Whispering Campaign May React for Smith

New York Governor Unworried by Tactics of Foes and Is Confident That It Will Make Votes for Him

CISCO DEMO DELEGATES GO TO CONVENTION

Cisco's delegates to the state democratic convention left Sunday night and today for Dallas. The delegation was headed by H. A. St. John, who will leave for Kentucky after the convention, visiting Louisville, Lexington and other Kentucky cities, including his native town of Flat Rock, before his return home in time to vote for Al Smith. He stated on his departure. Others of the delegation included W. J. Armstrong, Will St. John, Luther McCrea, and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fleming.

SAFETY TO BE STRESSED TO W. T. U. FOLK

J. Alan Reid, director of safety and fire prevention, of the Central and Southern Utilities Co. of Dallas, is now in West Texas preaching the gospel of safety to the employees of the West Texas Utilities Co. and will likely be present next Friday night on the occasion of the monthly safety meeting of the employees of division B. In company with P. W. Campbell, traffic manager, he is visiting the several divisions of the company and giving safety lectures. The itinerary includes Memphis, Childress, Quanah, Vernon, Munday, Stamford and Cisco. The safety meeting next Friday night will be held at Electric park. If the weather permits, according to H. A. Williams, assistant superintendent. At Friday night's meeting a demonstration in removing an electrocuted lineman from the top of a pole will be made, only the subject will not have been electrocuted. This demonstration will be only one of the several methods of safety that will be shown to the employees of the company at Friday night's meeting.

NAVY UNIFORM FOUND NEAR LAKE CISCO

Whether it was a case of murder, suicide, naval desertion or just a desire to appear in civilian clothes once again were theories that perplexed the Cisco police force after finding a naval uniform that had been left in a vacant building at Lake Cisco. The uniform was found Sunday night and brought to police headquarters. The only clue to the identity of the job who may have worn the regulation blue was the name of "W. L. Clements, Norfolk, Va.," sewed to the waist lining of the trousers. The uniform showed very little wear. The theory advanced by the police is that the owner had deserted from the navy and discarded his uniform for civilian clothes. No one remembered seeing a navy man here recently. The owner could have been a visitor, if the police theory of desertion is correct, who came in with the usual Sunday crowds and adopted Cisco as the city where he would change into a private citizen.

BOOKS AND ACCOUNTS OF CISCO BEING AUDITED

The books and accounts of the city of Cisco are being audited this week from the firm of Ferguson & Co., of Lubbock, are here doing the work.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Governor Al Smith is not worried about the "whispering" campaign which Democratic leaders charge is being waged against him in various parts of the country but at the proper time he will handle it without mincing words, his closer friends predict. Because he is convinced that the American people believe in fair play, Smith is said to feel that the under-cover attacks will react to his advantage on election day. According to confidants of the Democratic nominee, these attacks always were waged against him when he was a candidate for governor last. He came through with flying colors when the ballots were counted.

Some of the data for this statement has just been prepared by Robert Moses, secretary of state. It shows that of the 14 members of Smith's cabinet, ten are Protestants, three are Catholics and one is a Jew.

Of the 25 heads of state departments and major divisions of the government appointed by Smith 11 are Protestants and 11 are Catholics, according to figures compiled by Moses.

There are 156 present state officials whose appointments have been approved by Smith. Their religious affiliations, according to Moses are: Catholic, 32; Protestant, 105; Je. 11, undesignated, 7.

G. O. P. to Try Hard in South. WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The greatest Republican effort since the Civil war to smash down the Democratic barriers of the Solid South will be launched with Herbert Hoover's speech at Elizabethton, Tenn., on October 6. It is indicated.

Although Hoover has decreed that the fight to capture southern states must be conducted under local leadership, the Republican national committee will find every effort and encouragement to the local organizations in the hope of returning victories below the Mason-Dixon line.

The fight in the South, the Hoover leaders felt, also will augment the favorable chance for Republican victories in the border states of Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Hoover personally discussed the southern situation with J. Hill Taylor, Republican leader of Tennessee, and Senator Fred M. Sackett, of Kentucky. They assured him that the Republican party has excellent chances of carrying Tennessee, a doubtful state in the presidential years, and was certain to carry Kentucky, one of the border line states that goes Republican but seldom.

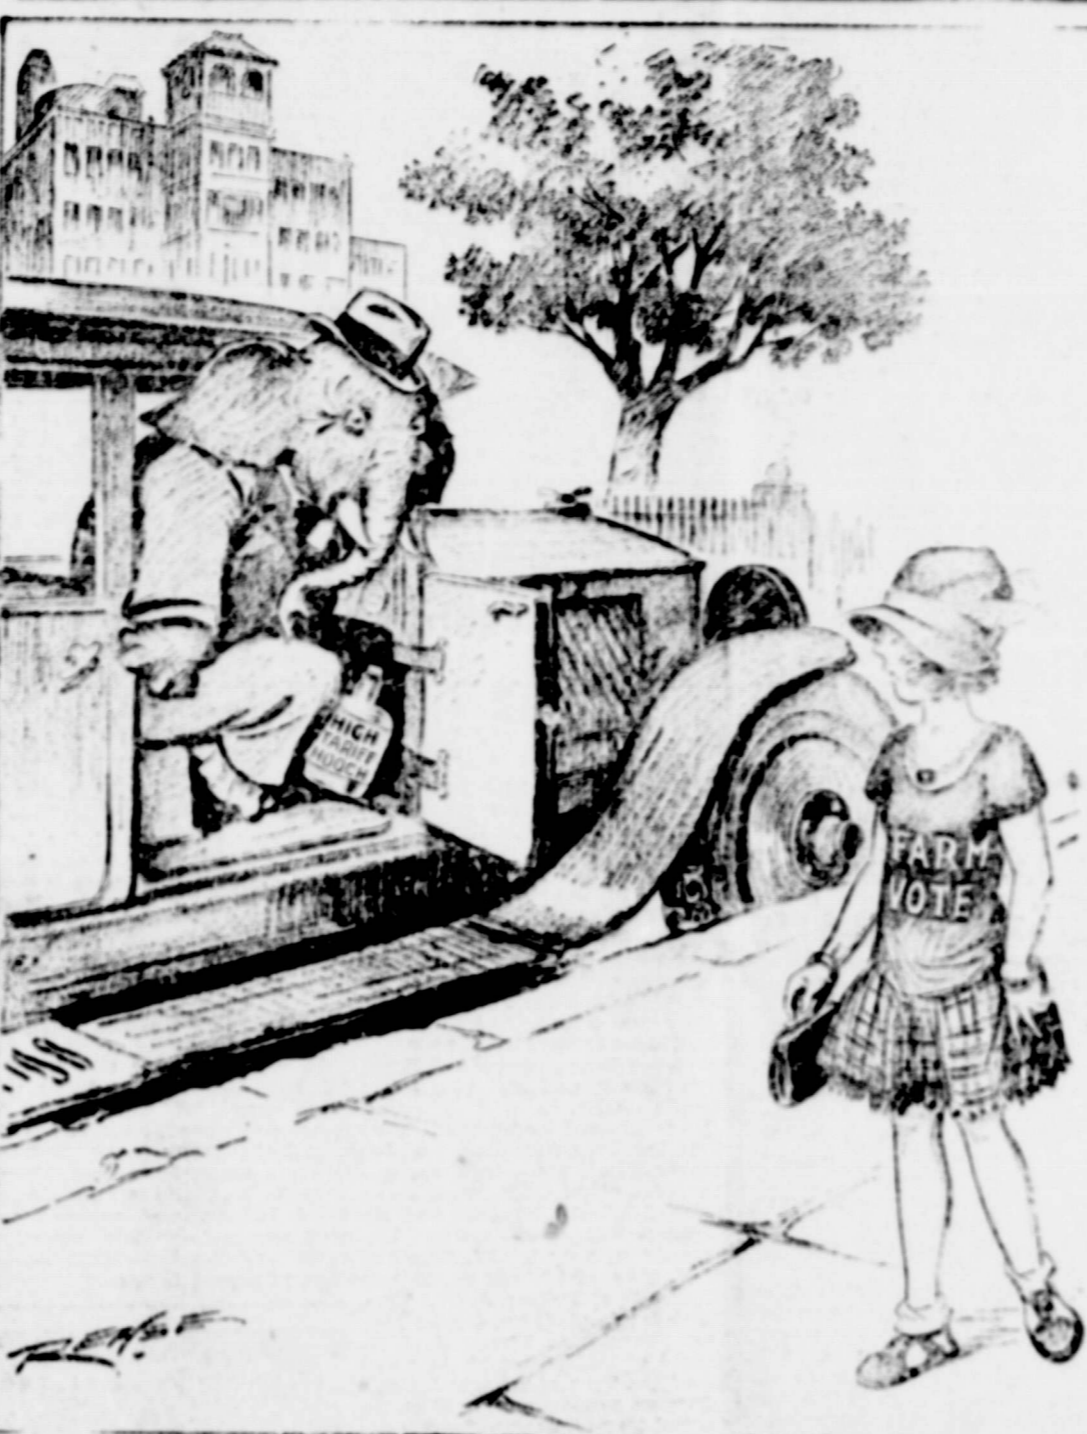

The Hoover leaders are also watching the Texas situation. They were cheered considerably by the statement of Mrs. J. C. Griswold, Republican national committeewoman from Texas, that Hoover has a "good chance" to carry the Lone Star state.

Multifaceted Barred by G. O. P. WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—An order of no meddling went forth today from Republican national headquarters to party workers. It followed a public denunciation by Dr. Hubert Work, national chairman of the executive committee, of the "whispering" campaign.

URBAN SHOCKER, VETERAN BALL PLAYER, SUCCUMBS. DENVER, Colo., Sept. 10.—Urban Shocker, veteran former American League pitcher, died Sunday at a hospital from pneumonia and heart disease, following an illness of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Shepard and son have returned home from Ohio, where they spent an enjoyable vacation. They visited their old home at Coalton, in that state, where a family reunion was held.

Bill Levying Occupation Tax on Chain Stores Will Be Introduced at Next Session of Legislature

To Work with Lindy

Captain Emory S. Land, U. S. N., who has obtained a leave of absence to assume the vice-presidency of Guggenheim Fund for Promotion of Aeronautics. He is a licensed pilot of the United States Department of Commerce, having soloed his first time on Aug. 23 last.

THE WEATHER. WEST TEXAS: Tonight and Tuesday unsettled, probably showers.

AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—A bill will be introduced in the next session of the legislature which will require payment of an occupation tax by all stores and selling systems whose ownership is not local but controlled by an owner in another city or state. The measure is being prepared by Representative W. T. Williams, of Travis county. Such a bill, if enacted into law, would protect local merchants against competition that cuts into their probable sales revenue by organizations that do not pay any form of tax to the community in which they do business. Such a measure, it was pointed out, would affect chain stores which are not locally owned. The occupation tax would be fixed on a gradual scale in proportion to the business that a firm does each year. Such legislation, Williams says, would not be construed as class legislation. It was recalled by the Austin lawmaker that a fight was made in the last legislature to ban the itinerant peddler from operating in any community outside of that in which he lived. Such a measure was objectionable because it barred ice men from making deliveries to country towns near a distribution center and affected legitimate business, paying taxes to the state, it was explained. The measure under consideration by Williams would not affect the grower of a local community from bringing his products to market which was one of the objections to the legislation proposed two years ago.

MAINE STATE OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN TODAY

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 10.—The first barometer of the prospective presidential weather for 1928 will be thrown out in a message to the nation today from the Maine elections. Although no presidential electors are to be chosen the relative poll of the two parties for United States senator and state officers will be a straw in the political wind.

NOTARIES ARE GIVEN WARNING BY ATTY. GEN.

AUSTIN, Sept. 10.—Warning has been given by Attorney General Claude Pollard to those notaries public who are in the habit of taking acknowledgments over the telephone and without personal appearance that the practice must be stopped. In a statement, Assistant Attorney General R. M. Tiley pointed out that acknowledgments and affidavits must be taken by seeing that the subscriber actually appears before him and acknowledges or swears to the instrument. A notary public is also required to keep a proper record of acknowledgments.

The penalty for taking acknowledgments without personal appearance and not requiring the subscribers to actually appear to instruments constitutes the making of a false certificate, which is punishable by confinement in the penitentiary for not less than two years nor more than five years, and the penalty for failing to keep proper records of acknowledgments is a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500, as well as incurring liability on the notary's bond. The attorney general has given this warning because of the fact that reports are made to various state officers which are required to be sworn to and which, in some instances, are false. Tiley said: "Affidavits are presented to the secretary of state which are sometimes false. When the state attempts to prosecute the makers of such false affidavits, in many instances it has developed that the person making the affidavit did not appear or swear to the instrument but some careless notary took the affidavit over the telephone or sent the instrument over to be signed by the proper person."

NEW ADDITION PAVING TO COME BEFORE COUNCIL

Belmont addition is the newest acquisition to the environs of the city of Cisco, as the city council, by ordinance, has admitted this territory as a part of the city. This was done on the petition of H. H. Tompkins and Mrs. J. W. Mancill, owner of the land taken into the city limits. This addition has been recently platted and consists of land purchased from the J. W. Mancill estate by Tompkins and that owned by the Mancill estate. Six blocks of this addition will be paved at once, and the city commission, this afternoon, was scheduled to pass a paving ordinance that the work may begin at an early date, according to Mayor Williamson. This paving will be connected up with the West Boulevard pavement. The new territory adds four new blocks, four half blocks and a portion of four other blocks to the western extension of the city, and extends the city west 413 feet, with a width of 180 feet.

FORGERY COMPLAINT LODGED AGAINST M. H. MIXON

A complaint was filed in Justice McDonald's court this morning by Constable Loomer, on information against H. M. Mixon, in which forgery is alleged. The complaint alleges that Mixon forged the name of James B. Cramer to a check of the Cramer Construction Co., of Abilene, which was accepted by J. C. Penney Co., who indorsed the check and passed it through the First National bank of Cisco.

Rowland Leads at San Diego on Next to Last Leg; Contestants in Class B Are Crossing Texas

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 10.—Leading the New York to Los Angeles transcontinental flier, Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kan., in his monoplane Cossan landed here today on the next to last leg of the journey.

YUMA, Ariz., Sept. 10.—The last lap of the Class A transcontinental air race began here today when the vanguard of the planes in the derby took off for San Diego, the final stop before the end of the sweepstakes event.

PEOCOS, Okla., Sept. 10.—Edward E. Bellugh, Chicagoan flying a Leard monoplane, still led the Class B fliers in the New York to Los Angeles derby when they landed here at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon. They took off for El Paso at 12:45 after refueling. Robert W. Cantrell, Dumas, Okla., a former Fort Worth boy, and the Class C flier, his Lockheed Vega, crossing the marker at 12:25. T. A. Wells and John P. Wood, both Class B fliers, preceded him.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 10.—Winging their way across the plains of Texas, 16 Class B and C planes were enroute to Midland after having stopped here this morning. They came here this morning from Oklahoma. Their destination for tonight is El Paso.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 10.—Following a delay of more than an hour due to bad weather here, the transcontinental fliers in class B and C took to the air here this morning with Fort Worth as their goal. Following a 30-minute stop at the Panther City airport, all will strike camp for Midland with El Paso scheduled for their night stop.

COOLIDGE NOT FOR ANOTHER NAVAL TREATY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Coolidge administration does not contemplate consummating another naval disarmament conference, it was declared today at the state department. Reports were current that President Coolidge contemplated calling such a meeting to counteract the Franco-British naval agreement. Discussion over the agreement was expected to come to a head this week with the return of the president to Washington. The agreement is said to be causing considerable anxiety among naval department officials.

FOUR ESCAPED CONVICTS ARE BEING HUNTED

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—One of the greatest man hunts in the history of this section of the South was being pressed today for four convicts who escaped after participating in a larceny for liberty at the Angola penitentiary farm last night. Five convicts and one trusty were killed and three guards and a boat tender were wounded when 14 convicts, armed with revolvers and sawed off shotguns, made their break for freedom.

Creston J. Cremon, who had escaped three times from prison farms in Texas and Louisiana, led the break. He was killed almost instantly.

SEARCH FOR CARNES TURNS TO FILM LAND

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—Despite the presence in Los Angeles of a beautiful young Norwegian girl whose motion picture career he is said to have helped finance, search for Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer of the Baptist Home Mission board at Abilene, has centered in Southern California, it was learned here today. The girl, Sonia Norda, was located today at the New St. Francis hotel. She talked freely of the financial arrangement whereby Carnes was to pay for her motion picture career. She said she was "incredibly shocked" when she learned of Carnes' alleged default.

BAD FOR RAILROADS, BAD FOR PUBLIC.

"Railroad service is a matter of vital concern to every person in the country," said a prominent railroad official recently.

"To keep each person alive and supplied with needs and desires the railroads move a ton of material a little more than 10 miles every day.

"From the money the railroad receives, six cents out of every dollar goes into the public treasury in the form of taxes.

"The public has a proper concern with rates charged by the carriers, but these rates have much less to do with cost of living than is generally supposed.

"The public needs to be much more concerned with the quality of the service rendered. Our prosperity and our standards of living are much more affected by service than by price.

"The railroad question from the standpoint of the public interest is how to insure a continuation of the present efficiency, sufficiency and speed of service.

"Sane, judicial and expert regulation will permit efficient and economical management to furnish a service that will be increasingly good and in the end less costly to the public.

"Regulation animated by political considerations will so hamper and burden railroad operation as to destroy efficiency and add to the cost that must eventually be borne by the public.

"In short, nothing that is bad for the railroads can be in the public interest."

TELEPHONE AND CIVILIZATION.

In standards of service and in size our telephone industry leads the rest of the world by a tremendous margin.

There are 18,500,000 telephones in the United States, 60 per cent of all the instruments in the world.

It is not illogical to suppose that this telephone supremacy of ours is in a large measure responsible for our world leadership in many lines.

Will Rogers Declares Against Notification

Will Rogers is unalterably opposed to notification ceremonies. In his weekly appeal for support as the candidate of the Anti-Bunk party, for which he was nominated in Lile, the humorous weekly, by fifteen famous Americans, he says:

I think sometimes notifications are done too early and taken too seriously. Of course there is one thing about a notification and that is it is the last big public function that most political candidates will ever have.

It gives them a chance, however, to declare that they are for the Party platform. Even Smith declared he was for the Democratic platform, which means that he is SOME-DECLARER.

And Herbert? Did you ever see a man become more thoroughly Republicanized in the last ten years than he has? Nine years ago he didn't know Lile was a Re-

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY

ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. 'GLORIOUS BETSY,' starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS Captain Jerome Bonaparte incurs a disapproval of his brother, Napoleon, when he marries Betty Paterson. When the couple arrive in the city the Emperor informs Betty that she must renounce her husband, but she does so, and Napoleon allows her to marry his son, the Emperor's son, who is the Emperor's son. Betty is married to Napoleon's son, who is the Emperor's son. Betty is married to Napoleon's son, who is the Emperor's son.

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued The baby kicked up its pink toes and waved them about vivaciously in midair. Betty pushed a damp, reddish curl, like soft silk, back from the child's forehead, twisting them around in her fingers. Finally she picked up a big garden hat by her side and it on to shade her eyes from the intense rays of the sun. She set to her feet and took up a basket and a pair of shears and set about clipping the roses. Now and then she turned to look back at the baby, waving her hand to it, giving kisses, and nodding her head.

Along the hedge that bordered the street she went, snipping a rose here, now there. She did not notice the two women who were following her. One of them was a woman of about thirty, with a face that was a study in contrasts. Her eyes were blue and her hair was black, but her expression was one of such intense interest that she seemed to be looking at Betty with a gaze that was almost hypnotic. The other woman was a young girl, about fifteen or sixteen, with a face that was a study in contrasts. Her eyes were blue and her hair was black, but her expression was one of such intense interest that she seemed to be looking at Betty with a gaze that was almost hypnotic.

"No, no, Papa, look!" Betty called down the street past the gate, and they could not see her in the high leafy wall. One of them stopped as she glanced through the gate and caught sight of the baby on the blanket. "Look," she exclaimed, "there's the Bonaparte!"

"Bonaparte, indeed!" The second woman looked at her friend and smiled contemptuously. "The little hat has no more right to that name than I have myself." The words floated back and caught Betty's ear. She straightened up, horrified at the speech. She could scarcely believe that she had heard aright, and yet she knew that she and her child were the most important topics of conversation among the gossip of the town. She had been able, when she had first come back from France, to quiet the talk that was being spread, but as the year had passed and Jerome had not returned, the rumors of his desertion had become not gossip but accepted truth.

"Well, I never did believe that marriage," the first woman began, "would turn out any different." "Well, as for Mistress Betty, it gives her right to be certified," the second woman sneered cattily. "I always say that the higher you go the further you fall." Their voices died out as they passed on down the street. Betty stood, her body tense and rigid, biting her hand to keep back the tears. She turned and looked at the innocent child that lay there so happy, so blameless, and she thought more deeply as she recalled what those idle words would mean to him. The basket she was holding slipped off her arm, the flowers dropped to the ground. She ran to the child and threw herself on her knees beside it and reached out her arms, clasping it close to her breast.

"Oh, Jerome, Jerome, my baby!" she cried, kissing the chubby face and the little button of a nose in her agony of grief. "Why, Betsy, what's the matter?" the gate opened and Mary came smiling through the garden and knelt beside her cousin. She saw the tortured look on Betty's face as she laid the baby on the blanket and raised her head. "Oh, Mary," Betty began, "I've just heard the most terrible thing. The baby sank back on the ground."

TODAY'S '10 PLAGUES' TO BE TOLD BY DR. HOGG

Evangelist to Discuss Modern World Conditions; Rain Sunday Fails to Dampen Workers' Ardor

A capacity crowd is expected at the tabernacle tonight to hear Dr. Will Hogg's announced sermon-lecture on "Ten Plagues of the Twentieth Century," said to be a forceful candid expose and study of modern world conditions discussed in the light of scripture teaching. Dr. Hogg's wide experience as a world-traveler, ranking World War chaplain, serving both with the boys in France and with the Army of German Occupation, chautauqua lecturer and minister and student of history, fits him for the discussion of his theme and it is expected that the message will prove of deep interest to everyone. Word has been received at campaign headquarters that a good delegation is planning to hear Dr. Hogg tonight from Graham in addition to the regularly scheduled delegation from Rising Star which will be special guests in tonight's service.

Unexpectedly large crowds braved the inclement weather yesterday at all services both in the churches and at the tabernacle and some 150 workers plodded through the drizzling rain in the early hours of Sunday in the taking of the most complete religious census ever conducted here. Pastors and workers are today checking cards and figures on the census results of which will probably be available by tomorrow. Pastors are calling special meetings of their local church workers on Tuesday to inaugurate plans for following up the census in a thorough way. Despite the weather Sunday's tabernacle services marked the high peak thus far in the services in interest and effectiveness and capacity attendance was reached at last night's service in the face of a drizzling rain. Local leaders state that a clear day yesterday would have brought such crowds that the accommodations would have proved inadequate. Plans are being made to increase the seating capacity of the tabernacle to handle the much larger crowds which are expected at the meeting progress.

The work of the big chorus choir reached its maximum of effectiveness in last night's service when the choir platform was packed with selected singers, now rapidly welding into a highly efficient choral group under the leadership of Chester Rodgers and Pianist Fredway. A splendidly interpreted and thrilling choral number, "Day Is Dawning," was rendered by the choral choir for the first time at last night's service and brought a hearty round of applause as the singers responded enthusiastically to the stirring climax of the song. The splendid bass voices of the choir also handled most effectively their solo part in the rhythmic chorus "Jesus Paid It All." Another favorite number with the big audiences was the opening number of last night, "Lead Me," a reverent and effective selection rendered with splendid harmony effects, the voices being heard without the instrument shading of the song. The first Baptist quartet featured with a special number.

Dr. Hogg spoke last night on "Sowing and Reaping," and was at his best in his earnest presentation of this fundamental law. His thought-provoking logic and telling illustrations gripped his hearers for 30 minutes as he emphasized three truths taught in the famous text—the danger of deception, the ultimate certain supremacy of the conquering Christ, and the law of sequence. No invitations of any kind have been given thus far by the evangelist and the tone of his message indicates that he does not press invitations upon his hearers at any time in his campaigns, but rather waits for them to act spontaneously on their own initiative and in accord with their own convictions. An intensive program is scheduled for the week and with the splendid cooperation being accorded the effort by all local pastors and church workers effective results are confidently expected by the pastors and campaign leaders before next Sunday.

Churches were well attended yesterday morning in spite of the rain, both the Sunday school and church crowds being surprisingly large to leaders accustomed to service the folks "quit when it rains." The tabernacle was well over half full at the afternoon service to hear Dr. Hogg in one of his most interesting messages, "Home Life in Sodom." It was estimated that some 300 out-of-town people were in the afternoon service. The large tabernacle chorus was well represented on the platform at this service.

As predicted by campaign leaders the Sunday night service marked the climax of the effort thus far in every way, despite a steady drizzle of rain just before and through most of the service. The big tabernacle was filled with some 2,000 people, the big choir platform was packed with the choice singing talent of the city which rendered a thrilling and unexcelled musical program to the great delight of the crowd and large groups of out-of-town visitors were present, rain or no rain. Abilene, Baird, Ranger, Eastland, Mineral Wells, Rising Star, Graham, Comanche, Putnam, Cross Plains and other places were well represented.

It was the intercessory prayer of the righteous Abraham that put the angels of mercy at the door of the worldly, God-neglecting, self-seeking Lot. Many a time the intercessory prayers of a mother piled up as sweet incense before God for possibly many years have ultimately brought her wayward boy or girl to the foot of the cross. Dr. Hogg, former World War chaplain with the boys in France and with the army of German occupation, will deliver his sermon-lecture on the war. Subject: "The Slogan of the Doughboy—Where Do We Go From Here Buddy?" American Legion posts of the county, Legion auxiliaries and all ex-servicemen of the county will be guests at Cisco and the local American Legion post for this special address.

The male quartet of the First Baptist church composed of Messrs. W. F. Walker, S. E. Hutton, B. W. Patterson and L. E. Bord, featured the musical program last night with a splendidly rendered and effectively interpreted number, "Crosstree Rodgers promises to have them sing again in the near future.

Mr. Williams last night took occasion to express appreciation of the party to the C. O. Pass Chevrolet Co. for the car which it is furnishing to Dr. Hogg during his stay as a guest of Cisco; also to the splendid force of ushers which so efficiently handle the audience from night to night; the choir, and the large group of census workers who braved the rain Sunday morning to accomplish the enrollment of the city in so complete a manner. Appreciation was also expressed to the Gables House for special courtesies extended the party by the management.

During their stay in Cisco the evangelistic party is being entertained in homes. Dr. Hogg is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Reagan; Mr. Williams of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Winston; Mr. Rodgers of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fee; and Mr. Tredegar of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Miller.

Rev. Thomas Lenox, pastor of the First Christian church, was well represented.

came back to Cisco at the Saturday night tabernacle service, having just returned from Kentucky, where he conducted a revival meeting. He led in the opening prayer at the Sunday night service.

The audience was deeply impressed as well as highly amused at Dr. Hogg's picture of Mrs. Lot, undertaking to entertain the angels in a home dedicated to worldliness, with its consequent embarrassments. The picture of Judge Lot as a "booster type of citizen," calling angels with accounts of the municipal developments of Sodom, its paved streets, and progressive spirit when the angels had just come from gold streets to destroy the "progressive" city of the plains that had forgotten God was also an apt one needing no interpreter to clear up its meaning to the crowd that heard Dr. Hogg on "Home Life in Sodom."

In the course of his Sunday afternoon sermon, Dr. Hogg called for a demonstration from those who had been reared in homes with a family altar. A large portion of the audience lifted their hands. The evangelist then gave forceful points to his contention that spiritual things are not properly emphasized in modern home life by noting those who now had family altars in their homes. A very few hands were lifted out of the large crowd, composed principally of professing Christians.

Dr. Hogg's seventh lecture on the Book of Acts. At this service, Dr. Hogg presented those present with a personally autographed copy of the Acts as a souvenir of the morning service in which a constructive study of the book is being made. He also began the presentation of our year gift Bibles, a feature of his campaign. He announced that he would give at least 15 Bibles away during this week's services.

LOOMIS AS RING LUMINARY

Alfred (T. N. T.) Loomis, giant captain and world individualist star of New York University, is the athlete whom many experts believe will be Gene Tunney's successor as the next heavyweight champion of the world. Loomis and Billy Gibson, who piloted him to the championship.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10. — When Jimmy Bronson was putting on boxing shows in the Circus de Paris after the war he made an exceedingly bad guess. As between Gene Tunney and Bob Martin, "Joplin Jim" guessed that the latter had the better chance of becoming the next heavyweight champion. He grabbed Soldier Bob and left the Marine to Doc Bagley and—eventually—Will Gibson.

Out of Tunney Bagley got all told about ten thousand dollars and a headache. Gibson purchased the A. E. F. champion for something like $5,000, most of which Gene put up himself as a favor to Billy. At the time Tunney's hands were so brittle that pit-fighters opined that he never could harden them sufficiently to stand a chance of hurting the big fellow.

How Tunney built himself up by long sojourns in the woods where he plied the carthook with friendly lumberjacks, swung an axe for long hours each day and exercised persistently to the end that his hands be strong enough to stand the jolting, punishing punches he even then could administer, is now an old story to fans. Gentleman Gene developed the most punish-

Kansas Cattleman, Himself in Oil Business, Refuses to Have Wells Drilled on His Own Ranch

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 10. — There's something about the oil fields of the Middle West in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas that can't be told in the stories by authors who deal with the everyday life in the bright lights of New York and Hollywood. It has all been ignored.

There are multitudes of eccentric people, wealthy business, romances and peculiarities about the sections equal in interest to anything ever written into a romance.

The section boasts of the only man in the world who would rather have his pasture lands dotted with fatening cattle than with oil wells—speaking out their black wealth from the sands below. This man is none other than W. M. Ferguson, Wellington, Kan., veteran cattleman.

He isn't an eccentric man in his living either. Ferguson should know whereof he speaks for he has both oil wells and cattle on one 10,000 acre tract. It isn't that Ferguson doesn't take an interest in oil, for he does, that he chooses having the wells on his ranch.

Besides being a cattleman, he is in the business that his face is wind burned and wrinkled, he is a lawyer and a large land owner as well.

In this Texas Panhandle region, one of the largest oil producing fields in the world, Ferguson owns 40,000 acres and owns immense holdings in banks.

But the cattle racket is in his blood to stay. So why should he become enthusiastic about giving up perfectly good pasture land for oil? $500,000 in oil money?

Then there is that cursed personality regarding the namester and cartoonist Tom Slack of Wichita, who is reported to have a daily income of sixty $40,000. Imagine it, $24,000 a day.

That Slack is known as the biggest operator in the Panhandle field which has recently been developed. He has almost 500 wells in the field.

The ranchman has a new type of backbone, as anyone to that section as the liquor traffic carried on by New York society women in re-opening their fortunes.

Caroline and oil are the commodities carried across the state borders of Kansas from Oklahoma in evasion of the excessive taxes in the Souther state.

The two states are now cooperating to enforce their tax laws and prohibit this bootleg business.

There is perhaps the liquor traffic on top of that for these men in the oil fields all make high wages and want to spend it, even if they have to buy car liquor.

FOREIGN ISSUES ARE PUSHED INTO BACKGROUND IN CAMPAIGN

Hoover and Smith Fail to Agree on Nicaraguan Policy But for First Time in Years Domestic Affairs Paramount

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Foreign affairs problems are almost lost sight of in the current presidential campaign in sharp contrast with their prominence in 1916, 1920 and 1924.

"He kept us out of war" recalls Wilson defeated Charles Evans Hughes. To join the League of Nations or not, was of tremendous interest when Warren G. Harding defeated James M. Cox. Domestic problems began to come into their own when President Coolidge swamped John W. Davis in 1924.

It appears that Governor Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover would have enough to debate this year, if foreign affairs did not exist.

No Riffing Foreseen

It is doubted whether any Democrats have belted to Hoover because of his static endorsement of President Coolidge's foreign policy. It is equally doubtful whether any Republicans have belted to Smith because the governor has challenged Republican foreign policy in almost every detail.

Official and unofficial observers saw that the electorate has been impressed by discussion of the recognition of Nicaragua, enforcement of the Monroe doctrine or relations with Mexico. All these will be discussed during the campaign.

But the candidates do differ on foreign affairs. Hoover has pointed with pride and Smith has viewed with alarm—whenever discussing foreign affairs.

It is notable, however, that Hoover has not thought it necessary to defend and Smith has not thought it necessary to attack the Chinese policy of the Coolidge administration. It may be inferred from this that the extreme friendly attitude of the state department toward China is one in which Democrats concur with Republicans.

Smith Attacks in South

In the South, the omnium parvum Governor Smith accuses Hoover of having caused distrust of and unfriendliness to the United States, specifically, Smith challenges the occupation of Nicaragua by United States marines, which he says took place without proper authorization of congress in which treaty-making and war-making powers are reserved.

In the renewed and extended arbitration and conciliation treaties, Smith sees instruments whose usefulness is materially lessened by foreign reservations, relative to the right to wage defensive war. Smith maintains the worth of the Kellogg-Briand treaty because he believes it does not strike at the causes of war. Promotion of international friendship and fair play is necessary to abolish war, he holds.

Asks Monroe Attenuation

Perhaps most far-reaching of Smith's foreign affairs policies is that in which he pledges himself to take concerted action among all Latin-American countries in any further enforcement of responsibilities arising from the Monroe doctrine.

Hoover has endorsed the Coolidge policy which Smith assails. Hoover has said his foreign affairs policy would be based on what he described as the "two cooperating factors of peace—the building of good will by wise and sympathetic handling of international relations, and the adequate preparedness for defense."

"We must not only be just," said Hoover, "we must be respected."

Neither Smith nor Hoover advocates joining the League of Nations. In the arbitration, conciliation and anti-war treaties, Hoover sees progress toward the maintenance of peace along the formula stated by him.

Not Different Fundamentally

Fundamentally, the presidential debate on foreign policies discloses less difference than agreement, as Smith—"I pledge myself to a resumption of real endeavor to make the outlawry of war effective by removing its causes and to substitute the method of conciliation, conference, arbitration and judicial determination."

Hoover—"We believe that the foundation of peace can be strengthened by the creation of methods and agencies by which a multitude of incidents may be transferred from the realm of prejudice—and force to arbitration and the determination of right and wrong, based upon international law."

REVENGE SEEN IN CHOKING BOY

Luis Panerella, right, of Brooklyn, is the alleged slayer of six-year-old brother of his wife shown at left with an older sister. The boy's body was found tied in a sack after he had been choked to death. The police are holding Luis on charges of homicide, saying that he threatened the whole family of his girl bride over a year ago.

DRILL REPORT OIL ACTIVITY IN DISTRICT 8

Following is the report of oil activities in the Cisco field, district No. 8, as made to Omar Burnett, county oil and gas supervisor, September 8.—Frank Oil & Gas.

WHO PAYS?

The American business expert, Ben R. Vardaman, of Chicago, said in a recent lecture here in Cisco, that PRODUCTIVE ADVERTISING DOES NOT COST ANYBODY ANYTHING.

A big jewelry firm spent $800 for one insertion of an advertisement that told its customers that its advertising not only did not necessitate the raising of the price of jewelry but made it possible to lower the price to its customers. For the rent was the same whether they sold $1,000 worth of goods or $100,000. But in the latter case the percentage of profit was augmented 100 fold.

Then, if advertising increases the attention which the public gives your goods and hence tends to increase the yearly sales, it becomes an asset rather than a liability. It enables the merchant to make a much greater profit per day or per year than he would otherwise be able to make.

But Mr. Vardaman did not say it all. ADVERTISING DOES COST SOMEBODY SOMETHING. Somebody does pay for every cent of advertising that is done in a town among its live merchants. But it is not the merchant who advertises that does the paying. It is the merchant who does not do the advertising that ultimately pays the bill, and sometimes he pays it over and over again.

How does he pay? He pays in decreased sales. If one hardware merchant advertises and the others do not, the live man gets increased attention and his profits mount higher each month, while the less aggressive merchant pays the same rent and other incidental expenses each month with a decreasing of sales.

The non-advertising furniture dealer, as an illustration, sometimes says: "I have no competition in town. Why should I advertise?"

Let's see a moment. There is so much money spent in the town each month. Its expenditure is apportioned according to the desires and tastes of the buyer. If the automobile dealer is a live, aggressive advertiser the customer is made to desire a new car more than she does a new suite of furniture, or she is made to desire new dresses and shoes more than she desires new furniture, simply because the advertisers talk automobile, dresses or shoes in such alluring ways that the customer's interest is aroused along those lines. Then who pays for the advertising of the automobile dealer, the dry goods merchant or the shoe dealer? It is easy to see that these live merchants who advertise and cause interest in their products get more than their proportionate share of the town's pay roll for the month. Interest in furniture wanes and that dealer finds that his lack of alertness is making him pay for the other fellow's advertising.

Millions of dollars have been spent for advertising chewing gum, Coca-Cola, Palmolive and Ivory soap, and dozens of other articles, and yet the price of these world known articles has remained on a level with the most inferior makes of their kind. The cost of living has mounted during the last few years to such an extent that $100 does not go as far as $25 once did, yet chewing gum still sells for five cents. Why? Advertising makes it possible for Wrigley to make millions on an article, and at a price, that once made him a bankrupt.

Advertise Liberally—the Other Fellow Pays the Bill!

STYLE HINTS

By ALICE LANGLETT, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Tailored frocks for street wear this winter will mostly be of tweed, according to the smart ones being shown on the du de la Paix and Champs Elysees. They are very simple but well-cut and very feminine in line, looking exceedingly chic with a fox fur on fresh fall days.

One recently seen in the Bois consists of a regular cape with narrow turnover collar and beaver and long jacket blouse with turned-back notched collar and two rows of tiny brown buttons in double-breasted effect above the waistline and a narrow brown leather belt at the back and dividing skirt with a square loose panel in the center of the front.

Many of these trig tailored tweed frocks have the appearance of jacket and skirt although in one piece only. One in checked tweed has a tight little jacket-like bodice buttoned straight up the front and a skirt which has two loose square-edged panels hanging a bit below the hem at the back of the skirt. Another is made like a jumper and skirt with turned-back collar and cuffs of beaver and a band of the same fur at the edge of the jumper which has a wide belt of leather.

Mag Helly is showing a chic tailored ensemble of tweed with gray astrakhan collar and cuffs lined with black satin.

Joseph Pabouin uses dark blue reps in Prince's style for a smart street frock with a row of silver buttons from shin to hem and a piping of red at the top of the standing collar and wide belt; in red and blue suede at the waistline.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield"

Mild enough for anybody ... and yet they Satisfy*

WHEN we sign our name to a statement in an advertisement, we mean just that. To us, signing an advertisement is in no way different from signing a contract.

There is no double meaning, no half-truth, no false note in our statement that Chesterfield Cigarettes are mild enough for anybody—and yet they satisfy.
