The government could and should cut off thousands of unneeded employees from its payrolls, in all departments, in an effort toward economy. The surplus employees are of course mostly at Washington. Local postoffices are mostly understaffed if anything, but we have been told that up at Washington, they are almost in each others way. If a lot of this surplus could be cleaned out, there would be no need of even talk of a 600 percent raise in second class postal rates. Such a raise would spell the doom of countless small weekly papers, that are not too well financed to start with, and are getting just about as high subscription rate as their little papers will bear. It would even

Determined Little Fellow, Isn't He?

Well, the ladies, bless 'em, have at least one congressman who is in sympathy with the housekeepers of the nation. Evidently this middlewest lawmaker is himself a family man, and understands what the average mother is up against. For that reason, he has undertaken single handed to have the federal tax removed from talcum powder. The ladies with little fellows still wearing three cornered pants, say there is absolutely no connection between a luxury tax on talcum and changing the baby's diapers.

Even the Old He has just a hazy dream of that army that Gen. Coxe led on Washington way back about 1893. Its purpose was Greek to us at that time, but we remember that the sentiment back there in Tennessee was divided pro and con. Later on when we began to study U. S. history, we learned that Coxe and his followers were advocating the printing of an unlimited amount of fiat paper money—to make times good. Financial conditions were pitifully bad at that time. But this first known march on Washington really had the administration as well as the financiers worried at the time. But the amount of money mentioned to make time good by the general would have been merely nothing compared to the amounts mentioned by some of our leaders up at Washington today. The bureaucrats up there now could give Gen. Coxe three lengths handicap and beat him in a hundred yard race. Some people are awfully free with the other fellow's money.

There is a little 4 page, five column weekly political paper printed down at Austin that is just about as radical as they make them. The current issue takes the big dailies, particularly the Dallas Morning News and a Des Moines, Iowa, daily to task for fighting the 600 percent increase in second class postal rates. The little paper says the

TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

By TEX EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service
WASHINGTON, May 12—(AP)—The Navy has been conducting aircraft carrier excursions for congressmen on weekends to give the lawmakers an insight into their operations... and, of course to sell them on the importance of the Naval Air Arm.

A naval lieutenant from Texas helps arrange the trips. Lieut. (JG) George York of Corpus Christi usually accompanies the congressmen on one of the two special transport plans that leave here Saturday mornings for Norfolk, Va.

The congressmen are met by a marine band and admirals, then escorted aboard a carrier. On one week-end they go out on the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt, on the next week-end the USS Midway. These, with the USS Coral Sea, are the three largest carriers afloat.

Aboard the carrier the congressional group is briefed on naval operations as they head out to sea to witness day and night landings, target practice and sea refueling. During a lull the congressmen meet on the hangar deck with members of the crew from their states.

On the Midway the Chief Pay Clerk is Warrant Officer David M. Cates of Corsicana. He not only dispenses pay checks but is in charge of all commissary supplies and menus. He has to figure out how much food is required to satisfy the 2,500 officers and men aboard the ship.

As an example of the quantity of food the ship can carry, one of the huge cold storage vaults is just for fresh eggs, and Personally I question his right to speak for twenty million American negroes, and we remember that since Emancipation, American negroes have taken the part required of them in all wars waging in defense of our land and our liberties. Robeson spoke out of turn and without authority, and we've heard that kind of fertilizer before.—Jimmy Rankin in Ralls Banner.

Eleven Texas congressmen voted for the Wood Labor Bill, and nine against it recently, when it came to a vote. As we understand it, the Wood Bill is a revised Taft-Hartley measure. Congressman Mahon of this district supported the Wood Bill, as did all the West Texas congressmen with the exception of Omar Burleson of Anson and Eugene Worley of Shamrock.

Negro singer Paul Robeson, who became rich and famous because Americans, capitalists and all, have admired and praised and paid him for his great voice, has prostituted that voice and announced his treason against his homeland. In Paris last week he proclaimed in a loud voice that American negroes would never fight against the Soviet Union.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bennett last weekend were their daughter, Mrs. C. L. Sutton of San Angelo, Dr. and Mrs. Morrison of Abilene, Frank Bennett of Plains, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bennett and baby of Lubbock, and Lt. and Mrs. James E. Bennett of Detroit, Michigan. Lt. and Mrs. Bennett have been here several days visiting his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Helms, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bennett of Plains, and her brother, Lt. Bennett and family of Detroit, visited the Helms' daughter, Mrs. C. L. ### SUGGESTS MEN GROW BEARD FOR RODEO

Had an unsigned letter this week from A Subscriber, and since there was nothing harmfully controversial in the letter we have decided to act on his suggestions, and leave results to others. He thinks the old town should go western, and the men grow beards before that event. What do you think?

The reader says he has been a citizen of the town for 16 years, and has always felt interested in happenings of the city. This Ex-GI believes the matter should be talked at the Civic Clubs, C. of C., Jaycees and other organizations. He believes no one will object except the barbers and some wives.

In some places, growing beard is not just voluntary. We visited Coolidge, Ariz. in 1948, and those who refused were thrown in a bull pen in the middle of main street and put on a ration of bread and water until they relented.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Patterson and children, Buddy, Carolyn Ann, and Linda Kay, of McCamey, visited his mother, Mrs. Minnie Patterson, and Mrs. Iva Jones over the weekend.

Muddled Confusion Over "Insecticides"

COLLEGE STATION. —Texas dairymen seem to be over-alarmed about the recent reports on the use of DDT, says James A. Deer, assistant extension entomologist of Texas A. & M. College.

So, let's get straightened out on the DDT situation right now. Nobody has died from effects of DDT in milk. In fact, there aren't even any recorded cases of sickness caused by milk produced from DDT-sprayed dairy cows. When cows are sprayed—or when DDT is used to spray dairy barns—small quantities can sometimes be detected in the milk supply. It hasn't hurt anybody so far, but the food specialists feel that such an important food item as milk should be free of any trace of this material. So the recommendation against the use of DDT is merely a precautionary measure, says Deer.

That's why methoxychlor or pyrethrum insecticides have been recommended in place of the DDT for insect control both on the cattle and in the dairy barns as well. And the warning about feeding DDT sprayed forage to dairy cattle or animal being finished for slaughter still holds. It isn't a good practice, says Deer, since traces of the insecticide may show up in the finished product. Don't give up the DDT altogether though, the entomologist continues. It's still recommended for livestock other than dairy animals and many crop pests as well. If there's still any doubt about what insecticide to use, see your county agent, advises Deer.

FARM QUESTION BOX

by ED W. MITCHELL
Farm Advisor
General Electric Station WGY

- Q. We want to start a chicken farm and have lots of pullets in order to cash in on the fall and winter egg trade. Some say egg production is better and the hens heavier if cooped up all the time, while others claim they do better if left out on range all the time. What do you say?
- A. I think the consensus of opinion is in favor of raising chicks on wire up to six to eight weeks, then on range till five to six months or laying age; then keep them confined to the laying house.
- Q. Will blueberry bushes grow on soil where wild raspberries grow? What fertilizer and care is needed?
- A. Probably not. Blueberries prefer a swampy, acid, mucic but enough drainage at times, so they do not drown, and wild raspberries will grow almost anywhere. Try a few plants of an improved variety and see how they do.
- Q. I would like to know how to clear drainpipes of tree roots. How much of the copper crystals should be used and how is it used?
- A. Copper sulfate solution will kill tree roots so they are easier to remove from a drain tile. Dissolve about one pound copper sulfate or bluestone in two or three gallons of water; stop up end of drain and fill with this solution and let it stand 24 to 48 hours; then flush tile with as heavy a stream as you can. This may result in clogging which will call for a plumber's worm to get the loose roots out and is only a temporary remedy because more roots will come in. The permanent solution is to lay glazed tile with cemented joints.
- Q. Do you have any information on chimneys made of concrete blocks? They are much cheaper than bricks. Will they make a good chimney?
- A. They will make a perfectly good chimney and better than brick if they are properly laid and lined with "blue tile" as every chimney, brick or other kind, should be.
- Q. I have a four-year old Macintosh apple tree that has grown very fast. It had a few apples on it last year for the first time. In the fall I noticed a 1/2-inch split in the bark of the tree, but didn't do anything about it. This week I saw the split had grown to two inches wide and through the body of the tree. What causes this condition and how can I remedy it?
- A. From your description, it sounds like a crack from growing too fast and maybe a crotch in the tree. Bolt the crack shut with a long bolt run through the tree and washers and nuts, and prune to a central leader, so you avoid crotches.
- Q. I have a basement brick house and in the basement the earth is close to the floors which rot the wood. How can I prevent this, and get rid of the rats under the floor?
- A. I think your cheapest and best solution is to lay a cement-sawdust concrete floor with a base of crushed stone for drainage, then ordinary concrete to stop rats; then a coat of hot asphalt or roof paint to check dampness and then the sawdust-concrete top. See any good contractor about it.

SNAKES

Farm and Ranch

THE RATTLESNAKE, largest and most impressive of all of our poisonous snakes, is more widely known than any other. It sometimes attains a length of more than 8 feet, and weighs up to 15 pounds.

In some sections of the country, the oil and venom of the rattlers are converted into medical preparations, and the skins are made into belts, hat bands, handbags and other novelties, and the bones are made into necklaces. However, in most sections they are killed whenever encountered and left where killed.

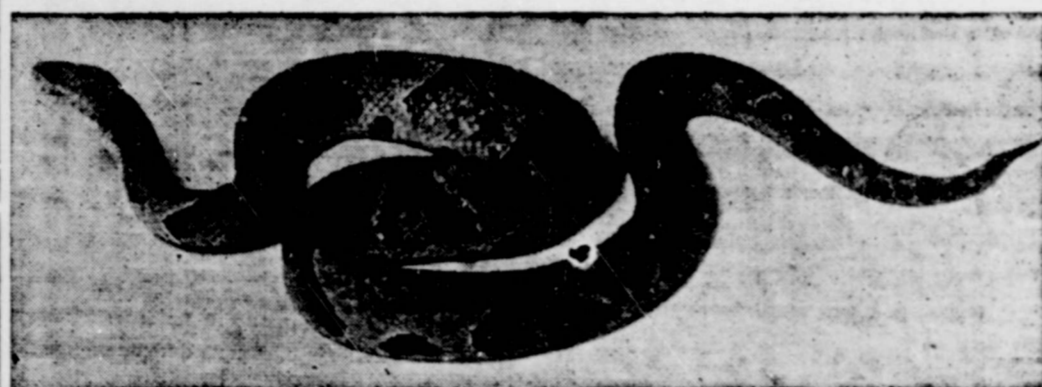

Rattlesnakes usually prefer rocks and hills in which to make their homes. They are also found on high mountains, in dense forests, prairies, caverns, and swamps and have even been seen swimming in lakes, rivers and the ocean.

One popular but erroneous belief is that a rattlesnake cannot strike unless it is coiled, and that it always rattles before striking. True, it generally coils before striking, but such is not always the case, so do not depend on the rattler to always warn before striking.

There are fourteen different species of the rattlesnake found in the United States, all being easily identified by the rattle on the end of the tail.

The diamondback rattlesnake is the largest of all rattlers, and the pygmy rattler is the smallest and usually is a swamp dweller.

THE COPPERHEAD is a medium sized snake, hazel-brown with a darker pattern that resembles hourglasses. The small head is quite distinct from the neck. This reptile is extremely shy and will quickly retreat if given the chance, and will never attack unless stepped upon or teased. However, since the copperhead is very poisonous, and strikes without giving any warning, it has become the symbol of treachery.

The colorings and markings of this snake blend so perfectly with its surroundings, that many rodents, frogs, birds and smaller snakes literally walk right into the copperhead's mouth before even seeing it. Its preferred habitat is around old stumps or decaying logs in brushy, wooded country.

It is the peculiar trait of the copperhead to inject venom into a large rodent and then permit it to go where it so desires while the poison takes effect. Afterwards the cunning serpent goes unerringly to the dead animal, tests with the tongue to see if all is well, then swallows the prey head first. In the case of a smaller animal, the snake injects the poison, then securely holds the victim until rigor mortis set in. While with small lizards, baby birds, mice and insects, they are simply gulped down.

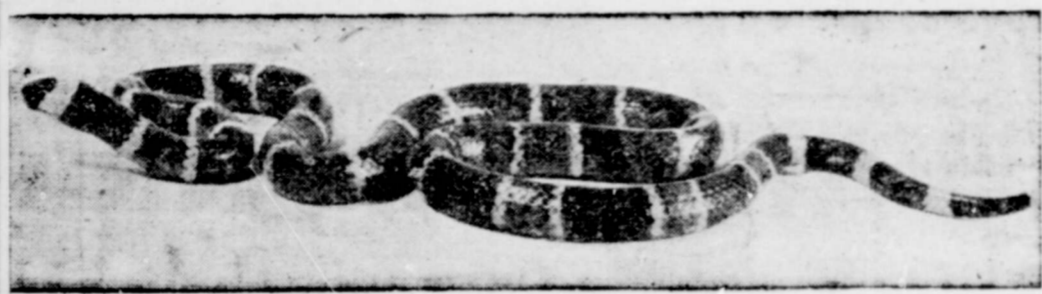

Oil of the copperhead has certain medicinal values, and in some parts of the country the snake is hunted for the oil.

THE MOCCASIN, known as water or cottonmouth, is not easily distinguishable from harmless water snakes. The cottonmouth, so named because of the pulpy white pads to be seen when the reptile opens its mouth, is one of the largest and ugliest of poisonous snakes. It is big, thick-bodied, and sometimes 4 to 5 feet in length. Its color shades from dull olive green to muddy brown. The skin is very rough and the tail blunt. The abdomen is yellow and is marked with blobs of a darker color. The moccasin is most sinister looking with the sullen droop to its mouth. It has a flat head with shield-like scales projecting over the eyes.

This irritable, dangerous snake is usually found in swampy country, along creeks and sluggish rivers, and often seen stretched out on limbs or bushes or rocks, enjoying the warm sunshine.

Many harmless water snakes are eaten by moccasins, and many fishermen have been bitten by moccasins.

THE CORAL SNAKE is among the world's deadliest serpents. It is small, short fanged, and brilliantly colored, bearing rings of black, coral, red and yellow.

This poisonous reptile is easily confused with several species of harmless snakes, but may be identified from the non-poisonous ones by remembering these differences: The coral alone has a black-tipped head, with a yellow band across the center; and the bands, black yellow and red completely encircle the body, whereas non-poisonous brightly colored snakes have white skin on the underside.

Despite the fact that the coral snake seldom attains any great size, it is very poisonous, frequently causing death within a few minutes after having bitten a person. Unlike other snakes, the coral moves uneasily about, then with surprising rapidity strikes, savagely chewing until it has injected venom in several places about the feet or legs.

It is well for every home to have a snake-bite kit, and everyone should know how to use it. It costs but little, and may be instrumental in saving the life of someone who has been bitten by a snake.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Herald obtained the above pictures and descriptive matter about snakes, not that they are all found here. But vacation time starts soon, and some of our young people will be going where these reptiles are found. This article may put them on guard.

Slaughter Dedication To Be Held Saturday

Dedication ceremonies for the Slaughter gasoline plant near here will be held at the plant site Saturday, May 14.

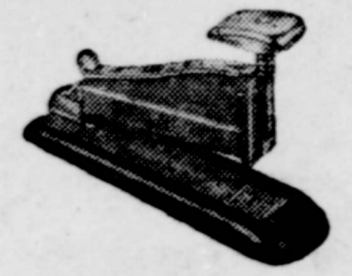

William J. Murray, Jr., Olin Culberson and Ernest O. Thompson, members of the Texas Railroad Commission, will attend the ceremonies, and Murray, the commission chairman, will be the principal speaker. Also present at the ceremonies will be employees and executives of oil companies operating in the Slaughter field, and civic leaders.

The plant is one of a number being built in West Texas to help conserve the state's natural resources. It will extract butane, propane and natural gasoline from casinghead gas produced in the Slaughter field. These products and the "dry" gas will then be sold for commercial use. All of the propane and about half of the butane produced at Slaughter will be used in West Texas.

The plant will be operated by Stanolind Oil and Gas Company for the eight co-owners. Other owners besides Stanolind include The Texas Company, Honolulu Oil Corporation, Magnolia Petroleum Company, The Devonian Company, The Atlantic Refining Company, Saltmount Oil Company and Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation.

STRICKLINLY SPEAKING

Here we come again after letting you rest a week.

Talking about cyclones, and who isn't of late, we heard there was a great discussion in a neighboring lumber yard last week, mostly among men who came from frequent cyclone areas. The talk was mostly about storm cellars. One fellow reared in this section 'lowed as how the best thing to do would be to get out of a " " " country that had cyclones.

And while on the subject of weather that all talk but none do anything about, that hail sure did rip our fine mustard greens patch Friday night. Hope it comes out.

So far as we know, "Square Dance Week" is the latest to be proclaimed, as if there was room for another kind of week. Gov. Jester obliged by naming May 9 to 14.

We note with some interest that a great scientist has discovered "the missing link" in south Africa. We are still old fashioned enough to believe that man and monkey are still a separate and distinct breed of animals.

In fact, we are still thoroughly sold on the story of man as related in the Bible. If the learned Professors want to be the offspring of the monk, that is their funeral.

Found no one in the list of war dead being returned on the latest ship to come in, who lived in Brownfield or Terry county. There were two from Post, and one each from Lamesa, Lubbock, Littlefield, Muleshoe and Tahoka.

About the biggest kick we have had lately over a fool thing, was a local man standing outside and leaning against another store building, with a hat pag from a competitive store with its name high as your hand, on the bag. Knowing the guy standing there pretty well, we asked him in jest if he was paid to do that. He just sorter grinned. But Big Boy Matt Williams out in his car let out a roaring laugh. I've been watching that for some time, Jack he remarked.

By the way, if you wish to receive that Jumbo sized Dallas News of May 22, better see C. C. Primm Drug, that circulates the News here, and reserve yours. Only costs 50c for 400 or more pages. A coke will pay for this plug, C. C.

One of our exchanges apologized to one of the local citizens for calling him a "wolf trapper." It seems the man in question goes after coyotes with dogs, not traps, and should have been designated as a "wolf hunter."

The sympathy of the area press goes out to Mrs. H. G. Richards, wife of the editor of the Anton News, on the loss of her father last week. Her father was 92 years of age. He died at Stephenville and was buried in the family plot at Rule.

The University of Texas reports that they are preparing a laboratory in which they can control the weather. It is to be used in experiments on vegetable life. Well, the weather is beginning to need some controls all over Texas.

WHOOPIING CRANES

Remember the election for June 12, for a bond issue of $2,000.00, for an addition to the school building; also for 25c per hundred additional tax for a longer school term. Don't hit your children a blow, but remember you were once a child yourself, and would probably have a better education had conditions been as favorable then as now. It is in the classrooms of public schools that the destinies of the child is shaped. Let the vote be unanimous for a better school. (Note: The school building at that time was a frame two-story, two class rooms upstairs and auditorium downstairs. The addition was a two-story 'L' with classrooms upstairs and down. It stood just west of where Farmers Gin No. 2 now stands.)

Building permits issued: Building permits were issued at the City Hall last week to S. Yandell for a 30x40 building on Fifth Street, estimated to cost $2500. Also, a permit issued to Terry County Lumber Company to build a 5-room house, with garage attached on E. Hester, at an approximate cost of $6500. And to C. R. For thrift as well as style...
Studebaker's the '49 buy word

Here's what you get for your Studebaker dollar
New decorator fabric upholstery • New body bolts • Self-adjusting brakes • Variable ratio "extra-leverage" steering • Panoramic vision • Seats centered between the axles • Low center of gravity • Glare-proof "black light" instrument dials • Automatic hill holder—available on Champions at slight added cost, but standard on other models. • Automatic overdrive. Climate heating and ventilating, white sidewall tires and wheel trim rings or discs are optional at extra cost on all models.

The clean-lined look of a 1949 Studebaker tells you it's a car with the right build for thrift. You don't see a trace of cumbersome excess bulk in those trim, graceful body contours. There's no gas-wasting surplus poundage in the rugged Studebaker chassis underneath.
This is motoring's most advanced kind of design—it cuts driving costs substantially every mile.
Stop in for a look around and let us give you the names of some Studebaker owners to check with. You'll be amazed to learn what they save.

It isn't every youngster who can get out and dance around a Maypole, and the next best thing is a Maytime party. Pretty favors in the shape of tiny Maypoles can be made of crepe paper and narrow ribbon in pastel shades. Paste nine strips of baby ribbon, nine inches long, to top of a six-inch piece of wire. Join the ribbons to a wire ring, two and a half inches in diameter, leaving ends free. Wrap the wire pole and ring with crepe paper. Trim the ring with tiny petals of crepe paper. Add crepe paper ruffles and ribbon bow to bottom. Three flat candies wrapped in clear cellophane you serve should be sparkling and refreshing as a May day. A fruit juice drink perked up with pale dry ginger ale is sure to make a hit. For those who prefer it, ginger ale by itself, thoroughly chilled, is a most pleasing drink. In keeping with your pastel color scheme, it's a nice idea to serve tinted drinks. A little maraschino syrup or grenadine makes a lovely pink drink. Make your ice cubes of pale dry ginger ale, tinted with food coloring, several colors for a rainbow effect. Here is a delightful drink, simple to make, and perfect for a May party.

Ginger Mint Julep
3 lemons, juice
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
Few drops mint extract
Green food coloring
Pale dry ginger ale

Combine lemon juice, sugar and mint extract. Tint deep green with food coloring. Divide equally among six tall glasses, add ice cubes and fill glasses with chilled pale dry ginger ale. Stir gently. A sprig of mint, if it is available, is a pretty garnish.
