One of those "specialist" professors at the University of Texas don't think the dollar should have been cheapened. Of course he gets a good salary, paid in money—not cotton and corn—and he wants his dollars to buy all they possibly can.—Sure!

The Santa Fe railway company reports that the conditions for crops in Texas, have been very unfavorable generally this spring. Cold weather has made the crop much later than it should be at this time of year. The west half of the state, the report goes on to show, has been very dry, and planting operations hindered. This section has done little or no planting.

With the accomplishments of many and varied things for the benefit of his fellowmen already in the past, President Roosevelt and his advisers are now working on a plan to put in force a billion dollar public works, wherein thousands will get additional employment, which in turn may be the means of indirectly putting millions of other people to work. Two months have gone by since a new administration took the helm at Washington, and in that brief sixty days, more has been done to help those that really needed help than the whole previous administration accomplished in four years.

Well, we have had the taste of a few real old time sandstorms of late. The air doesn't hardly get clear of one sandstorm until another crowds it out by turning from the other direction. Some say they have been worse than common this year, and still others hold that they are coming later than common, and we are rather inclined to agree with the last thought, especially bad ones late. The real rank old cusses usually appear in March and not the later part of April or May. The writer thinks everyone we experience is worse than the preceding one, and yet we love old Terry and its late spring, summer and autumn climate. But we have never gotten to where we like to smell that rank, stifling odor that drifting sand puts out.

Those "embattled Iowa farmers stood," and while they did not fire any "shots heard around the world," they at least sorely tried the judicial dignity of a district judge by tying a rope around his neck and carrying him out in the country where mob violence was threatened his honor. But it seems the judge was the kind of a human not easily cowed, and he was brought back to town without any other harm that a big dent in his dignity.

As half or more than half the nations of the world use silver as their standard of money, the cheapening of that metal has cut the buying power of these nations half. Texas is still a raw material state. We have to find a market other than the United States for more than half of our cotton. Texas must have a foreign trade to be prosperous.

The Herald is of the opinion that the nation now has a man in the White House that does not have a boss, unless it is the Mrs. While he gladly accepts advice and suggestions from his cabinet and others, if in his opinion, they do not coincide with his plans of the "New Deal," they are at once firmly rejected. It is believed that our preceding administration had too much advice, all from the side of special interests.

Ohio Masonic officials hold that their members will be permitted to obtain license and sell the 3.2 beer so long as courts hold that the brew is non-intoxicating. A law of that, as well as some other fraternal orders prohibit their members from dealing in intoxicating liquors.

Thomas Explains Stand On Re-Districting

The Herald is glad to publish the following letter received Monday and personally addressed to the editor:

Some time ago I noticed an editorial in your paper pertaining to redistricting our state all the way from congressional districts down to representative districts, and I would like to state my views on this question.

When coming to Austin I had in mind one thing to do, and that was to do my best to help redistrict the state in a fair way for our section. We have so far been able to redistrict congressional districts, and my opinion is that it will be very satisfactory to the people of the state.

We also had a bill introduced to redistrict senatorial districts of the state. This bill was so poorly arranged, being drafted for a selfish motive where two or three might create a district with expectations of later on making the race for the senate, that it failed to meet the approval of either House.

The one thing that I was the most directly interested in was to redistrict for representative purposes, realizing that my district, the 119th, had a large area of our section of the state, and also has over 100,000 people living in the district. I begin working on this, but I soon learned that there was not a ghost of a chance to pass a bill on the basis of population at the present time, and the last time the state was redistricted for representative purposes, was on population basis, and according to the 1930 census, divided by 150 members of the legislature, would make approximately 37,000; therefore, we would be entitled to almost three in the 119th district. But when I begin to make this survey of the House in regard to the matter, I found that all the larger counties in east Texas and central Texas were opposed to redistricting on a population basis. Their contentions were that the large counties like Dallas, Bexar, Harris, Tarrant and others, would carry a greater number of representatives, and would be unfair to the rest of the districts; therefore, on that basis, would soon have full control of the entire state which you will readily agree, would not be for the best interest of the people at large.

On a new survey on a population basis, Harris county would have about 9 representatives; Dallas county 9; Bexar county 9; Tarrant county possibly 7, and with the hope of gaining some of the other counties, they could put over anything they wished, with all due respect to the representatives from the large cities. Invariably, at this time, they have selfish motives, always favoring the cities. So I found that it would be an impossibility, then we went to work and I had some part in arranging this Constitutional amendment, and will have a bill which will be before the people of the state in the next general election on Constitutional Amendments, that will not allow any county to have more than six representatives. If this bill is passed, then we could redistrict on a safe basis for the future welfare of the State of Texas.

I would be very glad if you would publish my views on this important question, realizing that the people of my district are interested in this one particular thing.

In conclusion, will say that we have had in the last few days some very highly contested bills coming before the House. Some I think will be best for the people of Texas, and some possibly not so good. I do not know just yet when this session will close, possibly on the day designated by law. If we continue longer than the 10th of May, we will do that on half pay that is allowed after the first 120 days.

Again thanking you for the courtesies shown me in your paper, and your willingness to co-operate with me, I remain,

Yours very sincerely, Jno. N. Thomas, Rep. 119th District

We have moved to Brownfield, lock, stock and barrel, family and all, to become a part and parcel of the business and social life. Raising Wild Deer Now in Place of Cattle

The inclosed picture is of deer released on a San Saba county ranch by the Game Department. These, the most sought-for game, are as prolific as the Mexican goat, and if given a chance will soon stock this almost depleted area. Many ranchmen are getting more for hunting rights than they could get for grazing privileges.

Sandstorms Worst in 30 Years Says Pioneer

Shamrock. — Sandstorms in the Panhandle have been worse this year than at any time since 1904 in the opinion of Sam W. Norwood, pioneer cattleman of this section.

No rain fell in this vicinity from July of 1903 until May 2, 1904, Norwood said. He returned to his ranch near here after a brief absence during April of 1904, and found cattlemen moving their herds to grass in other sections.

"The sand had drifted so badly you could ride a horse across any east and west fence in the country," Norwood said. He expressed the belief that the dust storms had been more numerous and had moved more dirt than any year since that time.

Tokio News

With the close of the Revival of the Church of the Nazarine Sunday night after a seventeen day session, the community of Tokio has undergone the greatest spiritual awakening in its history. The writer has only been in the community a little over a year, but the old timers say they can remember nothing so valuable and effective, speaking from a spiritual point of view. The services were under the leadership of Evangelist George Manross of Wichita Falls, Texas. Approximately forty converts are reported for the meeting, and four additions to the local Church of the Nazarine have been made. Notable among the addresses of Rev. Manross were, "What I Would Do If I Were The Devil," "Present Day Political and Social Conditions," and "A Tribute to Mothers." A distinctive fact concerning the revival was the number of young people of the community converted. Another valuable outcome of the revival is the increased interest in the Nazarine Young People's Society.

Miss Geneva Greer is spending a few days with her brother, Principal Milton Greer of the Tokio School.

The community was considerably saddened over the death of Miss Winnie Gene Proctor in an automobile-wagon collision, Monday night. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family through this column.

We understand that the Tokio school is scheduled to close on Friday, May 26, thus ending a seven months session.

A number of people in this section attended the singing convention at Wolforth, Sunday.

THE RULE OF REHOBOAM

My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke; my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

So spoke the young King Rehoboam when he took the throne of Israel upon the death of Solomon. It seems that the Rehoboams have taken charge of the House at Austin. Faced with the urgent need for less taxes, they pile on more. Hard times, say the Rehoboams of the House, are to be cured with harder taxes.

Anybody with the white-collar wages of $2,500 a year is to feel the blow. Any business prosperous enough to be able to meet its payroll will be staggered afresh with the tax gatherer's demands. Corporations do not vote. All they do is provide jobs for voters—and voters are so simple-minded that they will tax the possibility of their jobs in blissful ignorance that these jobs now hang by all to slender a thread. Thus do the Rehoboams of Austin reason.

The House was not willing to cut down its own salary. The House has refused to enact any of the major reorganizations in the interest of economy as recommended by the Graves committee. The House has been timorous in the presence of lobbying minorities seeking to maintain the old wasteful ways of government and of education. The call, therefore, is for these $10-a-day Horsemen of the depression to ride rough shod over the remnants of solvency in Texas with the scourge of Rehoboam.

Some of the members of the House deserve none of these strictures. Some of them have done their best for the beleaguered taxpayer. Some have a record beyond criticism. But the majority gives character to the group, and the majority has done little to meet a great emergency.—Dallas News.

We are all in the same boat with Christopher Columbus, says Owen D. Young. "He didn't know where he was going when he started. When he got there, he didn't know where he was, and when he got back, he didn't know where he had been.—Los Angeles Times.

Thrifty Woman Shows How to Live at Home

The sheriff's wife at Fort Stockton, Mrs. W. P. Rooney, has achieved her dream of a garden with the help of her son and the home demonstration agent. A sub-irrigation system 270 feet long of home-made concrete tile has been installed, and a wind break fence constructed out of old auto license plates. A pump operated by gasoline engine sends the water through a concrete trough into the sub-irrigation lines. From this garden of 50x70 feet Mrs. Rooney expects to supply her family of eight with all the fresh vegetables they can eat.

NATIONS SPEED PLANS FOR FAIR

Exhibits Assured From More Than 20 Countries.

Five months before the gates of Chicago's 1933 World's Fair will open on June 1 next, activities are being pushed in more than a score of foreign lands for participation in the exposition. Eighteen foreign governments already have officially signified their intention to show the world, at A Century of Progress, the high spots of their national progress in the last 100 years.

Listing them alphabetically, these nations are:

Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, China, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, France, Guatemala, Honduras, India (nine states), Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, Roumania, Turkey, Egypt and Morocco.

Of these, Belgium, China, Egypt, France, India, Japan and Morocco already have selected the sites for their exhibits.

Official or semi-official committees are operating to insure participation in the Fair in Great Britain, Austria, the Netherlands, and Yugo-Slavia. Similar activity is being pushed also in Algeria, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Mexico, Norway, Persia, Poland, Sweden, and Syria.

Japan Names Envoy to Fair

Japan has selected Count Aisuke Kabayama as its commissioner general to A Century of Progress, in charge of Japan's exhibit. Count Kabayama has visited America often, and has many friends in this country. His father was a leader in the modernization of the Japanese empire, serving in several cabinets. The present count succeeded to the title in 1922, and was soon elected to the House of Peers, where he became active in affairs concerning foreign policy and industrial development. He is identified with many important commercial and industrial interests in Japan. Count Kabayama for years has been vice president of the American-Japan society of Tokyo.

The Egypt of the Pharaohs will be pictured at the Fair if that country accepts the suggestions of the Egyptian minister to the United States, Sesostric Sidarouss Pasha. After visiting the exposition grounds, Mr. Sidarouss recommended the erection of a pavilion of Pharaohesque design, wherein will be housed some of Egypt's ancient treasures.

Ireland's Envoy Is Enthusiastic

The Irish Free State commissioned its consul-general at New York, W. J. E. Macaulay, to inspect the exposition grounds and discuss an exhibit by the Irish government.

"I am very much struck with the exposition and its plans," said Mr. Macaulay. "It offers a splendid opportunity for Ireland to show not only its modern industrial development, but also its national culture. I shall most enthusiastically recommend participation."

Rulers of nine Indian states are sponsoring India's exhibit. This will include a pavilion of Moghul architecture reminiscent of the world famous Taj Mahal, with an Indian restaurant and an Indian theater, standing on the lake front at Twenty-third street. Treasures of jewelry and antique and modern art will be displayed. Native khammas and waitresses in native costumes will serve the rice and curry of India, and classical Indian dancing and music will be demonstrated by dancing girls. Dr. Vernon B. Herost of Chicago is India's delegate to the exposition.

China to Send Many Visitors

China will send a large delegation half way round the world to see Chicago's 1933 World's Fair," according to Dr. H. H. Kung, special industrial envoy of China to the United States and European countries.

After inspecting the grounds and marveling at the work already accomplished, Doctor Kung added:

"I shall cable my government not to delay its work on the exhibit. China will be represented by a display that will compare well with those of other nations."

Supt. P. F. Lawlis, Coach Marlin Hayhurst and Sawyer Graham and Jim Neill, left Wed. for Austin where Sawyer and Jim will participate in State athletic events. Here's hoping the boys win.

An Indian Story for Boys and Girls By Carlyle Emery

Episode 26 Chapter 3
Red Goose had been given a brand new rifle by the Colonel stationed at St. Louis, but having promised to bring Little Beaver a present from the Pale Face Village, he announced that he would give the gun to Little Beaver when he got back home. The Colonel decided to reward him for his fine generosity. Now go on with the story.

"Captain," said the Colonel, with a merry twinkle in his eye. "See that Red Goose is given plenty of beads and tobacco for the other members of the Ojibwa tribe, too. Tell them that his unselfish generosity is the reason that we are sending them each a present."

"Red Goose thanks Pale Face chief for presents," said the Indian boy, simply, although his heart was full of happiness.

"Don't mention it, young man. It's just a small token of friendship for you and your tribe.

Just then there was a knock at the door and on being told to come in, Bear Cat entered and said: "Beg pardon, Captain, but the boat is loaded and ready to push off."

"Good! Thank you, Bear Cat." Then turning to the Colonel, Captain Roberts asked permission to start back at once. "It will be a much longer trip upstream," he said, "and they are badly in need of supplies at Fort Ridgley."

"Certainly, Captain! Goodbye and good luck," as the Colonel's reply; and so before long the soldiers were again on the Mississippi, going counter to the current that had helped them to make such good time coming down the river.

"Red Eagle, I think we will stop here for the night," suggested Captain Roberts, as darkness began to settle down on the little party homeward bound. "That shore over there looks fairly clear. Suppose we set up a tent or two and be comfortable?"

This suggestion did not please Red Eagle and he grunted: "Umph—no camp on shore tonight!"

"Why not?"

"Red Eagle saw bad signs of Indians on war path near here. Not safe."

"But that was on our way down the river some time ago."

"Sioux still here, maybe."

"Well, you know best, Red Eagle. If you say so, we will tie up to that stump and stay on board tonight."

Then calling to Bear Cat, the Captain said, "We're going to stay on board tonight, just for safety's sake. You had better arrange with the men to stand watch in case something happens."

"Anything wrong, Captain?"

"No, but Red Eagle saw signs of Indians on the war path when we passed here coming down river, and he thinks it would be better to stay on board tonight."

"Very good, sir."

Red Goose had been listening to the conversation and now he spoke up. "Red Goose like to stand watch. Maybe have chance to use new gun."

"All right, Red Goose—go ahead—but don't sit up all night. You have to have some sleep, you know."

So, as the night grew blacker and blacker, and only the sound of a screech owl could be heard from time to time, Red Goose sat down on a case of supplies, with his new gun across his knee, waiting and watching for any signs of danger.

IN MEMORY OF WINNIE GENE PROCTOR

Winnie Gene was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Proctor of Tokio, Texas. She was on her way to church in company with her two sisters, brother-in-law and Miss Wilma Comstock. A west bound car driven by W. R. Patterson ran into their wagon, making a wreck and causing the death of Winnie Gene.

She will be greatly missed by all in the home, school and the Sunday school. She passed to her reward April 25, 1933. Funeral services were held in the Methodist church at Brownfield, and were conducted by Arthur Scudday.

The flower girls were Ruth Roper, Hellen Laster, Melba Lovelace, and the pall bearers were, Ted Anderson, Don Tyriss, Lowell Trout, O. D. Lovelace and Bunt Autrey.

She leaves behind a father, mother, two sisters and two brothers, and a host of friends. We extend words of sympathy to the bereaved ones, ever praying that the sweet comforts of God may be theirs. This sudden and unexpected death should be a warning to every one to prepare to meet their God, not knowing how soon, we too, may be called to meet our reward. "Gone, but not forgotten."—Mrs. B. M. Wade.

Is School "Economy" Always Reasonable?

Editor Herald:

I noticed in your last week's issue that the Brownfield School eliminated four teachers, due to "economy". It is likely that about 10,000 teachers will be left off for the same reason. It is estimated that 10,000 are now idle, so we will have something like 20,000 good, well-trained teachers without positions next session. Yet it seems that we will spend about $2,000,000 next session to train new people to teach. The Senate at this writing wishes to accept the budget of 25 percent reduction, made by state colleges. The house is seeking about 40 percent reduction in appropriation. It is likely the Senate will have its way. The prospects for public schools at this time seem a 50 percent reduction.

Representatives of public school teachers have been severely criticized for their efforts to maintain something like $16 per capita. The state college men have the active cooperation in their clamor of chambers of commerce and business men. It seems clearly evident that higher education is favored and appreciated more than that given in public schools. It seems that children should have first claim.

The time has come when teachers already trained, and especially those with both training and experience, must organize to oppose flooding their profession with 1,000 new candidates every year, at public expense. They need an organization for that purpose. The State Teachers Association can't very well do that. It is composed of professors and officials of state colleges, and with public school teachers. Then public school teachers must organize themselves into a kicking club. Every article is lowered in appreciation and value according to supply. Teaching service is no exception.

I notice one of the teachers let out is the home economics teacher. Many high schools are doing that thing. Home economics is for what its name implies, making home makers. It is the last department that should be eliminated. We hope fully 90 percent of the girls will make home makers. Perhaps our conception of education is to alienate them from that avocation. At least our educational system, in high school and college, is geared to having that effect. Why we should regard a girl better educated when she knows something of ancient history, Latin, even Spanish and a lot of other stuff than when she knows how to make a home, is just another unsolved mystery. But we do. The public does. A girl may know her vegetables, her flowers, how to bake a biscuit that will melt in your mouth or fry a steak that'll make you forgive your enemies, and be reckoned among the common folks; but if she has waded through a lot of musty hooey, she is stamped as educated.
