Burleson and Cox -- From Page One

This nation's progress to the four freedoms. He praised the work of the radio in Europe in spreading the gospels of freedom.

This nation's foreign policies were criticized by Mr. Cox. He said this country was spending $230 per person each year to give $155 per person to European aid countries.

"We are under writing socialism in England but refuse to help the Chinese Nationalist fight communism," he charged. He said the American Legion urged the fortification of Pacific Islands after World War I, but that nothing was done.

Mr. Cox urged that "it is time to put the foreign policy of our nation in the hands of men who will oppose communism and socialism and develop a real American policy, both at home and abroad."

Mr. Burleson's talk was a highlight of the morning session. The morning program opened with a welcome address by Charles L. Cofer of Cisco, to which J. B. Allcorn of Comanche gave the response. A memorial service was directed by District Commander E. L. Jackson. The memorial sermon was delivered by Rev. Paul Stephens. Stanley Webb of Cisco, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Webb, sang "My Buddy."

After the luncheon, Mr. Jackson presided over the business session. John C. Thompson of Mineral Wells, vice commander, discussed membership plans, and the posts elected regional commanders. Stanley Webb of Cisco was named commander for the northeast quarter of the 17th district.

The meeting adopted a resolution endorsing the issuance of $75,000,000 in state bonds for use by the state land board to help veterans buy farms. Another resolution called on Congress to pass a Universal Service military training law. The meeting passed a resolution complimenting the Cisco post for its handling of the convention.

Members of the Auxiliary met with the Legion for the morning session, and they met separately during the afternoon at the Legion Hall. Mrs. Nolan L. DeFord of Gordan, president, was in charge.

Mrs. R. T. Redies of Abilene, state chaplain; Mrs. W. A. Hazelwood of Sweetwater, Mrs. H. N. Lyle of Cisco, national executive committeewoman, and Mrs. Fred L. White of San Angelo, fifth division vice president, appeared on the program. Mrs. Turly Carter of the Cisco unit opened the meeting.

The convention opened at noon Saturday. During the afternoon, Legionnaires enjoyed a stag party at the Country Club and the Auxiliary held a tea at the Legion Hall. An informal dance was held at the club Saturday night.

Two well known men here for the convention were Ward Moody of Austin, state adjutant, and Burton Hackney of Brownfield, fifth division commander.

Mr. Jackson, the district commander, described the meeting as a success from all standpoints. He expressed appreciation to the Cisco Post committees for their cooperation in entertaining and arranging for the convention.

FROZEN PEACHES—During a recent heat wave in Southern California, lovely Irene Martin, left, and Nancy Hale relaxed in icy comfort while the sun beat down in Los Angeles. The two cool cities were working at a film studio, but this is not the manner in which the other employees cooled off.

BUT IS IT?—Visitors to the Industrial Fair in Berlin, Germany, are visibly impressed with this exhibit; it's a piano made out of glass. Another of its features, this one unseen, however, is the fact that the instrument's sound is reported to be just as good as from a regular wooden piano.

To Spade or Not to Spade Depends on These Factors

Whether your vegetable garden should be spaded this fall depends upon several factors. If the garden is on a slope where washing and erosion are to be feared, loss of fertility may result and fall spading does more harm than good.

It does not take much of a slope to cause serious washing during the winter in a cultivated garden; and it will pay to guard against it, wherever there is sufficient difference in level to cause heavy rains, or water from melting snows to run off quickly.

Heavy soils, not subject to serious erosion, benefit from fall spading, because the frost action during the winter breaks down the clods. But such soils should be spaded again in the spring, and if only one turning is to be given them, it is better to wait until spring.

The importance of contour plowing on sloping gardens is much stressed by farm advisors. This means running furrows at right angles to the slope, rather than up and down it. The effect is to check washing, and hold water in the depressions between furrows. The same effect can be produced in spading a garden which is on sloping ground and which must be spaded this fall. Run the trenches which you open with the spade, at right angles to the slope, and leave ridges and hollows which will check the flow of water.

The practice of sowing rye on gardens to be turned under in the spring is good, but the benefit to be derived from the crop depends upon the length of time it has to grow. For best results it must be sown in the early fall, and fertilized with at least two pounds of plant food for 100 square feet. The amount of organic matter added to the soil is relatively small, so that it is seldom worthwhile to disturb producing crops in order to sow this cover crop early.

Where a heavy turf is to be prepared for gardening next spring, it is best to spade it under this fall; since in the spring it would make planting and cultivation so difficult. Fresh manure is best applied in the fall and spaded under; together with any considerable quantity of plant debris which it is desired to use.

Fulvurized limestone is best spaded under in the fall; it not only corrects soil acidity but makes heavy soils more porous. For this purpose cinders, torpedo sand, and ashes are also useful, and best applied in the fall.

While not as important in the fall as in the spring, the rule that soil should not be spaded when it is wet should be observed. When a hand-ful molded into a ball and flattened between the palms crumbles instead of making a mud pie, it is a sign that the soil will break up easily when spaded instead of forming hard clods which will take a long time to crumble.

AIR FORCE MAINTENANCE MEN AT WORK

ENGINE REMOVAL—Maintenance men begin the gigantic task of removing a powerful 3600-horsepower engine from a B-36 at Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex., as a special crane stands ready to lift the motor to a dolly, left, below. After a complete overhaul, mechanics are all set to drop a reconditioned B-36 engine back in place, right.

PLENTY OF PROTECTION—Armed with a 50 calibre machine gun, a guard stands ready in the back of a weapons carrier to keep unauthorized personnel from getting too close to the top secret B-36. Dwarfed by the tail section and huge wing of the heavy bomber, members of the maintenance squadron tear one of six engines apart, discard worn parts and add new ones. After being put-on blocks for testing, engineers must give their okay before the engine is replaced.

Sunday

A VISIT TO PARIS—Two French nuns are shown descending the huge steps in front of the Church of the Madeleine in downtown Paris. They are Sisters of the Order of St. Vincent, in Provence. At the head of the Rue Royale, the church faces the Place de la Concorde, where the guillotine was used for executions during the French Revolution.

Bucking the Line of Scrimmage —

... if we may borrow from football parlance, is the sort of exercise that toughens fibre and prepares the participant for heavy duty ahead. As in sports, so it is with those who attain success in life. The weak falter while the strong survive. Getting the job done is bucking the line, a sure demand of the public in business life. Some call it success, but we like to think of it as a lot of hard work. In a nutshell, that's it!

Holstein Bull Is Available Under County Program

A Holstein Bull by the name of Carnation Madcap Discovery, half brother to the Holstein cow which broke the world's butterfat production record, is available for breeding to dairy cows in Eastland and parts of adjoining counties by artificial breeding, Clyde Hickson, Cisco, inseminator for such work, said recently.

The cow Carnation Homestead Daisy Madcap produced 24,553 pounds of milk testing 4.1% and 1413.6 pounds of butterfat. This is equivalent to 1767 pounds of butter and 16,071 quarts of milk every year.

The North Texas Artificial Breeding farms near Dallas, operated by Dr. D. G. Smoker, recently furnished Hickson with the above information.

There are a total of 19 bulls of the Holstein, Gurnsey, Jersey and Shorthorn breeds available to dairy cow owners in North and Northwest Texas including Eastland County, Hickson said.

Owners of from one to one hundred dairy cows within a 30 mile radius of Cisco can breed their animals to outstanding bulls of the above breeds at a very nominal cost.

The breeding technician can be reached by calling 605 W at Cisco. Hickson suggests that calls be placed prior to 10 a. m. if service is wanted that particular day. He makes up his daily route from calls that come in early in the morning and leaves shortly after this hour to make his rounds.
