FORMAL OPENING DATE OF HOSPITAL SUNDAY NOVEMBER 14

A Word About Hospital Building Contractor

Along back during the hot days of August, it was announced that L. D. Sanders of Memphis, Texas, had the contract to erect the Treadaway-Daniell Hospital, at a figure that ran around $26,000. That a plumbing company of Lubbock had the contract for the plumbing, a local firm, Ballard Plumbing and Electric had the electrical contract, and another Lubbock firm would put on the roof. Another local firm, Green and Winston did the painting.

A week or so later, Mr. Sanders, and his foreman, Sam T. West, with their truck, wheelbarrows and various and sundry tools arrived in Brownfield. They were strangers, but did not remain so long. Both gentlemen soon knew this, that and the other by their first name, and they were Sanders and Sam to the people here. They had a big job before them, but they had completed other big jobs, one that you may see any time you go to Lubbock; the new part of the Wolfarth school, a $65,000 job.

While they brought a few young men mostly Memphis football boys, some of which were their own boys, the great majority of labor has been Brownfield and Terry county people. These employees tell us that they never worked for better, more reasonable men in their lives. Their working hours were agreeable, and the pay sufficient.

Now that the big job is about over, and they are moving to a new school building west of Lamesa, which they are erecting, the writer, who has been next door to them the entire time, has found them splendid fellows, accommodating and nice, and appreciative beyond measure. They have liked Brownfield, and the people of this section, and it is almost like losing an old friend to see them go. They have built well, not only in a material way, but in the hearts of the people who have had dealings with them.

Drs. Treadaway and Daniell, are more than well pleased with the job that has been turned over to them. They have been contracting some ten years, and before that time Mr. Sanders was a brick mason for several years.

Dr. M. C. Bell Contemporary Physician

For many years Dr. M. C. Bell was a contemporary practicing physician here with the late Dr. T. L. Treadaway Sr., in the 'teens, but moved away and went into the ranch business. He returned however in the twenties, and practiced medicine again here many years, and then moved to western New Mexico to ranch again.

However, he was a great friend of Drs. Lester Treadaway and Alfred Daniell, and when they opened their hospital here sent them many cases, and has continued to do so since he moved to New Mexico.

I. A. Stephens of Lubbock was a visitor at the Stephens Latham Dry Goods Store, Tuesday.

BIOGRAPHY

Thomas Lester Treadaway was born at Lilac, Milam county, Texas, July 20, 1904. His father, the late Dr. T. L. Treadaway, Sr., then moved his family to Miles, in Runnels county, when Lester was 3 weeks of age. They moved to Brownfield in 1913, where he attended the public schools, graduating in 1921 from high school.

He took pre-medical training in Simmons College, Abilene, and entered the medical branch of the University of Texas at Galveston, where a degree was conferred. He interned in John Sealy Hospital at Galveston, and Robert B. Green Memorial Hospital at San Antonio. Returning to Brownfield, he entered general practice with his father, July 21, 1928.

He moved to Lamesa in June 1929, where he formed a partnership with Dr. W. H. Dunn in the Lamesa Sanitarium. Practiced medicine and surgery there until November 1931, when he moved back to Brownfield and opened an office and practiced medicine until he could obtain a building to open a hospital. The present location was leased from Mrs. M. V. Brownfield, and became Brownfield's first permanent hospital, and opened June 9, 1932.

It was named the Treadaway Hospital, and operated under that name until Dec. 1932, when a partnership was formed and renamed the Treadaway-Daniell Hospital.

BIOGRAPHY

Alfred Harris Daniell was born in Paducah, Cottle county, Texas, May 23, 1904, and moved with his parents to Brownfield, June 5, 1917. He attended the public schools of Paducah and Brownfield, graduating from Brownfield High School in 1922.

He took pre-medical training in Simmons College, Abilene, Texas, and followed the teaching profession for a short time, in the public schools of Andrews county, and then science in the Cross Plains high school.

Leaving Cross Plains, he went to Galveston and entered the Medical Branch of the University of Texas, where a medical degree was obtained. He served his internship in the City-County Hospital at El Paso, Texas.

He moved to Brownfield Dec. 2, 1933, engaging in the practice of medicine as a partner with Dr. Treadaway.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bandy of Union community were in town shopping, Thursday. Mrs. Bandy stated they would get about sixty-five bales of cotton and had yellow dent corn, the ears more than twelve inches long.

Miss Laura Lee Jones was called to Levelland Sunday because of the illness of her mother, who was thought to be taking pneumonia. Miss Jones reports that she is improving.

Mrs. Dave Smith of Hobbs visited her daughter Mrs. Blue Graham near near Wellman Sunday.

Remembrances By An Early Day Druggist

We are most happy on this occasion—the opening of the Treadaway-Daniell Hospital—to give a few reminiscences of early days in Terry county and Brownfield.

When we compare our present advantages in Medical and Drug facilities with our pioneer days—1902 to 1917—we just wonder that we survived. If we had medical attention we went to Stanton, Big Spring, or Lubbock, and no telephones! Dr. Overton of Lubbock, had time only to treat those who were really sick, but we feel that had he not been accessible we would have suffered the loss of some of our most valuable citizens.

J. L. Randal, Pioneer Druggist

A Dr. Ponder came to Brownfield in 1904, but stayed a very short time. Brownfield went through a seige of smallpox in January 1905, without a physician.

In the early part of 1906 J. L. Randal entered the drug business in Brownfield, and Dr. J. W. Ellis was resident physician.

Do you know that in those days, when you ordered a shipment of drugs out of Dallas, it was from four to six weeks on the way, having to be freighted from Big Spring on wagons? Of course emergency orders (serums, etc.) were sent by mail, sometimes relayed by horseback out of Big Spring. If the doctor was away, then the druggist had to do the best he could.

That was in the horse and buggy days and a call a few miles out in the country used most of a day. Fortunately the Allmon and Coble Livery could, and did, keep a rig in reserve for the "Doctor." Things were not improved very much when the doctor got his little white Buick, as there were no roads and if the driver were not very, very careful, the car would hang on a "high middle" and the Doctor would have to walk the rest of the way.

Not a registered nurse that we know of in the whole county, but the neighbors rallied to the aid of each other, and what they lacked in experience was made up for in willingness.

Well, we remember the first case of appendicitis. Doctor, with the patient and her husband headed for the nearest railway station, Big Spring, intending to take the train for a Fort Worth hospital, but on reaching Big Spring the patients condition was such that she could not go on, but with the assistance of a physician there, she was operated on, very successfully.

About the first of January, 1913, Dr. Ellis moved away and we were most fortunate in the coming of the late Dr. T. L. Treadaway, who we truly believe was "the man for the place." We cannot offer too high a tribute to this sturdy man. His practice covered three counties, and he was always willing, ready and anxious to answer every call.

It would not be fitting to end this article without mention of two little boys, Lester and Alfred to me, who used to hang around the Randal Drug store, interested in every thing from folding powders and rolling pills to emergency cases cared for in the drug store. Their avid curiosity and

No Jealousy Among the Physicians Here

In nearly every town the size of Brownfield, there is some jealousy among physicians, but in Brownfield, they are all friends, many of them belonging to the same social clubs, and all are members of the Five-County Medical Association.

In some towns this size, there are from eight to ten and sometimes a dozen physicians and some of them don't have an easy time making a living for their families. There are only five here, all good ones, and have plenty to do.

If you don't believe it, just call at the offices of Drs. M. E. Jacobson, John R. Turner and E. C. Davis, just west of town, and see if you can see them without waiting a bit. And on Saturdays, you'll have time to read all the magazines laying around most of the time.

We have an exceptionally fine lot of physicians, morally as well as professionally. They are busy men, and busy men are not little in their ways.

Jim Miller Is In His New Home

Jim Miller returned this week to his same old location corner Main and Seventh, but it was to an entirely new home. The old building of the Magnolia Service Station, was once the pride of the city. Indeed it was considered very modern at the time it was built—but how times change.

New, the new Magnolia Station on the old location is almost as much improved over the old station, as a mansion is above a chicken coop. In fact of the 22 stations the company has built in west Texas, Oklahoma and eastern New Mexico, called the Amarillo district, it is said that the one here excels all of them in beauty and utility.

And seeing the outside is only half the story. To really appreciate it, call and have Jim or one of his attendants show you through the station.

Bob Spears, Dick Chisholm and John Chisholm were in Ft. Worth on business Wednesday and Thursday.

interest—perhaps pressing their prominence in days to come in the medical circles of their old home town, and these boys are Drs. Treadaway and Daniell.

Popular Demand Brings Extension Of The Herald's Big Premium Offer

Extension Will Give Several Hundred More An Additional Opportunity To Secure Beautiful Sets

Having met with such universal approval during the short time the offer was in effect, the Herald, yielding to the request of quite a number of readers, is extending time of free premium for another thirty days. A number of readers have stated they would welcome an extension of time as it would be more convenient for them to obtain a set.

The offer will continue up to and including Saturday, November 27. This additional time, we believe, will be ample to give everyone the opportunity to obtain a set. Hence, it is not our intention to make any further extension. So make your arrangements now. The sets are awaiting you at the Herald office.

The Herald has placed many of these sets throughout the county and every set is giving daily first class writing service. This is one advantage of this premium offer, the gift is one universally adapted for everybody's use every day of the year. No wonder so many are enthusiastic and that the offer has been the means of winning us new friends and additional prestige as the newspaper that best serves this territory.

Make it a point to call at the Herald office not later than Saturday, November 23, and obtain your free set. You'll thank us for extending this offer and again reminding you.

Strong Demand From Students

One of the prime reasons for the Herald extending the offer was the ever-increasing demand from school children desiring the sets. Also lateness of cotton crop. While many sets have gone into school use there is, due to the great many students in this section, still quite a number who have not secured this splendid writing equipment so necessary in their work. The extended time will account for a great many more public school pupils granted the convenience of better writing material.

New Hospital Built To Stand Permanently

The new Treadaway-Daniell hospital in Brownfield, is built as solid as it is possible to build a modern structure. In fact it is built to withstand the sieges of time. The general contractors, Sanders & West informed us one day that while only one story was being built at this time, the foundation was capable of carrying three stories, easily.

The walls are of 12 inch tile, stuccoed on the exterior and plastered interior, finished in snow white. Architecturally, the building is a beauty. The many pictures of the building shown herewith, give but a faint idea of what the building really looks like on the outside, as any photographer will tell you that a white object against a clear sky is hard to bring out to best advantage. The operating, and other work and sterilizing room, are finished in smooth, marble like plaster, and others, such as patients rooms in regular plaster.

The operating, delivery and sterilizing rooms are all near each other, and models for convenience. There are altogether 44 rooms in the building with 20 patient's rooms. The attic is insulated with mineral rock wool, which not only insulates against cold, but from the heat of the sun in summer. This will make the building easily air conditioned if and when that step becomes necessary.

All floors are concrete slab, and all work rooms, offices, kitchen halls, etc., are to be covered with asphalt tile flooring. Patient's rooms will have congoletum rugs. All plumbing, such as water, gas and steam pipes are in a tunnel that circles the entire building under the floor, and large enough for a man to go in and easily make any repairs. At frequent intervals, this tunnel has ventilators, so that no gas pockets can possibly form and become a menace.

All electric wires are in conduit pipes, and with the heating plant in a concrete basement with concrete and steel in heavy roof paper covered with asphalt overhead, making practically a fireproof building. All walks, curbing, ambulance driveway, etc., are concrete, and laid out to conform to and contrast with the building to bring out its beauty and grace.

Mrs. Ray Christopher visited her parents in Perryton this week.

The Herald's Greeting To New Hospital

Since the owner of the Herald has known both Dr. T. L. Treadaway (Lester or Buster) to us, and Dr. A. H. Daniell, (Alfred to us) since they were mere children, we can write of them almost as if they were our own boys. We have known Dr. Lester since 1913, when he was a child of nine years of age, and Dr. Alfred since he was a lad of 13 years of age. We have seen them grow into manhood, and have every right to be proud of their accomplishments.

Yes, they were boys, and boys are boys the world over, and these two boys didn't claim any close relationship with the heavenly angels. If they had, they would not have been average boys. But, we believe we will say they were fully as good and obedient as the average boys, and prove it by any old timer. In school, neither claimed to be any prodigy, but both made fair to good grades, and both graduated from Brownfield high school with average credit.

But by this time, they were young men, and when they started to college, it was a different proposition with them. They could not afford to lay down on the job, as it was costing their parents good money to keep them in college, and they applied themselves with diligence.

At Simmons College, now Hardin-Simmons University, where both took their pre-med years, it was said that Dr. Lester took a lead at once and was put forward on pre-med operations. Dr. Alfred was said to have been inclined the same way somewhat, but as his parents moved to Seminole about this time, we lost contact with him.

However, college made neither of these boys a jellybean. On the other hand, when they returned home in the summer, instead of a vacation in the mountains, or enjoying leisurely rest at dude ranches, they came home, donned overalls, and went to work. That was in the days before gas, and we have seen both boys so black unloading coal in the hottest summer months that you could not tell whether they were white boys or darkies. They worked and liked it, and returned to college again in the fall full of pep, and with muscles like steel.

Therefore one can perhaps excuse our pride in these two boys. And, in a measure, they overcome that old Biblical about the prophet not being without honor save in his own country, for both boys came back home, and have made good amongst their own people. It is true that Dr. Lester diverted over to Lamesa awhile, but it was to become a friend and partner with his good friend, Dr. Dunn of that city, who owned a hospital and where Lester could practice his talent as a surgeon to better advantage.

Alfred taught school a few years before finishing as a physician and surgeon, but came back to the old home town after graduating and finishing his internship. Therefore the Herald rejoices with these two home boys and their many friends and well wishers that they now have their life's ambition—a splendid new hospital, second to none in structure and equipment. There are larger ones, but no better hospital buildings and equipment anywhere.

It is a great asset to Brownfield, and as one of the advertisers, the Hudgens & Knight Furniture Store, we believe, expressed it in their congratulations, an asset to West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

Winston Reeves Made Cuts For This Edition

The Reeves Photo Engravers of Lubbock, made all cuts, including those of the hospital, as well as all the doctors, nurses and old time druggists for this Hospital Edition of the Herald.

Take a look at the. See how well they stand out. To be perfectly frank, we have had no better work in Dallas, Fort Worth or Austin plants, and we are really proud that we have such a fine engraving plant so near us.

The photograph of the Hospital, as well as Drs. Treadaway and Daniell and the nurses are by Lowe, your local photographer.

ECONOMICS HIGHLIGHTS

President Roosevelt's budget statement of October 18th has again focused attention on even-present issues of debt and taxation. Furthermore, it has served to some extent to support the more or less commonly held belief that the President is gradually switching his fiscal policy, feels that the time for an accounting has come, and that the budget must be balanced by a major reduction in Federal spending.

From a statistical standpoint, the budget report is not encouraging. Mr. Roosevelt predicted that the deficit for the current fiscal year will be $395,000,000—$277,000,000 more than he predicted in his April budget statement. The increases he blamed on "excessive spending by Congress in the face of Presidential warnings," as the New York Times phrased it. He estimated that Treasury collections for the 1938 fiscal year will be $1,357,000,000 greater than in the 1937 fiscal year, with income taxes accounting for approximately half of the increase. And he estimated that 1938 expenditures, excluding the important item of debt retirement (money set aside to pay off government bonds as they fall due) will be $656,000,000 under the 1937 level. Biggest cut, according to the President's statement, is in the relief budget—he anticipates that in 1938 it will be $1,139,000,000 less than in 1937.

These estimates are not especially impressive in the face of subsequent developments that can make the actuality very different. But, along with his budget statement, the President took an important step which has a tremendous bearing on fiscal affairs.

He ordered two of the principal spending agencies—the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Public Works Administration—to make no further commitments. "The pronouncement," to quote the Times again, "amounted to a death sentence for these emergency agencies," of which the first was established by President Hoover and the second by President Roosevelt. Hereafter, the two bureaus will pay out money only for past commitments whose cost has not yet been met, and for operating expenses. It is to be assumed, therefore, that they will be rapidly liquidated. The President's step was a logical follow-up of the speech made by RFC Chairman Jesse Jones on October 8, when he said: "It is our purpose to discontinue general lending for the very good reason that there is enough available private capital to meet legitimate demands for all purposes."

The significance of the ultimate dissolution of the RFC and the PWA can hardly be exaggerated. Both served major, though entirely different, emergency needs. The RFC was conceived and administered as a bolster for business—it lent money to railroads, banks, insurance companies, and similar institutions. The PWA was conceived and administered as a direct individual relief measure—it gave jobs to all types of workers, from day laborers to actors. By sending the two agencies into the limbo of history, the President declares, in effect, that the depression is over and the emergency period is passed.

As we enter the winter season, the interest of industry is focused on the security markets. As Dorothy Thompson says, "For the first time in our entire history, securities have suffered an uninterrupted decline for two months, with a fall of 67 per cent in 100 major stocks. In this decline, the small stockholder, the middle class of the country, has suffered unprecedentedly. Holding his equities outright, and having confidence in the state of the nation, he has held on, right down to the last minute..."

As everyone knows, the decline in security values has not been justified by the business outlook. There has been no major upturn in production and sales this fall—neither has there been a major downturn. In a number of lines, conditions have been less satisfactory than was anticipated in the summer—but by no means to the same extent as the stock market situation indicates.

According to most authorities, key trouble is three-fold: 1. Excessive taxation plus the fear of more and higher taxes; 2. Too much government restriction of security operations; 3. Foreign influences which are almost completely unfavorable.

Financial leaders, such as Charles R. Gay and Winthrop Aldrich, tend to the belief that the second reason is the most important. They feel that a relaxation of the Security Act and of SEC regulatory practices is necessary. There will unquestionably be a well-supported bloc in the next Congress which will propose modification of the Act.

So far as the future is concerned, most economic services and columnists think the market will remain more or less stationary for some time, then start up again late this year or early next year.

According to Barron's of October 18, stocks were about as cheap then as at the bottom of the 1932 bear market. They sold at 10.6 times earnings in 1932, and this year money was much "easier."

We can learn much from those less successful than we.

DID YOU KNOW—

That on January 31st, 1904, there was a mass meeting at Gomez school house agitating the organization of this county. Some of the speakers went so far as to say that the affairs of the newly organized county could or would be run in such a way as to not necessarily increase the burden of taxation.

That in February, 1904, J. J. Dillard was publishing the Avalanche.

That what was thought to be the first person buried in Terry county was the infant of Dr. Gaines. The baby was buried where the Plains highway now runs just north of Camp Western, and in or near 1920 the remains were reentered in the city cemetery.

That in 1904 J. J. Lane, now of New Mexico had a close out sale at Gomez and advertised 22 yards of calico for $1.00 and among other things, men's dress suits $5, tomatoes per case $2, can peaches per case $4, horse collars $1.75, 16 feet lines $2.

That Lamesa was started in 1904. Only 45 miles to railroad and a trip could be made in two days.

ENJOYED THEIR VACATION IN THE OLD SOUTH

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Gaymon, editors and publishers of the Canal Winchester Times, and the Buckeye News, write us that they have just returned from a visit and vacation to the Deep South, taking in the cities of Atlanta, Savannah, Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, the Mammoth Cave, Charleston, the great Smokey Mountains, Natural Bridge and Winchester, Va.

When here last fall, this couple, who own some fine land in west Terry, informed us that they were going to make a trip to the old South as soon as possible. They write that the trip was very enjoyable, but that many of the streams were then out of their banks in Virginia.

UNAPPRECIATED TRUTH

All papers have many faults; they make blunders and leave undone, many important works. Yet after you follow the average country paper month after month, you are convinced of the loyalty with which they stand by their communities and the constancy with which they preach the doctrine of citizenship and fair play in all things.—Ex.

Brownfield Lions Club Will Present Minstrel

The Brownfield Lions Club will present to the public their annual Lions Minstrel and Musical Show in the Brownfield High School Auditorium, in the near future. The date will be announced soon. The show will be given two nights. Reserved seats will be on sale in the next few days. You may call Mr. Weldon McBrayer at the high school, number 157, for information concerning the sale of reserved seats. All proceeds will go into the Lions Club fund for the care of under-privileged children with special attention given to sight defects.

This year, the Brownfield Lions are coming back with a funnier, more attractive, better in every way show than they gave last year. Much of the same talent will be used. Burton Hackney, P. R. Cates, Leo Holmes, W. A. Tittle, and Fred Hinson will be back again as black-faced end men. C. C. Primm, Shorty Forbus, and Weldon McBrayer, have been added to this section of the show, and these eight high stepping, high brown, black-faced comedians are preparing a hilarious evening for everyone in the audience. Troy Noel is back again playing that all important part of middle man, or interlocutor. That harmonizing trio Frances and Florence Brock and Mrs. Emmitt Smith, who sang its way into everyone's heart last year is with us again with new and better tunes. A chorus of over fifty voices will form the background and support all specialties in the first part.

Emmitt Smith, the director, is adding many new features to this year's show. If you miss "St. Louis Blues" as it is interpreted by Althea Lundstrum, you'll never get over it. Miss Lundstrum puts everything that Harlem has to offer into this feature of the second part. For those who enjoy instrumental music emphasis placed on brass harmony, don't miss hearing Terry Redford, Gurthall Gilligan, and Barney Holgate in a really swell trombone tria arrangement of "My Cabin of Dreams." There is something of interest for every type of person. Watch the paper next week for further particulars.

Many Winners In Cobb's Contest

There were ten major winners in the Cobb's Department Store Contest, and of course they are very happy. But the losers are also in good spirits, as they are good sports, and did their best to win, fighting to the last minute to win, but lost. The Herald has not heard of a single complaint that the contest was not conducted in a business like, fair, square way.

The firm management stated also, that they were well pleased with the contest. That while there were times that things became quite exciting, and the store jammed on several occasions, that they had enjoyed it all, and that business was brisk throughout the contest.

The first prize winner was Mrs. Laurence Green, with a vote of 1,850,420,800 (billion). She received the dining room suite.

A close second was Mrs. Earl Wilson. She got the bedroom suite. Mrs. J. L. Newberry was right on the heels of Mrs. Wilson, and received a fine coat.

Mrs. Dock Benton was fourth, and received a silk dress. Mrs. Roy Sparkman fifth, received a ladies fitted case. Sixth was Miss Janet Youngblood, got a two-tone blanket. Seventh, Mrs. Richard Crews, Wellman, fine pair ladies shoes. Eighth, Miss Jeanett Hancock, choice of ladies hats. Ninth, Miss Lavine Lowe, a bed spread. Tenth, Mrs. Lloyd Moore, a luncheon set.

The Judges were, Elder J. H. Killion, Judge W. W. Price and Mr. Aiken.

Business Men Show Fine Co-operation

To the success of this our Hospital Edition, we are due thanks more to the fine spirit of co-operation of local business men than to any effort that we have put forth ourselves. We have gotten out several what may be termed congratulatory editions since we have been here, but this was decidedly the easiest we have undertaken. And if anyone has been left out that intended to have one, we are very sorry.

Aside from just a few, most of whom explained that they had already overdone their advertising appropriation, and one or two others who just didn't want one, the job of solicitation for the edition has been as easy as the proverbial "falling off the log." In fact, as soon as it was found that we aimed to print such an edition, some begin to send in their copy or stated they wanted an ad in it. Then when we announced some three weeks ago that we aimed to print such an edition, we were either called over the phone, or people told us that they wanted an ad in the Herald.

This shows in what esteem Drs. Treadaway and Daniell and their corps of helpers are held in this section. It brings vividly to mind that the people in this area appreciate the fact that a hospital second to none except in size has been put down in their midst to be used if occasion arises. Of course no one wants to be sick, or to have an operation, but when that becomes necessary, they want a nice place to stay and the best physicians and surgeons the section affords.

The Herald takes this means of thanking each and every one of them individually and collectively for this fine spirit of co-operation. Also, to Mrs. W. G. Hardin, Mrs. E. L. Treadaway, wife of the late Dr. Treadaway Sr., Mrs. J. L. Randal and others who have contributed to this edition by request of the publishers.

We know that you have enjoyed making a good, representative edition out of it the same as the publishers. Again, we thank each of you.

CHILD DIED

Julia Brown, the ten months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who are picking cotton on the N. E. Townsend farm in the Scudday community, died October 23. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. J. R. Chisholm, and the body was laid to rest in the Union cemetery.

APPRECIATION OF MY FRIENDS

One of the greatest philosophers of this nation has said: "What we have done for ourselves alone, dies with us; what we do for others and the world remains and is immortal." I appreciate and want you to know how much I treasure your actions, your deeds, and your wonderfully warm friendship shown me during my recent illness.

—Hilda Jean Clare

Cave Opens New Store at Seagraves

Clyde Cave, proprietor of the local Cave's Variety Store informed us this week that he was moving his store from Lawton, Okla., to Seagraves, and that his brother-in-law, Walter Price, would be in charge of the new store. He secured one of the best buildings in Seagraves, a brick store 25x125 feet.

Cave Bros. still have three stores, here, Plainview and Seagraves, and all buy together. The walls between their present location on the north side of the square, and the building just west, will be removed as soon as Piggly Wiggly move into their new location, giving them almost double floor space, or around 5240 square feet altogether.

Large iron columns will be used between the two buildings to hold up the ceiling and roof, and the front will be changed to make both buildings match in front. Thus, they will have one of the largest variety stores in this section.

CANTOR STARS IN SPECTACULAR HIT

Joining forces for the first time with hit-making Twentieth Century-Fox in the happiest mirth merger in the history of hilarity, Eddie Cantor brings Bagdad up to date in his startling extra-glorious musical hit, "Ali Baba Goes to Town," featuring Tony Martin, Roland Young, June Lang, Louise Hovick and a tremendous cast, opening Sunday at the Kialto Theatre, which is enriched by a revolutionary new three-tone tinted process.

Ali Baba Eddie slaps a head tax on harem men and a tail tax on camels, slips carpet tacks under sidown strikers and snaps the sultan into step with the march of time as Bagdad goes Broadway to the new hit tunes by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, "I've Got My Heart Set On You," "Laugh Your Way Through Life" and "Swing Is Here to Stay," and the modernistic swing composition, "Twilight in Turkey."

BRONCHITIS

Bronchitis, sometimes called "cold on the chest" is rampant in cold weather. Like most troubles of its general nature, it seizes upon those who are deficient in natural resistance powers and especially affects the bronchial tube.

Lowered resistance in any person is usually due to spinal nerve irritation. There may be contributing factors but that is the basic cause. True relief is best obtained through removing the cause by means of Chiropractic spinal adjustments.

By my chiropractic health method I correct diseases of the eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and lower organs.

Not Much Cotton Ginned Up To Oct. 8

According to the report of R. D. Copeland, special agent in Terry county for the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Census, Terry county, with Yoakum thrown in, had only ginned 730 bales up to October 18th.

This in comparison with a ginning of 7242 bales on the same date last year. This gives one an idea how much later the crop is this year and last. However, if Terry county farmers could have gotten the open cotton picked, there would not have been such a great difference after all.

Carter Chevrolet Co. sold a DeLuxe town sedan to J. B. Kerr of Hobbs, a Deluxe town sedan to Frank Costanzo, a 157 dual truck to Ed Evans, and 157 dual truck to Red Tankersley.

The games were had by Mrs. Lyman Blackstock aided by Le June Lincoln.

Mr. Brownlee seemed to be the center of attraction, in his masquerade as a woman. Some of the most dashing costumes were worn by the following: Harold Jones as a clown; Minnie Lee Walton as a Gypsy; Emma Gene Coleman as a Spanish lady; Billy Hinson as a troupador; Jacqueline Thompson as a colonial lady; and Ellen Fitzgerald as a Gypsy.

All Electrical Wiring Done By Local Firm

The Ballard Plumbing & Electric, owned and operated by Frank Ballard, assisted by his brother, Eddie, did all the electrical wiring, as well as placing all electric fixtures for the new hospital. Frank has been in business in Brownfield for the past eleven years, but informed us that this was the biggest job he has ever undertaken here, as there was such a varied amount of intricate appliances, that had to be so-so.

Frank stated to a representative of the Herald that all the wiring fixtures and appliances were the best that money can buy. That they are complete and up-to-date in every detail, and he felt duly satisfied with his part of the work on the fine building. He has taken particular pains to check and recheck all connections to be doubly sure that everything would be ok when put to actual test. Frank feels that it was somewhat of an honor to have been connected with the construction of this fine new building, and he wants the people of the section, as well as the owners of the building to know his sentiments.

Laundry To Be Handled In Steam Laundry

No change will be made in the laundering of the linens, gowns for patients etc., but will still be laundered in the Brownfield Steam Laundry as heretofore, as few hospitals are equipped to do this kind of work in the sterile manner that hospitals demand. The fact that a steam laundry is equipped to run all clothing through water that is boiling hot, as well as hot steam, thoroughly sterilizes them, for use of sick patients, and no risk must be taken that can be avoided. Secondly, should there be any possible chance of any germs remaining after such a boiling and steaming, the linens are then run over the mangle that is heated to such a high temperature that no germ can survive this test. Of course all surgical dressings will be sterilized in the sterilizer department of the hospital just before being used, anyway.

hand today which will be welcomed, as we have had some real warm weather. Mrs. McWhirter took the Home Ec class to Brownfield Laundry this Monday to study and learn the proper method of laundering the clothes before putting them through the machine and after also how to fold them after pressing.

IN THE not-so-dim-and-distant past the mask was accepted as a symbol of evil, the hiding of the face being regarded as sufficient proof that the owner of the face was a person bent on a guilty mission.

In this scientific age, however, the mask is in more general use than at any time in history. In sport, in industry, on the stage, in medicine, aviation and in the beauty parlor, the mask has its important niche.

Once the court gallants of Elizabeth's time wore masks when they kept illicit love trysts. Statesmen, too, while engaged in intrigue, resorted to this camouflage.

ANOTHER CALLED TO THE LAST ROUNDUP

Back just before or just after the organization of Terry county, a young man arrived, and began the accumulation of some of the lands of Terry county, and to stock it as fast as he could.

The body was in charge of the Brownfield Funeral Home. Services were conducted at Forrester school house by Rev. Jack Thompson, and gathered followed in the Forrester cemetery.

Mr. A. J. Bryan of the Hunter community died Wednesday and was buried Thursday in the Forrester cemetery. The father of E. D. Duncan of Coleman county died Monday.

BEAUTY'S DAUGHTER By Kathleen Norris

"I am going to talk to both nurses; I've had this girl telephone for another," Quentin said, and once again Vicky thought that he was two men; the Quentin who was the children's adored "Dad," easy and quiet and quite willing to take their word for anything, to listen to them, to learn from them, and this other Quentin, who held life and death in his big square hands.

Victoria crossed the upper hall, turned the knob of Serena's door, and spoke from the threshold: "Serena!"

There was complete darkness within. Serena's apartment was on the western side of the house, and the first dim grayness of dawn that had struck into the kitchen, and that was now timidly attacking the eastern world, had made no entrance here.

Everything was orderly enough. Vicky had seen these pink taffeta fittings before, the pink-brocaded walls, the long-legged doll and Mandarin lamps, the black worsted dog with the beady eyes. But there was in the silence here now something indefinably frightening. Her heart beat fast with terror.

Serena, still wearing the pale lavender dressing gown in which Vicky had first seen her last night, was lying flat across the unopened bed. The delicate pink taffeta covers still were spread in their daytime position, and flowed over the dais in thick rich flouncing and folds. At the top of the low wide bed, a half-circle of finely pleated silk rose like a moon. Beside the pillows were the night table and the pink lamps, the pink-and-white telephone, the book in a tooled vellum cover that Serena had been reading.

"Serena! Spencer's better. They think he will live. Quentin wants to speak to you!"

Silence. The room's mistress lay as she might have lain in a moment of sleep. She was lying on her back, her beautiful hair loosened and falling in a cascade over her shoulder, one arm hanging relaxed over the edge of the bed. Vicky's heart suddenly rose into her throat, and she felt her knees weaken.

She dared not turn her back on this room. Instead she backed slowly away, heard the men emerging from Spencer's room; turned to show them an ashen face and to clutch at Quentin's arm.

"Oh, Quentin, she's only asleep. I guess, but don't go in there! Don't. She's lying on her bed—she didn't go to bed—I spoke to her and she didn't stir."

"What's the matter, Vicky?" Quentin asked, surprised, weary,

"What did she say? Has she fainted?"

He went toward Serena's door, Vicky, with a little gasp of fright, followed along beside him. Again she looked at the rosy beauty of Serena's room: the pink lights on delicate pink silk, the litter of beautiful luxurious nothings with which Serena had surrounded herself; a rabbit-skin rug, silver frames and vases, tortoise-shell fitting mounted in gold for the desk at which Serena wrote only love notes.

"Wait a minute!" Quentin said sharply. He went to the bed, touched the figure lying there; gripped the unresponsive shoulder with a big hand and shook it. "Serena!" he said. And then, turning to Vicky and the other doctor: "Look here!"

"What is it?" Cudworth asked, advancing into the room.

"Dead!" Quentin said.

"Oh, no, Quentin! Vicky was clinging to his arm. 'Oh, no! Who would do it, who would do it?'"

"She's done it herself, eh?" Cudworth asked. He stooped and picked from the floor something that glittered brightly in the soft light. "Ye didn't care for that investigation, did ye, my lady?" the old man queried, staring down at the dead woman with a shrewd light in his eyes.

"Suicide!" Vicky whispered.

"Yes; she did it herself," Quentin muttered. "Look there!"

Vicky's eyes found the little round violet puncture of the bullet hole at the flawless marble temple. Serena's sleeping face was placid, but the once scarlet mouth was pale and flecked with blood, and the beautiful pale gold hair was loosened into a careless cascade that hung in a web over the side of the bed. There was a horrible sprawling relaxation in her position, a dreadful mysterious shuteness in the colorless lips that made Vicky tremble.

"Is there anything to do, Quent?"

"Not now." He did not turn from his contemplation of the wreck of what had been so soft, so lovely and alluring and fragrant and

Postoffice Site Inspector Here Friday

Mr. R. R. Range, postoffice site inspector was in our city last week looking over the five sites offered the government to put the new Brownfield federal building. The Herald man was with Mr. Range and Postmaster Jas. H. Dallas, for some little time, over the coffee cups.

Mr. Range is an easy fellow to meet. In fact while examining the sites, he frequently stopped citizens to ask which site they preferred. But like most federal employees, there were some questions he would not answer, but he would tell you why, and invite you to ask more.

Neither this paper, nor possibly no one else knows just what Mr. Range will recommend to his superiors, but he will vouch safe this much to the writer. "Mr. Stricklin, that site on the southeast corner of the courthouse park is the prettiest site ever offered me anywhere, anytime, since I have been inspecting sites."

He further stated that he believed the federal building could be built without cutting down a single one of the beautiful trees, or disturbing a bunch of shrubs.

He further stated that when a federal building was erected that a man was always employed to care for the building and grounds, and that no citizen would ever have occasion to criticize the way the building and premises were kept.

BIG CROWD AT HALLOWE'EN DANCE

Last Saturday night, a regular Halloween dance was put on at the Venetian Auditorium by the manager, Mon Telford. Many came in costumes, suitable for the occasion, as well as masks, while others preferred to wear their everyday faces. The Tune Tusslers of KFYO, Lubbock, made the music.

A prize of $2.00 was offered by Mr. Telford for the best schottische. The prize was won by Dube Pyeatt and Mrs. Clyde Bond.

Lynn county has ginned around 45,000 bales of cotton, and Dawson about the same amount.

A drive has been started to collect local school taxes. A local attorney has been employed to press suit if taxes are not paid.

Tom May and Jim Miller were business visitors in Lubbock Friday.

Traffic Conditions In Brownfield Serious

Traffic conditions in Brownfield are becoming increasingly serious, warns Mayor L. C. Wines, who asks for the cooperation of local citizens in observing all traffic regulations.

"The thousands of cotton pickers, and the additional trucks and automobiles on our streets congest traffic and greatly increase traffic hazards," said Mr. Wines this week.

"Although the traffic lights are working effectively in controlling the motor traffic, many of the pedestrians seem to think that the lights are for the cars only and refuse to observe the signals."

"The lights are for the protection of all alike and must be observed by everybody," he stressed. "No person is in such a hurry that he cannot wait for a green signal before he crosses the street. Motorists should remember that when they are turning on the right on a red light, the pedestrian passing across the street on a green light has the right-of-way and automobiles should stop before turning."

"When autos turn on a green light, pedestrians have the right-of-way and drivers should stop and carefully pick their way through the line of pedestrian traffic."

C. P. OBAR MAKES ANOTHER GOOD CROP

C. P. Obar, who lives some six miles east of Meadow, was a pleasant caller at the Herald office Saturday. He will be remembered as the man who has the big irrigation well in that section, of which we had some articles in the Herald last year. Well, he has made another bumper crop this year, but with little irrigation.

He stated that he irrigated his corn and some of the feed and gathered 72 bushels of weighed corn to the acre. His feed was also fine, he stated. He gathered 1100 pounds of lint cotton off 11 acres the first time over, he stated, and didn't seem to get any of it hardly.

Asked about his cotton that he did not irrigate, he stated that it would make a bale per acre easily.

Bronchial Coughs Need Creomulsion

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling the germ-laden phlegm. The Medical Profession has for many years recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients and now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by both adults and children. Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles—due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed, and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained, the druggist is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief that you want. Adv

TREADAWAY-DANIELL HOSPITAL TO BE WELL EQUIPPED

Dr. T. L. Treadaway, Sr., was born near Marietta, Ga., in 1859. The author described the place in "Gone With The Wind." His father was one of the many soldiers that she wrote about who died from lack of food and exposure. This left him homeless, penniless and an orphan, being Scotch, he needed no assistance. He worked for his board, clothes and the privilege of attending school six months out of the year.

When a young man, he came to Texas, where he taught school for several years. His eye sight began to fail and he moved to Atlanta, Ga., to have his eyes treated by a noted eye specialist. While there he decided to study medicine. He was almost blind. His wife who had three small children to care for and her house work to do, did all his reading for him. He graduated with highest honors. He gave the medal to his wife, saying that she was the one who won it.

After graduating he came back to Lamar county where he practiced for several years. It is in the black mud and after a rain, the roads are almost impassable. He had to go horse back and sometimes he would have to walk and lead his horses over the worst places. He had an exciting experience while living in Lamar county. The Smith negro was lynched in Paris. It stirred the whole nation as he was burned by degrees. It was an illegal, atrocious lynching as the County Judge tried the negro over to the mob. The negro had killed the jailor's little girl. The posse was looking for him when they met my father that night as he was going on a call. They thought it might be the negro and called for him to halt. It is needless to say how quickly he did.

The physicians of today do not know of the hardships encountered by the pioneer physicians of the horse and buggy days. They had to carry lanterns, eat when and where they could, expose themselves to all kinds of weather; they had no telephones nor modern conveniences. When my father had a bad case he would sometimes go and spend the night and nurse them through it. We had a sick neighbor who could not read the thermometer. Sometimes he was too busy to go and see him but would send his young son, Sheb, to read it for him. His patient was the first one to be operated on for appendicitis in that part of the state. The patient, a negro man, was operated on in his home. Surgeons from Cameron came out and performed the operation. They could not agree with my father's diagnosis. They said that he would die but they operated and found acute appendicitis. When the negro recovered he thought it a great miracle. The Medical Association, of which he was a member, had my father write a paper about it, and the physicians present asked him numerous questions about it.

I often went with my father to the gates. I can remember going down on Little River to see some Mexicans. He had to see several families. A Mexican man, who spoke English, met him at the first house and accompanied him while making the doctor calls and acted as interpreter. Once he had a Mexican patient who was sick. He managed to leave just before six passed away, as the other Mexicans were celebrating the occasion getting drunk.

My father had a lot of typhoid fever patients in his early life. Typhoid serum was not used until later. There was also much malaria. The older physicians always carried a supply of quinine and calomel with them.

We moved to Brownfield almost twenty-five years ago. There were only 1500 people in the county. Brownfield had a bank, two dry goods stores, two church buildings, black

Mr. Tom Dawson of Dallas, who installed the X-ray equipment in the new hospital informed us that while hospitals in cities like Dallas and St. Louis were installing some larger and higher priced X-ray equipment than the Treadaway-Daniell hospital, none were installing finer and newer equipment. This equipment is manufactured by the Standard X-ray Company, and handled by their southwestern Sales Co., of Dallas.

Mr. Dawson took great pains to go over this equipment with a Herald representative, and tried to explain in non-technical terms as much as possible just what this equipment is and what it will mean to this section. He stated that it would not do the average reader of the Herald any good to have something explained to them in terms they did not understand.

For instance (he stated that the cables that carry the current from the generator to the X-ray tube, up to 100,000 volts, could be wrapped around the patient's neck without the shock whatsoever. In other words this new machine is absolutely shock proof, the patients need have no fear of being hurt. The X-ray takes pictures with the patient in all positions, from trendelenberg through vertical. Also makes stereoscopic pictures. The fluoroscope, is one of the latest types, and in ordinary cases, reveals all the information about wounds and foreign matter in the patient the physician wishes to know, without taking a picture.

These machines can be used for the treatment of many diseases, as well as diagnosis work. This latest type machine, with automatic control is virtually a robot. This machine is manufactured in Chicago.

Delivery Room To Be Open To All Physicians

The delivery room in the new hospital will be one of the best equipped in this section of the state, and so located that it will be shut off entirely from rooms accessible to visitors or other patients. It will be handy also to the sterilizing room in the extreme south end of the west wing.

Physicians of Brownfield and this entire section are invited and welcome to use this room should they desire to do so bringing their own nurses should they wish to do so.

Thirty-four people called and renewed for the Herald and received fountain pen and pencil sets last Saturday, some paying for more than one year, or sending it to friends. Let's beat that record this Saturday.

smith shop, barber shop, two grocery stores, hotel, a small school building with four teachers. Mr. Randal owned the drug store and my father had his office in his store. He was a very faithful friend to him. Brownfield also had a newspaper with a very wide awake editor who put out an interesting paper and whose home was a center of social activities for the young people. My father practiced over an extensive territory. He has gone as far as Tatum, N. M. His most trying experience was during the flu epidemic. He would go for several days with out sleeping until he was exhausted, then he would take a night off to sleep. Another experience was that of being carried to Seagraves on the hand car. It was too bad traveling in his car at that time.

He was called into a home near Ropes to see a smallpox patient, and learned that he was the first physician ever summoned to their Terry county home, although several children had been born in it.

One day he took Jack Stricklin, Jr. and Mrs. Criswell's small children on a call to the Harris Community, expecting to be gone a few hours and was called unexpectedly still further, and as a consequence their anxious mothers did not see them until the next morning. Among the many babies that he delivered, there were two sets of triplets and an older sister of the Key quadruplets. My mother was ever ready to accompany him and if she failed to go, many an expectant mother was disappointed.

Dr. T. L. Treadaway, Jr. decided early in life that he wanted to be a surgeon as he thought he could do that better than anything else. His father discouraged it at first, but after he became so successful he was proud that he made the decision. —Written by a Treadaway.

THE NEW TREADAWAY-DANIELL HOSPITAL

We Present To You The Nurses At Hospital

As stated elsewhere, the Treadaway-Daniell Hospital will have five nurses with an R. N. (registered nurse) after their names. There will be others who have had some training, and are practical nurses. There will always be at least two R. N. nurses on hand. In this connection, let us state that Mrs. Treadaway, wife of Dr. Treadaway is a Registered Nurse.

Miss Eloise Cabler, R. N.
Miss Cabler received her training in the West Texas Hospital at Lubbock, and graduated with the class of 1935. She was superintendent of nurses at the Payne-Shotwell clinic at Littlefield. She comes to Brownfield highly recommended.

Miss Julia Smerud, G. N.
Miss Smerud (you can pronounce it to suit yourself) graduated from an Indiana Hospital, and has been night supervisor of nurses in a hospital at Robinson, Illinois for the past three years. We welcome this fine young lady to good old Brownfield, Texas. Hopes she likes Texas.

Miss Inez Sanders

Miss Sanders received her training in the Lubbock Sanitarium, and has nursed at a Spur, Texas hospital for the past several years. She will be night nurse at the new hospital. Welcome to "Brownie."

Miss Gertrude Brown

Seems like we have heard of Brown before. Anyway, Miss Brown received her training at the Lubbock Sanitarium. She has nursed at several hospitals, and will be night nurse in the Treadaway-Daniell. Well, we need a few more Browns in Brownfield.

Misses Juanita Tankersley and Jean Hill will also be employed in the new hospital.

We understand that Warner Hayhurst has purchased a grocery store at Plains.

Mrs. B. L. Thompson was in Saturday and stated they were busy gathering a big cotton crop.

TO LESTER AND ALFRED

We feel a just pride in our city's success, And the civic pursuits it enjoys; But a personal pride, which we gladly express, We feel in our girls and our boys.

Our hearts are with them and we wish them Godspeed, The while they must tarry away; And we trust that back home their pathway may lead, Like the two we would honor today.

We congratulate these for the work that they did, In raising for bright years to come; With all the prescribed preparation they made, Then returned with that knowledge back home.

We've a fellowship, too, in the pride which they show In this beautiful building, their own; It bespeaks a just pride of profession, and more; It expresses their faith in our town.

Our prayers are for them, now, as ever before, As daily their tasks they pursue, That God's blessing shall be with them both, evermore To crown all the good that they do.

We pray that the scalpel be in steady hands, When a life in the balance is laid; And the eye and the touch, as their mission demands, Revealing the source of all pain.

And their uniformed helpers, may they, as comes need Their best in the service to give; Unmidful of station, race, color or creed, Their patient, best care must receive.

Written and dedicated to Drs. Lester Treadaway and Alfred Daniell by their old friend and well wisher, Mrs. W. G. Hardin.

Mrs. M. E. Brewer BIOGRAPHY

Bertie Lee Daniell Brewer, R. N., received school training in Brownfield and Seminole, Texas, graduating from the later in 1928. Her training for the nurse's profession was taken in the West Texas Hospital at Lubbock, graduating in 1933. She did private nursing until February 6, 1934, when she accepted a position in the Treadaway-Daniell Hospital as Superintendent of Nurses, in which capacity she now serves.

PARENTS FROM CLEBURNE VISIT BREWERS

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Brewer entertained their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Brewer from Cleburne, Texas, a few days last week. The Senior Brewer is fast recovering from an injured eye received last summer.

Mr. Brewer called at the Herald office but we were out "rattling!" They also visited a niece at Roswell, N. M., while out in this section. His son assists Roy Collier in the furniture and undertaking department of Hudgens & Knight.

The Gaines County Fair at Seminole was well attended. A barbecue was served the visitors one day.

1. A modern signal system for calling nurses. All signal wires run into the nurses chart booth at the turn of the wing, where a trained nurse is always on duty to direct other nurses who are on the floor. There will be a corps of five R. N. nurses, two on duty at all times, as well as some practical nurses.

Latest Equipment
2. Frigidaire for keeping serums and vaccines. Oxygen tent for treating pneumonia and heart cases. Incubator for new born premature infants in nursery. A Diathermy machine, the infra-red lamp, the other extreme of the ultra-violet light. Used in the treatment of rheumatism, arthritis and sprains, with its deep heat. A Basal Metabolism for determining the metabolism of goiter and other thyroid gland troubles. Modern bed pan sterilizer and vessel room. It washes, flushes and sterilizes in one action. Ventilator fans in kitchen, and in sterilizing room.

The operating room on the southeast corner of the west wing, is well ventilated and lighted by both natural and artificial lighting. The operating table is adjustable to all necessary positions, and covered with sponge rubber mattress for comfort. The instrument cabinet is built-in, latest model major operating room light, designed to give the greatest intensity of light, without either shadow or heat.

The sterilizing room is equipped with a modern gas heated sterilizer, one for instruments, one for pans, linens, towels, etc. Scrub room for surgeons, located in sterilizing room, which adjoins the major operating room. A special feature of the major operating room, and seen only in the latest hospitals, is an adjoining room with a large plate glass window, which allows a full view of the operation, without the observer entering the operating room. This is called the observation room. The linen and supply room is conveniently located to the sterilizing room.

The Delivery Room is equipped with modern special delivery table, instrument cabinet, and a cabinet for necessary supplies. Also modern minor surgery light, and all necessary equipment. In the tier of rooms that are cut off from the patient rooms by a door, that can be kept locked and near proximity to the major operating room and delivery room, is the surgeon's lounge and dressing room, equipped with shower bath, reading table studio couch, clothes closet, etc. As stated above, these series of rooms are cut off from the rest of the hospital by a corridor door. The nurses chart room is located at the intersection of the two wings, with a sky light, filing cabinets, signal receiving system, charts, records, etc.

Nursery Easily Accessible

The nursery is easily accessible from any portion of the building, as it is located practically half way, just across the corridor from the nurses chart room. It is the only room equipped with a glass panel in the top of the door, making it possible for a nurse to look in to see if everything is going well with the newly born, yet not disturb them by opening the door, unless necessary. The nurses dining room will be private, as it can only be entered through the kitchen. The laboratory is large and well equipped for ordinary routine laboratory work. It contains a sink, built in cabinets, shelves, etc., and is equipped with microscope, blood counting apparatus, high speed centrifuge, gastric (stomach) analyzer and chemicals, apparatus, etc., for typing blood for transfusions.

Tissue and special laboratory tests are sent to Fort Worth for laboratory tests, getting a two-day service. Later on a trained laboratory technician will be added to the hospital personnel, and all laboratory work will be done in the hospital, allowing the doctors more time for clinical and surgical work, as well as giving immediate service.

Treatment rooms are provided adjoining each doctor's consultation rooms, and conveniently located near the laboratory and X-Ray rooms. A connecting corridor connects the two treatment rooms, allowing access to them for consultation purposes. Treatment rooms are individually and completely equipped with electric sterilizers, examination tables, instruments, etc. Each room is equipped with a modern minor surgical light. These rooms will be used for routine clinical treatment, minor surgical and emergency cases.

Boiler Room And Storage

The basement contains four rooms, one of which contains the automatic boiler, with all the modern safety devices. This room is also equipped with the latest type water softener, giving soft water to the boiler, hot

A Complete And Modern Kitchen

Few homes, and not a great lot of hotels in towns the size of Brownfield will have a more complete kitchen unit. And after all, this part of a hospital is very essential, in order that the proper foods for each individual patient may have just the diet best suited to his condition. Physicians and dieticians are getting away from too much "dieting." Of course they are still particular not to overdo this job, but if a patient is able to digest his food, they want him to have plenty nourishing food in order to assist nature as much as possible in restoring the sick and weak. Food, therefore, that is easily assimilated is as important as medicine, sometimes more so, along with rest and sleep. The hospital kitchen will be equipped with a new gas range, large Frigidaire, cabinet space for supplies, as well as tray racks for patients. This department will be in charge of Miss Beulah Page, who has been with the hospital for five years, and has given genuine satisfaction, in preparing food for hospital patients. This department will be supervised by the Superintendent of Nurses.

Miss Beulah Page

Miss Page is better known to her many friends as just Page. She has been with the hospital here since it opened in 1932, and will continue with it as dietician and cook. And boy, she knows her okra and onions around a kitchen range, for the well as well as the sick. (She's promised to call us over for a meal sometimes, and it isn't to be a sick man's diet).

Hospital To Have Guth Surgery-Lite

With the advance of surgery, lighting systems must also improve for it is just as necessary to operate at night sometimes, as in the day time, as emergency cases arise at all hours. With this in view, engineers have for the past several generations worked for better illumination. The Guth Surgery-Lite is the result of this work.

A brunoed bulb does not greatly hinder an operation, as it may be wired to a separate circuit or even a storage battery. This light puts a beam right into cases of deep cavity work, and does not under any circumstances cast a shadow. Another great feature is that it gives an intense light without heat.

This light has another advantage in that the beam is not concentrated on a small spot, but covers an area of some 24 inches in diameter, gradually fading, and does not bother the eyes of the surgeon. One of these lights is installed in the major operating room, and another smaller in the minor operating room.

water heater, all sterilizers in the building. In this section is a large general storage room, as well as two rooms for colored patients, or quarantined medical cases.

Reception Room

A reception room for relatives and friends of relatives is located in the hospital. Office reception room to be used strictly, and only for patients, who are waiting to see one of the doctors. This will eliminate confusion and congestion in the office reception room.

The Rest of The Record

JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

As I write this column the special session has been over two days. I regret exceedingly the unfortunate outcome of the thirty-day meeting of the legislators. The sad and pitiful part of it is that nothing was done to help the needy people, the blind and our underprivileged children—notwithstanding repeated exhortations and warnings. Not only that, but Texas will lose several million dollars of Federal funds to carry on this program.

The people are confused and indignant over the outcome. Certain groups such as the representatives of special interests apparently are well contented with the report brought me at the close of the Legislature by the Senate notification committee, which advised me rather gleefully they "had done their work well."

The question uppermost in the minds of the people, however, is "Who, or what, is to blame for these lamentable conditions resulting in the failure to provide funds for the social security program?"

Conflicting statements have been issued since the session by certain senators and house members. Some of the people are unable to fix clearly the responsibility. Why?

The present two-house system of the Legislature is made to order for sly manipulation and buck passing by shrewd parliamentarians. This is not the first session to end with each house blaming the other. The difference is that with the changing and complex problems of recent years this condition has grown worse. Not all the members of either house are to be condemned; yet, the good, the patriotic the diligent, the sincere members often find themselves condemned along with reactionaries and demagogues.

Lawyers will tell you that delay and time are the greatest aids to a man charged with crime. Delay and time are likewise the most powerful weapons that can be employed to defeat progressive legislation. Under our present legislative system these weapons are readily available and freely employed.

During the past session the people have witnessed a strange situation. The special session was called for the purpose of raising revenues for the needy. A powerful minority group declared no taxes were necessary to defeat the purpose of the session. Certain newspapers criticized the call and advocated no taxes.

Now that the session has ended we find that the spokesmen for the same minority group and for the same newspapers criticize the legislature for not passing a tax bill—the very thing they said should not be done. I shall have more to say later concerning this session.

The untimely death of Judge O. S. Lattimore shocked the entire state. The beloved judge had served with outstanding distinction on the Court of Criminal Appeals for many years. Friends and close associates, as well as admirers from all walks of life, testified to the love and esteem in which Judge Lattimore was held as they solemnly gathered to pay final tribute to this distinguished son of Texas.

Faced with appointment of his successor, I chose Harry N. Graves of Georgetown who resigned from the Legislature to accept the judgeship. He is one of the noblest characters I have ever known. Courageously and unselfishly, Judge Graves has served the people of his district and state for many years. He is preeminently qualified for this great office and while I regret his patriotic service in the legislature will be ended, I felt that his outstanding service and character should be rewarded.

The appointment of a member of the Legislature to a judgeship was not without precedent. From the Forty-fourth Legislature, I selected Sarah Hughes of Dallas to fill a vacancy as district judge. She became the first woman judge in the history of Texas and her splendid record as district judge has won the admiration and acclaim of the Dallas bar.

KEEPING AHEAD

Although most Texans know that their state leads in many ways, they may be interested in a compact list of "firsts." Texas is first in production of petroleum, natural gas, natural gasoline, carbon black, sulphur, cotton, grain sorghums, spinach, pecans, beef, mutton, wool, mohair, and hides. Other firsts are in total area, total number of domestic animals, cattle, beef cattle, sheep, goats, mules and turkeys.

Cleaners And Dyers To Meet In Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Nov. 5. — Cleaners and dyers from almost every town and city in Texas and eastern New Mexico will gather in Lubbock November 15 and 16 to attend the annual convention of the Texas Cleaners and Dyers Association.

As announced by Reub B. Berry of Fort Worth, president of the association, and W. B. LaCava, secretary-treasurer, expert technicians will appear on the program to discuss the vexing problems that confront those engaged in the cleaning and dyeing industry. Interesting and educational exhibits will be displayed in order that attending delegates may readily comprehend the solution whereby these handicaps may be overcome.

An elaborate entertainment program has already been planned and the Lubbock committee in charge of arrangements promise a full two day session including the annual get-together the night of November 14.

Headquarters have been established at the Hilton Hotel where reservations are already being made.

DR. FRANK SCOTT TAKES OVER SEAGRAVES HOSPITAL

Dr. Frank C. Scott has taken over the Seagraves hospital and is now in complete charge of that institution. He moved to Seagraves about four months ago and was associated with several other physicians in the management of the hospital before buying it out.

Dr. Scott was for several years a practicing physician in Lovington. He moved from here to Stamford, Texas, and from that place went to Hobbs where he spent several months before going to Seagraves — Lovington (N. M.) Leader.

"Nothing accomplished, Nothing done, has earned a night's repose." Longfellow didn't say quite that about the Village Blacksmith, but maybe that is the best we can do about the Texas Legislature. It met and spent a month—and about a hundred thousand dollars trying to advance each man his political fortunes and pull down the other fellow's. LET'S TALK ABOUT CLOTHES

DENTON, Oct. 20.—Coordination counts! Women who desire that "finished" appearance should keep this as their motto, always remembering that the difference between looking "pretty good" and "stunning" may depend on the shades of fingernail polish they use.

Since nail polish is a universal necessity now rather than a luxury, manufacturers have devoted their time to making it blend in with modes of the moment. When clothes went flapperish, polish flared into wild reds and even into bright greens and purples.

Now, with fashions going feminine and seductive, a whole new era of polish has been ushered in. One of the best new shades is a flattering blend of a soft, rosy fawn. It has a slight bit of tan left in it, and is good for the stage when your hands are just fading from the summer toasting.

For hands that have completely recovered from all traces of sun tan there is a rosy, silver-violet tone. The third is a rich, glowing red, flattering to any skin and grand for evening clothes. It is particularly lovely with black, silvery blues and evening pastels.

With the polish problem taken care of, girls at Texas State College for Women point out the importance of keeping your hands soft and white all winter. Complexions this season must be of the peaches-and-cream variety, so hands must correspond.

GUARD AGAINST WHOOPING COUGH

"To the very young there is no other disease as dangerous as whooping cough," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"In addition, there is no other disease causing an equal amount of suffering of which parents show so much inexplicable disregard, not only for the safety of their own children, but also for that of their neighbor's children.

"There does not exist a natural immunity against whooping cough during the first six months of life as there does for measles. It is at this age that whooping cough strikes its hardest blow, and over fifty per cent of the deaths occur in children under one year of age.

"Whooping cough is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretions of the mouth or nose, and only a very short exposure is required to contract the infection. Handkerchiefs, drinking cups and toys may also transmit the infection.

The infection is communicable from the appearance of the first symptoms and is most contagious at this early period when the nature of the affection can only be suspected. The incubation period is commonly seven days. A slight fever, running of the nose, and a cough make their appearance so gradually and insidiously that a diagnosis is practically impossible unless a history of exposure is obtained.

When the whoop appears there is no mistaking the disease. If there is whooping cough in your community, keep other children away from your little children and keep your children at home. Call your family physician early. Isolation of all cases for at least two weeks from the development of the characteristic whoop should be rigidly enforced."

Better follow the Golden Rule than the Rule of Gold.

Keep up with the times, but don't get ahead of yourself.

Guard Against Diphtheria

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 19.—State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox urges all parents of children the ages of six months and ten years who have not been immunized against diphtheria, to take them to their family physician and have this done at once.

The first ten months of 1937 saw 1,635 cases of diphtheria reported to the Texas State Department of Health. This is an increase over 1936's figures, and shows the need of immunization of children in this age group.

It was not many years ago that parents dreaded diphtheria because of inability of the medical profession to either prevent or cure the disease. But today when we know both the cause and the cure there is no obstacle but negligence which will prevent the complete elimination of the disease in Texas.

Diphtheria is most dangerous to the very young children, and is especially important that immunization against it be given early in a child's life. In young children there is practically no reaction to the injection. Immunization has been proven to give absolute protection.

"It is in the power of the parents of Texas, cooperating with their physician and the Health Department, to eliminate the disease," Dr. Cox stated. "In about six months after immunization the child should be given a Schick test to determine whether further treatment is necessary. Early immunization against diphtheria is a routine procedure with up-to-date physicians. Cooperate with your family physician and your community and make early immunization a regular practice in Texas."

Malta Fever

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 5. — Undulant fever or Malta fever, a disease contracted from cattle, goats or sheep which are infected with contagious abortion, is being reported sporadically throughout Texas and the nation, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. This indicates malta fever to be a public health problem and the attendant need of more general recognition by the public to the disease.

Undulant fever is so called because of the wave-like variations in temperature. The symptoms include in temperature, loss of weight and strength, chills, sweats and joint pains. The disease has rather a low mortality rate, but important because symptoms may persist for a number of weeks and even months before normal health and strength are restored.

In Texas, the goat, horse and cows are the usual spreaders of this disease. The germs of undulant fever enter the body through the mouth or skin. Therefore, care should be used in handling animals known to be infected and dairy products from the same sources should be pasteurized, if used. More men acquired this disease than women and adults seem more likely to have it than children. More cases are found in the rural areas than in the cities.

The true prevention of undulant fever is based upon the detection of the disease in livestock and the elimination of infected stock from the herds. Dairy herds should be tested

On Texas Crop

Favorable growing weather has matured this year's cotton crop about two weeks earlier than usual, and to mid-October, harvesting was farther advanced than at the same period last year. A fine yield of 4,622,000 bales still is in prospect, and according to ginning to date, will be fully reached. Drouth in Central Texas, with some insect damage, probably has voided the chances of a top crop for this year.

Rains, during the period October 10 to 14, have been general over the state and suffering from drouth for weeks. Renewed hopes have come to the ranchmen of the Southwest Texas region. Growers in the pecan region of Texas have indicated that the 1937 estimate of the pecan crop—24,000,000 pounds—will be maintained despite some attacks by the case bearer. A survey, recently completed, indicates a crop of 107,000,000 pounds of peanuts compared with 99,120,000 in 1936.

A slightly heavier acreage of wheat has been planted than last year. A greater of it is up, and such of it is under pasturage.

Texas turkey prospects for Thanksgiving and Christmas markets continue favorable. Quality is expected to be better than usual with only a slight decrease in the number of turkeys.

Watch Operation Performed On Himself

LUBBOCK, Nov. 5. — A Brownfield man saw a large goitre removed from his neck Monday night at Texas Technological college.

He looked as the incision was made, he watched the surgeon cut the abnormal growth from around his windpipe, and he felt no pain even though no anesthetic was administered. He did not flinch while the muscles and skin were sutured at the end of the operation.

The operation took place June 12 in a local sanitarium; but the patient saw the whole process four and one-half months later in a motion picture shown to 57 pre-med club members and visitors at the Men's dormitory by Dr. J. T. Krueger, operating surgeon.

Texas Business Good
—Slow In The Nation

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 5. — In contrast to a current downward tendency of business in the country at large, Texas business continued during the last thirty days its strong upward trend, the gain from August to September having been almost as great as that from July to August, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. After adjustment for seasonal variation the composite index for September is 105.6, compared with 103 for August and 91.7 for September, 1936, an increase of 14 per cent over last year. The index is expressed as a percentage of the average month in 1930 which is used as a base.

"Each of the components of the index for September made sharp gains over the preceding month, except that of payrolls, for which the decline—98.9 to 98.7—was almost negligible," Dr. Buechel said. "The index of employment rose from 94.4 to 96.6; miscellaneous freight car-loadings from 81.4 to 84.1; runs of crude oil to stills from 176.3 to 182.3; department store sales from 110 to 115.3, and electric power consumption from 124 to 129.

WTCC WORKING FOR BIG BEND PARK

STAMFORD, Nov. 5. — West Texas Chamber of Commerce directors have shown keen interest in the proposed Big Bend Park since the inception of the project, according to D. A. Bandeen, General Manager of the regional organization.

"At their suggestion we have made it a part of our work program since the Amarillo convention in 1936, when by resolution we included it in our legislative program for the year. We followed through with the legislation, had a representative in Austin in its behalf and were keenly disappointed when Governor Alfred vetoed the bill after it had passed both House and Senate.

"When the plan to raise money for the purchase of the land was conceived we immediately contacted our one hundred seventy-six directors, advising them that the West Texas Chamber would make a donation of one dollar for each of them and suggested that they take the lead in their respective communities in raising this fund. They have responded one hundred percent, and in many instances have sent additional donations for themselves of from one to five dollars. In each instance they have expressed themselves forcefully as to the merits of the project.

"Outstanding in this work has been the effort of our director, Mr. R. C. Nothstine of the little oil town of Crane, in Crane County, who recently sent the fund a check for $29 attached to a list of that many donors he had contacted. Our organization is proud of the response of its directors to this worthy project and we shall continue to follow through with our best efforts."

The Camera Goes to College

PICTURE PARADE Follows Peggy Co-Ed

Somewhat apprehensive Peggy Co-Ed stepped off the train at Baton Rouge, wondering what college days held in store for her.

VACATION days are over. Peggy Co-Ed and her thousands of counterparts the nation over have started back to the whirl of studies, sports and dates that characterizes co-education in scores of American colleges and universities. Many, as "freshies," are meeting this Great Adventure for the first time. Here the camera shows what a typical freshman co-ed found as she started the new semester at Louisiana State.

Talk About Clothes Is Theme Song Of Day

DENTON, Nov. 5. — Are you one of the thousands of women who say to themselves daily, "I wish I could spend just one day in New York's ritziest fashion salon and get outfitted from head to foot?"

If this is your theme song, and if, like the majority of us your wish is just another pipe dream, take one afternoon off any try following my recipe: First stop, get a full length mirror. You cannot begin until you recognize all assets and liabilities. If you are too broadshouldered, too longwaisted, or too anything your best chance lies in facing facts.

After a candid examination of the appearance you present to the world, drag out your entire stock of clothes and put them in three piles—wearable now, non-wearable but with possibilities, and hopeless wrecks.

Distribute the hopeless wrecks to your cook, your best friend and your favorite poor family, and drive into the wearable pile. Ask three questions of each garment: Is it becoming? Is it up-to-date? Is it appropriate? Go through those which pass the test, checking snaps, hemlines and worn places, and hang them in a place of honor.

Now you're ready for the fun—odds and ends with make-over possibilities. Five agencies are at your command for this process, dyes, ribbon and button counters, magazine and newspaper pictures, seamstresses and your own imagination. Be not afraid to rip and tear, and remember that this is a season when you can mix your wardrobe hilariously and get any crazier results than may appear in the best fashion magazines.

Girls at Texas State College for Women tried this inventory plan and discovered that it works beautifully. So, even though you can't have your heart's desire of going to New York you can achieve the smartly dressed effect that would be the goal of your trip.

DOGS ON THE DECLINE

DENTON, Nov. 5. — Are Texans turning back on "man's best friend?" Figures show that there are around 600 fewer dogs in this state now than in 1935, when there were less than in 1934. Counting mongrels, lapdogs, watchdogs, sheepdogs and all varieties there were only 3900 of them in 1936. Either a great number of grouchy neighbors are getting out the poison kits or owners don't rate their pets worthy of a license any more. Or perhaps their ancient feline enemies are finally getting the upper hand.

MEETING PLACE OF CULTURE

Within the borders of Texas may be hidden links in the history of our earliest ancestors, according to archaeologists. Texas is in the heart of a great North American triangle whose corners are the Maya-Artec section, the Public area and the mound-builder area. Since these three great cultures found a common ground in Texas, many hints as to their inter-tribal relationships are being found and studied today.

GROUND BROKEN FOR TECH LIBRARY

LUBBOCK, Nov. 5. — A big percentage of the 3,155 students and 165 faculty members of Texas Technological college attended groundbreaking ceremonies this week of the new library building made possible by a $275,000 grant by the last Texas legislature.

"We're beginning a great library," said President Bradford Knapp as he threw the first spadeful of dirt which ended the school's twelve-year campaign for the structure. With seating room for less than 200 of the more than 3,000 students in the present space used for a library, the new building answers one of the college's pressing needs.

Chevrolet Is The Economy Car

Chevrolet's Master models for 1938 are designed and built for owners who seek to practice thrift without compromise on completeness. To such buyers, the Master Chevrolet is presented as embodying in fullest measure those qualities which Chevrolet's expensive contacts indicate that modern motorists demand in their cars.

Performance, economy and comfort are carried to new heights in these models, without sacrifice of beauty or style. The cars are as roomy as the Master DeLuxe series; they are powered by the same 85 horsepower six-cylinder valve-in-head engine; and they offer the year's outstanding engineering advance, the new "Tip-toe-matic" Chevrolet clutch.

Like the Master DeLuxe again, they embody numerous refinements, in features affecting performance, comfort, safety, durability and style. The result is an all-around heightening of the qualities which for the past three years have been generating a steadily-increasing demand for Chevrolet, with the result that production capacity has had to be enlarged again and again.

POPCORN PROVES GOOD CASH CROP

E. O. Montgomery, a farmer living three and one-half miles south of Wilson has produced 20,000 pounds of shelled popcorn, which he is selling for 10 cents per pound, from 25 acres of land, according to his statement to V. F. Jones, county agent.

Mr. Montgomery states that popcorn has proven to be a very profitable cash crop for him. He made his start in 1935 with five acres. Last year the acreage was increased to 15, and this year he has 25 acres. The corn this year is yielding 800 pounds to the acre, and Mr. Montgomery states that the smallest yield he has made in the three years he has been growing popcorn has been about 500 pounds to the acre.

The popcorn is not grown under irrigation, but under dry land farming. Mr. Montgomery believes his success to date has been due chiefly to good seed, early planting, wide spacing in the row, similar to field corn, and to the fact that he has found a ready market for all the corn he could grow.—Tahoka News.

EMPLOYMENT SHOWS INCREASE IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 25.—Records from about 1,900 Texas establishments showed a total of more than 95,000 workers were employed during September, an increase of 7.2 per cent over the like month last year and an increase of 2.3 per cent over the preceding month, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Weekly payrolls for these firms totaled $2,364,000, an increase of 19.4 per cent over September last year but a fraction of 1 per cent below the preceding month.

Cities showing gains above the State average in employment and payrolls over both a year ago and the preceding month were Amarillo, El Paso, Houston and Wichita Falls.

Industries in which the gains exceeded the State average for both comparable periods were: Foundries, machine shops, millwork, chemicals, cotton textile mills, women's clothing, cotton oil mills, flour mills, meat packing, crude petroleum producing, and power and light.

We don't claim to know much about the trouble in Spain, but it seems to be a clash of two systems of government, neither one of which is worth fighting for. The near-communist, supported by Russia, have been in charge of the government the past few years. A year ago the fascists, instigated by Mussolini, started a rebellion. Hitler later gave his support, and the internal warfare has been long drawn out and bloody. After a victory by the fascists a few days ago, their leader, General Francisco Franco, was formally declared dictator of the conquered territory. Why hundreds of thousands of men from the common walks of life will, in this enlightened age, fight for the establishment of a dictatorship is beyond us. Democracy seems safe only in France and the English-speaking nations of the world.—Tahoka News.

The special called session of the Texas legislature is over and, many things were accomplished. Just a lot of money pooped off for nothing. Both houses were at loggerheads during the entire session and were out of step with the wishes of Governor Allred. This session was called for the purpose of providing revenue for appropriations made at the last regular session. Any ten year old school boy knows that appropriations should not be made unless ways are provided to secure the money to pay. But that is what happened, so the Governor called them back to complete the job, but they failed to make arrangements for this additional revenue. Guess they expect a rabbit to be pulled out of the hat somewhere. In the first place a good many of these appropriations should never be made, they were unnecessary, but since they were made they should also provide a revenue measure to take care of same. But this next year is election year and some of them were afraid their scalp would be lifted if they passed new tax measures. It seems to us that our Texas Legislature is fast becoming worthless to the citizenship. We need quite a few changes in both the upper and lower house and this next election is a good time to make those changes.—Lockney Beacon.

It begins to start to commença to look like the Plainsman is going to have to publicly doff the chapeaux (Note to Andy Jack Stricklin, of Brownfield: that means 'tip the hat') to Claude Hurlibut. That affable young man is by way of being a sage and a seer. Something like three years ago, as Claude and your humble servant were partaking of a little equitation (and that, Bro. Stricklin, means 'riding horseback') Claude remarked that Texas avenue, within a few years, would become a much more important thoroughfare than most people realized. "You're going to see a lot of expansion and improvement on Texas, especially from Broadway, south," he remarked.

Was that the time you became a cropper (that means falling from your mount a la King Edward, now the Dook) and fell from your old sway back mare, and had to be carted to the hospital in a pickup, Sharley? If you don't have your French dickmacknary handy, a la mean "like" or "similar," Sharley; especially as regards French cookery.

Jews Are Fighting for a Homeland

Ready at any moment to defend the strip which he is trying to convert to fertility is the Jewish settler of the Jesreel valley.

FIVE or six million Jews, uprooted by dictatorships and tossed about by economic storms, may have to depend upon the development of the Holy Land, under British mandate, as a solution to their difficulties. But they face the hostility of the Arabs living there, whose economic and religious interests conflict with theirs.

In North Palestine the Jews fence themselves in armed settlements as a protection against marauding Arab bands, while they try to work the poor land. With Britain anxious to get rid of her mandate, and with enemies in nearly every corner of the world, these "people without a country" are in a sorry plight.

The life is not an easy one, by any means. Back-breaking labor is not made any more bearable by constant threat of pillage and death.

Pictured here is life in a fenced-in settlement in the Jesreel valley.

Settlers must carry rifles while working the swamp-infested plain.

A LITTLE MORE FORGIVENESS

A word of advice which might help many human relationships if properly heeded is the little sermonette by Dr. J. W. Holland, syndicate minister:

"In the marriage ceremony of most churches there is the admonition to 'help each other,' but there is nothing about standing rigidly for one's rights. It takes a lot of forgiveness to run a home. Duties often take the place of rights. Almost any home can quickly become a living hell if either or both parties begin the Satanic pettiness of always 'demanding their rights.' People should not get married to boss each other, but to forgive and help.

"How active is your forgiver? If you can't forgive you will grow into a hater, and haters fill their hearts with murder germs. Hate is living death. Never a day passes but each of us needs a larger love and sympathy, even with our own immediate loved ones. The best forgivers on earth are mothers.

"Did you ever itch to 'get even'?"

you not see the reason why Jesus, when teaching his disciples to pray, capped it with the line, "As ye pray, forgive?"

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Julian Capers, Jr.

AUSTIN — "Who killed the Cock Robin tax bill?" was the favorite topic of conversation in Austin this week in the wake of the special session which ended without any action toward raising revenue.

The record is fairly clear. The House and Senate conferees wrote an omnibus bill, increasing tax rates on natural resources, corporation, franchises, public utility gross receipts, cement manufacture, and stock and commodity exchanges, which would have yielded between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 of new revenue. It allocated funds as follows:

For old-age assistance $300,000 from additional revenue provided the general fund, plus $1,600.00 to pay off the loan of the pension fund from a Dallas bank.

For teachers retirement fund, $750,000.

Aid to needy and blind $300,000.

Aid to dependent children $750,000.

The bill would have re-allocated school funds—after this year—back to the one fourth provided by the constitution, leaving undisturbed the larger school revenues for this fiscal year, to insure payment of the $22 per capita apportionment.

It eliminated entirely the $5,000,000 reduction in appropriations which the Senate had passed, and it also eliminated the provision in the House bill demanding that the ability of children to support their parents should not be taken into consideration in determining the eligibility of the old folks for pensions. That provision proved the stumbling block that killed the bill, when the House, on motion of Bryan Bradbury of Abilene, voted to instruct its conference committee to stand pat and demand its inclusion.

Reliberalization Rejected

This would have thrown the old age pension rolls wide open again, and the Senate conferees declined to accept it. Efforts to get the House to withdraw from its position failed utterly, when the "pensions for everybody" bloc joined by the "no taxes" group, resulted in a clear majority and voted to stand pat.

A record vote was had on motion of Bond, of Fairfield, to instruct the House conferees to sign the conference report. It was defeated, 56 to 75. "No" votes were: Adkins, Alexander Amos, Bell, Boethel, Boyer, Bradbury, Burton, Callan, Carssow, Cathey, Celaya, Colquitt, J. C. Davis, M. M. Davis, Davison, Dean, Derden, Dickison, Dollins, Donaghey, England, Felty, Fielden, Fox, Fuchs, Gibson, Hankamer, Hanna, Hardin, C. L. Harris, Fred Harris, Hartzog, Heflin, Huddleston, Jackson, B. T. Johnson, S. A. Jones, W. E. Jones, Kieth, Kenyon, King, Knetsch, Lanning, Leyendecker, Lucas, Mann, McConnell, McFarland, McKee, McKinney, Monkhouse, Morse, Nicholson, Oliver, Tolbert Patterson, Petsch, Pope, Ragdale, Reader, Jasper Reed, Rhodes, Rutta, Scheunemann, Sewell, Skaggs, Stinson, Tennant, Thornton, Vale, Waggoner, Weldon, Westbrook, Winfree. Absent were Anderson, Cagle, Farmer, Herzik, Keefe, Little, Loggins, London, McDonald, Metcalfe, Newton, Palmer, Shell, H. Smith, Morris, Stevenson and Tenny-son. All others voted "aye."

Pension Outlook

Some reductions in pension payments during the next few months may result, although little credence is placed in the statements made while the session was on the pensions might be suspended. These are regarded as being made largely for political effect, and few believe the politicians will go so far as to cut off the only means of existence of 113,000 old people, even to carry a political point. The bank holding the State's notes for the $1,600,000 borrowed earlier, has indicated its willingness to work with the Board of Control in handling the debt on some extension basis. Meanwhile, members of the House and Senate and the Governor were continuing their exchange of publicity shrapnel, seeking to lay the blame for failure of the session on each other. Sen. Will D. Pace of Tyler pointed out clearly how the professed friends of needy aged are using them as a political football, when he said:

"The Senate backed down from its economy amendment that would have saved the taxpayers $5,000,000 and provided more than $2,000,000 for old age pensions and we had a right to think the House would take the rest of the bill. Those who are entitled to pensions would receive much larger amounts if it were not for the avarice of those not entitled to them, who want the law thrown open so they can get money that rightfully belongs to the needy. If the pension rolls were cleared of imposters, the aged who are entitled to help would get more of it and it is to their interest to be against a reliberalization of the law."

Wait For Verdict

Meanwhile two groups were anxiously awaiting news of the attitude of the folks back home. They were the special interest lobby and the politicians. The lobby was divided in its opinion. The conference bill carried moderate in tax increases, and some of the lobbyists feel it would have been better to take responsible tax increases. Now they feel pretty certain the fight must be waged all over again in February or March, at another session. This could have been avoided, some feel, for at least another 14 months until the next regular session, if the conference bill had passed. Others, cheered by their success in cutting down the Governor's $15,000,000 tax plan to $4,000,000, believe they have less to fear in future sessions.

Whether Allred will seek a third term was the subject of many rumors. Some had it the Governor might try it on a unicameral legislature issue. There was even a rumor that Sen. Tom Holbrook, the Galveston conservative, who led the economy fight, might be a candidate. But the political results of the session will only be apparent when the sentiment of the folks back home is thoroughly sounded out.

Monster Hydraulic Press Speeds Fabrication of Airplane Parts

CONFRONTED with a rapidly expanding demand for its commercial transport planes, the Douglas Aircraft Company has installed the world's largest high-speed hydraulic press in its plant at Santa Monica, California. With a pressing force of 10,000,000 pounds, the huge press is as versatile as it is powerful, being capable of performing a total of several thousand production operations in the shaping and forming of parts for the Douglas planes. Transportation of the gigantic machine to Santa Monica from the plant of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Company at Mount Gilead, Ohio, where it was built, presented a difficult problem. The press stands as high as a four-story building and weighs nearly a million pounds. The head alone weighs 175,400 pounds, the bed nearly 150,000 pounds; the ram more than 40,000 pounds. No single land transportation device ever built or imagined was capable of carrying the full weight of such a load. The problem was solved by disassembling the press and mounting the parts on nine special flat cars. To move even the disassembled machine into the Douglas plant it was necessary to tear away the front and part of the roof of the building in which it was to be housed. The sandy soil upon which the plant is built had necessitated construction of a special concrete foundation. The machine's pressing force of 10,000,000 pounds is created by a single hydraulic ram, six feet in diameter and actuated by oil under a pressure of 2500 pounds per square inch. Mounted on top of the press, the oil supply reservoir holds enough oil to fill the crankcases of 2000 motor cars. Pressure is generated by a battery of four radial pumps of the variable reversible delivery type, driven by two 150 horse power electric motors. When officials of the Douglas Aircraft Company first considered use of a hydraulic press as a means of applying interchangeability, flexibility and greater manufacturing economy to the fabrication of aircraft parts, a miniature press was constructed to test the possibilities. So satisfactory was this test that an initial 2000-ton-pressure press was installed two years ago. Installation of the new press enables the company to shape 3000 aircraft parts—all of aluminum alloy—on hydraulic presses.

ON THE SET: While John Boles was resting in a corner of a big living room set comedian Walter Catlett and the director conspired to pull a rib. They turned on the radio and Catlett hooked a small mike behind a screen. While Boles and the director listened to the news broadcast Catlett cut in with the news that the 45,000 Malibu Beach home of John Boles handsome screen actor, had been burned down, and investigation was started to learn if anyone got trapped inside. "Holy Mackerel!" yelled Boles, leaping out of his chair. "Have my car up at once—I'm going down there right now. And you'll have to shoot around men." Not until Boles was rushing off the set did the conspirators let loose a riotous guffaw. Boles, stopped by the big laugh, searched their faces, and then turned red as he sheepishly went to his chair. Stopping in the Republic Studios lobby to ask Earl Wagner, alert main gate guardian, where the Smiley Burnette-Gene Autry musical western was shooting, he asked me to help out a lady and her curly haired little girl who were trying to get in the studio. Earl said they had come from Kansas to see Smiley and Gene but he couldn't let them in. He asked me to tell the two actors they had visitors to the outdoor lobby. Of course I did and a bit later Smiley returned to the outdoor wetsern set with the two in tow. He was eating a huge pear which little Rosemary Noonan had brought for him all the way from Baxter Springs, Kansas. So Rosemary not only saw her two idols making a picture, but she was boosted upon a stepladder and had her picture taken with a hero on either side. And was she proud and happy!

On another stage the "Three Mesquiteers," or Bob Livingston, Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune were shooting one of their westerns, "Wild Horse Rodeo." As I entered all were waiting for orders from George Sherman, a youngster just moved up to the important post of director after ten years as an assistant. And of course that gave Terhune a chance for some of his unique fun. Cupping his mouth with his hands and aiming at the floor, he yelled "Yoo-hoo!" Then he and everyone else looked up to the twenty-foot high ceiling, and came back a soft echo: "Yoo-hoo!" With a grin he turned to Sherman saying: "Pretty good sound effects you got here!" Max, you know, is a wizard ventriloquist, and everyone was hugely entertained to hear that echo fairly bounce back off the ceiling! Over the hill at the Fox lot I found little Jane Withers, Una Merkel and Stu Erwin working in "Checkers," a famous stage hit. When I hailed Erwin to ask how he was doing he growled he was "so darnation busy I don't know my own family. After I finished 'Mr. Boggs' in September I was rushed over here for 'Honeymoon,' and then right into this. And in between and everyday my agents chase me on the phone and over here to chew about other roles. It's tough on my disposition, but I guess it pays to be popular."

On the sets every big star has a canvas backed chair with his or her name painted large on it, and most folks know that means "Keep Out!" However, as Erwin headed toward me an extra woman unthinkingly plumped down in his chair. An assistant director started up to point out the error to the woman, but Stu motioned him away, found another chair and pulled it alongside mine. Few stars are as generous about their own chairs. In fact most of them in such cases would freeze with a look!

And on the "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" set at another studio the ice cream man was doing a rushing business. With Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Ronnie Sinclair and other youngsters all in the same picture ice-cream-on-a-stick disappears rapidly in frequent repeat orders. "Hollywood," says Ralph Byrd, "is where screen couples always divorce as the best of friends because each wants someone else!"

Remember that no person ever selected his parents. PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

A Statement By A. W. Birdwell

President, Texas State Teachers Association

The adjournment of the special session of the legislature without passing a tax measure leaves the Teacher Retirement System of Texas without revenue provided by the state to match the contributions now being made by Texas teachers, but this does not mean the failure of the plan.

The Teacher Retirement System has been approved by the people of the state and by the state and by the legislature. It is therefore a binding obligation on the state, and the opinion universally expressed is that the contributions of teachers must be met.

There is no reason for the teachers of Texas to be pessimistic or to assume a defeated attitude. We therefore urge them to retain their membership in the system and thereby preserve their prior-service rights. We hope that they will continue to make the 5 per cent contributions of their salaries as required by the statute setting up the retirement program.

Texas has never failed. Texas will not fail now. The contributions of teachers to the retirements system are absolutely safe. There is no way for contributors to lose one penny. Success of the plan for teacher retirement has not failed; it is merely delayed.

There is much consolation in the fact that the per capita apportionment is secure and that both the constitutional and the statutory means of support of the public schools have been preserved.

It is probably better that no provision be made for financing teacher retirement at this time than that inadequate provision should have been made. The whole problem remains as an unfinished task to be accomplished by the legislature at a later date when factional politics is less active. We still have faith in Texas.

The Union high school girls have organized a pep squad. Miss Othema Ellis is the senior leader and Miss Jewell Jarvis is the junior leader.

Almost every one has started pulling cotton instead of picking on account of pickers being so scarce.

The girls played another basketball game Saturday night. I haven't heard the score at the present writing.

SAM PRICE OPENS NEW TAILOR SHOP

Sam Price this week opened a new tailor shop in the rear end of the building occupied by the Woodworth Barber Shop on Main Street.

He is equipped to do excellent work and respectfully solicits the patronage of the people of Tahoka and surrounding territory.—Tahoka News.

Sam or Sambo as we have called him since he was a child, was born and reared in Brownfield and we hope the people of Tahoka give Sam plenty washing and ironing to do.

FARM INCOME

Groups of farmers in several states have recently started a discussion which bids fair to become nationwide in extent, and which may in the end introduce a new means of raising farm revenue. Their proposal is that the farmers of various states organize and petition their respective legislatures for laws to permit "game cropping."

Many farmers in Howard county believe they have an inherent right to the game that lives on their acreage. While they agree that under existing laws this game is the property of the state and that its capture and use should be regulated, they are of the opinion that they should have something to say to its disposal. With them it is not a question of the continuance of free hunting.

but rather a matter of revenue. Most of them are not averse to improving game holdings on their farms, and even rearing game for liberation and stocking, but they do expect some financial compensation for this. The use of their land and woodlots in the killing of game reared and supported by them, they believe, justify a cash payment of some kind the same as they receive from any other crop.

Maybe they are not far from right. The outcome of the present movement will determine that. In states where hunting quail is permitted, it seems that the farmer should be as much entitled to a part of the hunting license revenue as is the state. After all, it's the farmer's grain and fruit that keeps the game alive.—Big Spring News.

Want Help In Fight Against Social Disease

The State Health Department seeks to enlist Parent-Teacher Associations of Texas in the drive against venereal diseases.

Dr. Kratz said the State Health Department has worked out a program of education in its campaign to stamp out venereal diseases, but said the Legislature has not made an appropriation available to carry on that program. He declared that such a program of education together with a spirit of community cooperation will aid in winning the fight that has placed 14 per cent of the insane in institutions, 38 per cent in jails, and has caused 50 per cent of the victims of contract the disease innocently through use of public drinking cups and public towels and other causes.

Declaring a survey of the negroes of the South has shown 20 per cent of the negroes have syphilis, Dr. Kratz told the mothers and teachers this was important to them since negro servants take care of their children, wait on tables and serve the household.

"Everyone should avail themselves of the Wasserman test especially on admission to a hospital." Dr. Kratz declared after stating 50 per cent of the victims contract the disease innocently and do not know they have it.

C. B. QUANTE

AGENT for CONTINENTAL OIL CO.

Like the average freshie, Peggy had to go through certain entrance formalities to make sure she was equipped to become one of the 7,300 students. It's not such an ordeal, however, and we see her above, receiving her card while others await their turns. This card entitles her to attend classes, but for the first few days the excitement makes it hard to get down to the grind. In music class (at right) is she absorbed in that sonata? More likely in that handsome professor!

The day's studies over, Peggy and dormitory mates primp for dates.
