DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF FRIONA AND PARMER COUNTY.

VOLUME 5—NUMBER 35.

FRIONA, PARMER COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1930.

$1.50 PER YEAR

JOHN MANLY, MANAGER WHEAT GROWERS' ASSOCIATION, SPOKE TO FRIONA CITIZENS TUESDAY

John Manly, general manager of the Oklahoma-Texas Wheat Growers Association, addressed about 200 people here Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Manly was here in interest of the association of which he is manager and his address was given entirely in the interest of the association. He spoke of the difficulties which the association has met and to a large extent overcome, and of the more hopeful prospects ahead. He explained why it had become necessary for Oklahoma and Texas associations to merge, showing that it was necessary to secure greater volume of wheat to be handled with no increase in cost of handling.

He took up the new farm relief law recently passed by congress, and the organization of the National Farm Grain Corporation. He said that while there were a large number of meritorious provisions and objects in the operation of the corporation, there were three outstanding features connected with it and owing to lack of time to dwell on all its worthy features, devoted his time to a brief explanation of the three outstanding features—organization, surplus control and stabilization of price.

The organization feature will be devoted toward organizing all the farmers of the country without regard to the kind of crops produced in varying sections, the organization being to aid in educating the people as to the real merits and purposes of the law as well as to more easily secure all benefits to be derived.

Surplus control will be developed for the purpose of spreading the surplus, if any, of fat years to in a measure cover the shortage of lean years. The speaker stated that statistics show there is no surplus and there has never been a time when the country was more than three months removed from starvation. He stated there was no just reason why farmers be penalized for producing abundant crops, but that such has been the case, as farmers do not receive as much for their large crops, on an average, as they usually do for a small crop.

Market stabilization does not necessarily mean a fancy price each year, but will mean clipping of high points as well as building up low points and assuring producers fair and living price for his product each year, regardless of the amount raised.

Mr. Manly told of attacks being made on the law, some even terming it class legislation. He showed this law is no more class legislation than many other laws enacted for benefit of other classes, among which is the protective tariff and immigration laws, one to protect the manufacturer, the other for the benefit of labor. Mention was made of a law passed for benefit of railroads, which guarantees not less than 5 1/2 per cent on the investment.

The speaker stated the only way the new farm relief law could be made thoroughly effective was by all farmers giving it their fullest support in all ways and this would be easier if all would make an effort to understand its provisions, and called on his hearers to fall in line for this purpose.

THE DEBATE

The scriptural debate held here last week, beginning Tuesday evening and continuing daily until Sunday evening, attracted a large attendance and closed apparently satisfactory to all interested.

The debaters, Rev. Alva Johnson for the Church of Christ, and Rev. A. L. Eaves for the Baptists, held each other strictly to the questions and hewed to the line with their powerful arguments, all of which were backed substantially by the Scripture.

Two sessions were held each day, in the forenoon at the Church of Christ, and the evening sessions at the high school auditorium, at which times the large room was filled to capacity. There were many people here from neighboring towns and adjoining counties and states. Some people came from as far as Oklahoma.

No vote was taken as to the effectiveness of either speaker, and each person attending was allowed to make his own decision as to the merits of the discussion.

A GOOD RAIN

This locality was visited by a splendid rain on Friday of last week, which seemed to cover the entire Friona territory.

Reports show, however, that the amount of rain which fell varied greatly in different parts of the territory. To the north and northwest the rain was heavy, estimates ranging from one to two inches, while a few miles west of town a heavy fall is also reported.

In the immediate vicinity of Friona for a radius of a few miles it is estimated that not over a half inch was received, but it is thought this amount is sufficient to carry the wheat for several weeks and put it in good growing condition.

Southeast of town in the Lakeview community a heavy rain is also reported, being estimated at from an inch and a half to two inches. Taking it as a whole it was a wonderful rain and the farmers are estimating their crops at a much higher yield than they had previously done.

WILL HOLD TRACTOR SCHOOL

This event promises to be one of the largest programs of its kind ever held in Friona and the proprietors of this progressive and enterprising firm are doing all in their power to make it one of the most beneficial and effective as well.

The firm of Buchanan & Rosson was formerly known as the R. B. R. Implement Company, under the able management of H. G. Morris, local representative, has proven itself to be one of Friona's leading business institutions, and Mr. Morris, by his genial disposition and business tact has made many friends among Friona people, who will wish him and his firm unlimited success when they become fully installed in their new quarters.

The page advertisement carried in this and last week's issues of the Star informs our readers that this tractor school will be conducted by two of the International Harvester Company's best qualified men, and that much worthwhile instruction will be given to farmers who use their tractors or any other make of tractor, and that all who can be urged to attend and share in this useful information on the care, use and operation of all kinds of farm machinery and implements, as well as tractors.

LOCAL BUSINESS GROWING

J. J. Horton stepped into the Star office Tuesday and in a short conversation mentioned the rapid growth of Friona's business interests during the past year.

As an example, he mentioned his own business, which in the past year has grown from a small nucleus to a good paying institution. His business interests are varied, but he places his greatest stress on insurance. He buys hogs, cotton and grain and deals in real estate and rentals, and says his increased business is only one instance in Friona. He attributes considerable credit for the growth of his business to the fact that he has constantly advertised it in the columns of the Star, having a most attractive ad in this issue.

Dr. A. P. McElroy received a letter from his sister, Mrs. Mary Boyd, who is now in the State of Washington, extending to him and Mrs. McElroy an invitation to join her there for the summer for a real vacation.

SIDELIGHTS

By Marvin Jones, Member of Congress from Texas.

Southward, as well as Westward, the star of Empire takes its way.

We have reached the end of an epoch in the history of our country.

New England industry is on the wane. The South and Southwest have been growing and building.

The coming decade will witness the greatest development in the Southern and Southwestern States that has ever taken place within the borders of America.

In making this statement I am not merely expressing my own views. It represents the viewpoint of practically every one who has studied these conditions.

What the the influences that are bringing about this new development? Why are men of experience advising young men to seek their fortunes in this fast-growing section?

Here is the reason:

The South and Southwest today possess much of the reserve supply of natural resources of America, the raw material out of which so many thousands of articles are being made.

The South has a large reserve supply of timber, coal and iron.

The Southwest has a large reserve supply of the world's oil, natural gas and hydro-electric power.

Our portion of the Union has, in large measure, a natural monopoly on cotton, cotton seed and cotton seed oil.

We have the finest wheat lands in America.

In addition to all these advantages, the Southwest has a climate and a fertile soil which no other section of the world can compare.

If properly utilized, her coal, oil, natural gas and water power will give her a tremendous advantage over New England—that of cheap power with which to transform her raw materials into the finished article. By saving the freight charges from New England to the Southern States, our factory owners would prosper, our laborers could be well paid, and our section would grow wealthy.

The difference in climate between our section and the Northern States gives the average family in the South and Southwest a decided advantage in the cost of fuel and clothes, to say nothing of the saving in building construction.

According to the Department of Commerce our industries have tripled in the last decade.

As a dairying section we are destined to lead the Nation. Our soil, climate and abundance of feed materials give us advantages with which other sections cannot compete.

When the fact becomes generally known that Texas and surrounding States are practically free of tuberculosis among the cattle, while the cattle of the Northern States, and especially the Northeastern States, are infested to a dangerous degree, the demand for our dairy products will be greater than can be supplied.

The South has passed through the stress period that followed the Civil War, and a new day is dawning. She is destined to lead the world in the triumphant march of future progress.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Osborn spent last Wednesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Anderson of Farwell.

Notice is given elsewhere in this issue of the Star of the date and place for holding the regular city election for the election of a mayor and two commissioners to serve the city for a term of two years.

To date the Star has heard of no definite candidates for either of these offices and only three names have been even so much as mentioned. They are R. H. Kinsley for mayor, and J. A. Blackwell and Jesse M. Osborn for commissioners.

The last named gentlemen are the present incumbents and have faithfully performed their duties as such and have zealously guarded the city's interests as such. They are both successful young business men and the Star feels sure the people of Friona can do no better than to reinstate them in their present positions.

As to Mr. Kinsley, he is one of the oldest residents of the city so far as continuous years of residence are concerned. He may be the oldest in this respect.

In addition to this he is one of Friona's most successful business men, having established a mercantile business here in a small way which under his careful and efficient management grew to be one of the largest of its kind in the Plains country. This success is ample evidence of his business ability, and having now retired from active business, it would seem that he should have ample time to devote to the city's interest and constantly engaged in his regular business. We are not intimating that Mr. Kinsley has nothing else to do, for it is a well known fact that he has, but it is the opinion of several citizens of the town that, should he be elected as mayor, he will see that the city gets all that is coming to it in the way of civic improvements and an impartial administration of the city government.

The Star is not assuming the role of a dictator as to whom the citizens shall choose as their officers, but feels that some decision should be made in regard to candidates for the three offices before the day of a election dawns.

CHAPTER XV—Continued

The door closed behind the four, and as if the click of the latch had been a signal Cara rose from her chair. Her eyes were brown pools, flecked with star-glint, and it seemed to Fellows that he was sinking gradually, gratefully, into the infinite mystery of their depths. Here, rekindled for him, was the subtle glamor that had lured him from Perenna to Lisbon, and from Lisbon aboard the True Bounty, its embers glowing rosier with every breath he drew. He leaned toward her, and suddenly she was in his arms, her lips lifted frankly to his.

CHAPTER XVI

Mrs. Rhodes Makes Up Her Mind

"Easy, Pete! Whoa, thar, Paul!" Jeff Riggle caught the thong of his whip around the butt, and climbed creakily down from his seat, as the Widow Rhodes emerged from the side door of the General Armstrong into the spring twilight of the inn yard.

"Late as usual," she sniffed. "Ben stoppin' off ag'in to see that bussy daown to Floyd-Jones, hey?"

"Alas believe the wusst of a man, daon't ye?" Jeff countered. "Anyone 'ud be lata, carryin' the load I did."

"Tain't noticeable," she remarked, peering into the coach's empty interior.

"Set 'em off back a piece," affirmed Jeff. "Squire's to home."

"Mrs. Rhodes became alert. "Lion Follows? Home? Why, ye footless loon! Keepin' all the news back from a body!"

"Naow, naow, M'randy, ye ain't give me time to flap my jaw, I was all sot to tell ye, and—"

"Go on, lummox! Tell me! Has he got his health? Haow'd he do privateer?"

"Done fine, Married."

"Married!" The widow's tone was falsest. "Aprivateer'n? Be ye crazy?"

"Shore, he's married. Thatair Miss Inglepin was up to Chater's. Reck'lect?"

"Waall, I vum," exclaimed the widow. "Guess I better git my bonnet, 'n' hustle up to the Manor. They'll be needin' help more'n likely."

wouldn't be no need to keep him from gittin' away," propounded Jeff. "I had it on my mind quite a time, M'randy, to talk things over with ye."

"Save yer breath," advised Mrs. Rhodes. "Did ye hear haow much prize money Tom got?"

Jeff's response was unintelligible, and he turned to the task of unharassing his team; but the widow reached out a lean arm, and grappled him to her.

"None o' that with me, Jeff Riggle," she ordered. "Answer my question."

"Haow'd I knaow? Ask him yer-self."

"As if ye didn't worm into every bit o' news along the road," she scoffed. "Haow much?"

After a hopeless wriggle, Jeff answered sullenly:

"They do say squire give Tom all his share o' the prize money."

"Squire's share? Glory be! But haow much?"

"Four-five thousand dollars." Her arm fell beside her.

"Land's sake! All that money for a nigger-man?"

"Squire 'n' Mis' Fellowes air purty fond o' Cuffee."

"Oh, Cuffee's a good nigger! But—All that for him! I vum! And Tom innocent as a cradle babe!"

Her head sank in reflection, while Jeff regarded her more anxiously than before.

"I got a ter'ble hunger, M'randy," he said. "Haow 'bout a snack to eat?"

She didn't hear him. Her eye was scanning the inn structure with a calculating efficiency.

"Mebbe 'twould be a good scheme to change the name," she murmured.

"Ye jest changed it," objected Jeff. "I knaow, but the war ain't goin' to last much longer. And folks won't think much o' sojers."

"The Sallor's Rest! That 'ud be a good one. Kinder appealin', too. Make a man feel to home. Course, we'd need a new sign, but that pig fits into any pictur', and a handy man—"

"M'randy, ye ain't fixin' to throw me over?" gulped Jeff. "Ye ain't goin' to go 'n' tangle yerself with this leetle, hairy sailor that wont draw two sober breaths ashore?"

"I'll thank ye to keep a civil tongue in yer head where Tom's concerned," the widow retorted briskly. "And I ain't throwin' ye over—thar ain't nothin' betwixt us to throw, Jeff Riggle. Jest 'cause I've let ye order me 'round like I was yer wife, which the dear Lord knaows I'd never dream of bein', not while thar was a single other man left able to draw britches onto his legs, ain't no reason why ye should presume to try to boss 'n' bother me. Git along, naow! Unhitch them bosses, 'n' bed 'em daown. If ye want a bite, thar's a ham in the cold cupboard, 'n' fire for a dish o' tea."

"But whar ye goin', M'randy?" he wailed as she started to sail out of the yard.

"Goin'? Why, of course, I'm goin' to see what I kin do for squire 'n' Mis' Fellowes."

"Fingerin' to marry Tom right off?" he snarled. "Mebbe he'll have some-thing to say for hisself."

"He's a sensible man, Tom is," she retorted. "And thar's more to a sailor 'n' thar is to a stage driver."

Bitterness welled up in Jeff's heart. "Yes, and more'n one wife most generally."

(THE END.)

No Stop Signs

Little Charley, only three years old, likes to visit his grandmother, who lives in English avenue. He can go out his back gate and across the alley to her back gate very easily. He and his little brother and sister are quarantined with the whooping cough, therefore he cannot go visiting. He was begging his mother to let him go to grandma's when she told him he could not go over there while the sign was on the house.

"Black Monday"

Stow's Chronicle relates that the original Black Monday was on April 14, 1300—the "morrow after Easter." King Edward III, with his army, lay before the city of Paris, which day was full dark of mist and hail and so bitter cold that many men died on their horsebacks with cold; wherefore until this day it hath been called "Black Monday."

Clothes Pin

Bernice, age four and a half, on seeing a safety pin on her mother's dress, said: "Mother, may I have that clothes pin?"

A Contingency

As the collection plate in church approached, Theodore found himself with a $1 bill, which his mother had thrust into his hand. The nearby worshippers heard his apprehensive whisper: "But what if they haven't got change for $1, mother?"

CAPED FROCKS OF PRINTED CREPE; TAFFETA OR SATIN FOR EARLY WEAR

YOU can tell the moment you glimpse a frock of gay printed crepe made with a cape, that it is distinctly advance. There's nothing smarter on the boards than these caped prints.

The spring costume in the picture flaunts a cape of circular cut, the neckline finished with a soft tie of self-print. The quest for these new printed costumes will reveal many plaited cape versions as well, the plaits falling from a fitted round model pictured first in this group, made either of black satin or taffeta, color-matched to the costume, makes an admirable "first hat."

In its back-bow treatment this model conveys a very important style message. Even the hats with brims display their bow trimmings across the back. The bow may be very tiny or it may be a huge arrangement of loops and ends extended so as to show from the front.

Speaking of bows, surely this may yoke. Frequently the skirt is plaited to match the cape.

To emphasize its modishness, the really and truly up-to-the-moment gown of pliant print worn with a matching cape, instead of going utterly sleeveless as one might suppose, takes upon itself quaint little puffs or cap sleeves. Thus with the cape removed, the gown gives further evidence of its smart styling, for tiny novelty sleeves are the latest whim of fashion.

It is interesting to note how most every gown has its matching wrap, or should have. If not a cape then a bolero jacket is made of the same materials as the dress or skirt and if neither of these then a hip-length or finger-tip coat.

The leaf design of the print pictured bespeaks that which is among the newest in patterned silks. Fruit motifs are also very new.

One would be inclined to think that polka dots had outlived their popularity. On the contrary there is a veritable stampede of dots in the fabric realm. Not only are large bold be aptly called a "bow season." The new frocks and blouses are animated with whole flocks of bows and milady's hat follows suit in this matter of bow trimmings.

The motif on the shapely hat to the right at the top is in line with the season's trend which combines felt with both straw and fabric in the fashioning of the new chapeaux. The mode decrees that hats must frame the face to a flattering degree, and the long, side drape given to this hat carries out these instructions.

In fashion circles we are hearing much in regard to transparent effects. Dresses are of the finest sort, fashioned as they are of thin laces, nets, chiffon and sheerest of woolsens. Even things knitted are running to lacey openwork patternings. What is true in regard to frocks and blouses concerning transparency, pertains also to hats for spring and the ensuing summer. Wherefore the revival of old-time horsehair braid as a medium for chic millinery is to be expected.

Two fetching models of horsehair are herewith illustrated. In the in-

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

First Aid—Home Remedy Coming

The Good Samaritan is pictured as "The First Aid" in the national reminder which has been sent to druggists all over America, announcing the 9th anniversary of "First Aid—Home Remedy Week," fixed for March 16-23.

The idea of an advertising-merchandising one-year drive timed with spring house cleaning was given to the drug world by Sterling Products, Incorporated, in 1922. Preparedness for meeting accident or sudden illness is emphasized as a sensible and reasonable sales plan which serves to alleviate needless suffering and undoubtedly save life.

The National Association of Retail Druggists sponsored this ad-sales plan and later added Pharmacy Week as an autumn festival for intensive advertising and salesmanship in the drug world.

The National Wholesale Druggists Association and the National Association of Drug Clerks have joined the N. A. R. D. in establishing these festivals of selling as Spring and Autumn fixtures for the welfare of humanity.

"Fill That Medicine Chest Now" is the slogan of "First Aid—Home Remedy Week," and has been from the beginning. It was Dr. William E. Weiss, himself a graduate from the ranks of retail druggists, who first saw the value of "First Aid—Home Remedy Week," and wherever live-wire druggists have co-operated by showing a window filled with suggestive first aids for both accident or illness, and using their home newspaper advertising space, they have added cheerfully to their March business.

Don't Go to Extremes To End Constipation

When bad breath, or a coated tongue, biliousness or headaches warn of constipation, don't take violent purgatives. There's no use when a candy Cascaret will stop the trouble in a jiffy; will cleanse your system pleasantly, and completely.

The relief you get so promptly from Cascarets is lasting. Cascarets are made from cascara, a substance which medical authorities agree actually strengthens the bowel muscles.

So Cascarets are a blessing to old folks with weakened bowels; to children; to anyone in need of establishing regular bowel habits. Ten cents a box—all drug stores.

Be careful. Use Red Cross Liquid Blue. Highly concentrated. Your grocer sells it.—Adv.

YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.

Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All drugstores have it.

JESUS TEACHING AND HEALING

Matthew 15:21-31

GOLDEN TEXT: Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.—Matthew 7:7.

Introduction.

"The tests of life are to make, not to break us."—Maitland Babcock.

"We have a beautiful hymn, beginning, 'O, Love, thou wilt not let me go!' We want an other beginning, 'O, Faith, Faith that wilt not let Him go!'"—G. H. Morrison.

"O, woman! great is thy faith!" were the words that Phillips Brooks selected to be inscribed on the tombstone of his saintly mother.

It was not wise for our Lord to remain in Galilee at this time unless he wanted to bring matters to a premature crisis. There would be the continued hatred of Herod (14:1, 13); the increasing hostility of the Pharisees (12:14; 15:1) and the attempts of the fanatic populace to put him at the head of a revolutionary uprising (John 6:15).

Tyre and Sidon.

"And Jesus went out thence." Because of the attack of the scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem, Matt. 15:1-20. He knew that such attacks would lead to his death, and he had yet much to do in training his disciples and founding his church. His time had not yet come. "And withdrew into the parts of Tyre and Sidon." These were the principal cities of Phoenicia. Tyre being about 35 miles and Sidon 55 miles from the Sea of Galilee where Jesus was. "Partis" implies that our Lord did not go even so far as Tyre, but merely journeyed northward into the hilly country south of the Phoenician plain, where today the richer people of the country have summer homes. Jesus was now in a heathen land. He was never outside of Palestine any other time.

A Canaanitish Woman.

"And behold a Canaanitish woman came out from those borders." Mark 7:26 says that she was a Greek, that is, a Gentile in religion, probably speaking Greek, and of Syrophenician descent, coming from the stock of the ancient heathen tribes whom Joshua drove out of Canaan. Syrophenician means a Phoenician of Syria, there being another branch of Phoenicians living in and around Carthage in northern Africa. "And cried, saying, Have mercy on me O, Lord, thou son of David." Christ did not want it known that he was there. But, as is significantly said, "he could not be hid." By this time he had become very famous and doubtless some Jew from Palestine caught sight of him and let it be known that the wonderful healer and teacher was there. The mother cried for mercy on herself, for she suffered with every pang of her daughter, as mothers do. "My daughter is grievously vexed with a demon." "This woman was a praying mother, and she teaches us the duty and privilege of praying for others. The Anglican Church had appointed the story of this miracle to be read in Lent to teach us the duty of prayer and intercession on behalf of those who cannot or will not pray for themselves.

The Lost Sheep of Israel.

"But he answered and said, I was not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." That is, our Lord's first mission was to the Jews, the Israelites. "Jesus coveted the heathen, but had method in his purpose. He would give himself to the Jews that they in turn might be the saviours of the heathen."—Rev. F. W. Norwood, D. D. "Christ anticipated a ministry that should be wider than these Jewish limits, as wide as the whole world. There is the saying, 'I will draw all men unto me.' There is that beautiful word 'Other sheep I have which are not of this fold.' There is that utterance at Simon's table, when the woman broke the alabaster box, 'Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, this that she hath done shall be told of her.'"—Rev. George H. Morrison, D. D.

The Woman's Faith Tested.

"And he answered and said, It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs." "In the East, the dog is not the friend and companion of man. He is not the faithful dog, or the intelligent and affectionate dog. He is looked upon as a mean, treacherous brute, suffered to run wild in the streets of a town for the service he may do as a public scavenger."—Leonard Woolsey Bacon. Christ used a proverbial saying, but softened it by adding, "Let the children first be fed." (Mark 7:27), implying that the Gentiles' turn would come, but after the Jews'. This answer was the anxious mother's third test of her faith, and the severest of all. "But she said, Yea, Lord." She admitted the justice of what Christ had said, but eagerly caught it up and pressed it into service as an argument for her side. "For even the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table." "The woman argues from the very abundance of Christ's grace that there would be enough for her. Her view was much the same with that of the prodigal when he came to himself, and in the midst of his misery began to remember his father's house and to think that there was in it bread enough and to spare."—James McCash. The woman's attitude may well be ours as we approach our Saviour's table.

The Woman's Faith Rewarded.

"Then Jesus answered and said unto her." He answered "those wonderful words—perhaps the most pathetic words in the whole Bible—so full of humility, or reverence, and yet with a certain archness, almost playfulness, in them, as it were turning our Lord's words against him."—Charles Kingsley. "O, woman, great is thy faith." "Our Lord had a very quick eye for spring faith. If the jewel was lying in the mire his eye caught its glitter. Faith has a strong attraction for the Lord Jesus."—O. H. Spurgeon. The woman had proved the greatness of her faith by her persistence in the face of great obstacles, by her humility, her alertness, her unselfishness, her overmastering love. Above all, her faith was great in its object, being fixed on the Saviour. "Be it done unto thee even as thou wilt." "She wanted only crumbs—she is invited to sit up as a ban-quetter."—T. DeWitt Talmage. "And her daughter was healed from that hour." She went straight to her house (Mark 7:30), acting on her faith, and found her daughter cured.

Why the Delayed Answer?

To us who know the sequel, and who know better than the woman did, perhaps better than the Twelve, his putting off the woman's request presents no great problem; any more than does his delay in answering the call of the Bethany sisters in their desperate anxiety (John 11:6). Such a severe case of mental sickness as this could be cured only by an extraordinary healing wonder; and that would need to be supported by extraordinary faith. Strange as it may seem, we are repeatedly told that Jesus' healing power was absolutely conditioned by faith somewhere, in somebody. Maybe our Lord saw that the woman's faith needed to be cultivated, made stronger. The delay and our desperation often effect that. If I do not find my Lord's hand as I reach out in the dark, I must reach still further. Hopelessness compels a larger hope. This same lesson is taught in Jacob's wrestling in the night at the ford of the Jabbok (Gen. 32:22-32). Peter's Faltering Faith. One reason why Peter is so great a favorite among the New Testament characters is because he was so much like the most of us. He was a man of ups and downs and in no scene did he show this wave-like characteristic more strikingly than in that storm on the Sea of Galilee, when in the uncertain light of early dawn, after a night of great peril, Jesus was seen approaching their little boat, walking on the water from the eastern side of the sea, where they had left him for a period of solitary prayer. As soon as Peter was sure that the approaching figure was Jesus, he was seized with a sudden ambition himself to walk on the water, and shouted to the Lord, "Bid me come unto thee upon the waters." Christ simply answered, "Come." The confident disciple started out finely, but the rising and falling of the waves soon made his heart sink, and his courage all left him. Down he went in the sea, crying, "Lord save me," so that Jesus had to take hold of him and lift him up, addressing to him the pointed question, "O, thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" "The believer's hope does not rest in any degree on the greatness of his faith, but in the greatness of him who is its object."—Thomas Guthrie. "Prayer an answer will obtain. Though the Lord a while delay; None shall seek his face in vain, None be empty sent away."—John Newton.

Save Your Grain

THERE is one sure way to save your grain. . . to cut it clean to the last head . . . to thresh it better and faster. . . to separate and clean it more thoroughly. You can do all this with a Case Combine—because:

The header cuts its full width, without passing over grain in low spots or striking ridges when cutting low. Hinged to the combine by a universal joint in the main axle, it follows any unevenness in the field.

Large capacity steel cylinder sets a fast pace of threshing even in heavy straw. It is strong, unbreakable and accurately balanced. The teeth are scientifically spaced for greatest threshing efficiency.

Perforated concaves start the separation at once. Nearly 90% of the grain is removed from the straw in passing over the concaves and the spring steel finger grates. These are non-clogging in the toughest straw.

Two complete cleaning shoes, equipped with underblast fans, remove all chaff and dirt from the grain. Operator can observe the final cleaning from his position on the platform.

With a Case Combine you can reduce your cost of harvesting and make a greater profit for yourself. Come in and let us tell you more about it.

DUCK AND GOOSE

"Do I hear talking?" asked Mrs. Goose.

"We wondered what you were going to fight about," said some of the others. "Your voice sounded angry."

"I am not going to fight. I am going to make a speech and it will be called, 'The Silly Creatures of the Barnyard.'"

"I will mention every single creature except the Goose family, and I will not mention them because they are not silly creatures."

"All depends on the one who is making the speech," said Billy Goat, who had been angry at the Goose family ever since they had been so rude and cross to him.

"I will not even mention you in my speech," said Mrs. Goose, "for you are too silly to mention."

"What is the use in getting angry with that family?" asked one of the barnyard creatures.

"Let's not show we think that much of them, or pay that much attention to what they say."

"There are the neighbor Pigs," said Mrs. Goose. "They are a fine lot, eh?"

"Ha, ha, that's a merry joke. They're far from being a fine lot."

"They're nothing but pigs—silly, greedy pigs. Poor neighbors, indeed!"

"We're splendid pigs—good, healthy, expensive pigs," squealed Brother Bacon.

But Mrs. Goose paid no attention.

"Then there is Red Top, the rooster. What sense is there in being a rooster?"

"All he can do is to crow and crow—and as for Mrs. Hen," she said, "she is almost as foolish a creature as is possible."

"Then there are the vain peacocks who strut about and admire their trains."

"As though any creatures with sense would admire their trains. That's the last thing to admire. It's back of a creature—the last thing to admire, as I said before."

Mrs. Goose laughed shrilly, for she thought she had cracked a joke.

"You think that's bright, do you?" asked Billy Goat. "Well, any fellow knows without being told that tails or trains are at the back of peacocks and not in front. That's stupid."

"Silence, Billy Goat," said Mrs. Goose. "I am giving the barnyard a treat in being around today."

"Now, we have Mr. Donkey as a neighbor. The children like to ride around and have him pull their cart, but every one knows that a donkey is a donkey—and that's foolish enough."

"Then there are the foolish ducks, quacking, quacking all the time," continued Mrs. Goose. "There is Mrs. White Duck waddling along now."

"Yes, and I'm coming to give you a good talking," said Mrs. White Duck.

"I've heard your crosstalk and what I have not heard myself a nice, kindly little bird came and whispered to me."

"In the first place of all there is no need for you to make fun of me or my family."

"Think of the people who call others and children they admire 'perfect ducks.'"

"Ah, yes, when some one wishes to be affectionate and loving to some one else she will say:

"Oh, you perfect duck."

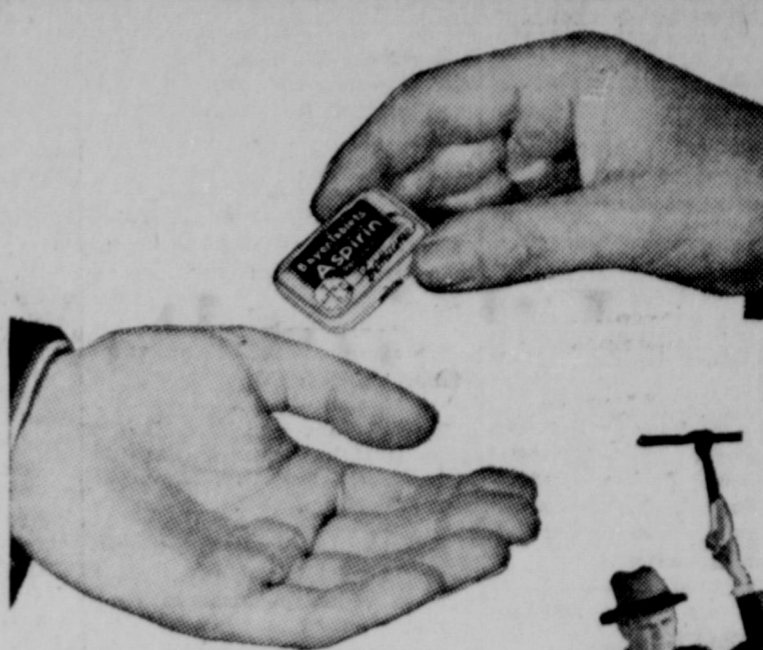

"I guess that was never said about you. But I haven't come here to boast."

"I've come to say that you needn't stay around if you can't be pleased with us, for a cross creature is the worst kind in all the world."

And Mrs. Goose walked away.

Again Konjola Gives Proof of Amazing Power

Ten Years of Rheumatism Are Ended When New Medicine Is Given a Chance.

What cheer and encouragement are to be found in the many victories of Konjola, the new and different medicine of 32 ingredients. Take, as a typical of Konjola at work, the case of Mrs. G. H. Coleman, R. F. D. No. 3, Ft. Smith, Ark. Imagine her happiness when she is able to say:

MRS. G. H. COLEMAN

"When I look back and think how I suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble for ten years I can hardly believe that I am well and happy as I am today. And all this glorious change is due to Konjola. For ten years I endured awful agonies. At times the pain in my limbs was so severe that I could not get around. Every night I was up many times, and the loss of sleep and rest told on my general health. A friend urged me to try Konjola, and what good advice that proved to be. In four weeks I was without a sign of rheumatism, and my kidneys were as good as ever. No wonder Konjola is the most talked of medicine in America. It should be in every home throughout the land."

Konjola is sold in Friona by the City Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

We Select a National Flower

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AT LAST we are to have a national floral emblem. At least, we shall have one if the wishes of the people, made known as the result of a nationwide referendum, are translated into legislative action by congress. For, by a big majority, the American people have chosen the wild rose as the national flower in a voting contest, conducted by the American Nature association, which closed recently. When the ballots were counted it was found that out of a total of 1,067,875 the wild rose had polled 492,811 votes, almost twice as many as those received by the columbine, the nearest contender. So there seems to be no doubt as to the wild rose's pre-eminence in popular favor.

The columbine received 261,451 votes, which in turn was more than twice as many as those received by the runner-up—the violet, which had 96,403. Fourth place went to the goldenrod with 84,112 votes. The "big four" in this contest simply ran away from the other candidates. For the phlox, which early in the campaign was listed with the goldenrod as a strong contender, received only 30,942 votes. The American Beauty rose received 30,482, the daisy 16,860, the mountain laurel 13,082, and the dogwood 9,024. A total of 32,500 votes are listed as "scattering" since they were cast for various other flowers not named by the American Nature association in announcing the result of the election.

The wild rose won in every state except Colorado, Florida, Minnesota and Washington. Without any group actively working for it, with no "campaign committee" in any state, and with a number of organizations actively trying to defeat it, it withstood every assault upon the lead gained early in the campaign. The columbine, supported vigorously by the newly organized Columbine society during the last days of the referendum, had 261,451 backers, who threatened, during early December, to sweep under the rose in a flood of votes. When the contest closed, however, the leader was still gaining.

"How decisive was the choice of the people," says Arthur Newton Pack, editor of Nature Magazine, the official publication of the American Nature association, "is indicated by the standing of the seven other leading candidates. More than 65 per cent of the vote was divided between the two leaders and there is no question of these being the national favorites. The violet, goldenrod, American Beauty rose, phlox, daisy, dogwood and mountain laurel, which finished in the order listed, never had a chance of victory. All the other flowers, grouped under "scattering," received but 3 1/2 per cent of the total.

"The National Flower campaign was begun late in 1928, first to engender an interest and love for wild flowers; secondly, to promote their conservation, and thirdly, to direct attention to nature generally."

Mr. Pack also points out the fact that this referendum accurately reflects the sentiment of the nation in the matter of choosing a national flower since the millior votes cast probably represent as large a proportion of nature lovers as do the totals in a Presidential election in representing the grand total of eligible voters. He regards it as significant that the proportionate vote cast for the leading candidates varied little after the 100,000 ballot mark had been passed, except in the last days of the campaign.

In addition to crystallizing sentiment in favor of a national flower, the referendum had other beneficial results, he believes. Concerning these, he says:

"The referendum has been eminently successful. A large proportion of school children voted, along citizenship lines suggested by the association, in such a manner that there is no question of the benefit they derived. A typical campaign is the one conducted by the Franklin Junior high school of Green Bay, Wis., where all the state flowers and candidates were illustrated on the school bulletin board, and discussion preceded the actual voting by a month.

"Educators, who assisted the voting in more than a dozen states, have asserted that the campaign has fostered citizenship, by giving the school children opportunity to vote in a national event. It also created knowledge of history and nature, both of which had to be studied to arrive at an intelligent opinion.

"While the tracing of adult education is much more difficult, the association feels confident that the interest expressed through the votes was not merely for the moment. In more than thirty commonwealths, state-wide campaigns were conducted by local organizations. The Garden Club of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the state and national organizations of Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts, the Columbine society, nature clubs and conservation groups scattered over the entire nation took a significant part in achieving the result."

In choosing the wild rose as our national symbol, new honor has been paid to a flower which has always been a favorite of mankind. Two thousand years ago in Athens the rose was crowned "queen of the flowers," but even before that the romantic songs and legends of the Babylonians, Persians and the Chinese testified to the fact that it was cultivated in the earliest days. It became the national emblem of England and in the Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries it gave its name to a long series of civil wars, the War of the Roses, between the adherents of the House of York, who wore the white rose, and those of the House of Lancaster, who wore the red rose.

Early in the recent campaign, opponents of the rose used as an argument against it that it was the English flower. But this was refuted by the statement that that emblem is the cultivated rose, whereas the one for which votes were being sought was the wild rose which grows in different varieties in every state in the Union. The campaign did not designate one particular variety of wild rose, but left it possible for each community to feel that its local representative of the genus was the choice of the country.

For this reason the states of Georgia, Iowa, New York and North Dakota can take pride in the fact that their state emblem has been chosen as the national flower. The list of state flowers is as follows:

Alabama	Goldenrod
Arizona	Saguaro cactus
Arkansas	Apple blossom
California	Poppy
Colorado	Columbine
Connecticut	Mountain laurel
Delaware	Peach blossom
Florida	Orange blossom
Georgia	Cherokee rose
Idaho	Syringa
Illinois	Violet
Indiana	Tulip tree flower
Iowa	Wild rose

North Carolina	Goldenrod
North Dakota	Prairie rose
Ohio	Scarlet carnation
Oklahoma	Mistletoe
Oregon	Oregon grape
Pennsylvania	None
Rhode Island	Violet
South Carolina	Yellow jessamine
South Dakota	Passiflora
Tennessee	Passion flower
Texas	Bluebonnet
Utah	Sage lily
Vermont	Red clover
Virginia	American dogwood
Washington	Rhododendron
West Virginia	Rhododendron
Wisconsin	Violet
Wyoming	Indian paint brush

It will be noticed from the above that Pennsylvania is the only state which does not have a state flower. Curiously enough, it was the Keystone state which led all the others in the total number of votes cast in the recent referendum. Pennsylvania's total was 111,236 votes. Ohio was second with 78,048, New York third with 63,835 and Wisconsin fourth with 59,779.

An analysis of vote by states in relation to state flowers reveals some interesting facts. Since the columbine is the state flower of Colorado, it was natural to expect that Colorado should give more votes to that flower than to any other. And it did, although it gave only 707 more votes to the columbine than to the wild rose. Fourteen other states gave more votes to the Colorado state flower than did that state itself, Washington supporting it more vigorously than any other, with 35,006 votes.

The votes by states for the rose, the winner, and the three leading contenders was as follows:

State	Wild Rose	Columbine	Violet	Goldenrod
Alabama	10,814	827	1,918	3,496
Arizona	1,020	524	124	154

Totals	492,811	261,451	96,403	84,112

The violet is the state flower of Illinois, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. Yet both Illinois and New Jersey gave more votes to both the wild rose and the columbine than they did to their own state flower. Both Rhode Island and Wisconsin gave more votes to the wild rose than to the violet, but both placed the columbine third in the running. A similar situation is shown in Nebraska and North Carolina where the goldenrod is the state flower. Both states voted for the wild rose over their state flower. In Nebraska the goldenrod was second with the columbine third and the violet fourth. But in North Carolina the state flower was placed third, beating out only the violet.

Another interesting development was the failure of the phlox, a leading contender early in the campaign, to make a good race for the honors, especially when it apparently had so many points in its favor, one of its strongest supporters was Dr. Edgar T. Wherry, a well-known government botanist and chemist.

MAPS STRICT CODE FOR CIVIL AVIATION

Major Young Formulating New Requirements.

Washington.—To meet the increasing activity in the air and to maintain the highest standard of safety possible with the expansion of aviation transportation on scheduled operation, the bureau of aeronautics of the Department of Commerce is preparing a new standard of minimum requirements for civil aviation.

The project has been undertaken by Maj. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, as one of the most important works of federal control of civil aviation at the present time.

"This contemplated action by the department," says Major Young, "is another step in the orderly progress and development of air transportation and air commerce."

Two-Way Radio Required.

The code, it is understood, will seek for the first time to achieve the full co-operation of the two new sciences of radio and aviation, and will insist on "passenger carrying planes being equipped with two-way radio.

The new requirements are being prepared with the co-operation of air transport organizations. They include rules based on the use of complete radio equipment to insure two-way radio communication between aircraft in flight and stations on the ground and adequate facilities for the proper handling, maintenance and operation of aircraft.

In explanation of the assumption of authority for the promulgation of this new code, it is pointed out by Major Young that under the provisions of the Air Commerce Act of 1926 the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce has established two fundamental requirements to insure the maximum degree of safety and reliability in air transportation.

Three Requirements Listed.

These are:

First, airworthy craft operated and maintained by competent airmen.

Second, development of airways equipped with aids to air navigation for both day and night operations, including boundary-lighted intermediate fields, beacon lights, weather service, frequent radio broadcasts of complete weather information; two-way radio communication with planes in flight and radio range beacons for guiding aircraft through fog, storm or other conditions of poor visibility.

The third requirement, as defined by Major Young, is "the specification that all aircraft engaged in the transportation of passengers for hire on schedule interstate service shall be operated over fixed routes provided with these aids to air navigation and that the aircraft engaged in such operations shall be equipped to take full advantage of these aids."

In insisting on the two-way radio equipment, it is the intention of the bureau that planes shall be in a position to receive frequent broadcasts of weather information, emergency messages and for the reception of signals from radio range beacons, which are designed to keep a plane on its course at all times.

In explaining the purpose of the third phase of government control, Major Young says:

"Experience has shown us that our objectives can best be accomplished through the promulgation of suitable regulations, which, through their flexibility, may be readily kept abreast with the rapid progress of aeronautics, rather than by legislation which requires action by congress to meet conditions as they arise."

"Acoustic Altimeter" for Airplanes Sought

Los Angeles.—Search for the source of a sound which will filter through noises aboard an airplane is being conducted by Leo P. Deissaso, of the physics department of the University of California, in an effort to perfect a precision altimeter.

Deissaso, working with funds made available by the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, hopes to develop an "acoustic altimeter" which will measure height by the time it takes a sound to travel to the ground and echo back to the airplane.

One of the chief difficulties, Deissaso found, was the multiplicity of sounds aboard aircraft. He was faced with the necessity of finding a tone entirely different than any of those of aircraft.

This has been accomplished, and now the task is to find the source of such a sound which will be of sufficient pitch and intensity to actuate the recording device.

An "acoustic altimeter" would be of inestimable value to aircraft because it would permit pilots caught in fogs over unfamiliar territory to know exactly how high they were.

Rainbow Round in Air

Los Angeles.—There seems always to be a catch to that proverb about the rainbow's end. Pilots are discouraged because in the air a rainbow is entirely round! Air pilots who occasionally pass through a squall in New Mexico or Arizona on the East-West flight to Kansas City report that a rainbow makes a perfect circle in the air. They have to ascend when the sun is near the horizon if they wish to view the ends of the myriad-colored phenomenon of the skies, they say. And then it disappears before they can land and search for the gold.

Campaign to Curb the Careless Plane Smoker

The campaign to eliminate fire hazard incident to the throwing of lighted cigarette and cigar stubs from airplanes, initiated by the forest service of the Department of Agriculture, has been given the support of the air travel division of the American Automobile association. The aid of the association was requested by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., promised that steps would be taken to educate the traveling public in the importance of protecting natural resources. "The tremendous increase in the number of planes," Mr. Henry said, "has made the fire hazard from lighted cigars and cigarettes a problem affecting not only the forests, but structures along the airways as well."

BAY STATE WOMEN FORM FLYING CLUB

"Wing and Prop" Members to Make Spring Flights.

Boston.—If a fleet of trim biplanes piloted by beautiful young girls drops in at your airport next spring they'll be the Women's Wing and Prop club, organized in December at East Boston airport with fourteen charter members and nine privately owned planes.

The organization, headed by President Lorraine Defren of Newton, Mass., the first woman to learn to fly at East Boston airport, now has more than a score of members, each of whom is required to spend at least three hours per week at the controls of an airplane. The nine privately owned planes in the club soon will be augmented.

The club is planning an extensive program of cross-country flying to start in the spring.

The vice president, Mrs. Bartlett Bacon of Brookline, Mass., is mother of three children, all of whom are taking flights with her. She intends that they shall learn to fly as soon as they reach the necessary ages.

Olivia Matthews of Dedham, Mass., secretary-treasurer of the club, claims the distinction of being the first woman student to make her first solo flight in a plane equipped with skis.

The membership also includes Miss Eleanor Spear, daughter of the Maine senator, and Mrs. Joan Shankie of Wood Hole, Mass., who already has made a cross-continent flight.

Two students of Radcliffe school are members, Betsy Kelley of Fort Smith, Ark., who intends to enter commercial aviation as soon as possible and whose ambition is to pilot a plane across the Atlantic, and Agnes Wilcox of Colon, Panama, who aspires to be the first woman from Central America to obtain a pilot's license.

HELMET AND HEADSET

This combination receiving and sending headset and helmet used by air mail express and passenger pilots on a western route weighs one pound and enables pilots to talk to ground stations 200 miles away or to planes in flight. A tightly fitting piece of sponge rubber in the ear connects with two wires which are plugged in the cockpit. Each ten minutes the pilot receives a weather report of conditions just ahead.

Air Race Over Ocean

Probable This Year

Paris.—Another air race from Paris to New York this year appears probable. One contestant would be Capt. Dieudonne Coste, accepted as the holder of the world's records for straight line and measured course long distance flying. The other will be Capt. Carreter, who was officially credited with bringing down 14 enemy planes during the World war.

Manufacturers began work in December on a new airplane in which Captain Coste about next June expects to link Le Bourget and the Roosevelt flying field without a stop.

Meanwhile the French airplane manufacturer, Coudinet, has started to build a monoplane with thick wings in which fuel will be stored. With the 1,800 horse power to be developed from three Hispano-Suiza motors, Captain Carreter expects this plane to have a lifting capacity of 13 tons and a cruising range of 7,000 miles. He said tonight that he would be ready to start ahead of Captain Coste.

Denver Mother Tells Story

Nature controls all the functions of our digestive organs except one. We have control over that, and it's the function that causes the most trouble.

See that your children form regular bowel habits, and at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or constipation, give them a little California Fig Syrup. It regulates the bowels and stomach and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act as Nature intends them to. It helps build up and strengthen pale, listless, underweight children. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it's purely vegetable, so you can give it as often as your child's appetite flags or he seems feverish, cross or fretful.

Leading physicians have endorsed it for 50 years, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows how mothers depend on it. A Western mother, Mrs. R. W. Stewart, 4112 Maritana St., Denver, Colorado, says: "Raymond was terribly pulled down by constipation. He got weak, fretful and cross, had no appetite or energy and food seemed to sour in his stomach. California Fig Syrup had him romping and playing again in just a few days, and soon he was back to normal weight, looking better than he had looked in months."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. The mark of the genuine is the word "California" on the carton.

After Nervous Breakdown

"I had a nervous breakdown and could not do the work I have to do around the house. I through one of your booklets I found how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped other women and I went to the drug store and got me six bottles. It has done me good in more ways than one and now I work every day without having to lie down. I will answer all letters with pleasure."—Hannah M. Eversmeyer, 707 N-16 Street, East St. Louis, Illinois.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

The man who does right isn't apt to get left.

Handy to use Red Cross Liquid Blue. Large bottle 10c at your grocer's—Adv.

All people really love sentiment.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is expelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

Seeing Big League Baseball

By BILLY EVANS
Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

In the early days of competition between the American and National leagues, it used to be rumored that both leagues employed gentlemen of high lung power to visit the rival parks and keep the players on the pan. I have always thought these rumors were unfounded. However, they persisted in those days, and to my mind the most successful of all baseball hecklers was the fan who used to camp out in the White Sox park and who, at the time, was thought by many to be in the pay of the Cubs.

This fan had a tremendous voice, but his panning vocabulary was limited to just four words. Game after game, inning after inning, he reiterated his incessant cry: "Poor old White Sox! Poor old White Sox!" It used to drive the Sox players half crazy. And I'll say this: That one man with a strong voice and an irritating line of chatter will drive a ball club nuttier than 60,000 fans giving a concerted chorus of boos.

As I have remarked before, I believe that at least 80 per cent of the fans are absolutely fair. The howl of the wolves for the most part is nothing more than the uplung voice of civic pride. The minor notes are the battle cry of plain obstreperousness. From the standpoint of player and umpire there is one unfortunate angle to fanfare, and that is that the fairest fans as a rule are the quietest ones. The 20 per cent who are hardest to get along with are also the noisiest.

But there is an observation that I believe you will find true anywhere, inside or outside of a ball park. In any normal grouping of men, the know-it-all guy is usually the loudest-mouthed and at the same time the most intolerant.

Speaking for myself, I have very little to complain about. I have learned in my twenty years and more on big league diamonds that very little applause comes the way of the man who, as Tommy Connolly pointed out, plays the villain role. The times I get hottest under the soft collar are when I am subject to abuse that is the result of the fans' ignorance of the rules or of the play.

If the element of doubt exists concerning my judgment of a strike or a ball or of a putout—or any other play—the razzberry chorus doesn't affect me. Maybe, for all I know, I was wrong and had it coming. But when I see a player drop the ball in the process of making a putout and the fans don't see it and ride me unmercifully for the rest of the afternoon—then I'm nettled.

I've always wished that some method could be devised for explaining certain plays to cover situations like this and wiping up the fans to some rule with which they perhaps are unfamiliar. If such a means is ever evolved the lot of the umpire will be an easier one—though I doubt very strongly that we'll ever get applauded for any of our decisions.

On the other hand, I don't believe the perfect umpire, if such a being was possible, would be popular. The protests of the players and the "razzing" of the fans, are a part of the game. The perfect umpire would eliminate this difference of opinion on which the game seems to thrive. So as long as baseball is played, the umpire will continue to be the very necessary evil—the villain in the play as Tommy Connolly so aptly put it.

Indication of Speed Is Obtained by a Pointer

A new "pointer" type speedometer was introduced at the recent New York and Chicago automobile shows. Indication of speed is obtained by means of the pointer, which moves around a full circle scale, similar to that of a clock.

At 60 miles an hour, for instance, the pointer would be in the twelve o'clock position of hands on a clock. This speed may also be known simply by the position of the pointer.

"Starting Blocks" Tested by Paddock

Charlie Paddock enters his eighteenth year of competition. The famous sprinter, once the "World's Fastest Human," begins training for a place on the Los Angeles Athletic club relay team as preparations for midwinter track events are begun at Los Angeles. In his first appearance of the year, Charlie tries out various forms of "starting blocks." The photograph shows him making a start from the Nicholson foot blocks, product of the Notre Dame coach, combined with the Templeton hand blocks.

Right-of-Way Often Is Puzzling to Motorist

When two motorists, driving at right angles to each other, meet at an intersection, some skillful bluffing sometimes takes place. Frequently, the bolder of the two secures the right of way.

Should a collision occur, however, courts in those states where the right-of-way law prevails will rule in favor of the vehicle approaching from the right, and against the car owner on the left, according to the law department of the Chicago Motor club, which declared that the courts hold the right hand right-of-way rule in high regard.

Many states have incorporated this right-of-way regulation in their motor vehicle laws. The regulation provides, in substance, that motor vehicles traveling upon public highways shall give the right-of-way to vehicles approaching along intersecting highways from the right and shall have the right-of-way over those approaching from the left. This regulation does not apply, however, where main highways and secondary highways intersect, nor at the intersections of through streets and ordinary thoroughfares. The stop signs or other regulations in force at those points shall indicate the right-of-way.

As an example of the manner in which courts decide right-of-way cases, the motor club law department cited excerpts from the decision of the Illinois Appellate court in the case of Johnson vs. Duke. A large touring car being driven east, according to the evidence, came to an intersection and collided with the left side of a truck being driven north. Part of the decision follows:

"Under the circumstances appellee

(the truck owner) had the right-of-way. While this right would not relieve him from the duty of exercising due care, he was entitled to assume that persons approaching on his left would observe the law and respect his right."

Interesting Bits of Different Kinds of Sports

"Baby Doll" Jacobson, veteran of many major and minor league campaigns, has quit baseball for the farm.

Billip Hadley, Washington pitcher, will work for a bonus salary next year—so many wins, so many dollars.

The record for the fewest assists in a big league ball game is held by the New York Yankees. In a game in 1921 the Yanks made only five assists.

Carl Handy, football captain of the University of California squad, has reported for the Bears' wrestling team. He will compete in the heavyweight class.

The appointment of two new head football coaches for 1930 adds two more to the list of ex-Notre Dame stars teaching the game. They are Kizer of Purdue and Mills of Georgetown.

To raise money to pay off club indebtedness Augusta had to sell its most popular player, Odie Strain, to San Antonio.

Col. Dan McGugin, football coach at Vanderbilt for 26 years, is the dean of the Southern conference and has the best record of any coach in the group.

Johnny Wilson, veteran basketball coach at Navy, described Bill Werber, Duke guard, as the fastest man he had ever seen on the floor at Annapolis.

Rolph ("Pest") Welch, Purdue star, has been named University of Washington's freshman football coach.

Bill Roper, veteran Princeton football coach, was a star tackle on the Tiger eleven of 1899, 1900 and 1901.

Wrestling has made a successful comeback in Baltimore. In the days of America's game thrived there.

Bobby Jones at the age of twenty-eight has been in golf competition for 15 years, having started at the age of thirteen.

Walker Cup Team Will Sail for England on April 30

Capt. Bobby Jones and his Walker Cup team golfers will leave this country for England on Wednesday, April 30.

In all, it is expected that upwards of fifty people will make up the golfing party to England, as relatives and friends of the eight players designated for the squad also intend making the trip. In addition there will be the U. S. G. A. officials who will guide the United States amateurs to Sandwich for the sixth meeting with the leading players of Great Britain. The United States has not lost a

Walker Cup series since the international competition was launched in 1922, and this year's selections promise to equal the performances of previous teams.

In addition to Jones, the squad that will sail in the Mauretania includes Harrison R. Johnson of St. Paul, national amateur champion; George Von Elm of Detroit, national amateur titleholder of 1925; Francis Oulmet, former national open and amateur champion; Dr. O. F. Willing of Portland, Ore.; George Volght and Jess Sweetser of New York, and Don K. Moe of Portland, Ore.

Ans. China bars red on account of its religious significance, while Spain prohibits the use of blue because it is the color of the royal family.

Q. Why should spark plugs be securely screwed into the cylinder after installing new ones or cleaning?

Ans. This prevents hot gases from escaping between the plug and cylinder threads, which would cause the plug to run too hot, resulting in loss of power.

Q. How many automobiles were junked in 1928?

Ans. More than 2,213,000.
