The city of Lubbock has gone into the distillery business. Don't become alarmed, for that city is still overwhelmingly in the dry column. They are just distilling water.

Editor J. L. Suits and daughter, Miss Jeane, of Lockney Beacon, recently returned from Washington, where they represented Floyd county farmers in the Rural Electrification projects. While they liked the mational capitol, they say it does not compare to the good old south plains.

Still the wheels keep turning too fast. Still too many are careless in their driving, and the papers are cluttered up too frequently with details of the mangled dead and the seriously wounded. Too often grief comes to the homes of every community, as loved ones are snatched from the mortal body to immortality in the twinkling of an eye. There is none of us whose time is worth so much that we cannot be careful and watchful.

Some people and papers seem to think that when a purely human with human aims and thought, when appointed to the position of supreme court justice or chief justice, sheds the mortal and puts on immortality. In other words, as if by magic wand is transferred from the mortal to the demigod, from which no mistakes whatever can issue. Like the pope at Rome, they are infallible. Such rot makes us tired.

Goodbye Depression, Hello Prosperity. That is the theme song in Floyd county these days with combines running night and day harvesting the biggest crop in the history of the county-around three and one half million bushels. This will definitely "push" the county out of the "woods" onto the road of prosperity. Following the wheat will come the cotton and feed crop-making two pay days within the year. Come to Ployd county.-Lockney Beacon.

No, we will just stay here Bro. Suits. Two papers in Lockney might crowd the monkey too much. Then too, we look forward to a good cotton, corn and feed crop, not to mention a sizable oil boom in the not to distant future. In the meantime maybe some of your prosperity will slosh over our way.

The grasshopper plague is probabby the direct result of killing all the birds in the country. When song and game birds roamed at will through the fields, insect pests were kept down to where they were not destructive, but it is different today. Hunters obey the game laws better today than in former years; few of them are vandal enough to trespass on lands where they have no permission, but the birds are so few that with what hunting there is, combined or county only a few years. #### CIDENT PRONE" LOCATION?

"Accident prone" means tending to produce accidents. We have heard a lot about the "accident prone" driver and the efforts being made to control him by legislation, education and enforcement. The "accident prone" location, as the National Conservation Bureau reminds us, must be considered with equal seriousness.

Where communities are far enough advanced in the process of traffic control to keep accurate and scientific the water from the chemical. records of their traffic health, they Hobbs last Thursday. We have pointed an accusing finger at the reckless driver, but have too often overlooked the public care-Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Bedford and lessness which allows accident breeding hazard on our streets and high-Brooks Ellison of Asperment spent ways to exist as a threat for all of

In the majority of cases it is the Anderson is not doing so well this location itself and not the motorist that breeds the accident. It is simple work for traffic engineers to improve Anderson are spending the week with the design of such locations and build ir. safeguards which make accidents virtually impossible.

> We must deal with the "accident prone" traffic location as we deal with the fire trap-by applying proper safeguards to the location itself. We can transform a location that is "accident prone" to one that can not only reduce accidents, but we can ease traffic congestion and speed up the movement of both motorists and pedestrians. That is the dual purpose of traffic control: To move all traffic to its destination with a minimum of danger and a maximum of speed.

Home Made Ice Cream Makes Any Day a Holiday

CAFE AND SANE, delightful and healthfully nourishing is a party I for the children when you serve home made ice cream. Sunday evening, on sister's birthday, or just any afternoon, a home made ice cream party is very much in order. Here is an old reliable recipe for:

cup sugar 1 tablespoon cornstarch

1/4 teaspoon salt 2 cups milk (scalded) 3 eggs (beaten)

Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt. | Cover and surround with 3 parts double boiler. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from heat, add beaten eggs, then cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Blend in melted chocolate. Cool.

(melted) teaspoons vanilla extract cup whipping cream (whipped)

squares unsweetened chocolate

Add scalded milk slowly, stirring chipped ice and 1 part rock salt well, and place in saucepan or (by volume). Freeze ice cream until turning becomes difficult (for about 5 to 15 minutes). Then carefully remove cover, lift out dasher and pack down ice cream Then add vanilla extract and fold with a spoon. Replace cover and in whipped cream.
