AGRICULTURAL CLASS TO PUT ON POULTRY SHOW HERE; CITIZENS HELP THIS MOVE FINANCIALLY

The agricultural class of boys in the Friona high school have arranged to put on a poultry show here on February 28 and March 1. The boys of this class are the leading spirits of the undertaking and will do the greater part of the work.

There will be no entry fee for the exhibits and everyone in the vicinity who has chickens or turkeys is asked to enter one or more exhibits. The exhibits will consist of old and young pens consisting of three hens and one cock of chickens and two hens and one tom of turkeys. Any and all breeds will be admitted and ribbons for first, second and third places will be awarded as prizes. Eggs may also be entered for exhibition and ribbons will be given for first, second and third places. A prize of $5.00 will be given to any one farm for the most extensive and best exhibit as to number and variety of exhibits and every one is asked to make an effort to win this prize.

In order to secure the necessary funds for defraying expenses of the fair the following individuals and business concerns have donated of their cash:

Maurer's, Ford Motor Co., Texas Co., Santa Fe Grain Co., Friona Service Station, S. J. Sanders, H. L. Vance, Farmers Produce Co., H. P. Eberling, E. R. Furlong, Buford Taylor, J. J. GORDON McCUAN FOR CLERK

In this issue of the Star you will find the announcement of Gordon McCuan as a candidate for re-election to the office of District and County Clerk of Parmer county.

Mr. McCuan is now serving his second term in this important office and during his incumbency he has performed his official duties in such a manner as to win the approbation of all his constituents. In fact, so far as the writer has ever heard there has been no word of complaint against him as an official from any source.

Mr. McCuan assures the people that if they again favor him with their franchise he will give them the same conscientious service and adherence to duty that he has given in the past and will use his utmost efforts to prevent any cause for complaint in the future. Mr. McCuan has made a most exemplary officer.

MAKES GOOD AT A. & M.

Word comes from the A. & M. College at College Station to the effect that Chas. Conway, one of Friona's highly esteemed young men, is absolutely making good in his work at that institution.

The information states that he has attained the rank of "distinguished student on the honor roll."

Charles' friends here will remember that his unusual preferment has been gained in spite of the fact that he was obliged to miss three weeks of his work on account of a surgical operation for appendicitis, which work he was obliged to make up by overtime study. His many Friona friends are proud of this unusual accomplishment.

LAZBUDDIE NEWS EVENTS

One of the loveliest affairs of the season was a turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bledsoe at their home Sunday, February 9. A big turkey with all the nice things for the main dinner, jolly cake, whipped cream and coffee appeased the appetites of the guests and prepared them for a jolly afternoon of forty-two and bridge.

Those enjoying the day with Mr. and Mrs. Bledsoe were Messrs. and Mmes. Loyal Lust, Rudolph Pyritz and children, W. S. Menefee and daughter, Ralph Ditch and children, Mrs. Eva Abney, Messrs. Bill Shirley and Shad Green, Mr. and Mrs. O. Treider and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Julian and family, Mr. John Steinbock and children and Miss King, who is the new Lazbuddie school teacher. If there were others whose names we did not learn we beg pardon and assure them no slight was intended. The reporter wishes to add that not only did the guests enjoy themselves with the Bledsoes on this occasion, but the same is the case every time they go to their home. Mrs. Bledsoe is known as one of the most charming hostesses in the Lazbuddie community—in fact we challenge the county to produce a better one.

Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Tharn of this community, who have been in Maud, Okla., the past few weeks visiting his parents, have returned. They will move to their new bungalow north of Lazbuddie.

Will Gammon and W. M. Thompson left Monday for Oklahoma to be gone a week.

JUNIOR B. Y. P. U.

The Junior B. Y. P. U. met at the Baptist church Sunday night with 12 members present. Members on the side of Alfred Wedel had the program at the time. As it is impossible for group captain No. 2 to be present, members elected Arlin Dilger as captain, and as he was vice president, Virginia Bell Womack was elected to that place.

The sponsor, Mrs. Burton, suggest a social committee, and Maurine Massenzaie, Douglas Short and Ardian Fallwell were chosen as members of the committee.

New members are welcome to join our B. Y. P. U.

AID MEETING

The Congregational Ladies Aid met in the home of Mrs. Beattie Friday, February 7, with only a few members present. This was a business meeting in which to elect officers. All old officers were re-elected. The next Bible study will begin with the first chapter of Ruth and our next meeting will be in the church basement, which will be our quarterly tea, February 21.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

The Friona Chamber of Commerce held its regular monthly meeting in the school auditorium on Thursday night of last week with a goodly number present.

About $19,000 in dues was collected, which will be very beneficial to the emancipated treasury. It was stated that all members should meet the payment of their dues during the first quarter of this year as soon as possible.

Mr. Daggett of the State Telephone Company was present and stated the intentions of his company to install phones on all the rural lines as rapidly as they could upon being notified of the desire for one by any person living along any of the lines now built. Leave your order for a phone at the central office in Friona and your wants will be taken care of at the earliest date possible.

It was also announced that there will be a program of music and speaking at the next meeting of the organization on the first Thursday night in March. A speaker will be secured to address the farmers of the community on the subject of seed selection and treatment and its testing for germination per cent.

NEW CITY OFFICERS APPOINTED

At a meeting of the City Commission Wednesday night, after adopting the gas plumbing ordinance, the commission appointed L. G. Simpson to the office of city plumbing inspector.

Poundmaster J. B. McQuiston having resigned some time ago, and it becoming apparent that some citizens who keep cows are becoming rather careless about keeping their cows confined, James J. Jasper was appointed as poundmaster to succeed Mr. McQuiston.

FRIONA WOMAN'S CLUB

The Friona Woman's Club met Wednesday afternoon, February 12, at the home of Mrs. C. W. Dixon, which was beautifully decorated in honor of the Valentine season, with Mmes. Dixon and Truitt as hostesses.

Twenty-four members were present and the program follows: Subject, Texas Literature. Response, Federation notes. Review, The Wind, by Dorothy Scarborough, given by Mrs. Chawford.

Life and Works of Dorothy Scarborough, Mrs. Dilger. Piano solo, Mrs. D. W. Hanson. After the above program the club adjourned to enjoy refreshments of ice cream and cake. Each plate had a favor in honor of St. Valentine.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

"Done the same, myself, in your place. Humph! But I couldn't very well help floggin' you, y'know. Discipline, and all that sort of thing."
"You needn't have pressed me," asserted Fellowes, recovering a sense of injustice.
Collishawe frowned again. There were tiny beads of sweat on his forehead, and his gaunt cheeks grew gaunter.
"Ain't sure," he answered. "Couldn't help myself, though. That swine Chater. Swore you were a British subject, said anyway 'twould be dangerous to let you get into New York—you'd talk about the True Bounty meetin' us."
Fellowes rocked on his heels, eyes shut, an awful nausea possessing him.
"There wasn't—anyone else?" he asked dully.
"Eh? Anyone?" A shrewd light flickered in Collishawe's fever-bright eyes. "Oh, Miss Inglepin? No, she "Done the Same in Your Place," He Repeated.

know nothin' of it. Matter of fact, I've thought since, Chater hooked me deliberately while she was away. Kind of thing the cursed swine would do, y'know."
"I'm sorry," Fellowes said.
Collishawe's jaws contracted somewhat, his first real sign of emotion.
"Done the same in your place," he repeated. "I've thought a lot about it. Funny how a feller gets things twisted, eh?"
He caught his breath.
"Pain?" Fellowes exclaimed quickly.
"Yes—es. Think you could get me—bit of rum?"

A sailor brought a pannikin on the run, and Collishawe lapped it eagerly while Fellowes supported his head.
"That's better," he said in the crisp, impersonal tones habitual with him. "Y'know, I've often thought about that time—floggin' you, and all. Bothered me. But I can't see how I could have let you off."
There was a new humbleness in Fellowes' heart.
"I expect you couldn't have," he admitted.
"Sportin' of you to say so. But I'd have felt just as you did if you'd flogged me. Some things a feller can't forgive."
"Why can't we forgive?" cried Fellowes. "Why should we go through life hating people?"

"Not a preacher—can't say. But any feller'd hate a feller flogged him, especially if he felt there was a dirty play behind it." A streak of passion warmed Collishawe's tone. "What I can't go is havin' a rat like Chater start all this. D—n his soul! If I find him in hell—"
"He's dead," Fellowes blurted out.
"Dead? You mean the True Bounty—"
A tremor convulsed Collishawe, and once more the ominous trickle of red seeped through his bandages.
"Miss Inglepin? She—you mean they went down?"
"No, the True Bounty is sunk; but Miss Inglepin—"
"I'm here," Cara's voice panted.
"Oh, where is she? Where is James?" The stolid ring of sailors was burst asunder as if Cuffee's Big Sarpent had been discharged into their midst, and Cara slithered down beside Collishawe.

"James! What have they done to you? Oh, Father, Father, please fetch Doctor O'Shaughnessy."
"No use," said Collishawe. With an effort that was pitiful, he raised a hand in Cara's direction, and both her's closed around it. "Goner. But no hard feelin's—eh, Fellowes?"
Fellowes bowed his head, heartick. For Cara he saw, he didn't exist.
"But there must be something to do," she was saying in a strained voice, tears streaking her cheeks. "Do let me see!"
Collishawe tightened his grasp of her hand, and in response to the effort the trickle that flowed from his bandages became a stream.

"No, no," he denied faintly. "Don't!"
And she saw, as Fellowes did, the gray shadow that mantled his face.

She must have seen something, too, in the fading eyes that Fellowes did not see, for she bent swiftly, and her lips touched his.

"Worth everything," he murmured, smiling.
For a breath the shadow lifted from his face. The light blazed in his eyes again.
"Nall up that flag, damme!" he cried. "You not strike whilst I'm—"
Fellowes stooped and caught the poor, mangled clay as it slipped sideways. His shoulder chanced to touch Cara's, and she drew back with an instinctive aversion that blistered his self-respect.

"This is the fruit of hate," she said in a hard, still voice. "But death is better than some things—yes, better than living in hate. Oh, sir, if you might know how I—how I despise you!"
She fumbled in her bosom, and produced a clean kerchief, which she spread over Collishawe's wan face.
"Come, Father," she said—and oh, how wearily!—"We should try to help James' men."

Fellowes wanted desperately to speak to her, to comfort her, to excuse himself; but the words wouldn't come—a sense within himself informed him her mind was closed to him. Her mind and her heart. So much for victory!

CHAPTER XIII

Doubt

The Badger was sinking to the booming of the Centurion's minute guns, sinking with the sun that had draped a crimson curtain across the portals of the west. Ah, under the break of the poop, a carronade was made fast to ringbolts, square amidships, and on top of it was lashed the bundle of sailcloth that held Collishawe's body. The Englishman rested where he had died, and from the stump of the mizzen still floated the flag he had ordered nailed there, one corner torn by a roundshot.

The sloop-of-war reared up, struggling to keep her bow above water; but presently she sagged forward, and this time she failed to recover herself. Her fo'c's'le commenced to slant. Masses of green water surged through the forward ports, and she started to slide under as if she was coasting down a hill that grew steeper and steeper. Waves licked at the bundle on the carronade, submerged it, slapped the poop railing—and her stern canted high in air, the White Ensign at the mizzen standing out straight in the breeze as it was engulfed.

The last minute gun boomed, and Fellowes launched a crisp stream of orders almost before the echoes had died away, none but himself aware that he must have something to divert his mind or else go mad.

Cara Inglepin ignored the resumption of discipline's sway. Her gaze remained fixed on the swirl of wreckage that marked the spot where the Badger had disappeared. But presently, as the brig forged ahead, the litter of spars and deck fittings dwindled to insignificance, and she became aware of the orderly hum of activities around her—and of her father.

"Do you suppose I might speak to Captain Fellowes?"
"Is it wise, Cara?" her father asked. "I am bound to admit Fellowes has been civil, but I think we do well to avoid him as much as possible. And I'll not have him suspecting us of pleading for mercy."
She laid a caressing palm on Ben Inglepin's face, which was neither so plump nor so rubicund as it had been, after a day's toll in a stuffy cockpit that presented one endless succession of horrors.

"I owe him an apology, Father," she explained simply. "And I must thank him."
"Thank him?"
"For his generosity. It was noble."
"He's generous and noble enough to see that we are away by being hanged," Ben Inglepin retorted disagreeably.

"You're unfair, Father." Her lip some figure straightened. "If we merit to be hanged, shall we complain of him? We know the risks we must encounter. And if a stake such as ours is worth playing for, worth winning, 'tis worth losing a life for."

Wanted to Seize Cuba

The Ostend manifesto was a dispatch sent in 1854 to the United States government by the American ministers, at the courts of Great Britain, France and Spain, who had met in the city of Ostend for conference on the Cuban question. The dispatch stated that if Spain would not sell Cuba, the United States "would be justified under the laws of self-preservation to take the island by force and prevent it being Africanized like Haiti." It advised offering Spain $120,000,000 for the island. This recommendation was not accepted by the congress.

To Earn His Pay

Two football teams had played a number of drawn matches and it was decided to engage a professional referee for a deciding game.
A well-known official was approached by a party of tough-looking men.
"All right," said the referee. "I'll oblige you. What fee do you offer for my services?"
"Well," said one of the men, "that depends on how badly you're hurt."

FITTED PRINCESS SILHOUETTE; CALL OF THE SPRING MODE

AFTER all, it is the simplest frocks which are usually the loveliest. At least that is the message which the exquisite gown of white moire in the picture conveys.

This lovely princess frock can scarcely be said to be of the oft-sung "sweet simplicity" type. Rather does its every line bespeak that "sophisticated simplicity" so eagerly sought. Lest the technique of the molded-to-the-figure princess lines with their low-placed flares prove too severe, designers are adding a softening note in the way of a huge bow placed either at one hip as illustrated, or at some latest call of the mode is for the suit which features the jacket with a shoulder cape and a collarless neckline. The model in second illustration is thus fashioned. Two-toned yellow tweed is used in its development.

The tweeds and novelty woollens employed for the new suits and ensembles are for the most part very colorful. Such high colors as red, violet, grayish greens, blues and pinkish tones are sponsored by leading stylists. Not only are jackets and top coats made with capes but the majority of one-piece cloth street frocks usually flaunt capes. Sometimes the cape is other equally as advantageous point. Repeatedly, these enormous bows enhance the formal evening silhouette. They are for the most part of self material.

The hemline of the white moire gown pictured is interesting for the reason that it is even, or at least, very nearly so, all around. The newest modes call for even hemlines rather than the pointed, jagged and generally erratic effects.

If there is any fabric which yields more beguilingly than moire to the dressmaker and couturier's hand yet to find it. Of course, the moire pastels are good to look upon, and their number is legion, but there is that about the all-white moires which spells enchantment to even a greater degree. Now that the charming blonde, Princess Marie Jose selected white moire for one of the frocks in her merely a little shoulder affair attached to the jacket or coat, then again the cape is made a separate item to serve in place of either jacket or coat. In fact all signs point to a widespread vogue for cape-and-skirt costumes.

The tweed ensembles which have a cape are stunning. Usually, the skirt of very colorful loosely-woven soft tweed is plaited or cut circular, for there must be a flare. The blouse of crepe, shantung or challis favors the tuck-in type. As to the cape, the smartest are three-quarter length.

Some of the most arresting models among the new caped versions top a one-piece sports dress of handsome cloth with a cape of self fabric, the same plaited into a yoke, the skirt flare repeating the plait.

Whether it be a jacket suit or a two-piece ensemble which is caped it is apt to abound in interesting "dressmaker touches." That is the severely trousseau with a coat of the same lavished with white fox, the impulse has been obviously quickened to employ this delectable material for both formal daytime and evening wear.

Very long and very décolleté white gowns, whether of snail, tulle, moire or taffeta, are outstanding among the newer modes for midseason social occasions. In many instances the big-bow theme is exploited for these queenly white gowns. In that a huge bow is placed at the back, the long widening streamers developing into a graceful train.

Cape Theme Emphasized.
Throughout spring styling, emphasis is placed on the cape theme. The tailored types are outnumbered by those which exploit clever manipulation in the way of tucks, godets, fancy insets, applied bands of self fabric which are generously stitched, fancy contrast pipings and other intriguing manipulation which makes for effective styling.

Stunning ensembles are fashioned of lace-woven jersey, which in turn is trimmed with plain jersey, the latter criss-crossed in designful bands and forming fanciful borderings. Quite a few of these jersey models have capes which also combine the lace-patterned with the plain.

Girl at the Top in Health Test

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Kansas mother, Mrs. Dana Alligre, 610 Monroe St., Topeka, says: "Bonnie B. is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her roddy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body and she stands at the top in every health test.

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

MR. BUSINESS MAN:

This should be of particular interest to you. Hundreds of progressive people are saying every day . . .

"I SEE IN THE STAR"

"I See in the Star!"

"Look here, Mary! I SEE IN THE STAR they are advertising some lovely New Spring Dresses down at"

Thousands of people are making similar expressions every day, reading the advertising messages of new styles and other messages that will save them money on anything they care to buy from progressive Friona Merchants who are regularly advertising in their HOME NEWS-PAPER.

The value of local news and of any advertising message depends upon the standing of the medium that carries that message. Through the sincere effort of printing strictly a NEWSPAPER, giving the people true facts and information about the happenings of this community and city and bringing authentic news of events, the Star has gained a confidence of which it is proud. The responsibility of having thousands of people depend upon it for correct news and helpful information, is a high honor that this paper shall continue its every effort to merit.

"I SEE IN THE STAR" is a term used more and more every day by thinking people of Friona and Parmer County.

The Friona Star

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF FRIONA AND PARMER COUNTY.

A CENTURY OF CHANGE

The National Electric Light Association Bulletin reproduces in a recent issue a notice giving the rules and regulations of a mill in 1890. The mill in question started work 10 minutes before sunrise and continued until 10 minutes past sunset, except on certain days in winter when work was continued to as long as four hours after sunset.

The mill workers were entirely subject to the wishes of the overseer and no appeal was allowed under any circumstances. Anyone wishing to quit his job was forced to give a month's notice or lose four weeks pay. Absence from work or tardiness were heavily penalized.

On the average, men worked 12 to 14 1/2 hours for poor wages, under conditions that would not be tolerated today. In some cases children worked from 5 a. m. to 8 p. m.

The change a century has effected in working conditions needs no comment. It is a long stride from the mill hand of 1890 to our industrial employes of today, with their short hours, high wages and fine living and working conditions.

The reason, of course, is the change in the attitude of industry—from exploitation to humanitarianism. Modern big business has realized that its duty is to render public service to its employes as well as to its customers. The worker of the past barely hung on to the bottom of the social scale. The American worker of the present occupies an enviable position at the top in our modern civilization.

COTTON AND WHEAT FORM BIG PART FARM INCOME

The two leading cash crops of the United States, namely cotton and wheat, are also proving to be the principal income from the soils of West Texas.

These two corner stones occupy a permanent place in the high estimate in which the agricultural value of West Texas is held. The Panhandle is proud of the success in the production of these two crops and as production is only half way along the highways of agricultural development, an intense interest prevails in improved marketing as well as production.

An opportunity for an insight of the United States government's effort with its farm relief and program of the Farm Board for agricultural aid may be obtained by hearing Harry Williams and the speakers that follow at the second annual Farmers and Home Makers Short Course at Texas Technological College, beginning on Monday, February 3, and lasting three days.

TELEPHONE AHEAD OF THE TIME

No industry is called upon to respond more quickly to the progress and changes made in the world than the telephone. It not only gives the service required today—it must be years ahead of the time in preparing for the future.

The great telephone achievements of recent years, such as international long distance and the general improvement in facilities throughout the world, have played an inestimably important part in the development of modern civilization.

WILLIAM BOYD STAR IN "HIS FIRST COMMAND"

With the clatter of trumpets, the clatter of horses hoofs and the flourish of sabers, Wm. Boyd will arrive at the Star Theatre Saturday next in Pathe's all-dialogue and sound romance of the U. S. Cavalry, "His First Command."

Coming on top of his fine portrayal of the marines in "The Leatherneck" and his performance as a West Point cadet in "Dress Parade," Boyd's appearance as a cavalryman should hold much interest for theatregoers. Preview reports indicate that "His First Command" is one of the best pictures in which Boyd has appeared. The picture was photographed at Ft. Riley, Kas., and tells a story of a wealthy man's son who enlists in the cavalry to be near a certain colonel's daughter. What happens provides plenty of the Boyd type comedy and romance.

Scenes include some of the most thrilling horse pictures ever taken. Dorothy Sebastian plays opposite Boyd in this cavalry romance and others in the cast are Gavin Gordon, Paul Hurst, Ross Tapley, Jules Cowles, Howard Hickman, Helen Parrish, Mabel Van Buren, Alphonse Ether and Chas. Moore.

THE CITY DRUG STORE

20 Years Ago Reproduction of motor car advertisement that appeared in leading newspapers of the country in 1910.

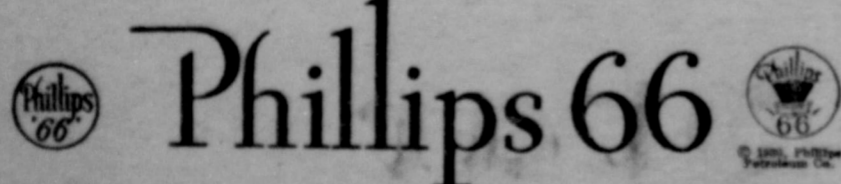

Is the gasoline you use as advanced as the car you drive?

No matter what price you pay for a car today, you get a car that climaxes all past achievements of the maker—a car built to new high standards of beauty and performance. But remember this. Unless the gasoline you use is as advanced as the car you drive, your car can give only a fraction of the performance the maker built into it. Gasoline, too, can be "out-of-date."

One gasoline—Phillips 66—has kept pace with the striking progress in motor car manufacture. It is perfectly geared to the requirements of the modern high-speed, high-compression motor.

Its volatility is scientifically controlled to fit season and climate. Results? Quick starting, regardless of weather! Flashy pick-up. Able-bodied power. Long mileage. Year 'round sweet performance. Fill up with Phillips 66, or Phillips 66 Ethyl.

THE GASOLINE OF CONTROLLED VOLATILITY

WHEN THE THERMOMETER GOES DOWN THE VOLATILITY GOES UP Gasoline must vaporize before it can be fired in the cylinders of your motor. Volatility refers to the ability of gasoline to vaporize. With volatility controlled, Phillips 66 vaporizes as quickly in cold as in warm weather.

HAPPY GOBLIN

"To think," said Peter Goblin, "that there are some children who do not like us."

"They have told untrue and unfair stories about us. We love children. We wouldn't hurt them for anything."

"It's dreadful that there should be stories about us that aren't true."

The Fairy Queen had been listening to this talk and she felt sorry that so many untrue stories had gone around the children's world about Peter Goblin and the Goblin brothers.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Peter," she said.

"Keep on trying to tell as many children as you can how much you like them."

"Tell them that in years gone by people were far more nervous than they are now."

"They were afraid of the dark and foolish fears like that."

"Tell them that you are never hiding in the dark, and that you only come to them when they are asleep."

"Explain as much and as often as you can that you never carry them away from home but that you sit on their bedposts and talk to them, and send them dream adventures."

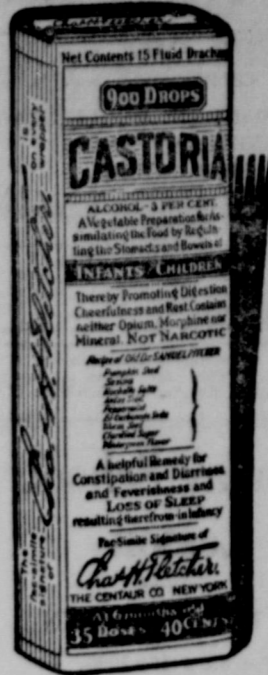

"We'll give you a coasting party this evening and that will cheer you up."

"It always does!"

"It certainly always does!" agreed Peter Goblin, smiling happily now.

"Yes, I have been getting discouraged lately, because I've overheard so

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as its tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

5218 Happy People Give up Their Secret

JUST suppose you could get 5000 joyously happy people together in one big hall and could ask them what made them all so full of pep. Suppose, strangely enough, that all of them had discovered the same way to be happy. You would feel that here, if anywhere in the world, was the secret of how to get joy out of life.

This is just what has happened during the last few weeks. We knew there were millions of people who had found the secret of happiness in the same way, and we asked them in one or two small announcements in the magazines and newspapers to tell us their story. Letters came to us from practically all over the globe.

All of them said "The secret of happiness is health."

How to get this health? The way covered was not some magic medicine, not some powerful drug, not some difficult course of training—but only a simple, harmless, natural method. It was to keep the body internally clean, sweeping its natural poisons away each day, regularly as clock work—by the use of Nujol.

These people had made a great discovery. They had found out that Nujol contains no drugs; that it is as tasteless and colorless as pure water; pleasant to take and forms no habit; that it cannot hurt you, no matter how much you take; that it is non-fattening; not absorbed by the body;

They have found the way to Buoyant, Zestful Health, and the Joy that goes with it that it is only the internal lubrication your body needs, just like any other machine.

It sounds like a fairy tale, doesn't it, to be well and happy so easily? Well, all you need to do to find out if these people have made a real discovery is to get a bottle of Nujol today at any drug store and take it for two weeks. It costs but a few cents and it makes you feel like a million dollars. The sure way to happiness is through health.

Finding all on his premises will make a different kind of a man out of any man.

To tell a man he is "well preserved" may make him think of a mummy.

It is better, of course, to take Bayer Aspirin at the very first sneeze or cough—it will head-off the cold and spare you much discomfort. very many of these unfair and untrue stories about me."

"It does seem hard, but we'll do what we can to tell the truth so that children will know how much you and your family really love them, and how you wouldn't hurt them for anything in the world."

"Yes, we'll do all we can about it."

So the Fairy Queen gave Peter Goblin a splendid coasting party that evening, and he and all the goblins came to it and had a most glorious, gorgeous, magnificent, splendid time.

And after it was over and they all went to Willy Witch's home, in her cave, for supper, and she told them stories they sent out messages to children everywhere saying that they must not believe any of the untrue stories about goblins, and saying how much goblins loved children.

They sent word, too, that goblins would never, never hurt children.

Oh, they sent ever and ever so many messages.

And a little while after this, they heard that many of their messages had been received and that children did not believe the unfair things that had been said about goblins.

This made the goblins very happy, and it made Peter Goblin particularly so.

And, what do you suppose? They had another coasting party to celebrate the good news!

Animals Follow Trades

You wouldn't think animals followed trades, but there are certain of them who have a trade at their nails, so to speak. Bees are geometricals. The cells are so constructed as with the least quantity of material to have the largest spaces and least possible loss by interstices. The torpedo, the ray, and the electric eel are electricians. The nautilus is a navigator; he raises and lowers his sails, casts and weighs anchor, and performs other nautical acts. Whole tribes of birds are musicians. The beaver is an architect, builder and woodcutter; he cuts down trees, and erects houses and dams. The marmot is a civil engineer; he not only builds houses, but constructs aqueducts and drains to keep them dry. The white ants maintain a regular army of soldiers. Wasps are paper manufacturers. Caterpillars are silk spinners. The squirrel is a ferryman, with a chip or piece of bark for a boat and his tail for a sail he crosses the stream.

JESUS HEALING AND HELPING

Matthew 9:1-13

Golden Text: Himself took our infirmities, and bare our diseases.—Matthew 8:17.

Introduction

In the beginning of the study of the miracles recorded in the Gospel according to Matthew it needs to be recalled that Matthew is not a historian writing in chronological order. He is not a biographer giving consecutive incidents in the life of Christ. The ten miracles found in the eighth and ninth chapters of our Gospel are not grouped in chronological order, but are grouped in a topical order, a logical order, the order of Matthew's thought and purpose. In the Sermon on the Mount Christ sketched the character of the person who is to be the result of his work. The miracles in the two chapters (8 and 9) are given to show Christ's ability to produce this character. They declare that Christ is Saviour by showing that he is able to do what he professes to do—save from sin. The effect of sin is threefold; sin excludes the sinner from the service of God, from fellowship with God, and from life with God, and ends in death. The removal of this threefold effect of sin is necessary to the salvation of men.

Ten Miracles.

- The Ten Miracles in Matthew 8 and 9 are the following:
1. A leper healed.
 2. The centurion's servant healed.
 3. Peter's mother-in-law healed.
 4. The tempest stilled.
 5. The Gadarene demons healed.
 6. The woman that touched his garment healed.
 7. The daughter of Jairus raised from the dead.
 8. Two blind men healed.
 9. A dumb demoniac healed.
 10. The palsied man healed.

Let us give especial attention to at least four of these miracles, the first, fourth, seventh and tenth.

A Leper Healed.

The first of the miracles selected is the healing of a leper. In Matthew's purpose it heads the list because leprosy in Jewish ritual was the symbol of sin. The leper was unclean; he could not enter a dwelling, the tabernacle of temple; he was prohibited from engaging in public worship, from offering any sacrifices; he was compelled to dwell apart and was debarred from association with the people of God (cf. Lev. 13; Numbers 5:1-4). The leper was excluded from the service of Jehovah. The challenging faith of the leper—"If thou wilt not, thou canst"—is answered immediately by "I will; be cleansed." And straightway his leprosy was cleansed. Then he was commanded to obtain a certificate of purification by showing himself to the priests and offering the gift that Moses directed, and thus be restored to the privileges of service and a place with the servants of God.

The Tempest Stilled.

This miracle is one of the few events which show our Lord's supremacy in the natural world which he had created with the Father. Seeking relief from the pressure of the multitude who were clamorous for healing, he was crossing with his disciples to the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee when one of the sudden, violent storms for which that low-lying body of water is famed struck their little boat, and the waves washed over it so that the disciples, hardy fishermen as some of them were, perhaps the majority, were terrified. But Jesus was calmly sleeping with his head on the helmsman's cushion, unmindful of the fearful tempest; and when awakened he rebuked his disciples for their little faith, since after such a day as they had witnessed they should have been moved themselves to see what faith would do in an emergency. Then with a few quiet words he calmed the wind and rested on a peaceful sea.

Woman Raised from Dead.

Jairus was a ruler, a member of a committee of synagogue managers, and his dear little daughter was on her death-bed when in despair he sent for Jesus. Doubtless he was impatient enough at the slight delay caused by the cure of the woman who touched Christ in the throng, especially when news came that the little girl had died. But Jesus moved quietly on, entered Jairus' house and made his way to the dead body with only the girl's father and mother and his three most intimate disciples, Peter, James and John. Then he took the inanimate body by the hand and said, "Maiden, arise." And her spirit returned and she rose up immediately."—Luke 8:54, 55.

 "This was the first miracle Jesus wrought upon the dead and it stands forth the highest proof yet

Football Games at Drake Will Be Played at Night

"Owl football" has passed the experimental stage at Drake university, and five of the eight games on the 1930 schedule will be played at night. Ed C. Lytton, business manager of the university, and Coach Osie Solem have announced.

Chicago fans will see their first major college game at night in Soldier field October 8, when the Bulldogs meet Oregon university. The following Friday night Drake clashes with Marquette at Milwaukee under the powerful arcs.

Local followers will see Drake in action in the daytime in only one game, the Iowa State contest. Grinnell and Washington university of St. Louis are both scheduled for after-dark contests in the Drake stadium.

The fifth night game, with Creighton at Omaha, is contingent on weather conditions, as night games in extreme cold are considered less successful.

Although not the originator of night games, Drake set a new pace by playing four such contests in 1929, after a tryout in a single game in the 1928 season. Powerful lights, set 50 feet above the playing field at Drake stadium, flood every point of the gridiron with intersecting beams, eliminating all shadows and illuminating the sky beyond the range of the highest punters, according to Mr. Lytton.

Surprised Himself

Another one of those boys who wanted to be a great pitcher turned out to be a great champion hitter of the National league. Frank O'Doul, best hitter of the elder major circuit, has this to say of his success as a Philly Big Bertha: "I never knew the time when I could not hit and I liked to hit. I wanted to be a great pitcher and everything I did was to make myself successful as a pitcher." O'Doul, Klein and Whitney are expected to make a strong team of the Philles.

Pitcher Art Nehf Quits Game

ARTHUR N. Nehf, who pitched in five world's series, has retired. After a conference with William Veck, president of the Chicago National League Cubs, the veteran southpaw pitcher announced his retirement. He will act as manager of the Salt River Real-Estate holdings and the Arizona Biltmore hotel at Phoenix, both owned by William Wrigley.

Nehf, who is thirty-eight, began his ball career with a Terre Haute (Ind.) high school team. After playing college ball at Rose Polytechnic institute he played in the Copper league in Michigan. Within three years after leaving college he was with the Boston Braves.

The New York Giants paid $55,000 and five players for him in 1918. During the ten years he was with the Giants he pitched three games in the 1921 world's series and allowed only twelve hits.

After holding Pittsburgh hitless for twenty innings Nehf allowed two runs in the twenty-first inning for a 2 to 0 score.

During the eleven games of the five world's series in which he performed Nehf pitched two 1 to 0 victories.

In September, 1927, he joined the Cubs. In 1928 he won thirteen games, losing seven. Last season he won eight and lost five.

All Cities Must Soon Fit Ordinary Autos

Tremendous changes that are coming in the automobile world, will require cities of the future to be built to fit the gasoline age, according to Charles F. Kettering, general manager of the General Motors Research corporation, in an interview in the American Magazine.

"There has been endless change in the automobile, though we have only scratched the surface," says Kettering. "But meantime the country has not adapted itself to the uses of the automobile. The auto was born into a horse and buggy world. And by and large, it is still running through a horse and buggy world. Your car may go 60 miles an hour with ease. But make a trip to a town 60 miles away, and see how long it will take you to get there—certainly two hours or more. Why? Because you will have to pass through a dozen small towns and in each one you will be routed through the busiest street. You will slow up your trip and get in the way of townpeople who have legitimate business in the town. If the country were built for automobiles, you would go along an express highway, clear around the busy streets. And you would make your trip in an hour. This will come so quickly that people will be surprised at it.

"This is only an instance of the innumerable changes that will be made in the physical layout of our towns in the next ten years. And we must not overlook the new cities which will be built on the 1930 and 1940 models, and because they are adapted to conditions of modern life, they may put a kink in the old model cities."

All these changes, continued Kettering, will be the result of dissatisfaction of automobile customers. "If you want to see plenty of satisfied customers, go to China. A world full of satisfied customers would kill business dead as a doornail."

Office Building Garages

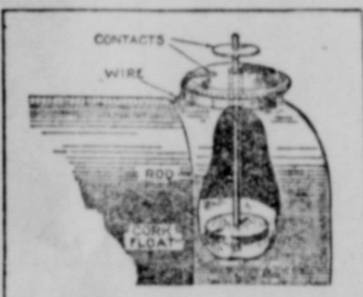

Urged as Parking Answer
Solution of the downtown parking problem in large cities by providing automobile storage space in office buildings is urged by Dr. Miller McClintock.

Doctor McClintock, who is director of the Erskine bureau of street traffic research of Harvard university, in a report to the American Institute of Architects said office building garages already had been provided in numerous cities.

He mentioned the Pure Oil building in Chicago, which utilizes what normally would be the court of the building to a height of 20 stories to provide parking space for 600 cars.

Definite Warning Given

When Water Is Too Low
The Indicator illustrated gives definite warning when the water level in the radiator gets too low. This diagram shows only the principle of the device for the contact must be arranged to suit different radiator caps. A cork float on the end of a rod should be used and a short length of copper or brass tubing should be soldered in place against the hole in the radiator cap to act as a guide and keep the float rod in a vertical position.

A disk on the upper end of the rod makes contact with a wire and thereby grounds it when the water level goes too low. One terminal of a double contact indicator bulb on the dash should be connected with the current supply and the other terminal with the wire that makes contact with the float disk. If the cap unscrews arrange the contact wire so that it can be swung out of the way. If the cap turns back on a blinge the contact can be fastened to a piece of fiber or bakelite and connected by a piece of flexible wire.—Popular Science Monthly

Nearly all car bodies are lacquered these days. Not so fenders. They are enameled. Accordingly, it is well to remember that gasoline never should be used in cleaning them. It dulls the finish.

Two States Cut Fee for Automobile Licenses

Motorists of Texas and Nebraska will have cause for joy when they apply for new licenses. A new law in Texas will save motorists in that state $11,000,000 in license tax. A new scale, effective in Nebraska since July 25, 1929, has already saved motorists $42,242.

License fees in Texas for 1930 will range from one-half to two-thirds of this year's rate. Prior to July, Nebraska's fees were based on a minimum of $8 plus 50 cents for every additional 100 pounds of weight above 2,000 pounds. The new law lets all cars of less than 2,700 pounds into this class.

Heilman Is Expected to be Great Help to Reds

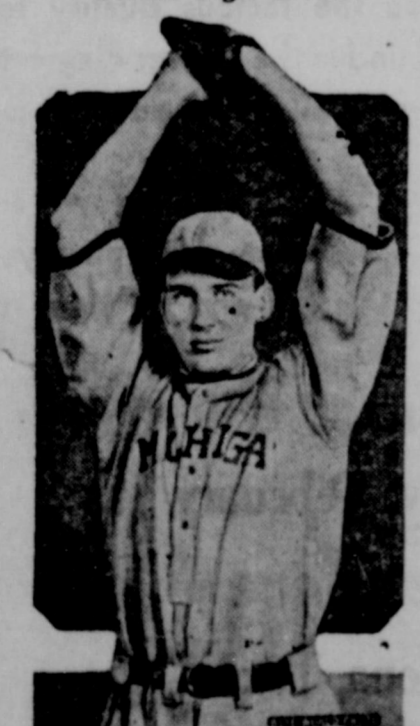

Dan Howley, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, expects to rip National League pitching apart next season with Harry Heilman. He has made up his mind just how he is going to play the former Detroit Tiger slugger to get the best use of his heavy hitting.

"Hellmann," Howley was telling Cincinnati admirers recently, "slams that ball on a line. Sometimes it goes on the ground straight at a player. That is to be expected. More times it goes over the heads of the infielders, and it goes far and fast.

"Hellmann's legs give him trouble in a long campaign, so I plan to let him rest as often as I can, only using him steadily when we are fighting to get out in front. When we get the lead I will put Walker in.

"Punch is what the Reds want, and Hellmann has the punch. Harry has promised to give his all to the club next season. Bob Meusel, I am sure, will be glad of the opportunity where he can shine in the outer gardens, where his worth will not be dimmed by the brilliance of Ruth and Combs."

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

Up from the south at the break of morn,
Over the snow by the south wind borne,
Steals like the dawn or a sweet perfume
Promise of summer with bird and bloom.
This is the month when the banks of snow
Gurgle in streams to the rivers below.
This is the month of the mating moon,
Brooding new life that shall wake in June.

Down on the shores of the southern stream
Wild birds are chanting the deathless theme.
Voices of black bird, of wren, and dove
Waile the song of nest and love,
Borne by the breath of the southern breeze,
Soon they will brood in the northern trees.
Each one will croon, from his tree or vine,
Love-laden lays to his Valentine.

Come, lonely heart, put your sorrows away—
This is the month of St. Valentine's day.
Why should you pine in your gloom apart—
No one to love you and call you sweetheart?
Catch in your bosom the spirit of Spring;
Come, join the chorus of lovers who sing.
Maid in despair now in sadness repine,
Waiting the call of St. Valentine.
—The Woodmen News.

Valentine Customs and Superstitions of Old

There were certain superstitions during early times which now seem entirely to have passed away. For instance, if a young girl, on the eve of St. Valentine day, went alone and waited until midnight on the porch of a church, then started for home, scattering hempseed on the way, it was believed she would see her own true love in a winding sheet raking the hempseed behind her. Why he was supposed to be seen in a winding sheet has not been explained.

Another superstition was most interesting. If a young girl got five bay leaves and pinned one on each of the four corners of her pillow, the remaining one to be placed in the center, and if that night her sweetheart appeared in her dreams they would be married before the end of the year.

It is written of one young lady of those times that she confessed, in order to make the charm more potent, to having boiled an egg perfectly hard, removed the yolk, filled the vacant place with salt and, upon going to bed, eaten the entire egg, salt, shell and all, without drinking or speaking to any one after she had finished the eating of it.

But the really, truly way to find out the name of your own true love was to write the name of all your admirers upon bits of paper, roll them up in clay, put them in a vessel of water and the first one to rise to the surface was surely the one.

The practice of sending comic valentines is a much later one. These caricatures which poked fun at people's personal appearance, their clothes and even the work in which they were engaged had their greatest popularity perhaps 40 or 50 years ago. Fortunately, they now seem to have lost their vogue. There is no doubt that many friendships were severed and enemies made because of these frequently offensive missives being sent with malice aforethought.

Meanwhile, the pretty valentines—all hearts, paper lace and cupid-seem to grow finer each year. Beautiful hand-painted cards and painted and beautifully decorated boxes for confections are sold in great numbers.

Not the least interesting of the present-day valentines are the various and numerous assortments of packages filled with all the paraphernalia ready to be assembled into lovely valentines which children love to prepare for their teachers, friends and family. As it has now become more a day for children than for grown-ups, these packages afford much pleasure to the sender and to the recipient.

given of his divine power. His other miracles have left all earthly physicians at an infinite distance. He has accomplished by a word, a touch, a look, what all their skill and remedies through long years of treatment failed to do. But when he comes to stand in the presence of death and pluck the victim from the iron grasp of the skeleton king himself, then Jesus absolutely stands alone. There is no rival who will attempt to measure power with him here.

Palsied Man Healed.

One of the most picturesque and instructive of Christ's miracles was the tenth contained in our two chapters, the healing of the palsied man at Capernaum. It is reported by the first three evangelists; see Mark 2:1-12, Luke 5:18-26. Externally, it is remarkable for the means by which the sick man was brought to Jesus; interiorly, for the connection between the man's sin and his sickness which Jesus pointed out.

"And he entered into a boat." The boat, perhaps Peter's, which had brought him to the eastern shore of the lake. "And crossed over." To the western shore. "And came into his own city." Capernaum, his city by adoption, since he was driven from Nazareth.

Emphatically his own city, since the Gadarenes had urged him to leave their county (Matt. 8:34). "And behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy." Palsy (paralysis) is "a disease characterized by extreme loss of the power of motion dependent on some affection either of the motor centers of the brain or of the spinal cord. It is always serious, usually intractable, and generally sudden in onset." "Lying on a bed." The usual pallet or thin mattress spread on the floor and rolled up and put away when not in use. The sick man was arried by four friends, each holding one corner of the pallet.

"Thy Sins Are Forgiven."

Sin is at the bottom of virtually all of earth's misery, the one disease that most needs to be cured. "You may have many troubles, and perhaps you are eager to spread them before the Lord. That sick child, your dear husband who is at home ill, that business which is flagging and likely to fail, that disease of yours which is weakening you. Now, waive all those things; for, heavy as they are, they are inconsiderable compared with sin. There is no venom so poisonous as that of sin; this is the wormwood and the gall; this is the deadly fang of the serpent whose sting infects and inflames our whole being. If this evil be removed, then every ill has gone, therefore Christ begins with this."

The Call of Matthew.

"And as Jesus passed by from thence." From the house where he had just healed the palsied man. "He saw a man called Matthew." Levi was his other name. He had two names, like John Mark, Simon Peter, Saul Paul. "Sitting at the place of toll." He belonged to the class of publicans or tax collectors, so bitterly hated by the Jews because they served their Roman masters and because of their frequent extortions. Matthew's customs, both would be near the lake on the outskirts of Capernaum, on the important road running from Damascus down to Egypt. "And he saith unto him, Follow me." This was doubtless far from the beginning of Christ's acquaintance with him, the climax of many conversations. "And he arose, and followed him." Matthew had a lucrative post, and he was a busy man, but he closed his books, locked up his money drawer, resigned his position, and proved the sincerity of his conversion by leaving all his worldly interests and following the Saviour. Thus simply and modestly, in a single verse, does Matthew record the greatest step of his life. He was in the habit of keeping accounts, and though we are not told that he won disciples or organized churches or worked or preached sermons, he served the Kingdom wonderfully when he wrote this Gospel which we are studying.

Marvelous Work Of New Konjola Medicine Told

City Drug Store to Introduce Advanced Remedy for First Time in Friona.

If you were told that one single medicine put hundreds of men and women back to work in Chicago, Philadelphia and other large cities after they had been idle for months with health troubles, it would sound impossible, wouldn't it? And that countless people were completely relieved of rheumatism and neuritis, and that they were able to walk again, without cane or crutches, and that this same medicine restored health to men and women who had suffered with stomach and kidney troubles for years, that complete relief had come in cases of misery where health resorts, expensive treatments and medicine upon medicine had failed—indeed, it seems impossible! Yet it is all true and the medicine that has done all these things is the new Konjola, which is being introduced, starting today at the City Drug Store, this city.

G. H. MOSBY
Discoverer of Konjola

Wherever introduced, Konjola is vastly different and more effective in thousands of cases of ill-health than any previously known medicine. It is a remarkable liquid compound for the following well-known troubles:

RHEUMATISM: Especially severe cases, where pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. In the milder cases of this disease, Konjola relieves almost at once, and this medicine brings the same results to the neuritis victim that it does for the rheumatic sufferers.

STOMACH, LIVER, KIDNEYS, and BOWEL TROUBLES: Nearly all forms of misery that arise from these unhealthy organs have been so quickly relieved by Konjola that men and women sufferers everywhere were surprised. It is the action of this medicine on the organs of the inner-system that removes toxic poisons from the system and brings quick relief in so many cases. The secret of this Konjola is the way it acts on the important functional organs of the body, namely the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. So many diseases and long standing disorders of these organs were so completely conquered and entirely banished by this new compound that thousands of people in larger cities were able to give up taking medicine for time to come.

After the great accomplishments and wonderful work of Konjola in other sections, it is declared that this medicine is what hundreds of sufferers in Friona and vicinity have long needed to actually reach their cases, and preparations are being made to introduce Konjola for the first time at the City Drug Store, where this medicine will be sold and explained to the public daily.
