Lampasas, Texas, October 26. To all my friends back in good old Houston county, and especially those who read the Grapeland Messenger, will say that since my last letter to the Messenger, I have drifted about fifty miles to the south west of Gatesville and find myself stopping in one Relieves backache, swelling of the oldest towns in this part of the feet and persistent headache Texas. hours she would be freed from all the consequences of our rash act. It was the reaction which had given her such high spirits, the exhilarating sense of escape, a relief so profound as to cause her to even forget her father's death. This was the conception which took possession of me, obliterating every other possibility.

At first the thought served to numb my faculties, and I rode forward with lowered head, all interest in life dead within me. Then pride came to the rescue, and I straightened up in the saddle. She was my wife-that slender, laughing girl! Of course I would never claim her; no word would ever pass my lips to bring her pain and humiliation. No one would ever know -excepting us two. But if I did speak she could not deny, and she must realize why I had kept silent, why I had even gone down to death with closed lips.

And then-there was yet a chance! While there was life there was hope. and I was soldier enough, and sufficiently reckless, to accept of any opportunity. There might occur a relaxation in the vigilance of the guard, some delay at Lewisburg, possibly a forwarding of me to headquarters at Charleston-some sudden, unexpected opening through which 1 could squeeze. Suddenly the tract attention, and she smiled up into his face, as if in answer to some witty remark. This was the last glimpse I had as we clattered on down the At the courthouse steps the sergeant turned me over to the officer of the day, and I was marched into the basement. The old jail had evidently been burned, for I could see the roof had fallen in, and the stone walls were blackened with smoke, but the lower story of the courthouse was bastile enough, the windows barred, the walls strong and thick. The place in which they thrust me had at one time protected the county records, was perhaps nine feet square, with one narrow window high up in the wall, and an iron door. The floor and wails were of stone, and the ceiling beyond reach. A soldier threw in a box, to be utilized as a seat, together with a couple of blankets. "There, Johnny," he said carelessly, "I guess you'll stay here till you're wanted. There'll be some grub along after awhile." The iron door clanged behind him, and I heard the sharp click of a heavy lock, then regular steps passing back and forth across the stone floor, proof that a sentinel had been posted. There seemed little need of one as i sat down on the box and stared disconsolately about. The window afforded ample light, but no hope of escape. The shelves on which had once reposed the records of Green Briar county were of iron, as a safeguard against fire, with a sheet of iron at their back, concealing the wall behind. My heart gave a sudded hap. As a boy I had played about this building, invading every book and corner. I could even recall when those shelves were first installed, and I had sat almost where I was sitting then, and watched the workmen bolt them into their present position. It was before my father bought the place out on the ridge, and we were living only a block down the street. Those shalves rested against the big chimney, and Ramsay." at the knowledge that within a few there was an opening leading into it, I stood motionless a moment, en-

If I could once get in behind that iron plate the way out would not be Pickney, and respectfully decline. I such a hard or difficult one to travel.

I Gave Small Heed to the Glance of Satisfaction He Gave Me.

The chimney was large: I recalled standing upright in the fireplace on the floor above, and looking up to where I could perceive the light of the sky. It was constructed of irregular bits of stone, which would afford lodgment for the feet, and grip for the hands in climbing-no easy job, of course, but not impossible for one reckless enough to make the attempt.

But how could I hope to pry loose that protecting sheet of iron? Where could I discover a tool to give me the necessary leverage to dislodge those bolts? Could one of those supports be unscrewed or twisted off? If so, it might prove strong enough for the purpose. I stepped hastily across, and tested two of them with my hands, but found both these firm and immovable. dare not exercise much force in fear the noise might be coerieard, and besides it was time the failer brough me in some food. So I went back to my seat on the box, and waited, my eyes on the iron, and my mind eagerly working on some plan which seemed feasible. I had a half dozen keys it my pocket, and a broken cartridge shell in my belt-nothing else avail clean. A careful survey of the floor down again-there was someone at the door.

It opened, and a soldier stood aside while two men entered. One was Fox, must act now, if at all. the other a heavy-set, gray mustached

"I can only thank you, Colonel will not answer your questions, sir." Fox gripped my arm, and as I glanced at him, I was surprised to see a mist of tears in his eyes.

"Wyatt," he exclaimed, making no pretense at calmness, "do not be hasty in your decision. I would not counsel you to any act of dishonor, but surely some compromise is possible. I not only ask you to consider the situation from your own standpoint, but also from ours. I accompanied Colonel Pickney in the hope I might have some influence." He hesitated an instant, as though doubtful of his words. "Perhaps I should say, my boy, that another urged me to come."

"Another?" "Yes-a lady."

My head swam, my heart beating like a triphammer

"Do-do you mean, Captain Fox, that she actually asked you to urge me to save myself by such an act?"

"No, Wyatt; not that. She requested me to accompany Colonel Pickney, and do all I could on your behalf."

I drew a long breath of relief, my mind clearing, my resolve strengthened. She did care then! Gcd knew I was glad; and she had not urged me to an act of dishonor. And I knew, I understood-she wished me to realize that she was not indifferent to my fate, that her interest was not dead; and she had sent the message to me by the only man she could trust to rightly deliver it. My heart lightened, and my lips smiled.

"I thank you for your message, Captain Fox," I said sincerely, clasping his hand. "Tell her how glad it made me. But it cannot change my decision; I will answer no questions."

"This is your final reply, sergeant?" the colonel's voice had hardened; his eyes had lost their friendliness. "Good day, sir."

The door opened to the rap of his knuckles, and the two men passed out, neither one glancing back at me. The sentry asked a question, and I heard Pickney answer:

"Yes, set the food within, but let no one communicate with the prisoner except on my written order. I will have another sentry posted above."

A soldier entered, bearing a camp ration and a pannikin of water, and placed these on the box. He said nothing, and the colonel stood beside the door watching until I was left alone. 1 put the food on the floor untouched and sat down on the box. I wanted to live; I was young, ambiable. not indifferent; trusted me to accomplish all that a man could. And I I ate the food, not from any sense of hunger, but because I needed it to keep up my strength. I was alone, unwatched; there was no place where an eye could peer in on my movements. I dragged the box over to the window, stood on it, and managed to dislodge the bit of iron entangled in the grating. It proved to be part of a discarded horseshoe, flung there carelessly by some farrier and contained three thin-headed nails. With difficulty I loosened one of these and fitted the sharp edge into a screwhead of a shelf bracket. The nail afforded little purchase, and I tried three of the screws before finding one loose enough to turn. By this time my fingers were numb and bleeding, yet the final success set my heart throbbing with exultation. The removal of the screw, which by chance was the lower one, enabled me to insert the remnant of horseshoe beneath the bracket iron. Slowly,

A TALE OF CIVIL STRIFE

CHAPTER I-Confederate Sergeant Wyatt of the Staunton artillery is sent as a spy to his native county on the Green Briar by General Jackson.

CHAPTER II-Wyatt meets a moun-taineer named Jem Taylor, with whom he rides to a house beyond Hot Springs.

CHAPTER III-In the house Wyatt and Taylor meet Major Harwood, father of Noreen and an old neighbor of Wyatt, who is sent to bed while the two other men talk. Wyatt becomes suspicious, and finds that Taylor has murdered Harwood and escaped.

CHAPTER IV-Wyatt changes to the U.S. cavalry uniform he has with him, and rides away in the night, running into a detachment of Federal cavalry, to whom he identifies himself as Lieutenant Raymond, Third U.S. cavalry, by means of papers with which he has been pro-vided. Captain Fox finds Harwood's body and follows. Taylor's trail. and follows Taylor's trail.

CHAPTER V-Fox and Wyatt believe Taylor to be old Ned Cowan. The de-tachment is ambushed. Wyatt escapes to the Green Briar country and goes to Har-wood's apparently deserted home.

CHAPTER VI-Wyatt finds Noreen Harwood alone in her home. She does not recognize him, and he introduces him-self as Lieutenant Raymond.

CHAPTER VII-Parson Nichols comes to the house and tells Noreen of her fa-ther's death.

CHAPTER VIII-Wyatt forces Parson Thichois to confess that he has been sent in advance of Anse Cowan, who proposes to marry Noreen at once, and so quiet title to the land in dispute between the Cowans and Noreen's dead father.

CHAPTER IX-Anse Cowan and his gang arrive and find the preacher bound in a closet. Wyatt and Noreen have con-cealed themselves in the attic.

CHAPTER X-The Cowan gang ran-sacks the house but fails to find the hid-den couple. Wyatt tells Noreen who he is.

CHAPTER XI-Wyatt and Noreen return to the second floor and await the next move of the gang, forcing the preacher to silence.

CHAPTER XII-Unable to escape while the gang is on the first floor and around the house, Wyatt proposes to marry Noreen to protect her from Cowan. She accepts and Wyatt forces the preacher to marry them.

CHAPTER XIII-Cowan's gang is driv-en off by Federal troops, one of whose officers is the real Lieutenant Raymond. Wyatt is trapped, though Noreen attempts to defend him

"Just a moment, please," and the interested lieutenant interrupted him by a hand on the shoulder. "I believe we have never met before, but I presume you are Captain Fox?"

The latter turned, a trifle indignant at the other's manner.

"I am; what of it?"

"Only I am naturally somewhat interested in your identification of this fellow. To us he has claimed the name of Wyatt, but you address him as Raymond. What Raymond did he represent himself to be?"

Fox stared about in surprise at the faces surrounding him, scarcely able to collect his scattered wits.

"Why," he answered, as though half in doubt of his own words, "Lieutenant Charles H. Raymond, Third cavalry, on recruiting service. I-I met him at Hot Springs, and he showed , me his papers. Isn't-isn't he all right?"

"Well, you can draw your own conclusion," returned the lieutenant, his thin lips curled in a sneer, "for I am Raymond, Third cavalry. This man is a rebel spy."

Escape was impossible; I knew that, for I had considered the chances. Both Whitlock and the lieutenant-the latter with revolver drawn-stood between me and the windows. The hall without was thronged with troopers. and, although I might attain the open door, that would be the end of it. I saw Norcen rise to her feet, her startled face turned toward me, but I held my nerves firm, and managed to smile.

The thought of possible escape, of any means of defense, never occurred to me. All my memory retained was that last glimpse of her slender figure at the window and the silhcuette of her averted face. What was her thought of me? In the moment of her first surprise she had sprung to my defense, but as soon as she could consider the conditions, her whole nature would turn against meeven now the feeling of disgust had come. She had turned coldly away. hating the very sight of me-staring out of the window until I should disappear, dreading lest I prove cur enough to boast of our relationship. Well, the lady need not fear that. My fate would be swiftly and surely settled-a drumhead court-martial at Lewisburg, a verdict of guilty, and a firing squad at dawn. No one need ever know, for the preacher's lips could be easily closed. And perhaps Lieutenant Raymond-Bah! my teeth clenched angrily at thought of him, and I tramped on down the stairs to the gruff order of the sergeant.

There were three other prisoners, sallow-faced, roughly dressed mountaineers, one wounded in the arm, but I was kept separated from them with a special guard. Within ten minutes the entire command was in saddle and moving slowly northward. The lieutenant rode in my rear for the first mile, watchful and suspicious. Noreen was riding in advance of the column between the two captains. A gray, circular cape concealed her slender form, but I could observe the frequent turning of her head as she apparently conversed vivaciously with her attentive escorts. Her show of utter, heartless indifference hurt and blinded me. I actually believed the girl was glad of my capture; that she rejoiced

"I would far rather meet you as I did before," he said, "but war gives us no choice."

"I took my chances and have no complaint," I answered heartily, for 1 liked the man. "I presume there is no doubt as to my fate?"

"I fear not, but the matter is not in my hands, for which I am grateful. This is Colonel Pickney, in command."

I bowed, and our eyes met. The face confronting me was strong and resolute, its expression that of regret.

"A very young man, Captain Fox." he said to his companion, "which fact adds to the unpleasantness of such duty. Your name is Wyatt?"

"Yes, sir."

"You claim connection with the Confederate service-an officer?"

"A sergeant of artillery, sir." He cleared his throat impressively.

"You have the appearance of an intelligent man, Sergeant Wyatt, and must realize the seriousness of your position. I am sure I need not dwell upon the fate which befalls a spy when captured by the enemy. In your case there seems to be no defense possible-you wear Federal uniform; were within our lines, and papers have been found on you of a most incriminating character. It is my understanding you make no denial."

"None, whatever, sir; it would be useless."

There is always a way in which mercy can be extended," he went on earnestly. "Doubtless you possess information which would be of the utmost value to us. I shall gladly use my influence on your behalf if the circumstances warrant."

I glanced aside at Fox, and caught the look of appeal in his face; then back into the expectant eyes of the colonel.

"You have authority to make me this proposition ?" I asked quietly.

I worked that bit of iron back and forth, tearing it free, until I knew that another wrench would separate it entirely from its fastenings. Then I forced it back into place again, pressed down the loosened screws, carefully gathered together the slight debris littering the floor, and cast it into a dark corner. The bracket seemed as solid as ever. Now I must wait for night.

REAR ADMIRAL M'LEAN

Rear Admiral Walter McLean, commanding the Fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, has been put in command of the American naval forces off Vera Cruz. His flagship is the battleship Louisiana.

Sabetha, Kan .- Thirty years ago the prairies of Nemaha county were populated with coveys of quail and flocks of prairie chickens. Professional hunters came from the river cities and killed them for market.

These destroyers counted it a poor day's work of 200 birds. These were drawn when killed and shipped daily. On the city markets the chickens brought $2 a dozen and the quail $1. The chickens have been exterminated from the county and a farmer who possesses a covey of quail these days considers them so valuable as insect destroyers that he prosecutes hunters who even scare the birds. In those days the quail in the month of September gathered in droves and migrated. They were very tame and quiet when in numbers. They walked or ran as a rule, so that the weakest were not lost. Bird lovers in those days tried to protect the young, but the professional hunters slaughtered them even with clubs.

BEAUTIFUL FLOATS WILL PASS THRU STREETS EXEMPLIFYING ALL THEY REPRESENT.

From An Educational Standpoint the Agricultural Parade Will Lead the Week, With Possible Exception of Historical Parade.

A parade will feature every day of No-Tsu-Oh week is Houston. Some will lead in splendor and gayety, and others in exemplifying the agricultural and economical advantages of South and Southeast Texas, but all will be beautiful.

Experts are designing the gigantic floats that will pass through the streets 'midst the cheers of thousands and the music and melody of many bands.

The agricultural parade will represent twenty-five counties surrounding Houston, and on each the principal products of each section will be attractively displayed. An artistic scheme of decoration will run through every float. No product or group of products will be shown in their bareness. Float makers are using all their ingenuity of embellishment to present them as naturally as they are grown, but with added features of decoration that will make them interesting to those who are only attracted by art and beauty

From an educational standpoint the agricultural parade will lead the week, with the possible exception of the historical parade, in the pageants.

Almost everything that grows will be represented-thus showing the wonderful fertility and diversity of soil as well as the unlimited possibilities in the raising of fruits and truck. The counties in the extreme southern part of the state grow practically all of the fruits and truck grown in tropical climates.

There will be many visitors to Houston from all over the country besides those who come annually for No-Tsu-

Oh. They will have a first-hand opportunity to see what a great variety of choice fruits and vegetables may be raised on soil in Texas that is selling at $10 to $50 an acre. Many not acquainted with Texas believe that cotton and cane are the only products of this section, and it is not uncommon to hear tourists marveling when told of the possibilities here.

The advertising advantages of such a display are not to be measured in words or writing. Nothing could be better and the twenty-five counties taking part in this exhibit are doing everything to excel the neighboring county for the big prizes that are be-ed to feature Saturday, Traveling Men's Day, although all arrangements have not been made for this event. Many traveling men will be here, but whether they will take part in an individual parade has not been decided.

The best bands in the state, and one outside of the state, are being engaged for the parades. A committee is ex pected to go to the San Francisco exposition for one of the famous bands there. If successful they will have secured a band that has played to thousands since the exposition opened.

DEBATE AT LATEXO

There have been numerous reports concerning the debate at Latexo, and some have been misleading. To get the matter straight and keep it straight for all the time, following are the plans for the occasion:

Joint debate, Hays' Springs and Grapeland representing one side, and the other side represented by Ephesus and Crockett. Question, "Resolved, That there should be an amendment to the Constitution of the United States by the Federal Congress and Senate prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes." The Affirmative will be represented by Messrs. W. A. Riall and Jack Murchison of Grapeland and H. I. Luce of Hays' Springs. The Negative will be represented by Messrs. A. M. Anderson of Ephesus and Mark K. Winfree and Daniel Russell of Crockett. The program will be rendered under the auspices of the Latexo Epworth League, and will be supplemented by every feature to make the occasion an enjoyable and successful one. The good people of Latexo invite everybody; they promise you a good time, so come.

The time will be November 19, 1915, and the exercises will open at 7:30 o'clock, p. m. Secretary.

MAY RUN FOR STATE SENATE

Hon. Geo. B. Terrell of this county may decide to become a candidate for the state senate, having the matter under advisement at this time. Hon. Cam Kay of Palestine is also spoken of as a probable candidate. As Townsend will not offer for reelection.-Jacksonville Banner.

NEW PROSPECT HAPPENINGS

Oct. 31.—Health of the community is not so good at the present.

Mr. A. B. Milliken, principal of our school, has been on the puny list the last week, but has not missed any time from school.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Baker are sick also. We hope they will soon recover.

The entertainment at Mr. P. L. Herod's Saturday night, given in honor of Mr. Milliken and sister, Miss Ruth, was well attended, and everybody reports a good time and heard some fine music rendered by Mr. Lee Burden and three Mr. Smiths.

We learn that Miss Nannie Hicks, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Ford Newman, will leave for her home in Oklanoma Tuesday.

Messrs. Jim Parker and A. B. Milliken and Misses Erie Bridges and Ruth Milliken took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Webb Finch today.

Mrs. Bud Brown, who has been suffering with a bad case of sore eyes, is reported to be better.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Lee Finch lost a fine colt last week.

Mr. Sim Finch and family are moving back in our community. We are glad to have them back again.

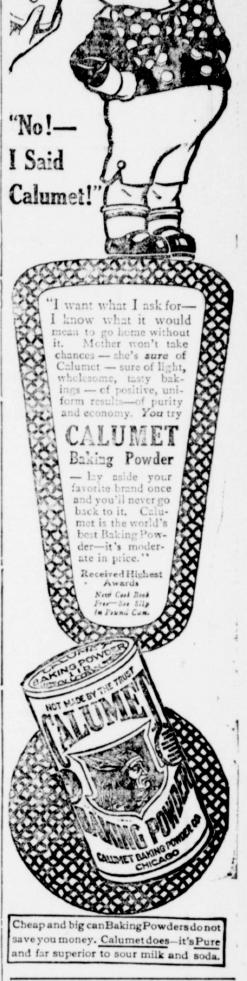

A Messenger Reader.

THREE GOOD HEARTY EATERS

One Puts Away Case of Beer, Another Absorbs 27 Bananas and Third Surrounds Huge Melon.

Clio, Mich .--- If restaurants and soft drink counters here should display placards with the business drawing slogans: "All you can eat for a quarter" or "All you can drink for a nickel" they would soon be forced to go into bankruptcy, as this village has four men who are likely candidates for statewide fame in competitive eating contests.

One demonstrated to strangers that he had a storage tank in his physical makeup in which he could store a case of beer with ease inside of an hour, and for their enlightenment he taxed the strangers $50 as a bet.

Another ate 27 bananas when required to eat 24 to pay for what he ate. The third got on the outside of a 30-pound watermelon, except for the rind and seeds, accompanied by other toods which go to make up a balanced ration for a man's dinner.

THAT'S DIFFERENT.

ing offered. The agricultural parade will be held Wednesday afternoon.

The exhibits will show dairying, cotton raising, cane growing, fruit and vegetable growing, the proper methods of harvesting and handling of crops and countless other features, adequately and prettily explained. Many of the counties have asked for double the space they had last year because they have benefited by its advertising and they will put double the effort behind it to make it a success, yet last year's industrial parade was something the association was highly proud of.

Preceding the agricultural parade, the historical parade will be held. This will be Tuesday afternoon. From the standpoint of beauty it will vie with the flower parade which is to be held Thursday afternoon. Everything of a historical value to Texas will be portrayed. The historical parade will be one of the most beautiful pageants of the No-Tsu-Oh.

The Mardi Gras features in parades last year are being dropped for the historical pageant. In this new attempt the committee hopes to introduce something that will make a decided hit. The floats are being constructed along precise lines in order that they may portray with no exaggeration, yet adequately, events in the making of the State of Texas that are dear to its natives.

The flower parade is probably the most gorgeous of any. Hundreds of dollars are spent each season in rich decorations. A variety of coloring in paper flowers and streamers combined with skillful designing always makes this pageant among the most attractive of the week.

The Shriners' parade will take place Friday afternoon. Patrols from San Antonio, Austin, Fort Worth, Dallas and Shreveport will be represented. All will bring bands. An effort is also being made to get Oklahoma City to enter. Well drilled men in brightly colored uniforms of different character will be seen in the procession and no one parade of the week will have

Says The Grapeland Messenger: "Boll weevils are very numerous throughout this sec tion, and they have made their appearance in sections of the cotton belt that have heretofore should be picked as early as possible and cattle turned into the field to consume the green cotton foliage. Where practicable, the cotton stalks should be burned By this mean and a continual fight the pests can be exterminated, or the chances lessened for them to destroy the next crop.

It's all right to let the stock eat the green foliage; but no veg etable matter should be burned on East Texas farms. It's robbing the soil. Vegetable matter makes humus. That is what furnishes plant food or makes it available. If only by a "continual fight" the pest can be exterminated, would it not be bet ter to plant peas, peanuts, potatoes, pumpkins, corn and other crops to fatten the stock and thus fill our barns and smoke houses? East Texas farmers have no right to "fatten" boll weevils. Let's "fatten" something that will, in turn, fatten us and our bank accounts .- Troup Banner.

NEWSY LETTER FROM ANTRIM

Nov. 1.-The weather is fine at this writing, the roads are dry and the price of most things are high and if we only had some cotton seed to sell we would be in the swim. The farmers' motto should be "sella few cotton seed and buy Sallie and the children a dress," but be careful how many you dispose of, as they are what people plant to make more cotton.

From the best we can learn and going to return to a great extent to cotton, and if such proves to be true, they are going to make the mistake of their lives. A man told me a few days past that off of something like four hundred acres he and his people would get only about fifty bales of cotton. A hint to the wise is sufficient. We can't grow cotton when it takes eight acres to make a bale, even at twelve cents. Had been free from this pest. Cotton this years crop been as large as last year, the price would have been about the same as the price for last year's crop. We note with some degree of satisfaction that the Boll Weevil is making himself known over a greater area of the south than has been the case heretofore. The weevil proves to be a forceful reducer of the cotton crop and we are not at all convinced that he is not a friend in disguise. Before he made his appearance in this country very few people planted any other crop except corn and cotton and few people made sufficient corn for their own use. By this I mean enough to properly feed their stock and fatten their meat and when cotton was cheap people suffered. But not so now. Most everybody is practicing diversification to a greater or less extent. A great deal of this is How can I make a bale? due to the influence of the boll weevil. People are harvesting good potato crops through here, despite the long summer drouth. Among those who have dug we will mention the following: J. F. Martin, about 100 bushels; J. F. Durnell, 135 bushels. The writer still claims to be the champion potato grower of this end of Houston county. Wh harvested something over 250 bushels from a pice of ground less than an acre munity, noted for their generous in size, and we yet have some to hospitality, will royally entertain dig. Farmers & Merchants State Bank A GUARANTY FUND BANK

Both One Year Each (156 copies of the two publications)

"How to make the farm pay?" is a question to which almost every news paper published in the South devotes a goodly portion of its space. In fact, many publications are devoted exclusively to farm subjects. Such papers reach not only many farmers, but many people engaged in other avenues of industry. Sorry to say, the average farmer does not thoroughly appreciate the efforts of the news paper men. Although they realize that the editor is taking an interest in their welfare, they lose sight of the fact that he is equally as deeply interested in bringing about prosperity and promotion in the local rural communities as the farmer himself. Then, too, many farmers little note the reports from other communities. That is, they pay little attention to the welfare of the country in general, but appear to be interested only in their own rural community. If their crop fail it does not excite them for they are quite sure that no matter how short their own crops are, something will come from somewhere. To them the final report stating the total value of the entire crop of this great country is only a complex and incomprehensible row of figures. But this is not the case with the editor. He realizes the vital importance of the crops in general as well as local. He sees the farmers' needs and points them out. He awaits eagerly, the final reports and nothing can be more pleasing to him than the report which discloses the good news of an enormous increase in the agricultural yield the world over. In short, he has a full view of the subject in its larger sense.

Give your editor your hearty support and cooperation. Your interests are also his; he is your friend, and a friend who is able and ready, willing and anxious to assist you.

Write the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. for the valuable bulletins which are to be had free. You help to pay the taxes, why not share the benefit? If you do not know the number of the bulletin you may want, simply state, when writing, what particular subject you are interested in. Monroe Anderson.

Her Son Subject to Croup.

"My son Edwin is subject to croup," writes Mrs. E. O. Irwin, New Kensington, Pa. "I put in many sleepless hours at night before I learned of Chamber. lain's Cough Remedy. Mothers need not fear this disease if they keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and use it as directed. It always gives my boy relief." Obtainable everywhere. adv

A GOOD EXHIBIT

The committee in charge of getting up an exhibit from this end of the county to go with the Houston county exhibit to be displayed at the Houston carnival, were very successful in their efforts and secured a very creditable exhibit of farm products and canned goods. The exhibit was sent to Crockett Monday to be shipped from there to Houston

When written on the typewriter, we call it Stenotypewriting. Stenotypewriting is the stenographic marvel of the age. It is printed shorthand. Systems of Bookkeeping: Most schools teach a theory course: the student reads about what some one else has done, and posts his work theoretically. The students of our school have to transact every item of business for which they make an entry; they learn to do by doing; they buy and sell goods, write deeds, mortgages, drafts and all kinds of commercial papers, ship goods just as they would in actual business life. They not only learn a thorough course of bookkeeping, but they obtain a practical business training as well; this business training is worth as much to them as a course of bookkeeping.
