Casing Is To Be Run In SE Midland Test

Magnolia Petroleum Company is to try for another Spraberry discovery for Midland County at its No. 1 Sam R. Preston, wildcat in the southeast sector of the county. The prospector is bottomed at 7,245 feet in sand and shale in the Spraberry. That formation was topped at 7,113 feet, which is a datum of minus 4,376 feet. The section from the top of the Spraberry to the present bottom has been alternate streaks of fractured sand and shale. The sand intervals have carried good shows of oil and some bleeding oil. No signs of water have been found in any of the Spraberry zone which has been penetrated. The last core cut covered the interval at 7,198-7,245 feet. It was six feet of shale, two feet of sand, three feet of shale, six and one-half feet of sand and 21 1/2 feet of shale. Both the sand and the shale was fractured and the sand had the oil shows. Operator plans to set 7-inch casing and make production tests. If the project can be completed as a commercial oil well it will be finished as it is and not be drilled on to the Ellenburger. The prospector was originally started under a plan for it to dig to 13,000 feet to test the Ellenburger. Location is 660 feet from west and 1,980 feet from north lines of section 41, block 37, T&P survey, T-4-S. It is 23 miles southeast of the city of Midland. On the top of the Spraberry at 7,113 feet the Magnolia wildcat is 23 feet high to Ted Weiner, et al. No. 1-16 Driver, four miles northeast and it is 158 feet high on the top of the Spraberry to Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Midkiff, five miles to the southwest—both discoveries from the Spraberry.

NE-C Dawson Tester Is Swabbing 5 BFPH

James H. Snowden and associates are swabbing their No. 1-32 Dean, indicated Spraberry discovery in Northeast-Central Dawson County at the rate of five barrels of fluid per hour. No break down on the fluid was reported, but prior to the above report the prospect was swabbed at the rate of six barrels of fluid per hour, 12 per cent water and 88 per cent oil. The petroleum is being recovered from perforated section opposite the Spraberry at 7,394-7,406 feet and 7,411-7,417 feet. The driller is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 32, block 1, L. Poitevant survey and 11 miles northeast of Lamesa.

Location Staked In Yoakum Cobb Field

Honolulu Oil Corporation has made location for its No. 1-B Clananhan in the Cobb field of Central-East Yoakum County. It will be drilled one location north of the same concern's No. 1 Towns, small producer in the field. Driller is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 223, block D, J. H. Gibson survey and 13 miles east of Plains. The same operator is fishing for swab line at its No. 1 Clananhan, one location south of production in the Cobb field. When the line is fished out, operator will deepen from 6,080 to approximately 6,100 feet and complete the project as an extender to the field. Operator was swabbing out oil in order to deepen the hole with cable tool when the swab line broke. Fillup in the hole was 2,800 feet in 12 1/2 hours. The No. 1 Clananhan is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 6, block D, J. H. Gibson survey.

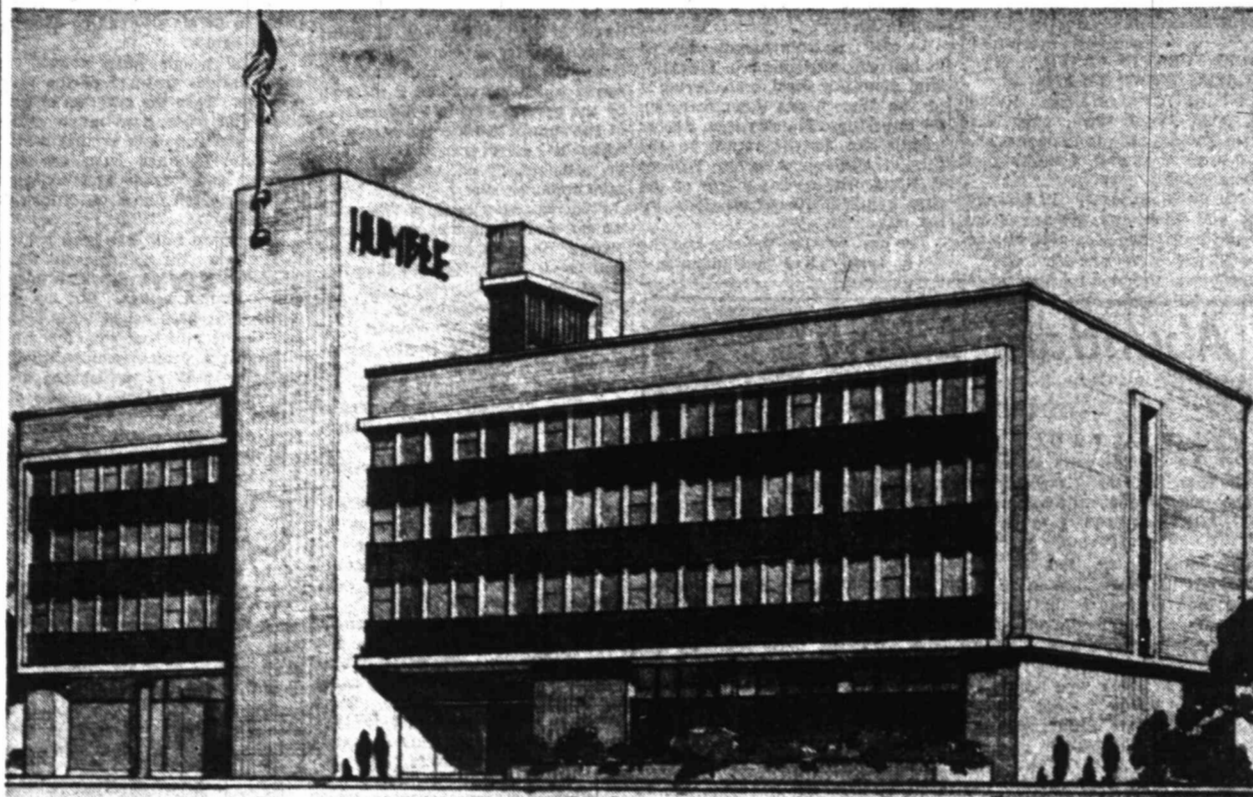

Producer Added To Midland Tex-Harvey

Phillips Petroleum Company reported potential for its No. 1-A Mabel, now producer in the Tex-Harvey field of Central-East Midland County. It was finalized for a daily pumping potential of 141.87 barrels of 37.3-gravity oil, plus four per cent water. Gas-oil ratio was 169-1. Pay was topped at 7,063 feet and total depth of the hole if 7,325 feet. The open hole section from 7,066 to total depth was acidized with 2,000 gallons. The new oiler is 662 feet from west and 666 feet from north lines of section 14, block 37, T-3-S, T&P survey and 18 miles southeast of the City of Midland.

PROPOSED HUMBLE OIL BUILDING—The Humble Oil & Refining Company is scheduled to begin work within 60 days on the erection of its four-story office building at the corner of West Missouri and A Streets here. The attractive and completely modern building, which will cost almost a million dollars, will house all departments of Humble's West Texas-New Mexico Division. It will contain 48,000 square feet of office space, and will have a foundation sufficient to accommodate four additional floors. Permission to erect the building was given by the Department of Commerce. Construction will be of reinforced concrete, with brick and stone trim exterior. The building will be of the latest and most modern design.

City Moves Nearer To Bus System

Midland was one step closer Wednesday to a bus transportation system. The City Council lacked a quorum Tuesday night to transact official business, but it gave an unofficial go-ahead signal to plans for the first public transportation system since last October. The bus system—complete with new equipment operating regularly over five routes—likely will begin service within 90 days. The proposal Tuesday night was presented by C. C. Spinks and Leroy F. Spinks of Monahans, who have had wide experience in operating bus systems. They explained their plan to members of the City Council. City Manager W. H. Oswalt and City Attorney John Perkins were instructed to go ahead with arrangements for the franchise. The franchise will receive official action at the next council meeting.

More Snow Forecast In West Texas

A beautiful but costly and dangerous coat of ice and snow covered much of Texas Wednesday. The soft snow and shiny ice gave a Christmas setting to St. Valentine's Day, but tangled transportation and communications. The Weather Bureau said some moderation in temperatures could be expected Thursday in most of the state, but more snow, sleet and freezing rain were in prospect. Many schools closed Wednesday. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company said about 200 of its circuits were out of order because of ice. The State Highway Department said roads over three-fifths of the state were dangerous. Sleet and freezing rain plastered heavy ice on phone and power lines as far south as San Antonio. The phone company reported 36 circuits out from there to the Rio Grande Valley. The valley itself awaited freezing temperatures Wednesday night. It will be the third freeze this winter for the garden spot of Texas. Millions of dollars damage to citrus and vegetable crops was done by two previous freezes. Temperature Outlook Better For the state as a whole, the temperature outlook was a bit better. Minimums forecast for Wednesday night generally were slightly higher than those recorded Tuesday night. But most were still expected to be below the freezing mark and more precipitation was forecast. Occasional freezing rain or sleet was forecast in East Texas and occasional snow also was in the South Plains and Panhandle area of West Texas. Lowest temperatures indicated were 20-24 in the interior of East Texas, 25-29 on the coast, and 16-22 in West Texas. Wichita Falls residents found four inches of snow on the ground when they awoke Wednesday morning. The Weather Bureau said there had been .67 inch precipitation—equal to all that had fallen there since September 20. There were four or five inches of snow all around Wichita Falls in every direction. Communications there were all right, but drifting (Continued On Page Eight)

Lloyd C. Douglas, Noted Author, Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas, 73, author of some of the most controversial and widely read religious novels of the century, died Tuesday night of heart disease. He had suffered from arthritis since 1944 and his condition had grown steadily worse in recent months. He was admitted last Sunday to Good Samaritan Hospital, where he died. Douglas' greatest books were "The Magnificent Obsession," his first, published in 1929, and "The Robe," printed in 1942. In the period between them were numerous best sellers, including "Green Light," "White Banners," and "Disputed Passage," which were filmed. His last work was "The Big Fisherman," a sequel to "The Robe." Douglas refused to allow a film to be made of "The Big Fisherman," apparently because of the treatment "The Robe" received in Hollywood. Handling of the book for the films was debated for years. Finally, after $750,000 was poured into the enterprise, the picture was dropped. Douglas, an ordained Lutheran minister, was in his 50's when "The Magnificent Obsession" was published. It went through 51 printings in little more than a year.

The index climbed to $7.25 this week from $7.21 last week, and was 23.7 per cent over the year ago index of $5.86. At the new level, the index compares with $5.96 just before the Korean war began—and now its highest since July 20, 1948, when it was $7.30.

Four Negroes Get Serious Burns As Fire Razes House

Four negroes were burned seriously late Tuesday when flames swept through a four-room frame house here at the height of a wind-blown snowstorm. Two-year-old Walter Codd, Jr., was reported in a critical condition at Western Clinic-Hospital, where he was being treated for burns about the face, neck and arms. The child and three others, including a 10-month-old infant, were burned when the flames destroyed the house at 1306 South East Front Street. Cause of the blaze had not been determined by firemen Wednesday. Others burned in the blaze were Stella Jefferson, grandmother of the Codd child; James E. Jefferson, her 10-month-old son, and James E. Folk. Police said Polk suffered a deep arm laceration when he broke a window in the house.

ROK Marines Land North Of '38; UN Halts Red Assault

TOKYO (AP)—South Korean Marines landed Wednesday at the big North Korean east coast port of Wonsan in a surprise raid under cover of a strong Allied naval bombardment. Wonsan is 90 miles inside Red territory above Parallel 38 on the Sea of Japan. On the flaming Central Korean front, American, French and Dutch forces inflicted a staggering toll on Chinese and Red Korean divisions striving for breakthrough along a 20-mile-wide sector. A field dispatch said the Allied defenders shattered two Communist divisions "in a welter of blood, bombs and shellfire." It added: "The Chinese dead lay by the thousands on all sides of surrounded Chipyong. Other thousands also were heaped up in the river valley eight miles west-northwest of Wonju, where they stumbled into a murderous air and artillery ambush." GI's Mow Down Reds On the western front, American Doughboys mowed down 1,152 Red Korean sneak troops who had crossed the Han River and slipped inside Allied lines. They captured almost 250 Communist soldiers. American machine guns cut down fleeing remnants of the Red Korean force. He said no charges had been filed so far as he knew and that the rumors were directed at U. S. as well as Mexican employes in the campaign to stamp out the dreaded cattle disease.

This is revealed in the 1951 annual roll call of the larger banks in the United States published Tuesday by the Daily American Banker of New York, which is the largest trade newspaper of the banking business.

Midland's Air Terminal Sets Pattern For Southwest

The Midland Air Terminal, West Texas' leading commercial air field, whose status in the national defense picture is attracting widespread interest, long has been one of the best-known and most popular landing fields in the Southwest. The installation, which this year is expected to serve 56,000 air passengers, is owned and operated solely by the City of Midland. Three airlines, American, Continental and Pioneer use the facility. Midland Air Terminal, formerly known as Sloan Field, was established by the late Sam Sloan, pioneer Midland aviation enthusiast, in 1928 as one of West Texas' first airports. It soon became the area's No. 1 airport, widely-known and used by pilots, both commercial and military, of that time. Following the death of Sam Sloan, the field was operated by his brother, W. H. Sloan, and it was from him that the City of Midland on July 1, 1939, purchased Sloan Field at a cost of $14,000, for use as its municipal airport. A $72,000 contract for further improving the airport, including runway paving and lighting, was awarded by the city in August of 1939, according to records in the office of City Secretary J. C. Hudman. The improvement program was started immediately. Funds for purchasing and improving the municipal airport were provided by City of Midland voters who approved the issuing of $125,000 in bonds for that purpose in a special election held March 23, 1939. It was about this time the Aviation Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, then headed by John W. House, launched a long-range program to make of Midland the Aviation Center of West Texas. The program resulted in the bringing of commercial airline service to Midland—first Continental, then Pioneer and then American. Further development of Midland as the leading aviation center of the Southwest still are major objectives of the Chamber of Commerce and the City Council. Land Purchases Since first purchasing the field, the City of Midland has purchased additional land from the Clarence Scharbauer Estate on four different occasions, as follows: July, 1939—90 acres; November, 1940—236 acres; Spring, 1941—488 acres; March, 1947—292 acres, bringing the city's land investment to $63,334. The Air Force, which used the field during the war years, did not purchase any land. The field now comprises some 1,528 acres. Even before the city's airport improvement program could be completed back in 1940, it became apparent that the Midland Municipal Airport was destined to play an important role in the then fast-developing World War II, as numerous inspections of the facility were conducted by the military. The announcement that a USAAC bombardier school would be established (Continued On Page Two)

House Redistricting Bill Joins Midland, Crane, Upton, Pecos

AUSTIN (AP)—The House Redistricting Committee worked into the early hours of Wednesday morning in secret session and approved a bill realigning representatives' districts. Rep. Bill Fly of Victoria, chairman, hoped the measure would come up for House debate by Monday. He reported unanimous approval of the bill by 19 committee members present. Opposition was certain to develop on the House floor. The revised bill combines Grayson and Cooke Counties, a situation Rep. Austin Westbrook of Gainesville has promised to fight. Meanwhile, a bill to change the method of financing farm to market roads was killed. It hit the skids when county judges and commissioners descended on the House Highways and Roads Committees to protest their counties would be bankrupted by Rep. Callan Graham's proposal. Graham's bill was killed by a 15-3 vote on the motion of D. B. Hardean of Denison, who earlier had said the measure would force additional county taxes on Texas property owners. Sadler Plan Revised Fly reported the new redistricting plan is a thorough revision of the original bill introduced by Rep. Harley Sadler of Abilene. It would create a 150-member House of Representatives, including (Continued On Page Eight)

Reports Say New Outbreak Of Cattle Disease 'Planted'

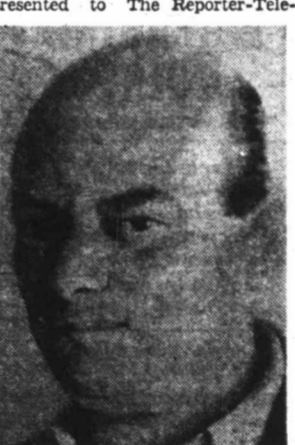

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Bob Poage of Texas said Wednesday a new outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Mexico may have been planted deliberately. Poage said in an interview that while he was in Mexico City recently he heard reports that some individuals hired by the Mexican-United States Afosa (Foot-Mouth Disease) Commission may have caused the outbreak reported December 27 in the State of Vera Cruz in order to perpetuate their jobs. He said no charges had been filed so far as he knew and that the rumors were directed at U. S. as well as Mexican employes in the campaign to stamp out the dreaded cattle disease.

Bartender Kills Ex-Wife's Fiance

FORT WORTH (AP)—A jealousy-crazed, 39-year-old bartender shot and killed the fiance of his former wife in a hotel room here early Wednesday only a few hours before the latter two were to be married. Slain was Paschal Truitt Simms, 26, a truck driver. The bartender confessed to detectives here that he shot Simms but said it was a mistake—that he intended to shoot his ex-wife. The woman, beaten by the bartender after the shooting, was treated at a hospital here for a broken nose and face bruises. Murder charges were to be filed later Wednesday.

Midland Air Terminal—

Leased at Midland came in the early Summer of 1941, and it was on July 1, 1941, that the City of Midland leased its municipal airport to the government—the cash consideration being one dollar ($1) per year.

Development came thick and fast then as the Air Force converted the municipal airport into Midland Army Air Field—the world's largest bombardier training school. Thousands of "Hell from Heaven Men" trained at the Midland installation before going out into the "wild blue yonder" to drop their deadly missiles on the enemy.

Make Sure Milk Is Certified Or Pasteurized Before Using

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Milk is an exceedingly good food. Its nutritional value is excellent since it contains proteins, minerals, fats, vitamins and other substances in one package all of which are needed by the human body.

Several people have written in about various features of the milk problem. Take the question of certified and pasteurized milk. Ordinarily certified milk is that which has been obtained from specially selected dairy herds and collected and distributed under conditions of rigid care.

India Needs, Will Get Grain

An unhappy combination of bad weather and natural disasters has brought sizable parts of India to the brink of famine. Even to maintain its very scant rations, the country needs an extra 6,000,000 tons of grain this year.

Indian officials managed to buy 4,000,000 tons elsewhere. They seek the remainder from us on a loan. But our government has decided it would be better to furnish the grain as an outright grant.

A State Department official already has made a preliminary appeal to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the issue, but the committee doesn't yet have a formal aid bill under study.

From the fact that the Senate group didn't begin action immediately, the notion arose that Congress was sitting on the plan. Strictly speaking, this isn't so. But it is true that a good many lawmakers are cool to the idea.

Chiefly, they resent India's undermining of U. S. foreign policy by attempts in the United Nations to gain peace with Red China almost at the price of surrender.

There's a feeling, too, that India's grain shortage is at least partly due to its bitter trade war with neighboring Pakistan. The Indians declined to take available wheat from Pakistan. And they have planted much newly reclaimed acreage not to needed grains but to cotton and jute, to enable them to achieve greater economic independence of Pakistan.

It seems quite understandable that many Americans, including some of their representatives in the Senate, should be chagrined at India's behavior and thus somewhat reluctant to extend the desired assistance.

But the government feels, and many citizens and legislators agree, that to penalize India's starving millions because we dislike the country's conduct of foreign affairs would be playing politics with human misery.

This view gained emphasis when former President Herbert Hoover agreed recently to help President Truman plan aid to the famine areas. Long famed for his humanitarian deeds, Hoover nevertheless is a stout opponent of Administration policies.

In spite of his opposition, he is lending his support because he believes "the United States has never failed to do its best to aid starving people and shouldn't fail in this case, either."

In other words, Hoover is acting in accord with America's long tradition of succoring disaster-stricken peoples all over the face of the globe, regardless of their politics, their religion, or anything else. And by suppressing his objections he appears to be implying that we all ought to do the same.

With this kind of backing, the chances are strong that the grain program will go through. But it probably won't happen before a lot of hot words are flung about the Senate chamber by those who feel India has been woefully shortsighted both at home and abroad.

You'll be a lot happier if you don't say what you mean—if it is mean.

DREW PEARSON ON THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Drew Pearson says: American finds Stalin's mother impressed by son's achievements; General Ridgway rescues lost cause in Korea; Truman defers to Hoover at India relief conference.

WASHINGTON — Probably the only American who has ever met Stalin's mother is Carlston Smith, director of the National Arts Foundation, who while traveling near Tiflis in 1936 was taken to a village where Stalin's mother lived.

Her home was a mud hut dug out of the side of a hill, and she proved to be a wrinkled, kindly old lady. Telling Smith how she had raised her son to be a priest, the old lady added:

"I hear he's now running all of Russia, but I don't believe it." A year later, Smith was in Moscow at the Bolshoi Theater when Stalin also was present, and had an interview with the Russian dictator.

Among other things he told him about the visit to his mother. Stalin maintained an icy silence. He did not seem interested in his mother.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan was cautious. He explained that we do not have any great surplus of wheat. "But," he added, "if you say it is necessary we can get 2,000,000 tons of what is needed for India without creating a shortage at home."

Dr. D. A. Fitzgerald, ECA food director, outlined India's needs. He said that drought, floods, earthquakes, and about every other natural calamity had hit India and cuts its grain production by 9,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons.

"This is especially bad," he said, "because 80 per cent of the caloric intake of Indians is grain. They are not meat eaters."

Some cold water was thrown on the project by James K. Knudson of the Defense Transport Administration. He said that the railroad tieup it would be "quite difficult" to get the wheat to the ports and he understood ocean shipping was tight.

Several times during the discussion, President Truman interrupted to ask Hoover for his views and whether he thought the plan was feasible. Hoover's conclusion was: "This country has never failed to come to the rescue of the hungry, and this appears to be a worthy cause."

When the meeting broke up, it was significant that Hoover was chosen as spokesman to explain the conclusions of the conference to the press.

Tragic Jeep Accident: Not much got into the papers about the other victims of the jeep crash that killed Gen. Walton Walker.

However, the South Koreans quietly have sentenced the Korean driver who crashed into Walker's jeep to three years hard labor. The driver was Kyong Nai Pak. His passengers—Kuk Soom Lee, Chong Han Pak and Man Joong Chong—were released after investigation of the accident.

Three American soldiers in the jeep with Walker survived and were evacuated to the Tokyo General Hospital. They are: Lt. Col. Layton Tyler, M/Sgt. George Belton and Sgt. Francis Reenan.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Perhaps the chief use of the Stayman Convention is to find a major suit. Even when such a fit is discovered, however, the partnership need not proceed to game. Samuel M. Stayman, author of the Convention, gives an interesting illustration of this point in his new book, EXPERT BIDDING.

North's bid of two clubs was the beginning of the Stayman Convention. It asked South to show a bid.

Bridge bidding table showing North and South bids and responses. Includes a note: 'Opening lead—♦ 2'.

able major suit, if he had one; and South properly showed his hearts.

The rest of the bidding was quite delicate. North raised to three hearts to show four-card support—but he showed a weak hand at the same time. With a good hand he would have jumped to four hearts; or he could have made some forcing bid.

South didn't have any doubts about his best course. He had a minimum holding for his opening bid of one no-trump. Since he had already shown all of his values, there was no need for him to go bounding into game if his partner wasn't strong enough to bid it.

The play was fairly easy. South had to lose a spade and a trump, and needed some reasonable break in clubs to hold his loss to only two tricks in that suit. There was a fine play for three hearts but a very poor play for game—either in hearts or no-trump.

South won the opening lead in his own hand and led the king of hearts. West took the ace of hearts and led another diamond, dummy winning. Declarer promptly drew trumps, ending in dummy, and led a club.

As it happened, South finished the jack of clubs, and lost to West's queen. But he got back to dummy with the ace of diamonds to lead another club, and this time he put up the king and won a club trick, making his contract.

A—Bid one spade. The hand is weak, but the suit is strong enough to justify an overcall.

CRIMSON HOLIDAY

By Jane Holsinger
COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Lavinia Grenable was her wheel chair was saved, saving her to plunge into a ravine. Mrs. Farwell, widow of Court Grenable, Lavinia's son, witnessed the accident. Lavinia's husband, a young lawyer, Lane's father, had been killed by a car. Lane's mother, Mrs. Farwell, was the one who had been near the scene as was Elizabeth Stratton, the dead woman's sister. Lane's mother, Mrs. Farwell, was the one who had been near the scene as was Elizabeth Stratton, the dead woman's sister.

He crossed his feet and surveyed his shoetops critically. "Interesting old harridan, wasn't she?" Andrew observed. "Stop playing cat and mouse, pal. Give us the plot."

"It's a very interesting one," admitted Sheriff Lane. "Somewhat involved, however. In fact, there's scarcely one of you who is not involved or furnished with a very reasonable motive—for murder."

The sheriff removed his big hands from his pocket and spread them on his knees as he leaned toward the circle of startled faces. "As I told you before, this is not a formal inquest," he went on. "The few days intervening before the inquest is to be held, will give my men enough time to investigate all the clues thoroughly. Mrs. Grenable's diary has been safely put away. But if you are interested in the details, I can give them to you."

"By all means," Andrew spoke softly, apparently electing himself spokesman for the group. "Did Mother outline our little holiday gathering? Our esteemed parent had money, sheriff. She played a nice little game, the object of which was to see which of us would get disinterested each year. Did she say whose turn it was?"

GERI PALMER, who had been taking notes, appeared bewildered for the first time. She looked at the sheriff, her pencil poised above her notebook uncertainly. "The sheriff nodded for her to continue taking notes."

Lisa asked for Geri's detachment. "Sheriff Lane went on quietly: 'Blackmail, Mr. Carson, is not a pretty thing. Because Mrs. Grenable's diary included everything that occurred up to midnight preceding the day of her death on Friday, she managed to make quite clear her intentions as she stated them to you and Mrs. Carson on the evening of your arrival here.'"

"Lavinia scarcely seemed to resort to blackmail," Phillip Carson said unhesitatingly. "Blackmail of the spirit, shall we say?" Lane qualified. "Mrs. Grenable knew you were anticipating running for senator. So, she threatened you with her 'memiors.'"

Sheriff Lane said the word as though it left a bad taste in his mouth. "That's about right," said Phillip Carson. "She planned to ridicule my husband with petty family grievances," Marion Carson laughed out. "She didn't approve of your marriage, Mrs. Carson," the sheriff replied uncomprehendingly. "Her diary suggested that this marriage of yours was the cause of your father's death."

"Don't forget, sheriff," Henry Farwell put in stonily, "that Lavinia Grenable was capable of lies."

The sheriff nodded in agreement with Lisa's father. "Perhaps she was," he admitted. "But to separate the false from the factual is something else again."

HE went on summarizing the contents of Mrs. Grenable's diary in a weary voice: "Miss Stratton, your sister made it quite plain that she felt it would be well, for her pleasure, to remove you from her household. As Mr. Farwell told me, your predicament brought him to this house that afternoon and into a heated discussion with Mrs. Grenable. 'There was something in back of Lavinia's plan, sheriff,' Henry Farwell insisted. 'She had something behind her threat to Elizabeth. She wanted to talk about my daughter Lisa's engagement and I refused to discuss the matter with her. She said she approved of it. I'd like to know why she approved...'

Court Grenable interrupted Mrs. Farwell: "I suppose this diary of my mother's mentioned—other things?" It was the first time Court had spoken since the sheriff mentioned the diary.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Need Experienced Men To Run Railway Mediation Machinery

By FETTER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Why didn't the National Mediation Board machinery work to prevent the rail strikes?

With the country just now getting out from under its second narrow escape of a complete rail transportation tie-up, that is the number one question. For regardless of who is to blame, the basic and underlying cause of this whole mess was that a grievance was allowed to go for two years unsettled. Why?

It probably would take a hot-shot congressional investigating committee a Winter's work to get at all the answers. But a few facts seem to stand out. Without going too far back into railroad history, the starting point is the Railway Labor Act of 1926.

This act was written by a conference of railway executives and railway labor leaders to bring industrial peace and stability to the industry. It still is regarded as a good law. It may not be perfect. It may require some further amendment. But in general it set up mediation machinery and procedures which profited from mistakes that had been made in past railway labor disputes.

The main trouble now is that Administration of the Railway Labor Act seems gradually to have been allowed to fall down. Good administrators can make a poor law work, sometimes. But administrators who aren't the best can't make even a good law work.

Quality of Administrators
In the early days of the Railway Labor Act, the government had good administrators. From 1934 to about 1941, the three members of the National Mediation Board were able to handle most of the railway labor grievances themselves. In this period it was necessary to call on the services of only about one presidentially appointed emergency board a year.

Gradually, however, political lame ducks began to be appointed to the NMB as vacancies arose. Some of the appointees didn't know anything about railroading. The result was that they couldn't settle railway labor grievances themselves. Presidential emergency boards had to be appointed in increasing numbers.

In one year there were more than 20. This started a trend. Instead of the Mediation Board doing its job itself, only preliminary hearings were held. Then everybody rushed to the White House to get a presidential board to handle cases. This trend was worsened when, early in the last year, President Roosevelt took a case out of the hands of an emergency board, and imposed a settlement above the board's recommendations.

This quick background brings the case down to the recent emergency. It really goes back more than two years. Late in 1948 the railway non-operating brotherhoods made a demand for a 40-hour week. This case went through NMB to a presidential emergency board.

On this board were William M. Leiserson, David Cole and George Cook. Dr. Leiserson and Cook were former members of NMB. In brief they recommended 48 hours pay for a 40-hour week, but they cut out the double-time demands for Saturday and Sunday. The railroads were given eight months in which to apply for an increased freight rate to meet the cost. In the interim, non-operating labor was given a seven cents an hour wage increase.

After making its recommendations, this panel was hired by the railroads and the brotherhoods to help them work out the full agreement. Finally the whole thing was settled. Both sides said the mediators sustained their positions, which was something of a record.

In the meantime, the operating brotherhoods—engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, switchmen and yardmen—had come in with their 40-hour-week demands. This case went through the Mediation Board with the usual express train speed and ended in the lap of another presidential emergency board. Recommendations of this presidential emergency board, filed last June 15, failed to take into consideration the gains already granted to the non-operating brotherhoods. It recognized the 40-hour-week principle, but denied yardmen, trainmen and conductors pay demands on a new work-week basis.

When the brotherhoods refused to accept these recommendations the case went back to the White House, where Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman's two efforts at settlement ended in failure, even after government seizure of the roads. The case is back in the NMB lap again, but who's really going to settle it remains to be seen.

DADDY RINGTAIL

Daddy Ringtail And Happy Valentine

Today is the day for valentines, and the Huffen Puffen, the friendly wolf, was laughing and chuckling in front of a calendar there on the wall of his hollow tree house. A calendar, you know, is a paper with the names and numbers of the days upon it, so people will know which day is which when it comes. Yessir, and there the Huffen was looking at

There are birthdays, of course, and vacation days, and Saturdays when people don't go to school, and Halloween Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas Day which is best of all, I guess. Oh, but Valentine Day was here again like last year, and something ought to be done about it. That's what the Huffen Puffen was thinking, and then he decided he'd do it. He would do something about the happy, happy Valentine Day which the day was. He crawled beneath his bed where he keeps his umbrella, his ice skates, his fishing pole, his baseball bat, and his bathing suit, and his hot water bottle, and all the things the Huffen should keep in their places, but doesn't. The Huffen rummaged and scrummaged and pushed and shoved the things around until he found a pack-o'-lantern. It was one he had saved from last year. Yessir, and the Huffen was going to put a candle in it, and take it to Daddy Ringtail's monkey house, all for a happy, happy valentine.

"Oh, but Huffen Puffen," Daddy Ringtail said and shook his head to show that the Huffen shouldn't have done it. "A jack-o'-lantern is for Halloween, and today isn't Halloween Day at all."

"Oh!" said the Huffen, because now he remembered. Valentine Day is the day for valentines that people give to one another. Well, anyone can forget. I guess, or maybe get things mixed up, but the day was still a happy, happy Valentine Day. Daddy Ringtail said it was, and the Huffen laughed to hear it. Happy day!

Commies Have Grip On 700,000,000, Stripling Declares

There are 700,000,000 people now under the stress of communism," Robert Stripling told a Midland High School assembly Tuesday. Stripling, an independent oil operator, served as chief investigator of the House Un-American Activities Committee for 11 years. Stripling referred to Alger Hiss as an example of how the Communists infiltrate into government positions and other organizations. "Communists are in the minority in most of the countries under their control," Stripling said. "When they gained control of the government of the Soviet Union in 1918, there were 180,000,000 people in Russia, with only 300,000 of them Communists." He revealed there are many Communists in the United States, who may be found in labor parties, government positions and other spots where they may influence people. Stripling gave two reasons for people becoming Communists. First, to gain power they cannot otherwise gain; second, to establish total social equality.

SUNDERLAND, ENGLAND —(AP)—The nurse told Henry Scott it was time for his bath. "Oh, no," protested the 67-year-old coal miner. "I had a bath last week." With that he dived out the window of his hospital room and was killed. A coroner returned a verdict of suicide.

Red Bombers Can Get Through, Says U. S. Air Chief

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, United States Air Force chief, says there is no way to prevent Russia from getting at least 70 out of 100 bombers past U. S. defenses and over their targets. Vandenberg made the assertion in an article in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post. "The Air Force chief of staff indicated that U. S. military intelligence rates Russia at less than 100 atomic bombs at present. "Even if the enemy had 100 (atomic) bombs—which she hasn't now—she could not afford to throw all into one raid," Vandenberg wrote. He said this in connection with a statement that a large scale raid would probably include only a few planes carrying atom bombs. Vandenberg said Russia has "at least 450 planes that can strike our major production and industrial centers from bases in the U.S.S.R." These, he said, are copies of the American B-29. But, he added, Russia is working to match the B-36 and "she unquestionably will build it."

"Should war come," Vandenberg said, "we can be expected to destroy no more than 30 per cent of the planes making an attack . . . before bombing missions are completed." Present defenses, he said, "are not beefed up to achieve even that figure."

ORANGE, TEXAS —(AP)—The first Allied ship to enter Tokyo Bay in World War II is going to rejoin the active fleet of the U. S. Navy after four and a half years in mothballs. The Navy Wednesday reactivated the USS Revenge, a 221-foot minesweeper which headed the big parade of naval craft into Tokyo Bay following the Japanese surrender in World War II. Midland Family Is Anxious About Spot, Bird Dog Hero

By COPE ROUTE

Spot deserves a better fate than this. Spot is a hero—a happy-go-lucky bird dog hero—and he is ill-equipped to face the bitter blow of a Texas north. And that is what is worrying the Laurence F. Lees and their two children—Sally and Billy—as well as the other kids in the neighborhood around their home at 308 South N Street. "Spot has been gone almost a week now," lamented Mrs. Lees, as every effort to find the five-year-old pet proved futile. No Hunting Dog "Someone may have taken him as a hunting dog. "But Spot is no hunting dog and whoever found him may have discovered this and turned him out in the cold." So Mrs. Lees pleaded again Wednesday for help in finding the black-and-white dog who already has two lives to his credit. "The youngsters around here like to play with Spot," Mrs. Lees said.

Navy Offers Radio Equipment To City For Civil Defense

The City of Midland Tuesday night was offered the use of more than $300,000 worth of radio equipment for its civil defense program. The only trouble is, explained Mayor William B. Neely, the city has no civil defense program. The offer came from the United States Navy, through Cmdr. James D. Martin, USNR, who explained the equipment now is being installed at Midland Airpark. Martin is the commanding officer of the Midland Navy Reserve unit. The equipment ranges from high-powered transmitters to sonar equipment, used for spotting objects underwater. He said the Navy merely wishes to make it available to the city for coordination with the city's civil defense program. The mayor said the city as yet has not organized any civil defense program although several plans are being studied.

The Corsicana Motel was robbed January 27 and $77.50 taken. Deputy Sheriff T. D. Salter was robbed of his pistol and automobile by two bandits when he appeared at the motel during the holdup. Few Persons Brave Cold To Attend Political Meeting

Snow and freezing wind were too much for most Midlanders to brave Tuesday night and only a handful of citizens attended the political meeting in the district courtroom of the courthouse.

Percy F. Bridgewater, candidate for mayor in the April election, told the group he will make no promises to the people while seeking the post. "If elected mayor of Midland, I will listen to any citizen's problems with an open mind," he said, "and work for the best interests of Midland."

Frank Trus, a candidate for Place 2 on the City Council, went on record as favoring the grade separation project. "This project would aid tremendously in the development of Midland," he said, "and would relieve the traffic on Wall Street."

Robert R. Currie announced he would file for Place 3 on the City Council Wednesday. He originally had been selected at a citizens' meeting to seek Place 2.

Frank Drake, previously chosen as a candidate for Place 2, has decided not to file.

Highway Patrol Warns Motorists Of Travel Dangers

AUSTIN —(AP)—Highways over three-fifths of the state Wednesday were highly dangerous with covers of sleet, snow or ice. U. S. 87 between Glen Rose and the intersection of State 220 was closed. The Highway Department said. Also closed to traffic was a section of U. S. 83 north of Leaky to Horse Collar Bluff. Elsewhere over most of the state conditions were so hazardous only emergency driving was recommended. Highway Department patrol crews were on the job, laying sand and salt on bridges and hills and blading snow off the roads. The area affected extends within these limits: From Jourdanton to Cuero and almost to Houston. North of Houston through Huntsville, Palestine, Sulphur Springs to Denton, where snow and sleet were reported one foot deep. North and west from Denton to Wichita Falls to the northeast corner of the Panhandle. Amarillo to El Paso, and all the area in the Big Bend from El Paso to Eagle Pass and back to Jourdanton.

Ice Blanket—

(Continued From Page One) snow was one to two feet deep on some roads. All buses, except those going into Oklahoma, still were running from there. However, most lines had halted service beyond Denton as roads led up there. Long Driveth Broken The Weather Bureau had cheerful news at Austin. The heavy mixed sleet and snow there indicated the end of a drought in that area, the experts said. Schools there stayed open and city buses were running. Heap Big Smoke—But No Fire

City firemen found out Wednesday that where there's smoke, there's not always a fire. They were summoned to the home of Robert Donnell, 1497 West Illinois Street, and found it filled with a pungent smoke. When the electric switch was thrown off, the smoke disappeared. It came back, however, when the electricity was turned on again. Investigation disclosed the electric refrigerator has been disconnected Tuesday night to permit it to defrost. When it was plugged in again Wednesday, firemen said, an electric waffle iron, instead of the refrigerator, was connected.

ROK Marines—

(Continued From Page One) force as they tried to splash back across the Han. Allied losses were reported small. U. S. 25th Division troops wiped out two Red patrols who were stalling boldly across Sand Island, a sandbar in the Han between Seoul and its industrial suburb, Yongsung. The 60 Reds in the patrol used Korean civilians as a shield. At a signal, the civilians dropped to the ground and the Reds fired at Allied forces on the south bank. The GI's fired back. "It was like shooting sitting ducks," one American soldier said. A second Red patrol was wiped out as it raced across the Seoul City Airport, which is located on the sand flat. The landing at Wonsan, on the sea of Japan, was made early Wednesday afternoon. A big Allied task force, including the battleship Missouri, bombarded Red installations. Then the South Korean Marines swarmed ashore. Eighth Army headquarters said the ROK's fought to the city's outskirts and seized two islands off the port. Resistance was reported light. But a large force of Reds was spotted moving south on the port from Hamhung, about 50 miles to the north. Across the peninsula, at least seven Russian-built MIG-15 jets attacked American B-29's. The Superforts were making a bomb run over Red barracks at Tokchon. All returned safely to their Japanese base. Bad weather held down the number of Allied flights in support of ground forces. But skies cleared somewhat at noon Wednesday, permitting Allied warplanes to strike in about 100 sorties along the flaming front line. Enemy Losses Heavy The enemy pushed its ground attack there at tremendous costs in Red manpower. "Air and artillery have been doing a tremendous job on these (Red) columns," a 10th Corps spokesman said. "They have been hitting them all day." Five Red columns with an estimated strength of 5,000 men were spotted moving south toward Wonju from the northwest. An Allied unit which had been surrounded seven miles southeast of Chipyong broke out of the Communist ring Wednesday morning after a two-hour fight. Later it counter-attacked and pursued the Reds into the hills four miles northeast of Yoji. United Nations artillery was pounding with deadly effect into the Red ranks. One Red division walked into an American artillery ambush Wednesday noon about six miles northwest of Wonju. Battle For Chipyong Another earlier barrage caught a Chinese force which included pack animals loaded with ammunition. American and French forces battled to hold Chipyong, 20 miles northwest of Wonju and western anchor of the central front line. Dutch troops held a key sector farther east. A Dutch battalion had covered the Allied rear guard as it pulled back from Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonju. The Dutch commander, Lt. Col. N. P. A. Den Ouden, was killed Monday in that action. Chinese rifle fire swept the Wonju-Yoji road Wednesday. Red forces pushed within two miles of Puyupyo, a station on the main lateral supply highway. An Allied mortar company beat back a Red force striking for the road. First Waves Broken Allied commanders felt they had broken the first waves of the newest Red onslaught. But they knew the mountainous Central Korean sector was swarming with Communist troops, and field dispatches said they expected the raging battle in the Wonju-Yoji-Chipyong triangle to flare to a climax after dark Wednesday. The Reds were driving for a breakthrough in the area where they have dented Allied positions 18 miles since Sunday night. "We are all playing for-keeps this time," said a commander of an American division. "My men, with the help of the French at Chipyong and the Dutch at Wonju, have knocked out two Chinese divisions as organized fighting forces. . . . We can scratch those divisions off."

Child Now Knows Why Police Are Known As 'Friend Of People'

Drunken Driver Is A Killer, Declares Lions Club Speaker

"The drunken driver is a killer!" That is what Reagan Legg, county attorney, told members of the Midland Lions Club at their luncheon meeting Wednesday in Hotel Scharbauer. Speaking on a law enforcement program, Legg continued: "You have seen this killer. One day he is a law-abiding citizen. The next, he is a killer. He is the man who makes the mistake of driving while intoxicated. "The drunken driver kills, makes many heartaches. Oh, he may be repentant, but the damage has been done. He is the man who made a mistake. He may be lucky and be picked up by an alert officer before he kills."

Air Force Places New Emphasis On Tactical Command

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The Air Force has put a veteran fighter pilot general in charge of its Tactical Air Command and raised that organization to new stature. In part, the move is an answer to critics who complain the USAF has paid too much attention to long range strategic bombing, too little to the mission of giving bomb and gunfire support to the Army's infantrymen. In large measure, it also reflects changed conditions growing out of American commitments under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, who started out in the infantry and then switched to the Air Corps to become one of the foremost exponents of tactical aviation, began gathering up the reins of the tactical air command Wednesday.

The boy last was seen alive at his home about 3 p.m. Monday.

Now, Son, You Do It This Way

ALBUQUERQUE —(AP)—Now, son, when you put on your pants, you lift your right leg like this, and then your left leg like this and— Sheriff John Flaska can tell it: A bit unhappy with his eight-year-old son's "swarming" into his clothing, Flaska decided to show him the correct way to don a pair of trousers without dirtying the legs. He perched on one leg and lifted the other high to insert in the trousers. But when he started to lower the left leg, he got a crick in his back and a cramp in the leg. A doctor slipped one hip joint and vertebra back into place. The boy felt fine.

Industry Seeks To Limit Wage Boosts

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Industry members of the Wage Stabilization Board, determined to fight off a new round of post-war wage increases, proposed Wednesday that the government limit future pay raises to eight per cent above Jan. 15, 1950, levels. The three management representatives on the nine-man board said they hoped to allow only "catch-up inequities" of that size in future contracts. But they would agree to another review of the wage picture next June.

GOLF'S BIG SQUABBLE— Even State Department Puts Word In Edgewise

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
HARLINGEN, TEXAS.—(P)—A verbal spat between the PGA Tournament Committee and the Mexican Golf Association over alleged "recruiting" of American players had the $10,000 Rio Grande Valley Open in a stew Wednesday.

Even the State Department at Washington has gotten into the act.

The Valley Open was an interested spectator only and some officials said it was enjoying the publicity, but the appearance of a group of American golfers in Mexico City for the Mexican National Open had become such a serious matter the committee members here refused to consider disciplinary action until more of the committee are present.

That ought to be next week at Houston, home town of Jimmie Demaret, one of the golfers who went to Mexico. It is expected Lawson Little of Monterey, Calif., co-chairman of the committee, will be there for the Houston Open.

Two members of the committee, Horton Smith of Detroit, and Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., Tuesday night replied to charges of the Mexican Golf Association that the committee had "revoked or discarded" an agreement in ordering the golfers not to participate in the Mexican National Open.

Four members of the committee—Smith, Douglas, Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., and Leland Gibson of Kansas City—in a meeting at San Antonio during the Texas Open last week, held that the American golfers would be competing in the Mexican National Open in violation of by-laws of the PGA. The reason: Because it was not a PGA co-sponsored event; conflicted in dates with the Valley Open, and was not a "major championship."

Smith declared that the Mexican Golf Association representative, Raul Valde, had said the Mexican National Open only wanted a "handful of American players" but that "there was extensive recruiting of players either directly or indirectly at San Antonio" although "the Mexican officials did not at Phoenix (two weeks ago) or at any other place officially designate to the tournament committee just what players they eventually planned to invite to their tournament."

For instance, Smith said, the names of Ed Oliver and E. J. Harrison never were mentioned but those players were invited. They withdrew prior to the committee action, however.

The State Department entered the controversy Tuesday when officials said Demaret and Vic Ghezzi of Long Island, N. Y., another of the golfing group going to Mexico, were helping the good neighbor policy by insisting on playing in the Mexican National Open.

Slingin' Sam Signs For Fifteenth Year

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Sammy Baugh has signed for his fifteenth year with the Washington Redskins, and even though he will be 37, rival passers had better watch out. For Baugh has the odd habit of being the National Football League's No. 1 passer every odd year. He led in 1943, 1945, 1947 and 1949. How can he miss in '51?

True, last year wasn't so good. First Baugh chipped an elbow. Then he hurt his back. There even was talk—almost sacrilegious in this town—that Harry Gilmer of Alabama had become the Redskins' main passing man.

But Baugh pulled through. Despite his ailments, he found up ninth in the league in passing. No one knows how long Baugh will last. That includes Baugh.

Last year a newsman approached Baugh before the practice season began and asked how many more seasons he had left. "I don't know," Baugh said. "Maybe last year was my last. I haven't tried this year yet."

When Baugh steps out on the field next Fall, he will be tying the all-time record for length of service as an active player in the league.

John Blood, a great back, put in 15 years with Milwaukee, Green Bay and Pittsburgh, from 1925 to 1939.

Baugh already has tied—and soon will better—the mark for the most years spent with one club: Center Mel Hein put in 14 years with the New York Giants.

Incidentally, Baugh lost one competitor Tuesday when Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears said he was through as an active player. Sid, who holds most passing records that Baugh has overlooked, played 12 years with the Bears.

Baugh holds 17 league records. He has thrown more passes, completed more, gained more ground on his passing, and had a better percentage on completions than any player in pro history.

Houston Mauling Of Texas A&M's Coach Again Makes News

AUSTIN.—(P)—Coach Harry Stiteler still has his job at Texas A&M—and Vice Chancellor D. W. Williams says the Aggie mentor is "not going to be fired by rumor." Williams was quoted in a story published in Houston as saying Stiteler would be fired if his (Stiteler's) version of a beating in Houston last December was found to be false.

"I didn't say anyone was going to be fired," Williams said. "I'm not going to prejudge Harry. He has given us a statement, and that's the way it is until I know otherwise x x x."

There were conflicting versions of the December attack which the Aggie coach termed "nothing serious" and blamed on mistaken identity.

Stiteler said someone "took a poke at him" as he got out of a cab at the Shamrock Hotel to attend an A&M football banquet.

Houston police ordered an investigation into the attack, but later dropped it. Texas Rangers at Houston said they had investigated at the request of Texas A&M authorities, but that any statement would have to come from A&M.

Vice Chancellor Williams denied that the college is withholding any information regarding the identity of Stiteler's attacker.

At College Station, Stiteler told The Associated Press by telephone that "Williams' reported statement in Houston was 'news to him.'"

He said as far as he was concerned the matter was a "closed" incident until they find the "fellow."

Sugar Ray, La Motta Tangle Wednesday

CHICAGO.—(P)—Welter King Sugar Ray Robinson, a symphony of power and skill in the ring, Wednesday night shoots for the middleweight crown of Jake La Motta, a barbaric roughhouse by comparison.

It's a finely-tuned machine colliding with a fireplug—a contrast of fighting styles that promises to be one of the best scraps of the post-war era.

Robinson, who decided body-slogging Jake four out of five times when the Bronx Bull was a middleweight contender instead of the champion, rules a 3-1 to 4-1 favorite for the Chicago Stadium showdown, starting at 9 p.m. (CST).

66'ers Rip H-SU 81-58; Rotary Takes McCamey Five

By LARRY KING
The famed Phillips 66 basketball team from Bartlesville, Okla., used height, skill and experience to outclass completely a game Hardin-Simmons Cowboy five here Tuesday night in the Midland High School gym 81-58.

It was cold and snowing outside, but in the comfortable confines of the MHS gym the 66'ers left little doubt as to their superiority in the eyes of the 1,400 fans.

Bob (Footballs) Kurland took the initial tip and scored for the Phillips quintet with the game only five seconds old, and Phillips never was behind after that, although H-SU pulled to within 2-8 early in the initial stanza. Kurland left the game early in the first quarter.

186 Hopeluls Warm Up For Valley Open

HARLINGEN, TEXAS.—(P)—A field of 186 warmed up Wednesday for the $10,000 Rio Grande Valley Open in a pro-amateur in which members of the touring professional contingent participated. They were competing for $300 in cash with $150 to the first place team.

Rain Tuesday night and colder weather improved the Harlingen Municipal Course and the Valley Open sponsors were exultant.

Lloyd Mangrum, the dapper little man from Chicago who is the leading money-winner of the year, was installed as the favorite to win the $2,000 first money. Mangrum won the first Valley tournament held in 1948.

The Open starts Thursday with a field of around 120 of the top professionals. Eighteen-hole rounds are scheduled Thursday and Friday, then the low 60 scorers and ties will go into the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

Westerners End Perfect Loop Year

ODESSA—Lubbock High School's fast-breaking basketball team racked up win number 23 here Tuesday night and rounded out a perfect conference record, defeating Odessa 58-41.

Carl Ince tallied 15 points to lead the Westerner attack. Clarence Jones topped Odessa with 18 points. Lubbock, loser only three times this season and District 3-AA champion, was in front 36-23 at the half.

never to return throughout the remainder of the contest, due to an injured foot.

But it was the powerful 66'ers Midland fans turned out to see, and they weren't disappointed. Hopping off to the early lead, Phillips built up a 40-32 halftime margin despite the heroic efforts of the Cowboys' Larry Wartes, a lad who tallied 19 points for Hardin-Simmons and won the hearts of Midland fans. The five-foot, 10-inch senior from Amarillo was a whiz all night, driving for the bucket for crisp shots and hitting nicely from outside. He was the night's high scorer.

Still, it was Phillips which had the eye-catching attack. Playing only as hard as they wanted too and at times easing off, the Oklahoma lads never were less than 13 points in front after the early moments of the first half.

Lanky Don Whitehead, former Nebraska star, used a hook shot in a very effective manner to tally 18 points for the winning Phillips team. Teammate Loy Doty, Wyoming's gift to Oklahoma, tallied 17 points. It was the thirty-third win in 35 starts for the Phillips team this season. Hardin-Simmons dropped its eleventh game in 21 starts. The 66'ers play the Artesia, N. M., REA team Wednesday night in Odessa.

Ponies Defeat Eagles

ANDREWS.—The Andrews Mustangs, North Zone champions of District 5-A, whipped South Zone Champion Pecos 50-45 here Tuesday night in the first of a two-of-three series to determine the loop championship.

With six-foot, seven-inch Center Bob (Trees) Summerwell hitting for 28 points, the potent Ponies maintained a small lead throughout the contest, although Pecos came within two points of the rangy Mustangs midway of the third-quarter. Billy Patterson paced Pecos with 17 points. Andrews was in front at halftime 26-21.

The two teams will meet in Pecos Thursday night in the second contest. If a third game is necessary it will be played in Odessa Saturday night.

It was Andrews' seventeenth win in 19 starts. The Mustangs had an 8-0 conference mark. Pecos lost its seventh contest, and has won 15 this season. The Eagles posted a 7-1 loop record.

Baseball Hopeluls Start Annual Trek To Florida Camps

MIAMI, FLA.—(P)—Baseball players—from high-salaried stars to unknown youngsters who would like to break into the big time—have started their annual parade to Florida Spring training grounds.

They've been drifting in, one by one, since January. By March 1, an estimated 2,000 athletes will be working off winter rustiness under the warm sun.

Ten major league teams and squads representing almost all the high-ranking minor leagues will pitch training camps in the state.

For the first time in a quarter of a century, the New York Yankees will be missing. The world champions will train in Phoenix, Ariz., this year and go on an exhibition tour of California and Texas.

FLYING SISTERS SEE ACTION WEDNESDAY
The Midland Flying Sisters basketball team will tangle with the Booker T. Washington girls team of Odessa Wednesday night in the Carver High School gym here. The contest is to start at 8:15 p.m.

Starting for the Sisters will be Edith Campbell, Dottie Colbert and Eunice Graham at forwards, and Joyce Beasley, Frankie Schulke and Dutch Clinton at guards.

Army Still Fights War Of Red Tape

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
WASHINGTON (NEA)—The fantastic story of Byron Asteriadis of Jamestown, N. Y., who wants to get back in the Army and can't, has just come to light. It's a classic of Army red tape and snafu.

Byron Asteriadis: "I can't get in or out."

active duty. Still the Army won't have him, even though he speaks Korean pretty well and served in Korea two years before.

Experts on Byron's case at the Pentagon say they're shocked by the fact that he isn't on active duty. The Army is crying for men with his qualifications. Two colonels to whom the case history was taken first said it was impossible for him not to be in the Army.

When the Korean fighting started Asteriadis tried to reenlist in the Army immediately. He was turned down because of dependents. To get around this he joined the active reserves and asked for active duty. He had to pay for his own physical exam but they told him he would be in uniform in a week.

He quit his job to wind up his civilian affairs and then started to wait—which he is still doing. The only information he got was that the circular under which he had applied for duty had been withdrawn and that a new circular would come in soon which would let him in.

Asteriadis then wrote to this reporter for help. When the facts of his case were laid before the colonel "who would give a complete explanation of the trouble" he said he could prove that it couldn't happen. He called in colonel No. 2, who got the facts and then retreated to his office in a state of high indignation.

In a few moments he returned with a smile of great satisfaction on his face, waving a blue sheet of paper. This paper, he said, proved that the whole thing couldn't happen. It was a copy of an order sent to all reserve officials instructing that men with Asteriadis' qualifications be called to active duty immediately.

But why isn't Asteriadis on active duty then? Maybe it's a human error somewhere, the colonel suggests. What's the best way for Asteriadis to get the error corrected? See the top reserve official in Jamestown, the colonel says.

But isn't that where the error started? Yes, but that's where Asteriadis should go, the colonel stoutly insists. What about the circulars? These matters aren't handled by circulars, the colonel advises.

Is there anything you can do about getting this man in, colonel? That is not exactly the function of this office, the colonel reminds you. Doesn't this seem like a thoughtless piece of business on the part of the Army? That sometimes happens in the Army, the colonel admits.
