BIG ZEP FIGHTING GROWING STORM

Work Is Begun on 'Phone Company Project Here

LONG DISTANCE CABLE CONDUIT WILL BE LAID

Excavation Work Is to Be Started by Monday.

Work of laying the conduit for Bell Telephone company long distance underground cable has started in Cisco. The conduit will carry the big cable from South Cleveland, just east of the station, in south Cisco down E avenue to West Seventh street where the company will build its relay station.

Contract for the construction of the conduit and the laying of the cable through it has been let to Harrison-Wright Construction company with home offices in Charlotte, N. C. The work being done is in charge of J. F. Randall, division superintendent for the construction company with headquarters at Houston. Arch Brightwell is construction foreman for the project.

The cable will be laid in a tile conduit. For a portion of the distance from South Boulevard this conduit will contain six ducts and the remainder of the distance one duct. Each duct will accommodate a cable made up of 1,000 wires so that as many as six separate underground cables will be run into Cisco and tied in the large relay station which will be built here. Only one—the Fort Worth to Cisco cable—will be laid this time.

An interesting feature of the conduit will be the 13 manholes to be spaced at intervals along the route of the cable down E avenue. These manholes, which will be 11 feet in depth and 5 feet and 6 inches of diameter, are larger than the ones built before, said Mr. Brightwell. These manholes will be built of concrete and reinforced steel bars. They will be set in the ditches along the side of the conduit.

The conduit will be laid from 37 feet deep. Holes will be cut out through the paving all the way down to the conduit.

The excavation work will begin later than Monday, Mr. Brightwell said. A force of about 25 men will be employed and the work will last five or six weeks.

Laying of the cable started Monday. It is expected to reach Cisco probably in October by which time it is expected the relay station, building ready for occupancy here. This building will be two stories in height and will represent the most advanced in telephone construction equipment.

When completed practically all long distance telephone communications between east and west Texas will pass through Cisco.

SINCLAIR RESPONSIBLE TO THESE TWO

CORONATION OF LOBO KING AND QUEEN TONIGHT

Gorgeous and colorful is the maroon and silver throne room now complete in beauty and magnificence, and awaiting the ceremonies attendant upon the crowning of their majesties, Queen and King Lobo V.

From far and near, to do honor to this royal pair have come kings and queens of other realms with their attendants and ladies-in-waiting. Also, former Lobo kings and queens are here for a like purpose.

Nothing is being left undone to make this evening's ceremonial the most entertaining and brilliant of all former ones in the music, the program, the lighting effects, the superb costumes and the loveliness of setting. New and elaborate details have been worked out for the pageant, and for announcing the entrance of each member of the court and visiting royalty. The plan for seating these participants will form a picture of splendor and color seldom surpassed.

Those who have been fortunate enough to catch a glimpse of Her Majesty's Coronation Robe say that for richness and beauty it is unequalled.

King Lobo V. will also be arrayed in a costume any king would delight to wear.

Altogether, the evening promises to be one of glorious achievement and joy.

A tea honoring the visiting princess will be given this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lee. After the coronation there will be a dance at the Country club for the whole royal court.

Rotarians and Rotary Anns Forget Dignity for a Night and Enjoy Good Time on Laguna Roof Garden

"The great success of Rotary International is due to the fact that it has idealized business," said Rotarian Tom Taylor, humorist dean of Howard Payne college, of Brownwood, to the between 75 and 100 Rotarians and Rotary Anns who gathered last night on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel for the annual "Ladies Night" of the Cisco club. Rotarian Tom's address, adjusted to the character of the gathering, followed a humorous vein, interlarded with moments of serious hue during which he set forth by statement and illustration the fundamental principles and ideals upon which the service club is founded. Rotarians and Rotary Anns laughed, and they had the moment to think before they laughed again. The address was a fitting climax to an evening of informal peasantry.

"Men do not come to the Rotary club to hear addresses such as this," said Tom. "They come because they find in the association there and in the ideals that are practiced an invaluable something which binds them together in a new and stronger fellowship. There are towns that are split by factions but when Rotary comes the breaches are sealed and a new unity arrives with it. Business men through Rotary learn that they are not supposed to fight each other for the benefits that exist but that they must join together to work for larger benefits so that they all will share in the larger return."

Analogy Show.
He drew analogy between the effect of the labor revolutions of the middle ages upon the status of the laborer and the effect of the modern service clubs upon business. Just as these revolutions of a few centuries ago gave dignity to long pants by lifting the laborer to a new social plane alongside the knee breeches and silver buckles of the nobleman and the gentleman, so business through service clubs which foster high ideals, has been rescued from the barbaric sentiment that is a relic of the days before the laws of supply and demand came to be recognized as tremendous social forces.

The evening had a delightful air of informality. No doubt this was due to the presence of the wives. Dignity has such an emptiness when a man's wife is viewing him with that knowing little smile and it takes a real hero to affect it at such times. At any rate it was a foreign element last night so far as the roof garden of the Laguna hotel was concerned.

Instead a hilarious group of business men, professional men and their wives were treated to the spectacle of a prominent doctor skipping through the terpsichorean intricacies of the Arkansas Traveler with the agility of a minstrel tap artist. To the credit of Rotarian Doc Graham he didn't do it voluntarily but under compulsion. The compulsion was furnished by three women into whose hands the preparation of the program was given and who carried out their arrangements with tyrannical assumption. To show his versatility Rotarian Graham finished off his performance with an aesthetic interpretation. He

INCREASE IN CLINIC DEATH LIST FEARED

CLEVELAND, O., May 17.—With 80 patients of the Cleveland clinic unaccounted for and 45 more in hospitals here, it was feared that many more may be added to the death toll which stood today at 126.

The 80 unaccounted for patients are persons who were registered at the clinic Wednesday when the explosions occurred. What happened to them is unknown to officials here.

Fear that they have felt the effects of the deadly gas that resulted from the blast developed when it was learned that an 81st unaccounted for patient died today at Grove City, Pa.

Loses Shotgun While on Visit to Cisco

A 16-gauge shotgun belonging to Dr. R. W. Crawford, of Rising Star, together with a medicine case, also belonging to him, was stolen from a car in front of the home of E. P. Crawford, brother of Dr. Crawford, yesterday afternoon. The medicine case was later found in the street a short distance away where it had evidently been discarded by the thieves.

Dr. Crawford had come for a visit and a fishing outing at Lake Cisco with E. P. Crawford and with their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sims. The party had gone to Lake Cisco for the afternoon and discovered the loss of the articles on their return.

ANXIETY FOR CRIPPLED SHIP IS INCREASING

Big Dirigible Tossed About Like Free Balloon.

MONTELMAR, France, May 17.—The Graf Zeppelin flew over Grignon, 27 miles south-east of here, at 6:15 p. m. and Commander Hugo Eckener dropped a note saying he intended to land at the Cuers Airrome, Toulon, rather than at Montelimar, because with the motors off he was unable to turn northward towards Montelimar.

VALENCE, France, May 17.—The Graf Zeppelin, tossed about like a free balloon by a growing storm, turned her course up the Rhone Valley this afternoon, seeking another sailing over the Alps.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Zeppelin, was afraid to risk a landing in France under the severe weather conditions. After wireless that he might have to come down, and requesting troops to stand by, he signalled at 3:49 p. m., half an hour later, that he intended to try another course.

Taking a chance on fighting out the storm alone, Eckener turned eastward from the Rhone and started through the Drone Valley, in the department of Drôme, toward the Alps.

The wind had become so strong that at times it blew the dirigible backwards, the crippled motors being too weak to push the ship forward.

Anxiety for the dirigible's safety grew. Troops continued to stand ready at Valence and Lyons, in case Dr. Eckener found the weather too severe to the east and returned for a landing.

The Zeppelin at 4:15 p. m., passed over a crest 15 miles southeast of Valence.

The motors were all stopped. The ship was apparently drifting. The wind was blowing the dirigible in the direction of Saillans, which is 25 miles southeast of Valence on the Drone river. The wind appeared to be driving the Zeppelin along at 20 miles an hour.

If the motors fail entirely, the wind will blow the dirigible directly to Toulon, on the Mediterranean coast east of Marseilles, where the French naval dirigible station was prepared to receive her.

STATE OFFICER ARRESTED AT ELIZABETHTON

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 17.—Adjutant General W. C. Boyd, of the Tennessee national guard, was arrested today on a warrant charging him with aiding and abetting to commit murder. The warrant was sworn out by Miss Evelyn Henson and charged she was injured when an automobile driven by Ed Calhoun was pointed into a crowd at Valley Forge yesterday allegedly upon orders of General Boyd.

The officer was released on $1,000 bond. A preliminary hearing will probably be held today.

Several persons were injured when Calhoun's car, filled with "Local Workers" enroute to the Bemborg and Gantzoff rayon plants, plunged into the crowd of pickets that lined the highway.

Calhoun is held in jail at Jonesboro for safekeeping, after the angry crowd sought to attack him.

Oil Men Predict an Immediate Increase in Price of Oil Is Inevitable; Shortage Forecast

TULSA, Okla., May 17.—In Tulsa, oil capital of the southwest it is believed that an increase in the price of crude oil is inevitable. Oklahoma producers have stated that there is a shortage of oil.

The current rumor predicts two immediate oil price hikes adding 50 cents a barrel to the current rates. With increased prices in view a "fixed and established" production mark of 725,000 barrels for Oklahoma, producers are looking for means to increase production.

The most likely spot in Oklahoma for increased production is the Asher pool. There is one well in this area but 35 are being drilled. The second well has an oil showing and most of the holes are near the pay formations.

According to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, the problem of oil conservation is one for the oil industry itself to solve and not for the state.

Judge John E. Walsh sentenced the men in the criminal division of municipal court.

NO HOPE FOR TAX MEASURES THIS SESSION

AUSTIN, May 17.—Both reduction in automobile license fees and an increased gasoline tax vanished so far as the present session of the legislature is concerned this morning.

Rep. Leonard Tillotson, author of the four cent gasoline tax bill, asked that it be "laid on the table" with announcement that it will not again be called up at the session. The house granted the request.

In disposing of the bill this way, Rep. Tillotson announced he did so because senate members have told him they want longer time than remains to consider both the gasoline tax and the registration fees. Tillotson also announced that the governor will submit both topics at the opening of the next called session.

PRECEDENT IS ESTABLISHED BY RAIL PACT

DALLAS, May 17.—That a precedent was established regarding payment of losses on homes of railroad men when they are required to move, was the belief here today as the result of the peace treaty signed here yesterday between the Texas & Pacific railroad and four railroad brotherhoods.

The agreement, carried out by an emergency mediation board appointed by President Hoover, ended threat of a strike looming on the Texas & Pacific since the four brotherhoods voted for it a few months ago.

Under the agreement, the railway will pay half the loss sustained by railroad men in moving the division point from Longview to Mineola and the trainmen will stand the other half. The road will recognize this principle under similar conditions in the future, the agreement said.

The mediation board, headed by James R. Garfield, held hearings here beginning April 10. Ten days later it submitted its recommendations to the president, who, in turn, transmitted them to the parties here. It was the third time a special mediation board appointed by a president rectified difficulty on railroads, former President Coolidge having solved two threatening strikes in the same way.

Advice Givers and Lawmakers Pres. Hoover was inaugurated in the month of March. He has a congress on his hands in the month of May. He was pledged to a farm relief bill enactment. Barber's Hill Making History; Two Offset Wells Drill Into as Many Producers Within 2 Weeks

HOUSTON, May 17.—Barber's Hill rapidly is making history. Two years ago this field was little known except to old-time oil men who had faith in it. Subsequent events proved their faith was justified. Two weeks ago oil history had failed to record a single instance of an offset drilling into the casing of a producing well. Now Barber's Hill is recognized as one of the major pools of the Gulf Coast and has established a record of having two wells drill into as many producers.

Judge Hamilton, Confessed Slayer of Son-in-Law at Amarillo, Once President of Brownwood College

WACO, May 17. — Judge R. H. Hamilton of Amarillo, confessed slayer of his daughter's young husband, was president of Howard Payne college at Brownwood before becoming a high state jurist, records here have revealed. The records also reveal how he was home-whipped a man. Listing him as an outstanding student, moulty papers at Baylor record accomplishments of the university's famed scholar and student leader, who later became head of his alma mater's department of history then in succession president of Howard Payne, county judge at Port Lavaca, assistant attorney general, and finally a judge on the supreme court commission of appeals. Hamilton served as head of Howard Payne for one year. Leaving it to practice law at Port Lavaca, the former prexy resigned his newly acquired judgeship to accept the appointment of Governor Pat Neff to become assistant to Texas' legal advisor. Now in the sunset of life, this aged Baylor alumnus is in jail at Amarillo, held for slaying young Ben Walton, Jr., his daughter's young lover and husband, while his wife and two daughters, one the 20-year-old college widow, maintain their poise and refuse to discuss for the present the background of their lamentable grief. The home-whipping incident is part of a story of college vengeance which the imprisoned justice, when a student leader here, played the main part. It was in 1897 that Hamilton became involved in the fracas which culminated fatally for W. C. Brann, his man he horse-whipped. The trouble started when Brann, editor of the "Iconoclast" published an article unfavorable to the character of certain young women attending Baylor. Hamilton, with some class-mates, appointed themselves as Galahads for their wounded girl class-mates. Leaving a student assembly, called as an indignation meeting, the group took a cab to the editor's office. Hamilton went in to meet Brann. "This is Mr. Brann, I believe," he was quoted as saying, feigning friendship. "It is," said the other, extending his hand. Hamilton grasped it firmly and led the surprised editor out to the cab where he was handled roughly and bound by the college group. Followed by police, the youths rushed Brann to the crowded campus where the indignation meeting was dismissing. "Get the guns! Police are after us," one of the students, atop the cab, was said to have shouted breathlessly. The students noted, breaking into the armory of the military department, they began preparing for open warfare. In the nick of time, faculty members finally quieted them. However, the crowd, with Hamilton leading, forced the editor to sign a retraction of the article before letting him go. Subsequently, Hamilton and other leaders were fined for their conduct. It was soon afterward that Hamilton, meeting the editor on a street corner, horse whipped him before the eyes of two student companions. Hamilton graduated with high scholastic standing two years later, receiving a bachelor's degree. He was recalled in 1901 to teach history, later to become head of the department.

POOR COTTON FARMER DUE ANOTHER BLOW

NEW YORK, May 17. — Dr. J. Hadley-Thornton, discoverer of the method by which "artificial cotton" is manufactured, was in New York attempting to arouse the interest of American firms in the formula which he believes will revolutionize the world's cotton industry. Hadley-Thornton, who said he was not seeking capital in the United States, discovered the artificial cotton weed in British Guiana. He was assisted by Gaston de Pkury, a chemist, in perfecting the system of manufacture now used by the English Artificial Cotton and Marketing Corporation, Ltd., London. The two men found the cotton-like material in a bird's nest and spent months tracing the material to the weed from which the bird had plucked it. After finding the weed, they spent nine years perfecting the secret chemical process by which the cotton is made from the fiber of the weed. It has been grown successfully for more than a year in England and the product has been sold in a number of countries. The discoverers claim production of about 700 pounds per acre to be sold at about 12 cents per pound.

Rotarians Forget Dignity in Good Time Friday Night

Continued from page 1. carried this number off with credit, also measuring his length upon the floor only once. And for all the spectators knew about these Grecian things, that incident might have been a part of the show. Not Only Victim. The Rotarian was not the only victim to fall a victim to the program committee. Two boxes filled with slips upon which were written the names of the members of the club and their wives and with other slips upon which were written arbitrary commands were presided over by Mrs. Paul Woods and Mrs. George Fee. Mrs. Woods drew a slip from one box and read the name of the hapless victim. Mrs. Fee followed with a slip from another box which commanded the hapless victim to do a certain thing. The hapless victim could not refuse under penalty of ostracism. Rotarian Bruce Boney was the first to be snared. His slip called for a song and, of course, his dignity did not suffer. He sang "Love's Old Sweet Song" with Miss Velma Walters at the piano. Miss Walters was the next. Her slip called for a "stunt" with another person. A dip into the box of names by Mrs. Woods called for Russell Wiley. A violin and piano sketch with J. E. T. Peters as the subject, was the result. Two other doctors, Rotarian G. M. Stephenson and Rotarian Paul Woods, and Rotarian Henry Drumwright and Mrs. O. J. Russell were the next victims. Their stunt called for a song in quartet. Fortunately for the group it did not call for harmony. The next drawing arrayed a lawyer and a woman in a forensic contest. The contest didn't reflect any too great on the legal profession but Rotarian Forrest Wright pled Southern gallantry and came off with honor. Mrs. Charles Brown was his opponent. They were commanded to debate the question: "Resolved, that there is more chewing gum wasted in packing than toothpaste down the drain pipe." Mrs. Brown rested her case upon the contention that no one present used tooth paste and that therefore no toothpaste was wasted. To prove her point not a Rotarian present admitted using the article. Last on the list the Lee boys, "Dad" and "Red" were drafted into a duet. They essayed "Old Black Joe" and got one syllable past the first stanza. They complained of too much competition. After this part of the program had been completed the roof garden was cleared and the Rotarians and their guests enjoyed bridge, "forty-two" and dancing. The committee which provided the program for the evening was composed of Mrs. Paul Woods, Mrs. George Fee and Mrs. Leon Mancer. That they made a good job of it every person present is in agreement.

RICH GIRL POOR GIRL

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED. MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE who is lured away by PAMELA JUDSON when she tells him Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR, who is blackmailing him over a forged check. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, and when she announces her engagement to Stephen, frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela drops Stephen, but Mildred tries to get him out of jail.

Harold had once told her he feared Huck, who had threatened to get rid of Stephen to keep him from marrying Pamela. Mildred determines to force Harold to help her, and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. She tells Stephen her suspicions, but they have no proof to offer.

Finally she goes to MR. JUDSON, who takes her to headquarters to tell her story. Judson balks, Stephen out and Pamela begs forgiveness. On the way from the jail to the hotel, he narrowly escapes being shot by a thug in a passing taxi. He reports to Mr. Judson and is horrified to learn that Mildred has been slightly wounded by a gangster shot. His concern over her causes Judson to doubt his love for Pamela and he forbids his daughter to "buy her man" with his money. She reminds him that he had bought her two penniless step-mothers. Convinced that she loves Stephen, the father gives in to her pleading.

Next day Pamela takes Stephen out for a "drive" and surprises him by going to Mildred's home. He protests but she insists on his going in with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV
Connie flashed angrily at Pamela's request, coughed as a command.

"Mildred isn't receiving company," she said shortly, but Pamela had moved on until she stood before the door to the living room.

There she saw the injured girl, propped up with pillows in the big high chair. She ignored Connie's words completely and walked on into the room.

"I'd like to roll you round the block," Connie thought resentfully. She closed the door behind Stephen and let him follow Pamela down the hall while she hurried back to her mother to tell her Pamela was there with Stephen.

Mrs. Lawrence glanced at her husbandress. "You go back and stay, Connie, until I change," she said nervously.

"She WOULD come at this hour," Connie remarked.

"Poor Milly, poor child," Mrs. Lawrence said to herself as she hurried out into the hall and down to her own room.

Within a few minutes she came to the living room, looking very neat in a dark printed silk dress that Mildred had given her for Christmas.

Pamela was surprisingly sweet to her, coming up as she stood uncertainly in the doorway and asking about her "broken" arm.

"It was a burn," Mrs. Lawrence made her way back to the living room. She needn't have troubled to serve the refreshments. With a wave of her hand Pamela declined the lemonade when it was proffered to her. She did not pause in her running comments even to say no, let alone thank you.

The kick she was getting out of telling Mildred her plans for her wedding and her honeymoon—while it wasn't all that she hoped it would be—was better than anything she could get out of a glass of lemonade.

Mildred wasn't reacting the way she had hoped. There wasn't a sign of envy on her face. Suffering, yes, but Pamela couldn't be sure that it was not caused by physical pain and the experience Mildred had been through the day before.

Pamela had hoped to make her wince and writhe. That's what she had come for—to show Mildred that even though Stephen might rush up to see her the very first night he was out of jail it didn't mean a thing.

In fact, she even went so far, with Stephen standing by, to say that she had asked him to make the call.

Stephen considered it just a bit of polite social whitewashing. That it was a knife thrust in Mildred's heart occurred to him no more than it did to question Connie's statement that Mildred had a sweetheart.

She had been very careful on her visits to him in jail to give the occasion no more than a friendly aspect. Stephen considered her a true-blue ally, loyal and wholehearted. It wouldn't have surprised him to learn that many men loved her.

He drank his lemonade thirstily, grateful for its acid coolness on his parched throat.

Why the devil didn't Pam stop her prattling? Couldn't she see that Mildred was tired and her mother looking harassed? And that young Connie stood there scowling at them like a black-browed hater? It made him nervous.

But Pamela didn't allow anyone to tell her when it was time to go, Stephen knew by experience.

"We owe so much of this to you," Pamela was running on, having seated herself on the edge of a chair she had pulled up close to Mildred's.

"I must send you something from Africa. Perhaps a real leopard skin for a coat, a genuine Somali. You could have it made up plain and wear it with a wide brown leather belt, suede, I think. You'd look awfully smart in it, Mildred. I'm going to ask dad to buy me a chinchilla wrap for my trousseau. There aren't half a dozen in the shops but I won't want it for several months. Dad can send it to Paris. We're going there after we leave Africa and then we're going up to Norway for the ski jumping.

"Oh, you just ought to see Norway in winter, Mildred. I know some English people who have a place on the coast near a little town called Mandel. I was there two years ago. It's the loveliest spot. I can't think of a more idyllic place for a honeymoon. We can walk for miles through the park—all the land between the village and the beach is a park, if you please—with moss a foot deep and the most intriguing and unexpected little gins and dells and glades and . . ." she paused, breathless.

"Valleys and vales and dales and dingles," Connie coughed on.

"Why don't you get a theurist?" Pamela lifted an eyebrow.

"Really, they do teach everything but manners in the public schools, don't they?"

Mildred reached up a trembling hand to Connie's. "Don't mind her," she said to Pamela. "She's just a freshie." But the pressure of her fingers told Connie of her gratitude for having put an end to Pamela's raving.

Only it wasn't at an end. A further remark of Connie's started Pamela going again. Perhaps she'd have started anyway.

"What are you going to do without jazz?" Connie asked.

"Jazz?" Pamela repeated. "Believe it or not Stephen and I are both just too glad to get away from it. We want a chance to commune with nature and find our deeper selves. You know, I think half the married couples don't know each other really. Life's too hectic here in America. We want to find a place where we can be all the world to each other. Where we will get to know the meaning of every little word the other speaks. You know, I'm sure that two people can grow to be just like one when they love each other as Stephen and I do."

She beamed at Stephen, who looked at that moment like the living embodiment of what love can do to make a man uncomfortable. Pamela smiled with satisfaction. He would leave her to pay a call on another girl, would he?

She guessed more of Stephen's mind than he knew himself. She'd known from the beginning that Mildred was the girl he wanted; that if she hadn't thrown the glamorous veil of her own personality and cultivated loveliness before him he'd have loved straight to Mildred long before this.

But it wasn't what Stephen wanted that mattered to her; it was what she wanted. And she wanted Stephen.

She knew he wouldn't break their engagement. For all his modernism he had an old-fashioned sense of honor. His obligation to her father for securing his release from jail would help to hold him, too.

But she didn't want him telling her he didn't love her; making any last minute confessions. One simply had to think of the future. It certainly wouldn't be nice to live with a sacrifice.

If Stephen found out, before their marriage, that he was making a mistake and went through with it he would inevitably consider he had sacrificed his happiness for his honor.

And with Mildred drooping pathetically right under their eyes he might find it out any minute.

Pamela got up to go.

Stephen walked over to Mildred, and there was something in his manner that held Pamela in suspense.

Race World Hosts Converging Upon Louisville Today

City Jammed With Colorful, Eager Crowds Awaiting 55th Running of America's Greatest Turf Classic

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 17.—The shrill whistle of steamboats calling for anchorage through the early morning haze on the Ohio, the day-long rumble of arriving special trains and the jumble of traffic through the picturesque old streets of Louisville today are the coming of the hosts of the turf world—owners, breeders, bookies, fans, and just plain folks who love a horse race—for the fifty-fifth running of the classic Kentucky derby.

In the bars and barber shops, along the streets and through the crowded hotel lobbies, and out a little ways from town in the broad, hospitable homes of the blue grass country, the talk was all of tomorrow's renewal of the greatest of all American turf classics, and of who would win.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

By United Press.
Yesterday's hero—Jimmy Wilson, St. Louis Cardinals' catcher, whose double in the tenth inning scored Heim and enabled the National league champions to beat Pittsburgh, 10 to 9. The victory gave the Cardinals undisputed possession of first place. Jim Bottomley drove out four hits, including two home runs.

The Boston Braves beat the New York Giants 4 to 3 and 5 to 4. Larry Benton and Carl Hubbell losing to Bruce Cunningham and Art DeLaney. The Braves won the second game in the tenth when Freddy McGuire's double drove in the winning run.

Pounding Dazzy Vance out of the box, the Philadelphia Phillies won from Brooklyn, 7 to 4. Lefty O'Doul hit his sixth and seventh homers of the season. It was Brooklyn's ninth straight defeat.

General Crowder and Al Melillo started in the Browns' 1 to 0 defeat over Cleveland. Crowder held the Indians to two hits and Melillo drove in the only run in the ninth after Kress' single.

Owen Carroll, Detroit pitcher, won his own game with a single in the seventh following Schube's triple, the Tigers defeating the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 3.

No other games were played.

Folks from Memphis and St. Louis who came up on the river boats had their favorites, as did the smartly attired groups in special cars from New York and Chicago, and as did the Kentucky mountaineer down from the hills to bet their shirts on Col. E. R. Bradley's blue Larkspur, the home bred favorite.

Gay hearted little negro boy who shined your boots could tip you the certain winner of the classic on the Downs tomorrow afternoon with just as much assurance as the solemn-faced, tobacco chewing breeder fresh from the stable, redolent of horse flesh, with "the latest word from headquarters."

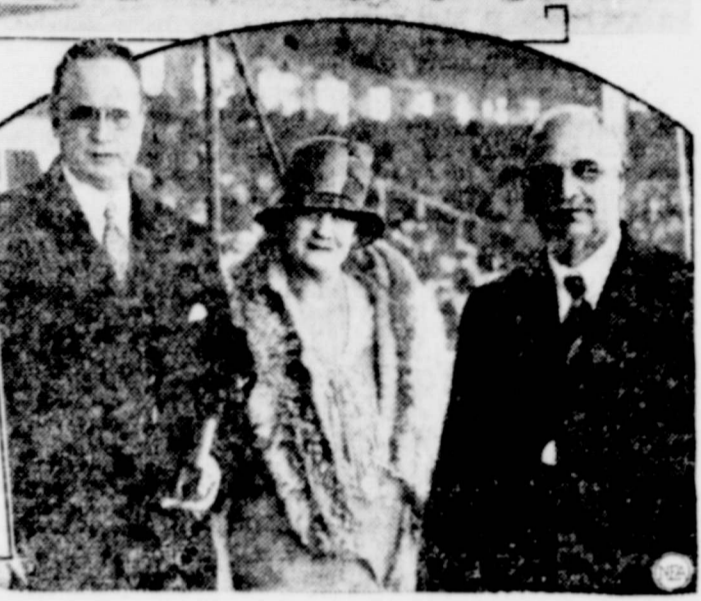

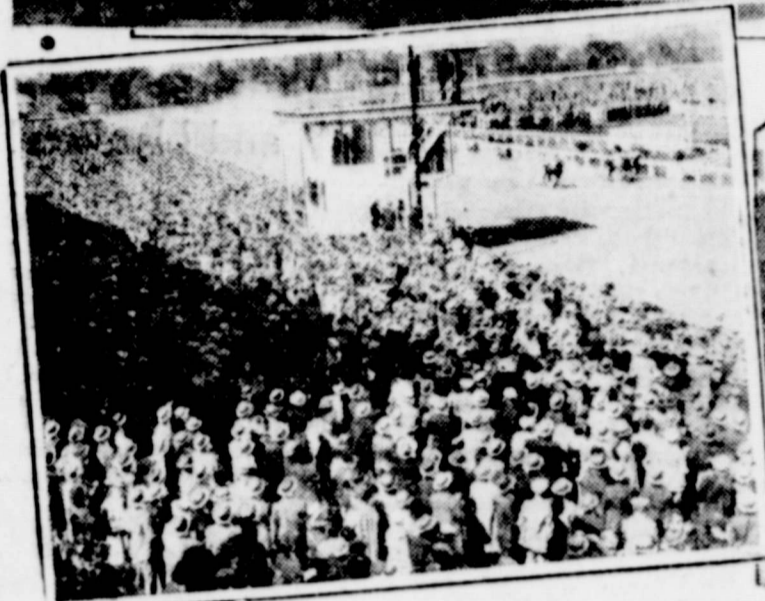

And question as to the famous Kentucky derby retaining its old fashioned charm and popularity must have been dispelled today by the arrival of a record number of special trains from New York and Chicago. Most persons came to Louisville on the special trains of the Pennsylvania railroad than ever before.

In all, the crowd at the Downs tomorrow afternoon will number about 100,000 provided the weather is fine.

The possibility of rain and subsequent mud, however, is not alarming backers of the favorite, for Blue Larkspur weighed a mile and a furlong in soft going in the creditable time of two minutes flat.

Col. Matt Winn, genial host to the derby throng, is optimistic about the weather, and spring finery along the streets of Louisville indicates that others are, too.

WHEN $50,000 PREAKNESS PURSE WAS WON.

More than 40,000 wildly cheering race fans saw the Preakness Day Handicap run at Pimlico, Maryland, the other day. Above is shown the thrilling finish, with Dr. Freedland, Jockey Shafer up, winning by a length over Minotaur which, just before the race, was reported sold to J. R. Thompson, Jr., of Chicago, for a price the size of the coveted $50,000 purse. Third place went to African, at the left in this picture. Below, left, you see a section of the vast crowd while the race was being run and, right, the much discussed Ganna, of Washington, with Vice President Curtis. These seems to have been no argument over the seating arrangements of the grand stand box.

RISING STAR OPERATOR GETS TWO NEW WELLS

Mac T. Anderson, independent oil operator of Rising Star was a visitor to Cisco yesterday afternoon. Mr. Anderson has only recently completed two shallow wells on leases held by him in the territory about eight miles south of Rising Star. He started another well Thursday.

The two wells completed are the Leatherwood Nos. 3 and 4, good for 25 and 30 barrels a day respectively and located in block 11 of the Juan Delgado survey in Brown county. They are bottomed between 1,100 and 1,200 feet.

The well just starting is located in the south half of block 16 of the C. W. Jones tract in Brown county, about one mile southeast of the two new producers.

The gravity of the oil found in the territory ranges between 41 and 25 degrees. Humble Pipe Line company is running the production.

LIONS CLUB AT RISING STAR ENJOYS PICNIC

RISING STAR, May 17.—Some 40 Lions, members of the local club, with their families and a number of invited guests enjoyed a basket picnic at the Philpoco Country club Tuesday evening, a tempting picnic supper being spread at 6:30 near the club house. Following the fine picnic supper a number of games and contests were enjoyed, prizes being offered in several of the contests, the winners being as follows:

Peanut race—Hayden Hodges winner, prize two golf balls.
Ladies' long drive—Mrs. Mac Anderson winner, prize box of candy.
Girls' race—Frances Rutherford winner, prize compact.
Chicken eating contest—Hubert Jones winner, prize box cigars.
Boys' throw of golf ball—Charles Bucy winner.

Quite a few of the members and their families drove out to the club early and enjoyed a round of golf, while others spent a few pleasant hours fishing in Phillips lake. President Tyler, of the club, expressed himself delighted with the picnic and states that other such diversions will be planned for the summer.

LONE STAR LEAGUE THING OF THE PAST

Three Clubs Left in Circuit Give up Efforts.

DALLAS, May 17.—The Lone Star league was a thing of the past today.

Playing their final game yesterday, Tyler defeated Sherman 6 to 5 and Palestine won from Texarkana 4 to 1. Small crowds saw the game, the customary size of Lone Star league crowd this season. It was this factor which caused Texarkana, largest city of the league, to "give up the ship," causing the league to disband.

By unanimous consent of the three remaining clubs, the season was declared at an end by President T. H. Fisher. Baseball players were looking for jobs today while the tax ends of business will be dispensed with at a meeting here Sunday.

The finish came after a hard fight for the league's life. With only four clubs, the league was a mere shadow of itself in former seasons. Despite this fact, the season opened with enthusiasm, large crowds attending the opening games. The towns declared holidays, parades were held, bands played, and speeches were presented.

Finally Sherman was declared on the rocks. In a valiant effort, townsmen weathered the financial storms. Then last week, Tyler baseball was declared sunk, only to be revived at a spirited meeting of the chamber of commerce. At this gathering, dissatisfaction with having a league president was voiced.

Things went smoothly for a couple of days, until Texarkana bowed over the circuit fans with words of withdrawal.

Bad Manager?

BY COBB, the records always will show, was one of the greatest ball players of all times. Staggered he was the greatest. He did everything better than any other ball player. With one exception. He didn't hit the ball out of the park as often as the Babe.

Haney Says No

FRED HANEY, who is now in the employ of the St. Louis Cardinals, was a ball player in Detroit under Cobb and according to our memory, he is the first ball player who worked under Cobb who publicly said something nice about him as a manager.

Tried to Be Nice

COBB would have been a successful manager. Haney went on, "if he had been given complete co-operation by all the players. I have heard it said many times that Cobb ruined the chance of getting co-operation by firing his men. But if I were a manager I would ride any man who wouldn't work for me."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

KID CHOCOLATE, the dark fighter, has a right name of Eligio Sardinias.

LIONS CLUB AT RISING STAR ENJOYS PICNIC

Thinking what would happen if he went down and his chin hit the floor. . . . John McGraw said that 20 per cent of the players in the big leagues should be wearing glasses. . . . How about the umpires? . . . Bucky Harris scared the Detroit ball club to death when he asked waiters on Hellmann.

Sitting and Watching

I KNOW that Cobb was a smart manager," he said. "I sat next to him on the bench one day when we were playing in Cleveland. And he called eighteen pitches in a row."

CISCO MAN TO DRILL OFFSET TO BELVA WELL

S. A. Hopkins, Cisco oil operator, and his associates plan to drill a well on the S. A. Davis lease offsetting the Belva Oil company's well which was brought in Wednesday making 1,600 barrels or better, he said today.

Mr. Hopkins expects to be called upon to drill four line wells in view of the contemplated activity east and west of the Belva well, in addition to the well that he is now drilling on the Davis lease, located about a thousand feet from the Belva company's well.

Besides the Davis lease of 327 acres contiguous leases are owned by Mr. Hopkins and associates aggregating 640 acres. A well is to be commenced on one of these leases, the J. W. Ray, at an early date. Chestnut-Smith corporation will lay high and low pressure gas lines into the district.

It will be recalled that Mr. Hopkins brought in a nice gas well on the N. H. Jones farm about seven miles east of Cisco last September and has another well now drilling on this farm which picked up 5,000,000 feet of gas just below 1,500 feet some two weeks ago. This gas was muddied off by the Halliburton Cementing company to permit drilling to the Ranger sand.

Messrs. Adelaar Deslauriers and Paul Guertin of Quebec, associates of Mr. Hopkins, who visited here during the week were unexpectedly fortunate in arranging their southern trip so that they witnessed the drilling in of the Belva well, which was spectacular.

Mr. Hopkins states that their development program is fairly extensive and includes test wells in west and southwest Texas on blocks aggregating 96,000 acres.

NOT ENOUGH THIRST. SANDUSKY, O., May 17.—Unless the coming warm weather creates an appetite for highballs, rickys, beers and other alcoholic beverages, Pelee islanders who went to considerable expense to prepare for thirsty Ohioans, may find themselves in bankruptcy ere long. The drinks are to be had all right. But no one seems "dry" enough to seek them in the island in Canadian Lake Erie, just over the international boundary line 20 miles due north of Sandusky. Only a few persons have taken advantage of the "service station."

D. Otis Tomlin, of Fort Worth, formerly of Cisco are here to attend the coronation at the high school tonight.

Washes woolens and blankets!

WHEN you wash with hard water there's a dirty ring around the edge of the basin, but that's not suds. It's scum. The hard water is doing that. It's mixing with the soap to form a dirty curdle. Can't wash woolens and blankets in that water. Soften the water with Melo. Then add soap. The water is now a very fine cleansing agent and the soap is much more effective. Melo did that. FLYING DUTCHESS. LONDON, May 17.—The Duchess of Bedford, the 63-year-old "flying Dutchess," has a novel way of visiting her friends if they have big backyards. The Duchess just literally "drops in" on them from out of the sky. She recently took a cottage at Bosham near Chichester, and often she flies to and from her country home to London. On several occasions she landed by plane in a field behind friends' homes when she intended to visit them. The Duchess has her own pilot's license.
