Spraberry Opener Seen In SW Dawson

A discovery from the middle Spraberry has been indicated at Sunray Oil Corporation No. 1 A. A. Harris, wildcat in Southwest Dawson County, 11 miles southwest of Lamesa. The interval in the Spraberry from 8,110 to 8,137 feet was drilled and tested for two hours. Gas was at the surface in 20 minutes. No fluid was at the top while the tool was open. Recovery was 315 feet of clean oil and 60 feet of heavy oil and gas-cut mud. Flowing pressure was zero. Shut-in pressure after 15 minutes was 1,025 pounds. Operator was to core 25 feet deeper and take another drillstem test. The Spraberry was topped at 7,872 feet on a minus datum point of 4,916 feet. The possible new field opener is eight miles southwest of the one well Manning-Huddle field which produces from the Spraberry. Exact location is 660 feet from north and east lines of labor 2, league 288, Moore County school land survey.

Upton Wildcat Is Coring Ellenburger

Stclair Oil & Gas Company No. 1 McElroy Ranch, Northwest Upton County wildcat, 18 miles northwest of Rankin, is coring below 12,138 feet in the top of the Ellenburger. The current core was started at 12,112 feet. Operator plans to cut to 12,162 feet, then come out with the core and run a drillstem test. That test probably will not be run before Wednesday. This exploration, located 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 129, block D, COSSABONG survey, showed for a possible discovery from the Ellenburger in a drillstem test late last week at 12,042-119 feet. The tool was open four hours. Gas was at the surface in one hour. No fluid came to the top while the tester was in the hole. Recovery was the 1,260-foot water blanket, 1,770 feet of free oil and 570 feet of heavy oil and gas cut drilling mud, with slight odor of sulphur. An analysis of the fluid showed that the sulphur did not come from any water in the Ellenburger formation. Gravity of the oil was 46 degrees. The gas volume was small. Open flowing bottom hole pressure was between 700 pounds and 1,200 pounds. Shut in bottom hole pressure was 5,125 pounds after 15 minutes. There was no water in the fluid which was recovered. The water blanket, and the oil which was recovered on the test, all unloaded while the pipe was being pulled. After completing the test operator conditioned the hole for almost 24 hours and in so doing deepened two feet to 12,112 feet. The presently cutting core was started at that point. This wildcat has already shown an flowing discovery from the Strawn lime of the Pennsylvanian at 9,378-9,411 feet. Top of the Ellenburger is at 12,042 feet. Elevation is 2,781 feet. That makes the prospector 1,791 feet high to a dry hole located two and one-half miles to the northwest. The project is on acreage secured by Sinclair in a farm-out deal with The Wilshire Oil Company out of a large spread of acreage which that concern owns on the McElroy Ranch. The wildcat is 23 miles northeast of McCamey and 11 miles south and west of the Pegasus field.

Scores See Painting Of Midland Skyline

Scores of Midlanders Sunday saw the beautiful skyline painting of Midland which is on display in the show window of the Simmons Paint & Paper Company here. The attractive scene, painted by Maurice Saint-Lou, noted French artist, will be on exhibit at various downtown locations during the next 10 days. Saint-Lou donated the painting to Midland citizens. It will be sold at auction, with the proceeds going to the Midland Memorial Hospital. The Reporter-Telegram is making arrangements for the sale. The artist, who is visiting Midland while on a tour of the United States, has established a studio at El Campo Moderno on West Highway 80. The public is invited to see his collection of paintings there.

Shoppers Crowd Downtown Stores On Dollar Day

Dollar Day buying was in full swing here Monday as crowds of shoppers from Midland and throughout the Permian Basin swarmed crowded downtown stores to take advantage of the money-saving values offered by Midland retail stores. It was the last Dollar Day before Easter and the popular sales event attracted shoppers in near-record numbers. The shopping spree started early and reached unprecedented proportions during the noon hour. Sidewalk, store and street traffic was unusually heavy. Everyone seemed to be happy with the outcome of the March Dollar Day.

Midwest In Great Manhunt

OMAHA (AP)—A Midwest manhunt was on Monday for two jailbreakers and an armed confederate, who kidnaped and later released four hostages in a brazen break for freedom Sunday. Nine harrowing hours for the hostages—a deputy sheriff, an attorney, a farmer and an Omaha businessman—ended shortly before midnight on a farm near Auburn. There the fugitive stole another auto, their third, and continued their flight after tying up the hostages.

First Warrants For Overtime Parking Are Issued Monday

The first warrants for overtime parking offenders who have failed to bring their tickets into corporation court were scheduled to be issued Monday afternoon. Assistant City Attorney Edwin Stitt said the warrants will be issued as soon as he is supplied with the names of the delinquent offenders. Police meanwhile began the job of checking duplicates of tickets issued and Col. Milan N. Plavick, director of the department of public safety, said the first names would be given the city attorney's office during the day. At the same time Colonel Plavick said a clerk will be employed for the job not only of keeping up with the current tickets, but of going through the file of hundreds of tickets which never have been brought into court. Under the plan announced Saturday, offenders against whom the warrants are issued will have to pay the regular $1 fine for overtime parking, plus an additional penalty for not reporting within the prescribed time.

Seven Plead Guilty To Drunken Driving

A record-breaking seven drunken drivers pleaded guilty Monday morning when brought before Judge Clifford C. Keith in County Court. It was reported to be the largest number arraigned at one time in the history of the county. Four of them were arrested over the weekend by State Highway Patrolman Mac Stout and the other three by city police. Fines ranging from $100 to $150 were levied against the offenders, one of who drew an additional 14-day jail sentence. The charges were filed by County Attorney Reagan Legg.

Shivers Gets First Bill On Redistricting

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas' first legislative redistricting bill in 30 years was passed finally and sent to the governor Monday. It was the senatorial reapportionment measure. Final action came with Senate concurrence in a minor House amendment, by voice vote. A Senate-amended House redistricting bill is just one step away from final legislative action. It is in the House, whose members must concur with the Senate change before it can go to the governor. The House speeded up anti-crime legislation but a proposed crime investigation hit a snag in the Senate. The House voted by a top-heavy majority to consider Tuesday a bill to give longer time to grand juries investigating gambling and vice. Objections that a proposed gambling and other organized crime investigation by the Senate would invade local government sent Senator George Nokes' resolution on the subject to committee. The Corsicana senator pressed for immediate action on his resolution calling for the look into crime. Rep. H. A. Hull of Fort Worth, author of the House anti-crime bill, said the measure was "an urgent thing" in his county and that it may become urgent in any county. The measure would allow grand juries to stay in session up to a year. At present they are empaneled only for three months. Hull said the Tarrant County grand jury now is in the middle of an important investigation of gambling, but under present rules its session will end April 1. He asked speed of the new bill could be passed before April 1. The cost of drivers' licenses would go up to $1 under a bill finally passed 128 to 4 by the House and sent to the Senate. It was advocated as a measure which would make the State Highway Patrol self-supporting. Texas now pay 50 cents every two years for drivers' licenses. Bills to regulate Republican Party conventions, to prevent the flooding of a South Texas town, and to limit the number of teachers to get married were high on the House calendar.

Midland's Postal Receipts Increase

Receipts of the Midland Post Office the first two months of 1951 are well ahead of the January and February receipts of 1950. Postmaster N. G. Oates announced Monday. An all-time high of more than $300,000 was set by the Midland office last year. In January this year, receipts were up 17 per cent over the same month of 1950, totaling $31,522. The February receipts totaled $26,045, which is an increase of 22 per cent. The net gain in receipts for the first two months is $9,247, Oates said.

UN Starts Formation Of International Army

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Formation of an international anti-aggression army got underway at the United Nations Monday. The 14-nation Collective Measures Committee met at 2 p.m. to begin planning the international force authorized by the General Assembly last Fall. Purpose of the legion is to put military power against aggression in the hands of the General Assembly, where the Soviet Union has no veto.

East, West Start 'Big Four' Talks

PARIS (AP)—Russian and Western deputies sat down at a conference table here Monday after Britain, France and the United States served notice there won't be any major Big Four conference unless the Russians are prepared to talk about problems other than Germany. The deputies' job is to find out whether an agenda can be arranged for the foreign ministers of the four big powers. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was the last of the four to arrive. He was unsmiling as he joined U. S. Ambassador-At-Large Philip Jessup, Britain's Ernest Davies and France's Alexander Parodi. At 4:15 p.m., the four deputies sat down at a round table, with Parodi presiding, and the first session was under way. Earlier Jessup spoke for the three Western countries in saying that if the Soviets want to limit the topics for a Big Four meeting to Germany, there is little chance the higher level conference will take place. He told a news conference the three Western countries are fully in accord in their views. Jessup explained that the U. S. always has been ready to sit down and talk with the Russians and that this constantly has been emphasized by President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson.

New York Exchange Officials Disagree On Cotton Price Lids

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Cotton Exchange officials disagreed Monday both on details and broad principles with the new cotton price ceilings of the Office of Price Stabilization, while continuing the exchange shutdown. A delegation from the exchange was in Washington to confer with OPS officials in an effort to iron out technical details in the hope of reopening exchange trading in a few days. But even if trading is resumed, cotton circles were skeptical that the basic ceiling of 45.75 a pound would bring from farmers next season a crop 60 per cent greater than this season's estimated 9,884,000 bales, as requested by the Department of Agriculture. The OPS has taken the view that the ceiling would allow the farmer 40 cents for his cotton and that he would be happy with that price and boost his crop to the new goal asked of him. Bigger Crop Expected Some circles, including the OPS, contend further that since the ceilings set by the new order are above prices prevailing when the price (Continued On Page Nine)

Red Cross Campaign To Open Tuesday In Residential Areas

The 1951 Red Cross finance campaign in the residential districts of Midland will be launched Tuesday following a coffee scheduled at 9 a.m. in the Ranch House on West Highway 80. Mrs. Robert Stripling, chairman of the campaign's residential division, said all team captains and volunteer workers are invited and urged to attend the coffee. The canvass will extend into all sections of the city. G. E. Mershon, general chairman, and other Red Cross leaders will attend the meeting to explain the mechanics of the drive and the overall purposes and objectives of the American Red Cross and the Midland County Red Cross Chapter. Campaign literature and supplies will be distributed. The 1951 fund campaign was launched last Thursday in the downtown business district, and workers Monday were engaged in canvassing personnel in stores and office buildings. The Midland County goal this year is $15,000, which workers hope to exceed by the end of the week.

The charges against Collazo, an anti-American Puerto Rican Nationalist, grew out of a gun battle at Blair House November 1.

Postage Stamps Join Rubber, Tin On Shortage List

It doesn't sound quite right, but the Midland Post Office is having trouble getting stamps. Not the rare type, either. Just the plain three-cent variety. Postmaster N. G. Oates said Monday his office has not had coils of 500 three-cent stamps for two weeks. And certain types of stamped, business-size envelopes are scarce, too. In a bulletin from the Post Office Department, postmasters were told not to write complaining about a lack of stamps. The memorandum said, in effect, there is a stamp shortage over the nation and it will take the department's printing facilities awhile to bring supply up to meet the demand.

Allied Punch Keeps Enemy On Dead Run

TOKYO (AP)—U. S. infantrymen, with screaming artillery support, Monday routed an estimated 6,000 North Korean Reds from a mountain stronghold in Central Korea. The Communists' gun-bristling stronghold was hit from three sides by the U. S. Seventh Division and the U. S. Second Division with its French elements. The Allied punch forced the Reds to flee to a hastily-built new line to the north. Col. William (Buffalo Bill) Quinn, commander of the attack forces, said: "I'm going to destroy those blank Reds if they don't check out farther over those hills." The North Koreans fought sharply from well dug-in positions for a short time before they broke. They were trying to buy time for building up a probable counterassault on the Allies on the central and western fronts. The Reds were remnants of the North Korean Third Corps. Quinn two days ago led an attack which was believed to have put the North Korean 15th Division out of action. He said: "We've got the 15th, and now the First is number one on our hit parade." Running Gun Battle The Red rebuff overrun by the Americans is 10 miles northwest of Pangnim and five miles north of the Pangnim-Wonju road. On the west-central front, a U. S. tank patrol fought an eight-mile running gun battle with Reds. The tank patrol from the U. S. First Cavalry Division was peppered with Chinese Communist rifle and machine gun fire as it moved four miles east from Yongdu on the road to Hoengsong. The tanks sprayed the Red positions and will with return fire. At the end of four miles the tanks wheeled around and rumbled back to Yongdu. The steady exchange of fire continued. No tanks were lost. Another tank patrol that pushed north from Yongdu ran into Red fire from both sides of the road. After a fight with the Reds it returned to the Allied lines. On the extreme right of the central front, U. S. Seventh Division troops jumped ahead two and one-half miles—the day's best gain on the front—to within 500 yards of Changpyong. Changpyong controls the highway from the east coast town of Kangnung, where South Korean troops are operating. Air Activity Increases Fighter-bomber pilots of the U. S. Fifth Air Force reported they inflicted more than 700 casualties in attacks on Red troop concentrations along the Korean front and behind Red lines Monday. Bitter Cold Wave Heads Texas Way

By The Associated Press Texas was in the path of a vicious northwest cold wave Monday. The Weather Bureau said it might roar into North Texas Tuesday night. However, there were some indications that the norther might not be able to muster a severe punch because of the warm air masses over the area. Enormous damage could be done if unusually cold weather strikes. Trees, shrubs and some crops already are budding out from recent Spring-like weather. Much Colder Tuesday Monday's forecast calls for colder weather in the extreme northwest portion of East Texas Tuesday, and much colder temperatures, including cold waves—in the Panhandle and South Plains area of West Texas Tuesday night. Texas had warm weather with cloudy skies Monday. The cold winds were expected to start blowing into the state from the north and west late Tuesday. If nothing deflects the cold wave, it will spread to the south and east Wednesday, the Weather Bureau said. A more definite picture of the situation will be available by Tuesday. But the prospects still are for cooler weather. Sunday's high was 88 at Alice. A low of 24 was recorded early Monday at Salt Flat.

Emergency Call Is Sounded For Folks With Unusual Names

By ED CREACH WASHINGTON—(AP)—This is an emergency call to the Snythes, the Wisenwicks, the Killroes, the Masuosaks, the Connallys and the Flegelbaums.

It goes out also to the Goeways, the Lauches, the Skartvedts, the Pedersen, the Pfeffers (not to be confused with the Pfeffers), the Frellinghuysens, the Westerheids and the Zickfooses.

We're going to form a club, a national organization. Lots of persons are eligible, so stick around. Maybe you can join, too, unless your name is Smith, Jones or Robinson.

Our club will be made up of people whose names are hard to spell, or hard to pronounce, or both. There are millions of us and we have a grievance.

This may not sound like a burning issue to you Boyles and Davises and Hendersons. You don't have to contend with it. But we've been burned by it for a long time, we Creaches and Herchers and Stephansons and Zagliottis and Hojagards.

But I wish people wouldn't call me Creach, Cree, Craig and even more improbable names. I'm not alone in this wish, either. The late FDR was not overjoyed when people called him "Mr. Roosevelt."

Old Colorado Isn't Same Old Snorter

ATHENS, TEXAS—(AP)—Old-timers down around Austin or Bastrop will tell you that the Old Colorado, once a rip-snortin' devil of a river, just ain't what she used to be. And she isn't.

Back before the chain of flood control dams was built, the Colorado below Austin was, a lot of the time, a reddish yellow puddle in motion. There were catfish and drum to be caught, and plenty of gar—but a bass would grate out his eyeballs looking for a lure in such water.

Then came the great dam building spree. The river was bottled up with Buchanan Dam, allowed to meander on through Inks Lake, then down to Marshall Ford, through Lake Austin, and finally out the spillway of Tom Miller Dam to rush its way toward the sea.

And a new river was born. Look To Big Lakes Fishermen flocked to the big lakes Resorts sprang up all along the chain, and crowds grew. The lake chain began to be visited by thousands of sportsmen from all over Texas and the nation.

And all the time, Old Man River was rolling along, virtually unbothered. It's been just recently, the past few years, that the boys around Austin and other places down the river have begun to get wise.

In the fast-moving water below Austin now lies one of the most beautiful trips of river ever paddled by a fisherman. Where muddy waters once swirled, fighting game fish prowled the greenish-blue depths.

Severe Blizzard Bears Down On Northern Midwest

By The Associated Press A new blizzard which threatens to be a "whopper" bore down on the Northern Midwest Monday.

But there was some chance—and only a chance—that the intense cold will be pushed northward into Canada before it reaches the Mississippi Valley or Great Lakes region.

Federal Forecaster H. S. Kenny at Chicago said, however, the final direction of the cold wave cannot be determined until it is well east of the Rocky Mountain region, probably by Tuesday morning.

By Tuesday morning, the cold will have spread throughout the Dakotas, and into Wyoming, Nebraska and Kansas, Kenny said. Most of the High Plains area in the path of the storm still was staggering from the blizzard which hit there last weekend.

The suit, the News said, was due to come up Monday in court in Cuernavaca. The prince is her fourth husband.

Shouldn't Be Surprised

The shocking New York basketball scandal may serve some purpose if it awakens parents, educators and citizens generally to the condition of present-day college athletics.

Everybody has been uttering loud moans, with overtones of surprise that this could happen to "our boys." Yet anyone who troubles to take a sober look at college sports shouldn't be surprised at all.

Football and basketball are the prime items on the college agenda; almost everywhere today they're on the big spectacle scale. The crowds are huge, the box office "take" is the same, and the players disport like Roman gladiators in spacious arenas.

With the platoon system now in vogue, fielding a football team today involves heavy expenditure. To make it pay off, a college needs a winner. Sports-mad Americans like a winner and they won't for long support a loser.

To get winning teams, the colleges bid for playing talent in a frankly professional way: high school youngsters are offered all sorts of inducements to choose one school over another. They get jobs that pay without work, cars, athletic scholarships. They are treated as commodities in only slightly less degree than professional baseball players.

It's not much different with basketball, especially since many leading teams have taken to playing in off-campus arenas like Madison Square Garden and the Chicago Stadium.

All of this development has been sanctioned by most colleges, usually on the ground that the big-money sports paid for all other campus athletics. There seems no doubt of this, but educators and dotting parents who liked to see their youngsters in the limelight were too little disturbed by the effect this was having on the kids.

What is a boy to think who sees himself virtually a product on the market, who sees everybody making money as result of the games he plays?

Should he really be expected to draw the fine line between simon-pure competition and selling his services for whatever they'll bring?

To some of the more thoughtful youngsters, the idea never may occur that the grown-ups haven't been setting too good an example in correct moral behavior. Sordid tales of government by political favor (touching even the White House), disclosures of gambling activities on a big scale in city after city, political corruption in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago and other centers, these do not exactly make for a healthy moral atmosphere.

The boys involved in this basketball mess did wrong, very wrong. But they and countless others like them have been encouraged to do wrong by elders who often have been extremely lax in observing moral standards, and utterly careless of the impact of their laxity on the moral upbringing of the nation's youth.

Parents and educators had better worry first about building soundly moral young men, and second about getting the money to support intra-mural fencing, squash and la crosse teams.

Never Quite Free From This Headache

DREW PEARSON ON THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
Drew Pearson says: Turkey, now patterning its government on American brand of democracy, almost fell into Soviet orbit after World War I; Turks give Americans full credit for Marshall Plan's aid.

ISTANBUL — Mustings of an American loose along the highways and byways of Turkey—most people don't remember it but Turkey once camped within a hair's breadth of slipping into the Soviet orbit. This was after World War I, when Europe spurned the liberator of Turkey, Mustafa Kemal, and Stalin wooed him.

While Russia went to the violence and bloodshed of communism, however, Turkey, led by its modern hero, Kemal Ataturk—Americans call him Ataturk—Turk—escaped with a moderate state socialism. I remember Turkey—it has been just under 30 years since I was in Turkey. At that time I was a young relief worker in the Balkans and Turkey was occupied by French and British troops. Turkish women then wore veils and it was worth their life to see a woman face to face.

Today Turkish women not only have discarded the veils but have become more like us in many ways. They are as free as we are, something they don't have in the U.S.A. Furthermore, it's no longer a sin for a Turkish woman to have gold fillings in her teeth, as previously was banned by the Mohammedan religion, or to call in a doctor when she's sick.

George Marshall President of U.S.A.—Some Americans have worried over whether Europe really gave us credit for the Marshall Plan. Turkey is one country where we don't need to worry. Up in Northern Turkey a coal miner was asked whether he knew President Truman. He replied he did not and added that he thought Marshall was President of the U.S.A. The Marshall Plan has been given the widest publicity and has done a good job. The way of buying tractors and organizing farm cooperatives under the Marshall Plan have been explained on the radio until almost every village understands American aid to Turkey.

Turkish Congress — Turkey has gone in for democracy of the vigorous American brand. I sat in the balcony listening to the debate and, with few exceptions, it sounded like our Senate debate. One was that almost every member of parliament was in his seat, listening. There was no rattling of newspapers or rude conversations, as in our House and Senate. Another difference was that the presiding officer wore white tie and tails. Furthermore, Turks really work at parliamentary government, beginning their debates at 10 a.m. and continuing until 2 a.m., unlike our Congress which adjourns at 4 p.m.

The Washington, D. C. of Turkey —One of the smartest things President Ataturk did was remove the Turkish capital from the fleshpots and palaces of Istanbul, just as our founding fathers placed our capital not in New York or Philadelphia but in Washington. Just as Australians placed their new capital in Canberra, so the new Turkish Jones walked into a store, asked how much a box of candy was and was told it was $2. "I'll take it," he said. Then he asked, "How much is that box of cigars?" He was told the price was $2.

"I'll take the cigars instead of the candy," he said. He started out the door with the box under his arm. "Hold on," said the merchant, "you didn't pay me for the cigars." Jones said, "I gave you the candy for the cigars." The merchant said, "Yes, but you didn't pay for the candy." Jones replied, "But I didn't take the candy."

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When Boris Koytchou, one of France's leading players, was here in February he naturally gravitated to the expert games at New York's famous Regency Club. Incidentally, don't be thrown by the fact that Koytchou's name is Russian. France seems to be a haven for expert bridge players of all nationalities.

Bridge hand diagram showing North, West, East, and South (D) cards.

allies. For many years the leading players in France were Pierre Albaran (a Spaniard) and Sophie Venzelios (now a leading Greek statesman).

Koytchou played many hands brilliantly during his stay here, but the quality of an expert's game is often shown by "quiet" gems of the kind shown today.

Koytchou won the opening diamond lead with the ace and noted that he needed only to draw trumps without losing more than three trump tricks. Pretend that you cannot see the cards held by East and West. How should declarer play the spades?

At the second trick, Koytchou quite properly led the deuce of spades. East won with the six of spades and returned a diamond. Declarer won and then led a second small spade. This time East had to play his ace.

The rest was easy. Koytchou ruffed the diamond return and led the queen of spades. West would take his king, but then declarer could draw the last trump with the jack.

As may be seen, the correct play succeeds if either opponent has the doubleton ace or the doubleton king of spades; and, of course, any line of play works if the spades are 3-3. It should be noted also that South must lose four spade tricks if he makes the mistake of beginning the trumps by leading the queen. East will win the first trick with the ace, after which West must make three more trump tricks.

CARD Sense

Q—With both sides vulnerable, your partner deals and bids one spade. The next player bids two clubs. You hold: Spades K-Q-8-2, Hearts Q-J-7-6, Diamonds A-4-3-2, Club 2. What do you do?

A—Bid three spades. You have roughly the value of an opening bid, together with a magnificent fit for your partner. You must force to game, and should choose a bid which shows general strength since you have values in each of the four suits.

TODAY'S QUESTION

With neither side vulnerable, you deal yourself these cards: Spades A-6-3, Hearts A-K-4, Diamonds K-Q-2, Clubs J-10-8. What do you do?

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Acheson Company Takes On Aspects Of A Corporation

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Dean Acheson, in Bermuda for his first vacation since he took office two years ago, can relax with one assurance, anyway. He leaves behind him a staff so highly organized that it should be able to deal with any emergency. It's big enough, at any rate—bigger than President Truman's White House secretariat.

The point is that the secretary of State is no longer one man. The office of the secretary is more like a corporation. It is some 25 top drawer diplomats, each an alter ego for the secretary in some special field.

Conduct of U. S. foreign policy is no longer a matter that can be carried around in one man's head, the way Cordell Hull ran it. Nor is it anything that can be settled by having the boys drop into the secretary's office at 5 o'clock, to talk things over informally. That's the way Gov. James P. Byrnes ran it when he was secretary, with Ben Cohen as his principal adviser.

And as for one man making all the decisions, the way General Marshall did when he was secretary, that military simplicity and directness is gone, perhaps forever. Recent appointment of William D. Pawley as special assistant to the secretary, with the rank of ambassador, called attention to the fact that Secretary Acheson now has nine such special assistants. Each deals with specific problems which are considered full-time work for one man.

This does not include a top-level group of perhaps six strategists, headed by John Foster Dulles, who now is concentrating on the Japanese peace problem.

Assistant Secretaries
It does not include eight assistant secretaries, each in charge of a special province like congressional liaison, which is the job of Assistant Secretary Jack K. McFall. This whole administrative staff gets general supervision from Undersecretary James E. Webb, former director of the Bureau of the Budget.

He's the man in charge, as acting secretary, while Acheson is away. Webb is considered something of a genius at organization. He has been a demon, at any rate, in emphasizing to every State Department official what his particular area of responsibility was, then seeing that he took care of it. And Secretary Webb has himself—with his assistant secretary for administration, Carl Hummelstein—taken out of the secretary's lap all responsibility for being "business manager" of the vast State Department organization, with its 25,000 employees scattered all over the world.

For strictly political planning of international affairs, Dr. H. Frank Matthews, deputy undersecretary of State, is probably at the top of the heap. He is a 28-year veteran career diplomat. With Undersecretary Webb and Paul Nitze, director of the policy planning staff, he sees Secretary Acheson every morning at 9:30. Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen will join this group when he returns to duty as counselor of the department. This is the top brain trust.

Twice a week the assistant secretaries come in for conference. In this group are John D. Hickerson, in charge of United Nations affairs; Edward G. Miller, Jr., American republics; George W. Perkins, Europe; Dean Rusk, Far East; George C. McGhee, Near East and Africa; Willard Thorpe, economic affairs; Edward W. Barrett, public affairs; Ed-practically the same level is Henry C. Byroade, in charge of German affairs, though he does not rank as an assistant secretary. Work With Free Hand

Each of these assistant secretaries has a great deal of authority and makes his own decisions, subject only to review and general policy direction from the secretary. Time was when the secretary used to call in the experts on the China, German or other "desks." He seldom does that any more, because he doesn't have the time.

It is the complexity of the job, in fact, that has made necessary the designation of special assistants to handle specific problems. Dulles' handling of the Japanese question has been mentioned. In the same category is Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, who has been handling National Security Council and other important affairs. Republican Ex-Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky has been consultant on United Nations affairs.

Charles M. Spofford is deputy for the secretary to handle North Atlantic Treaty affairs. Thomas Dudley Cabot, former head of United Fruit, recently has taken over the position of director of international security affairs to handle the secretary's responsibilities in this field, working with other government agencies.

The Gold Mannequin

THE STORY: An artist who signs sketches "Teresa" and whose seasonal drawings are sold at the art gallery of the New York Yacht Club, N. Y., has saved the exclusive women's gown shop operated by Paul Franciere and the former model Jean Roland, from bankruptcy. "Teresa," without explanation, no more drawings come from this mysterious unknown artist. Teresa and Jean Roland, who operate the store, are determined to solve the mystery. A man-browned country club with a private swimming pool, a tennis court and a clubhouse, is the scene of the investigation. The artist eventually arrives at a group of buildings, apparently some sort of apartment house. Jean goes to a terrace where a man is sleeping in a wicker chair. Jean touches the artist's shoulder and asks "Teresa?"

answered defiantly. "People can make up names, if they want to, can't they?"
Jean was amused. "Of course they can, of course," she replied tolerantly, as if speaking to someone immensely younger and inferior. "I'm sure making up names can be quite an exciting game. Let me in on the secret, won't you?"

The girl sensed Jean's attitude, resented it. She tossed her head, shaking her pigtail, turned abruptly and started back toward the building, leaving Jean standing under the trees.

"Midge!" A man's voice called out. "Midge!"
JEAN turned at the sound of the voice and saw that the man in the wheel chair, just awakened, was calling after the girl. The girl heard the voice, glanced back, but did not stop. Rather it seemed to Jean, she increased her speed. In a moment, she had disappeared. Jean left the shade and went through the sunlight toward the chair. The man in the chair, she could see, was about 26. A tangle of black hair accentuated the white thinness of his face.

He watched her, his puzzled eyes seeking to penetrate the mystery of the flawlessly attired, beautiful stranger who walked so easily and gracefully toward him. The man in the wheel chair didn't speak. He just kept looking at Jean, as if he were not fully awake.

"I'm terribly sorry," she said as she came to the chair. "I'm afraid I woke you up."
With difficulty, he raised himself up in his chair and, grinning a little as he looked at her, said, "I'm not so sure I'm awake."
"Neither am I." She laughed softly. "I have only a vague idea where I am."

He pointed to a sign on the roadway.

"Summit Veteran's Hospital," she read.

His eyes twinkled. "Sometimes known as the Hotel of Forgotten Men. Are you looking for somebody?"

"Uh-huh. Madly."

"It couldn't be me, could it?" His grin appeared again.

"I'm afraid not." Then she said, "This little girl I was just talking to—you know her, don't you? I heard you call her something or other—"

"Midge."

"She's cute." Jean looked impatiently toward the hospital.

"Does she live near here?"

"About a mile or so farther out on the highway. Her father has a farm."

JEAN looked off toward the hospital again. "Would you mind telling me her name?"

If this girl Midge were Teresa, Jean wanted to know so she would not waste further time. Even now, the object of her hunt might be speeding away in the truck.

"Darned if I know her name. Everybody calls her Midge. She's been running around here for the last four or five years. When she first came she was about 12. I imagine, and about that high." He held a hand out level to indicate about four feet in height. "Somebody called her Midge then, and everybody's been calling her Midge ever since. They'll know her name up at the office." He studied her face. "Is it Midge you came out here to see?"

"Yes—and no." She smiled down at him. "I'm playing the detective."

"Lucky criminal. Can I help?" She told him of the gown shop and Teresa, of the yellow envelope, of following the girl out to the hospital.

"I can't understand why she ran away," she said, as she finished. "I can see she was patriotic."

"Being patriotic?" Jean flashed him a sharp look, searching to see if his mind were gone as well as his body.

"She was keeping a military secret." He was very casual. "I'm Teresa."

CONSTIPATION GONE—FEELS LIKE OLD SELF

No Trace Found Of Explosives Thieves

ARCHER CITY, TEXAS—(AP)—Police haven't seen—or heard—of the burglars who stole enough dynamite and nitroglycerine to "blow up practically anything."

Two men are believed to have taken the 350 quarts of nitro, 14 cases of dynamite and at least four boxes of electric blasting caps from an explosives farm near here Friday night.

Sheriff Claude A. Morrison said the theft was discovered after a watchman chased two men away from the farm. They fled in a gray, 1950 Mercury.

The explosives, used in oil field work, were on the farm operated jointly by the Mendenhall Torpedo Company, Pan American Company and du Pont.

One officer was asked what you could blow up with that much explosives.

"My God!" he said. "You mean that much nitro and dynamite going off at once? There's no telling. It would be like a little atomic bomb. You could blow up practically anything."

Massacre Valley—

Monday, after an Army investigation, a staff officer told the first full story of the terrible retreat.

Hopeless, Fighting Retreat

It is the account of an almost hopeless but fighting retreat of a small American force of about 2,400 cut off miles behind enemy lines and outnumbered at least 12 to one. "It all started," the staff officer said, "with the plan to let South Korean Divisions lead the advance against the Reds on the central front, supported by special American tank forces of artillery with an infantry guard and with the main American line several miles behind."

"The ROK (Republic of Korea) outfit was the Eighth Division advancing mainly toward Hoengsong, about 15 miles north of Hoengsong. A special support force of one American field artillery battalion and a battery of medium artillery with an infantry battalion to protect the artillery was ordered north to support the ROK advance. The ROK's also were joined by a special support team of a platoon of tanks with an infantry company."

"The night of February 11-12 the Chinese hits the ROK's hard. By 2:30 a.m. the Chinese had cracked through the ROK line and were attacking our own American infantry perimeter defending the guns."

"One Helluva Fight"

"We heard later that one ROK regiment had collapsed but two ROK regiments must have put up one helluva fight."

"The American support team was sent back down the road to secure a bridge near Haktam so we could withdraw safely."

"The tanks took a platoon of infantry. When they got near the bridge they ran into a Chinese ambush (and) the whole little force was practically annihilated."

The American-support regiment was strung out over almost 20 miles of road. It was estimated the Reds had at least 33,000 men massed against the American regiment and the Eighth ROK Division.

"The support force started down the road and managed to fight all the way back to Saemal with the Chinese firing constantly from the hills on both sides of the road," the staff officer said.

"All this time the battalion in Saemal was under constant attack."

Dutch Pinned Down

The UN forces immediately ordered the heaviest air, artillery, mortar and tank fire for support and began calling for a rescue group.

"The Dutch battalion guarding approaches to regimental headquarters at Hoengsong could hardly move. They were in action themselves."

"By midafternoon the support force and Saemal battalion had linked up and began to fight their way down the long narrow defile that leads two miles into Hoengsong.

"It was slow going against an almost overwhelming enemy and the two battalions with the trucks and the guns on the road didn't get quite a mile by darkness."

"The rescue force jumped off from Hoengsong in darkness. The ROK engineers stormed up Hill 908 and took it away from the Chinese."

"The Chinese fought like hell but the southern force went on through and linked up with the convoy."

Fight To The Death

As darkness fell the remnants of the trapped force found themselves in terrible isolation.

One wounded survivor says someone ran to the truck where he lay with other wounded and shouted, "Come on you wounded guys, get out and fight for your lives."

It was a fight to the death. The Chinese division poured in more men regardless of losses.

Hopelessly surrounded, the men fired until they fell. Everything fired. Howitzers shot up their ammunition at point blank range.

One self-propelled twin 40-MM flak mount must have fired every few hundred feet. The long, slim cartridge cases still-shone in the sun three weeks later.

Almost everywhere along the road were empty rifle cartridges spaced out every few feet. There were heaps of them where machine guns had fired.

Fighting Retreat

When the end was clear and the Chinese closed in for the kill, the gunners destroyed their artillery pieces.

That part of the convoy that escaped before the Chinese closed in was pulled back through Hoengsong, where the Dutch were fighting for their lives.

The remnants of the Dutch, the support force and the rescue group pulled back in fighting retreat.

"By 11 o'clock that night it was decided that all who could come through the pass had gotten through and the Dutch were ordered to fight a rear guard action while the rest retreated to Wonju," the staff officer said.

Next morning the battered regiment set up its new line two miles in front of Wonju. Then, dug in and supported by mass artillery, it stopped every Chinese attempt to crack through. And it turned the first Red retreat into a rout.

Two Chinese divisions marched down the Som River Valley and were massacred themselves by the concentrated fire of 60 pieces of artillery. This was the "Wonju Shoot" that finally broke the Chinese drive.

DADDY RINGTAIL

NERVES FEEL JUMPY? TAKE SOME ACTION! CHEW WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT—GET SATISFACTION!

Daddy Ringtail And Down On The Farm

Daddy Ringtail, your monkey friend, was down at Old MacDonald's farm for a visit. Uncle Bunkum from the zoo was coming for a visit too. Old MacDonald was waiting at the door. "Happy day, Mister MacDonald!" said Uncle Bunkum in his cackled-cracked old voice with a laugh. "Happy day to you, Uncle Bunkum!" said Old MacDonald, and his voice too was cackled-cracked with a laugh. But there he stopped his laugh in the middle. Uncle Bunkum kum had called him Mister MacDonald and everyone knew that his name was really Old MacDonald who had a farm.

"Call me Old MacDonald!" shouted Old MacDonald with his cackled-cracked old voice that shook with his wanting of people not to call him "Mister." "Why," said Old MacDonald, "there's even a song about me. Listen and I'll sing it to you." Old MacDonald sang out as loud as he could: "Old MacDonald had a farm. Ee ee ee oh!"

"Do tell!" said Uncle Bunkum. "I've already told it!" shouted Old MacDonald.

Old MacDonald looked at Uncle Bunkum. Uncle Bunkum looked at Old MacDonald. Those rascals! Oh, they are very friendly old gentlemen indeed, but rascals all the same. Well, to help with Old MacDonald's forgetting the business of "Mister MacDonald," Uncle Bunkum said he thought he would go for a walk around the farm. Yes, he would take a walk through the orchard of apple trees. He would find himself an apple, big and red and round. Yes, that's what he was going to do. Away he started down the steps. "Wait! Wait!" cried Old MacDonald. "Uncle Bunkum!" Daddy Ringtail called. "Old MacDonald says to wait!"

Uncle Bunkum stopped to listen, and Old MacDonald told him. Old MacDonald said to climb the tree with the biggest and reddest and roundest apples in it. Oh, but whatever else Uncle Bunkum did, he must be sure—very sure not to open the little white box on the ground beneath the tree. Uncle Bunkum laughed to hear it, and I'm afraid he's about to get into mischief, but that is the adventure I'll tell you tomorrow. Happy day!

20 Months Digging Bring Convict 13 Days Freedom

BALTIMORE (AP)—A radio jazz band blared out over the prison broadcast system. The brassy music disguised the steady chink, chink, chink of a chisel against concrete. That was 20 months ago. Joseph Holmes, 39-year-old Maryland negro, was on the first lap of a 70-foot tunnel to freedom, freedom that lasted only 13 days. He was recaptured Saturday night when he tried a $5 holdup under the shadow of the Washington Monument in downtown Baltimore. And Monday he was arraigned in City Police Court on "several charges" connected with the wild gunfight that preceded his arrest. No one was injured in the shooting.

Fantastic Escape
Prison officials still are gasping over his fantastic escape. The story of its goes like this: For eight years he paced back and forth in the narrow confines of his cell, serving a 20-year sentence for burglary. Then, in the first part of 1949, he began to worry about going "stir happy." So he conceived a fabulous plan to dig himself free.

Firemen recovered his body Sunday afternoon, some 17 hours after the boat struck an underwater stump and sank Saturday night in Lake McQueeney near here. Steves handed out the life-preservers to the teen-agers with the comment "I can swim and won't need one." Rescuers found the youngsters clinging to the life-preservers.

WITH THE U. S. SECOND DIVISION, KOREA (AP)—An American sergeant is proving again that curiosity can be fatal—to Chinese. When the Chinese swarmed over ridges in an attack on this division in Central Korea recently they blew bugles and whistles and clanged cymbals—customary tactics aimed at distracting the GIs. Sgt. One Person Dies, 300 Children Evacuated In Orphanage Blaze

QUINLAN (AP)—One person burned to death when fire destroyed the Administration Building of the Boles Orphan's Home and forced evacuation of 300 children. Mrs. Huddie Bates, about 65, was trapped in a hallway on the second floor of the two-story building. The children were evacuated as a precautionary measure when the fire which broke out about 3 a.m. Sunday threatened nearby dormitories. Carl Partain, personnel director, estimated the loss at between $100,000 and $150,000. He said the blaze started in the northeast corner of the upper floor, where Mrs. Bates, the dietitian, died. The cause of the fire was not determined. Housed in the building were the orphanage hospital, high school, music studio, library, office and six residence apartments. Firemen came from Greenville, 14 miles to the north, but there was no water to fight the blaze. Five Persons In Building. Five persons were in the building when the fire was discovered. They were Mrs. Bates, Jay Tomlinson, music director; Joe Neff, 17, music student; Elmer Baker, high school English teacher; Miss Vann Faulkner, storekeeper, and Mrs. McLendon, dining hall supervisor. First to be evacuated were 94 students ranging in age from 11 to 13 years of age. They occupied the two dormitories closest to the burning building. Later the remaining 200 home residents were marched from their quarters in a precautionary move. Between 40 and 50 buildings are on the campus of the institution, erected three miles north of here by the Churches of Christ in 1934. Partain said the loss was "at least partially" covered by insurance, and plans to rebuild will be made shortly. Only the charred outer walls of the building remain.

First Senate Vote On 18-Year Draft Due Late Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate faced a decision Monday on the politically touchy issue of drafting 18-year-olds to help expand the nation's fighting forces. Members agreed to start voting Monday afternoon on a proposal by Senator Morse (R-Ore) to prohibit induction of young men until they are 18 1/2 years old. The present minimum induction age is 19. "Under debate in the Senate is a bill that would lower this to 18 years and set in motion a permanent Universal Military Training and Service (UMTS) system. Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas), floor manager for the UMTS measure, predicted in advance that Morse's proposal would be beaten by a "substantial majority." The vote will be the first test on the UMTS measure in the Senate. A number of other amendments are pending, but there is no agreement to vote on them.

Austria sends her most charming ambassadors, music and youth, to Midland on Friday, when 30 students and teachers on leave from Austrian universities and schools present a musical show of gay Austrian melodies, folk dances and yodeling at 8 p.m. in the Midland High School Auditorium. The two-hour program is sponsored by Midland JayCees. Tickets to the performance may be obtained from Junior C. of C. members, President Art Joseph announced. On the other hand they are learning as much as possible about America and the Americans and to spread their newly-gained knowledge in Austria after their return. The group includes 10 girls and 20 boys. They were carefully selected from among hundreds of applicants. They are offering in their show rollicking songs, dances and yodeling numbers culled from the folkways of Austria. The troupe's brilliant and authentic folk costumes have been loaned by the provincial museums of Austria. Their goodwill tour of North America has been endorsed by the Education Division of the American Forces in Austria, the UNESCO Commission and UNO Leagues of Austria, the Austro-American Society, the Austro-American Institute of Education and the Austrian and American National Union of Students. One of the leading figures in the show to be presented here is Dr. Susanne Polsterer, lovely young blonde who acts as mistress of ceremonies for the performances.

Aide To Jersey City Mayor Shot Down In Barroom Free-For-All

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—Thomas P. (Buddy) Boyle, Jr., one of Mayor John V. Kenny's top Democratic aides, was shot dead early Monday at the height of a free-for-all barroom brawl over politics. Minutes after Boyle staggered from the tavern and died in the street, police picked up Eugene Kenny, 36, and announced he had admitted the killing. Police Inspector Michael Cusack said Kenny, a member of an anti-Kenny faction who is no relation to the mayor, would be booked on a murder charge in the death of the 23-year-old Second Ward leader. There has been some debate as to whether a new quarterly report on the cost of living—issued by the government Bureau of Labor Statistics—would give UAW members four or five cents more per hour. Saturday GM and the union agreed on the five-cent figure. Chrysler and Ford both were meeting with UAW representatives Monday.

The MATURE PARENT Take A Moral Stand To Give Child Strength

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
The time has come to "take a moral stand" with our children. We have tried appeasement—and produced young tyrants. We have tried giving "warmth" and "acceptance" to defiance and impertinence—and produced more of the same. Now it's time for us to say: "This must be done because it is right to do." That is a moral stand. That is taking responsibility. That is security for our children. Take cheating at school, for example. Bill has been taught that morality demands giving justice and asking for it. Morality is his security, not the possible "A" on the test, not his promotion, not his diploma. Bill won't cheat because that would risk his security. It's not worth it to him. But George has not been told about morality. His parents are not concerned with it but with George's showing at school. So George figures, "If an 'A' is what they want of me, OK," and he sneaks a look at his notes. George may get his "A"—but he has lost a piece of his self-respect. Moral Strength. Life being what it is, that self-respect is going to be challenged. With a piece of it missing, he'll be handicapped in the fight to protect it. When injustice is given to him, he'll accept it or run away. Bill will stand fast. His training has told him to resist injustice. We can teach children moral values by our making those values the basis of our discipline. Reliance on morals enables us to deal calmly and confidently with misbehavior. If you impose a just penalty, loud protests from your young will not disturb you. They will feel your assurance of moral strength. Gradually the protests will begin to sound a note strange to your ears. The parent who does not use morality as the basis for discipline has to resort to threats, bribes, or pleas for consideration of his own feelings. Threats like bribes, teach the young to plot for power. Pleas for consideration of our feelings make an angry child angrier. Appeasement is fear. To give a child security you must give him what cannot be shaken. When you have given him unshakable justice, honesty and truthfulness, you have given security. All together, they have another name. It is love. (All Rights Reserved, NEA Service, Inc.)

Fields Take Shape For Top Collegiate Cage Tournaments

NEW YORK—(AP)—With the regular college basketball season virtually ended, tournament time approached Monday with the lines being drawn for the national invitation and NCAA jousts—the major attractions.

Aside from the fact that Kentucky, rated the nation's No. 1 team for weeks, was handed a stunning upset Saturday by Vanderbilt in the Southeastern Conference Tournament finals, most of the league races were following the expected script.

The field for the National Invitation affair, which gets under way Saturday at Madison Square Garden, is almost filled, but 10 places remain in the 16-team NCAA tournament.

Selection of St. Louis (21-7) and La Salle, of Philadelphia (22-6) boosted to 10 the number of teams in the NIT. Two more are to be chosen, probably Monday, and the names of Oklahoma A&M, Cincinnati and New York University were being mentioned.

In the NCAA tournament, which blossoms forth later with three sectional tournaments at New York, Raleigh, N. C., and Kansas City, the picture is still clouded. Six teams, all winners of their respective conference titles, are in the fold. They are Kentucky, Columbia, Arizona, Brigham Young, Kansas State and North Carolina State.

But four more conference championships must be determined, and the selection committee has to choose six others "at large" or independent teams. Play starts at Raleigh and New York March 20, and at Kansas City March 21. The finals will be at Minneapolis, March 27.

Kentucky, blasted by Vanderbilt 61-57, nevertheless goes into the NCAA affair at Raleigh in virtue of having won the Southeastern Conference title in regular play. It left Kentucky with a 37-2 record.

Illinois (18-3) and Oklahoma A. and M. (26-2) need one more victory to capture the Big Ten and Missouri Valley championships.

There is a triple tie in the Southwest among Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Christian, all with 8-4 conference marks. On the Pacific Coast, Washington clinched the Northern Division title by defeating Washington State, defending champion, 86-41. In the Southern Division, however, Southern California edged UCLA 43-41, to throw it into a tie.

USC and UCLA meet Monday night to settle this, then the winner plays Washington at Seattle March 8-10-12 with the winner going to Kansas City. The Texas Aggies and TCU tangle Tuesday at Waco, with the winner meeting Texas in three games beginning Saturday.

Illinois is favored to beat Michigan State Monday night and grab Big Ten honors. Oklahoma A&M can salt away the Missouri Valley crown by beating either Detroit Monday night, or Houston Wednesday. Oklahoma A&M got past a major barrier Saturday, defeating St. Louis 90-29.

Champion Arizona Ends Border Loop Season At Tempe

By The Associated Press

Sole remaining interest in the Border Conference basketball season centers around the selection of the all-conference teams.

Arizona won its seventh conference title more than a week ago. Texas Tech and New Mexico A&M have finished in a second-place tie a game ahead of West Texas State and New Mexico.

The last game of the season is on tap Monday night when Arizona visits Arizona State at Tempe. The outcome will have no effect on anything except the teams' pride.

Arizona already is going to the National Invitational in Madison Square Garden and will represent the conference in the Western Regional NCAA playoffs in Kansas City March 21.

Tempe can finish no better than sixth place, which it now holds. A loss to Arizona merely would move Hardin-Simmons into a tie with Tempe.

Collegiate Quintets Start Playoffs For Tournament Berths

By The Associated Press

The Texas college basketball campaign is at an end except for playoffs to determine representatives in various national tournaments over the country.

Three teams ended up in a tie for the Southwest Conference championship and will meet in a playoff to determine a representative in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Regional Tournament opening at Kansas City March 21. Texas Christian and Texas A&M play at Waco Tuesday night, the winner to clash with Texas in a three-game series starting Saturday.

Five Seeks NAIB Spot
Five teams will be playing this week for spots in the tournament of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball at Kansas City March 12.

North Texas State, winner of the Gulf Coast Conference championship, and Southwest Texas State, kinsman of the Lone Star Conference, battle at San Marcos Tuesday night. The winner meets Texas Tech later in the week for one of the NAIB spots. Texas Tech got into the playoff by being the highest Texas finisher in the Border Conference. Tech tied New Mexico A&M for second place. Arizona won the title.

Austin College, champion of the Texas Conference, and East Texas Baptist College, the top Texas independent team, play Thursday night. The winner will go to the NAIB tournament.

Argentina Too Hot For U. S. Teams In Pan American Games

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—The first Pan American Games marks Latin America's coming of age in sports, says Jim Kelly, coach of the United States track team, and from now on the big athletic carnival should produce the best of competition.

So far it's much too keen for the 128-man team the United States sent down here, and as a result of unofficial points in all sports, Argentina went into the seventh day of competition leading with 637 points. The U. S. was second with 510.

The interest in athletics here was shown Sunday by 75,000 persons in River Plate Stadium for track and field while side sports arenas were jammed, including 10,000 for swimming.

After Argentina and the U. S. in the point totals came Mexico with 158, Brazil 153, Chile 120, Cuba 78, Peru 67, Trinidad 26, Colombia 14, Guatemala 13, Jamaica 12, Venezuela 12, Panama 11, Ecuador 8, Haiti 7, Paraguay 3, El Salvador 2.

Flying Sisters To Meet Sterling City

John M. Cowden Junior High gym Tuesday night will be the scene of a basketball battle between the Midland Flying Sisters and the Sterling City fem cagers. The contest is to start at 8:30 p.m., according to Coach Ruthie Lee Woods.

Last week the Sisters defeated the Odessa Blackshear school 38-30 for their fifth win against two losses this season.

Baseball Meeting Set Monday Night

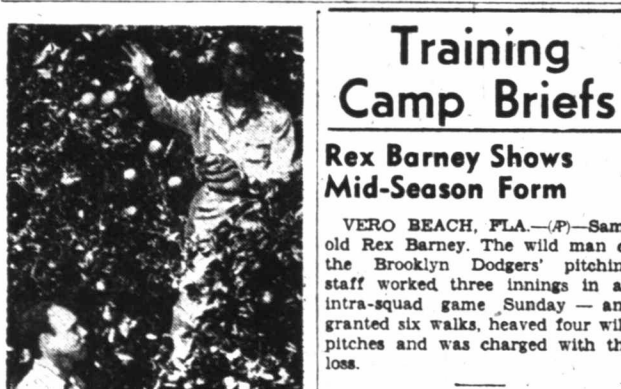

Managers and officials of the Midland Junior Baseball Association are requested to be present at a meeting in the City Hall at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Further plans for the operation of the Summer baseball program here will be made. Operation of the Lone Star League for boys 15 to 17—is the big item for the Monday night discussion.

Nebraska's constitution forbids sectarian schools from receiving public money.

HIDEAWAY—George Earnshaw shows an aptly-named recruit, Bill Fogg, a few tricks in the art of hiding the ball from the batter. Earnshaw, who pitched so mightily for the Athletics, is teaching the Phillies' pitching Whiz Kids at Clearwater, Fla. (NEA)

CLINT HARTUNG STEALS OUTFIELDERS' THUNDER ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.—(AP)—Clint Hartung, the pitcher-outfielder, is stealing the thunder from the New York Giants' heavy hitters.

Leo Durocher doesn't know where to play the Hondo, Texas, hurricane. On the mound, he's a 500 pitcher at best. In the outfield, he has a notorious reputation for playing singles into triples, and so on.

But Hartung's bat has been smoking in the Giants' intra-squad games. Sunday he walloped a towering home run that sent the outfielders scurrying among the palm trees in left centerfield. Last week, he uncorked another tremendous homer.

PHILLIES GROOM MEYER TO FILL SIMMONS' SHOES CLEARWATER, FLA.—(AP)—Has Russ Meyer finally learned how to curb his fiery temper? The answer to that question is one Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Philadelphia Phillies would like to know.

For, in looking around for a suitable replacement for Curt Simmons Sawyer has considered Meyer, a 17-year-old pitcher.

Meyer's biggest handicap has been his uncontrollable temper. Sunday, however, he pitched three innings of hitless ball, keeping himself under control despite fielding errors that placed the first man in two of the innings on base, but neither man got to second.

PETTIT, DEMPSEY LOOK GOOD TO BUC SKIPPER SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF.—(AP)—Manager Billy Meyer of the Pittsburgh Pirates is more than pleased Monday with two pitching prospects, Paul Pettit and Con Dempsey.

Pettit and Dempsey took turns on the mound in an intra-squad game Sunday and hurled shutout ball in their three-inning stints.

INDIANS TRY EASTER IN NUMBER THREE SLOT TUCSON, ARIZ.—(AP)—With the Cleveland Indians' regular roster complete Monday, Manager Al Lopez is trying out a new batting order which puts Luke Easter in the No. 3 slot.

"From what I've seen so far," Al said, "I believe Easter will be our greatest home run threat this year."

TEXAS LEAGUE BATTING CHAMP SNUBS BROWNIES BURBANK, CALIF.—(AP)—It looks like the St. Louis Browns and baseball will have to do without Frank Saucier, one of the game's most promising rookies.

He's a successful old man working out of Okmulgee, Okla., and isn't interested in the $5,000 offered him by the Browns.

Saucier, batting star of the Texas League last year, made his position known Sunday in a telephone conversation with Bill DeWitt, Brownsie president. DeWitt, in St. Louis, promptly announced to his subordinates, supervising Spring training here, that he would make no more overtures to Saucier.

The 23-year-old lefthander hit 348 for San Antonio last year.

San Antonio Central Wins Catholic Crown SAN ANTONIO—(AP)—Substitute Charles Leford scored six points in an overtime period to lead Central Catholic of San Antonio to the state Catholic high school basketball championship.

College Scandals Hit West Coast As Bribe Efforts Bared

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Authorities Monday were trying to learn whether an attempt to bribe a University of Southern California basketball player is connected with the Eastern basketball scandal.

In jail in lieu of $50,000 bail is Albert Scroggins, 31, who identifies himself as a former paratrooper and Jockey's agent.

He was arrested Saturday night after Ken Flower, 19-year-old forward on the Trojan team, told his coach, Forrest Twogood, that Scroggins offered him $1,500 to lose a crucial game against the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Scroggins told me we were going to lose anyway, so we might as well lose by 12 points and make some money," Flower, not a first stringer, told officers.

Just before game time, the entire Trojan team was told of the alleged bribe attempt. It apparently aroused the players. They fought furiously in a game marred by actual fistfights and won 43-41 to gain a tie with UCLA for the Southern Division title of the Pacific Coast Conference. A playoff game is scheduled Monday.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.—(AP)—Jim Ferrier putted his way to victory in the $10,000 St. Petersburg Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, leading money winner this year, tied with George Fazio of Washington, D. C., for the next spot with a 276.

King's Row

By LARRY KING

We're acting as a tracer of missing persons now. It seems that Midland pitcher Leon (Hook) Hayes has moved from his known address here to another site, and the Midland baseball officials can't contact him.

So, Hook, call H. W. Donohoo if you will. He has some info concerning Spring training.

Our friend Don Bassman, who recently moved here from California, predicted last week that Henry Matthews easily would defeat one Irish Bob Murphy.

We kindly told him he was loco. But Matthews proceeded to thrash Murphy, making Don look pretty good and making us look as if we didn't know too much about the fistcluff game.

Don had the advantage though—he has seen both boys many times on the West Coast.

If you wonder why Phillips of Odessa seemed to improve so in its play in the TAAF tourney in Odessa last week, the reason could have been one Jim Line who joined the team.

Line will be remembered as a member of the famed Beard-Groza-Jones team at Kentucky a few years back.

The ex-Kentucky star scored a total of 38 points in the two games in which he appeared in Odessa.

Rotary's Bennie Rutherford was high for the tourney with 72 points in three contests.

By the way, we stated Saturday Rotary had won 25 games and lost four. Sorry, the Engineers have dropped but three.

These Longhorn League transactions have been announced by loop prexy Hal Sayles:

Herbert Cadenhead, Bobby Boyd, Robert Martin, Eroy Barrera and Everett Wayne Batson — Corpus Christi to Odessa.

Rocco Rotunno — McAllen to Odessa.

Joseph Wisniewski — McAllen to Odessa.

Raymond Sanders — Austin to Roswell.

Antonio Martinez, Regino Garza, Roberto Montelongo — Del Rio to Big Spring.

Clint Rogas — Harlingen to Roswell.

Emil Ogden — Henderson to Odessa.

Phillip Alotta — Bryan to Roswell.

No positions, or classes of players, were mentioned.

Three Hostages In Tow
Leaving the bus, the fugitives accosted Nate Distefano of Omaha, abducted him and took his car.

About two hours later, on the Gretna, Neb., farm of Otto Timm, about 20 miles southwest of Omaha, the car ran out of gas.

The three hostages still in tow, the fugitives forced Timm into Timm's late model car and drove away.

About 8 p.m., five hours after the break, the escape car got stuck in the mud near Auburn, about 50 miles south of Omaha. For four hours the men and hostages waited at the farm until farmer Werner Eastman and his family returned.

Youth 'Trigger Happy'
Eastman and the hostages were bound up before the men drove away in Eastman's car.

The released men said they had not been harmed but that the fugitives "talked tough." The hostages were kept in the back seat and young Battershaw, whom they described as "trigger happy," kept a German Luger pistol trained on them throughout.

After being left tied up at the farmhouse, the hostages worked themselves free of their bonds. There being no phone on the place, Eastman walked a half-mile to a neighbor's farm to notify authorities.

Sheriff's deputies picked up the released men and returned them to Omaha.

Cotton—

freeze was imposed January 25, and since a bigger crop is expected next year, a free market could operate within the ceilings.

As to details, the exchange has taken exception on two main points. One is that the new ceilings vary for each of eight delivery points.

The other is that the order does not take into account the cost of tendering a contract on the exchange and of having the cotton certified for delivery on the exchange.

Heretofore, when a contract was sold at a certain price on the New York Exchange it could be delivered at that price at eight different points—delivery at the desired point was covered in the contract.

For Each Grade
Under the new order, exchange officials say, there would be eight different ceilings—depending on points of delivery—for each grade of cotton for each delivery month.

The ceilings also were expected to make it difficult for dealers to make deliveries on scarce grades or types of cotton, since they no longer can pay premiums to obtain cotton to make deliveries.

The nation's exchanges have been closed since January 25, when the general price freeze was ordered.

Perry P. Moore, president of the New York Exchange, said the shutdown there would continue at least through Tuesday.

A 22-year-old negro was being held by police Monday in connection with the stabbing late Saturday of another negro in a night club brawl.

The victim of the fight was Cornelius "Railhead" Jones, who was recovering in Western Clinic-Hospital from stab wounds in the neck.

The other negro, arrested a short time after the fight, denied to police he had anything to do with the affair.

Since it breathes atmospheric air, the electric eel must have access to the surface of the water two or three times a minute. Eels have been drowned when they accidentally were submerged for only ten minutes. They can, however, withstand periods of 72 hours out of water, as long as their mouths are kept moist.

Importance Of Oil Fields In Near East Told To Kiwanians

The importance of the oil fields of the Near East in the present world situation was described for members of the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon meeting Monday in Hotel Scharbauer.

The speaker was Gerald Harris, a Midland geologist who spent nine years in Saudi Arabia as geologist for the Arabian-American Oil Company.

Harris pointed out that the Near East areas have half of the world's proven oil reserves and that the Arabian-American Oil Company alone has a concession three times the size of Texas.

"There can be no doubt about what Russia would try to do," he said, "if there is trouble."

Harris also showed some movies taken in Arabia. Members of the Kiwanis Club, in a business meeting, named Murray Faskan as a member of the board of directors to succeed Lloyd Nash, who was named an honorary member.

SEAFOOD DINNER REGINA, SASKATCHEWAN—(AP)

—A Regina mother, changing the water in the goldfish bowl, left two fish in the bathroom wash basin when called to the telephone. When the phone conversation ended, there was only one fish in the basin. The family's daughter, two and one-half year-old, had the answer. She said she ate it—and liked it, too.

BIGGEST OF THE ROSARIES—Members of the young people's club of the Holy Family Church, Cincinnati, O., pray with what they believe is the world's largest portable rosary. The beads of hard wood were bought from a man who had purchased 30,000 wooden balls from government surplus stocks, and was unable to find a use for them. The church priest, Rev. Alfred Powers, conceived the idea of the giant rosary.

'The Big Grab'

One of a series exposing the Federal Government's confiscation of the oil-rich Tidelands

(Copyright, 1951, The Dallas Morning News)

By ALLEN DUCKWORTH

"Honest Harold" Ickes' quick-change act is a curious angle in the "Big Grab"—the Federal Government's attempt to seize undersea oil lands from the states.

Changing is a part of Ickes' political nature.

He was supposed to be a Republican, but Ickes has worn the Bull Moose coat of Teddy Roosevelt, the Republican coat of Charles Evans Hughes, the Democratic coat of James M. Cox and of Al Smith. All were losers in presidential campaigns.

"Honest Harold" finally made a political touchdown in 1932 when Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected president. Roosevelt put Ickes in high cotton with a cabinet appointment as secretary of Interior.

Now, for the oil angle. Around the turn of the century, it became known that oil could be found under the ocean bed. California pioneered in this exploration. Later, Texas and Louisiana came into the Tidelands drilling picture.

Settled Law
Texas has taken in eight millions of dollars for its state school fund by leasing under-water lands to oil prospectors.

It was considered a matter of settled law that the states owned the land, and could lease it as they saw fit.

Even "Honest Harold" Ickes thought the states had undisputed ownership on Dec. 22, 1933.

A fellow by the name of Olin S. Proctor of Long Beach, Calif., wrote to Secretary Ickes and asked if he could lease some submerged land from the Federal Government.

"Honest Harold" told Proctor he couldn't get federal leases.

In a letter dated Dec. 22, 1933, "Honest Harold" quoted a Supreme Court of the United States opinion to Proctor to make it quite clear to Proctor.

Ickes said it was a matter of "settled law."

"Title to the soil under the ocean within the three-mile limit is in the State of California," wrote Ickes. He said the land could "not be appropriated except by authority of California."

Harold Changes Mind
This is amazing in light of later events.

Somehow or another "Honest Harold" changed his mind and the "settled law" became unsettled.

"Just to refresh your memory, this happened:

The "Big Grab" plot was taken to Congress. California oil lands, Congress was told, must be declared part of the federal domain. Only Congress had the power to do that.

It was argued. Suggestions that it could be made a court matter without consent of Congress were disputed then by the "Big Grab" crowd.

Congress refused to confiscate the California lands. It refused to grant permission to the attorney general to sue California.

It was then that the "Big Grab" plotters decided it was a court matter after all—regardless of what Congress thought.

Later, when Congress decided to take action in favor of the states, President Truman vetoed the resolution on the grounds that the matter was before the Supreme Court and Congress should not interfere.

Quick Change Exhibition
In other words, it was a congressional matter only if Congress would rule their way.

But let us return to "Honest Harold's" quick-change exhibition. Ickes admitted at a congressional hearing in 1946 that he had told Proctor the Federal Government didn't have control of the undersea lands. Ickes said his mind began to change. He explained that "applicants (for federal leases) and their lawyers continued to insist that the United States does own the land and oil and that the Department of Interior does have the power to grant them oil and gas leases."

It is only natural that one would wonder who were the "applicants and their lawyers" who were able to sway "Honest Harold" from the "settled law."

A search through official records throws a bit of light on the identity of at least two applicants and one lawyer: Personal Interest. The evidence shows that Ickes was friendly to one applicant and took a personal interest in his application.

Robert W. Kenny, at that time attorney general of California, at a congressional hearing, introduced documents to show that:

On May 17, 1944, Fred W. Johnson, land commissioner in Ickes' Department of the Interior at the time, wrote to the branch office in Los Angeles, Calif., and said he would like to have quick action on any oil and gas lease application presented by W. W. Chapin of San Francisco or C. P. Ritter of Los Angeles.

On June 24, 1944, Commissioner Johnson prodded the Los Angeles office with a telegram and urged that the Chapin-Ritter application be air-mailed to Washington if it had been filed.

When the reply came from Los Angeles, the lease application "filed by C. P. Ritter, president of Consolidated Petroleum Company" for Tidelands rights was enclosed.

With the application was this information:

"Mr. Ritter presented a letter from the Secretary of Interior (Ickes) suggesting that he file an application and stating that he would get to the bottom of this matter, pertaining to the Tidelands."

Talked With Chapin, Ritter
Ickes testified at a later hearing that before the Ritter application was filed, he had talked several times with Chapin. Ritter also called to see Ickes.

"He (Chapin) frequently came in to see me, usually when he was in Washington," Ickes testified.

Ickes said Chapin's lawyer, George Bush of Los Angeles, "was firmly of the opinion that the Federal Government, rather than the State of California, held the title to those Tidelands."

Said Ickes: "Mr. Chapin talked to me on two or three occasions about this. And, subsequently, Mr. Ritter came in. He went over the same ground" Chapin sent Ickes some letters written by Bush.

"Then I made up my mind that I thought the courts ought to decide this, since it was a legal matter," Ickes stated.

Law Becomes Unsettled
When Olin S. Proctor wrote "Honest Harold" back in 1933, it was a matter of "settled law." But after conferences with Chapin and with Ritter, the law became unsettled.

Another interesting angle in the various testimony that Ickes gave about changing his mind involves the White House.

In 1946, when Ickes recalled about the beginning of his doubts, he credited those doubts to lease applicants and their attorneys.

Two years later, he added the White House touch.

Ickes told congressmen he had luncheon on April 27, 1937, with President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins and "the President raised the question as to the ownership of oil found under the ocean."

The late Ed Moore of Oklahoma, then in the United States Senate, was curious. He asked Ickes why he didn't say anything about Roosevelt raising the Tidelands question in his former testimony.

Ickes said he had forgotten about the luncheon with the President of the United States and had just recently refreshed his memory by reading his diary.

After Roosevelt's Death
Regardless of whether Roosevelt was interested, the record will show there was no dash to the Supreme Court by the "Big Grab" boys until after Roosevelt's death.

Another item from Ickes' diary was questioned. It was in Ickes' testimony at a hearing in 1948 when he referred to Hutton Summers of Dallas, then in Congress and chairman of the powerful House Judiciary Committee. Ickes said he had talked to Summers back in 1938 about California Tidelands and Summers was of the opinion "that the United States already has title."

Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada went out and telegraphed Summers, who was in New Mexico. Summers replied by wire:

"I never entertained or expressed an opinion that the United States has title to Tidelands and that suit ought to be instigated against California or any other state."

Lawn tennis was introduced to the United States in 1874 by Mary E. Outerbridge, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

TO SHOW HERE—The Suzari Marionettes will perform in the play, "Young Buffalo Bill," to be given at 4 p. m. Tuesday in the Midland High School Auditorium. Dorothy Zamenick, director of the program, is shown with Suzari.

When Body Cells Go Haywire, The Result Is Deadly Cancer

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

During the last 50 years while pneumonia, tuberculosis and many other infectious diseases have been causing us less and less trouble the toll of illness and death from cancer gradually has been rising. This does not necessarily mean that cancer really is increasing. This disease is one which attacks during the middle and later years of life and since fewer people nowadays are killed off during youth by infections, more are living to the years when cancer is most likely to strike.

What is cancer? Our bodies are made up of tiny cells of slightly different appearance under the microscope and having various functions: building bones, secreting stomach juices, permitting muscular contractions and many others.

When everything is going all right these cells live with each other in harmony and when one gets worn out it is replaced by a new one. In cancer, something goes wrong with this orderly arrangement and growth of cells and in one place some of the cells start to divide like mad, producing more cells than are needed and abnormal ones at that. The question which still is unanswered is why they do this and why it happens in some people and not in others.

Although there are many kinds of cells in the human body some of them are more likely to grow wild—cancer—than others. This is why cancer is more likely to start in certain organs than in others.

Although there are some differences between men and women in this respect, the stomach region is one of the most important places for the start of a cancer. For this reason stomach symptoms should not be neglected but prompt and thorough studies should be made to catch cancer of the stomach during the early curable stage.

The intestines below the stomach are almost equally important since many cancers start along this passageway. In women the breasts and womb or uterus are vulnerable, and in men cancer of the prostate is too often a source of trouble. Cancer can start in other places, such as the skin, bone, lungs, mouth, and liver, but the places mentioned first account for more than half of all cancers.

It is easy to get too frightened over the possibilities of cancer but this should be avoided. It's a good idea to know where we stand, however, and all the columns this week, therefore, will be devoted to discussing a few of the things we know and don't know about this disease.

Boston Detectives, FBI Hunt Fortune In 'Wonder Drugs'

BOSTON—(AP)—The FBI and Boston detectives Monday hunted a fortune in "wonder drugs" which they feared were headed by underworld channels for the black markets of Europe.

More than $50,000 worth of aureomycin, penicillin and perthemin were stolen about two weeks ago from the Lederle Laboratory of Brighton, a branch of the American Cyanamid Company.

Plant Manager Elmer E. Seaman said the drugs would bring almost $500,000 in European black markets. Police said they kept quiet about the thefts on last February 14 and February 16 in the hope they could trap the thieves as they tried to ship the drugs out of the country.

In the first theft the gang got $3,000 worth of drugs by hijacking a company truck when the driver stopped to make a telephone call. Two nights later they raided the laboratory and escaped with cartons of bottles valued at $79,870.

"I WANT TO TELL THIS TO WOMEN IN YOUR 40's"

I find Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound wonderful to relieve distress of 'change of life'!"

"Any woman between the ages of 35 and 52 should be interested in my experience. I was going through functional change of life and found myself terribly embarrassed from hot flushes, and I felt so nervous, easily upset because of this. "What really shocked me was when I overheard my husband explaining my shortcomings behind my back. He said, 'Don't mind Louise—she's going through change of life.' That made up my mind. I had heard how effective Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was for relieving such symptoms, and I decided then and there to try it. Thank heavens I did. "I find Pinkham's Compound simply marvelous to relieve embarrassing symptoms due to this cause. In fact I now take Lydia Pinkham's Compound regularly to help build up resistance against hot flushes, tense emotions, flighty nervous, tired feelings—due to this cause. I wish anyone when troubled this way would try this great medicine." P. S. Pinkham's Compound tastes swell in a little fruit juice or plain water. A wonderfully effective medicine made especially for women.

Insurance Dividend Due World War I Vets
WASHINGTON—(AP)—A $16,000,000 insurance dividend will be paid to holders of about 440,000 World War I policies, the Veterans Administration announced Sunday. The dividend, representing surplus over death payments and reserves, will boost to about $255,000,000 the total insurance dividend paid to veterans of the first World War. Some veterans hold more than one policy, so the number benefiting will not total 440,000.

THE DUNGEON MAKES OR BREAKS US
The dungeon experience can make us or break us. Some it crushes; others it solidifies. A layman speaks of growing pains or growing conflicts. Conflicts may be of two kinds—one kind where you come out on the lower, defeat side, and the other where you come out on the higher, victory side.
It was said of Jesus that He went into the wilderness "full of the Spirit," and came out "in the power of the Spirit"—mere fullness turned to power under the stress of temptation. The dungeon of temptation resulted only in His being strengthened. The Evil One plays a losing game when he succeeds only in strengthening you through his temptations. You come out on the victory side of this. The account says: "Then Jesus told him, 'Be gone, Satan! It is written, You must worship the Lord your God, and serve him alone.' At this the devil left him." (Matthew 4:10-11, Moffatt.) When Jesus used the word "alone," then, "at this the devil left him." He could not stand that word "alone"—when Jesus uttered it he turned and left, because he knew that to tempt a man who stands on the word "alone" in a single-minded allegiance is only to strengthen that man. Every temptation strengthens the very fiber of such a man. He finds grace and more grace in the dungeon of temptation.
A gracious Christian woman said to another: "I know you dislike being ill. But I find the only thing to do is to get something out of every experience that comes to me. So make your illness give you something."
I find it hard to have to wait for people, but I've learned to make waiting contribute by forming the habit of immediately turning to prayer whenever I have to wait. I find that praying keeps my temper from getting ruffled and that I am also not wasting my time. It always leaves me an open door out of every dungeon. The possibility of prayer is always open, anywhere, at any time. If you lie awake at night, don't fret—pray!
Gracious Father, help me never to be nonplused. If I don't know what else to do, help me to turn naturally to prayer. Then no moment will be empty and fruitless. Every chink of every minute will be filled with the cement of prayer. So life will be held together by peace and calm and victory. I am grateful that I can always find grace in every dungeon. Amen.
