TEXAS EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS

A century of phenomenal progress will be celebrated by the Texas public schools during 1954, their centennial birthday year. The 100th birthday of the public school system falls on January 31, but the observance is scheduled to last all year because there is so much to celebrate.

been admitted to the Union less than nine years before. But just eight days later, the Common School Law was enacted. It established the free public school system of Texas.

It was the first mile of a long road — still under construction — that leads to happiness and prosperity. It is a well-traveled road, with traffic increasing at an astounding rate. There are 72,000 more children traveling on it now, for instance, than there were a year ago.

Six periods of peak interest in schools have been selected by the State Board of Education for statewide observance of the centennial, but local groups will decide for themselves if these are of the greatest interest locally.

The six periods are: January 31, official birthday; March 1-7, Public Schools Week; May-June, end of school year; September, beginning of new school year; October, State Fair time; and December, statewide Citizens Advisory Conference on Education.

Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C. — In his State of the Union message to Congress, President Eisenhower recommended that legislation be enacted to provide that a citizen of the United States, convicted in the courts of conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the Government by force or violence, be treated as having, by such act, renounced his allegiance to the United States, and forfeited his citizenship.

On August 15, 1950, I introduced a resolution calling for an investigation to determine the feasibility of deporting subversives, whether they be citizens of the United States or not, to some remote island in the Pacific Ocean. A citizen of this Country can not, for any reason, be deported, simply because there is no country to send him to.

Put these warped minds together on some little island, and let them be whatever they want to be. They might even be self-supporting, and it's a cinch they couldn't swim back. There would be little expense. I saw a number of suitable places out in the Pacific when I was in the Navy, and have some idea of a perfect place.

If this Administration and this Congress really want to find the answer to the treatment of Communists, it seems to me this idea is worth developing. It has been proved that some of the Communists who have been convicted of conspiring to overthrow this Government by force and violence, and who are now in our Federal prisons, have been carrying on outside contacts, probably about as effectively as when they were on the outside.

This same idea was embraced in an amendment I offered last year to the foreign military aid Bill. In fact, the proposal I submitted at that time went further. The money received from foreign countries, in payment for the surplus agricultural commodities, would be used for the same purpose for which we have been sending dollars into these various nations. The idea accomplishes three important things — first, it amounts to trading surplus farm commodities which we can not use, for much-needed raw materials of which we are in very short supply; second, it saves dollars which have been going into these foreign countries; and third, it will relieve the farm surplus problem which is one of the biggest headaches we have.

By relieving the supply of farm surpluses, it should increase the price of future farm commodities.

The Man Who Ignores Obstacles

By HELEN COLBURN

Texas Tuberculosis Association (This is the first in a series of articles on the work of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, Texas Education Agency, in training and placing on self-supporting jobs patients who have been cured of tuberculosis at McKnight Sanatorium, the oldest state-operated TB hospital in Texas.)

SAN ANGELO — There is a man here who is spelling out a long and little understood word in syllables anyone can grasp. The man is Seth Henderson, vocational counselor, assigned to nearby McKnight Sanatorium by the Texas Education Agency's Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The word is rehabilitation. His spelling is in terms of people and jobs.

Texas began learning about the word some 25 years ago when the Division was established by J. J. Brown, who still directs it from the Austin headquarters. In the intervening years it has become pretty well recognized that a physical handicap need not end a person's usefulness.

Crippled persons' abilities are well-recognized. The dextrous hands of a man in a wheel chair are welcomed in many industries. In some lines of work impaired hearing may prove an advantage.

However, a person handicapped by the effects of a disease such as tuberculosis presents a slightly different image in the public eye. In the first place, a person whose tuberculosis has yielded to proper medical care ordinarily appears to be healthy . . . and is. He is likely to remain so as long as he does not overtax his physical capacities. Often this means a change in vocation.

This is where the counselor comes in.

Patients are referred to him by the medical staff when they reach a point in their recovery the doctors feel safe for limited physical exertion. So begins the process called vocational rehabilitation.

Mr. Henderson studies the patient's natural aptitudes, his latent ambitions, work preferences, educational background, personality traits, and tries to fit the whole picture into the best job training he can make available. Sounds fairly easy? Then remember most of these people have spent months and years in a hospital bed. The world they knew has dissolved. Former occupations are closed to them. Home conditions have changed.

It is a cautious, painstaking job to find what they can do and find the facilities for teaching them how to do it. On the latter Mr. Henderson has proved himself a master at making bricks without straw.

He has no funds available for classroom equipment. Yet, in cooperation with San Angelo Junior College he is helping patients complete requirements for high school diplomas and go on to college courses.

He wanted to offer a course in typing. No typewriters. He appealed for discarded ones which residents of the area supplied. He made most of them usable. There were no typewriter tables. He built them of scrap lumber in his home garage at night.

Still there were more students than machines so Mr. Henderson rented four typewriters. But his funds for rental have played out and the machines have to go back.

But more and more patients are applying for this course and Mr. Henderson faces a new semester without at least a dozen badly needed typewriters.

About 20 students are eligible for typing now and another half dozen are on the waiting list. Mr. Henderson speculates a little wistfully on unused typewriters gathering dust in attics and storerooms.

Photo retouching and coloring was an obvious choice for some TB patients. He constructed the retouching stands. Students who used them are now on self-sustaining jobs.

He worked out with a former patient who was an expert shoe repairman facilities for giving training in this work.

A vital gap in his high school and college courses was the lack of basic science laboratory equipment. This he brought to the attention of TB associations which are now equipping the laboratory.

He wants to provide training in office machine repair and the printing trade, which is highly recommended for persons who have been cured of TB. These fields are doubly attractive because they offer opportunities in small towns often bypassed by craftsmen who prefer metropolitan areas. Equipment for the training is not yet available, but Seth Henderson seems to have a genius for making the impossible happen.

If he were not too busy teaching people to earn a living without inviting a new breakdown from tuberculosis, he probably could provide some interesting figures on the earnings of the former patients he has placed in jobs. People who are supporting their families and paying taxes after leaving tax-supported McKnight.

There is an indication, however, in a study of the OVR services in Texas for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1953. Income of 2,090 Texans placed on jobs during that period increased from an average of $6.07 a week to $39.88.

That, in part, is what rehabilitation means.

Disregard the new look at life a man gets in transferring from welfare rolls to tax-payer rolls.

Ignore the new spring to his step, the lift of a new respect in the eyes of his family and community. Forget such intangibles as human happiness and personal satisfaction . . . Those figures are still impressive.

The increased earnings if applied strictly to the patients from McKnight apparently would be considerably more than the state average.

But Seth Henderson is so busy spelling out that word, "rehabilitation," in terms of people and jobs, you couldn't logically expect him to sit down and figure just how much he personally is cutting your tax bill.

If You Are Looking For Trouble —

. . . you are sure to find some of it during the new year. The weather may be bad and speed will increase. Watch out for bombs, walk-outs, government waste, Commissions, economic adjustments et cetera. And the person who buys real estate in 1954 without an abstract is headed for trouble. But 1954 will be about what we make it. If we live prayerfully, drive carefully and act thoughtfully, it won't be so bad. Happy New Year!
