Young Doolittle Obtains Divorce

LAS VEGAS, Nev. —(AP)— Maj. James H. Doolittle, Jr., son of the famed Air Force general who raided Japan in 1942, has obtained a divorce from Elva Savage Doolittle. The decree was granted Monday on the ground that the couple has lived apart more than three years.

Stage, Film Lovelies Square Off To Campaign For Oscars

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD—(AP)— Final campaigning began Tuesday for the twenty-fifth annual Academy Awards, highlighted by a tight race between two stage actresses and three movie stars.
Two leading nominees for the best actress Oscar were Shirley Booth, the humdrum housewife of "Come Back, Little Sheba," and Julie Harris, the eager adolescent of "The Member of the Wedding."
They opposed Joan Crawford, the terror-stricken playwright in "Sudden Fear," Bette Davis, the fading actress of "The Star," and Susan Hayward, who portrayed singer Jane Froman in "With a Song in My Heart."
Certain to figure in the campaign was the argument that the stage actresses had the advantage of playing their roles hundreds of times in the theater. Still, Miss Booth appeared to be the favorite.
Gary Cooper, veteran of 25 years in the movies, was favored for leading man honors over a field of four relative newcomers. He was cited for his role as the dutiful sheriff in "High Noon." Opposing him are Marlon Brando, the Mexican revolutionary in "Viva Zapata!"; Kirk Douglas, ruthless film producer in "The Bad and the Beautiful"; Jose Ferrer as the artist Toulouse-Lautrec in "Moulin Rouge"; and versatile Alec Guinness in "The Lavender Hill Mob." Few Surprises
Nominated for the best picture award were: "The Greatest Show on Earth," "High Noon," "Ivanhoe," "Moulin Rouge" and "The Quiet Man."
Monday night's nominations offered few surprises. About the only omissions that raised eyebrows were those of Laurence Olivier (Carrie) and Ethel Waters (The Member of the Wedding).
Cecil B. de Mille, who seldom receives Academy notice, surprised with recognition of "The Greatest Show on Earth," in the best picture and best directed film categories.
Other major nominations were: Best supporting actor—Richard Burton in "My Cousin Rachel"; Arthur Hunnicutt in "The Big Sky"; Victor McLaglen in "The Quiet Man"; Jack Palance in "Sudden Fear"; Anthony Quinn in "Viva Zapata!"
Best supporting actress—Gloria Grahame in "The Bad and the Beautiful"; Jean Hagen in "Singin' in the Rain"; Colette Marchand in "Moulin Rouge"; Terry Moore in "Come Back Little Sheba"; Thelma Ritter in "With a Song in My Heart."
Best directing—Joseph L. Mankiewicz for "Five Fingers"; Cecil B. de Mille for "The Greatest Show on Earth"; Fred Zinnemann for "High Noon"; John Huston for "Moulin Rouge"; John Ford for "The Quiet Man."
Best song—"Am I in Love" from "Son of Paleface"; "Because You're Mine" from the picture so-named; "The High Noon" ballad; "Thumbelina" from "Hans Christian Anderson"; "Zing a Little Zong" from "Just for You."
Nominations were made by 11,668 members of the industry but the final awards will be voted by the 1,600 members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

NO ROOM FOR SUPERSTITION

TACOMA, Wash. —(AP)— Superstition? Not the officials of Tacoma's Maritime Shipyard.
The 13th minesweeper in the 13th Naval District's shipbuilding program will be launched there on Friday the 13th.
To top it off, the minesweeper, the AMS-436, will be christened by Mrs. Alice Baughman, who has 13 letters in her name, lives on 13th Avenue North in Seattle and will break a 13-year-old bottle of champagne over the prow.
And if that isn't enough—just add up the figures in AMS-436.

GI's Soon May Wear Fancy Dress Outfits

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A U. S. soldier who feels like stepping out of an evening in a sharp sky-blue uniform soon will be able to do so if Congress approves and if he has the money to buy it.
Army approval of this new service clothing item was announced officially Monday. Unofficially, it was said another item was on its way out—the informal short garment familiar since World War II; yes, the "Eisenhower jacket" itself.
Another experiment will be allowed to lapse when present stocks are worn out—a green-gray uniform tested by the 3rd Infantry Regiment in the Washington area.
The blue dress uniform, if Congress approves, will be available to enlisted men as a counterpart to the two-tone blue formal uniform now regulation for officers. But the Army won't issue it free. Men who want it will have to dig in their own pockets.

Merger Of ABC, Paramount To Step Up Air Competition

NEW YORK —(AP)— Hotter competition for leadership among the networks with radio listeners and television viewers the beneficiaries, is expected to result from a merger of the American Broadcasting Company and United Paramount Theaters, Inc.
Officials of the two firms, to be merged as American Broadcasting-Paramount Theaters, Inc., made it clear Tuesday they will seek to challenge the audience leadership of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Company.
The merger to be effected through an exchange of stock, was given final approval late Monday by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington after months of hearings and deliberations. Stockholders of both corporations had approved plans for the merger in July, 1951.
United Paramount operates 110 movie theaters and one television station, while ABC owns five standard and five frequency modulation (FM) radio stations and five TV stations. It provides network program service to 76 TV affiliates and more than 350 affiliated radio stations.
The first major wedding of TV and movie interests, the merger is expected to provide ABC with the working capital to put on big shows with name stars and put up a stronger fight for radio and TV audience leadership.
Robert Kintner, president of ABC, who will continue as president of the ABC division of the merged company, promised "new programming and new techniques for both radio and television."
"We will explore particularly certain program fields where we consider ABC underdeveloped, namely, situation comedy, general comedy and dramatic presentations," he added.
Leonard Goldenson, president of United Paramount, will be president of the merged company. E. J. Noble, board chairman of ABC, will become chairman of the finance committee of the new company.

Letters To Truman Range From Praise To Sharp Criticism

WASHINGTON —(AP)— As President Truman was preparing to leave office he got letters saying he was "so right it's almost uncanny" and that his Administration was "the poorest excuse for government in history."
He got letters asking for loans of money and for help in getting named homecoming queen. He got suggestions for a piano-playing partner and for a match for daughter Margaret.
And he got, in his last three months in the White House, 6,647 letters telling him what a good president he was.
Mrs. Beth Campbell Short, Truman's correspondence secretary, told the Woman's National Democratic Club Monday about the letters.
One of her hardest chores, she said, was saying no politely to thousands of requests for some of the President's clothes to sell at church bazaars.

Three Dimension Roles Mean Three Meals Daily Are 'Must'

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent
Exclusively Yours: Diet-mad movie bellies who have kept that super-slender siren look on lettuce leaves and pounding tables, can go back to their mashed potatoes and whipped cream now that 3-D is here.
Feminine stars of the 12 to 15 three-dimensional movies to be made in Hollywood this year will have to meet the "so round, so firm and so fully packed" specifications.
That's the word from LeRoy Prinz, first Hollywood diet director to put a line of chorus dolls through a hooping routine in a three-dimensional movie, Warner's "The House of Wax."
The 3-D queens, Prinz told me, will have to weigh from 15 to 20 pounds more than their flat-screen rivals to look attractive in the "depths."
"I was amazed," Prinz told me, "when I saw some three-dimensional tests of our regular chorus girls. They were all right for flat-screen films but too thin for 3-D. I had to go out and find some girls with curves."
Ready for the 3-D era are the so round, firm and fully packed Marilyn Monroes, Lana Turners and Virginia Mays.
Eat up pork chops and malted milk from now on for the Ava Gardner, Lauren Bacall and Vivian Leighs if they want to become 3-D hits.
Fights are Normal
Donald O'Connor's comment on reports that he's reconciled with wife, Gwen:
"How could I when there's been no separation? Four years ago we separated for three days and that opened the door to these present rumors. We're getting along fine. We have our normal fights—just like everybody else."
Eye-Poppers: The Miano Theater in Toledo, Ohio, no longer sells tickets. Adults are admitted on a donation basis—"let your conscience be your guide"—and kids can see the show with the purchase of a 15-cent candy bar!
Overheard at the Captain's Table: "The Marilyn Monroe. No matter what she wears, it looks like a long bathing suit."
Movie dress designer Howard Greer is seriously ill in Europe and there's a buzz that he may retire.
It's Lis Taylor and Richard Burton as the co-stars of MGM's "Rhapsody," the screenplay the studio bought from Paramount.
Awaits The News
Chuck Connors, first professional baseball player ever to have movie stardust sprinkled in his hair, will quit the diamond wars if he hits the star batting average. The decision is due in a month, when

'Prints, Print Making' Topic For AAUW Luncheon Speaker

Coreen Mary Spellman, professor of art in Texas State College for Women, Denton, and one of the Southwest's leading artists, was guest speaker for a luncheon meeting of the Midland Branch of the American Association of University Women Saturday in Ranchland Hill Country Club.

Speaking on "Prints and Print Making," Miss Spellman explained that prints are pictures that can be duplicated easily in large numbers. Prints are "pulled" or printed on special paper from wood, metal or stone on which the artist has drawn his picture. The prints are made by the artist in limited numbers and are signed.

The three major types of prints, as listed by Miss Spellman, are wood engravings, etchings and lithographs.

Explains Art Methods
Wood cuts or wood engravings, she explained, are a type of relief printing from a high surface in solid blacks and whites. The artist draws the picture on a finely grained block of wood and cuts away the background, leaving a raised surface that will be printed.

Etchings she continued, are made from a metal plate, usually zinc or copper, by a process known as Intaglio. Lines are incised into the smooth surface of the metal and are filled with ink, which is lifted out of the depressions in the plate and deposited on the paper as the print is pulled, Miss Spellman said.

Living Cost Scoots Down, But It's Still At High Peak

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK—(AP)—The cost of living's slip is showing. So far, the easing in the pressure on the pocketbook has been "only slight and only in some items."

No big drop in prices of goods that consumers buy is expected. And families may find the cost of some of the things they now consider necessities will go up a little.

But food costs are now three to five per cent lower than this time last year, according to government estimates.

The price drops in recent months in the commodity markets finally are showing up in the retail stores. Meat, Clothing, Lumber.

Housewives pleasantly are surprised when they price meat. They find the price tags on most clothing items lower than a year ago. It costs a little less to furnish a house.

Many wholesale commodity prices are back to their pre-Korean War level.

The rub, of course, comes when you compare the new-and-slightly lower prices in the stores now with the prices before World War II. The cost of living index still rides high above its pre-war level. Retail price averages are about twice as high as they were 13 years ago. And they average more than 10 per cent higher than June, 1950, when the Korean War started.

J. T. Canales, Brownsville, has complained of the actions of the judges in the dismissing of two indictments against Judge Laughlin in the sale of his law library to the county and Judge Salinas dismissed the case.

Named to the state bar committee were J. B. Davis, Huntsville; John P. Blair, Beaumont; R. V. Nichols, Fort Worth; W. F. Nowlin, San Antonio; Earl Roberts, Longview; Virgil T. Seaberry, Eastland, and Albert M. Walker, San Marcos.

Card System May Facilitate Use Of Mexican Farm Hands

SAN ANGELO—(AP)—A new "white card" system for handling Mexican farm workers has been proposed by Texas farming and ranching interests.

The American Agricultural Council, represented by Jim Griffin of Mission, Monday urged a simplified card system, also supported by Joe Montague, attorney for the Texas and Southwestern Raisers Association.

A meeting of about 80 men from Texas and New Mexico proposed the plan. The group had been called here to study the alien farm labor problem.

Under the plan, Griffin said, cards would be issued workers at various points in Mexico and the workers would be allowed to move with relative freedom in U. S. areas wanting imported workers. Annual surveys, he said, could be made to determine the number of cards to be issued.

Griffin said such a plan was dropped by federal officials when a trial indicated it "drastically reduced the number of federal employees needed."

Representatives of the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, Texas Employment Commission, West Texas Chamber of Commerce and other agriculture and labor groups attended the meeting.

Montague spoke also in support of the Agriculture Department taking over the Mexican worker problems. They are now handled by the Labor Department.

Accidents Continue To Involve Children

Children continued to become involved in accidents here Monday. Three youngsters were taken to Midland Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment, and two were admitted for further observation.

Jury Holds Fate Of Galveston Cop In Tax-Dodge Case

AUSTIN—(AP)—A jury received the Fred Ford tax evasion case Tuesday after the former Galveston police chief's lawyers used only 12 minutes to present his defense.

Arguments began in the case when court opened Tuesday.

The federal court jury heard three character witnesses testify in Ford's behalf after listening since last Thursday to a parade of state witnesses tell how much money Ford spent.

The prosecution closed its case shortly after noon Monday after a Galveston house of prostitution "madame" testified she made payoffs to the island city's police department while Ford was chief.

The woman, Mrs. Margaret Lara, testified she operated the house and made regular $100 monthly payments from 1945 to June 1947. She testified necessity of the payoffs ceased when Ford's term ended.

Another witness, realtor E. C. Clawson, said Ford bought an $18,000 home between Dec. 7, 1945, and March 7, 1947, by making four cash payments.

U. S. Attorney Charles Herring has concentrated on Ford's spending during 1947 when the government claims the former police official received $30,000 but reported only $1,507.10.

The three witnesses who testified as to Ford's character were Edward Schreiber, merchant; James W. McIlwain, auto dealer, and R. C. Jahn, insurance agent, all of Galveston.

Drinks On House

Earlier, the government put Mrs. Helen Luhn, Lake Jackson, La., on the stand. She testified she had gone out frequently with Ford on dates during 1945, and 1946 and 1947.

He said nobody charged them at clubs. "The drinks were on the house because of his position," she explained. Asked if they gambled at the clubs she said yes and added: "Some times we won, sometimes we lost. We probably came out even."

In all, the government says Ford failed to report $41,000 income during the period including 1945, 1946 and 1947. He was Galveston police chief during the period.

Big Jim Van Fleet, Stalled By Truce Talks, Says UN Offensive Would Win

By JOHN RANDOLPH
SEOUL (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet said Tuesday a United Nations general offensive in Korea now would be a certain success.

On the eve of his farewell to the Eighth Army, the 60-year-old retiring commander again expressed belief in carrying the war to the Reds.

Van Fleet made the statements in answering nine questions asked by The Associated Press as he prepared to turn over his command Wednesday to Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and leave Korea for the first time since he arrived 22 months ago.

To the question, "Do you think a general offensive in Korea can be successful at this time?" Van Fleet replied with only one word: "Certainly."

In other answers he said the Allies lost two chances for victory in Korea, disclosed his own most heart-shaking decisions as commanding general, and gave what he feels are the two greatest achievements of the Eighth Army under his leadership.

He included a glowing tribute to the "anti-Communist patriotism and loyalty" of the ROK soldiers, whom he transformed from disorganized, frightened bands into 14 hard-hitting modern divisions. In the absence of the victorious offensive he never led, the reshaping of this ROK Army probably will be Van Fleet's monument in Korea.

Heart-Sick At Stalemate
Authoritative sources say that for more than a year Van Fleet has not been able to launch a single battalion attack without consent from the Far East Command in Tokyo—and that Van Fleet himself was heart-sick when UN and U. S. decisions twice held him back from closing with the Reds for decisive, climatic battles in 1951.

Although Van Fleet followed his orders to the letter, it never was any secret at Eighth Army headquarters that "Big Jim" had only one solution for ending the Korean War. That was a stunning, crushing offensive that would smash the Communist army in a great field battle.

Falling permission for an all-out fight, Van Fleet was left for almost 20 months of his 22-month command with only the hope that the Communists themselves would venture to attack once again and expose themselves to an end-the-war defeat.

The list of The Associated Press questions and Van Fleet's own answers are as follows:
1. Q—Do you think that a general offensive in Korea can be successful at this time?
A—Certainly.

2. Q—If there has been lost opportunities in Korea, what do you feel was the most serious?
A—When the Communists over-extended themselves in May, 1951.

When we broke Communist defenses in the Fall of 1951.

3. Q—What do you feel was the Eighth Army's greatest success while you were commander?
A—Defeat of Communist April-May, 1951, offensive.

4. Q—What do you consider to be the most important military action during your command?
A—The two defeats of the Communist army—(a) April-May, 1951, including counter-offensive; (b) breaking Communists in October-November Allied offensive.

5. Q—What was the most important or perhaps most typical decision you ever made in Korea?
A—Two decisions: (a) the April-May offensive; (b) took chance after that offensive to cut off replacements to ROK Army to set up ROK training program.

6. Q—What do you consider to be the ultimate realistic strength of the ROK Army?
A—The answer of 20 divisions or one million men has been given in the past.

Anti-Communist Patriotism
7. Q—What convinced you that the ROK Army could be made into a real fighting force?
A—The lack of training as I found it in the ROK Army indicated that any army with little training could not be a real fighting force. The qualities of anti-Communist patriotism and loyalty and their early response to a sound training program—proved in battle—convinced me they could be made into a real fighting force.

8. Q—On leaving Korea, what is your greatest regret?
A—Leaving Korea, the officers and men of the Eighth Army, and the ROK Army and people.

9. Q—Under ideal conditions, what would be your own solution to the military problem in Korea?
A—No comment.

Van Fleet declined to elaborate on how an offensive might be mounted in Korea. To do that would compromise possible future Allied operations. But his answer to his earlier questions—and his whole record in the Korean War—suggests the kind of battle he would have fought if he had his way.

It probably would have been a massive, violent, grinding line drive by the whole force of the Eighth Army from coast to coast with ruthless armored thrusts up the natural invasion corridors into North Korea, or wherever the Reds weakened and collapsed.

Van Fleet was offensively minded. Over and over he told his friends, his soldiers, and the war correspondents who followed him: "You've got to clobber those people" as he always called the Reds. "The only thing they understand is force . . . " "When you've got a man groggy on the ropes is the time to finish him off." . . . and—
"The only good Communist is a dead Communist."

When he took command of the Eighth Army on April 14, 1951, on the eve of the last great Communist offensive, he instantly quashed nervous plans of some lower commanders to make quick withdrawals. He gave hard-boiled orders that Allied troops might fall back slowly to preserve their line but would be expected to fight to the utmost for every defensible hill position.

In the face of public statements that Seoul was not worth fighting for, Van Fleet staked his reputation as a general on a mid-battle announcement that this symbol of South Korean sovereignty would not be abandoned.

Reds Fall Together
The Reds reached the city gates—and died there.
The implications of answer No. 2—confirmed by statements from those who know him best—are that higher orders held him back from major counterpunching when the Reds stalled at Seoul.

While Van Fleet chafed, the Reds pulled themselves together in slow retreat and on June 23, Russia's Jakob Malik brought the war to a temporary stop with his proposal for an armistice.

Van Fleet actually demonstrated his probable offensive technique in the three-stage limited offensive that put pressure on the Reds from August through September, 1951.

The first was the "Battle of the Hills" in Eastern Korea, where the ROK Army, with heavy American support, advanced on a wide front and won the line they now hold.

In the second and biggest, the British and Americans in the West—again attacking on a wide front that presented Red concentrations—smashed through deep Communist defenses and into the open for the last time in the Korean War.

In the final stages, the Reds were so strained by the two big battles on both flanks that much weaker American and ROK forces on the east-central front moved forward almost without resistance and occupied the present line that runs just below Kumson.

At this point it is believed Van Fleet was all set to swing the whole Eighth Army crashing into a coast-to-coast drive that would have seen the Communists reeling backward clear across Korea—only to be shackled by the virtual cease-fire order of Nov. 28, 1951, that froze the front 30 days.

While truce talks droned on, the Reds dug in once more, the front crystallized in its present form, and no one in policy-making authority wanted to risk a blood bath to get Van Fleet's army moving again.

From that moment on "Big Jim"—a fighting man and a field soldier—had to mark time as the weeks grew into months, the months into a year, and the shallow Communist trenches into a mountain fortress across Korea.

On the night of April 4, 1952, his only son and namesake vanished while piloting an Air Force B-26 light bomber over North Korea—one more victim of the long stalemate. Van Fleet said only, "He was a soldier," muffled his grief, and worked harder than ever.

To test the Communist fortress, Van Fleet finally won permission for last Fall's bloody battle of the Kumhwa Ridges.

Local Attacks Not Answer
That action, which cost the Allies almost 10,000 casualties, was only partly successful in 40 days of savage fighting.

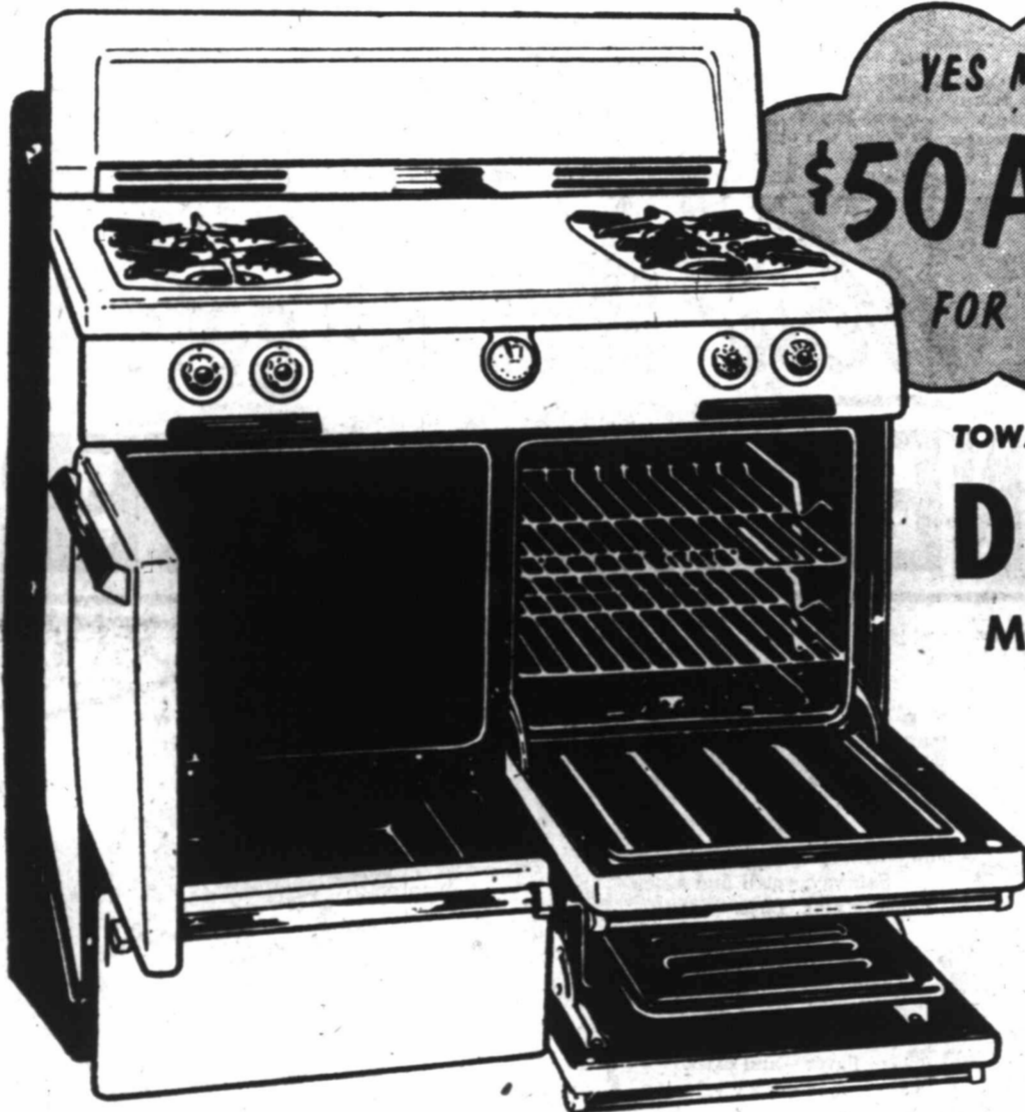

With clear defeat on Triangle Hill and only partial success on Sniper Ridge, the Kumhwa battle showed that local attacks on a narrow front were not the answer though they proved ROK courage. They army was left with the impression that only a general offensive with its hope of real and decisive victory could justify the price in blood the Communists would extort. But if such an offensive comes,

James Van Fleet will not be there to lead it.
With a wistful smile that is still boyish and appealing for all his 60 years and greying hair, "Big Jim" told a close friend:
"The old man is going back to Florida and plant oranges . . . They say the catfishing is pretty good too . . ."

Playgirl Pat Tells Jelke's Story Behind Closed Doors

NEW YORK (AP)—Teen-age playgirl Pat Ward Tuesday continued her testimony about cafe society and the men - about - town who bought her love, but the details are not for the public's ears.

Miss Ward, 19, was the first witness called by the state in the General Sessions Court trial of Minot Frazier (Mickey) Jelke III, 23-year-old heir to margarine millions.
She started her testimony Monday with the public and press barred from the courtroom by Judge Francis L. Valente.

Jelke is charged with inducing Miss Ward and two other young women to become prostitutes and with living off Miss Ward's earnings.
Jelke's attorney, Samuel Segal, gave newsmen a few details of her testimony given in a courtroom open only to attorneys, the jury, court officials, and intimate friends and relatives of Jelke.

Segal said she named names of cafe society playboys who paid for her love. The attorney said he "would think" some of the names were prominent but that none of those mentioned was a politician.

The attorney added that her testimony involved "a little dirty linen" but nothing that would have shocked the public.

"The judge clamped the secrecy lid on the trial because, he said, "public decency compels it." He added that extensive press coverage "is catering to vulgar sensationalism, if not actual depravity." New York newsmen protested the move, but Valente insisted that his action did not infringe on freedom of the press.

Tourist Can Enjoy Self More In Spain, Spend Less Cash Than Parisians Expect

By GRACE HALSELL
Reporter-Telegram Special Correspondent

MADRID, SPAIN—If I were an average tourist planning on coming to Europe, I believe I would skip Paris and go instead to Spain. Prices are high in Paris, and tipping a Parisian enough to please him is like trying to please Mosdegh—apparently impossible. In the tourist season, hotels and restaurants in Paris are as crowded as sardine cans, and Americans are all over the place. Parisians don't appreciate American. In fact, they have neat little ways of making them feel uncomfortable and unwanted, and equally crafty ways of emptying their pockets of their greenbacks, which they do want.

On the other hand, Madrid still is relatively cheap. By Paris standards, it is cheap. The average Spaniard is friendly, polite, glad to have you visit his country.

When you ask directions, he has the patience and time to not only point your destination out to you, but in many cases accompany you. Your money exchange is excellent. You will do even better if you get your dollars changed for pesetas in New York rather than wait until you get to Spain.

Reasonable, indeed. In Madrid, the peseta is worth about two and one-half cents. So you get 200 pesetas for $5. The best room in one of the swank hotels like the Ritz or the Palace won't cost you more than that.

It is possible to stay for one fourth of that amount. Two young British boys I met were staying in a hotel just next door to the American Express office in Madrid for 55 pesetas—for the two of them.

"We have a shower, hot and cold water, and a maid. We even get our shoes shined," they said. "The cost to each amounted to only 69 cents a day—American money. Services at European hotels usually include getting one's shoes shined. It is an interesting sight to come in at night, walk down a hotel corridor and see lines of men's and women's shoes placed outside doors—as if their owners were expecting a S. Nikolaus or someone to come by and fill them with goodies.

Instead, a hotel employe comes by and gives them a shine. Such services, however, usually are added to one's hotel bill. And in Paris, for example, your bill usually is twice what you expect it will be. Usually 15 per cent "for service" and an additional amount "for taxes" are added.

Wanting to make a business appointment, I suggested to a Madrid native that I meet him "at 3, 3:30 or 4 p.m. He looked hurt. "But I sleep until 5 p.m.!" he exclaimed. The idea apparently was started in the Summer time when downtown Madrid gets so hot. The natives like it so well they carry the custom through all year.

Even if you haven't had a "nap" since the time your mother made you take one when you were a child, you will start the siesta all over again in Madrid. You can't fight it—you might just as well join it.

From Madrid To Texas
A designer in Madrid soon may be creating clothes for Texas women. He is Charles Fisch, Hungarian-born who found costs too expensive in Paris "to make the dress I want to make." Since his cloth is hand-woven and labor is the important item, he moved his shop to Madrid. When I talked with him, he said he was negotiating to sell his originals to Neiman-Marcus.

His handwoven Merino wool creations appeal to American women, he says, "because women like always things what the other women cannot get." One of his famous numbers, designed by his attractive, 22-year-old wife, Emmy Fisch, is the "Swan's Feather" dress and stole, which recently rated a full-page picture in Life magazine.

In speaking of his proposed business with the Texas store, Fisch says "Neiman-Marcus is to Europe what Christian Dior is to America." Fisch said the average woman "thinks she knows herself" and what is best suited for her. He says "not every fashion adopted suits every woman," but many women did not realize this, and bought expensive dresses which did not suit them.

"When a woman goes to a doctor she puts herself in his hands, because he knows best. A fashion designer knows best, too. A woman should tell a designer: Do something which suits me. There is something nice in everyone. A fashion designer knows best how to capture a woman's qualities."

Height Saves Worker When Ditch Caves In
MORRISVILLE, PA.—(AP)—Donald Sten of Fallington is alive Tuesday because of his height. The 46-year-old construction worker, who stands six feet three, was buried up to his nose Monday when a wooden shoring collapsed while he was working in a ditch in nearby Fairless Hills.

Sten, who managed to continue breathing, was unconscious when pulled out by fellow workers. Wisconsin was the first state to adopt an unemployment compensation act, becoming effective in 1934.

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover was reported "much improved" in St. Francis Hospital Tuesday after a mild attack of influenza. His physician insisted on a couple more days of rest.

WIND BLOWS FREIGHT CARS FROM TRACKS
SALT LAKE CITY—(AP)—An east wind, siphoning down the steep narrow canyons of the Wasatch Mountains, blew freight cars from their track, whipped several trailers from their towing units and did other widespread damage in Northern Utah Monday.

There were no injuries in the train derailment, but an Idaho couple was injured when a truck-trailer unit was torn from its cab directly in the path of their auto. Thirteen empty cars of a north-bound Union Pacific train were derailed at Kayville, midway between Salt Lake City and Ogden. The winds were officially clocked at 70 miles an hour at Hill Air Force Base near Ogden and probably reached higher velocities near canyon mouths.

DOUBTING DON STILL DOUBTFUL

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Seven-year-old Donald Calemier is disillusioned. He is convinced beyond any doubt that Santa Claus cannot come down a chimney.

Donald tried it Monday after he came home and found the house locked. Some time later, his mother, Mrs. Alice Calemier, arrived and heard his muffled cries. Firemen pulled him out with ropes.

"How does Santa get down a chimney?" Donald asked.

New Wheat Rust Threatens U. S. Spaghetti Shortage

FARGO, N. D.—A chameleon-like spore—traveling under the name of "black stem rust 15B"—threatens to force a basic change in the macaroni and spaghetti industry.

This stem rust variety, plus a couple of late planting and harvesting seasons, has cut acreage of durum wheat, basic ingredient in both products, by almost 50 per cent in North Dakota in the last three years.

North Dakota annually grows more than 80 per cent of the nation's durum wheat. The remainder comes chiefly from Minnesota and South Dakota.

Agricultural scientists admit that to date they've been unable to control the newest strain of rust. Research has disclosed the spore has a number of "faces," each of which reacts differently under varied conditions.

A spokesman for the Creamette Company of Minneapolis, large producer of macaroni and spaghetti, said continued decline in the durum supply either will force the industry to revert to less desirable recipes or find a substitute for durum. Little success has been had to date in finding a substitute.

Production of durum wheat has dropped off from about 40 million bushels during the peak years of 1947 and 1948 to less than 19 million bushels last season, when drought was an added factor.

Bandit Grandma Ordered To Face Trial March 24

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The "grandma bank bandit" of Los Angeles, Mrs. Ethel Arata, 52, will go to trial March 24.

She pleaded innocent Monday to three charges of bank robbery after her attorney, William Hall, had attempted unsuccessfully to enter a plea of innocent by reason of insanity. U. S. Judge Ernest A. Tolin informed Hall such a plea is not permitted in Federal Court.

The court appointed a panel of three psychiatrists to determine whether Mrs. Arata was sane when she is alleged to have robbed two banks in Los Angeles and was caught when she tried to rob another in nearby Arcadia last December 24.

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Arata said she robbed because she wanted to give the money away to needy persons.

Top Brass Given Until February 28 To Slash Budgets

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The secretary of each of the armed services has until February 28 to review the pending budget and submit recommendations for cutbacks.

The date was set in a directive from Roger M. Kyes, as acting secretary of Defense, it was learned Monday. The directive spells out further the general economy orders to all departments issued February 3 by Budget Director Joseph Dodge with President Eisenhower's approval.

The military heads were told to "make every effort to secure intelligent savings and to reassess the urgency" of their planned rates of expansion.

Earlier, the services got orders to award no new construction contracts and to halt existing projects that cannot be classed essential.

Bill To Boost Teacher Pay Clears First Senate Hurdle

AUSTIN—(P)—A proposed $600-per-year pay boost for every Texas teacher was over its first legislative hurdle Tuesday.

The Senate's Education Committee voted unanimously approval for the bill Monday night while more than 1,000 teachers who jammed a public hearing applauded.

Spokesmen for the teachers pleaded for "a decent standard of living," an "average" salary, and restoration of professional pride.

Not a word of opposition was voiced to the bill written by Senator A. M. Aikin, Jr., Paris.

"I don't think salary is everything," Aikin told the committee. "If we paid $10,000 a year we'd not have all perfect teachers. But better salaries than we're paying now are necessary."

He noted teachers have had no salary increase since 1949.

Applause rang through the crowded chamber when he said the state would bear the entire cost of the raise—estimated at 22 to 25 million dollars—without any additional local assistance. Gov. Shivers had proposed that local levels should bear more of school financing.

Leaders of associations of school administrators, parents and teachers spoke for the bill. A teacher and a school board member also were in the parade of proponents.

Speakers Numerous

"We aren't asking the salary of a doctor or lawyer," said Mrs. Rae Files Still of Waxahachie, a teacher and former member of the House.

"But we think a teacher's salary should be the average of Texas employes. It's now 6.4 per cent below the average."

Aikin told the committee his bill would do just one thing—"It increases teacher salaries $600 across the board."

"There has been no increase in teachers' salaries in Texas since 1949. The cost of living has consistently gone up" since, he said. Better salaries are mandatory, he said, to assure the best teachers.

R. L. Proffer, Denton, former state senator and now president of the Texas State Teachers Association, declared teachers colleges cannot furnish enough teachers for Texas schools without improved salaries.

Willsie Kouruk, a businessman member of Austin's School Board, told the committee, "There's a time and place for mitigation—and I don't believe it's in education."

Asks Better Teachers

"No teacher should be put into a school room who cannot maintain a decent standard of living and an average family life," advised H. W. Stilwell, superintendent of Texas schools.

During the day both House and Senate met only briefly and then cleared the way for the teachers hearing and other important committee work.

A state representative said, "Every top known, bragging Communist left Texas two days before the Communist control bill took effect."

And the legislator, Rep. Marshall

Bell, San Antonio, added: "Good riddance of bad rubbish."

Bell made the statement in asking for strengthening of the Communist Control Bill passed in 1951. He asked for provisions for a search warrant to seize Communist records.

Garrison Urges Bill

Col. Homer Garrison, head of the Department of Public Safety, said his department needed it to seize records that would prove a man a Communist. Present law requires all Communists to register.

The House State Affairs Committee approved Bell's bill with little comment.

The committee also passed another bill by Bell requiring all state employes to take an oath they are not Communists or members of a Communist-front organization and that they have not been members in the last five years.

A similar oath now is required but will expire at the end of the fiscal year because it was attached to an appropriations bill at the end of the last session.

Textbook Provision

Bell's bill also would require proof that the author of a textbook used in Texas public schools was not a Communist.

The committee refused to approve two bills by Rep. G. P. Pearson of Navasota abolishing the Legislative Budget Board and the Legislative Council.

A bill by Senator Wayne Wagoner, Fort Worth, which would enable a policeman or fireman to submit any grievance to a district court if he disliked a civil service decision, was sent to a subcommittee for work.

A proposal to boost the governor's salary from $12,000 to $28,000 a year went to a House subcommittee for further study.

The House Committee on Constitutional Amendments delayed action one week on Representative John Warden's proposition to allow a $3,000 homestead exemption for single persons as well as married people.

Britain's Trade Pacts Stand In Way Of China Stranglehold

By C. YATES McDANIEL
WASHINGTON—(P)—The possibility that a China blockade might fall if it did not have the full support of this nation's allies worries some Pentagon officials as much as the chance that it might extend the Korean War.

HIGH WAY BURGLARY

BUTTE MONT.—(P)—The burglary business is looking up. Loot taken from a Butte tavern Monday included about 90 dollar bills on which customers had written their names.

The bills had been tacked to the ceiling.

Even officials who have steadfastly opposed the blockade idea, currently gaining increasing support in Congress, agree that it should be militarily effective if imposed by the U. S. Navy, the largest in the world.

But those who favor a blockade agree that international complications could doom such an action to partial failure.

At the heart of these complications are two problems: Rubber And Rice

By tradition and trade practices, China is tied with other Asia states. The coast of China is not 100 per cent Chinese.

There is the case of Ceylon, a member of the British Commonwealth. Ceylon has a long-term agreement with Red China, calling for exchange of Ceylon rubber for China rice.

If the U. S. should intercept shipments of rubber from Ceylon to China, the Communists could be expected to halt exports of rice to Ceylon. The question would then arise: Who would pay Ceylon for the seized rubber, and who would supply her with the rice she needs?

An even more difficult problem is that presented by the British crown colony of Hong Kong on the coast of South China.

The Relay Port

Hong Kong is a middleman's port. Formerly much of the trade arriving there was trans-shipped for movement into other Chinese ports.

Goods shipped to Hong Kong normally were consigned to some British or British-approved firm, and would therefore be difficult to intercept before reaching Hong Kong.

The tightest naval blockade of China probably could not plug this gap unless the British wanted it plugged. This is true because the mainland section of the colony is the terminus of a branch railroad which connects with the Chinese rail system.

Seven Texans Join U. S. Cotton Huddle

WASHINGTON — (P)—Seven Texans will gather with 55 leaders in agriculture, finance and the cotton industry here Thursday for a conference on cotton problems.

The meeting was called by Agriculture Secretary Benson. Benson said he wanted to get information "on possible action to encourage export movement of American cotton, to hold 1953 production in balance with anticipated demand and other measures designed to stabilize and improve the cotton price situation and forestall marketing quotas on the 1954 crop."

Texans invited to attend are: George Q. Payne, El Paso; Stanton Brown, Waco; Burriss Jackson, Hillsboro; Lamar Fleming, Houston; William D. Felder, Dallas; Albert Long, Dallas; and J. Walter Hammon, Waco.

East Texas Bollworm Control Plans Mapped

NEW ORLEANS—(P)—Representatives of nine cotton producing states decided Monday to string a series of border patrol stations around the eastern half of Texas to prevent the northward and eastward spread of the pink bollworm.

Fifteen stations will be operated on a 24-hour basis to prevent tourists and cotton pickers from carrying the pink bollworm from infested areas of Texas into Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Convict-Made Bomb Explodes, Injures State Prison Staffers

WALLA WALLA, WASH.—(P)—Seven members of the Washington State Prison staff were injured Monday in the explosion of a prisoner-made bomb.

The blast was believed by prison authorities to have nipped a plot by a group of hardened convicts to blow their way to freedom.

One of the injured men, Prison Business Manager Albert Gruber, may not recover. An arm was blown off.

Al Rembold, a deputy warden whose condition first was listed as critical, was reported by hospital attendants Tuesday as improving.

They were inspecting one of two crude bombs found in a cell when it went off.

Five other persons, including Warden John Cranor, suffered minor injuries.

An intensive check was underway to find how the bombmakers devised their explosives.

Four lifers were held in solitary confinement, believed to be the ringleaders of the escape plot. Their names were not revealed.

The bomb which blew up consisted of a small medicine bottle filled with black powder and a mushy, yellow substance, with a wire contrivance through the neck for a detonator. Part of the contents was nitroglycerine "soup," presumably from boiled down sticks of dynamite.

No state in the Union has legalized the so-called "mercy deaths" in case of incurable sickness.

Butterfly Wings Save Aerialists When Cable Snaps

LOUISVILLE, KY.—(P)—Four women aerialists, billed as human butterflies, plunged 30 feet to the ground Monday when a cable hoisting them aloft snapped like a match. All escaped with minor injuries.

Equipped with big, fanning butterfly wings the circus performers dropped with a peculiar slowness as the wings acted like parachutes to slow their descent.

The injured: Dollie Green, 16, South Gate, Calif.; Ora Eggleman, 20, Watonga, Okla.; Dorothy Pina, 26, Tampa, Fla.; and Elaine Miller, 20, Los Angeles.

Even healthy, sane people can induce visions by gazing fixedly at a polished surface, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Governor Defends Senator Accused Of Fee-Splitting

AUSTIN—(AP)—Governor Shivers Tuesday stood behind a state senator who admitted a brief part in a convict's clemency request that brought accusations of fee splitting.

Midland Optimists Add Four Members

Four new members were elected to membership in the Optimists Club at its regular noon meeting Tuesday in Jimmy's Pit Bar B Q Restaurant.

The new additions are Sandy Hodge, Bob Warren, Phil Hayes and Bill Berry.

Jim Velvin, Jr., president of the Optimists, presided. Announcement was made that no meeting will be held next Tuesday by the Optimists. Plans for the Optimist-sponsored Soap Box Derby were officially discontinued due to a lack of response from school children as entries.

The Optimists again have been granted operation of the concessions for the Midland rodeo early in June, President Velvin reported. Last year they realized substantial profits for club work.

Jim Worley was in charge of the Tuesday program. He exhibited a football film, "Highlights of 1951," courtesy of the Humble Oil and Refining Company.

Hardeman Bucks TB Hospital Bill

AUSTIN—(AP)—A bill providing for tuberculosis hospitals at Harlingen and San Antonio finally was passed by the Senate and sent to the House Tuesday.

The hospitals would cost a total of $3,225,000. Only senator voting against the bill was Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo.

GRECE TRIES SPIES

ATHENS—(AP)—The trial of 17 Greeks accused of spying for Communist Albania opened Tuesday.

mided Monday after a report that a State Bar Grievance Committee had written a letter of reprimand to a Dallas lawyer for obtaining fees to get pardons for Texas prison inmates and splitting those fees with "a man on the public payroll."

Shivers asked for more information on that man on the public payroll and added that if he were a state employe or official, "I propose to see that all the facts are turned over to the grand jury for action."

Then Parkhouse issued a statement saying he knew the Dallas lawyer under reprimand and he had tried to help the lawyer last Summer in a clemency matter for three convicts.

No Fee Splitting
"There was, however, no fee splitting," Parkhouse declared.

He added that the only money involved was that he received expenses for a trip to Austin July 30, 1952, "to call the attention of the Board of Pardons and Paroles to the request of these people for clemency."

Then Shivers issued another statement saying the inference of the bar committee's action "was that the Dallas lawyer in question had improperly influenced someone in the Governor's office or with the State Board of Pardons and Paroles—these being the only agencies that deal in clemency matters."

"If the details had been made clear in the beginning there would not have been any misunderstanding."

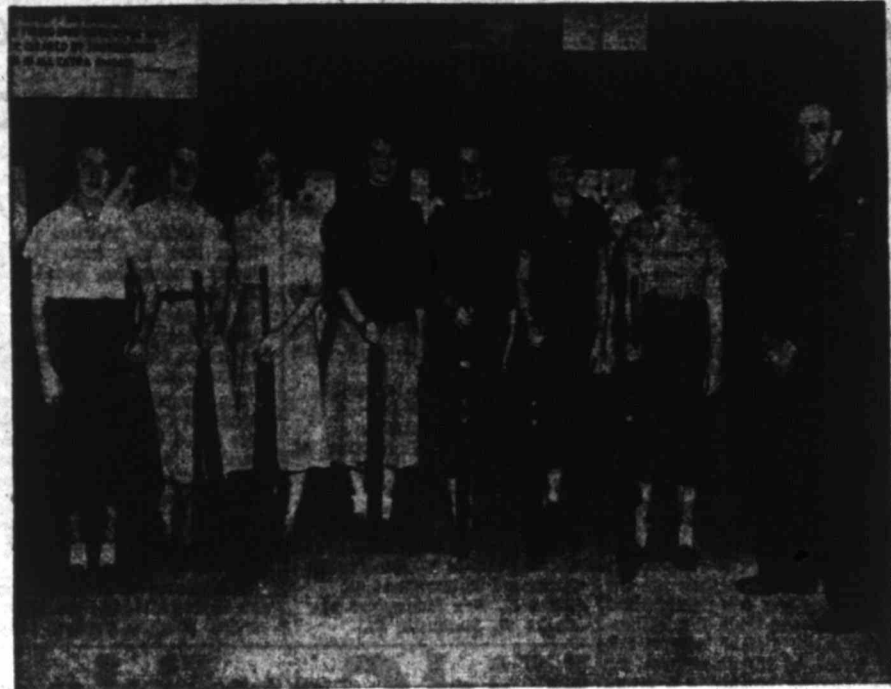

"Since this matter was brought to my attention, I have reviewed the file and find nothing to indicate that any illegal or improper act was committed by Senator Parkhouse."

Shivers said many members of the Legislature have presented clemency requests to the pardons board "with or without a fee."

Tricycle 'Throws' Midland Youngster

Tricycles can be dangerous, as Pete Williams, 510 South Big Spring Street, discovered Monday. He tripped and fell over one of the vehicles, receiving lacerations of the nose.

Williams went to Midland Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment.

Federal Courts Due To Interfere Little In State Litigation

WASHINGTON—(AP)—State courts, it appeared Tuesday, will have less interference from the federal courts from now on.

Supreme Court Justice Reed Monday told federal courts not to use habeas corpus proceedings against state court criminal convictions except where there is a clear showing of unusual circumstances.

After all, Reed said, state and federal courts have like responsibilities to protect the constitutional rights of accused persons.

Reed spoke for the majority in a 6-3 decision upholding state-imposed death sentences on four North Carolina negroes.

Funeral Rites Set For Crash Victims

LOCKNEY—(AP)—Bodies of four prominent residents of this Floyd County city, killed in a plane crash Monday near San Antonio, were brought here Tuesday for funeral services.

The victims were Rhea Mitchell, 30, owner and pilot of the plane; his brother, Glenn Mitchell, 26; George Turner, Jr., brother-in-law of Rhea Mitchell, and the Rev. J. R. Naylor, 33, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The four were enroute to Fort Isabel for a fishing trip.

No Secret Pact, Vatican Declares

VATICAN CITY—(AP)—Vatican sources said Tuesday the seat of the Roman Catholic Church would enter into no secret diplomatic arrangements with any country.

This comment was made after a group in the U. S. asked President Eisenhower if designation of Mrs. Clara Boothe Luce as ambassador to Italy would mean the resumption of diplomatic relations with the Vatican.

State-Wide Toll Road Program Is Proposed

AUSTIN—(AP)—A state-wide toll road plan developed in the Legislature Tuesday as one answer to the state's traffic-jammed highways.

The Senate's Highway Committee held up action on a bill to authorize a Dallas-Fort Worth toll turnpike while a substitute state-wide bill is prepared. Public hearing on the new plan was set at 9:30 a.m. February 24.

It would set up a state-wide commission with first priority given to the Dallas-Fort Worth project.

Defense attorneys protested vigorously and repeatedly, and at one time Fleeger turned to Judge Arthur Tipps and asked if he had to answer the questions.

The father, obviously flustered under the steady questioning by the El Paso prosecutor, brought out these facts:

He, Mrs. Fleeger and Mary Jean left Dallas Nov. 18, 1952, and visited the Gulf Coast area around Mobile, Ala. Shortly after Christmas, they left Mobile and flew from San Francisco to Hawaii. On Dec. 18, 1952, they registered at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu, returning by plane to Los Angeles Jan. 12, 1953—two weeks before the trial opened.

Justice Department Studies Fake Papers Aimed At Nixon

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Justice Department confirmed late Monday it has under study "the whole matter" of documents which Senator Barrett (R-Wyo) said were forged for use against Vice President Nixon in the presidential campaign.

Barrett, head of the Senate elections subcommittee, said that group had asked the FBI to investigate with a view to possible criminal prosecution. The documents purportedly said Nixon received $60,000 from oil interests sometime prior to the campaign.

Barrett, declining to name firms or individuals, said:
"I think we will be able to pin it on one individual, and in a reasonably short time. We think we know who is responsible."

"It was a very clever deal and a very vicious person concocted it. I think... that possible prosecution for perjury will result."

He said it included a faked photograph of a purported letter from one oil company executive to another telling of the supposed $50,000 donation to Nixon and another document transmitting these papers to a New York public relations man.

Barrett said the latter turned copies of the material over to the New York Post a few days before the November 4 election but that the Post did not publish it. In New York, the Post said it had been unable to establish that the material was authentic.

Death came to the 72-year-old lawyer and World War I hero at 6:15 a.m.

Reed, in semi-retirement from his Pittsburgh law office, was spending the winter at Boca Grand Island, about 40 miles southwest of Sarasota in the Gulf.

He was stricken with a heart seizure Monday night and rushed to a hospital here.

His doctor attributed death to coronary thrombosis.

Dulles Declares Question Of China Blockade Still Open

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of State Dulles told senators Tuesday President Eisenhower has made no decision on a possible blockade of Red China or other action in the Far East.

Dulles, who testified at a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was quoted by two senators as having told the group that any discussion of a blockade is "premature."

Senators H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) and Fulbright (D-Ark) said they got the impression from Dulles that the whole Far Eastern situation is wide open for any action the President may want to take in the future.

House Launches T-H Law Hearings

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Congress launched hearings Tuesday into proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law, giving first consideration to a plan to outlaw industry-wide bargaining.

Chairman McConnell (R-Pa) of the House Labor Committee called on Representative Lucas (D-Texas) as the committee's first witness in hearing expected to run for several months. Congress members are being heard first. Lucas wants the industry-wide bargaining ban.

Revision of the Taft-Hartley law, now more than five years old, is one of the promises made by President Eisenhower. But he has not spelled out any proposals.

Canadian River Bill Would Bypass Texas State Water Board

AUSTIN—(AP)—A bill by-passing the State Water Board in creation of the giant Canadian River Authority was introduced in the Senate by Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo Tuesday.

Building of the dam and financing of the project designed to relieve water shortage in a dozen Panhandle-Plains cities ran into opposition at a Water Board hearing January 13.

Water Board approval of the proposed district has not been forthcoming.

Hazlewood said the provisions and purpose of his bill were to expedite work on the project without Water Board approval.

The measure (SB 126) would create the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority to be composed of 12 West Texas cities and towns. It would authorize them to finance the project by revenue or tax bonds or both after approval by a vote of the people in the 12 cities.

The bill permits public or private financing.

Interior cities are Amarillo, Borger, Brownfield, Lamesa, Levelland, Littlefield, Lubbock, O'Donnell, Pampa, Plainview, Slaton, Tahoka.

Pat's Lawyer Says Reporters 'Distort' Playgirl's Answers

NEW YORK—(AP)—The attorney for Pat Ward, red-haired star witness in the "closed door" trial of oleo heir Minot F. (Mickey) Jelke, bitterly assailed the press Tuesday.

Waving his walking stick as he arrived at the Courthouse with the 19-year-old Miss Ward, J. Roland Sala told newsmen:
"Everything is distorted that this little girl says."

The press, Sala continued, has been "lying" and "implacably cruel." "You people can't take defeat," he stated.

This appeared to be a reference to the decision Monday of General Sessions Judge Francis L. Valente to bar the press and public from the courtroom during presentation of the prosecution case.

When reporters put questions to Miss Ward, Sala repeatedly cried: "Don't answer that."

SPORTS PARLEY

By CHARLEY ESKEW

The McCamey Country Club's annual invitational golf tournament should be the best planned one for West Texas this year, if time counts for anything. The club members already have the dates set and are passing out invitations.

Play opens May 15 for three days, Don Quillin of the club writes, the first day for qualifying and the other two for 18-hole matches in flights for all players. The big job for the photographers will be trying to out-odessa Charles Thorp as champion.

Midland's acquiring a new player last week, two more Monday and talking more trades (for pitchers, they say) was just part of a busy time for Longhorn Leaguers, ready for Spring training.

Carlsbad purchased Marshall Epperson, 1951 left-hander of Vernon, who summered last season in Laredo of the Gulf Coast League and in Waco of the Big State. Then Big Spring bought his fourth catcher, Billy McElyea, outright from Carlsbad while yielding Pitcher Bert Baer his outright release.

Baer reportedly is after a manager's job with Decatur of the Mississippi-Ohio Valley League.

Apparently, Manager Pat McLaughlin is putting lots of faith in his recently-signed negro backstop, Compton Shaw, to make a fine catcher this season, what with selling McElyea and subsequently hoisting Joe Neidson to the block.

You can expect between 25 and 30 Indians to unfold their tents at Spring training, General Manager Horace Busby has indicated.

Adding James Norrenberns, whom Midland bought this week, runs the roster to 23 presently, according to Busby's Monday report to the league office.

The list doesn't include, however, a couple of deals in the offing, nor any of three or four rookies who requested trials and will show up at Fredericksburg March 25.

"We never turn down a chance to look at a rookie," Busby and Manager Jay Haney agree.

Here is the current crew, and from it Haney must select a squad including 16 to 22 men, five veterans (vets) or less, eight limited service (LS) players, three rookies (R) or four National Defense Servicemen (NDS), an open classification:

Tiny Pair Carries Golden Mitt Hopes

Two small youngsters, over whom a dime could cast a shadow, carry on their shoulders the hopes of Midland in the annual Golden Gloves state championships at Fort Worth this week.

The pair, flyweight Chilly Reeves and bantamweight Pat Morgan, as departed here at noon Tuesday part of the Odessa regional team. For Reeves 112-pounder, the trip is his second after winning two straight regional tournaments unopposed.

For the 16-year-old Morgan, who like Reeves is a Midland schoolboy, the trip marks his first effort at open class fighting. An experienced novice batter here and at New Mexico Military Institute, the 118-pounder enters the Fort Worth bouts replacing Bill Burns, Midland, who capped the regional title.

Burns was unable to go to Fort Worth because of work. The tourney begins Wednesday and lasts until Monday. At the time of departure, the Odessa team was one fighter short of its eight-man limit. It's featherweight entry, Gerald Reeves, 126, was forced to withdraw from the squad Monday because of a severe case of flu.

That leaves two Midlanders along with Lightweight Robert Rigby, Welterweight Rex Maxwell, Middleweight James Adams, Light Heavyweight Bruce Price and Heavyweight Thomas Brown, all of Odessa, to compose the regional team. Midland's boxers both have limited experience this year. Reeves battled only once, losing a decision in an exhibition at Odessa's tournament to San Angelo's champion, Danny Gonzales. Morgan defeated Jackie DeShazo of Andrews and Don Warren of Midland before winning the featherweight title by default in the Odessa division.

66ers Quit At 6-6; Tucker Totals 196

The Phillips 66ers figured it was a good number to stop on. They won six, lost six. Their thirteenth game, scheduled last Saturday against San Angelo College there, was called off, and thus the Oilers became the first Midland quintet to put aside its playing gear.

For the season—excluding the Harlem Globe-Trotters-Rotary Engine game of 4,000 Saturday—the Oilers pulled in the biggest box office among Midland teams this year, averaging around 300 for most of their games and then topping it with the specials: Drawing 2,600 at its encounter with Bartlesville in Odessa and 1,700 at the Ada Oiler benefit game last week.

Gerald Tucker, the implish All-American of yesterday, probably missed recording a 20-point game average for the season when the SAC date was deleted, or when he was absent for two of the easier encounters—Sul Ross and SAC—earlier.

At that, he still led 66er scoring handsly, registering a 19.6 average while tallying 196 points. J. B. Collins, parttime starting guard, wound up second with 100 points in 11 games.

Eleven cagers in all got into Phillips games. The Midland quintet's opponents gained a narrow edge in team scoring with 731 points overall to 726, a 60.9 to 60.5 game margin.

OUR TRIBE INCREASES—

Midland Purchases Pitcher For '53, Receiver For '54

The Midland Indians, one of "them that has" from its 1952 playoff champions, added more Tuesday.

A couple of players—one for 1953 delivery—were acquired for the Indian lineup from the folding Centralla, Ill., team.

The two, pitcher James Norrenberns and Catcher Norman Karg, were added by Midland in a deal Tuesday for an undisclosed amount, General Manager Horace Busby announced.

The new hurler, a right-hander, becomes the seventh pitcher now listed on the Midland roster and the fifth National Defense Serviceman, a classification for returning veterans. The team can carry four NDS men.

Both of the new players add beef to the Indian body, both are better than 190 pounders. Both are 21 years old.

The six-foot-three Norrenberns, who played with Centralla both one year, 1950, as a 19-year-old, won four games and lost one. He made 10 appearances to record a stellar 2.29 earned-run average.

Karg has been described, Busby said, as one of Centralla's top prospects who picked up slowly in batting but promises to become an excellent hitter. He had one of the best throwing arms in the M-OV League.

Midland, in the meantime, awaited more signed contracts. None were received in the last three days. Only seven, besides Manager Jay Haney, are on pact now. And another, Catcher Gordon Tanner, indicates he'll be one of the last, if at all, to come to terms.

Tanner wrote Busby this week that he is considering a job, outside baseball, in California this Summer instead of returning to Midland.

Kid Confident, Chuck Edgy

Gavilan Given Big Nod Before Fight

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO—(AP)—Cuban Kid Gavilan, a confident 12-5 favorite, is looking past Wednesday's welter title defense against Chuck Davey to an excursion into the middle-weight ranks.

In the camp of unbeaten Davey, the Michigan State graduate with the near-perfect record of 37 wins and two draws in 39 pro fights, things are tense. Nerves are growing more taut. Handsome Chuck is on edge.

This sprawling metropolis boils with fight fever. Cab drivers sign Davey's praise. Professional bettors respect Gavilan's proven class. An advance sale of $210,000 is reported by the International Boxing Club's Truman Gibson, keeper of the Chicago Stadium treasury. TV sales members offer a $25 ringside for free at 9 p.m. (CST), on the CBS network.

The gym work is finished. Gavilan belted over spar mate Al Nians with a left to the body Monday in his final workout at the Midwest A. C.

Davey, already under the 147-pound class limit, took a hike through Lincoln Park.

Although Gavilan's handlers attempt to cloak his weight in mystery, the 27-year-old champ from Cuba expects no trouble. "I come in at 146 3/4," he said Monday.

Gavilan is unconcerned. "I prefer to talk about what comes next."

"I wait until there is a new middleweight champ," he said. "Then Gavilan Keed challenge the champ."

Who does he think the new champ will be?
"Randy Turpin, sure thing," he said. "Bobo Olson? No. I saw him fight. He not a hard hitter. Turpin best man. I like to fight him."

Funny Styles
Gavilan dismisses Davey as a "hit, run and jump" fighter with a "funny" left-handed style. He likens Chuck to Johnny Bratton, the man he beat for the title, although Johnny is no southpaw.

"I know this kid very fast," he said. "Gavilan fast too anytime he wants. Long time ago, Gavilan bounce and punch, bang, bang, bang—all the time. Now he set and punch better. More confidence. Gavilan now champion."

This probably will be Gavilan's biggest pay day—perhaps as much as $100,000. He gets 40 per cent or $80,000 of the $200,000 net house guaranteed by the TV sponsor. And he may get another $20,000 if the crowd is big. Davey also gets his biggest purse—$40,000 and 20 per cent over $200,000.

"I think I will win in 15," said Davey. "I wouldn't go into a fight if I didn't think I was going to win. I was little apprehensive about the Gravano fight. He could win anytime with one punch. Gavilan doesn't punch so hard. I feel different facing him."

The University of Texas Longhorns will try to regain a share of the Southwest Conference basketball lead Tuesday night against their traditional foes, Texas A&M's Cadets.

The second-place Longhorns, tied with a 4-2 record with TCU, will be favored over the four-time-loser Aggies.

In another game, leading Baylor invades Dallas for a game with Southern Methodist, loser of all six of its conference starts. A loss by the Bears, not outside the realm of possibility, and a win for Texas would put the Steers in firm control of the leadership.

Razorbaks Fade Out
Monday night, the Arkansas Razorbaks—pre-season favorites to finish high in the standings—skipped out of conference contention when Rice's Owls whipped them, 70-46, in the Owls' easiest loop win of the season.

Defending Champion Texas Christian, at the same time, was wallowing Abilene Christian College of the Texas Conference, 68-49, in a non-conference setto.

The Owls trailed through most of the first quarter against Arkansas, but within two minutes left, Gene Schwinger, Monte Robicheaux, and Buzzy Bryan sent them into a 16-15 lead. The Porkers lost their eyes in the second period, hitting only two of 19 field goal attempts, while the Owls rolled on to a 32-31 halftime lead.

Schwinger was high-point man in the tussle with 24 tallies garnered with seven field goals and 10 charities.

Henry Ohlen and Ray Warren teamed to whip ACC at Abilene. Warren sank 23 points and Ohlen shot in 22. Between them, they controlled both backboards until they left the game late in the final quarter.

ACC kept within six points of the Frogs until the third quarter when the Christians began pulling away, chiefly on free throws.

Dick Knostman Hot, Chalks Up 31 Points, Francis Just Maintains Average Of 51

NEW YORK—(AP)—That new basketball craze—"Francis Fever"—is sweeping the country.
Ever since Bevo Francis and his Rio Grande (Ohio) mates hit the headlines, the accent on scoring seems to have increased.

The NCAA Statistical Bureau reports that point-making is on the upswing in collegiate basketball circles—and it has the statisticians going around in circles.

It seems like centuries ago when teams played 30-20 games. Now individuals score that many points in one game.

Monday night Francis, himself, led the point parade. He netted 51 points as unbeaten Rio Grande won its thirtieth straight game, whipping Cedarville College, 104-48.

Francis now has 1,513 points for a fantastic 50.4 average.

Dick Knostman's scoring antics set an Army record at Ames, Ia., where Kansas State chopped down Iowa State, 78-64. His 21 markers topped the record 29 set by Art Bunts of Colorado last Saturday.

In the other Big Seven game, Colorado pulled away in the third period to defeat Nebraska, 86-78, at Lincoln.

At Bloomington, Ind., Indiana (10-0) kept its perfect Big 10 record intact by walloping Wisconsin, 66-48.

Illinois (8-2) kept pace with Indiana by downing Michigan, 92-82.

Bevo's Basketball Proves Boon To Rio Grande College

RIO GRANDE, OHIO—(AP)—Clarice (Bevo) Francis, basketball's point-making phenomenon from Rio Grande College, may boost the little Southern Ohio school over the financial barrier that threatened to close its doors.

Last Fall the college could boast only 94 students—and President Charles E. Davis admitted this year might be the last.

But after 30 consecutive victories and the fabulous Francis' 50-point per game average, Davis says "the outlook for Rio Grande College is very encouraging."

Rio Grande won its thirtieth game Monday night against Cedarville College, 104-48, with Bevo's 51 points boosting his season's total to 1,513.

"We have had many requests for information about the school and the requests of applications exceed the number we had all of last year, Davis says.

"With the rapid industrial expansion of the Ohio River Valley and the improvements we've made this year—both in the school and with the basketball team—I believe things are going to be much better for us."

But Davis added he and the rest of the school have tried to take the basketball success "in stride and without letting the tail wag the dog.

We don't want to exploit this team even though there have been many temptations and attractive offers."

"We are just as proud of our gospel teams and deputation groups in the churches as we are of Bevo and the basketball team. I believe our academic standards are exceptionally high."

The school formerly was Baptist but now is non-denominational.

Israel Police Nab Suspects In Bombing Of Soviet Legation

TEL AVIV, ISRAEL.—(AP)—Israel police announced Tuesday they have arrested several persons in connection with the bombing of the Soviet legation here Monday night.

Five persons, including the wife of the Soviet minister, were injured in the explosion. It was believed in reprisal for recent anti-Zionist charges by Communist officials in Moscow and the satellite capitals.

Names of those arrested were not announced. The attackers were believed to have cut a hole in the wire fence surrounding the legation grounds in the center of Tel Aviv and to have thrown the explosive through the window of a ground floor office.

The Israeli press joined the government Tuesday in condemning the bombing. Terming it "a dastardly outrage," the government expressed its regrets to the Russian envoy and his staff and promised "swift justice" to those responsible.

The injured reportedly included Mrs. Claudia Yerahov, wife of Soviet Minister Pavel I. Yerahov; the minister's woman secretary; Yerahov's chauffeur and another male member of the legation staff, and a Jewish child in a nearby building.

The two male staff members were taken to a hospital, where they underwent operations. Only slightly hurt. All the injuries apparently resulted from falling furniture or flying glass splinters.

Dulles May Have To Enter British-Iranian Oil Debates

By JOHN SCALI
WASHINGTON—(AP)—American-British oil talks with Iran, which appeared near success three weeks ago, now have bogged down to the point where settlement prospects are uncertain.

Some officials believe Secretary of State Dulles, who has been concentrating on Western European and Far Eastern problems, may have to take a hand personally in present negotiations.

Britain and Iran appear unwilling to make further concessions until they are certain the Eisenhower Administration fully supports the outlines of the settlement drafted under former Secretary Dean Acheson.

The Acheson formula, it is understood, called for the United States to advance 100 million dollars to Iran to meet immediate pressing financial problems. This would have paved the way for American oil purchases.

In return, Iran was to agree to submit its quarrel with Britain to the International Court for arbitration.

A combine of four from to six companies was to have been set up to move and market at least 20 million tons of Iranian oil annually.

Texas Jump Hikes U. S. Crude Output
TULSA—(AP)—Helped by a boost in Texas' February allowances, U. S. crude oil and condensate production showed a 11,525-barrel daily average advance during the week ended February 7. The Oil and Gas Journal reported Tuesday.

Texas more than accounted for all the net gain to a total daily average of 6,534,900 barrels, jumping 18,200 barrels to 2,939,950.

The Journal figured cumulative production for 1953 at 247,262,873 barrels against 237,362,305 in this time a year ago.

Next biggest increase was in Louisiana, up 1,400 to 529,800, and New Mexico increased 900 to 179,450.

A two hundred-barrel increase was reported for Arkansas, to 78,000.

Eisenhower Confers With Farm Leaders Snubbed By Truman

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Eisenhower opened the White House door Monday to powerful farm leaders who had been snubbed by the Truman Administration in a feud over agricultural policies.

His visitors were a group of 25 American Farm Bureau Federation officials. They were headed by Bureau President Allan Kline, who clashed so bitterly with former Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan that he was not welcomed either at the White House or Agriculture Department.

This bitterness grew largely out of the opposition by Kline and other bureau leaders to the so-called Brannan Plan for farm production subsidies which they contended would put farmers under complete government domination.

Eisenhower obviously was anxious to patch up the bureau's relations with the federal government and ready to listen to the proposals on farm legislation they might have to offer.

Screaming Bombs Curtain Van Fleet's Farewell Talk

SEUL—(AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet bade this dramatic farewell to his U. S. Eighth Army Tuesday.

"We have faith that President Eisenhower will find a way to bring peace to Korea as well as to the rest of the world."

The retiring commander spoke against the backdrop of the roar of heavy Allied tanks blasting away at Communist targets on the Central Korean Front. Van Fleet Wednesday will surrender command of the Eight Army to Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Monday night 16 American Superforts staged a daring night raid within sight of Antung, a MIG stronghold just across the Yalu. No Red jets were encountered.

Van Fleet told his soldiers the Reds cried for a truce in the Summer of 1951 because "they were defeated and knew it."

At the front, fighting dwindled to brief patrol clashes and one light Communist thrust.

Snow fell all across the 155-mile battlefield. The mercury hit eight to 10 degrees above zero.

Judge Closes Door On Ochoa's Freedom

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—George Ochoa must face trial on charges of falsifying a birth certificate but Federal Judge Clotario Margall has ruled he cannot be tried now on charges that he murdered two men in Laredo in 1949.

The Mexican judge assured Ochoa, one-time border country playboy, that he would not be extradited to Texas to face the murder charges.

But Monday he closed the door on any possibility of Ochoa going free soon.

Ochoa, fighting extradition, claimed he was a Mexican citizen, born in Reynosa. A birth certificate was produced as evidence and it is this document Mexican authorities believe is spurious.

The former Laredo customs broker is charged in Laredo with the slaying of Henry Whittingberg, Jr., McAllen, and James Lindsay, McKensie, Tenn., both of whom were shot in a Laredo hotel on the night of July 31, 1949.

HOUSEWIFE SAYS IT ISN'T EASY—

Family Of 15, Plus Pets, Live On $50 Weekly Wage

By EARL ARONSON

PITTSFIELD, MAIN —(AP)—

Can you rear a family of 12 young daughters and their grandfather—plus two dogs, two cats and a guinea pig—on $50 a week?

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brooks are doing it—but it isn't easy.

The couple, both 37, and their family live in a remodeled school-house four miles outside this village. Brooks earns $50 a week in the picker room of a woolen mill.

"Living on $50 a week we don't have pies and cake every day," says Mrs. Theres Brooks. "We do try to have it at least on Sunday."

"Everyday living on this amount requires a lot of thinking and making stretchy dishes," she said in an interview.

Plenty Of Spuds
The heartiest meal is supper when all 15 are at home.

"We have potatoes, one-half peck a meal, plenty of vegetables and milk. We have either meat or fish once a week and use about four or five pounds, depending on the kind."

"For breakfast we have cooked cereal, requiring about a half package, canned milk, toasted biscuits or graham rolls (36), coffee and cocoa."

"At noon the four little ones (the girls range in age from 14 months to 15 years), grandpa and I eat at home and have what is left over from the previous supper, warmed up. Mr. Brooks and Eunice (the oldest daughter, a student at Maine Central Institute) carry their lunch. The other seven eat at school, three working during the noon hour to pay for theirs."

The Garden Helps
The family practically lives out of the garden in the summer.

"We raise string beans, peas, several kinds of greens, carrots, beets, turnips, cabbage, squash, cucumbers, lettuce, radishes and sweet corn," Mrs. Brooks related.

"We put up in jars as much as we can spare for winter consumption. Also, all the older girls and I pick as many berries as we can—strawberries, raspberries and cranberries, also canning them for winter use. Then, too, we go clamming at the coast, bringing some home to steam, fry and to make chowders."

Great amounts of vegetables given the brooks by friends, neighbors and relatives supplement their supply.

Fortunately, says Mrs. Brooks, the family doesn't have to buy much clothing. "We just couldn't. Other than shoes, coats and snow suits, most everything is given to us."

Unless there is a pay raise the $50 is going to have to feed another mouth. The Brooks are expecting an addition to their family in mid-March.

Sketched on the Spot by Ralph Lane

NO. 5—THE HUMBLE OFFICE

In April, 1837, Abraham Lincoln left New Salem for Springfield to be a partner in the law firm of John T. Stuart, whom he met while serving in the Black Hawk War. Their law practice flourished and by July, 1837, they had a dozen more legal cases than their nearest competitor. The law office on the second floor of Hoffman's Row was sparsely furnished, and had a bed on the right side. As the first floor of the building was the home of the Sangamon County Circuit Court, the Lincoln-Stuart law office was frequently used as a jury room.

Cardigans Cover Slim-Line Sheaths

From Pierre Balmain's New York collection come these extremely wearable high fashion designs for Spring. Beige is the big color and it's used here (left) for a pale tweed coat marked by horizontal rows of fringe. It is slightly flared, may be wrapped or worn loose. The all-important ensemble is shown here two ways. Cocoa silk surah is printed (center) with an abstract fish design in white.

Dress has slim skirt, bodice wrapping diagonally to the front. It's nearly sleeveless. Cutaway box cardigan, lined in white, fastens at the throat and flares away from the body. Heavy linen is adapted (right) to the navy-and-white theme. Collarless box jacket with spaced buttons is worn with sleeveless camisole top edged in navy and a slim wraparound skirt in navy.

NEW YORK—The gracious and ladylike line that's so evident in all Spring collections is as apparent in the new ensembles as it is in the "dress-maker" dresses. The ensemble, as done by one famous French designer for his New York collection, is expressed in terms of the cutaway cardigan. The basis for this may be a straight sheath dress or it may separate with a narrow line. Whichever it is, the cardigan jacket has a single closing at the throat and sweeps away from the body.

Even street costumes turn dressy in the hands of this designer. He places a strong emphasis on navy and likes to work in a lightweight wool that drapes beautifully. The resulting fashions show tucking and pleating in combinations, wrapped or buttoned skirts that reveal pleating underneath, and huge wool shawls or stoles worked in silk or wool. These are clothes that are intensely feminine and very pretty. Color accents are introduced through use of scarves, edgings, removable tabs and collars. In all-over color, beige and gray appear in many tones, in addition to the well-liked navy.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The severest test of a player's skill usually comes when he is playing a hand at a trump contract and must decide exactly how many rounds of trumps to draw and exactly what order is required for the playing of his tricks. Today's hand, taken from last year's European Championship, illustrates this kind of difficulty.

In both rooms of the match between Austria and England, the final contract was six spades, and West's opening lead was the ten of clubs. Both declarers won the first trick with the king of clubs and immediately cashed the king of hearts. From this point on, however, the play in the two rooms varied.

The Austrian declarer continued by taking the ace and king of trumps, after which he discarded trump to his own queen, cashed the ace of clubs, and gave up one club trick to West. He could then claim the rest of the tricks with his last trump and the rest of the clubs.

New Synthetic Rubber Gloves Will Keep Your Hands Smooth

Your hands can be smooth even after scouring kitchen cabinets if you always wear household gloves such as these comfortable new ones made from durable synthetic rubber.

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor
Household gloves, so necessary if women are to keep their hands smooth and still get their chores done, have sometimes given women cause for complaint because they are clumsy and uncomfortable to wear. A new type on the market should beat this problem. The specially processed cotton lining in these gloves gives a soft feeling, absorbs perspiration, and makes for easy slipping on and off. They came in three sizes with slightly curved fingers for a fit as snug as that of your dress gloves. Roughened surfaces on the under side of the gloves—fingers and palms—insure a firm grip on soapy china and glassware. Still another advantage is the toughness of the material (neoprene) of which these gloves are made. Long contact with strong cleaning liquids and powders will not deteriorate them. Jet-black with yellow lining, these gloves are handsome to wear as well as comfortable and protective.

Truck Hijackers Turn Trade Into Bigtime Racket In U. S.

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

With typical American thoroughness and ingenuity, the hijacking boys have gone big business. Except for an occasional amateur job, a truck theft these days is well-planned, carefully executed and completely lacking in anything nasty like guns.

The trade is attracting the criminal cream, who have brought to hijacking the perfection of method that used to be reserved for such underworld pastimes as bootlegging and ticket-fixing. The result is that the hijacking files in local and federal law enforcement headquarters are bulging.

Steadily Rising

Last year, 1952, was the tenth straight year that hijacking figures rose. And the increase has been alarmingly spectacular. Between 1945 and 1951, says the Cargo Protection Bureau, which keeps track of such things, the number of truck cargo thefts went up 200 per cent.

What's the big attraction in a truck? Simple. It's a warehouse on wheels. It is loaded with easy-to-sell, hard-to-trace merchandise like cigarettes and liquor. It is often left, unlocked and unguarded, ripe for picking.

Today's systematic gangs not only know how to take advantage of such opportunities, but they also know how to create them. They wait until the driver is absent—grabbing a cup of coffee at a diner, for example—or else they lure him away.

They seldom strike at random and, in only about two per cent of the cases do they use guns or other forceful means. They usually know what's inside the truck and where their loot is hidden in advance, and some police officials maintain that some gangs go so far as to steal specific items on order.

Modern Operands

They abandon the traceable truck and trailer as soon as possible, often a few blocks from where they stole it. They have elaborate systems of storage, fleets of transfer trucks and networks of fences.

Just as their operational tactics have changed, so have their targets. The hijackers of 10 years ago, who were given to strong arm-methods like big black limousines and little black revolvers, preferred such items as furs and clothing.

Today's fussy felons have a more diversified diet—cargoes of television sets, steel, copper tubes, canned foods, toys, cigarette lighters and lipsticks are more and more subject to theft without notice.

Two Typical Cases

Last year, hijacking cost shippers about $75,000,000 in merchandise.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"In a game of Canasta last week," writes a Portland correspondent, "we ran into quite a peculiar situation. My partner took the discard pile, which was a good one, and cleared out her hand so I could go out if possible before our opponents could get their initial meld down."

"However, the player to my right melded and made a canasta out of his small meld. He put down four eights and four deuces. Now, tell me, was this a legal meld? All the rules say that only three wild cards may be used in a canasta. (The opponents needed a count of 120 points for their first meld.)

"When we objected to their melding in that way, the opponents wanted to put two eights and two deuces in one meld and then put the other pair of deuces in a separate meld. We objected to that, too. Were we wrong?"

No, you were right. You are never allowed to use four wild cards in a canasta. Moreover, you are never allowed to make two separate melds of the same rank in the game of Canasta. (You are allowed to do so in Samba, the three pack-game, but not in Canasta, the two-pack game.)

In short, the opponents could not make any legal meld that included four eights and four deuces.

From Chicago comes a request for a ruling on two points connected with black threes: "When three or four black threes are used to end a hand, do these black threes count as an extra 100 points in addition to the 100 received for going out?"

If the player has only three black threes in his hand, can he go out without having an additional discard?"

There is no extra bonus for melding black threes. Each black three is worth precisely five points, never more and never less.

The question about the discard with black threes usually is asked the opposite way. Many people think that you aren't allowed to discard when you meld out with black threes. The truth is that melding out with black threes is no different from any other way of melding out.

Depending on your hand you may make a discard or not—exactly as though you had not melded the black threes. The black threes are just a red herring and should not be allowed to confuse the issue.

South Africa's diamond mines are considered the richest in the world, providing us with 95 per cent of the gem diamonds used.

tal will come to around $90,000,000, and about 300 trucks will be hijacked. The pattern is usually much the same.

Take two recent typical cases. A truck-trailer in Buffalo was taken with a cargo of cigars valued at $35,000. The driver said he had been making a delivery, found an alley blocked and left the truck to call his office and report. When he returned, truck, trailer, and cigars were gone.

This could have been the work of an amateur, who took sudden advantage of the driver's absence. But a more likely theory is that the alley was blocked on purpose by men who had learned the driver's route and habits. Hijacking gangs are that thorough.

In a case in Secaucus, N. J., a trailer, loaded with $30,000 worth of liquor, was parked in a trucking company's terminal lot. During the night, a well-organized gang drove their own tractor in, hitched up the air hoses to the trailer, and drove off. This is another favorite gang tactic.

Signals Crossed

Occasionally, however, the gang gets its signals crossed, or else a semi-pro does a bit of semi-pro hijacking. That accounts for some odd reports on police blotters, such as truckloads of cookies, Bibles, table tennis balls and other minor league loot vanishing.

The Bureau estimates that professional account for about 75 per cent of all hijackings. The balance is the work of part-time crooks, many from the ranks of illegitimate "gyppy" drivers and transport company employees.

Lines Of Attack

To counteract the zooming hijacking trend, truckers are resorting to two lines of attack. First is the automatic alarm, which lets loose an ear-splitting blast if the truck or trailer is tampered with or moved. Secondly, the companies are doing some organizing themselves.

A few years back, most truck operation was haphazard. Trucks rolled in and out of terminals at all hours, without benefit of schedule or plan. Full trailers usually were left unattended. Today, most companies operate on rigid schedules, with routes worked out to avoid darkness and other physical allies of hijackers.

DISEASE IS HIS TARGET—Al Mills, general manager of a fat-rendering firm in Kansas City, Mo., shoots hogs during a current attempt to check the spread of the disease vesicular exanthema. More than 2000 swine, valued at some $80,000, have been slain.

Nighttime at a truck terminal is a favorite for hijackers. If unguarded, they may bring own tractor to steal trailer.

Light Penalties

But many truckers will tell you that the crime wave will continue until the penalty is stiffer. Today's truck thief generally gets off with a year or two in prison. That risk isn't great enough to deter a daredevil gang.

And there are plenty of daredevil gangs dotting the landscape.

NO PIGMENT

There is no white pigment in white animals. The white color is like that of snow; simply the reflection of light from minute surfaces.

In present-day television receivers, the scanning spot of light necessary to produce a picture 10 inches wide travels at a speed of three miles a second—about six times the speed of a bullet from a standard Army rifle.

Netherlands Deserve Aid

American sympathy naturally is very great for the many thousands of victims of the unparalleled flood havoc that has struck the low-lying coasts of Britain, Holland and Belgium.

Inevitably there will be from this country a generous outpouring of assistance of many kinds. Americans recently have been chafing under the continuing heavy burdens of foreign aid, but they are not the sort to let the politics of foreign affairs get in the way of their humanitarian impulses.

One can make no distinction among peoples who are undergoing such heart-rending suffering. To all must go the helping hand and the fullest understanding of their plight.

Yet there is a special and brutal irony in the fact that tiny, doughty Holland is the worst hit by disaster.

Only a short time before the storm sent towering waves to engulf the Dutch coast, The Netherlands government had indicated to the United States that it would renounce $15,000,000 it was scheduled to receive under the foreign aid program.

The thirty, hard-working Dutch bravely had lifted themselves up to a condition of at least temporary self-reliance, and were an example of all Western Europe.

More than that, the Dutch had not long before just managed to overcome the last lingering effects of the man-made flood devastation wrought by the Angry Nazis as they abandoned Netherlands soil in World War II.

The Germans had opened the dikes and allowed ruinous salt water to pour over productive lands. Thousands and thousands of acres were made useless for a long time.

Painstakingly, the Dutch set about restoring their soil as farmland. At the very minimum, it takes two years to compensate for the damaging effects of salt deposits. In many places, the task is considerably slower.

Now, with that ordeal barely behind them, many Dutch farmers must go through the same thing all over again. This fantastic double burden must strain their patience and fortitude to the limit.

So, because they have suffered most, it is fair that we give money and clothes and other necessities with a special eye to the Dutch. In the humanitarian view, theirs is the commanding need. From the hard-boiled, practical standpoint, if any insist upon it, the Dutch eminently have earned our help.

Just as a footnote here, isn't it reasonable to ask what the Russian Communists, those great humanitarians, those saviors of the masses and friends of the downtrodden, are doing to help ease the anguish of Western Europe's great disaster?

They'll surprise men of real good will if they send one old samovar full of rubles.

A Kentucky farmer reported the birth of a turkey with two necks. As far as we are concerned, somebody else can have both of them.

The Sea Around Us

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1953, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.) Drew Pearson says: European chancelleries don't want U. S. aid; Dulles hears blab from France, England; Ike now Communist enemy No. 1; Intelligence reports indicate Malenkov will succeed Stalin.

Drew Pearson is now on a trip to Berlin and Paris to check on a crucial developments there and report on the progress of John Foster Dulles in unifying our Allies.

FRANKFURT—It may not seem very important when compared with the other problems facing the world today but European chancelleries just don't like the flock of lady ambassadors Ike is reported to be sending this way.

Even though the American ladies are beautiful, brains and celebrities, European foreign offices don't want them. This applies not only to the beautiful Clare Booth Luce, named to be U. S. ambassador to Italy, but also to Mrs. M. Hiram Cole Houghton of Red Oak, Iowa, the former president of General Federation of Women's Clubs, who is slated for appointment as U. S. ambassador to Holland.

Brain trusters around President Dwight D. Eisenhower carefully had figured that with Holland governed by two queens in succession it would be entirely appropriate to send Mrs. Houghton to The Hague. But Hollanders think differently. Last week one U. S. diplomat visiting the Dutch foreign office was told in half-kidding but pointed language "we put up with Bernice Baruch's brother, and I think we've suffered enough. If this lady is sent here it means war."

Naturally the Dutch diplomat didn't really feel the same way about Mrs. Luce. Europeans know that the beautiful Clare Booth Luce made a notable record in the U. S. Congress, that she has written some brilliant plays and that she is the wife of one of the nation's most noted publishers but even so, European governments just don't want a lady ambassador—no matter who she is.

The De Gasperi government fears Mrs. Luce's appointment will give ammunition to the Communists and Alcide De Gasperi is fighting the battle of his life to defeat the Communists in the coming national elections this Spring.

Note—One reason for the European thumbs-down attitude on lady diplomats is Mrs. Perle Mesta. Actually Mrs. Mesta has done a good job as minister to Luxembourg but the publicity breaks have gone against her. The musical comedy time for a long visit with Winston Churchill he had time to see the prime minister of France on the main objectives of Dulles' own trip, namely a United European Army. It is too early to report on the final results of Dulles' trip at this time, but more will appear in these columns later.

Q—The tipoff that Malenkov has now won is gleaned from the arrest of the nine Jewish doctors and the newspaper criticism of the Secret Police for permitting them to jeopardize the lives of Russian officials. This criticism of the Secret Police means criticism of its chief, Beria, and since every word going into Moscow newspapers does so by official design this criticism obviously means that Beria is about to get the ax. Allied experts look for a statement from Stalin sooner or later giving his blessing to Malenkov in order to avoid a bloody civil war over his successor. He knows that such a civil strife might mean the end of Russia.

Warmonger Ike President Eisenhower is now pictured by the Soviet propagandaists as Communist Enemy No. 1. Immediately after his inauguration the Moscow propaganda machine began a day and night campaign to picture Ike as a warmonger, hatemonger, baby killer and atom-bomb murderer.

There was a time when Ike stood beside Stalin reviewing an Army Day parade as it passed Lenin's tomb in Moscow and when he was a good friend of Marshal Grigory Zhukov but today that's all changed. Atomic War Warning

One of the most important speeches Truman made before he left the White House was the warning on the horrors of atomic warfare.

The speech was deliberately planned by the State Department to put the Kremlin on the spot by warning in advance what would happen if the hotbeds in the politburo decided to precipitate global war.

The significant and unfortunate fact is that not one word of this important speech was permitted to be published in the Russian press or to be broadcast over the radio. Soviet radio stations worked overtime to block the Voice of America programs during this time. As a result the average Russian has no idea what atomic war would mean or that the President of the United States warned them in advance.

U. S. intelligence reports reaching Berlin indicate the high-level Kremlin battle over who is to be Stalin's successor is now pretty much decided. He will be the secretary of the Communist Party, Georgi M. Malenkov. For some time the rivalry has been raged among ex-foreign minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Lavrenty P. Beria, head of the Secret Police, and Malenkov.

Molotov fell out of favor some time ago leaving the race to Beria and Malenkov.

The tipoff that Malenkov has now won is gleaned from the arrest of the nine Jewish doctors and the newspaper criticism of the Secret Police for permitting them to jeopardize the lives of Russian officials. This criticism of the Secret Police means criticism of its chief, Beria, and since every word going into Moscow newspapers does so by official design this criticism obviously means that Beria is about to get the ax. Allied experts look for a statement from Stalin sooner or later giving his blessing to Malenkov in order to avoid a bloody civil war over his successor. He knows that such a civil strife might mean the end of Russia.

PETER EDSON'S Washington News Notebook

Republican Solons Will Desert Capital To Attend Lincoln's Day Fetes At Home

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Washington won't have any big Republican Lincoln's Birthday celebration this year, unless plans for one are whipped up at the last minute. The principal reason is that all District of Columbia Republicans worked themselves almost to death on the inaugural. They're just now beginning to catch their breath.

Also, there's a feeling among Republican leaders that any further celebration now—within a month after inauguration—would be an anticlimax.

There's further reason for not holding a big rally here in that most of the speakers of national prominence will be out in the states, attending local Lincoln's Birthday celebrations and related victory dinners.

The House of Representatives will take a recess from February 7 to 14, and the Senate plans to recess from February 7 to 16. This will give GOP congressmen a chance to go home or wherever they are wanted to make victory speeches at local celebrations.

George Stewart has set up a speakers' bureau at GOP national headquarters in Washington and is booking the party leaders for as many meetings as possible, going and coming.

Although there may be no big celebration in Washington, there will be several hundred dinners in at least 40 states. There'll be everything from box lunches to $50-a-plate money-raising affairs.

So far there have been no Republican rallies scheduled for Arkansas, Louisiana, Georgia, North Carolina, Florida and Virginia. But Alabama will have one, in Birmingham.

Texas is planning a big GOP rally. First idea was to hold it in Houston, but they couldn't find a hall big enough. So the scene now is tentatively being shifted to Dallas.

Some of the dinners may be held in early Spring. A few of them, in the South, even might be held in the period when the Democrats normally hold their Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners—from March 15 to April 13. This is the period when Congress usually takes another vacation, to give the Democrats a chance to whoop it up.

For the Republicans to hold rallies in this period would be part of the strategy to develop and expand the beachhead in the South, won by President Eisenhower in the last election.

Inaugural Tickets Valuable A preliminary estimate is that the Republicans will clear about $100,000 on the Eisenhower inaugural ceremonies. Tickets to everything were sold out completely, and in some cases oversold. Ten days after everybody had gone home, the inaugural committee still was sending out invitations and tickets.

Most of the people who are getting their tickets late aren't squawking about late delivery. They're all handsomely engraved and personally addressed in fancy script. This gives them a souvenir value.

All but about $15,000 of the estimated $100,000 profit will be turned over to various charities. The money being held out is to be kept as a nest egg to enable the next inaugural committee to get going in 1956.

"Jack Daniels" distillery at Lynchburg, Tenn., has been given

U. S. Tax Court permission to obtain a deposition from ex-Vice President John N. Garner of Uvalde, Texas, on the "standing, reputation and quality" of "Jack Daniels."

Conditions under which this situation arose grew out of two government suits against the distillery, charging it with deficiencies in income and excess profits tax payments over several years.

The company denies the claim, and in building up its defense, presents testimonials from Garner and other distinguished citizens on the character of "Jack Daniels."

Garner, it will be remembered, was called "an evil, whisky-drinking old man," by John L. Lewis because the VP used to "strike a blow for freedom" in his chambers, after hours.

Miles Of Oratory Presidential and vice presidential candidates plus ex-President Truman traveled more than 100,000 miles by air and 60,000 miles by train during the last campaign. Jerry Greene made the tabulation of air travel for Fairchild's "Pegasus" magazine and the train figures were compiled by Association of American Railroads.

In all, the Republicans traveled 88,000 miles to 75,000 for the Democrats.

President Eisenhower ran up the highest mileage, with 37,000 in the air and 26,000 by train. Vice President Nixon did 19,000 by air, 6,000 by train.

Governor Stevenson did 27,000 miles by air. He had planned to campaign exclusively by plane. But when he saw the success of the Eisenhower whistle-stopping, Stevenson's plans were changed to include 5,300 miles by train.

Senator Sparkman did 19,000 miles by air and 3,700 by train. President Truman stuck to his train throughout the campaign and logged almost 21,000 miles.

Delegates Will Boost UN President Eisenhower's appointments to the United Nations posts—Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Mr. Oswald B. Lord and James J. Wadsworth, Jr.—have been given instructions to do a lot of speechmaking and writing on behalf of UN. It is reported that the President feels people don't know enough about what goes on in UN and what it does to promote world peace and the spreading of democratic ideas.

U. S. representatives to the UN therefore are to be given the added chore of selling the UN program to the country.

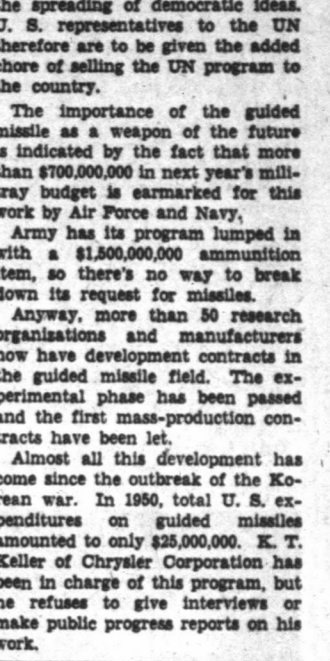

The importance of the guided missile as a weapon of the future is indicated by the fact that more than $700,000,000 in the next year's military budget is earmarked for this work by Air Force and Navy.

Army has its program lumped in with a $1,500,000,000 ammunition item, so there's no way to break down its request for missiles.

Anyway, more than 50 research organizations and manufacturers now have development contracts in the guided missile field. The experimental phase has been passed and the first mass-production contracts have been let.

Almost all this development has come since the outbreak of the Korean war. In 1950, total U. S. expenditures on guided missiles amounted to only $25,000,000. K. T. Keller of Chrysler Corporation has been in charge of this program, but he refuses to give interviews or make public progress reports on his work.

FUNNY BUSINESS

The Golden Door

By Bart Spicer Copyright by Bart Spicer. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

XXVI I FLIPPED open the paper and read the late headlines. A box of late bulletins below the fold had a screaming banner across the top. "Portemain Heirless Found Dead." Under a Denver dateline, the report was short and crisp. Mrs. Monique Fornier, declared heiress to the Portemain fortune just yesterday, was found dead in a melting snowbank at the bottom of a cliff in the mountains west of Denver. She had apparently been driving her car during a storm, had gone off the road and been covered partially by a landslide, partially by the falling snow. She had last been seen about six weeks ago.

Just under the Denver item was a brief statement that Mrs. John Eli Jonas, of this city, was heiress to the late Mrs. Monique Fornier. The paper guessed the amount to be slightly more than $7,000,000, which was a drop of almost a million from the amount I thought it was. I didn't think Jack's wife would miss it much, though.

For most of the day I had vaguely been thinking about all that money in Denver. That amount makes a great big motive for anything, but it just didn't fit with Lida Jonas. Her husband's old man already had 10 times that much and I knew she had every nickel she could possibly spend.

It was sometime after 10 o'clock when the telephone rang. I wasn't ready for it and the sudden blare of noise almost brought me to my feet. I lifted the receiver. "I didn't do so good," Maxwell said in a complaining note. "That desk clerk wouldn't buy. I did find out this fellow MacEwen has a corner apartment on the ground floor. I been watching from the slinging station. I don't see any movement but the lights just went on." "That's good enough. Where are you?" "I might go in with you," he said. "But not if I don't know how much the chips cost." "You don't go in," I said flatly. "I want somebody at my back. That's all you do. Maybe I don't go in, either. Which are the windows we want?" Maxwell let it go. He slid out of the seat and eased the door shut without a sound. I came around the car and gestured for him to lead the way. Maxwell had the service entrance spotted and we walked softly up a gravel drive to the rear of the building, cutting back along the side to the lighted windows he pointed out.

"Two large windows-facing the river belonged to the apartment we wanted. They were covered tightly with white Venetian blinds that fitted without a crack at the sides. I could see a glow of light but that was all. At the side of the building, around the corner from the large windows, was a tall, narrow window that began about five feet from the ground. It looked about right for the bathroom. I touched the lower edge with one finger and found it open. The window moved back silently. For no reason at all the open window worried me. I took Maxwell's arm and walked him back to the service drive. "Locked, Carney?" he asked quietly. "No," I said. "It's open. But I don't like it. Not a bit." He shook his head sadly. "I don't get it, Carney," he said. "I sure don't get it. You getting cold feet?" "They couldn't get colder," I said. "It looks like an invitation to me. Maybe somebody's expecting a visitor." "Well, let's blow them," Maxwell said. "No point in it." I tapped his shoulder. "Can you get around to the apartment door?" "Sure, but..." "Then take off. I'll wait till I hear you knock before I go in. Make a lot of noise, like a happy drunk. Shout and kick the door. Just make sure you distract a little attention." Maxwell took off. (To Be Continued)

Young Arrival In Your Home Is Tougher Than You Believe

EDITOR'S NOTE: For new mothers—and new mothers-to-be—nothing is more reassuring than the wisdom of experienced mothers. Here's the first of six articles of just such wisdom, written by a mother whose own mother is a well-known child-care specialist. The article is condensed from "Parents' Magazine Book of Baby Care," a mother's guide to the first six years by Eleanor S. Duncan with the counsel of Clara Savage Littleale, editor of Parents' Magazine, published by McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc.

By ELEANOR S. DUNCAN
You have been champing at the bit, asking the doctor to please let you take yourself and your baby home, and now that the day is actually here, you may be getting a little stage fright.

The baby is such a tiny thing, you've never had a baby before, and what on earth does one do with a newborn infant?

Everything is quite all right, though. The baby is not quite as delicate as he seems and he won't break in two if you touch him.

Everything in the world is new to him; an inexperienced mother will seem all right to him because he has no one to compare her to. The Tyke's Hunger

Make everything as easy for yourself as possible and be confident that things will work out well. If your mother or another relative cannot stay with you, you should have paid help.

Your brand-new baby isn't quite as delicate as he seems, but a firm grip at bath time helps him feel secure.

Whoever it is should plan to be with you for about two weeks or until you are truly able to get along all right by yourself.

Many doctors nowadays allow the baby to eat whenever he is hungry or to sleep as long or as little as he cares to.

This has come to be known as the "self-demand" method; and at first, the baby may be very irregular, with feeding periods ranging anywhere from two hours to six hours apart.

Don't Spoil Him
Unless you understand this type of day doesn't continue indefinitely, you have every reason to be skeptical of the self-demand method.

Nobody wants a spoiled child who gets everything he wants when he wants it, without regard to the convenience of other people.

But that is not the idea of self-demand. Its purpose is to make the baby's adjustment to life easier, to help him thrive and be happy much sooner.

Reasonable Regularity
Do attend to your baby's wants, other than eating and sleeping, with as much regularity as you can.

Give him his bath at the same time each day—mid-morning is usual, but any convenient time is all right. Give him his airing at the same time. Don't wake him up for his bath or feeding or airing, we hasten to say, but carry out your program as near to the appointed hour as the baby permits.

That is the beginning step toward reasonable regularity in all things.

Most Common Fears
Not long ago, a group of eminent obstetricians, pediatricians and psychiatrists got together and discussed the reactions to motherhood of normal, well-balanced women, as they had observed them. They agreed that certain fears were characteristic in the first days home with a new baby.

One common fear is that the baby will stop breathing. This is due to the fact that new babies breathe quite shallowly. You may find yourself wanting to steal in frequently and hang over the crib, reassuring yourself that respiration is still going on.

Sensible Precautions
There is nothing wrong with that, but if your baby was pronounced fine and normal by the doctor, you have no real cause for worry. When your baby gets safely into the world, every cell in his small body is organized to keep him there.

A second seemingly universal fear is that the baby may smother. There is no reason why the mother should worry about smothering if she takes certain sensible precautions.

The tiny baby does tend to burrow his head into anything soft. That's why we ask you not to have a pillow or loose padding or loose blankets in the crib.

Listen For Cries
Observe these rules carefully: See that all blankets are anchored securely under the mattress. Have no loose ties or strings that can get wrapped about the baby's throat. Don't hesitate to go to him and investigate if he cries.

With a careful attentive mother close by, there is practically no chance that your baby will either smother or strangle himself.

Only the female mosquito needs blood as food and gets it from wild animals and birds as well as human beings. When such blood is not available, they feed on plant juices.

'HAIL RODS'

The expression "B'nai Brith" means Sons of the Covenant. The association was established in the United States in 1843.

The MATURE PARENT

How To Handle Youngsters Blinded By Indulgent Gifts

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Mrs. P. has four youngsters. Some time ago, their father decided that he wished to marry his young secretary. So he was given a divorce and in exchange, gave money to support his children and their mother.

On Saturday afternoon, he and his new wife come to collect the children in their big maroon sedan. The children are delighted to spend the day with them.

It is a relief to get away from the mother who hasn't time to take them to football games. It is fine to escape from the person who has to buy shoes and oranges instead of ice cream desserts in fancy restaurants. It is thrilling to be with the high-spirited father who puts $1 bills in their pockets and never reminds them to make beds or get homework done. It is such fun that when they come home to the woman who is raising them, they are often rude and disparaging.

"My sister's heart is broken," writes the children's aunt. "The children don't know the whole story of their father's disloyalty. Should their mother warn them against trusting this irresponsible man?"

No. Their mother would do better to stop fooling herself. She is jealous of the maroon sedan. As always, jealousy is the result of self-depreciation. That is the real problem here. So the answer is not attack upon the father, but better self-value for the mother.

If there is any silver lining to divorce, it is its power to shock us into a shift of standards. In our new scales, we should be able to weigh human value more efficiently.

It should become easy for us to see that love is not the purchase of ice cream and tickets to football games, but the steady and conscious support of children's self-esteem. If we are giving this kind of love, our new sense of value should confirm our right to place high worth upon our gift.

This mother is suffering because she has not accomplished this shift of standards. Although deep down she knows material giving means nothing, that knowledge has not yet become truth to live by. So, emotionally, she still is deeply impressed with gifts of $1 bills and rides in big sedans.

I hope the day soon will come when she is so certain and clear about the value of what she herself gives that she will be able to stand up and defend it.

To the disparaging children who flaunt the $1 bills, I hope she will say, "Though it is kind of your father to give you money, I want equal appreciation for the dinner I have prepared for you. If you do not learn to recognize love that is given to you, you are going to become poor children. So stop trying to threaten and hurt me with the gifts of money you have received."

We cannot speak truth with conviction if we do not believe in it with our whole hearts. Learning to believe in it is the answer to this mother's problem. (All rights reserved, NEA Service, Inc.)

Daddy Ringtail

Daddy Ringtail And The Sleeping Beauty

The Huffen Puffen, the friendly colt, was very sleepy. He had eaten some sleeping-berries, I think. He had also eaten a fine lunch. The afternoon was warm and lazy.

The Huffen climbed into the hammock there outside his hollow tree. He settled himself to do as happy a job of snoring and sleeping as ever was done in the Great Forest.

"Happy day, Huffen Puffen," said Mugwump Monkey, the monkey boy, who came running up just then.

"Happy guzzaw," snored the Huffen for an answer, all to show that he was asleep.

"Wake up, Huffen," said Mugwump. He said the Huffen was needed at school to be in the play about Prince Charming.

The Huffen opened his eyes. He said: "You mean that the teacher, Toowit Toovoo, wants me to be in the play about Prince Charming?"

"Sure," said Mugwump. "The play where Prince Charming at last finds the sleeping beauty, and awakens her with a kiss?"

"The very same," said Mugwump.

The Huffen jumped up and out of the hammock. Away he hurried with Mugwump back to school. The Huffen was happy with thinking that he was a Prince Charming who would awaken the beautiful sleeping beauty with a kiss.

But it didn't happen that way, oh no. The Huffen could never be a Prince Charming, said Toowit Toovoo, the teacher.

Toowoo, the teacher. The Huffen wasn't a prince; he wasn't charming; he wasn't handsome. The Huffen wasn't the sleeping beauty.

"Oh no!" cried the Huffen. He said he wasn't a beauty; he said he wasn't sleeping. He said he wasn't about to put on a dress to be a girl, and lie down in the fine bed the teacher had got for the play.

But the Huffen sat on the bed to see how soft and comfortable it was, and it was so soft and comfortable—the Huffen was fast asleep before he could say Sleeping Beauty Backwards. The folks even put the dress on him without waking him up and tomorrow I'll tell you the story of what happened when the Prince Charming Mugwump happened along. Happy day!

Relax For Easy Power

Chapter 14

I once filmed a program for television with my friend, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker. We had been assured that the work could be done quickly, leaving him free to go on to the many other matters on his daily agenda.

However, the filming was delayed long beyond the time anticipated. I noted, however, that the captain showed no signs of agitation. He did not become nervous or anxious. He did not pace up and down, putting in frantic calls to his office. Instead, he accepted the situation gracefully. There were a couple of old rocking chairs at the studio, apparently intended for use in a set other than ours. He sat in one of them in a very relaxed manner.

I have always been a great admirer of Eddie Rickenbacker and I commented on his lack of tension. "I know how busy you are," I said, "and I marvel at the way you sit quiet, composed and peaceful like."

He laughingly replied, "Oh, I just practice what you preach. Come on, easy does it. Sit down here beside me."

I pulled up the other rocking chair and did a little relaxing on my own. Then I said, "Eddie, I know you have some technique to attain this impressive serenity. Tell me about it, please."

He is a modest man, but because of my persistence he gave me a formula which he says he uses frequently. I now use it myself and it is very effective. It may be described as follows:

Relaxation results from re-creation, and the process of re-creation should be continuous. The human being is meant to be attached to a continual flow of force that proceeds from God through the individual and back to God for renewal. When one lives in tune with this constantly re-creative process one learns the indispensable ability to relax and work on the basis of easy does it.

How to master this skill? Here are 10 rules for taking the hard work out of your job. Try these proven methods for working hard easily. They will help you to relax and have easy power.

1. Don't get the idea that you are Atlas carrying the world on your shoulders. Don't strain so hard. Don't take yourself so seriously.

2. Determine to like your work. Then it will become a pleasure, not drudgery. Perhaps you do not need to change your job. Change yourself to your work will seem different.

3. Plan your work—work your plan. Lack of system produces that "I'm swamped" feeling.

4. Don't try to do everything at once. That is why time is spread out. Heed that wise advice from the Bible, "This one thing I do."

5. Get a correct mental attitude, remembering that ease or difficulty in your work depends upon how you think about it. Think it's hard and you make it hard. Think it's easy and it tends to become easy.

6. Become efficient in your work. "Knowledge is power" (over your job). It is always easier to do a thing right.

7. Practice being relaxed. Easy always does it. Don't press or tug. Take it in your stride.

8. Discipline yourself not to put off until tomorrow what you do today. Accumulation of undone jobs makes your work harder. Keep your work up to schedule.

9. Pray about your work. You will get relaxed efficiency by so doing.

10. Take on the "unseen partner." It is surprising the load He will take off you. God is as much at home in offices, factories, stores and kitchens as in churches. He knows more about your job than you do. He will help make your work easy.

Joshua's army marched around Jericho for six days and, on the seventh, his priests blew the trumpets, and the walls fell.

When we were doing some construction work at my farm in Pawling, New York, I watched a workman swinging a shovel. He was shoveling a pile of sand. It was a beautiful sight. Stripped to the waist, his lean and muscular body worked with precision and correlation. The shovel rose and fell in perfect rhythm. He would push the shovel into the pile, lean his body against it and drive it deep into the sand. Then, in a clear, free swing it came up and the sand was deposited without a break in the motion. Again the shovel went back into the sand, again his body leaned against it, again the shovel lifted easily in a perfect arc. One almost had a feeling that he could swing in rhythm to the motion of this workman. Indeed the man did sing as he worked.

Easy Does It

I was not surprised when the foreman told me that he considered the man one of his best workmen. The foreman also spoke of him as a good-humored, happy, and a pleasant person with whom to work. Here was a relaxed man who lived with joyous power, master of art of easy does it.

★ DR. JORDAN SAYS ★

Stay In Top Physical Condition If Any Hope Of Having Child

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

A woman who read one of these columns on barren marriages asks for further information. She says that she is 37 years old, has been married 16 years, but has been unable to have a child.

Doctors have examined both her and her husband and never have told her she would not ever conceive, but haven't really told her what the trouble is, she says. She adds she thought that to be sterile means one cannot bear children.

This is indeed a difficult and touching problem. There are many married couples who want very much to have children and just do not seem to be able to do so. The "why" of this is not always easy to discover.

However, it should be said first that fertility is not always what may be called an absolute matter. In almost all human beings fertility varies from time to time, but it is apparent that some persons have longer periods of comparative sterility than others.

The first step for a couple that wishes to have children but does not seem able to do so, is for both partners to be thoroughly examined. Failure to bear children is just about as likely to be "the fault" of the man as of the woman, and an examination of only one partner is therefore inconclusive.

Modern methods of examination can and often do reveal a physical cause either in the wife or husband which may explain the failure of conception. In many cases, and in either partner, this can be corrected.

In the correspondent whose inquiry is mentioned at the beginning of this column, however, that step already has been taken and apparently the doctors have not found any definite reason why the couple cannot have children. If this is the case, the couple must be recognized as "relatively infertile"—that is, they can have children, but the chances of having them are not very good.

This, however, explains why the physicians in charge have not committed themselves to saying that the woman cannot ever conceive. Indeed she may go along for years and then, when she has given up hope, suddenly may have a child.

May Need Vitamins

In couples where there is relative infertility—in other words, no definite reason why conception cannot take place—the effort has to be made to keep both husband and wife in the best possible physical condition. Sometimes the addition of vitamins to the diet, the correction of some minor defects—even such as diseased tonsils or the like—may bring about the desired result.

The physician is here looking on the borderlines of medical knowledge and cannot guarantee any results, but it seems to be an undoubted truth that sometimes improvement in the general condition of one or both partners will lead to the birth of a child long desired and long delayed.
