During the dog days it is always a fruitful theme, is this proposition to levy a tax on bachelors, the revenue raised in this manner to be used in maintaining the state orphan asylum.

A bachelor is a parboiled beast. He knows not the softness of a gentle touch, nor is he familiar with the winning ways of bargain days.

What, my countrymen, my fellow-countrymen, would this country be if all the men of the world would make firm resolve, with a jail sentence attachment for even thinking about breaking the covenant, never, never, never to marry?

So let's tax the bachelors. Let's begin on Col. James Hampton Sullivan, the perennial editor of the San Antonio Express, and wind up on Col. James Hays Quarles, the self-confessed greatest genius who ever wrote about a monkey.

And now Dr. Rankin, who is sort of Lord of the Admiralty of the Ministerial Junta seeking to prohibitionize Texas, says that Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald is a mean thing because Fitzgerald, who is editorial writer on the Dallas Times-Herald, refuses to change coats every time Cone Johnson gets on a new hobby.

Hot? Well, yes, some. But you ought to think about the other places in Texas. And if this doesn't make you cool by comparison, think about where the thousands and thousands of delinquent subscribers are now already yet, and you will admit, you are bound to admit, that after all the San Angelo atmosphere is just about the most pleasant you ever got well tangled up with.

Down with the dust devil. Beaumont oil can kill 'im, just like Beaumont oil can kill mosquitoes in Brownwood.

How would it do to invite the Frisco to build a line into San Angelo?

For the life of us we can not understand why some people want to preach "submission" when the thermometer is 100 in the shade.

Remember a trades excursion, like Christmas, doesn't come every day in the year. Brush up your resolution bump and don't let your wishbone be where your backbone ought to be.

The Brownwood Bulletin wants to know how The Press-News got information that the normal will be located here. This information was secured a sight easier than the $30,000 or thereabout that Brownwood is willing to pay for the institution.

Commissioner George Mulkey returned the tainted money offered as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Officer Campbell in Fort Worth. The commissioner is a wise man, despite his seventy odd years on earth.

Jack Pettit, staff writer on the Post-Record combination, has entered the lists to make a halo about the head of Gov. Campbell. Well, he's fit company for Tom Love. And one thing is certain, if Tom Love and Jack Pettit can't halo Campbell that instinct had better return to his East Texas haunts.

Have you noticed that since congress adjourned Gov. Campbell isn't jumping over the country half so much. In fact, he has about completely crawled back into his shell. It takes nothing more than a shadow to cause some people to know when it's time to look for a soft spot to fall.

The San Angelo Gas company is reading the stars in the sky. That's why additional ground has been bought by that company for improvements. San Angelo is headed cityward with boots that go a league better than the proverbial seven, each time they are lifted from the ground. Remember the dates—October 5-9—and tell your friends the San Angelo fair is worth coming many miles to see.

KEEP ON TRYING.

If in your way there's nothing doing, Go get busy. That folks pass you don't be rueling. Make 'em dizzy. If no winds your sails are swelling, Take to rowing. If no crops you have for selling, Do some sowing.

If a height you are desiring, Keep on climbing. If a poet you're aspiring, Keep on rhyming. If your dope they have been canning, Don't be grievin'. You set set your head to planning To get even.

If your way the drones are balking, You just move them. If they doubt the things you're talking, You can prove them. If a package you've been handed, Done up neatly. Don't think a sucker you have landed; Take it sweetly.

Lovers Would Wed While in Open Court

New York, Aug. 17.—Just the minute she can induce somebody to furnish bail to the amount of $2500 so that she can get out of the toms for a few minutes, Grace Maidhof, the passer of bad checks, is going to be married. At least that is what she told Magistrate Steinert yesterday when she was arraigned in the West side court. She waived examination on a larceny charge and in the same breath told the Magistrate what was going to happen, just as soon as—But frankly, there doesn't seem to be such a much of a chance of her leaving the prison right away.

The young woman went to court decked in white, and really looked the bride she expects soon to be. There was a white suit, a big white hat with a lot of white feathers and a white veil. What was even more cheerful than the festive clothing was the happy manner in which she talked of the little matter of bad checks.

The first one of the trio to face the Magistrate yesterday morning was the young woman herself. She waived examination, made an attempt to get her bail reduced, and falling, smilingly resumed her seat by the side of Ralph S. Whitney, the law clerk with whom she has been living in a flat at 315 West 113th street. It is Whitney who is to be the bridegroom. The young woman made an affidavit against him as soon as she was through with her own arraignment. Whitney was called to the bridge. The court officer who called him had to break up a tender scene between the two lovers—it was evident that the affidavit which the girl had just signed was made without malice.

The victim did not seem to regret it at all. He even went so far as to tell one of the detectives that the girl had become involved in the difficulty through him and he was going to stick to her, even to the extent of marrying her.

Grace Maidhof seems to have no compunctions about getting her co-conspirators—if that is what they are—into trouble. Besides peaching on her lover, she accused John Henry Freeze, a lawyer who was defending her, of forgery—of being the third in the bad check trio. And yesterday as soon as Whitney had waived examination and had been told that his bail would be $3000 for his appearance in General Sessions, Freeze was brought up and the real fight began.

District Attorney Rice took care of the State's side of the quarrel. Freeze had a lawyer, but seemed to prefer to do most of his own talking. Freeze said that he could get $2000 bail, but not $3000, and asked that the bond be reduced to the former amount. It wasn't. At his own request Magistrate Steinert set his examination for Tuesday.

Freeze was told that Mr. Rice had gathered evidence that rendered it imperative that he be held under stiff bail. This roused him. He exclaimed that he was the victim of a gang of blackmailers and said that he was going to fight until he had completely vindicated himself. For this fight, he said, he could better prepare if he had his freedom.

In the story of his life which Freeze told in the course of his pleading with the Magistrate, the lawyer said that he got a job copying records in the court house in Bangor, Maine, in 1893, and there attracted the attention of the Chief Justice of Maine and a former Chief Justice, and thus their influence enabled him to get into Harvard. He spent eight years at Harvard, he said, and President Elliot lent him $200 to fix up a few small debts before he left. This and the other obligations he had incurred during his course he had repaid. From Harvard he came to New York as a clerk in the office of Sullivan & Cromwell, and later struck out for himself. He said that he now has some 500 clients.

The two lover prisoners wanted Magistrate Steinert to marry them right there in court; but this he declined to do.

WOMAN BREAKING STRIKE.

Daughter of Former MIM Superintendent Aids in Quelling Trouble.

Newcastle, Pa. Aug. 17.—The strike at the local mills of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company here bids fair to be broken soon. When it is, the credit will be given Mollie Braden, the pretty daughter of Dan Braden, one of the former mill superintendents, who is leading all the strike breakers, and has taken the position of forewoman in the assorting room. Miss Braden years ago worked in the mill for her health, and this stands her in good stead now.

In her own automobile Miss Braden is taken to and from the mills daily and inside the large handbag which she carries there is always a revolver, ready for use. Her chauffeur also is armed, and three detectives, who ride with her, go heavily armed.

Last week stones were thrown at her automobile as it passed along the streets.

LOST AND FOUND.

To Enforce Law.

Minneapolis, Aug. 17.—Women take an active interest in the enforcement of the anti-cigarette law, which goes into effect Sunday. Drug stores especially will be watched. In most cases these women are storekeepers, who will insist that the law be enforced to the letter. As a result the large drug stores announce that they will make no attempt to sell cigarettes after Sunday.

This week will see slashing cuts in the price of cigarettes and few dealers expect to have any stock by midnight next Saturday.

The passing of the cigarette law in stores of this state does not mean material decrease in their consumption, however, because already many stores have certificates, which will be sold to the consumer, and these will be mailed to the state dealer who will promptly ship cigarettes to the home of the consumer.

The Value of Good Digestion

Is easy to figure if you know what your stomach is worth. Kodol keeps the stomach at par value, by insuring good digestion. Kodol cures Dyspepsia.

Kodol insures good digestion by absolutely duplicating Nature's normal process, in perfectly digesting all food taken into the stomach.

While Kodol is doing this, the stomach is resting—and becoming strong and healthy. A strong and healthy stomach guarantees a sound and active brain.

The man with a sound stomach—a stomach that is doing for the body just what Nature intended it to do—is the man who is always prepared for any emergency. He is "there with the goods."

The man with a sick stomach, is a man sick all over. When the stomach is irritated by undigested food, the blood and heart are directly affected. Then dizziness, unnatural sleepiness, sick-headaches, vertigo and fainting spells, and even serious brain trouble develop. Kodol will prevent these.

Spurring the stomach and brain

to special effort by "tonics" and "stimulants" doesn't cure anything, or accomplish any good. Neither does dieting. Indigestion and the serious ailments which it induces can be averted and corrected only by natural means.

Kodol supplies this natural means. It performs the stomach's work for it—just as the stomach should perform it—while the stomach takes a little rest, "for the stomach's sake."

Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. The large bottle contains 24 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON

Copyright, 1905, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Vat for you tink I want you in on dis, you svine? To set around und dream? Nobody else knows about dis treasure, und ve got it all for ourselves—vat four und no more, und you say, 'Vat's der hurry?' It's all ours. Ve divide it up in der cave mit all der money ve got from der bank. Vat? Yes? Den, ven der time comes, ve send it all by Australia und no von is der viser. Der natives von't know, und der white pebbles von't be alive to care about it."

"I don't like der scheme to rob der bank," growled Jan. "If der peeples get on to us, dey could cut us to pieces."

"But dey von't get on to us, you fool. Dey couldn't take it demselves if it was handed to dem. Dey're too honest—yes. Vell, don't dey say ve're honest too? Vell, vat more you vant? Dey don't know how much money und rubles dere is in der bank. Ve von't take all of it—und dey von't know der difference. Ve burn der books. Das is all. Ve get in by der bank tonight, boys."

"I don't like id," said Joost. "Id's stealing from our freunde, Jacob. Besides, if der ober heils should go before der government mit der story, vat den?"

"Der ober heils will never get der chance, boys. Dey vill die mit der plague—ba, ha! Sure! Dere von't be no ober heils. Ransia says it must be so. Ve could'nt vat, boys. It vill be years before der business is settled. Ve must get vat ve can now und vat for der decision afterwards. Brodney has wrote to Ransia, saying dat dot Chase feller is to stay here vedder ve vant him or not. He says (chase is a goat inn). By tam, it makes me cry to tink of vat he has done by me—dot goat man!"

To the amazement of all the bony Geronimo began to blubber.

"Come on, Jacob," said Jan gruffly. Von Blitz shook his fist at the door across the chamber and thundered his final maledictions.

"Sir John says in der letter to Milder Chase dere is a movements on foot in London to settle der contest out of court, volunteered Joost.

"Sure, but he also say dat ve all may die mit old age before it is over yet."

"Don't forget der plague!" said Jan. They growled mightily as they lifted the heavy chests to their shoulders and started for the door.

"Close der door, Jan," commanded Von Blitz from the passage. "Ve vill light der fuse ven ve haf got beyond der first bend. Vat? Look! By tam, von of you svine has broke der fuse. Vat! Ve vill fix him now."

The door was closed behind them, but the listeners could hear them repairing the damage that Selim had done to the fuse.

Led by Selim, the four made a rush for the door leading into the chateau. They threw it open and passed through, flying as if for their lives. No one could tell how soon an explosion might bring disaster to the region; they put distance between them and the powder keg. Selim paused long enough to drop the bolts and turn the great key with the lever. At the second turn in the narrow corridor he overtook Chase and the scurrying women.

"Is there nothing to be done?" cried the princess. "Can we not prevent the explosion? They will cut off our means of escape in that!"

"I know too much about gunpowder, princess," said Chase dryly. "to fool with it. It's like a mule. It kicks hard. Gad, it was hard to stand there and hear those brutes planning it all and not be able to stop them!"

The princess was once more at his side. He had clasped her arm to lead her securely in the wake of Neenah's electric lantern. She came to a sudden stop.

"And pray, Mr. Chase," she said sharply, as if the thought occurred to her for the first time, "why didn't you stop them? You had the advantage. You and Selim could have surprised them—they could have taken them without a struggle."

He laughed softly, deprecatingly, not a little impressed by the justice of her criticism.

"No doubt you consider me a coward," he said ruefully.

"You know that I do not," she protested. "I—I can't understand your motive; there is all."

"You forget that I am the representative of those very men. I am the trusted agent of Sir John Brodney, who has refused to appoint me with another. I can't very well represent Sir John and at the same time make prisoners or corpses of his clients, even though I am being shielded by their legal fees. I'll not have Von Blitz saying, even to himself, that I have not only stolen his wives, but have also cast him into the hands of his Philistines. It may sound quixotic to you, but I think that Lord Deppingham and Mr. Browne will understand my attitude."

"But Von Blitz has sworn to kill you," she expostulated, with some heat. "You are wasting your integrity. I must say, Mr. Chase."

"Would you have me shoot him from ambush?" he demanded.

"Not at all. You could have taken him captive and held him safe until the time comes for you to leave the island."

"He would not have been my captive in any event. I could do no more than deliver him into the hands of his enemies. Would that be fair?"

"But he is a thief!"

"No more so than Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme, who unquestionably cheated the natives out of the very treasure we have seen carried away. I am not a constable nor a thief catcher. I am a soldier of the defense, not an officer of the crown, at this stage of the game. Today I shall contrive to send word to Itasula that Von Blitz has stolen the treasure chests. Mr. Von Blitz will have a sad time explaining this little defection to his friends. We must not overlook the fact that Lady Deppingham and Robert Browne are quite willing to take everything from the islanders. Everything that Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme possessed in this island belongs to them under the terms of the will."

They were at the top of the second flight of stairs by this time and quite a distance from the treasure chamber. His coolness, the absence of any sign of retarding sentiment, was puzzling her sorely. Half an hour before she had been carried away, rendered helpless, by the passion that swayed him. Now he spoke and looked as if he had forgotten the result of his storming. Strangely enough, she was piqued.

When they came into the well lighted upper corridor he proceeded ruthlessly to upset all of her harsh calculations. He stopped suddenly, stepping directly in front of her. As she drew up in surprise he reached down and took both of her hands in his. For the moment she was too amazed to oppose this sudden action: She looked up into his face, many emotions in her own—proof, wonder, dismay, hauteur, joy.

"Wait," he said gently. They were quite alone. She saw the most wonderful light in his gray eyes. Her lips parted in quick, timorous confusion. "I love you. I am sorry for what I did down there. I couldn't help it—nor could you. Yet I took a cruel advantage of you. I know what you've been thinking too. You have been saying to yourself that I wanted to see how far I could go. Don't speak. I know! You are wrong. I've absolutely worshipped you since those first days in Thorberg, wildly, hopelessly, day and night. I was afraid of you—yes, afraid of you because you are a princess. But I've got over all that, Geneva. You are a woman, a living, real woman, with the blood and the heart and the lips that were made for men to crave. I want to tell you this here in the light of day, not in the darkness that hid all the truth in me except that which you might have felt in my kiss."

"Please—please don't," she said once more, her lip trembling, her eyes full of the softness that the woman who loves cannot hide. "You shall not go on! It is wrong!"

"It is not wrong!" he cried hotly. "My love is not wrong. I want you to understand and to believe. I can't hope that you will be my wife. It's too wildly improbable. You are not for such as I. You are pledged to a man of your own world, your own exalted world. But listen, Geneva. See, my eyes call you darling even though my lips dare not. Geneva, I'd give my soul to hear you say that you will be my wife. You do understand how it is with me?"

The delicious sense of possession thrilled her. She glowed with the return of her self esteem, in the restoration of that quality which proclaimed her a princess of the blood. She was sure of him now. She was sure of herself. She had her emotions well in hand. And so, despite the delicious warmth that swept through her being, she chose to reveal no sign of it to him.

DARK TRAGEDY
NEGRO SALOON

Fulfilling his threat to "shoot up the dump," Jesse Mennifield, a negro, created a sensation in the Coney Island beer garden Monday afternoon when he opened fire on Ritchie Taylor, bringing him down, and also wounding Dock Robinson, both negroes. Taylor died Tuesday night, but Robinson was more badly frightened than hurt.

Taylor and Mennifield became involved in a saloon row, which warmed up to such proportions that Mennifield told Taylor he had better look out, "for I am going home to get my gun, and when I come back I am going to kill you."

Taylor was not easily bluffed, for he told Mennifield to go ahead and get the gun—that he would be in the room waiting for him to return. Mennifield rushed frantically out the door, and Taylor proceeded to play pool and billiards. A little later Mennifield made his appearance at the back door, carrying in his arms a big shotgun.

"Look out, you fellows, I am going to shoot," he exclaimed. And the big knock down and scramble stunt came off. Taylor grabbed Dock Robinson as a shield. But Mennifield was not to be blocked in his game, and turned loose the contents of the gun striking Robinson in the back. Robinson shot the shot like a duck sheds water from its back, but he received a well developed case of fright, and tore himself loose from Taylor. Then Mennifield took a crack at Taylor, bringing him down. Taylor lived a few hours and expired. Robinson was "seriously injured" until he consulted a physician, and being told that he was not hurt, he recovered immediately.

Mennifield was arrested by City Marshal Bates and locked up for safe keeping.

R. H. Harris left Tuesday for the Osage reservation in Oklahoma to look after cattle interests.

IN TIME TO HANDLE
FALL FAIR CROWDS

Santa Fe Will Be Running Over Frisco Track Fort Worth to Brownwood, Before October.

In ample time for the handling of the crowds for the San Angelo fair, the Santa Fe will be operating trains between Fort Worth and Brownwood, over the Frisco tracks.

Announcement to this effect was received in San Angelo Tuesday morning, and it came from an official source. This sounds good to the people of San Angelo, but it is nothing more than they have been expecting. With the Santa Fe using the Frisco tracks there will be no delay and change of cars in getting into San Angelo, and the attendance at the fair will be greatly increased as a result. The entire trip from Fort Worth to San Angelo will be made within less than twelve hours—just a nice ride.

This deal has long been on tap, and it had its inception when the Frisco secured trackage rights into Dallas from Paris over the Santa Fe. Such an arrangement was the one great desire of the Frisco, while on the other hand, the Santa Fe has long wished for a shorter route to San Angelo.

J. M. Burke of Truitt went to Ballinger Tuesday.

Jesse Couch went to Temple Tuesday to undergo an operation.

John D. Robertson, Jr. and son Harry left Tuesday for a trip to the eastern markets to secure winter and fall supplies for Mr. Robertson's dry goods store.

J. D. Robertson, Sr., who has been visiting his son in this city and relatives in Eldorado, returned Tuesday to his home at Round Rock.

O. L. Williams was a passenger on Tuesday's afternoon train, bound for Chicago and eastern points on a business trip.

Mrs. M. Felter left Tuesday for San Antonio in company with little Agnes Helso, who will undergo an operation.

Miss Willie Johnson went to Ballinger Tuesday to act as maid of honor at the marriage of Frank Mattox and Miss Alma Padgett.

SAN ANGELO WAY OF ENTERTAINING PLEASURES FOSTER

EDITOR OF PLAINVIEW NEWS DESCRIBES HIS RECENT VISIT IN CENTRAL WEST TEXAS.

THIS TOWN CALLED A REAL LIVE WIRE

Mentioned as Being the "Gem of the West." With 15,000 People, All Boosters and Good Fellows. Compliments Newspapers.

Mayor Foster, editor of the Plainview News, has the following to say of his trip from Plainview to San Angelo, in the "pathfinder," which passed through here a week or two ago:

The News man made quite an itinerary lately, going from here to San Angelo and traversing through Lubbock, Lynn, Dawson, Howard, Sterling, portions of Glasscock, Borden, Coke, and half way through Tom Green, a distance of 251 miles. The trip was made in a two-cylinder Mason car, and the actual running time was less than fifteen hours—but the roads were good, the weather delightful, the company congenial, the mission one to endorse, receptions along the way most cordial, new scenery, new phases of "life in the far west" engaging; in fact, everything was conducive to pleasure, and the point of destination was reached without let or hindrance.

At Lubbock we noted many evidences of the energy that characterizes progressive western life. At Tahoka, where we had supper, we heard railroad bonuses discussed as though they were the most commonality, notwithstanding the severest drought has been prevailing in that section, and aside from one or two small localities which had had some little rain, the crops are failures.

'Twas Midnight.
At Lamesa, where we arrived at midnight—and it was here that our mayor had his rebuff at the hands of a sleepy archer whom he tried to waken sufficiently to show us a bed. Said the mayor, "Here, young man, wake up; we want a bed." "I don't care if you do," replied Sleepy Head, "so long as you one; I'm sleepy," and with this he dismissed the subject.

Coming down to breakfast the next morning, the first thing we heard was a discussion of railroad bonuses. Lamesa is the capital of Dawson county, and a gentleman told us that up to within less than a month ago no rain had fallen in the town for several months, yet these people are getting up in the collar and are going to raise a railroad bonus of $50,000. Such fortitude, such pluck and energy it had never been our fortune to witness before. And yet such courage is but characteristic of western life.

At Soash, a new town just building in the midst of the Slaughter ranch, which extends from just south of Lamesa almost to Big Springs, we saw other evidences of the push, vim and energy a westerner is displaying in settling up a country once said to be "a dreary, howling waste, a habitation for only prairie dogs and coyotes." (The prairie dog is still there; the coyote, too.)

A few miles out from Soash we met Bob Slaughter, who as a boy made a ride that throws Paul Revere in the shade—a ride of more than 250 miles, without rest, through an unsettled country, no roads, an unhabited country—forty hours on horseback. Paul Revere's little stunt was a great thing in 1777, but George Slaughter was not then born and the plains of Texas were not then discovered; the westerner was not then known.

At Big Springs we had dinner and talked with Fox Stripping, one of the hustling business men, and with Mr. Sewell, one of the newsgatherers of that city at the foot of the plains with its 5000 inhabitants, and aside from talking of our own particular business almost every man we met seemed to know of any new developments in railroad circles that would interest Big Springs.

All Talking Railroad.
Up to this point we had traveled 182 miles, and aside from what little talk we could get in relative to the

DR. WOODS HUTCHINSON.

Few physicians are better known in the English speaking world as writers on medical topics than Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York, who has taught and lectured in several medical colleges in the United States and Great Britain.

"Flag to Flag" race, good words for Plainview and Hale county, we could get no one to talk of anything but railroad bonus, railroad prospects, and what a fine country he lived in—if it would only rain. Surely the goddesses Ceres and Pomona will one day smile on these people who in the face of such untoward conditions as confront them today, are so optimistic, so patriotic.

From Big Springs we turned south-east, passing through a portion of Glasscock county, entering the famous Concho valley and down through it to Sterling City, the capital of Sterling county. Here we met several people, and almost the first thing we heard was railroad bonus talk. Sterling City is a picturesque town situated in the midst of one of the finest valleys in the state, and has a promising future—if it would only rain—as Mr. Kellia, the newspaper man remarked to us.

"Gem of the West."

On down the valley sped the little Mason, through Water Valley, Carlsbad, then into San Angelo, the "Gem of the West," a city of 15,000 population and everyone of them boosting to beat the band for the town.

Here we had the pleasure of meeting C. A. Broome, president of the commercial club, who introduced us to many of the prominent people, and when our mission became known there was a wave of enthusiasm spread over the entire town, and all whom we met stopped boosting and talking railroad bonus long enough to assist our work.

Mayor Paul, the "Boy Mayor," was absent from the city when we arrived, hence the "keys" were not turned over to us, but everything else was, and what we didn't see, all we had to do was to ask, and it was forthcoming. The Standard and The Press-News of San Angelo made us feel at home, and opened their columns to us and gave us liberty to say what we pleased about Plainview, Hale county and the plains, and these generous-hearted papers made us feel like we had discovered a new world, where community of interest was recognized as being the most potent factor in building.

We can not to fully express our appreciation of the warm-heartedness of San Angelo people, who, while interested in the home town, can find time to tender the glad hand to other sections.

San Angelo is an historic town, and while not nearly so old as many Texas towns, has in it many relics of the past, the most interesting being the remains of old Fort Concho, established there long before the civil war. To see the crumbling ruins is but to think of the great hardships incurred to make that section of our great state habitable, for without the work done by the government it is probable that the march of civilization would have been long delayed.

Live Wire.

San Angelo is located at the confluence of the North Concho (Rio Concho) and the Middle Concho (Rio de las Perlas), the main town being on the north side of the river. We had not time nor opportunity to gather data for anything like an extended write-up of the town, but it is a real live wire, full of energetic, pushing and progressive people, a people who recognize that it takes all to build.

MANSION.

B. Allen of Sherwood Here Purchasing Material for Fine Home.

B. Allen one of the leading ranchmen of the Sherwood section, was in the city Tuesday purchasing material for a ranch mansion that he will erect on his ranch. When completed this will probably be one of the most elegant homes in Irion county.

HAGELSTEIN BOOKS LONG LINE OF SPLENDID ATTRACTIONS FOR BIG FALL FAIR AND CARNIVAL

George Hagelstein, president of the Fall Fair association, is back in San Angelo from a long summer trip to Colorado Springs, Denver, Salt Lake City, Yellowstone Park, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and the Grand canyon.

"Fair news?" he said, with a wink. "Of course, I contracted for some good amusement enterprises while away—that is one reason I went. Right at present I can't give them out, but you may say that I contracted for just about all the fair association could stand for. However, I will say that we are going to have the finest fair that San Angelo and West Texas ever saw—that's no pipe dream. The amusements are far superior to anything ever brought here before.

"What we want to do is to get busy with a vengeance—every member of the fair association—and work with might and main. The fair is right here on us and there is lots to do. The $1000 must be raised immediately so lack of funds won't interfere with the work. Other amusements may be added from time to time as finances will permit.

"One feature of the fair that is bound to be a success from the jump go is the automobile attractions. I stopped off in Dallas and Fort Worth and the auto people there are greatly interested in the coming fair, and the factories, through the state agents, will enter many high class cars, and speed records may be lowered; who knows?"

"I liked the exposition at Seattle very much. It was a compact fair, not all widely spread out like the St. Louis exposition. Of course it was not on as magnificent a scale as the one at St. Louis, but the entertainments were of a high class and a credit to those in charge.

"Since returning to Texas I have been over a considerable portion of the agricultural section of the state, and I want to say that the country between San Angelo and Brownwood is ahead of anything in the state when it comes to good crops.

"I talked San Angelo while away, and we are going to have some lively immigration before long. The fair will bring hosts of prospectors.

"The whole family enjoyed the trip hugely—had a great time, but still we are mighty glad to be back in San Angelo."

NATHAN STRAUS.

REVISED PLANS OF POSTOFFICE ARE RECEIVED

Plans and specifications of the three-story federal building for San Angelo are now in the hands of the local postoffice officials, being received Tuesday morning. Bids will be opened in Washington September 15. The specifications call for a building to cost approximately $110,000, to be finished by December 1, 1910. Local contractors who care to bid are requested to call at the postoffice and examine the plans and specifications.

The dimensions of the building will be 60x100. The main front is on Twelfth avenue and a side entrance will be on Oakes street. On the first floor the postoffice work room will take up about half. There will be an immense lobby, and the postmaster's room will be on the southeast corner. On the northwest corner will be the assistant postmaster's office. The general delivery and stamp windows, as well as the postal drops, will be directly in front of the Twelfth entrance. The money order register will be on the northwest corner.

On the second floor there will be a general court room, where the federal judge will sit; a stenographer's room, two clerks' rooms, a witness room, two for United States marshals and one for the district attorney.

The third floor will consist of the court room, the grand and petit jury rooms, a witness room, postoffice inspector's office, and three offices unassigned.

The outer portion of the whole building, according to plans, will be built entirely of terra cotta and brick. All the interior iron work will be painted, instead of electroplated, as previously considered. Wood construction will be substituted for the fire-proof band, viz: cement and steel. Tin and galvanized metal will be used instead of copper, as previously thought. Stately granite entrance ways will grace the building and add to its metropolitan features.

Two big street lamps will do away with the darkness on both sides of the building. These lamps will each have three large globes of true city type.

The federal building will be supplied with a large basement, which will contain all the elevator machinery, the boiler for steam heating, the swing room for the carriers, tollers, bath, etc.

AGREE ON DATE FOR EXCURSION ALONG ORIENT

LINE OF AUTOMOBILES TO START SEPTEMBER 20 TO BE OUT FOR FIVE DAYS.

ENTRANCE FEE FIXED AT THIRTY DOLLARS

Committees on Publicity, Feeding, Transportation, Speakers and Advertising Are Appointed. Meeting for Wednesday.

Remember the dates—September 20-25.

That's when the San Angelo Trades Excursion will be on the road.

The dates were decided upon at a meeting of the publicity committee held in the office of Mayor Paul Tuesday afternoon. That, and appointing sub-committees to look after the details of the excursion, was about all that was done at this meeting. The following sub-committees were agreed upon:

To find out who is going—Freeland and McCaleb.

Publicity—Tupper.

Feeding—March and Freeland.

Transportation—Paul and Tupper.

Speakers—March and Paul.

Advertising matter—McCaleb and Tupper.

It was further announced that the transportation cost for the five days will be about $25 a head. To this the committee thought best to add $5 a head for all going, making the "all aboard" fee $30. Souvenirs and eating will be extra, but just how much extra the eating will be is not yet known.

The route will be agreed upon at another meeting of the committee to be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the office of Mayor Paul.

The excursion is a cinch. First come, first served. Mayor Paul has volunteered his Chalmers-Detroit to do a path-finding stunt after the route is agreed on, and it is likely that "Daredevil" Labadie can be secured to pilot the path-finder.

ONLY A BORROW IF YOU PLEASE

FAIR SOLICITING COMMITTEE STARTS WEDNESDAY.

NO HOT AIR GOES NOW

Sum of $4000 Must Be Raised, but Merchants Will Get Their Money Back With Interest.

Have your hands on the pen and be ready to write a check when the Fair soliciting committee appears before you today. Tuesday evening a curbside meeting of this committee, which as reorganized consists of B. C. Alexander, C. Edwards, T. C. Atwood, John Freeland and L. E. Keubne, was held in front of Edwards' shoe store and it was agreed to hit the shoe hard bright and early Wednesday.

"Tell the good people that we can save time if they will do that at first they will see their way clear to do later," said Mr. Alexander. "We merely want to make a genteel borrow. The fair will bring plenty of people here to pay back the loan and pay it back with usurious interest. But the main thing is the good people ought to put quickness in their thinking, and they should respond with alacrity to the visit from the committee. If they see the committee on the streets, just make a noise like a native and the committee will take the subscription right on the spot."

The fair association wants only $4000.

ATWOOD HAS FIRST ISSUE OF LINCOLN CENT

Gone from the face of Uncle Sam's coppers is the head of the big Indian chief. Since 1863 his feathered head has graced all the one-cent pieces produced by the mint, but like his human counterpart, he has had his day.

The 1909 copper is just out, and it is noticeable that the face of Abraham Lincoln is engraved upon it. Across the rim is written "In God We Trust," and on the other side of Lincoln's head are the words "Liberty—1909." On the reverse are engraved two sheaths of wheat, "E Pluribus Unum," "United States of America," and on the rim the initials V. B. D., those of the designer.

A peculiar incident connected with the new one-cent piece is the fact that when the first round was struck off it was found that three initials instead of one as previously, were used. The manufacture was immediately stopped and it is reported that a new die is being cast, using only one initial.

The first issue of these coins is in great demand in the large cities, according to T. C. Atwood, who claims to have the only one in town.

REAGAN'S BIRTHDAY TO BE CELEBRATED

San Angelo Chapter, United Daughters of Confederacy, Will Have Splendid Program for Occasion.

Application for a charter was drawn up at a meeting of the local chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy at the court house Tuesday afternoon. The charter will very likely be here in time for the next meeting.

Letters were read from Miss Kate Duffan, president of the Texas division, encouraging the Daughters of San Angelo to persevere in their work. The second Tuesday of each month was set at the date for the regular meeting. At such times papers on diverse subjects of interest will be read.

A movement is on foot to properly celebrate the birthday anniversary of John H. Reagan. Appropriate ceremonies will be had October 8.

The daughters of the Confederacy have a noble mission—to keep always fresh the memory of those brave heroes who died in defense of their principles in the greatest war in the history of the world. The veterans of those troublous times are fast going to their reward, and soon the Daughters will alone hold up the blessed memory of those who have gone before.

H. P. Hurd left Tuesday for Arkansas and Louisiana to sell lots in the Hatcher addition, for the Mason-Hughes company.

ONE THOUSAND MILES IN AN AUTOMOBILE

Clarence Webb, E. Z. Nimitz, John Abe March, Jr., and "Shorty" Johnson have returned from an auto trip of 1000 miles through the wilds of Old Mexico.

They traveled down the San Diego river and up into the Santa Rosa mountains, entering into places where no automobile ever traveled, before. The party spent some time also at the famous mud wells in the Santa Rosa mountains.

The trip consumed in all about ten days and was made in Clarence Webb's two cylinder Buick.

LEGAL TENDER HAS A CALLER

NICE-LOOKING GENTLEMAN GIVES IN ORDER AND TAPS TILL.

MAKES HAUL OF TWENTY

Then Helps Himself to Toothpick and Glass of Water—Kemp Gives Description of Caller.

While Will Kemp, owner of the Legal Tender restaurant, was back in the kitchen Tuesday morning preparing a two-bit order consisting of "a small one and two two," the prospective customer tapped the money drawer and after securing $19.40, helped himself to a toothpick and a glass of water, and took French leave.

All of this happened about 8:20 and in broad daylight. For nerve this fellow seems to have the world beaten, and for smoothness—well, he is it.

Mr. Kemp states that the fellow had the appearance of a first-class gentleman, was neatly dressed and quite handsome. He weighs about 144 pounds and is about 23 years of age. He wore a black derby, had dark hair and was smooth shaven.

Officers were notified early Tuesday morning, but so far no clews have been unearthed.

W. V. Brock and H. R. Wilkins have returned from Bronte, Robert Lee and other points in Coke county. They report crops in good shape.

Miss Gladys Noll left Tuesday for her home in Mena, Ark., after visiting Miss Anna Burns of this city for two months.

SPACE FILLER.

During the dog days it is always a fruitful theme, is this proposition to levy a tax on bachelors, the revenue raised in this manner to be used in maintaining the state orphan asylum.

Taken as a general proposition, bachelors should be taxed. They should, in the eternal fitness of things, be taxed, if for no other purpose, then merely to preserve the law of averages or to keep intact the rules of righteousness.

A bachelor is a parboiled beast. He knows not the softness of a gentle touch, nor is he familiar with the winning ways of bargain days. He is in ignorance of the responsibilities of making the fires in winter, cracking the ice in summer, or going for the doctor when he is half asleep.

And then again, by remaining a bachelor a mere man denies to womankind the happiness that is hers by divine right, that follows the ability of the Daughters of Eve to make man miserable.

What, my countrymen, my fellow-countrymen, would this country be if all the men of the world would make firm resolve, with a jail sentence attachment for even thinking about breaking the covenant, never, never, never to marry? Who in the dim and distant future would read aloud on the glorious Fourth the Declaration of Independence, or who would there be to keep alive the dreams of populism via the Nebraska route? Echo answers who.

So let's tax the bachelors. Let's begin on Col. James Hampton Sullivan, the perennial editor of the San Antonio Express, and wind up on Col. James Hays Quarles, the self-confessed greatest genius who ever wrote about a monkey. They all ought to be taxed. The are the preordained, the forsalled bearers of the burdens, and the hewers of the wood. They are enjoying a liberty now and a freedom from the irksome and the gladdening cares of life that is not right. Let's tax 'em. Tax the high living out of them. Either tax 'em so hard that they will amend and just mend their ways, or else be forced to take a job as dish washer in some of the homes out this way that are greatly in need of dish washers.

And now Dr. Rankin, who is sort of Lord of the Admiralty of the Ministerial Junta seeking to prohibitionize Texas, says that Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald is a mean thing because Fitzgerald, who is editorial writer on the Dallas Times-Herald, refuses to change coins every time Come Johnson gets on a new hobby. Bre'r Rankin will find that Bre'r Fitzgerald is salt on sore spots, if he rubs him the wrong way. And Bre'r Fitzgerald can make sore spots while you wait, too. He keersful, Bre'r Rankin, be awful keersful.

Hot? Well, yes, some. But you ought to think about the other places in Texas. And if this doesn't make you cool by comparison, think about where the thousands and thousands of delinquent subscribers are now already yet, and you will admit, you are bound to admit, that after all the San Angelo atmosphere is just about the most pleasant you ever got well tangled up with.

Down with the dust devil. Beaumont oil can kill 'em, just like Beaumont oil can kill mosquitoes in Brownwood.

How would it do to invite the Frisco to build a line into San Angelo?

For the life of us we can not understand why some people want to preach "submission" when the thermometer is 100 in the shade.

Remember a trades excursion, like Christmas, doesn't come every day in the year. Brush up your resolution bump and don't let your wishbone be where your backbone ought to be.

The Brownwood Bulletin wants to know how The Press-News got information that the normal will be located here. This information was secured a sight easier than the $30,000 or thereabout that Brownwood is willing to pay for the institution.

Commissioner George Mulkey returned the tainted money offered as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Officer Campbell in Fort Worth. The commissioner is a wise man, despite his seventy odd years on earth.

Jack Pettit, staff writer on the Post-Record combination, has entered the lists to make a halo about the head of Gov. Campbell. Well, he's fit company for Tom Love. And one thing is certain, if Tom Love and Jack Pettit can't halo Campbell that instinct had better return to his East Texas haunts.

Have you noticed that since congress adjourned Gov. Campbell isn't jumping over the country half so much. In fact, he has about completely crawled back into his shell. It takes nothing more than a shadow to cause some people to know when it's time to look for a soft spot to fall.

The San Angelo Gas company is reading the stars in the sky. That's why additional ground has been bought by that company for improvements.

San Angelo is headed cityward with boots that go a league better than the proverbial seven, each time they are lifted from the ground. Remember the dates—October 5-9—and tell your friends the San Angelo fair is worth coming many miles to see.

Lovers Would Wed While in Open Court

New York, Aug. 17.—Just the minute she can induce somebody to furnish ball to the amount of $2500 so that she can get out of the toms for a few minutes, Grace Maidhof, the passer of bad checks, is going to be married. At least that is what she told Magistrate Steinert yesterday when she was arraigned in the West side court. She waived examination on a larceny charge and in the same breath told the Magistrate what was going to happen, just as soon as— But frankly, there doesn't seem to be such a much of a chance of her leaving the prison right away.

The young woman went to court decked in white, and really looked the bride she expects soon to be. There was a white suit, a big white hat with a lot of white feathers and a white veil. What was even more cheerful than the festive clothing was the happy manner in which she talked of the little matter of bad checks.

The first one of the trio to face the Magistrate yesterday morning was the young woman herself. She waived examination, made an attempt to get her ball reduced, and falling, snifflingly resumed her seat by the side of Ralph S. Whitney, the law clerk with whom she has been living in a flat at 315 West 113th street. It is Whitney who is to be the bridegroom. The young woman made an affidavit against him as soon as she was through with her own arraignment. Whitney was called to the bridge. The court officer who called him had to break up a tender scene between the two lovers—it was evident that the affidavit which the girl had just signed was made without malice.

The victim did not seem to regret it at all. He even went so far as to tell one of the detectives that the girl had become involved in the difficulty through him and he was going to stick to her, even to the extent of marrying her.

Grace Maidhof seems to have no compunctions about getting her co-conspirators—if that is what they are—into trouble. Besides peaching on her lover, she accused John Henry Freeze, a lawyer who was defending her, of forgery—of being the third in the bad check trio. And yesterday as soon as Whitney had waived examination and had been told that his bail would be $3000 for his appearance in General Sessions, Freeze was brought up and the real fight began.

District Attorney Rice took care of the State's side of the quarrel. Freeze had a lawyer, but seemed to prefer to do most of his own talking. Freeze said that he could get $2000 bail, but not $3000, and asked that the bond be reduced to the former amount. It wasn't. At his own request Magistrate Steinert set his examination for Tuesday.

Freeze was told that Mr. Rice had gathered evidence that rendered it imperative that he be held under stiff ball. This roused him. He exclaimed that he was the victim of a gang of blackmailers and said that he was going to fight until he had completely vindicated himself. For this fight, he said, he could better prepare if he had his freedom.

In the story of his life which Freeze told in the course of his pleading with the Magistrate, the lawyer said that he got a job copying records in the court house in Bangor, Maine, in 1893, and there attracted the attention of the Chief Justice of Maine and a former Chief Justice, and thus their influence enabled him to get into Harvard. He spent eight years at Harvard, he said, and President Elliot lent him $200 to fix up a few small debts before he left. This and the other obligations he had incurred during his course he had repaid. From Harvard he came to New York as a clerk in the office of Sullivan & Cromwell, and later struck out for himself. He said that he now has some 500 clients.

The two lover prisoners wanted Magistrate Steinert to marry them right there in court; but this he declined to do.

WOMAN BREAKING STRIKE.

Daughter of Former Mill Superintendent Aids in Quelling Trouble.

Newcastle, Pa. Aug. 17.—The strike at the local mills of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company here bids fair to be broken soon. When it is, the credit will be given Mollie Braden, the pretty daughter of Dan Braden, one of the former mill superintendents, who is leading all the strike breakers, and has taken the position of forewoman in the assorting room. Miss Braden years ago worked in the mill for her health, and this stands her in good stead now.

In her own automobile Miss Braden is taken to and from the mills daily and inside the large handbag which she carries there is always a revolver, ready for use. Her chauffeur also is armed, and three detectives, who ride with her, go heavily armed. Last week stones were thrown at her automobile as it passed along the streets.

LOST AND FOUND.

To Enforce Law.

Minneapolis, Aug. 17.—Women will take an active interest in the enforcement of the anti-cigarette law, which goes into effect Sunday. Drug stores especially will be watched.

In most cases these women are mothers, who will insist that the cigarette law be enforced to the letter. As a result the large drug stores announce that they will make no attempt to sell cigarettes after Sunday.

This week will see slashing cuts in the price of cigarettes and few dealers expect to have any stock by midnight next Saturday.

The passing of the cigarette in the stores of this state does not mean a material decrease in their consumption, however, because already retailers have certificates, which will be sold to the consumer, and these may be mailed to out of the state dealers, who will promptly ship cigarettes to the home of the consumer.

The Value of Good Digestion

Is easy to figure if you know what your stomach is worth. Kodol keeps the stomach at par value, by insuring good digestion. Kodol cures Dyspepsia.

Kodol insures good digestion by absolutely duplicating Nature's normal process, in perfectly digesting all food taken into the stomach.

While Kodol is doing this, the stomach is resting—and becoming strong and healthy. A strong and healthy stomach guarantees a sound and active brain.

The man with a sound stomach—a stomach that is doing for the body just what Nature intended it to do—is the man who is always prepared for any emergency. He is "there with the goods."

The man with a sick stomach, is a man sick all over. When the stomach is irritated by undigested food, the blood and heart are directly affected. Then dizziness, unnatural sleepiness, sick-headaches, vertigo and fainting spells, and even serious brain trouble develop. Kodol will prevent these.

Spurring the stomach and brain

to special effort by "tonics" and "stimulants" doesn't cure anything, or accomplish any good. Neither does dieting. Indigestion and the serious ailments which it induces can be averted and corrected only by natural means.

Kodol supplies this natural means. It performs the stomach's work for it—just as the stomach should perform it—while the stomach takes a little rest, "for the stomach's sake."

Our Guarantee

Go to your drugist today and get a dollar bottle. Try it. If you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the drugist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the drugist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all drugists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to bottles in a family. The large bottle contains 12 bottles as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. G. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Vat for you tink I want you in on dis, you svine? To set around und dream? Nobody else knows about dis treasures, und ve got it all for ourselves—ve four und no more, und you svy. Vat's der hurry? It's all ours. Ve divide it oop in der cave mit all der money ve get from der bank. Vat? Yes? Den, ven der time comes, ve send it all by Australia und no von is der vser. Der natives von't know, und der white peebles von't be alive to care about it."

"I don't like dot scheme to rob der bank," growled Jan. "If der peebles get on to us, dey would cut us to pieces."

"But dey von't get on to us, you fool. Dey wouldn't take it themselves if it was handed to dem. Dey're too honest—yes. Vell, don't dey say ve're honest too? Vell, vat more von vant? Dey don't know how much money und rubies dere is in der bank. Ve von't take all of it—and dey von't know der difference. Ve burn der books. Das is all. Ve get in by der bank tonight, boys."

"I don't like id," said Joost. "Id's stealing from our friends, Yacob. Besides, if der oder heirs should go before der government mit der story, vat den?"

"Der oder heirs vill never get der chance, boys. Dey vill die mit der plague—ha, ha! Sure! Dere von't be no oder heirs. Ransla says it must be so. Ve can't wait, boys. It vill be years before der business is settled. Ve must get vat ve can now und wait for der decision afterwards. Brodney has wrote to Ransla, saying dat dot Chase feiler is to stay here vredder ve vant him or not. He says Chase is a goot man! By tam, it makes me cry to tink of vot he has done by me—dot goot man!"

To the amazement of all the bury German began to blubber.

"Come on, Yacob," said Jan gruffly. Von Blitz shook his fist at the door across the chamber and thundered his final-maledictions.

"Sir John says in der letter to Misder Chase dere is a movements on foot in London to settle der coutest out of court," volunteered Joost.

"Sure, but he also say dat ve all may die mit old age before it is over yet."

"Don't forget der plague!" said Jan. They growled mightily as they lifted der heavy chests to their shoulders and started for the door.

"Close der door, Jan," commanded Von Blitz from der passage. "Ve vill light der fuse ven ve haf got beyond der first bend. Vat? Look! By tam, von of you svine has broke der fuse. Vell! Ve vill fix him now."

The door was closed behind them, but the listeners could hear them repairing the damage that Selim had done to the fuse.

Led by Selim, the four made a rush for the door leading into the chateau. They threw it open and passed through, flying as if for their lives. No one could tell how soon an explosion might bring disaster to the region; they put distance between them and the powder keg. Selim paused long enough to drop the bolts and turn the great key with the lever. At the second turn in the narrow corridor he overtook Chase and the scurrying women.

"Is there nothing to be done?" cried the princess. "Can we not prevent the explosion? They will cut off our means of escape in that!"

"I know too much about gunpowder, princess," said Chase dryly, "to fool with it. It's like a mule. It kicks hard. Gad, it was hard to stand there and hear those brutes planning it all and not be able to stop them!"

The princess was once more at his side. He had clasped her arm to lead her securely in the wake of Neenah's electric lantern. She came to a sudden stop.

"And pray, Mr. Chase," she said sharply, as if the thought occurred to her for the first time, "why didn't you stop them? You had der advantage. You und Selim could have surprised them—you could have taken them without a struggle."

He laughed softly, deprecatingly, not a little impressed by the justice of her criticism.

"No doubt you consider me a coward," he said ruefully.

"You know that I do not," she protested. "I—I can't understand your motive; that is all."

"You forget that I am the representative of these very men. I am the trusted agent of Sir John Brodney who has refused to supplant me with another. I can't very well represent Sir John and at the same time make prisoners or corpses of his clients, even though I am being stung by their legal loes. I'll not have Von Blitz saying, even to himself, that I have not only stolen his wives, but have also cast him into the hands of his Philistines. It may sound quixotic to you, but I think that Lord Deppingham and Mr. Browne will understand my attitude."

"But Von Blitz has sworn to kill you," she expostulated, with some heat. "You are wasting your integrity, I must say, Mr. Chase."

"Would you have me shoot him from ambush?" he demanded.

"Not at all. You could have taken him captive and held him safe until the time comes for you to leave the island."

"He would not have been my captive in any event. I could do no more than deliver him into the hands of his enemies. Would that be fair?"

"But he is a thief!"

"No more so than Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme, who unquestionably cheated the natives out of the very treasure we have seen carried away. I am not a constable nor a thief catcher. I am a soldier of the defense, not an officer of the crown, at this stage of the game. Today I shall contrive to send word to Ransla that Von Blitz has stolen the treasure chests. Mr. Von Blitz will have a sad time explaining this little defection to his friends. We must not overlook the fact that Lady Deppingham and Robert Browne are quite willing to take everything from the islanders. Everything that Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme possessed in this island belongs to them under the terms of the will."

They were at the top of the second flight of stairs by this time and quite a distance from the treasure chamber. His coolness, the absence of any sign of retarding sentiment, was puzzling her sorely. Half an hour before she had been carried away, rendered helpless, by the passion that swayed him. Now he spoke and looked as if he had forgotten the result of his storming. Strangely enough, she was piqued.

When they came into the well lighted upper corridor he proceeded ruthlessly to upset all of her haphazard calculations. He stopped suddenly, stepping directly in front of her. As she drew up in surprise he reached down and took both of her hands in his. For the moment she was too amazed to oppose this sudden action. She looked up into his face, many emotions in her own—reproof, wonder, dismay, hauteur, joy.

"Wait," he said gently. "They were quite alone. She saw the most wonderful light in his gray eyes. Her lips parted in quick, timorous confusion. "I love you. I am sorry for what I did down there. I couldn't help it—nor could you. Yet I took a cruel advantage of you. I know what you've been thinking too. You have been saying to yourself that I wanted to see how far I could go. Don't speak. I know! You are wrong. I've absolutely worshipped you since those first days in Thorberg, wildly, hopelessly, day and night. I was afraid of you—yes, afraid of you because you are a princess. But I've got over all that, Geneva. You are a woman, a living, real woman, with the blood and the heart and the lips that were made for me to crave. I want to tell you this here in the light of day, not in the darkness that hid all the truth in me except that which you might have felt in my kiss."

"Please—please don't," she said once more, her lip trembling, her eyes full of the softness that the woman who loves cannot hide. "You shall not go on! It is wrong!"

"It is not wrong!" he cried hotly. "My love is not wrong. I want you to understand and to believe. I can't hope that you will be my wife. It's too wildly improbable. You are not for such as I. You are pledged to a man of your own world, your own exalted world. But listen, Geneva. See, my eyes call you darling even though my lips dare not. Geneva, I'd give my soul to hear you say that you will be my wife. You do understand how it is with me?"

The delicious sense of possession thrilled her. She glowed with the return of her self esteem, in the restoration of that quality which proclaimed her a princess of the blood. She was sure of him now. She was sure of herself. She had her emotions well in hand. And so, despite the delicious warmth that swept through her being, she chose to reveal no sign of it to him.

NEGRO SALOON

Fulfilling his threat to "shoot up the dump," Jesse Mennifield, a negro, created a sensation in the Coney Island beer garden Monday afternoon when he opened fire on Ritchie Taylor, bringing him down, and also wounding Dock Robinson, both negroes. Taylor died Tuesday night, but Robinson was more badly frightened than hurt.

Taylor and Mennifield became involved in a saloon row, which warmed up to such proportions that Mennifield told Taylor he had better look out, "for I am going home to get my gun, and when I come back I am going to kill you."

Taylor was not easily bluff, for he told Mennifield to go ahead and get the gun—that he would be in the room waiting for him to return. Mennifield rushed frantically out the door, and Taylor proceeded to play pool and billiards. A little later Mennifield made his appearance at the back door, carrying in his arms a big shotgun.

"Look out, you fellows, I am going to shoot," he exclaimed. And the big knock down and scum stunt came off. Taylor grabbed Dock Robinson as a shield. But Mennifield was not to be blocked in his game, and turned loose, the contents of the gun striking Robinson in the back. Robinson shed the shot like a duck sheds water from its back, but he received a well developed case of fright, and tore himself loose from Taylor. Then Mennifield took a crack at Taylor, bringing him down. Taylor lived a few hours and expired. Robinson was "seriously injured" until he consulted a physician, and being told that he was not hurt, he recovered immediately.

Mennifield was arrested by City Marshal Bates and locked up for safe keeping.

R. H. Harris left Tuesday for the Osage reservation in Oklahoma to look after cattle interests.

IN TIME TO HANDLE
FALL FAIR CROWDS

Santa Fe Will Be Running Over Frisco Track Fort Worth to Brownwood, Before October.

In ample time for the handling of the crowds of the San Angelo fair, the Santa Fe will be operating trains between Fort Worth and Brownwood, over the Frisco tracks.

Announcement to this effect was received in San Angelo Tuesday morning, and it came from an official source. This sounds good to the people of San Angelo, but it is nothing more than they have been expecting.

With the Santa Fe using the Frisco tracks there will be no delay and change of cars in getting into San Angelo, and the attendance at the fair will be greatly increased as a result. The entire trip from Fort Worth to San Angelo will be made within less than twelve hours—just a nice ride.

This deal has long been on tap, and it had its inception when the Frisco secured trackage rights into Dallas from Paris over the Santa Fe. Such an arrangement was the one great desire of the Frisco, while on the other hand, the Santa Fe has long wished for a shorter route to San Angelo.
