MODERN FABLES

The fable of the Youth who went to College and Came Back

By Ramel

Once upon a time there was a man who felt that he should like to own great flocks of learning and knowledge, so he left his parental roof and took up his abode in a city that boasted a State University. He was accompanied by his ancestors check book and a determination to become an exceedingly wise man.

Four years worked wonders for him. He learned to talk Esperanto and write Greek. He learned how to measure the distance between the planet Jupiter and Peroria, Illinois. He learned how to play football and to fox-trot. And he forgot how to plow corn and chop wood. When commencement day came 'round he was the most honored man in school. And why not? He knew more about transcendentalism than a ward politician knows about shaking hands. He could orate in a manner that would have turned senators green with envy. He could find more values for a simultaneous quadratic equation than his professor in mathematics. The old college president sent word to his home folks that they owned a remarkable son and that the college was proud of him.

Commencement over, this very embodiment of knowledge started out to sell some of his services to the business men in those parts, but greatly to his consternation, he met with very little success. It seemed that the business men he visited wanted a man who could sell goods rather than one who could find new freckles on the sun. In fact, most of them were unaware the sun was freckled. Several of them told him so.

And it came to pass that he was forced to go back to the farm and live with the old folks. MORAL—Education is like some diseases—you never are sure of a complete recovery.

PESSIMISM VS. OPTIMISM

A farmer living near Winstboro was very despondent a few days ago because he feared that it would get too dry before he could set out his potato slips. Rain was then pouring down in torrents.

A workman on a skyscraper in a certain city met with the unfortunate accident of falling from the twenty-seventh story. As he passed the ninth floor in his lightning-like descent, he was heard to say: "Aint hit nothin' yet."—Winstboro Free Press.

President Wilson is putting the thumb screws to Mexico.

Satan seldom collects his pay in advance, but he always sends in a big bill at the wind-up.

The Messenger extends a friendly greeting to all the normal students and welcomes them to our city.

Aside from having the longest days in the year, June is also noted for stocking up parents with a bunch of son-in-laws.

One reason why we do not like an alarm clock is that it starts the day off with a snarl instead of a laugh.

Advertising is the force by which a business may be built or wrecked, and which, in the last analysis, brings to him who uses it just that measure of success that his efforts deserve.—The Fourth Estate.

After all, is this Mexican problem not getting a bit strenuous? —LaGrange Journal.

We believe the word "serious" would cover the situation better. If Uncle Sam goes down there, then it will be strenuous—for the Mexicans.

There is some talk of Cyclone Davis entering the race for the United States senate in opposition to Senator Culberson. This would be the easiest way to eliminate Cyclone. Let him run, by all means.—League City News.

Do not be too cock-sure about eliminating Cyclone. You should remember he is the same gentleman who ran head and shoulders above a dozen or more, defeating them for congressman-at-large. He might turn the same trick in the senatorial race.

The largest profits to merchants are said to come from notions and other small articles that people are willing to pay liberally for. The same might be said of farm products. Usually the largest profits are made on poultry, eggs, fresh fruits, vegetables, butter, etc., products that are not expensive to produce. The returns from these products are cash usually and it is a great help to the keeper of the home in helping supply the necessities that require cash.—Farm and Ranch.

STOCK WILL BE SOLD

The A. S. Porter stock of drugs and fixtures has been ordered sold by the referee in bankruptcy.

The sale will take place this morning (Thursday) at 10 o'clock, and will be conducted in front of the building, going to the highest bidder for cash. The sale will include both stock and fixtures.

A. H. Luker left Tuesday for Corpus Christi to attend the thirty-fourth annual session of the Texas Press Association. Mr. Luker is on the program to discuss the question, "Country Correspondents as Circulation Builders." During his absence Mitchel Roberts of Lovelady will have charge of the office.

A LETTER FROM MR. A. W. CAIN

San Francisco, California, May 15, 1915.

Editor Messenger:

While attending the exposition I saw a representation of the creation of the world. At the beginning of the show the spectators gazed into darkness and void. Supposing that God had spoken, there was light,—the light of a blood red mass that cast a weird glow about the infant creation; and this was the first day. Then the lightning flashed, the thunder rolled, the nebulous heaven and earth were astir, and the firmament was separated from the waters. This was the second day. The waters were gathered together in one place, the dry land arose, grass shot forth from the earth, all manner of trees bore fruit and seed, each after its own kind; and this was the third day. Then the sun, moon and stars were set in the heavens to keep watch over the day and night, and this was the fourth day. The sea began to swarm with fish, the monsters of the deep reared their hideous heads above the waves, land animals sprang from every clump of trees, fowls rent the air with their cries; and this was the fifth day. The sixth day dawned without man on earth, but presently a hillock moved aside and there arose the full grown man Adam. For awhile he wandered aimlessly among the beast, birds and flowers; but finally fell asleep. Then I looked for the manufacturer to bring out his hatchet, chop off a rib and make Eve; but this is just what did not happen. As Adam slept, Eve emerged from a cave and sauntered about him, pretending that she did not see him. Adam soon awoke and peeped through his eyelids at Eve. The attraction for each other became greater, shyness vanished, they rushed together and creation was complete.

I saw Ipsi and Tip, two of Commodore Peary's Eskimo dogs which went to the north pole, and these are the only dogs of the team now living. These dogs are very modest of their achievement. It is true that they bark occasionally, but they do not make nearly so much fuss about a real trip as old Doc Cook did about a fake discovery. Ipsi led the team to the pole. He is about the color of a gray fox, has a head and ears resembling those of a fox, and is fifteen years old. Tip is the larger of the two, resembling a black bear, and is ten years old. He keeps up a constant scratching of himself. I think he has prickly heat, although the men here are wearing overcoats.

Among the foreign exhibits, that of Canada is probably the best. In a large and attractive building is a magnificent display of rich and varied products of that great country. Sketches of field, forests and fine herds of cattle; samples of the various grains for which the dominion is famous; vegetables and fruits in great variety; all kinds of game from the prairie dog to the bull moose; and the finest mineral display I have ever seen. I was especially struck with the great asbestos industry. As you know, asbestos is a mineral fiber that looks somewhat like cotton. The strange thing about it is that it will not burn. Asbestos occurs in a blackish ore which is found in veins from three to six inches wide, and is dug from the earth. The long fiber is picked out by hand; but in order to save the smaller particles, the ore is milled somewhat like gold ore. The asbestos fiber is woven into cloth, pressed into slabs or made into plastering. It is then used in making fireproof safes, lining vaults or constructing anything that must resist heat. Canada produces 85 percent of the world's supply of Asbestos, and sells the finest grade at about twice as much a pound as the farmers of the South received for their cotton during the past year.

The finest exhibit in the palace of manufactures is that of the Simmons Hardware Company. Over the blue hills of the west is the setting sun, the disk of which is made from trowels and the rays from keyhole saws. The stream that comes down from the hills is a series of chains on revolving cylinders, the water fall is made of auger bits, and the waves of the sea are of chains. A sea serpent, cleverly constructed of tacks, glides by so naturally as to deceive the eye. The fence is made of sledge hammers, the windmill of kitchen cleavers, and the light reflectors of spoons. Ornaments of various kinds are made of chisels, hammers, hatchets, axes padlocks and scissors. At this exhibit I saw the original Bowie knife, which was invented and used by James Bowie who gave up his life at the Alamo while rocking the cradle of Texas' liberty.

The exhibit of the cork industry is very interesting. Cork is made of the bark of the cork oak, which grows in Spain, Portugal, Algeria and France. As soon as the tree is about six inches in diameter, the bark is stripped off for the first time. The new bark begins to grow and after about eight years the tree is again ready for stripping. This is kept up for at least a hundred years. Therefore, each tree produces about a dozen crops of bark, and each crop becomes finer in quality as long as the tree lives. The bark usually varies from an inch to two inches in thickness, but I saw a piece that was eight inches thick. The bark is gathered in the country where it is produced and is shipped to the United States in bales a little smaller than a bale of cotton. It is then manufactured into various articles, including bottle stoppers, handles for instruments, inside soles for slippers, paper for cigarette tips, bobbars for fishing lines, life preservers, table pads, polishing wheels, carpets, floor tiling, and paving brick.

I saw a horse that is said to be educated. As a matter of fact, most horses have a little education. They know their masters and understand such words as "get-up", "whoa", "gee", and "haw"; but this horse knows much more. In fact, he seems to understand almost anything that is said to him. A number of handkerchiefs of different colors were hung on a rack and he would take down any color at the word of command. He would open the cash register and take out any piece of money he was told to get, either paper or silver. He was able to add, subtract, multiply, and divide, as well as to read and write numbers. If told to add 5, 9, and 3, he would go at once and get the number 17; if told to multiply 6 by 8, he would get the number 48; and so on. If told to write two thousand one hundred sixty four, he would get the figures 2, 1, 6, and 4. In the same way, any other number up to a hun-

When asked to take off any one of these colors, he would at once untie the correct ribbon. The hookworm exhibit is something new and is probably the most valuable demonstration in the whole exposition. The hookworm disease is centuries old, but little or no attention was paid to it until a few years ago. The hookworm hatches from an egg in the ground and at first is too small to be seen by the naked eye. This little worm is very active and if possible it will get into the human body. It enters by boring through the skin, usually between the toes where the skin is tender and where it can easily stick to the surface of the body. This boring causes a bad itch which we call ground itch or foot itch. After entering the body, the hookworm gets into the blood and is swept on to the heart. From here it goes in turn to the lungs, windpipe, throat, gullet, stomach, and finally reaches the small intestines which become its permanent home. It grows rapidly until it is about half an inch long and resembles a piece of trimming from a finger nail. It fastens itself to the intestines by means of its jaws which look like sharp hooks. While in the intestines, hookworms mate and lay eggs by the thousands. These do not hatch in the body, but are expelled and hatch in the ground just as did the parent worms. The demonstration shows just how the hookworm gets into the body, how it runs its course, and its disastrous effects upon the race. Many a good man is accused of being lazy or "born tired" when the trouble really is that hundreds of hookworms have planted their fangs in his vitals and are not only sucking away his energy but are robbing him of life itself. Examinations have shown that about one-third of the people in the South are more or less affected by hookworm. The treatment for the disease is simple and up to the present time the average cost has been $1.28 for each cure.

My next letter will be written upon the ocean, and I hope to tell you something of life on the mighty deep.

Two Very Poor Reasons

If some housewives inadvertently use baking powder which contains alum it is Usually for two reasons—lack of knowledge as to what it is made of, or because it costs less than a standard brand like Royal Baking Powder, which is made from cream of tartar.

There is no longer any reason for lack of knowledge, since the label on every baking powder can shows in plain English just what it contains. If the label on your can names alum as one of the ingredients, and you are in doubt about its unhealthfulness, your doctor can enlighten you.

As to the lower cost, there is very little difference in practical use, about one cent for a whole cake or pan of biscuits—a mere trifle when you consider the vast difference in healthfulness in favor of food made with Royal Baking Powder.

LETTER FROM ANTRIMITE

Antrim, June 5.—The good "old summer time" is here in dead earnest, and everybody is busy getting their crops in shape. Corn is simply fine, and with another good rain soon there will be a splendid feed crop made. Cotton is small and late, but there is yet plenty of time to make cotton. The sweet potato patches are beginning to look good. Everyone seems to be trying to make something to live on, which is a sensible thing to do.

Our Sunday school is just doing fine and the attendance is good. We feel proud of this as we realize that it is one of our greatest responsibilities to God to bring our children up right. This cannot be done if we permit our boys to ramble over the fields and through the woods, going in the creek and chasing rabbits on Sunday. We have heard men say that they had rather their boys were in the creek than to be in Sunday school, but let me say that the man who takes that position knows about as much about true Christianity as a mule does about astronomy.

W. R. Durnell preached at Rocky Mound Sunday at 11 o'clock. He was accompanied by his brother, John. He will preach there again the first Sunday in July.

Little Mary Evylin Wynn stepped in the fire a few days ago and burned her feet very badly. She is getting along very well at present.

We should have said in our last letter that the debate between Antrim and Rocky Mound was held at the latter place the third Saturday night and resulted in another victory for Antrim. Messrs. Joe Miller and Rev. North defended Rocky Mound, while G. L. Waddell and John M. Warren represented Antrim.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Taylor entertained the young people Saturday evening with songs and games. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all.

NORMAL OPENS MANY STUDENTS

The Houston County Summer Normal opened in Grapeland Monday morning with an enrollment of 103 students, which is a record for attendance in this county. We understand that less than eighty enrolled the opening day at Crockett last year. Mr. Jackson, the secretary, expects the enrollment to be increased to at least 120 by the end of the week.

Monday night on the school campus the students and faculty were given a rousing reception by the citizens of Grapeland. Getting acquainted was made easy by every one wearing a badge with their name prominently displayed. The campus was well lighted, and furnished an ideal place for such a gathering. There was plenty of punch served by young ladies, and after this the crowd repaired to the auditorium, where Mr. W. A. Riall, on behalf of the people of Grapeland, eloquently welcomed the visitors to our city and assured them we were glad to have them with us. The response on behalf of the students was delivered by Mr. C. W. Butler, who assured us that the students were glad to accept Grapeland's hospitality.

County Superintendent Snell, who came up from Crockett to attend the opening of the normal and encourage the teachers and pupils in the great work they are doing, made a short address along this line of thought. R. G. Cyphers, who is conductor of the normal, caught the crowd with his witty remarks. Some young ladies delighted the crowd with a good song, after which the meeting adjourned.

Grapeland is glad to have the normal; is glad of the opportunity to meet those who are doing so much for the educational advancement of Houston and adjoining counties. To meet and mingle with these people, who are engaged in such noble work, will be an inspiration to us that will advance the educational interests of our own town and community. We bid the students welcome and bespeak for them a pleasant sojourn in our little city.

BAD BOYS TO BE STUDIED

Pittsburgh Newspaper Thinks the State of Ohio is on the Right Track in the Matter.

The state of Ohio is about to revolutionize its methods in dealing with delinquent children, and incidental thereto adopts a revolutionary innovation in the selection of public employees. Instead of committing delinquent children directly to an institution, the courts in Ohio will hereafter commit them to a board of administration, which will have them detained by a special department, to be known as the bureau of juvenile research, until their mental and physical condition is determined and the proper treatment and institution decided.

Realizing that the success of this experiment depends upon the efficiency of the officials of the bureau, the state civil service commission has issued a call, open to any resident of the United States, to take part in a special examination for these positions, a psychologist, an expert in pathological research, diagnostician and field and laboratory workers. Possibly the commissioners may expect to hear from the politicians and job seekers about this going outside the state, but there can be no doubt of the public approval of the principle of getting the best possible persons for these expert positions. There will be a great deal more confidence in the work of the Ohio bureau of juvenile research if the operations are conducted by officials selected in expert competition than if the places had been filled in the more familiar way by politicians rather than psychologists and pathologists. —Pittsburgh Dispatch.

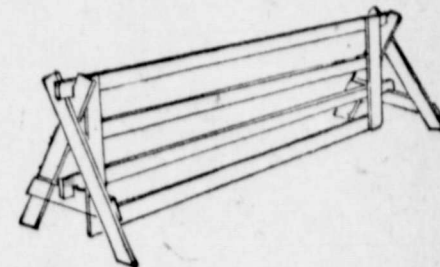

FENCE FOR SHEEP PASTURES

All the Extra Care and Feed Given to the Farm Flock Generally Yields Greatest Returns.

(By E. L. SHAW.)

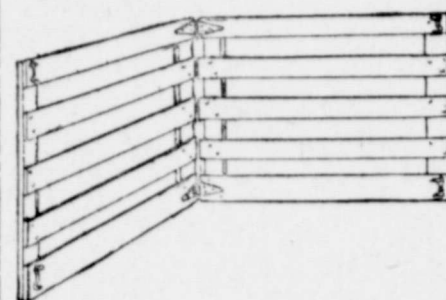

The lots and pastures upon a sheep farm require considerable fencing. Lack of adequate fences has been one factor in the decline of the sheep industry in many localities. A woven wire fence is the cheapest and most satisfactory, all things considered. If it must be dog-proof the meshes should be close enough together to prevent the dogs passing through, and it should be at least five feet high, which is a desirable height for all outsteric smell by which the ewe recognizes it. She may then refuse to claim it, and the trouble begins. By having some panels or hurdles at hand the ewe and lamb may be quickly placed by themselves and a close watch can be kept upon them to see that all is well. The length of time they should be kept in this claiming pen will depend upon how long it takes the ewe to become reconciled to her lamb. If the ewe persists in butting the lamb away, she should be tied so as to allow the lamb to suck. This soon brings about agreeable relations between the two. This is but one of the emergency cases where it is advantageous to have portable panels handy. Temporary pens are conveniently made of some light material and consist of two sides that are hinged together, and set up in a corner of the barn or a fence corner by the means of hooks. Rows of these can be placed along the sides if necessary. They have the advantage that they take up little room and they can be removed when not in use. Sorting pens and lots are very useful, especially if the flock is of any considerable size. It is often desirable to separate the different classes of sheep. A number of pens should be available for this purpose. A chute, with a gate that swings either way, saves much time and trouble in separating the sheep. Portable panels are very useful for this purpose.

Hinged Panels for Temporary Lambing Pens.

side fences. Care should be taken in putting up the fence to see that the wire is close enough to the ground to prevent dogs from crawling under it. For temporary fences there are a number manufactured from 32 to 42 inches high. A 36-inch fence is very satisfactory, and is used extensively. An advantage of wire fencing is that neither sheep nor dogs will jump it so readily. Barbed wire is undesirable, except at the top, because the sheep tear out their wool upon the barbs.

Hurdles are a great aid in handling sheep under certain circumstances. They are convenient in pasturing on rape and similar crops where the sheep are to be confined to a portion of the field. This is desirable in that it prevents the sheep picking out the choicest pasture first and leaving the poorest for the last when, as a matter of fact under fattening conditions, the best should be available.

Fencing off part of the field in this way also makes more frequent the rotation of pasture. In England netting has largely taken the place of hurdles. Both cord and wire netting are used, the netting being fastened to temporary stakes by ropes or staples. Sheep farming in this country has not been intensive enough to warrant a very extensive use of these appliances, but they will be more in evidence in the future. Hurdles or panels are very convenient in making temporary pens. Light hurdles that can be handled readily should have a place upon every sheep farm. They are well worth their cost. Every sheep owner should be prepared to make pens for his sheep on short notice.

After lambing, some ewes refuse to own their offspring. If left loose the lamb wanders about, becomes lost among the flock, and loses its char-

Recognizing the importance of newspapers to the commonwealth, realizing that the press is the most potent molder of public opinion, and that a free and enlightened press is an important factor in all progress worth while, the regents of the University of Texas established last year a School of Journalism, where the youth of the state of journalistic ambitions might receive competent instruction, be grounded in the best traditions of journalism, and inspired with the highest ideals of service. The school enrolled fifty students during the first year. AN APPEAL TO THE VOTERS

On the fourth Saturday in July, which is the 24th day of the month, there will be an election in Texas on certain proposed amendments to the constitution.

One of these amendments I am calling special attention to, because of its far-reaching importance and the fact that it has been demanded by the voters for years. I refer to the Sackett resolution No. 34, which provides for the separation of the A. & M. College from the State University. For several years this question has been discussed and all classes of our citizens, political, industrial and business organizations have adopted resolutions favoring it. Repeatedly the democratic party assembled in State conventions has spoken in the strongest terms in favor of it. The Farmers' Union, in their county, district and State meetings, the Cattle Men's Convention and the Farmers' Congress have for years adopted resolutions favoring the separation of these two schools. It is apparent to all unselfish friends of higher education that the best interests of the State will be subserved by separation, since the two great schools have been ordained to occupy quite different spheres in the State educational program.

This amendment, if adopted, will establish the permanent home of each of these schools at the place where they are now located. It will establish the Medical branch at Galveston for all time, and the school for negroes permanently at Prairie View. As it is now, the legislature by an act of law can move the Industrial school for girls from Denton and locate it at Austin, or elsewhere. This amendment provides that it shall remain at Denton. It is believed by many that the legislature has the power now to move the A. & M. College from Brazos county, and consolidate it at Austin with the State University. We do know that under the constitution as it is now constructed by some that appropriations made by the legislature for permanent improvements at the A. & M. College are never safe and that on this account alone the College is handicapped, and its very existence threatened.

So deeply concerned am I in the separation of these schools and the independence of the College, and so thoroughly convinced am I that the adoption of the separation amendment would redound to the welfare of education, from the highest to the lowest, that I am going to give my service to the cause from now until the election. I sincerely trust that the voters of Texas will interest themselves in this amendment and give it that consideration at the polls, which I am convinced it justly merits.

ADVICE FROM THOSE WHO KNOW

Read what those who know say of the young man's opportunity with Cotton grading and Classing properly mastered. The wealth and independence in the South is in its cotton. Let every young man better prepare to get the benefit of this independence and wealth.

Tyler, Texas, May 6, 1915.
Tyler Commercial College,
Cotton Classing Dept.,
Tyler, Texas.

Gentlemen:
I had the pleasure of visiting your cotton classing class and observed the work you were doing. Having had several years experience in the cotton business, both as buyer and seller, I believe I am somewhat a judge, and in my opinion you have a very complete department. You have every facility to intelligently instruct in the work, and no young man can find a more opportune time and a more practical place than in your institution.

Expressing my opinion further, I believe this department is more practical and far-reaching in its effects than any other department of your great school, and every young man owes it to himself to take advantage of the opportunity to thoroughly equip himself along this line.

Yours very truly,
Robt. Allen.

Mr. S. Bruck, manager of the large Mayer & Schmidt department store remarked to the president of the Tyler Commercial College:

"In putting in your cotton grading and classing department you are doing one of the greatest things for this country that could have been done."

Tyler, Texas, May 6, 1915
During the year of 1913 I studied the classing of cotton at the A. & M. College of Texas, finishing the work in the early part of 1914. I liked the work so well that I decided after returning to my home to take a review in the Tyler Commercial College, Cotton Department, which I did, and it gives me pleasure to say I find their teaching more efficient and satisfactory in every way. Their course of instructions is much more complete, and in my opinion, covers all the ground thoroughly.

Tyler Commercial College,
Tyler, Texas.

Gentlemen:
We wish to congratulate your school upon installing as a part of the different lines of business taught by you, the subject of Cotton Grading and the keeping of correct cotton records.

A young man entering any class of business in the South is bound to come in contact, directly or indirectly with the problem of handling cotton, and if he is familiar with the handling of the staple, keeping proper records and is able to correctly grade his product it will certainly make him more efficient and make his services more valuable to his employer.

As a distinct line of business in which to engage, it is the writer's judgement that there is no more promising field of activity open to the young man of today. There is probably a greater scarcity of well equipped competent cotton graders than in most any other line of business in the South. The losses sustained by the cotton farmer and by the merchants who handle cotton in the course of their

You Need a Tonic

Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act gently, yet surely, on the weakened womanly organs, and helps build them back to strength and health. It has benefited thousands and thousands of weak, ailing women in its past half century of wonderful success, and it will do the same for you. You can't make a mistake in taking

The Woman's Tonic

Miss Amelia Wilson, R. F. D. No. 4, Alma, Ark., says: "I think Cardui is the greatest medicine on earth, for women. Before I began to take Cardui, I was so weak and nervous, and had such awful dizzy spells and a poor appetite. Now I feel as well and as strong as I ever did, and can eat most anything." Begin taking Cardui today. Sold by all dealers.

business transactions, from incorrect grading is almost inestimable; but these losses in the course of time can be practically eliminated and this enormous amount saved by such schools as yours, established through courses in "grading" and equip the young business men of the South with this knowledge.

We predict much success for this department of your College, and unhesitatingly advise every young man entering your school to avail himself of its advantages.

HONOR OF CITIZENSHIP

The profound sorrow and deep regret expressed all over our country that one of the warring nations should destroy a passenger ship carrying neutrals, many men, women and children who had no hand in the war and no means of escape, has served to intensify the horrors of war. It has brought to the attention of the American people what war really means.

In his patience, yet firmness and keen sense of justice, President Wilson has the sympathy and support of the people of this country. From ocean to ocean and from Canada to the Gulf, people have expressed their sympathy to the president for his patience and fairness, sincerely desiring that our country remain at peace with the world in order that our ideals of citizenship may be a help to the peoples of the world. Surely we have nothing to gain in war. All that the American people should desire is a chance to remain at peace and pursue their occupations in accord with civilized rights and prerogatives.

Let our people be calm and considerate while the delicate diplomatic situation is handled. President Wilson and Secretary Bryan may be trusted. They will exhaust every honorable, legitimate means to save the American people from war. Right and justice will finally prevail. Honor will merit fairness; self-respect will triumph.—Farm & Ranch.
