

The Gay Philosopher

By J. W. S.

THE ABILENE paper rates our high school team as the No. 4 class A team in this West Texas region. They rate Brady first, Haskell second, Ballinger third and Cisco fourth. Ranger is rated ninth. From what we have heard about the Ranger team, the team is under rated.

"Cisco holds No. 4 spot despite loss to Brady," the paper says. But the battle that may have been a bi-district prelude, also showed that the Lobos have one of the toughest lines in the west, with Doug Johnson back of it."

REPLAYING last week's game we've heard several Monday quarterbacks express an opinion that Coach Farmer, Lobo tackle, played the best game of any individual player on the field. The Lobos are lucky that their material shortage hasn't kept them from having a top line. It always takes a good line in front for backfield men to stand out.

WAS OUT AT the stadium for a brief look at practice yesterday. Coach Jack Everett was working with some of his youngsters, apparently trying to build up his reserves. Young Lefty Sublett was doing a lot of passing and running, and he looked right good.

COACH SCAT Russell was giving his Wranglers the business, saw one lad running around the field. And one of the spectators told us the boy used an "improper noun" and was being punished for it.

ALL MEMBERS of the Cisco Country Club have been urged to bring their food tonight for the picnic supper following the scotch ball matches. Tonight's affair is taking the place of the regular family night, because everybody will go to the football game here Thursday night. So bring your food and join the party.

MAYOR G. C. Rosenthal handed a copy of the Texas League Municipalities booklet. And a article by Stuart A. McCorkle, professor at the University of Texas, entitled "A Professor Becomes a Councilman" is very interesting. He describes being elected as the most grueling job he ever had undertaken.

The job of being a city councilman is described in detail. He says that nobody ever won an argument with a taxpayer — that a councilman cannot keep his self-respect and be pushed around by a weather vane or place himself in the position of being a grand boy for any individual, group or groups.

The article is good reading. It makes us realize that city councilmen have duties to perform — that they cannot afford the time to settle petty matters that too many of us are inclined to bring to their attention.

The article makes us wonder if we — as citizens of Cisco — appreciate what our councilmen are going through to keep out little things on an even keel. It seems to us that there ought to be an annual "day" on which each could seek out our city officials and school trustees, all of whom serve with little or no reward other than the knowledge that they're discharging a civic responsibility, and tell them we appreciate what they're doing for us. Everybody in favor of having an annual "Appreciation Day" be dedicated to our public officials say "Aye." It's a good idea and every city ought to consider it.

Oberammergau, Germany

BY MINNIE L. HILL

High in the Bavarian Alps, in a little valley bisected by the Ammer River, nestles the village of Oberammergau, known the world over as the home of the "Passion Play." Near this little village of 520 inhabitants is the village of Ettal with its famous Ettal Abbey, one of the most historical and important monasteries in the world; Linderhof Castle built by the mad king, Ludwig II, and the place where Wagner rose to fame; and Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain palace.

The whole country is a succession of rugged mountains and quiet, verdant valleys with small streams winding through them. The climate is healthful and the scenery beautiful. The present Allied Military rest station is at Garmisch-Oberau, only a few miles from Oberammergau. Oberammergau is rustic and idyllic, with narrow, winding streets filled with small, two-wheeled carts, and wandering cattle. The houses are built without regard to street alignment or symmetry. They are mostly of stone, plastered in pastel tones on the outside, and many of them are richly ornamented. Klepperhaus is one of the most famous homes. Built in 1784, it is the original house of the Lang family, famous as a family of actors and woodcarvers. It is highly decorated with biblical scenes, and bears the painted signature of the builder above the front door.

Another famous house is Lueftl-mater Haus, frescoed by the famous painter Franz Zwink, who has covered every window frame, doorpost, and all available wall space with "heaven-inspired" ideas. It has been said of Zwink that he once bet a farmer's wife that he could do a painting before she could finish churning her butter, and he won the bet.

The Pfarrkirche, a Roman Catholic church, is the center of the village, and all community life is centered around it. Constructed in the middle of the 13th century, the High Gothic architecture and rococo decorations of the interior make it a beautiful and awe-inspiring place to worship; and its services are attended by more than a half million people during the passion year. Back of the church, and encircling the entire village, are the mountain peaks, the most imposing of which are Ettaler Mandl and Kofel. These peaks bear huge crosses on their summits — crosses that gleam in the sunlight, and stand out white and imposing in the moonlight. There are many crosses on the peaks of the mountains in the vicinity, each and every one of which marks some event of significance to the people of the valley.

Game Agency To Meet on Sept. 22

AUSTIN, Sept. 19 — A regular meeting of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission will be held in the Baker Hotel in Mineral Wells on Sept. 22 at 9 a. m., according to the executive secretary of the Commission, Howard D. Dodgen.

The policy of holding six regional meetings a year in different parts of the state was begun earlier this year in order to better acquaint the Game Commission with wild life problems throughout the state.

The regular meeting of the Commission is open to the public and a special invitation has been extended to the board of directors of the Brazos River Reclamation and Conservation District.

Dodgen explained that Mineral Wells had been selected for the meeting to enable Commission members to inspect the new fish hatchery in Palo Pinto Co.

The new fish hatchery, located just south of Possum Kingdom Dam, is the 13th link in the chain of state hatcheries located throughout the state. Brief dedication ceremonies will be held at the new hatchery Friday afternoon.

WRANGLERS ARE MAKING FINAL PLANS FOR FIRST '50 HOME GAME

The Cisco Junior College Wranglers will complete their plans today for the opening of the home schedule at 8 p. m. Thursday at Chesley Field against the McMurry College "B" Team of Abilene. Coach Scat Russell planned a long workout to be devoted to polishing activities and to sharpening the offensive weapon. Two new men were in camp this week, and one of them, Jim Gray of Breckenridge, is expected to be in the starting line-up. He is a 205-pound tackle.

Stan Williams Set at Baylor

WACO, Sept. 19 — Stanley Williams of Cisco, Baylor's potential All-American end this fall, is more worried about making the regular Bruin lineup than he is reaping personal acclaim. "I've got to make the team first," was Stan's prompt reply when asked how he felt about his chances of making the mythical honor list. And then he added, "Do you realize who all are out there trying for an end position?"

Unassuming and giving the impression that he has never heard his name mentioned among the 1950 All-American candidates, Williams started reeling off teammates' names and relating their gridiron deeds: "Harold Riley was out last year with a broken leg when I first made the Baylor team, and he's back." (Stan did not mention, however, that his own practiced position is left end and Riley plays at right flank.)

Stan suffered a fractured wrist against Texas last year and was unable to play when Baylor faced Wyoming the following week. Remembering his injury, Williams said, "Watching Terry Downs in my place I wondered if I ever would get back in the lineup — man, was he hot that day!"

Prospects Seen For New Pottery Plant for Cisco

Directors of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce discussed methods of encouraging the development of the pottery industry, considered a proposition to establish an earthenware plant here, and listened to reports from the various committees at a semi-monthly business meeting Tuesday afternoon.

In connection with the immediate availability of a market for top quality eggs and broilers, the directorate is seeking means of encouraging poultrymen to produce these products. They regarded the prospects for poultry as the equivalent of a large industry.

The directorate heard a report that an eastern earthen dinnerware manufacturer is interested in establishing a plant here and referred the matter to its industrial committee. Representatives of the concern are due here in the near future.

A committee report was made on the Christmas lighting program. Details showed that more electric light streamers will be used this year, along with decorative material used last year. The costs of the new program are being studied and reports will be ready soon.

It was announced that the committee met Tuesday and completed preliminary work on a Community Chest organization. The body will have 18 directors, to be announced soon, and will meet in the near future to adopt a program of work and plan the annual finance drive.

A resolution asking that Texas' case be considered in the Tidelands question was adopted and forwarded to officials in Washington.

An audit of the Chamber of Commerce's books has been completed and a report was subject to show that the books are in good condition.

Committee reports were made on the fish hatchery situation, the community gymnasium, and the football fence project.

Manager B. A. Butler reported to the board on the progress of the City Housing Project, pointing out that planning work is in the final stages.

APPLE HARVEST IN FULL SWING IN ORCHARD; BIBLE MAKES CIDER

By the Hired Hand

Several weeks ago, we carried a story of H. A. Bible and his apple orchard near Scranton. This week we visited Bible's orchard and found a large crew really "going to town" picking apples of several varieties.

In addition to the apple picking, we found eight men and women working at the cider mill he had rigged up in the orchard. Mr. and Mrs. Bible are supervising the making of some good old-fashioned apple cider.

We can vouch for the fact that this cider is good in every way. While there we drank a glass that had just been squeezed from the apples. We also brought a gallon back to the Cisco Daily Press office and all the workers had their fill of apple cider and they are still walking straight.

Mr. Bible operates his apple cider mill under the Golden Rule policy, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." He says he would not make anything for others to drink that he would not drink himself.

A long table has been rigged up with several ladies who keep busy cutting all defects out of each apple. The apples are then washed in two large tubs that are filled with fresh water each day. They are then put into an apple cider mill which is powered by a fan belt hooked to a John Deere tractor motor. When this machine cuts the apples up into very small parts, they are then placed in a specially built bucket and a hydraulic press pushes a large steel disc upon the apples to squeeze all the juice from them.

From the looks of everything, Mr. and Mrs. Bible have done everything possible to promote strict sanitary conditions at their cider mill. After the cider is siphoned into one gallon jugs, 1% of sodium benzoate is added to the cider. Sodium benzoate is an odorless and tasteless chemical made of the juice of cranberries and green gage plums. The chemical prevents fermentation and guarantees that the cider will never be intoxicating. It is approved by the U. S. government and does not affect the taste or quality of the apple cider.

At the close of each day, Bible carries the cider which has been made that day and stores it in a vault at the Cisco Ice Company. He estimates that when the cider mill is placed in full swing operation, it will produce about 150 gallons a day.

The apple crop looks mighty good this year at the Bible orchard, which contains over 4,000 apple trees on its 135 acres. Mr. Bible estimates that this year his orchard will produce between 10 and 15 thousand bushels of apples. Most of these apples have already been sold to a San Antonio merchant. However he expects to have enough apples and enough cider to answer the demand of local buyers.

Those wishing to visit the Bible orchard should drive out the new Abilene highway about five miles and then go south for two miles. The large orchard is located on the right side of the road which leads to Scranton. Mr. and Mrs. Bible live at 509 West 6th Street, Cisco.

FARM AND RANCH CHATTER

By LAYNE BEATY

You've heard about the "Hobo Farm" in Rockwall County which has been operated for three generations of Zollners, now run by Henry, who is about 50.

We paid Mr. and Mrs. Zollner and their "boys" a visit the other day.

The "boys" are the workers, most of whom have done a bit of what the world calls "hoboing." They insist that a hobo is definitely not a "tramp" or a "bum." A hobo works his way along, it seems.

C. E. Pierce, the current "chief" of the boys, has been there 18 years, and is now retired from work, on the old age pension. But like others before him, one of whom stayed 50 years, he prefers to live at the Zollner farm rather than with his relatives or elsewhere.

He has a stovepipe hat which he bought from someone for a little change one day, but he likes to put it on and tell people it once belonged to Abraham Lincoln. With gold headed cane and top hat, Mr. Pierce does look a bit like the great emancipator.

Cotton picking is the main work on the Hobo Farm nowadays, but there isn't too much cotton. It's that way all over the northern part of the blacklands. Too much rain, and too many insects, are the reasons.

The best cotton Mr. Zollner has is on the tops of the terraces. In that position, it drained better than the cotton at the bottoms of the terraces.

Across the road, in one direction, is some cotton belonging to Fred Green, who got behind with his cotton chopping on one plot this year to the extent that it grew up in grass.

It may not be entirely an accident that the grassy cotton looks like it will make more cotton than the cotton that has been hoed and kept clean.

The reasoning is that the insects, which came in great number, went to work on the grass instead of the cotton.

Now, this system might not work every time, but it will bear some investigation.

Some recent remarks of ours about mesquite eradication have drawn a rejoinder from Mrs. Elena Zamora O'Shea of Dallas, who grew up along the Rio Grande and who seems to be well versed on the subject of mesquite trees.

She points out that as a young girl she chewed mesquite bark, and gum, and it "immunized my system to Texas ills." She mentions the bean pods, which produce well even in dry years and provide food for humans and for livestock in many areas, and recalls a penitentiary inmate who refused a pardon from Governor Colquitt because he wanted to finish some mesquite furniture he was making in the prison shop.

Termites don't bother mesquite wood, she declares, and the pods don't attract weevils. The ties used by the Tex-Mex Railway when it was built in 1882 were of ordinary mesquite. Mrs. O'Shea relates, and she says some of the earlier natives of this country made a pulp or paper from mesquite.

Apparently she is not entirely in sympathy, therefore, with the scientific research which is being done to learn the best way to get mesquite out of the pastures.

FARMER OF THE WEEK... Young Combat Veteran Earns Reputation On Farm

A veteran of four years of army service during World War II, Ernest Reich has come back home to earn his reputation of being one of the most prosperous young farmers in this area.

Ernest was born and raised on an Eastland County farm. His father was the late Oscar Reich, who operated a successful farm in the Peasant Hill community. His mother is Mrs. Anna Reich of Cisco.

When Ernest was nine years of age, he met a cute little five year old girl who had moved to Cisco from Arkansas. The blond haired blue eyed farmer's son kept admiring the red haired Christine Prange through their school years together in Cisco.

However, it was not until they were both students in CHS that they had their first date. But even then, they did not dream that one day they would become Mr. and Mrs.

Almost every Sunday finds Ernest and Christine Reich and the children in Sunday School and at worship services at the Grace Lutheran Church in Cisco where Christine teaches a class of Junior boys.

Ernest recently enrolled for the fourth year at the Vocational Agriculture School at Romney. He is still in the U. S. Army Reserve Corps and although he would not overseas, Ernest was among the 19 that came back safely to the States.

Soon after being discharged from the service, Ernest and Christine became husband and wife and together they have built a happy home and a successful farm.

With a note of gratitude in his voice, Ernest says: "The thing I admire most about Chris is that she has always been a town girl and she was willing to come out here to the farm," and says that she has been helpful in many ways. For about three years the couple lived in Cisco while Ernest drove back and forth to his farm land. In March of '49 they purchased the farm on which now they live.

Those who knew the place a year and a half ago would hardly recognize it now. What was a little unpainted rundown shack has been converted into a modern dwelling with running water, plumbing facilities, electric lights and butane gas — in fact, all the conveniences of town except a telephone.

Ernest has also built a new barn on the place. Through rotation of crops, fertilization by commercial fertilizer, land terracing for water erosion, and winter cover crops of rye and vetch, he is gradually improving the land. At present young Reich has about 160 acres in cultivation, mostly peanuts and combine maize.

On the Reich farm are also 16 head of black Angus cattle, two Jersey milk cows and some hogs and chickens.

Any visitor in their home can easily detect that Ernest and Christine think more of their children than all of the rest of their possessions. Their little girl, Rebecca, is three years old and going on four; and their son, Timothy, is two years old and a real boy in

Then came the war. After periods of training at Camp Wolters, Camp Hood and Fort Sam Houston, he also trained with his infantry outfit in the mountains of West Virginia and the deserts of California.

Following two years in the U. S., in '44 Ernest and his company were shipped to the European Theater of Operations. There he saw 246 days of front-line duty in the battle of the Ruhr Valley, the Battle of the Bulge, and also helped in a futile effort to break the Siegfried Line. In Boulay, France, Reich received a battlefield commission as lieutenant. He also received the expert combat infantryman's badge, the bronze star, and the ETO ribbon marking six major operations. Of the 290 men in the original company that went
