old winter is just around the corner, and maybe coming in with prosperity. The nights are getting chillier and chillier, and we are getting sleeper and sleeper—mornings.

There are two revivals going on in Brownfield at present. One at the Christian church and one at the tabernacle conducted by the church of God.

W. B. Collins, of the firm of Collins Dry Goods Co., says that he always gets his money's worth with ads in the Herald.

T. L. Murray was a visitor from Seagraves the first of the week.

J. K. and Earl Griffith, were here from Wellman on business the first part of the week.

The Three R's in Brownfield Schools

During the last several years there has been considerable change in the theory of education based on a changing need of the people. This has brought about many changes in the method teaching and manner of presentation. Teachers are now teaching children, whereas several decades ago they were teaching subjects without much concern for the benefit the child was to derive from same. The curriculum has been changed to marked degree in the past several years. But among all these changed views of education and its function in society there are some fundamental processes whose status in education have remained unchanged. When we speak of "fundamental processes" we could mean nothing more or less than Reading, Writing and Arithmetic. These processes have been a part of the regular curriculum as long as there has been any type of instruction in school. These processes will remain in the curriculum as long as we have one. It is true that there have been many changes in the method of teaching the "Three R's" however the results remain about the same.

Some people are ready to say the schools of today are not giving adequate training in the good old basic subjects, and that they are giving too much time to play. When one goes into the class room of the modern school he sees the pupil learning to do by doing. The play instinct in a child is so strong that when properly utilized it is very useful as a teaching agency. As a basic for us to form an idea as to the comparative amount of time given to these fundamental subjects in the modern school let us compare the amount of time given to reading and the number of books covered by the pupil per year. Each pupil in the first three grades has at least twenty reading lessons per day of twenty minutes each. In all the grammar school grades the pupils are taught reading, writing and arithmetic. The average pupil in the third grade today completes from three to five readers in a school year. During the good old days the pupil studied the same reader for a full year.

These facts are reviewed for the sole purpose of impressing on the folks that the schools are really just as fundamental from the standpoint of subjects taught as they ever were. The schools of today realize to the fullest extent that the pupil cannot get along in later life without a working knowledge of these subjects. The teachers in the Brownfield schools this year are bending every effort to stimulate interest in reading in particular. When this interest is stimulated the instruction in reading will be more effective.

What kind of reading habits do your children have. Do they read the daily paper, good magazines, good books etc., or do they just read what they have to? The school desires the cooperation of the parents in the formation of the best of reading habits. These habits formed early will go through life with the individual forming same. Let's provide our children things to read that will interest them and encourage them to read by setting a good example at home. In this manner you will do your child a distinct favor and aid the teacher in teaching him to read.

MESSAGE FROM EDISON

Thomas A. Edison left a message for the people of this country, though it was spoken some months before his death.

In a radio address last June, Mr. Edison said in his characteristically succinct style: "My message to you is, be courageous. I have lived a long time. I have seen history repeat itself again and again. I have seen many depressions and have seen the nation each time emerge from these stronger and more prosperous."

"Be as brave as your fathers were before you."

"Have faith."

"Go forward."

That is a ringing message to the people of the United States from a man who lived a long time, as he said and observed many things underneath the sun.—Abilene Morning News.

Hockley Co. Man Kills Self While Hunting

Aaron Thomason, a young twenty-six year old farmer living about nine miles east of town, died Tuesday evening about 6:30 o'clock from the effect of an accidental discharge of a .410 gauge shot gun.

Thomason had taken the gun and started out to kill rabbits and when only a few hundred yards from his home had to crawl through a wire fence. From the reports given it seems that in getting through the fence he stumbled and the gun caught in the wire, causing it to discharge and the load of small shot struck the man in the abdomen, penetrating the bowels.

Cotton pickers working in a nearby field heard the shot and saw the man fall, but according to statements made here by neighbors he got on his feet and walked to a nearby house and told that he was shot, and perhaps fatally, but asked that his wife be not told at that time.

A passing car brought the wounded man to the Updyke Gin, where his brother Earl was working, and together they brought him to town for emergency treatment. He was hurried to the Lubbock Sanitarium, but died while being undressed for the operating table.—Levelland Herald.

WAS FIRST IN TEXAS TO REMOVE APPENDIX

Abilene, Oct. 22.—Dr. L. W. Hollis, Sr., who performed the first recorded operation for appendicitis in Texas, died at his home here Thursday night. He was 70 years old and one of west Texas' most prominent practitioners.

In 1885 Dr. Hollis performed an operation on a young woman in Anson, Texas, removing an "abscess." Two years later medical authorities recognized it as the first operation for removal of the appendix.

Tarrant County leads Texas counties in the production of improved varieties of peans.

WELLMAN

Bro. Butler delivered an inspiring message Sunday night on the Second Death.

Our B. Y. P. U. however, wasn't so very good on account of so many not knowing their parts.

We are in hopes that our B. Y. P. U. and Sunday school will take on new interest during this quarter and start 1932 in fine spirit. Can we?

Johnson chapel was well represented at the Zone meeting at Wellman Sunday, being 70 percent present. The next monthly meeting will be held at Loop.

Mr. Garland Walser went east a few days ago and returned with him a wife. We wish them happiness in their new venture.

Mrs. Harold Hansen and children of near Stamford, spent last week in this community with relatives and friends, and seeing after business interests. We understand that she is thinking very seriously of moving back here on her farm. We welcome her back if she decides to make the move.

The shower and party given by Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Butler last Thursday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Edwards the new married couple, was attended by a good sized crowd. Many useful gifts were given to the bride and groom.

Mr. William Cox of Tatum, New Mexico spent the week end here with relatives and friends.

Mrs. McDaniel of Brownfield spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Jack Bryan.

We have prayer meeting on Wednesday night instead of every night as stated in last weeks items. Your presence is desired.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express publicly our heartfelt appreciation and thanks for the sympathy, tokens of affection, and practiced help of the host of our friends in our bereavement.

EDISON VIOLATED ALL SUCCESS RULES BUT TWO IN HIS CAREER

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 18.—Thomas A. Edison, inventor, violated almost every canon in the typical American success formula, except two—he was a poor boy and he worked hard.

Some of his violations of the code:

He quit school as soon as possible and was at the foot of the class as long as he remained.

He chewed and smoked tobacco.

He was careless of his personal appearance.

He was discharged frequently from various jobs.

He turned his inventive talent, in his early years, to getting out of work.

He scoffed at persons who insisted on getting the conventional eight hours' sleep a night.

Edison often neglected to buy new suits, even when his clothing was threadbare, but insisted on wearing silk nightgowns and carried India silk handkerchiefs a foot square.

LOSS ON BLOWN OUT COTTON TURNED TO PROFIT ON PEAS

Big Spring—Using a blow out spot in a cotton patch to make a profit of $171 was the achievement of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hilliard of Hiway community in Howard county, according to the report of Mrs. Louella Allgood, home agent. The spot had been cultivated like the rest of the patch until the middle of the summer when it was planted with 75 cents worth of peas. From these peas 400 No. 8 cans and 220 No. 2 cans were filled for themselves and others. Dried peas to the amount of 630 pounds have been harvested for winter use and sale. And in addition to that the family and many of the neighbors used the peas freely when they were green, while at least one unknown visitor harvested from the patch getting about enough to fill 40 No. 8 cans. The cost of the cans was $23.20; the value of the dried and canned peas amounts to $195.50 which leaves $171.65 as net gain on the work and use of the blow out.

Garza County leads all Texas counties in home canning this season.

Good Demand Seen For Fat Turkeys

The facts that the cold storage holdings of turkeys are small, that importations are being received and that quotations are appearing earlier than usual indicates that storage stocks of turkeys on hand have been sorted over and that the best trade is already in the market for fresh stocks of superior quality at high prices, says the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman concerning prospects of turkey prices.

A strong pre-holiday and early holiday demand can be anticipated. One of the best commercial observers writes: "With this storage situation existing, there is quite likely to be a demand for matured turkeys even before the Thanksgiving market opens up and finished turkeys will be in demand for this market. Inasmuch as conditions look favorable for at least fair prices for Thanksgiving and Christmas markets, producers are urged to finish out their flocks to get the highest market price."

Producers are urged to prepare their birds for the market immediately. The good old days when "turkeys were turkeys" and sold mostly to the neighbors through the "shooting match" are about over.

The markets in the cities demand fleshed birds and the better the bird the more it sells for per pound. Catch a few of the birds in the flock, weigh them, examine their breasts and legs for flesh. Range turkeys will probably show little flesh at this time, while pen-fed birds may be more plump and finished.

The breasts should be nearly three inches wide at market time, so the gangly, lean bird will need feed to fill out the frame. Every effort should be put forth to bring young toms up to a minimum of 16 pounds and over, dressed young hens to 11 pounds and over, by November 10 to 15—the early market season.—The Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Scott of Gomez had the misfortune to lose their baby daughter Wednesday morning about 7 o'clock. It died of pneumonia.

There is a tinge of frost in the air these mornings that makes one feel like reciting James Whitcomb Riley that "when the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock, man is feeling at his best."

A New Mexico paper says the minister called at one of the prominent amen corner member's home on Sunday afternoon, and his little boy answered the bell. "Pa ain't at home, he went over to the golf club," little Willie announced. The minister's brow darkened and Willie hastened to explain. "Oh, he ain't going to play any golf; not on Sunday. He just went over for a few highballs and play a little stud poker."

"Old Tack" of the Amarillo Daily News got himself in bad again recently by betting on the wrong team. Of course he was for the Amarillo Sandies, but Pampa was too much for them, and "Old Tack" had to pick 100 pounds of cotton in a field near McLean to pay his wager. Being reared in the north, he'd never pulled a boll before in his life, but he did it at the rate of 20 pounds per hour. The last we heard of the matter was that "Tack's" great "ambush" was to scatter this cotton all over a certain Pampa Drug store, and he might have gotten whipped for that.

That doggoned old gin report. Boy! wasn't it a whopper? We expected a big one but didn't expect a full crop report in 16 days. When we heard it, we thought big dogs would have to jump the fence and the little ones crawl through the cracks. But somewhere up the creek they have a hint that they are not going to get this crop for nothing. So the price staggered a little, weaved about a bit from curb to wall, fell down in the dust and mire, then got straightened and bobbed up again. Buyers, both private and co-op, now think the staple will go to 7c before long. Gosh, we hope so. We need to hear a few dollars jingle in our till.

Brownfield along with thousands of other cities and towns in the United States, could pay but a slight tribute to Thomas A. Edison last Wednesday night, and they did so by flooding the city with darkness for one minute. This is just a reminder of what we might have to put up with were it not for electric lights, given us by this grand old man now passed on. Gas lights did tolerably well for street lighting, but were but a little better than oil lamps and had to have almost as much care. Thomas A. Edison has been called a wizard by many, but his inventions that means so much to the human race were not perfected by waving a magic wand over them as is supposed to be done by a wizard. But his perfected inventions came by hard work, close application and hours of hard work. The world will never forget Mr. Edison.

Well, we did find someone to bowl out after all. The chamber of commerce handed us a letter this week from some guy down on the border of Texas and old Mexico who had received hunting concessions from the Mexican government, and wanted to form clubs, and of course wanted some free publicity about that. He will of course charge heavily for joining the club. On top of that he stood ready to insure cars, guns and equipment while the clubist was across the line, and of course you know it takes money to get insured. As a parting shot he wanted a paper FREE containing his FREE ad if the local paper used his stuff. So far as Herald is concerned, the name of this guy and his address will forever remain a mystery. No, all the space grafters are not dead.

We never know what a year will bring about. Days sometimes puts a different face on matters. Even hours may bring heartaches and tragedies. Friends that we knew a year ago, many of them, lay silently in their graves. A year ago they were hearty, well and apparently as happy as we. But today we cannot call their names and get a smiling response. They are beyond our reach. For this very reason we should be most careful not to injure anyone. Not to hurt the feelings of the least of our friends. Ugly words, hastily spoken to them can never be recalled should they pass suddenly beyond human reach. We have known many people in our lives that we never heard utter a disparaging remark about anyone. We should all emulate their example. If we cannot say something good of people, let's not say anything. Mean things said about people harm us more than those we aim them at. And for goodness sake let's say something good while our friends are with us.

Well, folks, we have no well defined hair raising editorials in mind this week that would either cause the people to revolt from their yoke of bandage, or yet make them shoulder arms for any cause. To be frank, our mind is more or less of a blank this week. At times we had in mind something of a panic starter or an insurrection aouser, but when we got down to the old Underwood, they disappeared in thin air. So we decided to just kill a little time and fill some space this week with some hot air, usually termed "the bull" in this neck of the woods. We thought about the county officers and their big salaries and decided to throw a chunk in their machinery and ask them to quit or cut wages, but then we thought about the matter and decided they were having as hard time meeting their grocery bills as the rest of us struggling but true blue democrats. Then we thought of the immense salary that our mayor draws down, our city marshal, etc., but then Joe has to practice law half a day, abstract in the afternoon and mayor at night to meet his obligations. Jean Brown don't never know day from night and Frosty Ellington night from day. Well, as there is nothing nor nobody to attack this week, we'll just drop this harrangue. Well, there are some that don't use the Herald columns, but that is their business and their hard luck.

"We're in the last days," declared a visitor at our office recently. "The prophecies of the Bible are being fulfilled, and the end ain't far off." He pointed to the unrest of the people, the hunger, low prices and declaring, "There is a rebellion in the hearts of the people against the system that we have to live under—we're sitting on a keg of powder, and it's going to blow up," and on and on. All he said might be true. We may be living in the last days, and the destruction of the world may be at hand. But, if so, what of it? There is nothing we can do about it. Our puny hands could not hold it back, nor our prayers gain another second of time. It is the end, it was so written in the beginning, and man has had nothing to do with bringing it about, nor can he have anything to do with keeping it from happening. According to the Bible when it comes it will come. However, we've suffered depressions before we have seen unrest before, and prophets in former years, and in ages long passed, have cried from the housetops that the end was at hand. So far it hasn't come. Perhaps it won't come for another million years or so, but regardless, it is all the same, for the end will bring death to the mortal body, and release the immortal spirit from its prison. That being the case, we can see nothing to worry about, for the result is the same—we have to die anyway, and our main concern is getting ourselves in a fit condition to die, and there are a lot of folks that never will be in that shape, and wouldn't be if they knew the end was at hand. But you couldn't convince them that the world was going to be destroyed, if you wanted too.—Tatum (N. M.) Currier.

Hunter News

Mr. and Mrs. Kerby from Key were up on business last week and visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Schroeder. Miss Kerby spent the week visiting here. She returned to Key Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Schroeder.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Schroeder entertained the young people of the community in their home Thursday evening. Miss Cora Kerby was the guest of honor. Many interesting games were played.

Prayer meeting was held at the Baptist church last Wednesday night. Mrs. Wilhite led. Her subject was "Friendship With Jesus."

Mr. Orvil Garrison received serious minor injuries Thursday night when the car on which he was riding collided with a truck.

The Study Class met at the church of Christ Friday evening. Rev. Mitchell preached here Sunday and Sunday evening.

The P. T. A. had an interesting meeting Friday evening.

Rev. Bolin preached at the Wellman Baptist church Saturday, filling Rev. Allen's appointment.

Rev. Allen filled his appointment Sunday and Sunday evening. Rev. Claude Little joined the church by letter Sunday night. He is an old member come back. Glad to have him with this church again.

We enjoyed having the Zone meeting with us Sunday afternoon. We were also glad to have many visitors with us Sunday. We did not get all the names.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins and family from Hunter visited in this community Sunday, attending all the services at the Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown Rainwater, attended the services here Sunday. Misses Billie Joe, Margret and Rose Schroeder, Pauline Lindley and Mary Edith Hudson attended the Hallowe'en party at Brownfield, Saturday. Miss Rasco entertained her music class.

We wish to make a correction on last weeks news. It should have been Mr. and Mrs. Tom Emmerson instead of Ellison.

Mr. Jesse Garrison started the construction of a cotton pickers house on his father, Mr. J. R. Garrison's farm Monday. John Garrison has one of the best farms in Terry county and he appreciates it for he is always improving it.

Mr. C. R. Burselson showed us a very interesting letter from Mrs. O. P. Gaymon, of Canal Winchester Ohio, in which she took great pains to thank he and family for the nice time they had here on their visit in September. Also an interesting description of their tour of the old southern states on their return home.

As people we are inclined to pat ourselves on the back and boast of the wonderful progress we have made in the arts and sciences, and while much of this is true the great body of humanity follow slowly scientific processes.

A recent occurrence calls to mind how quickly and easily we revert to old beliefs and cling tenaciously to exploded theories.

This was humorously illustrated a few days since in a neighboring city. A rather talented writer in one of the daily papers asked: "Have you ever heard of a Madstone? Did you ever see one? If you've never seen nor heard of a Madstone; then you are in for a big surprise as—was the other day when he heard of one for the first time in his 52 years (more or less) Can any of you folks help out? Yes, they could and did. It isn't probable that he has ceased hearing from them yet. Answers came in column at a time. All them that I read confirmed the supposed virtues of this relic of a superstitious age.

It is somewhat surprising that some forty years after Louis Pasteur made know his discoveries the causative agent of Rabbits and devised a remedy for its prevention, we should find any one to extol the supposed virtues of a Mad stone. Contrary to what most people believe rabbits in the human being is extremely rare. The disease is seen often in dogs, cats and wolves, and even when persons are bitten it is seldom indeed that hydrophobia results. The principle reason is perhaps that bites of the animals mentioned are thoroughly cleaned.

Tetanus or lock jaw which is the disease most often mistaken for rabbies, is very much more frequent and equally fatal. In a lifetime of active practice I have never seen a case of mad dog bite, nor witnessed the spasms of rabbies. The writer contributed to the Symposium on mad stone and his was the only discordant note in the series of interesting articles. I have no fear however that the use of mad-tones will supplant the Pasteur Treatment, for this trouble, even among those who were so loud in its praise.

Some fellow with the olfactories of Sinclair Lewis has discovered that Thomas Edison contributed to the building of a monument to Thomas Paine and also to some free thought societies. Well what the devil difference does it make if he did? It may have been in his young days when he was sowing his wild oats and he might repudiate the action now if it was called to his attention.

Aside from the gifts he may have made to free thought his gift to the Paine Monument was a noble deed. One does not have to agree with Paine's view of religion to feel that his work for the cause of liberty and humanity should receive recognition. Thomas Edison had the courage to die just as he had lived, and I am sure will enjoy all that a just and upright man could expect.

Aesculapias. George Turner, local agent for the Harvester Insurance Co., of Dallas, has won the loving cup for September and October, and has an excellent chance of keeping the cup permanently, as no other agent has had it but one month. H. School Students Self-Supporting

Of the 166 pupils enrolled in the Brownfield High School, there are fifteen who are either self supporting or partially so.

From figures in the superintendent office, it has been learned that of the 82 boys in High School, 10 are working outside of school hours paying either part or all of their expenses.

The most general types of work for the boys are working in filling stations, delivering papers, working in the bakery, picking cotton and working in the tailor shop.

The most general types of work done by all of the girls is house work for room and board and work in the cafes.

Some few students work before school begins in the morning.

Library Again Asks For Co-operation

In an early issue of the Cub Reporter, an appeal was made for the co-operation of students and patrons in helping to round up books belonging to the high school library. A hearty response on the part of a number of people enabled us to recover a score or more of books.

However, we know that there are others who could help the school in the same way. Several pupils who have been students in high school this year took out books before dropping out either permanently or temporarily, and have failed to turn them in. Of course a fine of two cents per day is assessed for every day the book is overdue; but don't let this keep you from sending these books back to school as we need to keep them in circulation. Below is a list of students of the present year who have books overdue; with it is the name of the book and

While we are on this subject we want to make another appeal to students and patrons of other years to help us recover some of the books that were never returned to the library. The are bound to be somewhere here in or around Brownfield and it seems a pity that they should lie around on somebodys closet shelves when we need them here at school. Please don't be offended if you see your name or the name of your son or daughter, ex-high-school student, on the list that follows, but look among the books at your house and see if there isn't some books that should be in the high school library, and send it back to school, please.

This list is from last year:

Ballard, Odell—The Virginian, Brock, Stephen—American Poetry, (two copies.) Brownfield, Lee—Roughing It; Brownfield, Lenore—Sarascinesca; Brownfield, Ray—The Man from Glengarry! Brown, Annie Lee—So Big; Brown, Billie—The Tempest, (two copies.) Brown, Billie—Roughing It; Brown, Edward—Tom Sawyer; Carpenter, Bob—Ivanhoe; Fowler, A. T.—One Act Plays, (Lewis.) Fowler, A. T.—Idylls of the King; Johnson, Edna Ruth—Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come; Huckabee, O. D. Wild Animals I Have Known; Lowe, Evelyn—Sesame and Lilies; Moore, Marie—Othello; Moore, Marjorie—Boots and Saddles; Miller, Terrell—The Sky Pilot; Neill, Dora Dean—One Act Plays, (Lewis.) Smith, Fayne—The Blazed Trail; Smith, Manard—The Virginian; Smith, Manard—Penrod; Perry, Geneva—The Blazed Trail; Proctor, Leora—The Doctor; Tankersley, Juanita—Idylls of the King; Wilson, Mary Kathryn—Through College on Nothing a Year.

Most of those whose names appear on the following list were in school last year but withdrew without turning in books. However some of them have not been in since 1928-29.

Bigham, Marion—Lydia of the Pines; Brown, Lurline—Last of the Mohicans; Burson, Dick—The Blazed Trail; Broughton, Flora—Three Centuries of American Prose and Poetry; Christman, Inez—Tom Sawyer; Diffey, Jack—David Livingston; Tandy, Leota—The Blazed Trail; Leach, Lemma—Freckles; Miller, Terrell—Red Pepper Burns; Perkins, Sam—Lady of the Lake; Parks, Stella Mae—To Have and to Hold; Parker, Wayland—Trail of the Lonesome Pine; Perkins, Sam—Julius Cessar; Rouden, Marie—Red Pepper Burns; Perkins, Sam—Trails of a Wayside Inn; Phillips, Lena—Last of the Mohicans; Sutton, Blanche—Three Centuries of American Prose and Poetry; Tolbert, Golda—As You Like It.

Ruth Adams—You should not say ain't.

Mary D. — Well if I should see a lot of ants crawling along, should I say, "There goes a lot of little isn't's."

A Dogs Life

A dog leads a life of perfect leisure compared with the life of a high school senior. We seniors live a life of toil and slavery to the whims of the teachers. We have to keep huge note books, work geometry problems, and carry on gruesome chemistry experiments. Also we have to write our hard earned themes over, if we make a single comma blunder.

A dog—how I envy him—has no debts to pay to society. He is a dog first, last, and all the time, and he is not worried by the desire for gaining knowledge. He does not bother his head off with learning, yet he has good times the same as we seniors do.

Truly the life of a senior is a dog life.

Spanish Entertains High School

The students of Brownfield High School were entertained with a very delightful chapel program Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The Spanish Club, sponsored by Miss Long were the entertainers. At the first of the program, Mabel Perry, Lois and Louise Goza, Dorothy McGlothan, Lynn Nelson, Robert Drennon, Morgan Nobles, Esther Ruth Smith, Margaret Murray, Marion Chisholm, Alice Fay Mangum and Wanna Smith sang a song entitled to "Mi Corona Estrellas Tendra" which in English means "Will there be any stars in my crown". Following this, Wanna Smith made a talk on Senior Bolivar, a noted Spaniard who did much to establish republics in the countries of South America. The last thing on the program was a talk by Margaret Murray on the blunders that she made in Old Mexico. This talk was illustrated by several members of the club.

Seniors hold business Meeting

The Seniors met Tuesday afternoon, October 20, in the English room, for a business meeting. The rainbow was selected for the class colors, and sweet pea for the class flower. A committee, composed of Miss Perkins, Mr. Lawlis, Cecil Burnett, Otis Spears and Dell B. Martin, was appointed to recommend a class motto. Another committee, A. Smoot, Marien Hill, Stephen Brock, Marjorie Moore, and John L. Cruce, was elected by the class to select the class ring.

A Wild Dream

Last night after reading a very interesting story about a man's intention to visit Mars, I went to bed with this subject on my mind. In about three minutes I was asleep and had a most thrilling dream which I will endeavor to tell you.

A certain noted scientist, whose name I didn't dream, had made a strange balloon—like structure which he thought was capable of making a trip to Mars. He was to pay me and another fellow an enormous sum if we would brave that adventure. We were both broke so we decided to go. With a wildly beating heart and shaking knees we boarded the structure and waited in silence for it to "take off." Suddenly, without any warning the thing left the earth at speed of one thousand miles per minute.

How long it took to make the trip I didn't remember, but it seemed to me forever before, with a slight bump, we landed on Mars.

With my heart in my mouth, I opened the door of the structure to look upon a queerly vegetated land which had never been looked upon by any man from the earth before. I called my self all kinds of names for ever venturing upon this trip, but now that I was here, I had to make the best of it.

My pal and I began to explore our surroundings with a vague hope of finding fresh water. After about thirty minutes we found a tiny stream of water with strange, enormous tracks all around it. All the tracks were exactly alike so we concluded that there was only one kind of animal inhabiting this land. We filled our canteens with water and started back to our wonderful "planet to planet" machine, when with a roar one of these huge animals, whose tracks we had seen at the spring, started after us. With a yell, four jumps and a few scratches we were aboard our machine.

This scare had caused me to forget which lever to pull to make the machine "take off." We were in desperate need of the scientist who had invented the machine. When my pal stumbled and pull against a lever which caused the machine to "take off" as before. I was a long time before we reached the earth, but finally the earth loomed up before us. The machine did not land as it did in Mars, but hit with a terrific crash. It must have hit my house for I raised up to look for my companion. He, as well as the machine, had disappeared and the house had not been damaged, at all. Then I realized that this frightful trip had been a dream.

Citizenship Contest

By Supt. A. B. Sanders

Growing out of the fact that one of the true functions of all schools is to teach citizenship, we have felt for some time that a contest in "Citizenship Training" would be very attractive to the schools of the state and at the same time would be a great stimulant to the training in citizenship.

The State, as such, is interested in getting a uniform type of citizenship training across to all the pupils of the state. This contest would tend to do this thing. The Interscholastic League and the State Department of Education could work together on the matter to the end that the contest would sponsor the items in citizenship training that the State considers worthy.

For some time a great many people have considered that character education and citizenship training should come through the medium of incidental learning. There is nothing unreasonable about some of the training being given in this manner but more direct path to the proper habits of citizenship practice if he first knew the qualities that make a good citizen?

Training could be given in these qualities to all the students through the regular citizenship training channels.

Just the type of test and the manner of administering same should be left to the Interscholastic League Officials but as a mere suggestion we might venture something in regard to the nature of same. It will be understood that this contest is a contest in the knowledge of citizenship qualities rather than a contest to determine the best citizen of each school. We will consider that the State Committee should decide to apply a test on the order of the new type examination; namely, true false, completion, multiple choice and matching questions. These questions to be of such a nature as to bring in all the qualities of "A good citizenship code" as appears in the Course of Study for Elementary Grades, 1927, State Department of Education. These tests could be arranged so as not to reveal only a knowledge of the qualities themselves but the applications as well.

This type of objective test would be easily administered as the questions and a key to the same could be sent out from the Interscholastic League office. This would make the grading uniform and efficient.

This contest would be of such a nature that each grammar school should be allowed to enter a team of junior boys and a team of junior girls. The size of the team could be determined in somewhat the same manner as is "Music Memory" or "Picture Memory." High schools should probably be permitted to enter a team in both Senior boys and girls. The size of the team determined by the number of pupils in the eighth and ninth grades.

Points could be awarded in the various championship sponsored in the county meet at the discretion of the League. This contest probably should be a county event only for some time at least.—Interscholastic League.

WRITING UP A WEDDING

Most newspaper men shrink from the task of writing up a wedding and prefer to pass that responsible duty to the female society editor. Yet there are exceptions. Occasionally an editor is found who can paint a word picture of nuptial events that any lady reporter might envy.

We just discovered one editor who appears to be hiding his great talents in an obscure Kansas town, while he ought to be holding down a great city job. Here is a sample of his literary ability which proves our point:

"It was a wonderful wedding. The girl was as sweet as any girl you ever lived; but modern. As she walked up the aisle on her fathers arm, her lips lightly tilted at the corners with a happy smile. Her filmy wedding gown and gassamer veil floated around her fair blond hair like a halo. She was as nearly an angel as girls get to be in this world. At the altar as she passed from her father, the man she always loved, to the other man to whom she must devote the rest of her life, her dainty slipper touched a potted lily resting on the floor and turned it over. Smiling again, she turned to the dear old pastor waiting at the chancel and aid, "That was a hell of a place to put a lily."

Seagraves Defeats Return of Dancing

"Thou shalt not dance, in Seagraves," sayeth the majority of citizens, at the election held Tuesday wherein the city council was taking an expression of the people relative to the repeal of the dance ordinance, prohibiting the holding of public dances within the corporate limits of the city. Final tabulations showed 84 against the repeal to only 35.

This repression of the people it is said, is not so much opposition to dancing, but to the manner in which public dances have been held here in the past. It is said that considerable trouble has resulted from them in the past.—Seagraves Signal.

Creators of New Music Go to Masters for Aid

WILLIAM SCOTTI

Dip Batons Into Colors Of Old Melody, Says Leader

New York City.—The American clubwoman who carries her season subscription to the opera around in her handbag so that she can display it at meetings of the Ladies Civic Uplift Club, but purses her lips and airily waves aside popular American music as beneath her cultural notice, unwittingly displays a real ignorance and lack of appreciation of that same "refined" music which she so publicly endorses.

This is the opinion of William Scotti, famous Italian musician and director of the orchestra at Lido Beach, Long Island, America's most exclusive playground. "Modern American music is a new art, and the musician-artist must, figuratively, dip his baton into the colors of the old masters when he tries to produce something worthwhile in this field," says the maestro. "Much that is worthwhile is being produced, as these club ladies could learn if they would only tip their noses down and listen with their ears as God intended they should."

Scotti, who has done much to interpret our modern music in accordance with his understanding of the old masters, advocates a grounding in the harmony and technique of the great men of music for the musicians who would create living music for our own time.

"I would catch the talented youngster at the earliest possible age and ship him abroad to become acquainted with the countries of great masters," he declares. "I would let him study in the same environment in which they received their inspiration. Then I would bring him home and let him see how America is the Melting Pot of all these countries. After that, he would be well prepared to create through the medium of this new American music."

"Many of our new dance tunes are perfect examples of American music. 'The Same Thing Over Again' a fox trot song sung in Ina Claire's R.K.O. picture, 'Rebound' has the new hit necessary for musical pictures and the perfect dance tempo. 'The student of classical music would do well to learn some like this which meet the demands made on American music.'

Any RATTLESNAKES In Your Home?

Rubber hose, or any other flexible connection, is as dangerous as Rattlesnakes. It is likely at any time to become leaky, or disconnected, with resultant injury to health and property.

Because of its lack of durability and the ease with which it may become leaky or disconnected, rubber hose, or other flexible material, should never be used for connecting gas stoves or other gas burning appliance.

A three-eighths inch iron pipe connection is the safest and most efficient connection for the ordinary room heater. Have your plumber replace rubber hose and other flexible gas connections in your home with iron pipe. DO IT NOW.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Everybody pulling together, with a common interest, for the Glory of God for a great day Sunday, November 1st. God has been good to us in giving Terry county and especially Brownfield community a great crop. God's earth, that we are privileged to occupy, has brought forth by hands-full, now let us be big enough and Christian enough to show to God's house to worship next Sunday, Nov. 1st.

9:45 A. M. Sunday school, C. K. Alewine, Gen. Supt. "Duh!" Pyeatt, Gen. Secretary. 10:50 A. M. A brief program. 11:00 A. M. Song service led by W. W. Price.

FRY HEADS B. Y. P. U.'s.

We are happy to announce to our young people that brother Fry has been elected general director of our B. Y. P. U.'s, and has accepted the position. We are urging our people to give Brother Fry the fullest and most sympathetic cooperation in his efforts to put over a real B. Y. P. U. program in our church.

We had 72 present last Sunday evening, let us make it 100 next Sunday. Don't forget that we have a B. Y. P. U. for each member of the family.

J. M. Hale, Pastor.

PRESBYTERIAN AID SOCIETY

The society met Monday afternoon with a business and social meeting. They had quite a number of questions to bring up since this was the first business meeting since their organization. Pledges were made by each member to the Foreign and National Mission Fund, to be sent in as a pledge from the Society as a whole. Since the Society is now being affiliated with the Presbyterian, the ladies are planning on attending the next Presbyterian meeting which is to be held at Lamesa.

Following the business meeting a short time was given to "thought games." Mrs. Shelton and Mrs. Wingerd were the wise and each received a prize. After our brains had been racked from thinking so hard, we were refreshed with pumpkin pecan pie and coffee, served by Mrs. Weir and Mrs. Barret.

G. M. GREEN TREASURER OF THE BAPTIST CHURCH

For the information and convenience of our people and friends, we are calling attention to the fact that Brother G. M. Green is the new treasurer of our church. Brother Green succeeded Brother J. L. Cruce who served the church faithfully and efficiently in this capacity for five years. We feel that we are remarkably fortunate to have a man like Brother Gladys Green to take up this responsible position, made vacant by the resignation of Brother J. L. Cruce. So if any of our people or friends are behind on your pledge to the Lord's work here or if you have any of the Lord's money, our new treasurer will be glad to receive it at the Alexander Drug Store.

Please remember that the bills of our church should be paid on the first of each month and we are depending upon each one of you to carry your part of the expense of your church. It is not right to allow the Lord's work to drag, nor is it right for some one else to have to carry your part of this expense. So for the Lord's sake, let us put "The Lord's Money (the whole Tith) in the Lord's treasury, on the Lord's Day for the Lord's Work."

Lynn Co. Youth Hit By Lightning Bolt

Tahoka News

Armel Sosebee, a youth 17 or 18 years of age, son of J. S. Sosebee, who resides on the R. L. Littlepage farm in the Midway community, was struck by lightning during the rain-storm Tuesday night and rendered unconscious for several hours. By Wednesday morning he had partially regained consciousness but was still in a somewhat dazed condition. He has shown considerable improvement since, however, and it is now believed that he will soon fully recover from the shock.

Armel was in or near the front door of the Sosebee residence when struck, it is thought. No one saw the accident, other members of the family being in other parts of the house at the time. There was a blinding flash of lightning and a deafening crash and a moment later one of Armel's sisters heard him groaning and discovered his prostrate body on the floor of the front room. Members of the family and then the neighbors were notified and after consulting a physician they labored with the patient several hours in efforts to resuscitate him. Their efforts proved to be successful and it is hoped that his injuries will be only temporary.

Mistress: Of course, you can have your job back, Liza, but why did you leave your husband? Married life unhappy? December married to May, perhaps?

WOODMAN CIRCLE MET

The Woodman Circle Grove No. 462 Brownfield, Texas, met in called session Saturday evening, October 24th.

The session was called in honor of Mrs. Etta Davidson, National Director and State Supervisor of Texas. A banquet was served at 7:30 to Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Garner, District manager of Snyder; Mrs. Lindbloom, District manager of Amarillo; Mrs. Baker and Miss Thomas of Post, Mrs. Dr. Bradford and Mrs. Mitchell of Seagraves and members of the Grove.

Immediately after the banquet the officers of the Grove were seated by the official drill team and the Grove was called to order and Grove honors given to Mrs. Davidson and other visitors. Mrs. Davidson was then asked to take the chair and preside during the meeting.

Very interesting talks were made by Mrs. Davidson and others, and initiation of candidates was demonstrated by the drill team. The drill team was in full uniform and was directed by Mrs. H. R. Winston, Chaplain. Members of the team are Misses Dora Dean Neill, Lucille Oliver, Veda Headstream, Julia Head, Mary Jo Neil, Irene Brown and Mrs. Grace Proctor and Mrs. Lura Brown.

They were highly complimented by the visitors and were invited by Mrs. Garner to demonstrate their work at the District Convention which is to be held in Lubbock in the near future.

Brownfield Cubs to Invade Lamesa Today

The Brownfield Cubs of the local High School will go into their first game that counts toward the Championship of this quadrant of District No. 2, Class B football at Lamesa Friday afternoon. The Cubs go into the game the "under dogs" so to speak. The strength of Lamesa has been shown in most of her games this year. She has only lost to Lubbock and Big Spring who are both Class A teams. Coach Hayhurst and the boys realize that they are to be right up against the real thing when they tackle Lamesa. For this reason they have been working hard and long this week on the attack they expect to use against the hardest foe of the season. There is a thing or two in favor of the Cubs. They have been resting now for two weeks looking forward to this game. Also the boys are in fairly good physical condition for the fray. Most all old injuries are healed to such an extent that each player will be able to play some at least.

The importance of the game from the standpoint of the Interscholastic Championship together with the fact the Lamesa is a strong rival would indicate that the game bids fair to be a battle royal for the victory. Those who have seen the boys work out will realize that with men like Graham and Huckabee at ends, Smith and Burnett at tackles, Thomas and Bryan at guards and Smoot at center we should have a line that will hold. That line with such huskies as Goza, Burnett, Neil, Huckabee and Spears in the backfield should lend plenty of drive on the offense. Scuddy, Blackstock, Moore, Bell, R. Brownfield and L. Brownfield will form the major part of the reserve strength of the team.

Lets get behind these boys, folks, and carry them on to a victory over Lamesa. There are only three teams in our quadrant of the District. They are Lamesa, Tahoka and Brownfield. Tahoka has forfeited to Lamesa and would likely forfeit to Brownfield if we can win our first League game. If we can win from Lamesa we will have a chance at the district championship. If we lose we will be through as far as the championship goes.

LEGION AUXILIARY HAS HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL

TROOP 45 GOES ON HIKE

On Tuesday afternoon of last week the boys of Troop 45 of the Boy Scouts of Brownfield went on a hike for the first time this year. About 4:30 o'clock the boys began to gather at the Scout Cabin laden with eats, cooking utensils and water. When all had arrived they journeyed out about 4 miles north of town where they hiked into a large lake where there was plenty of wood and began the program of activities.

The first thing that occupied their attention was a string burning contest that involved the ability to build a fire quickly and of the right size. The Antelope patrol won this contest by an easy margin. Having finished with this contest the Scoutmaster told the boys something of the secrets of hidden treasure in that vicinity. The boys were all ready for the treasure hunt to begin. Each and every scout was given a list of instructions that told him just how and where to go in order to find the treasure. When all had come to the end of their paths they gathered around the spot where most of them had finished and began to dig. Such zeal in work you have never seen as the boys put out. It wasn't long until Wilburn Hamm touched the treasure and yelled at the top of his voice that he had found same. When the treasure was taken up all the boys were given share of the kind.

Among those who enjoyed the outing were scouts Wilburn Hamm, T. I. Brown, Buster Brown, Theo Adams, Kyle Adams, John McLeod Jr., Richard Kendrick, Robert Drennon, Barton McPherson, Wayne Mullins, Bill Savage and Vernal Brothers. All these boys cooked their own supper of eggs, bacon and potatoes. Just as they were finishing supper a dark cloud began to pepper them with raindrops and sent them home.

Lions and Rotarians Receive Scout Charters

The Lions Club and the Rotary Club of Brownfield have just received a charter that permits them to sponsor and conduct a Boy Scout troop. This charter comes from the National Council and is signed by Herbert Hoover, and Calvin Coolidge as honorary officers and by Dan Beard, James E. West and Walter W. Head as active officials of the organization.

The local organizations have done some very excellent work with the boys through their Boys Work committees. This work is to continue through this year as one of the items of community service rendered by these organizations. The Lions Club initiated the move to build a Scout Cabin last year. The Rotary Clubs and many other citizens of the town aided in building the cabin that has served as a meeting place for both scout troops since its completion.

The Lions Club is sponsoring Troop 19. In this connection the local committeemen, H. F. Heath, Rex Headstream, J. M. Telford, Chester Gore and W. W. Price received their commissions to act in that capacity this year. These men have a great deal of responsibility in the scout work. They are to see that the troop is properly conducted and has all the support that it needs from every standpoint etc. The Scout Master, P. F. Lawlis, has done some good work with the troop and expects that Troop 19 shall be a live wire this year.

The Rotary Club Sponsors Troop

45, W. R. McDuffie, Homer Nelson and J. E. Hill serve this troop as committeemen. These men are all interested in scouting and are anxious that the troop will go forward with renewed interest this year. Any information on scouting desired by parents or boys will be gladly supplied by these men.

The Herald has just issued a booklet containing the course of study for the Maids and Matrons Club for the current year. They are studying Russia and Africa this term.

The better the day, the better the deed, so they say, so A. Clements handed us a dollar fifty Sunday for a continuation of his Herald. He became a new reader of the Farm News.

Mr. Carter of Flaydada is here the guest of his son, Ralph and family.

Judge J. Barret is in El Paso this week attending the County Judges convention.

GOODS C BROWNFIELD, TEXAS

It is the Living Who Suffer—Not the Dead

In Baltimore a woman is dying. She was a nurse in France during the war, and has been an invalid since. Tho no monuments will be erected to her, her life is a sacrifice to the drums of battle.

In San Diego a former college football star, mentally shocked at the scenes he had witnessed, brooding over the visions of comrades slain before his eyes, suddenly went raving crazy and is now a hopeless wreck in a room with barred windows.

In Memphis, health ruined, children in an orphanage, another war veteran occupies a hospital cot and laughs hysterically while he says, "You people do not want to know the truth about war. Nobody wants the truth. Your stomachs could not stand it. You want romance and glamor and lies."

Here is a little of the bitter fruit of our sowing hatred. The whirlwind is about our ears. The wind that saw our empty posturings has long since sped, taking with it ten million souls. The drums have ceased. We are left with the disaster that is their eternal echo.

The world has twenty million wounded ex-soldiers, pitiful wrecks some of them, beating out their ruined lives against hospital walls. The total economic waste of our gunplay is estimated at approximately one hundred billions of dollars.

And who can count the cost in human, suffering, in youth destroyed, in shattered dreams?

But do you, in your normal business of living, ever go into one of these places where a benign government takes its broken heroes? Seldom, I dare say, because it is not a pleasant experience.

Yet are not these places also shrines? To them every citizen should take an annual pilgrimage, and for every wreath placed upon a dead soldier's tomb a visit should be made to living victims, so that we might see what war does to the men it spares. Then might we say to our hearts:

"Regard this wreckage that Christians have wrought in the name of their Lord!"—Mrs. Walter Ferguson on "The Aftermath of War," published in her special column "One Woman's Opinion" in Washington (D. C.) Daily News.

DOGS' ARE DRIVING FARMERS TO WHEAT

Leashed to a sort of economic treadmill! That almost completely describes the position of wheat farmers this fall, according to the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman. Try as they may, they can hardly see their way clear to materially reduce their wheat acreage.

Everywhere in the wheat section one encounters the same proposition: What can we plant if we don't plant wheat? All our machinery is wheat growing machinery. Our soils are wheat soils. The dogs (taxes, interest and debts) are at our heels. We can't quit or they will get us. There is the rub. Wheat farmers are driven to do a thing that many of them know may contribute toward a still larger wheat surplus. But they are no longer independent. They must go on.

Oklahoma and Texas wheat farmers will plant nearly as many acres of wheat this fall as they planted last fall. All across the dry area of central Oklahoma from 25 to 80 percent of the wheat stubble is still unturned—waiting rain. There is talk here of 25 to 50 percent reduction. One wonders if this is serious talk. What would happen in this dry area if good rains should fall between the time this is written (October 7) and the last of the month. Planting dates in Oklahoma extend well into November in emergencies.

In western and northwestern Oklahoma and in north Texas one sees what happened after rains fell there around September 22—plows, disks, harrows, drills churning up the soil in every direction. Here, too, it is said, there was talk of reductions as long as the weather was dry. That talk has all disappeared now. Every one is in a rush.

Wheat has taken on a new significance in these parts. Three years ago it was a cash crop. Now it is a combination cash and feed crop. There are big wheat farmers who have not sold a bushel of wheat this year and who sold only a little last year. They will plant as much wheat this fall as ever and plan to feed every bushel of it.

UNEXPECTED EMERGENCY

Two Irishmen, ordered to conceal themselves in a cow's hide, Pat in the front legs and Mike behind, were pretending to graze along to get over the German lines. "Beat it back, Pat," hissed Mike suddenly, as he prodded his buddy in front. "What's the matter?" asked Pat. "Migosh, don't you see that German coming with a milk pail?"

Denton boasts one of Texas' largest artificial lakes, 16,000 acres, and costing five million dollars.

FALL MAY BE PAROLED

Albert B. Fall, serving a sentence of a year and a day for accepting a bribe, has applied for a parole. It can be issued on November 22, and it is pretty safe to predict that he will get it.

If the other parties to the crime were serving sentences in the penitentiary, it wouldn't be so raw, for the idea of punishing one till he is broke, and letting the other go scot free, doesn't appeal to us.

Fall isn't any more guilty than the man who proposed the crime.

The proceeding is a blot on American justice, and should be forgotten, if such a thing be possible.—Livingston (N. M.) Tribune.

NEW MEXICO MAY PUT BAN ON FREE WHEELING AUTOS

Auto owners and manufacturers bragging about superior qualities of their free wheeling automobiles over the gear shift model may pipe down when they hear that free wheeling is against the law in New Mexico.

Comptroller Lujan calls attention to the statute which requires automobiles in motion to be in gear at all times and prohibits coasting. He has not indicated yet that he will ban free wheeling autos, however.—Livingston (N. M.) Tribune.

NEEDED REFORMS REQUIRE FULL U. S. COOPERATION

The myth of American isolation from the affairs of Europe would seem to be rather effectively destroyed by the participation of Secretaries Mellon and Stimson in the meeting of statesmen in London, at which it is hoped measures can be agreed upon to save Germany.

Much will depend on what we do. It is not enough that the "present emergency" be met and that Germany be tided over to face another inevitable day of reckoning. The debt moratorium and the new credits which are under consideration are excellent beginnings, but in themselves they are not enough to restore world prosperity and bring permanent peace.

War debts and reparations must be wiped out or modified to the point where they cease to breed ill will. Tariffs must be reduced and other trade barriers removed. Most important of all, there must be drastic limitation of armaments. Eventually—and the sooner the better—there should be a re-examination of the treaty of Versailles and elimination of some of the injustices it imposes.

If all these essential reforms are to be accomplished there must be full cooperation of the United States, from a selfish viewpoint, if from no other.—Washington Daily News.

SPORT IN LOUISIANA

"Taking the oath" seems to be a favorite indoor pastime of Louisiana these days. No sooner had Lieutenant Governor Cyr taken the oath in an effort to oust Governor Long than a private citizen who said he needed a job likewise went before a notary and had himself sworn in as governor. Two men rushed to notaries and took the oath as lieutenant governor, claiming Cyr's action had left the office vacant.

But it develops that the Hon. Huey Long has ample precedent for holding on to the office of governor after being elected United States senator. Washington reports that a number of other governors, in times past, have done the same thing. Meantime the nation owes Louisiana a debt of gratitude for having furnished it with something to laugh about.—Ablene News.

Boy, it has seemed like old times at the Herald office this week. Lots of job work and having to work nights.

Well, old prosperity is returning they say. The dry goods men are now getting their share—and how. The grocerymen had it all to themselves for awhile.
