SPIRITED SPEECHES EVIDENCE OF FAITH

San Angelo Business Men Realize That When Col. Jones Says He Will Do a Thing He Is Not Wind-jamming—Much Applause.

RAILROAD COMMITTEE.

In accordance with the instructions given at the mass meeting Wednesday night the following committee has been appointed to confer with Col. Morgan Jones upon his arrival here Thursday:
George J. Bird.
J. W. Hill.
W. C. Johnson.
John A. Loomis.
M. B. Pulliam.
George E. Webb.
C. C. Walsh.
T. C. Wynn.
Dr. John Abe March.
Jerry Rust.
C. A. Broome.

It was a great crowd at the court house Wednesday night to consider the proposition submitted by Col. Morgan Jones to build an extension of the Abilene Southern into San Angelo—and out again. It was a crowd of city builders. It was a crowd of people who move mountains. It was a crowd composed of people who believe that if the mountains will not come to them, they will go to the mountains, and once they reach them will cause them to grow green with the fruits of their toil and to blossom with flowers from the gardens they plant.

W. T. Bartholomew, vice president of the Business club, called the meeting to order and asked T. C. Wynn to explain its object. This Judge Wynn did along the lines well known and heretofore published. He went into the initial efforts made to get the road, beginning about two years ago. He recited the efforts made by Mr. Broome leading up to the making of the proposition by Col. Jones, showing that San Angelo was the urging party. Col. Jones, after coming here, visited Sonora, he said, and Col. Jones was well pleased with his trip. He told of the efforts made to induce Col. Jones to reduce his demand from $100,000 to $75,000 cash bonus.

His Proposition.
The proposition of Col. Jones to build into San Angelo and in a southerly or westerly direction out of Tom Green county for right of way in Tom Green county and $75,000 was read. Billed down, the speaker said the proposition was to build into San Angelo and out again for the bonus and the right of way. He also said the chances are Col. Jones will have his road into San Angelo by July, 1910.

Chairman Bartholomew was unanimously commanded to remain in the chair. Senator Hill moved a resolution declaring it the sense of the meeting that the proposition of Col. Jones be accepted. Esquire Burgess was elected secretary before the motion of Senator Hill was debated.

Advantage of Opportunities.

In response to a suggestion from the chair Brown F. Lee made an address. Lee said all his life he has wanted to live in a railroad center, and that the tendency of the times was calculated to bring this end to San Angelo. "But," he said, "we have not yet reached this stage, but if we press onward we can hope with reasonable degree to achieve this end." He urged that the people take advantage of opportunities of San Angelo hopes to be a real city. It takes more than two trunk lines of railroad to make a city. The shop systems of a railroad, he said, are equal to a monthly cotton crop. He pictured the advantage of having another great system here in glowing terms. He declared as his belief that Col. Jones has in contemplation the building of a great line here, a part of a great system. He also declared that a "little jerk water road" will not pay, as a reason why Col. Jones will have to continue his road.

Mr. Lee then pictured in writing language the deplorable effects that will follow if Col. Jones builds a line through Tom Green county without touching San Angelo. Col. Jones, he said, has recently been in Eldorado and Sonora, and this, he argued, presaged his purposes, and Mr. Lee also said that he had been informed that 50 per cent of the trade of San Angelo comes from south and east. "If he builds through this country without coming here," he said, "it will mean that business houses now renting for $75 and $100 per month will not bring $30 or $50 a month."

An Illustration.

He told of the stunted growth of Huntsville all because the citizens of that place refused to give $50,000 bonus when the International and Great Northern road was built, as a reason for San Angelo not permitting herself to sleep on the opportunities now at hand. The outcome of the obstinacy on the part of the city of Huntsville, Walker county voted $100,000 worth of bonds to build seven miles, besides $35,000 given by the citizens of Huntsville, merely to get a jerk water road of seven miles, from Phelps to Huntsville. He cited this to show there is no reason why Col. Jones has to build here. Col. Jones, he said, is not compelled to build into San Angelo. He also cited the case of Belton as a shining example of why San Angelo can't afford to pass up this opportunity.

Not a Losing Proposition.

"I do not believe a man ever lost a cent to any subscription he has ever made as a bonus in San Angelo," the speaker said, and he was applauded. He also thought that after this road came it would mark the last bonus proposition.

Farr Will Subscribe.

Calls for L. L. Farr resulted in a declaration that he would subscribe. Senator Hill made a rousing speech. "San Angelo can do anything she wants to," he said, and was applauded. He pictured in eloquent language the growth of San Angelo.

"We have got a set of men in San Angelo who in my judgment are city builders, who will never stop until there are 50,000 or 75,000 people here," he said. He predicted that population here in less than twenty years.

Not Yet Satisfied.

"If you are satisfied with what you have got, your day is done," he said, and then declared that San Angelo is not now satisfied.

He reviewed the struggles San Angelo has undergone to get railroads, but declared the results have compensated for the trouble and expense fully. He told of how securing the Orient alone has made property increase 300 to 400 per cent in value, and he also declared that the Santa Fe's building to the northwest is the best thing that ever happened to San Angelo, and this was applauded vigorously. "If the citizens of San Angelo say they want the Morgan Jones road, just as surely as tomorrow's sun rises you will get that road," he said. "I never accomplished anything in my life when I thought I couldn't do it. We have got to make up our minds. This opportunity is presented. We must embrace it or it will be built to the east and south of us, and our best trade territory will be ours no more. Don't you let the sun go down on you tomorrow before you put your shoulder to the wheel and your name down for a liberal subscription."

Col. Jones Here Thursday.

He urged that a committee be appointed to confer with Col. Jones, who will be here Thursday and take up the details and work them out with Col. Jones to get this road.

Dr. John Abe March was forced to the front, but he merely said "much obliged," and sat down. R. Wilbur Brown was called on and began by saying with Senator Hill that he believed San Angelo can get anything she wants. He said if this city doesn't take advantage of this opportunity the day will come when all will regret it. He made a strong speech in favor of accepting the proposition. He said no man ever paid a railroad $1 in value, for every railroad that comes returns from $2 to $100. He excoriated the mossbacks good and hard. He was heartily applauded when he finished.

Don't Be a Dead One.

Col. A. J. Baker got a rousing reception when he responded to calls. He heartily indorsed all that had been said. "We should do all we can while alive and not wait until we are dead," he said. "We have a live town and have had a live town ever since I have been here, but if we don't secure this road we may be a dead one."

Col. Baker made a strong and stirring speech in favor of the proposition from the standpoint of a business man. "If this road doesn't build here but goes by there will be not less than 500 men to say 'I wish I had sold out in San Angelo.'"

"We have now, according to assessor's figures, $4,000,000 in property. Let a trunk line miss this town and you will cause this property to decrease 20 per cent," he said. He expressed himself as being delighted that the Santa Fe had taken over the Lanin road, and this was vigorously applauded. He argued that the Santa Fe is compelled to continue this road. He declared that not even excepting J. J. Hill is there a more honorable railroad man or a more able one than E. P. Ripley of the Santa Fe, "and that's the kind of man I like to see build railroads," he said, and was loudly applauded.

Glad to Subscribe.

"I am glad to be able to pay my subscription to Mr. Ripley," he said. He told of a time when Col. Jones accommodated him and declared Col. Jones is not an exacting man. He extolled the splendid possibilities incidental to the Jones road in an eloquent manner.

"Col. Jones has asked of us a large proposition, but we have got to take it, that's all," he said. "Everyone agrees this is the best town in Texas. If you believe this, manure the roots of the tree."

He predicted the growth of the cattle and the wool interests and the growth of the farming interests, and these use transportation facilities. When the Santa Fe came San Angelo had 2500 people, one half being non-contributing Mexicans, and $80,000 was raised. "We can give a million dollars today for the Jones road and not hurt us any more than it did to give $80,000 twenty-two years ago." He rapped with resounding whacks the hold-back and was applauded. He pictured the future of San Angelo as one of the great cities of Texas in glowing terms.

Proposition Accepted.

Senator Hill's motion to accept the proposition was carried. Col. Baker called for those opposing, who will not subscribe to the fund, to get up. No one got up. Judge Wynn moved that a committee of twelve to take up the details with Col. Jones be appointed, this being unanimously carried.

Adjourned.

MEETING.

Street Railway Company Elects B. P. Jones Assistant Secretary.

B. P. Jones was elected assistant secretary and treasurer of the San Angelo Street Railway company at a meeting of the directors held at the San Angelo Bank and Trust company Wednesday morning.

The regular order of business was gone over, but nothing was given out for publication.

GREAT.

Range Along the Pecos Is Fine, Says John Cannon.

"Great doing out on the Pecos, declared John Cannon, who has just returned from his ranch near Sheffield, where he has been spending the summer with his family. "The range is in the best condition it has been in for many years. Cattle are fat and ranchers are materially increasing the number of their range cattle in anticipation of a fine fall stand of grass."

Mr. Cannon will enter his two daughters, Misses Avis and Ethelreda, in the Denton Industrial college. Both are of last season's crop of sweet girl graduates of the Abbott high school.

BIG INCREASE REALTY VALUES

PIELLUCH PROPERTY INCREASED RAPIDLY IN WORTH.

IS BOUGHT FOR $15,000

O. B. Sampson Was Purchaser and He Realized 700 per Cent on Deal.

Pielluch Back.

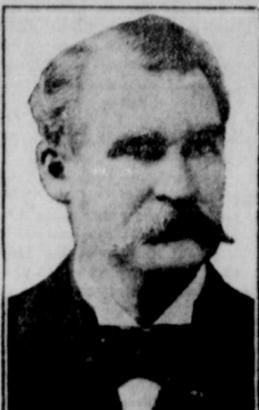

Just to illustrate the manner in which San Angelo property is increasing in value by jumps and bounds, the case of the South Chadbourne street property once owned by Henry Pielluch is a striking example.

It will be remembered that Mr. Pielluch left San Angelo about a year ago for parts unknown. After awhile he wrote back to friends here to sell his property, and this was sold to O. B. Sampson for $1500. Only recently the same property sold again for $8000.

Mr. Pielluch is back in San Angelo now and says that he intends to stay here, although he will not engage in the cigar business, his previous vocation. He tells marvelous tales of the growth of Old Mexico, where he spent a good portion of the time he was away. He said that with proper development it will be the greatest country in the world. "Though, of course," he added, "I do not believe any appreciable degree of progression may be attained as long as Mexicans have charge of the government. What she needs is a progressive bunch of American citizens in charge, and then she will go forward with great rapidity."

While away Mr. Pielluch visited many points of interest on the Pacific coast as far up as Oregon. "I was simply seeing the world," he said, but San Angelo is best after all."

Announcement has been made that regular trains will start running from Ballinger to Abilene on Sunday. This will insure an excellent service for the fare in Abilene. This road will come into San Angelo in time for the next San Angelo fair after this year.

MANY MERCHANTS PLAN GALA FRONTS

J. M. Coleman Declares That the Race Entries Are Increasing Day by Day—Largest Prizes Ever Offered in the West.

"Everybody working and everybody happy in the fair association midst," declared George Hagelstein with a cherubim smile Wednesday afternoon.

"At the meeting last night it was seen that though views differed slightly on several insignificant matters, in the main the whole association was of one accord and working to beat the band.

"One of the greatest pleasures I have in reading communications from all conceivable places asking about the fair and requesting catalogues that were exhausted long ago. It seems that the eyes of the whole state are upon us and interest is universal. No such things as this in the old days, and we are each and everyone of us enthused to the limit over the brilliant prospects.

"Now there is one question that has been discussed before and which was one of the most serious problems confronting the fair association at the meeting last night—the vital question of accommodating those who are surely coming here to see our fair.

"It will be remembered that even last year and previous years great difficulty was experienced in providing entertainment for the visitors; and now comes our greatest year, when many more people will be here than ever before, and our accommodations for crowds are decidedly inadequate.

"I have a scheme by which any energetic man with small capital may make quite a neat little pile during the fair, if he will call on me at my office I will gladly go into particulars with him."

In reference to race horses Jim Coleman, who has charge of the entries, said: "As fine a bunch of horses as I ever laid eyes upon is being assembled out at the fair ground. They are being trained and tried out now and everything tends to show that we are going to have some fast races.

"Some of the best horses that have been in the meets all over the state in the big cities are here and more will be here. Communications and

ORIENT GAP CLOSING UP IN A HURRY

ONLY TEN MILES OF TRACK TO AND THE LINE IS COMPLETE TO SAN ANGELO.

STILLWELL'S BRAIN BULWARK OF ROAD

It Was the Dream of This Great Railroad Builder That Gave a Magnificent Railroad to Two Countries.

With only ten miles left to go on the gap between San Angelo and Sweetwater, and the connection by rail of this city and Wichita, Kan., the Orient tracklayers are hitting noble strokes, and the completion of the entire line is only the matter of a few weeks, perhaps a few days.

Only three bridges of any consequence are left to build, and they will consume a few days each. About 5600 feet of track on one end and 700 feet on the other was laid Wednesday.

Almost at hand is the day when the hopes and dreams of A. E. Stillwell and his faithful fellow workers will have their fruition in fact. Years ago, the story has it, Stillwell drifted into Kansas City with not a dollar in his pocket, but with an idea in his brain that was worth millions and would be of inestimable benefit to a great country, even two countries, for it is of great import to Mexico.

A long time was necessary to enlist brains and capital in his enterprise, but at last the deed was accomplished and the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad was built on paper. Years were necessary to complete even a portion of the line, but with the completion of the line between Wichita and San Angelo the largest job is accomplished and the rest of the work will be only a matter of time. It has been a hard old row to hoe, but never despairing, always persevering, A. E. Stillwell will live in the history of railroad building as one of the foremost figures of the present generation.

In passing it may be said that San Angelo has not played an inactive part in his great struggle. Time and again he has come to San Angelo asking for aid, and he it said to the city's credit that the citizens have never turned him away empty-handed. Only a few months back he came to San Angelo asking a final boost in the way of subscribed bonds to complete the road to this city from Wichita. Drained to the limit, almost, by constant demands for public improvements, the citizens strained a point and raised $50,000 additional in bonds, thus enabling him to secure the steel and rails to complete the line.

And now by the time the first day of October is pulled off the business man's handy calendar the Orient trains will be running into the city—then watch San Angelo's smoke.

Bank at Paint Rock.

Paint Rock, Tex., Sept. 8.—The organization of a new state bank at Paint Rock is now a settled fact. The capital stock will be $30,000, principally home money.

It is expected that the bank will be open for business inside of sixty days. The site for the building has not been selected, but it will be within one block of the court house.

Work is being rushed on six stone buildings.

The business men have been notified by the officials of the "Sunflower" route to have all goods shipped now to Shawnee, the new town between Shawnee and Paint Rock.

A WORD PERSONAL.

Permit me to make a personal statement.

When I came to San Angelo I brought with me an abiding faith in the manifest destiny and demonstrative fairness of Western Texas.

I bought the good will of The Press-News and the physical properties of the plant. I paid a fair price for the same.

I made pretentious plans. I will hurry the fructification of these plans.

The Press-News will, beginning next Tuesday morning, give the fullest and most complete telegraph service of any morning paper in the west.

While primarily for San Angelo, no unrivaled localism will contaminate its aims. It will seek upon the broad plane of human endeavor to bring to pass those things for which we all so earnestly pray.

The Press-News asks but a few more days' patience on the part of its readers. In less than a week it will seek to reap the results that follow intelligent endeavor honestly directed.

Its organization will comprise the best talent obtainable. The managing editor is a man who has made a success in the newspaper field. Prior to coming to San Angelo he was city editor of the Fort Worth Record.

As advertising manager The Press-News felicitates itself upon having secured the services of Sanford J. Truman. The mechanical department is in charge of G. P. Hunton.

With such help as these success is the only goal possible.

We shall give our best endeavors to give the people a morning newspaper that at once will be a model journal and a reliable one.

In just a few more days you will note a marvelous improvement.

The Press-News has another Linotype now en route. It will not rest content until it has not only the best newspaper plant in the west, but also the best newspaper in the west.

The west is peopled with a generous people. And the people are fair indeed and love a worker.

We shall endeavor to merit the best wishes; we shall endeavor to merit the prayers of the people of the west.

This is the first time we have made a personal statement. We will promise unless the occasion is tense we shall not do so again. Have faith with us and we shall keep the faith. More we can not promise. More you do not ask.

EIGHT-CENT HOG.

With $8.02 1/2 for the market top Tuesday, hogs accomplished just what has been predicted for them this season. The 8-cent hog has come and been surpassed. The $8.02 1/2 stands as the new record of the Fort Worth hog market.

The record was made on a strong market, despite good receipts of fair Oklahoma shipments. The market champions were 89 head of Oklahoma porkers averaging 200 pounds.

A. F. Downey of Marlowe, Okla., shipped in the market-breakers. It was only last Friday that Marlowe hogs raised on the adjoining farm proved 8-cent hogs.

The hogs that went the 8-cent hogs one better were fed on grass up until July 15. Since then they have been fattened on corn. Mr. Downey figures that by converting the corn into $8.02 1/2 hogs he realizes $1.10 a bushel for the corn.

The breaking of the 8-cent record caused much excitement about the stock yards. Eight-cent hogs have been the talk of the week. When they went above the record there was great rejoicing.

Many corner transactions were witnessed as though some men might have been actually betting that the market would go above 8 cents. On all sides the news was received with interest. Hundreds went to view the record breakers and comment upon them.

The 8-cent hog first arrived on the Fort Worth market July 16 last. At that time fifteen head were bought by F. T. Carson for the Case Packing company at that price. Tuesday's record breakers were sold by Mr. Carson. The purchasers were Armour & Co.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

If West Texas would only half try it could be pulling down these top prices. In no other section of the state are general conditions for the successful raising of hogs more conducive than right here in Tom Green and adjoining counties. The Oklahoma hogs that topped the market were raised on grass and finished on corn. West Texas not only has the grass and the corn, but it has the finest milo maize and kaffir corn to be found anywhere. In fact, milo maize is a common crop here, and while it is the most expensive feed that can be given to hogs in many sections of Texas, it is the cheapest in West Texas. And the hog man knows that for fattening purposes nothing can beat milo maize, and for putting real bone and sinew into a hog it is in a class by itself. West Texas is awakening to the fact that the opportunity is here, and within less than two years it will doubtless be one of the greatest hog-raising sections in Texas, and the class of hogs produced and turned out to market will be equally as good if not better than the Oklahoma product.

College Days.

Now the days are at hand when all the college boys and girls, who have been spending the summer with their parents, are preparing to once more depart for fields of learning. San Angelo possesses more than the average number of college students, showing plainly the belief of the citizens that a good education should be the foundation of a career. Only a few of those leaving in the next week or two are Misses Ruth Johnson, Christine Holman, for Belmont; Miss Louise Millsbaugh, for the University of Texas; Don Lee, Jim Findlater, Austin Whitfield, for the A. and M. college; John Abe March, Jr., Boyd Hamilton, Jack Timmins, Hal Cunningham, Lee Powell, Clarence Miller, for Texas university; Willis Johnson, Jr., for West Texas Military academy; Edwin Mertz, Vosberg Hall and Mart Findlater, for Culver Military Institute; Leon Siler, for Austin college, and Hubert Beyette for Virginia Military Institute.

Mrs. E. Farnsworth and granddaughter Miss Gladys Walsh returned Tuesday from the Pacific coast, where they have been spending the summer at Long Beach, Pasadena, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Mends Socks But Marry No Not She

New York, Sept. 8.—Josephine Ebertsch, caretaker of the apartment of Louis Deffaa, livery stable proprietor in the Oscawanna, at Seventy-ninth street and West End avenue, was mending a batch of socks that Fred Schmidt, a butcher of 190 Hamburg avenue, Brooklyn, gave her last Sunday at Coney Island just before she turned down his proposition that they go over to Dreamland and get married.

"I will darn your socks because you are a good fellow, but I won't marry you," she told him on that occasion.

She was putting in the cross stitches last night about 8 o'clock when she heard someone out in Seventy-ninth street calling her. Raising the window, she saw the owner of the socks going through unsteady evolutions on the sidewalk. "Go away," she cried, "you will disgrace me." And she banged down the window. The shouting continued and windows began to go up on the other side of the street. Finally Josephine gathered the socks in a bundle and chucked them out of the second story window at Schmidt, saying:

"Take your things, and I hope I never see you again."

While she waited to see if the enamored butcher would go away she saw him draw a pistol from his pocket and take a shot at his right ear. According to the story she told the police Schmidt then pointed the pistol at her window and fired twice. A fourth bullet cut a furrow in his right cheek before E. C. Dillon of 411 West End avenue, W. J. Way, an advertising man, and W. Matthew King, a broker, who live in the Hudsonia, at 315 West Seventy-ninth street, succeeded in wresting the pistol from him.

Sergeant McCarthy of the West Sixty-eighth street police station, who heard the shots, ran up and found a crowd from Broadway, West End avenue and Riverside Drive around the fallen man, who clutched a bundle of hosiery and a darning outfit in his left hand. McCarthy then sent in a call for an ambulance.

Thirty-five minutes passed before Dr. Crowthers arrived with the ambulance, and in the meantime W. C. Morris, a broker, who lives at the Bellechere, and Albert Daube of 2197 Broadway offered to take the wounded man away in their automobile. The physician found that the man was not seriously hurt and began devoting all his efforts to get his name. The man at first admitted that he was Fred Schmidt, denied it and then admitted it again upon impeachment by the woman who had mended his socks.

The crowd appeared to think that Dr. Crowthers was indifferent to human suffering, and several of the bold-

Large Number of Names Being Suggested for New Addition.

I am getting enough names suggested for the addition I am putting on the market to have run Brigham Young during his palmy days, and every mail increases the number," said Lawson O. Dalley Tuesday, in speaking of his proposition to give a lot absolutely free of all cost to the lady who suggests a name that a committee of three, including a bachelor, accepts as the best name for the addition.

While it is not known who compose this committee, it is said that one of the committee occasionally gratifies his fancies by displaying just a suggestion of lavender when he rolls up the bottom of his trousers during a wet spell. Lavender hose and sweet sounding names ought to make a winning combination. This is just a simple little rule of deduction, which if followed may be worth a lot.

Great Front.

The J. B. Taylor Grocery is repainting its fronts in a pleasing manner. Great bevel plate glasses are taking the place of what has been rather an unpretty sight, and the front of this store will be fitted in strict accordance with the up to now sanitary methods and findings. After the glaziers and carpenter folk get through the painters will have an inning, and Norman Taylor says the finish will be real debutante-ish in its tout ensemble.

R. W. Taylor to Move Here.

R. W. Taylor of Marshall, who bought a thousand-acre farm here about three years ago, is in San Angelo to look after his interests.

"I am well pleased with this country—in fact, so much so that I felt safe in buying a section and a half of land," he said. "I intend to come out here and live, and would have done so long ago, but had business at home that I could not very well leave."

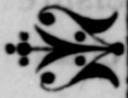

"You have the best crops in Texas, and I believe this is the coming country of Texas. When I was here before I had no idea of seeing such an improvement when I returned."

NEW POSTAL CARD.

Contract Awarded for Millions of Light Weight and More Ornate.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Postmaster General Hitchcock provided for a postal card more ornate and decidedly superior to the one now in use when he awarded a contract for 3,487,000,000 cards to the government printing office. The estimated cost, covering a period of four years from January 1, 1916, is $934,714. The postal card will be made of a stock better suited to writing, possessing sappiness, free from fustiness and presenting a neater appearance. While the weight of the card will be reduced from 150 to 130 pounds to the ream, its tensile strength will be reduced from 45 to

Surprising, What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect indigestion, the more you will suffer before Kodol can restore Good Digestion.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all.

There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach.

Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia.

Kodol will naturally assist Nature in a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect—quickly removes itself.

We knew what Kodol would do before ever the first bottle was sold. If we did not know just what it will do, we would not guarantee it the way we do.

It is easy for you to prove Kodol—the next (or the first) time you have an attack of indigestion. And you will certainly be surprised at the results. It is perfectly safe.

There can be no harm in trying something that may do you a great deal of good—when it costs you nothing if it doesn't.

Drusilla kept close to his side during these operations. She seemed afraid or ashamed to join the others. She avoided Lady Deppingham as completely as possible. Her effort to be friendly when they were thrown together was almost pitiable.

As for Lady Agnes, she seemed stricken by an unconquerable lassitude. The spirits that had controlled her voice, her look, her movements, were sadly missing. More than once Geneva had caught her watching Deppingham with eyes that spoke volumes, though they were mute and wistful.

From time to time the sentinels brought to Lord Deppingham and Chase messages that had been tossed over the walls by the emissaries of Rasula. They were written by the leader himself and in every instance expressed deepest sympathy for the plague ridden chateau.

"There's a paucity of real news in these gentle messages that annoys me," Chase said after reading aloud the last of the epistles to the princess and the Deppinghams. "I rejoice in my heart that he isn't aware of the true state of affairs. He doesn't appreciate the real calamity that confronts us. The plague? Poison? Mere piffle. If he only knew that I am now smoking my last—the last—cigarette on the place!"

"I believe you would die more certainly from lack of cigarettes than from an overabundance of poison," said Geneva. She was thinking of the stock she had hoarded up for him in her dressing table drawer, under lock and key.

"I say, Chase, can't you just see Rasula's face when he learns that we've been drinking the water all along and haven't passed away?" cried Deppingham.

"And to think, Mr. Chase, we once called you the enemy," said Lady Agnes in a low, dreamy voice.

"I appear to have outlived my usefulness in that respect," he said. He tossed the stub of his cigarette over the balcony rail. "Goodby!" he said, with melancholy emphasis. Then he bent an inquiring look upon the face of the princess.

"Yes," she said, as if he had asked the question aloud. "You shall have three a day, that's all."

"You'll leave the entire fortune to me when you sail away, I trust," he said. The Deppinghams were puzzled.

"But you also will be sailing away," she argued.

"If you forget that I have had no orders to return, Sir John expects me

er. "I will run upstairs and unlock the treasure chest. I do not trust even my maid. You shall have two tonight. No more."

"You've really saved them for me," he queried, a note of eagerness in his voice, "all these days?"

"I have been your miser," she said lightly and then ran up the stairs.

He looked after her until she disappeared at the top with a quick, shy glance over her shoulder. An expression of utter dejection came into his face. A haggard look replaced the buoyant smile.

"I cannot bear the thought of leaving you behind."

"God, how I love her—how I love her!" he groaned, half aloud.

She was coming down the stairs now, eager, flushed, more abashed than she would have had him know. Without a word she placed the two cigarettes in his outstretched palm. Her eyes were shining.

In silence he clasped her hand and led her unresisting through the window and out upon the broad gallery. She was returning the fervid pressure of his fingers, warm and electric. They crossed slowly to the rail. Two chairs stood close together. They sat down side by side. The power of speech seemed to have left them altogether.

He laid the two cigarettes on the broad stone rail. She followed the movement with perturbed eyes and then leaned forward and placed her elbows on the rail.

"If the ship should come tomorrow you would go out of my life—you would go away and leave me here," he began hoarsely.

"No, no!" she cried, turning upon him suddenly. "You could not stay here. You shall not!"

"But, dearest love, I am bound to stay. I cannot go. And, God help me, I want to stay. If I could go into your world and take you unto myself forever—if you will tell me now that some day you may forget your world and come to live in mine—then, ah, then, it would be different! But without you I have no choice of abiding place—here as well as anywhere."

She put her hands over her eyes.

The minutes became an hour, and yet they sat there with set faces, bursting hearts, unseeing eyes.

Below them in the shadows Bobby Browne was pacing the embankment, his wife drawn close to his side. Three men, Britt, Saunders and Bowles, were smoking their pipes on the edge of the terrace. Their words came up to the two in the gallery.

"If I have to die tomorrow," Saunders, the bridegroom, was saying, with real feeling in his voice. "I should say with all my heart that my life has been less than a week long. The rest of it was nothing. I never was happy before, and happiness is everything."

CHAPTER XXXI. THE SHIPS THAT PASS.

THE next morning was rainy. A quick, violent storm had rushed up from the sea during the night.

Chase, after a sleepless night, came down and, without waiting for his breakfast, hurried out upon the gallery overlooking the harbor. Geneva was there before him, pale, wistful, heavy eyed, standing in the shelter of a huge pilaster.

"Hollingsworth," she said drearly, "do you believe he will come today?"

"He?" he asked, puzzled.

"My uncle. The yacht was to call for me not later than today."

"I remember," he said slowly. "It may come, Geneva. The day is young."

She clasped his hand convulsively, a desperate revolt in her soul.

"I almost hope that it may not come for me!" she said, her voice shaking with suppressed emotion. "It will not come. I feel it in my heart. We shall die here together, Hollingsworth. Ah, in that way I may escape the other life. No, no! What am I saying? Of course I want to leave this dreadful island—this dreadful, beautiful, hateful, happy island. Am I not too silly?"

She was speaking rapidly, almost hysterically, a nervous, flickering smile on her face.

"Dear one," he said gently, "the yacht will come. If it should not come today my cruisers will forestall its mission. As sure as there is a sea those cruisers will come." She looked into his eyes intently, as if afraid of something there. "Oh, I'm not mad!" he laughed. "You brought a cruiser to me one day. I'll bring one to you in return. We'll be quits."

"Quits?" she murmured, hurt by the word.

"Forgive me," he said, humbled.

"Hollingsworth," she said after a long, tense scrutiny of the sea, "how long will you remain on this island?"

"Perhaps until I die—if death should come soon. If not, then God knows how long."

"Listen to me," she said intensely. "For my sake you will not stay long. You will come away before they kill you. You will! Promise me. You will come—to Paris? Some day, dear heart? Promise!"

"To Paris?" he said, shaking his head sadly. "No, dearest one. Not now. Listen: I have in my bag upstairs an offer from a great American corporation. My headquarters would be in Paris. My duties would begin as soon as my contract with Sir John Brodney expires. The position is a lucrative one; it presents unlimited opportunities. I am a comparatively poor man. The letter was forwarded to me by Sir John. I have a year in which to decide."

"And you—you will decline?" she asked.

"Yes, I shall go back to America; where I shall be of most use."

JONES PROPOSITION IS FAVORABLY RECEIVED

BENEFITS ARE EXPLAINED AT MASS MEETING

ROAD IS TO BE BUILT AND IT IS UP TO SAN ANGELO TO RAISE $75,000 OR LOSE THE LINE.

SPIRITED SPEECHES EVIDENCE OF FAITH

San Angelo Business Men Realize That When Col. Jones Says He Will Do a Thing He Is Not Wind-jamming—Much Applause.

RAILROAD COMMITTEE.

- In accordance with the instructions given at the mass meeting Wednesday night the following committee has been appointed to confer with Col. Morgan Jones upon his arrival here Thursday: George J. Bird, J. W. Hill, W. C. Johnson, John A. Loomis, M. B. Pulliam, George E. Webb, C. C. Walsh, T. C. Wynn, Dr. John Abe March, Jerry Rusat, C. A. Broome.

It was a great crowd at the court house Wednesday night to consider the proposition submitted by Col. Morgan Jones to build an extension of the Abilene Southern into San Angelo and out again. It was a crowd of city builders. It was a crowd of people who move mountains. It was a crowd composed of people who believe that if the mountains will not come to them, they will go to the mountains, and once they reach them will cause them to grow green with the fruits of their toil and to blossom with flowers from the gardens they plant.

T. Bartholomew, vice president of the Business club, called the meeting to order and asked T. C. Wynn to state its object. This Judge Wynn did along the lines well known and heretofore published. He went into the initial efforts made to get the road, beginning about two years ago. He recited the efforts made by Mr. Broome leading up to the making of the proposition by Col. Jones, showing that San Angelo was the urging party. Col. Jones, after coming here, visited Sonora, he said, and Col. Jones was well pleased with his trip. He told of the efforts made to induce Col. Jones to reduce his demand from $100,000 to $75,000 cash bonus.

His Proposition. The proposition of Col. Jones to build into San Angelo and in a southerly or westerly direction out of Tom Green county for right of way in Tom Green county and $75,000 was read. Billed down, the speaker said the proposition was to build into San Angelo and out again for the bonus and the right of way. He also said the chances are Col. Jones will have his road into San Angelo by July, 1910.

Chairman Bartholomew was unanimously commanded to remain in the chair. Senator Hill moved a resolution declaring it the sense of the meeting that the proposition of Col. Jones be accepted. Esquire Burgess was elected secretary before the motion of Senator Hill was debated.

Advantage of Opportunities.

In response to a suggestion from the chair Brown F. Lee made an address. Lee said all his life he has wanted to live in a railroad center, and that the tendency of the times was calculated to bring this end to San Angelo. "But," he said, "we have not yet reached this stage, but if we press onward we can hope with reasonable degree to achieve this end."

He urged that a committee be appointed to confer with Col. Jones, who will be here Thursday and take up the details and work them out with Col. Jones to get this road. Dr. John Abe March was forced to the front, but he merely said "much obliged," and sat down. R. Wilbur Brown was called on and began by saying with Senator Hill that he believed San Angelo can get anything she wants. He said if this city doesn't take advantage of this opportunity the day will come when all will regret it. He made a strong speech in favor of accepting the proposition. He said no man ever paid a railroad $1 in value, for every railroad that comes returns from $2 to $100. He exalted the mossbacks good and hard. He was heartily applauded when he finished.

Don't Be a Dead One.

Col. A. J. Baker got a rousing reception when he responded to calls. He heartily indorsed all that had been said. "We should do all we can while alive and not wait until we are dead," he said. "We have a live town and have had a live town ever since I have been here, but if we don't secure this road we may be a dead one."

Col. Baker made a strong and stirring speech in favor of the proposition from the standpoint of a business man. "If this road doesn't build here but goes by there will be not less than 500 men to say 'I wish I had sold out in San Angelo.'"

"We have now, according to assessor's figures, $4,000,000 in property. Let a trunk line miss this town and you will cause this property to decrease 20 per cent," he said. He expressed himself as being delighted that the Santa Fe had taken over the Lanin road, and this was vigorously applauded. He argued that the Santa Fe is compelled to continue this road. He declared that not even excepting J. J. Hill is there a more honorable railroad man or a more able one than E. P. Ripley of the Santa Fe, "and that's the kind of man I like to see build railroads," he said, and was loudly applauded.

Glad to Subscribe.

"I am glad to be able to pay my subscription to Mr. Ripley," he said. He told of a time when Col. Jones accommodated him and declared Col. Jones is not an exacting man. He extolled the splendid possibilities incidental to the Jones road in an eloquent manner.

"Col. Jones has asked of us a large proposition, but we have got to take it, that's all," he said. "Everyone agrees this is the best town in Texas. If you believe this, manure the roots of the tree."

He predicted the growth of the cattle and the wool interests and the growth of the farming interests, and these use transportation facilities. When the Santa Fe came San Angelo had 2500 people, one half being non-contributing Mexicans, and $80,000 was raised. "We can give a million dollars today for the Jones road and not hurt us any more than it did to give $80,000 twenty-two years ago." He rapped with resounding whacks the hold-back and was applauded. He pictured the future of San Angelo as one of the great cities of Texas in glowing terms.

Proposition Accepted.

Senator Hill's motion to accept the proposition was carried. Col. Baker called for those opposing, who will not subscribe to the fund, to get up. No one got up. Judge Wynn moved that a committee of twelve to take up the details with Col. Jones be appointed, this being unanimously carried. Adjourned.

MEETING.

Street Railway Company Elects B. P. Jones Assistant Secretary.

B. P. Jones was elected assistant secretary and treasurer of the San Angelo Street Railway company at a meeting of the directors held at the San Angelo Bank and Trust company Wednesday morning.

The regular order of business was gone over, but nothing was given out for publication.

GREAT.

Range Along the Pecos Is Fine, Says John Cannon.

"Great doing out on the Pecos, declared John Cannon, who has just returned from his ranch near Sheffield, where he has been spending the summer with his family. "The range is in the best condition it has been in for many years. Cattle are fat and ranchers are materially increasing the number of their range cattle in anticipation of a fine fall stand of grass."

Mr. Cannon will enter his two daughters, Misses Avia and Ethelreda, in the Denton Industrial college. Both are of last season's crop of sweet girl graduates of the Abbott high school.

BIG INCREASE REALTY VALUES

PIELUCH PROPERTY INCREASED RAPIDLY IN VALUE.

O. B. Sampson Was Purchaser and He Realized 700 per Cent on Deal.

Pieluch Back.

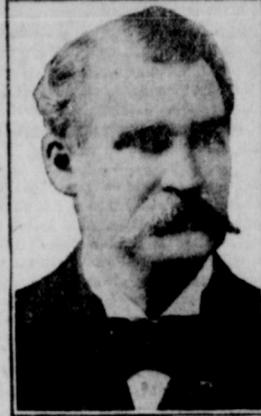

Just to illustrate the manner in which San Angelo property is increasing in value by jumps and bounds, the case of the South Chadbourne street property once owned by Henry Pieluch is a striking example.

It will be remembered that Mr. Pieluch left San Angelo about a year ago for parts unknown. After awhile he wrote back to friends here to sell his property, and this was sold to O. B. Sampson for $1500. Only recently the same property sold again for $8000.

Mr. Pieluch is back in San Angelo now and says that he intends to stay here, although he will not engage in the cigar business, his previous vocation. He tells marvelous tales of the growth of Old Mexico, where he spent a good portion of the time he was away. He said that with proper development it will be the greatest country in the world. "Though, of course," he added, "I do not believe any appreciable degree of progression may be attained as long as Mexicans have charge of the government. What she needs is a progressive bunch of American citizens in charge, and then she will go forward with great rapidity."

While away Mr. Pieluch visited many points of interest on the Pacific coast as far up as Oregon. "I was simply seeing the world," he said, but San Angelo is best after all."

Announcement has been made that regular trains will start running from Ballinger to Abilene on Sunday. This will insure an excellent service for the fall in Abilene. This road will come into San Angelo in time for the next San Angelo fair after this year.

MANY MERCHANTS PLAN GALA FRONTS

J. M. Coleman Declares That the Race Entries Are Increasing Day by Day—Largest Prizes Ever Offered in the West.

"Everybody working and everybody happy in the fair association midst," declared George Hagelstein with a cherubim smile Wednesday afternoon. "At the meeting last night it was seen that though views differed slightly on several insignificant matters, in the main the whole association was of one accord and working to beat the band."

"One of the greatest pleasures I have in reading communications from all conceivable places asking about the fair and requesting catalogues that were exhausted long ago. It seems that the eyes of the whole state are upon us and interest is universal. No such things as this in the old days, and we are each and everyone of us enthused to the limit over the brilliant prospects."

"Now there is one question that has been discussed before and which was one of the most serious problems confronting the fair association at the meeting last night—the vital question of accommodating those who are surely coming here to see our fair."

"It will be remembered that even last year and previous years great difficulty was experienced in providing entertainment for the visitors; and now comes our greatest year, when many more people will be here than ever before, and our accommodations for crowds are decidedly inadequate."

"I have a scheme by which any energetic man with small capital may make quite a neat little pile during the fair, if he will call on me at my office I will gladly go into particulars with him."

In reference to race horses Jim Coleman, who has charge of the entries, said: "As fine a bunch of horses as I ever laid eyes upon is being assembled out at the fair ground. They are being trained and tried out now and everything tends to show that we are going to have some fast races."

"Some of the best horses that have been in the meets all over the state in the big cities are here and more will be here. Communications and

ORIENT GAP CLOSING UP IN A HURRY

ONLY TEN MILES OF TRACK TO AND THE LINE IS COMPLETE TO SAN ANGELO.

STILLWELL'S BRAIN BULWARK OF ROAD

It Was the Dream of This Great Railroad Builder That Gave a Magnificent Railroad to Two Countries.

With only ten miles left to go on the gap between San Angelo and Sweetwater, and the connection by rail of this city and Wichita, Kan., the Orient tracklayers are hitting noble strokes, and the completion of the entire line is only the matter of a few weeks, perhaps a few days.

Only three bridges of any consequence are left to build, and they will consume a few days each. About 5600 feet of track on one end and 700 feet on the other was laid Wednesday.

Almost at hand is the day when the hopes and dreams of A. E. Stillwell and his faithful fellow workers will have their fruition in fact. Years ago the story has it, Stillwell drifted into Kansas City with not a dollar in his pocket, but with an idea in his brain that was worth millions and would be of inestimable benefit to a great country, even two countries, for it is of great import to Mexico.

A long time was necessary to enlist brains and capital in his enterprise, but at last the deed was accomplished and the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad was built on paper. Years were necessary to complete even a portion of the line, but with the completion of the line between Wichita and San Angelo the largest job is accomplished and the rest of the work will be only a matter of time. It has been a hard old row to hoe, but never despairing, always persevering, A. E. Stillwell will live in the history of railroad building as one of the foremost figures of the present generation.

In passing it may be said that San Angelo has not played an inactive part in his great struggle. Time and again he has come to San Angelo asking for aid, and he it said to the city's credit that the citizens have never turned him away empty-handed. Only a few months back he came to San Angelo asking a final boost in the way of subscribed bonds to complete the road to this city from Wichita. Drained to the limit, almost, by constant demands for public improvements, the citizens strained a point and raised $50,000 additional in bonds, thus enabling him to secure the steel and rails to complete the line.

And now by the time the first day of October is pulled off the business man's handy calendar the Orient trains will be running into the city—then watch San Angelo's smoke.

Bank at Paint Rock.

Paint Rock, Tex., Sept. 8.—The organization of a new state bank at Paint Rock is now a settled fact. The capital stock will be $30,000, principally home money.

It is expected that the bank will be open for business inside of sixty days. The site for the building has not been selected, but it will be within one block of the court house.

Work is being rushed on six stone buildings.

The business men have been notified by the officials of the "Sunflower" route to have all goods shipped now to Shawnee, the new town between Shawnee and Paint Rock.

A WORD PERSONAL.

Permit me to make a personal statement.

When I came to San Angelo I brought with me an abiding faith in the manifest destiny and demonstrative fairness of Western Texas. As a boy I had done hard service on a western ranch. When I reached manhood's estate the loving feeling for the west surged more strongly within me than ever. I never rested content until I had found a home among a people whom I loved and among a people I respected.

I bought the good will of The Press-News and the physical properties of the plant. I paid a fair price for the same. I felt that the day was coming when the people of the west would support a newspaper worth the while. I felt that I could fill the crying need of the hour.

I made pretentious plans. I will hurry the fructification of these plans.

The Press-News will, beginning next Tuesday morning, give the fullest and most complete telegraph service of any morning paper in the west. Its local columns will be dedicated to and consecrated for West Texas. Its policy will be of and for the west. Its hope will be to profit as the west profits and to suffer as suffers the west.

While primarily for San Angelo, no shriveled localism will contaminate its aim. It will seek upon the broad plane of human endeavor to bring to pass those things for which we all so earnestly pray.

The Press-News asks but a few more days' patience on the part of its readers. In less than a week it will seek to reap the results that follow intelligent endeavor honestly directed.

Its organization will comprise the best talent obtainable. The managing editor is a man who has made a success in the newspaper field. Prior to coming to San Angelo he was city editor of the Fort Worth Record. No more capable a worker, no more loyal a worker than Roy C. Murphy is to be found in all America.

As advertising manager The Press-News felicitates itself upon having secured the services of Sanford J. Truman. The mechanical department is in charge of G. P. Hutton.

With such help as these success is the only goal possible.

By Oct 1 the Orient will be running trains into San Angelo from Kansas City; the Santa Fe is surveying to Sterling City; Morgan Jones wants to connect San Angelo with the Abilene & Southern and the latter extend toward the south or the west; and well doesn't it look like the railroads know a good town when they see it? Nothing can better reflect the growth of a city and its activity than its record of real estate transfers. In San Angelo from ten to fifteen deeds are being filed every day.

EIGHT-CENT HOG.

With $8.02 1/2 for the market top Tuesday, hogs accomplished just what has been predicted for them this season. The 8-cent hog has come and been surpassed. The $8.02 1/2 stands as the new record of the Fort Worth hog market.

The record was made on a strong market, despite good receipts of fair Oklahoma shipments. The market champions were 89 head of Oklahoma porkers averaging 266 pounds.

A. F. Downey of Marlowe, Okla., shipped in the market-breakers. It was only last Friday that Marlowe hogs raised on the adjoining farm proved 8-cent hogs.

The hogs that went the 8-cent hogs one better were fed on grass up until July 15. Since then they have been fattened on corn. Mr. Downey figures that by converting the corn into $8.02 1/2 hogs he realizes $1.10 a bushel for the corn.

The breaking of the 8-cent record caused much excitement about the stock yards. Eight-cent hogs have been the talk of the week. When they went above the record there was great rejoicing.

Many corner transactions were witnessed as though some men might have been actually betting that the market would go above 8 cents. On all sides the news was received with interest. Hundreds went to view the record breakers and comment upon them.

The 8-cent hog first arrived on the Fort Worth market July 16 last. At that time fifteen head were bought by F. T. Carson for the Case Packing company at that price. Tuesday's record breakers were sold by Mr. Carson. The purchasers were Armour & Co.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

If West Texas would only half try it could be pulling down these top prices. In no other section of the state are general conditions for the successful raising of hogs more conducive than right here in Tom Green and adjoining counties. The Oklahoma hogs that topped the market were raised on grass and finished on corn. West Texas not only has the grass and the corn, but it has the finest milo maize and kaffir corn to be found anywhere. In fact, milo maize is a common crop here, and while it is the most expensive feed that can be given to hogs in many sections of Texas, it is the cheapest in West Texas. And the hog man knows that for fattening purposes nothing can beat milo maize, and for putting real bone and sinew into a hog it is in a class by itself. West Texas is awakening to the fact that the opportunity is here, and within less than two years it will doubtless be one of the greatest hog-raising sections in Texas, and the class of hogs produced and turned out to market will be equally as good if not better than the Oklahoma product.

Well, we are neither a prophet, son of a prophet nor yet a tenderfoot, therefore can not foresee ten years hence. If we could we might be disposed to laugh at the Reporter's. Mends Socks But Marry No Not She

New York, Sept. 8.—Josephine Ehart, caretaker of the apartment of Louis Deffaa, livery stable proprietor in the Oscawanna, at Seventy-ninth street and West End avenue, was mending a batch of socks that Fred Schmidt, a butcher of 190 Hamburg avenue, Brooklyn, gave her last Sunday at Coney Island just before she turned down his proposition that they go over to Dreamland and get married.

"I will darn your socks because you are a good fellow, but I won't marry you," she told him on that occasion.

She was putting in the cross stitches last night about 8 o'clock when she heard someone out in Seventy-ninth street calling her. Raising the window, she saw the owner of the socks going through unsteady evolutions on the sidewalk. "Go away," she cried, "you will disgrace me." And she banged down the window. The shouting continued and windows began to go up on the other side of the street. Finally Josephine gathered the socks in a bundle and chucked them out of the second story window at Schmidt, saying:

"Take your things, and I hope I never see you again."

While she waited to see if the enamored butcher would go away she saw him draw a pistol from his pocket and take a shot at his right ear. According to the story she told the police Schmidt then pointed the pistol at her window and fired twice. A fourth bullet cut a furrow in his right cheek before E. C. Dillon of 411 West End avenue, W. J. Way, an advertising man, and W. Matthew King, a broker, who live in the Hudsonia, at 315 West Seventy-ninth street, succeeded in wresting the pistol from him.

Sergeant McCarthy of the West Sixty-eighth street police station, who heard the shots, ran up and found a crowd from Broadway, West End avenue and Riverside Drive around the fallen man, who clutched a bundle of hosiery and a damning outfit in his left hand. McCarthy then sent in a call for an ambulance.

Thirty-five minutes passed before Dr. Crowthers arrived with the ambulance, and in the meantime W. C. Morris, a broker, who lives at the Bellechere, and Albert Daube of 2197 Broadway offered to take the wounded man away in their automobile. The physician found that the man was not seriously hurt and began devoting all his efforts to get his name. The man at first admitted that he was Fred Schmidt, denied it and then admitted it again upon impeachment by the woman who had mended his socks.

The crowd appeared to think that Dr. Crowthers was indifferent to human suffering, and several of the bolder ones insisted that Schmidt be put into the ambulance at once. The doctor retorted that he knew what he was about and appealed to Sergeant McCarthy and Policeman McKenzie, who at once attended to the crowd. Schmidt was finally shoved into the ambulance on a stretcher and started for the hospital. McCarthy went to the police station and entered a charge of intoxication and attempted suicide against the butcher.

As the crowd moved away Josephine picked up a bundle and said: "Maybe I'll have a chance to finish 'em now."

WOMAN READY TO FLY.

Miss Todd May Astonish Staten Islanders at Fair Next Week.

New York, Sept. 8.—Miss E. L. Todd, the only woman aviator in ready to fly. Miss Todd's flying machine, which has been in course of construction since last October, is practically complete and the inventor is looking about for suitable grounds to test it. The apparatus is a biplane with a spread of 43 feet over all and measures 61-2 feet from back to front planes. It is about the size of the Wright aeroplane. The most distinct feature is an automatic equalizing device said to be established on an entirely new principle.

The machine has been fitted with a 40-50 horse power automobile engine, which has been tested for endurance and used in races. Miss Todd expects to make trials within a very short time, and should the machine prove efficient it will be exhibited at a fair to be held at Dongan Hills, Staten Island, next week. Miss Todd is a member of the aeronautic society.

C. C. Neeley and family and Mrs. Neeley's sister, Mrs. Crews and children, have returned from a two weeks' fishing trip on the Llano. They had fine luck.

RUSHING.

Large Number of Names Being Suggested for New Addition.

I am getting enough names suggested for the addition I am putting on the market to have run Brigham Young during his palmy days, and every mail increases the number," said Lawson O. Dalley Tuesday, in speaking of his proposition to give a lot absolutely free of all cost to the lady who suggests a name that a committee of three, including a bachelor, accepts as the best name for the addition.

While it is not known who compose this committee, it is said that one of the committee occasionally gratifies his fancies by displaying just a suggestion of lavender when he rolls up the bottom of his trousers during a wet spell. Lavender hose and sweet sounding names ought to make a winning combination. This is just a simple little rule of deduction, which if followed may be worth a lot.

Great Front.

The J. B. Taylor Grocery is repainting its fronts in a pleasing manner. Great bevel plate glasses are taking the place of what has been rather an unpretty sight, and the front of this store will be fitted in strict accordance with the up to now sanitary methods and findings. After the glaziers and carpenter folk get through the painters will have an inning, and Norman Taylor says the finish will be real debutante-ish in its tout ensemble.

R. W. Taylor to Move Here.

R. W. Taylor of Marshall, who bought a thousand-acre farm here about three years ago, is in San Angelo to look after his interests.

"I am well pleased with this country—in fact, so much so that I felt safe in buying a section and a half of land," he said, "I intend to come out here and live, and would have done so long ago, but had business at home that I could not very well leave.

"You have the best crops in Texas, and I believe this is the coming country of Texas. When I was here before I had no idea of seeing such an improvement when I returned."

NEW POSTAL CARD.

Contract Awarded for Millions of Light Weight and More Ornate.

Washington, Sept. 8.—Postmaster General Hitchcock provided for a postal card more ornate and decidedly superior to the one now in use when he awarded a contract for 3,487,000,000 cards to the government printing office. The estimated cost, covering a period of four years from January 1, 1910, is $934,714. The postal card will be made of a stock better suited to writing, possessing sappiness, free from fungus and presenting a neater appearance. While the weight of the card will be reduced from 150 to 130 pounds to the ream, its tensile strength will be reduced from 45 to 50 pounds as compared with the current card. This will make a stronger and lighter card, resulting in better material for the public and less expenditure by the department.

The saving to the government can be appreciated when it is remembered that the postal cards shipped last year by the manufacturer to the large distributing postoffices weighed 6,200,000 pounds and that the department must pay not only the freight on such shipments but also transportation charges when the cards are shipped from the distributing postoffices by mail, and again when the postal cards are mailed by individuals and still again when reply postal cards are used. It is estimated that the department will save 13 per cent in weight. Of the total number of postal cards contracted for 3,400,000,000 are to be 31-2 by 5-1-2 inches, the regular or single size; 77,000,000 are to be double or reply cards, and 10,000,000 are to be the size corresponding to the current index card, 3 by 5 inches.

George S. Dickinson, traveling man, and like all traveling men, high-pressure, purse-proud, is in the city. Dickie, as he is called where he feeds regularly, represents the Mergenthaler Linotype company. He was out here three or four weeks ago, when he sold The Press-News a new model 5 machine. That machine ought to be shipped by next Saturday, according to Mr. Dickinson.
"The Press-News is the only newspaper in West Texas that has bought a new Linotype machine this year," said Mr. Dickinson last night, "but I expect to place one in Ballinger in about two weeks. If there is any other sale in prospect in West Texas I am not cognizant of it. In New Mexico, however, we are shipping 'em alive as fast as we can crate 'em."

Street Work.
In Marx & Blum's addition, just south of L. O. Dalley's nameless addition in North San Angelo, the property owners, feeling the need of civic improvement, have co-operated with Mr. Dalley and will put the streets in tip-top condition.
The citizens have agreed to have the streets grubbed up and Mr. Dalley will have the grading done. The streets and avenues to receive attention will be Blum, Marx and Bailey streets and Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana and Maryland avenues.
"We will brook no delays," declared Mr. Dalley Tuesday. "We will put men to work Wednesday and we will rush the work through.
"The people in this addition have struck the keynote of civic improvement, which is first to look after your roads. We expect to make this one of the most beautiful additions in the city."

Notes Progress.
"Well, well, well, how things have changed," declared John Huffman, the genial drummer, on his return to this city after an absence of many years. "Is this the San Angelo I knew? I guess it is, at least that is what the people tell me—but what changes and advancements have been made.
"I presume it is an oft-repeated remark that you have the best crops of Texas, but it is true—every word of it."

Surprising, What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect indigestion, the more you will suffer before Kodol can restore Good Digestion.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all.

There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach.

Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia.

Kodol will effectually assist Nature to secure a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect quickly removes itself.

When it is recalled that Apoplexy, Heart Disease, Cancer—and even Consumption—are due to poor digestion and poisons thus transmitted to the blood, and throughout the system—the importance of maintaining good digestion is at once realized.

We knew what Kodol would do before ever the first bottle was sold. If we did not know just what it will do, we would not guarantee it the way we do.

It is easy for you to prove Kodol—the next (or the first) time you have an attack of indigestion. And you will certainly be surprised at the results. It is perfectly harmless.

There can be no harm in trying something that may do you a great deal of good—when it costs you nothing if it doesn't.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The Man From Brodneyn's

By GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON

Copyright, 1904, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

Drusilla kept close to his side during these operations. She seemed afraid or ashamed to join the others. She avoided Lady Deppingham as completely as possible. Her effort to be friendly when they were thrown together was almost pitiable.

As for Lady Agnes, she seemed stricken by an unconquerable lassitude. The spirits that had controlled her voice, her look, her movements, were sadly missing. More than once Geneva had caught her watching Deppingham with eyes that spoke volumes, though they were mute and wistful.

From time to time the sentinels brought to Lord Deppingham and Chase messages that had been tossed over the walls by the emissaries of Rasula. They were written by the leader himself and in every instance expressed deepest sympathy for the plague ridden chateau.

"There's a caution of real news in these gentle messages that annoy me," Chase said after reading aloud the last of the epistles to the princess and the Deppinghams. "I rejoice in my heart that he isn't aware of the true state of affairs. He doesn't appreciate the real calamity that confronts us. The plague? Poison? Mere piffle. If he only knew that I am now smoking my last—the last—cigarette on the place!"

"I believe you would die more certainly from lack of cigarettes than from an overabundance of poison," said Geneva. She was thinking of the stock she had hoarded up for him in her dressing table drawer, under lock and key.

"I say, Chase, can't you just see Rasula's face when he learns that we've been drinking the water all along and haven't passed away?" cried Deppingham.

"And to think, Mr. Chase, we once called you 'the enemy,'" said Lady Agnes in a low, dreamy voice.

"I appear to have outlived my usefulness in that respect," he said. He tossed the stub of his cigarette over the balcony rail. "Goodbye!" he said, with melancholy emphasis. Then he bent an inquiring look upon the face of the princess.

"Yes," she said, as if he had asked the question aloud. "You shall have three a day, that's all."

"You'll leave the entire fortune to me when you sail away, I trust," he said. The Deppinghams were puzzled.

"But you also will be sailing away," she argued.

"If you forget that I have had no orders to return, Sir John expects me to stay. At least, so I've heard in a roundabout way."

"You don't mean to say, Chase, that you'll stay on this damned island if the chance comes to get away?" demanded Lord Deppingham earnestly. The two women were looking at him in amazement.

"Why not? I'm an ally, not a deserter."

"You are a madman!" cried Lady Agnes. "Stay here! They would kill you in a jiffy! Absurd!"

"Not after they've had another good long look at my warships, Lady Deppingham," he replied, with a most reassuring smile. "I think I'll take a stroll along the wall before turning in."

He arose and leisurely started to go indoors. The princess called to him, and he paused.

"Wait," she said, coming up to him. They walked down the hallway together.

er. "I will run upstairs and unlock the treasure chest. I do not trust even my maid. You shall have two tonight. No more."

"You've really saved them for me," he quipped, a note of eagerness in his voice. "all these days?"

"I have been your miser," she said lightly and then ran up the stairs.

He looked after her until she disappeared at the top with a quick, shy glance over her shoulder. An expression of utter dejection came into his face. A haggard look replaced the buoyant smile.

"I cannot bear the thought of leaving you behind."

"God, how I love her—how I love her!" he groaned, half aloud.

She was coming down the stairs now, eager, flushed, more abashed than she would have had him know. Without a word she had had him know. Without a word she had had him know. Without a word she had had him know.

Her eyes were shining.

In silence he clasped her hand and led her unresisting through the window and out upon the broad gallery. She was returning the fervid pressure of his fingers, warm and electric. They crossed slowly to the rail. Two chairs stood close together. They sat down side by side. The power of speech seemed to have left them altogether.

He laid the two cigarettes on the broad stone rail. She followed the movement with perturbed eyes and then leaned forward and placed her elbows on the rail.

"If the ship should come tomorrow you would go out of my life—you would go away and leave me here," he began hoarsely.

"No, no!" she cried, turning upon him suddenly. "You could not stay here. You shall not!"

"But, dearest love, I am bound to stay. I cannot go. And, God help me, I want to stay. If I could go into your world and take you unto myself forever—if you will tell me now that some day you may forget your world and come to live in mine—then, ah, then, it would be different! But without you I have no choice of abiding place—here as well as anywhere."

She put her hands over her eyes.

"I cannot bear the thought of—of leaving you behind—of leaving you here to die at the hands of those beasts down there. Hollingsworth, I implore you—come! If the opportunity comes—and it will, I know—you will leave the island with the rest of us?"

"Not unless I am commanded to do so by the man who sent me here to serve these beasts, as you call them."

He leaned over and took her hand in his. "You do love me?"

"You know I do—yes, yes," she cried from her heart, keeping her face resolutely turned away from him. "I am sick with love for you. Why should I deny the thing that speaks so loudly for itself—my heart! Listen! Can you not hear it beating? It is hurting me—yes, it is hurting me!"

He trembled at this exhibition of released, unchecked passion, and yet he did not clasp her in his arms.

"Will you come into my world, Geneva?" he whispered. "All my life would be spent in guarding the love you would give to me—all my life given to making you love me more and more until there will be no other world for you to think of."

"I wish that I had not been born," she sobbed. "I cannot, dearest—I cannot change the laws of fate. I am fated—I am doomed to live forever in the dreary world of my fathers. But how can I give you up? How can I give up your love? How can I cast you out of my life?"

"You do not love Prince Karl?"

"How can you ask?" she cried fiercely. "Am I not loving you with all my heart and soul?"

"And you would leave me behind if the ship should come?" he persisted, with cruel insistence. "You will go back and marry that—him? Loving me, you will marry him?" Her head dropped upon her arm. He turned cold as death. "God help and God pity you, my love. I never knew before what your little world means to you. I give you up to it. I crawl back into the one you look down upon with scorn. I shall not again ask you to descend to the world where love is."

Her hand lay limp in his. They stared blankly out into the night, and no word was spoken.

The minutes became an hour, and yet they sat there with set faces, bursting hearts, unseeing eyes.

Below them in the shadows Bobby Brown was pacing the embankment, his wife drawn close to his side. Three men, Britt, Saunders and Bowles, were smoking their pipes on the edge of the terrace. Their words came up to the two in the gallery.

"If I have to die tomorrow," Saunders, the bridegroom, was saying, with real feeling in his voice, "I should say with all my heart that my life has been less than a week long. The rest of it was nothing. I never was happy before, and happiness is everything."

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE SHIPS THAT PASS.

THE next morning was rainy. A quick, violent storm had rushed up from the sea during the night.

Chase, after a sleepless night, came down and, without waiting for his breakfast, hurried out upon the gallery overlooking the harbor. Geneva was there before him, pale, wistful, heavy eyed, standing in the shelter of a huge pillar.

"Hollingsworth," she said dreadingly, "do you believe he will come today?"

"He?" he asked, puzzled.

"My uncle. The yacht was to call for me not later than today."

"I remember," he said slowly. "It may come, Geneva. The day is young."

She clasped his hand convulsively, a desperate revolt in her soul.

"I almost hope that it may not come for me!" she said, her voice shaking with suppressed emotion. "It will not come. I feel it in my heart. We shall die here together, Hollingsworth. Ah, in that way I may escape the other life. No, no! What am I saying? Of course I want to leave this dreadful island—this dreadful, beautiful, hateful, happy island. Am I not too silly?"

She was speaking rapidly, almost hysterically, a nervous, flickering smile on her face.

"Dear one," he said gently, "the yacht will come. If it should not come today my cruises will forestall its mission. As sure as there is a sea those cruises will come." She looked into his eyes intently, as if afraid of something there. "Oh, I'm not mad!" he laughed. "You brought a cruiser to me one day. I'll bring one to you in return. We'll be quits."

"Quits?" she murmured, hurt by the word.

"Forgive me," he said, humbled.

"Hollingsworth," she said after a long, tense scrutiny of the sea, "how long will you remain on this island?"

"Perhaps until I die—if death should come soon. If not, then God knows how long."

"Listen to me," she said intensely. "For my sake you will not stay long. You will come away before they kill you. You will! Promise me. You will come—to Paris? Some day, dear heart? Promise!"

"To Paris?" he said, shaking his head sadly. "No, dearest one. Not now. Listen: I have in my bag upstairs an offer from a great American corporation. My headquarters would be in Paris. My duties would begin as soon as my contract with Sir John Brodneyn expires. The position is a lucrative one; it presents unlimited opportunities. I am a comparatively poor man. The letter was forwarded to me by Sir John. I have a year in which to decide."

"And you—you will decline?" she asked.

"Yes, I shall go back to America, where there are no princesses of royal blood. Paris is no place for the disappointed, castoff lover. I can't go there. I love you too madly. I'd go on loving you, and you, good as you are, would go on loving me. There is no telling what would come of it. It will be hard for me to stay away from Paris—desperately hard. Sometimes I feel that I will not be strong enough to do it, Geneva."

"But Paris is huge, Hollingsworth," she argued insistently, an eager, impelling light in her eyes. "We would be as far apart as if the ocean were between us."

"Ah, but would we?" he demanded. (To be continued.)

OKLAHOMA IS VERY DRY

Dr. March Gives Reasons Why He
Shipped Cattle Back to Plains of West Texas.

With the fall fair at hand and every prospect for great success as regards range and range cattle, the big ranchmen and sheepmen are making cattle deals with prompt regularity.

Among the others Bob Hewitt and Rome Shield sold 250 head of steers, 2's and 3's, Wednesday to S. J. Blocker, realizing $23 for the 2's and $27 for the 3's. These cattle were delivered Wednesday.

"Why did I ship my cattle back from Oklahoma?" said Dr. John Abe March Wednesday. "Well, for the reason that Oklahoma is simply burning up and there was no grass to feed them on and they had an admirable opportunity of starving to death. And we had such fine grass and such excellent prospects out here in West Texas this season. We have got them all skinned this year."

In Honor of Miss Helen Ragsdale and Others Who Are Soon to Leave for School.

In honor of Miss Helen Ragsdale and all the other boys and girls who have been in San Angelo spending their vacation from the strenuous duties of college life, a dance—one of the good old-time dances where everybody has a good time—will be given in the San Angelo club rooms the early part of next week. The majority of those who will return to college for the ensuing term will leave within the next ten days.

Society has had one continuous round of unabated pleasure all of the summer, as is the usual case when the college students are at home.

"It is but a fitting conclusion for the summer season that the club should entertain Miss Ragsdale, our queen, who was inaugurated in the earlier part of the year," said a member of the club Wednesday.

His wife was born in Canada and went to Chicago when she was an infant. She was educated in a private school and was eighteen years old when she became Mrs. Lorimer. They were married June 15, 1884. They had ten children, eight of whom are living. Two are boys; the eldest, a son, is twenty-three; the youngest, a daughter, is nine. Every daughter of the family is a beauty. Mrs. Lorimer has personally superintended the education of her children, especially their musical studies. Mrs. Lorimer is prominent in social and church circles in Chicago. A Woman's New Fad.

Miss Marion Peters of Middletown, Pa., has succeeded in perfecting a process of photographing on tiles. Permanency is the property in which the tile excels all other photographic groundwork. Fixed by firing and protected by the surface glaze, the pictures are practically indestructible, provided they are not shattered. The tile is sensitized with a solution of bichromate of potash, which hardens under the action of light. Then a print is made from a photographic negative, after which the tile is coated with a fine pigment. Where the light has penetrated the negative the sensitized coating is hardened and the pigment will not adhere, but where the negative has obstructed the light the bichromate solution remains sensitive and retains the pigment. When the pigment picture is obtained the tile is fired. This cures the pigment picture into the tile, the transparent glaze protecting it much more effectively than the glass over a painting. The firing of the photographic products differs from that of ordinary decorated china and requires some practice.

Canal by an American Princess.

Princess Lazarovich, formerly Eleanor Calhoun, an American actress, is interesting capitalists in this country in the scheme of her husband, Prince Lazarovich Hebronianovich of Serbia, to build a canal through his country, connecting the Danube and Aegean sea. Possessed with rare business acumen, she has obtained the promise of a number of American financiers to back the enterprise. Through her assistance the prince has formed a corporation, chartered in New Jersey, with a capital stock of $500,000. The company will father the preliminary work of the canal, and when the concessions are obtained from Turkey it will be absorbed by a larger corporation. The canal will cost $75,000,000.

The canal will extend through the great highway from Belgrade to Saloniki. It will start from the Danube near Dobruvna and will follow the Morava river to the divide at Presovo and thence the Vardar to the Aegean sea.

Fort Worth Insurance Man Sees Great Future for San Angelo.

"This is the best town for its size I have seen in Texas, and I have traveled around a great deal, too," stated J. W. Willis, with the Kansas City Life Insurance company, who is here from Fort Worth. "I came up on the train at night and did not have an opportunity to see any of the surrounding country, but I am sure that it must be fine, otherwise you could not have such a splendid little city here."

"And talk about fresh air—why, this is the best I ever breathed. I have been under the cover every night since I came here. The water is also of the very best. In fact, I am carried away with San Angelo, and I predict for it a great future. I see no reason why it should not be a town of 35,000 population within five or six years. You have the very making of a big city. All that you need is railroads, and I understand that you are getting them as fast as they can be built."

Mr. Willis is favorably impressed with San Angelo's broad streets, and says the whole place looks spick and span.

BROWNWOOD FOR NEXT MEETING OF THE PRESBYTERY

SECOND DAY'S SESSION WELL ATTENDED—REV. W. T. SULLIVAN PREACHES STRONG SERMON.

TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY

Final Meeting Scheduled for Thursday Morning—Majority of Members Will Leave on the Afternoon Train Thursday.

Deeply interested in the spirit of Christianity, Rev. W. T. Sullivan of Brownwood delivered an eloquent sermon to the Presbytery at the Harris Avenue church Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, taking his text from the book of Exodus.

"What did Moses see in the burning bush?" was his theme, chosen from the third chapter and second verse of Exodus.

1. "He saw a fire, consuming in its nature, but the bush was not consumed. This is a symbol of our religion. We are said to be seen in the midst of spirit-filled Christians and tongues of fire.

2. "He saw the afflictions of his people—afflicted and consuming in their nature, but not consumed.

3. "He saw a fulfillment of the promises made to his forefathers. He saw this in his younger days. A thing which he had seen when a boy now came to his view.

"He saw signs and symbols that were to be performed in the presence of the Israelites. To the enemies of God they were plagues; to the friends of God they were signs."

Dr. Sullivan showed the signs of Christianity, the cause of Christianity and the reward received by those who abided by him. The symptoms of his sermon were the feelings of his hearers. No more select time for the deliverance of a sermon of such nature could have been chosen. With the feeling of his own words in his bosom he cherished the people before him with the happiness of religion. The cause of Christianity was there, and in his sermon he used the words of God as one should, and the point he was striving for was gained.

As regards the business which the Presbytery had before it Wednesday morning, the most important matter acted upon was receiving Rev. H. J. Wilson from Princeton, Presbytery into Brownwood Presbytery by letter as a candidate for the ministry, and Rev. F. M. Ewing from the Arkansas Presbytery.

Brownwood, after very little discussion, was selected as the next meeting place of the Presbytery, which will be in April of next year.

Of course it is natural to let the women and children have a part to play in such affairs as the meeting of the Presbytery, so Wednesday the sturdy ministers and delegates yielded to them in order that they may do their share of the work. Women, however, are more devoted to missionary work at home and abroad, and that was the nature of the program.

Mrs. Roberson read a very interesting paper which dwelled on missionary work in oriental countries. It was highly commended. Little Miss Gertrude Wiggins recited a touching piece pleading for the assistance of men in furthering the work of Christianity.

Rev. George W. Fender responded to a request made by Mrs. Yates for a talk.

"I believe in missions and think they are the thing," he said, "but I believe we have enough work here in our Brownwood Presbytery to do without going to Africa or other countries on that side of the world." In making this remark his aim was to promote the welfare of the Christian work at Rowena and assist a young lady who wants to do missionary work in that vicinity. He encouraged the people to give and aid her in her endeavor.

"The people at Rowena are mostly Bohemians," he said, "and have the Moravian church, but the English language is very unfamiliar to them."

Responding to a request, Dr. Sullivan, who preached the morning sermon, concluded the program. After relating some funny anecdotes which illustrated his purpose he called for a donation and over $20 was cheerfully given.

Thursday morning at 8:30 the Presbytery will meet and finish the business which is at hand. That will conclude the meeting here and the members will leave for their homes in the afternoon.

GEO. HAGELSTEIN MAKES BID FOR ACCOMMODATION

entries are an everyday occurrence. "One of the greatest causes that I assign as a reason for this enthusiasm is the fact that we are offering larger stake money than has been offered in the state this side of Dallas. I haven't seen anything on the San Antonio stakes and they may come up to ours. Sufficient to say we are offering more and better prizes this year than we have ever offered before, and we are going to have a fair that will stand in history as the greatest we have seen in West Texas."

And Berney Alexander said: "The merchants of San Angelo are preparing to do things up brown as regards fixing up their fronts in dress show for the fair. They will add a holiday appearance to their places of business and thus newcomers will see that all the business men are together as regards making the fair a success."

"Quite a number have already evidenced their desires along this line and it is fully expected that many more will join in the movement ere the week is over."

"All kinds of designs will be used, advertising of course, but still of great material benefit to the association in aiding it in putting on a real good show."

RACERS.

Some Splendid Animals Being Entered for Fall Fair Program.

Coming like minute-men of the revolutionary war days in America, when the cause necessitated them, are race horses of all kinds to enter the fall fair, and among the swiftest running horses to compete for laurels this season is Capt. Stevenson, a well trained bay stallion with roan specks, belonging to C. W. Dykes of Fort McKavett.

Captain Steve, as he is commonly known around here, is only 6 years old and this is his first time on the turf for races of any note.

"As to his running," Mr. Dykes said, "I am positive that he will win every race that he is in. Of course I do not intend to brag so much on him, but that just shows my faith in him."

Mr. Dykes says Steve is one of the best bred horses not only in Texas but in the United States, and he has the proof of his statement, a pedigree which is reliable indeed.

Each day brings some new competitor for the honors that will be bestowed upon the winning horses at the fair and not scrubs, but some of the best blooded horses in America.

Tracing back to horses that have had their day long before now, Mr. Dykes recited the pedigree of his horse like a little boy making a speech in the old red school house on the hill.

Such racers as these are the ones that are going to make things interesting at the fair, and furthermore they are the ones that will take the blue ribbon. Horses like Captain Stevenson are what the managers of the fair want, and every possible means is being used to secure them.

All Happy.

Karl Von Metzradt is back in San Angelo after an extended sojourn on P. D. Perry's ranch near Sheffield.

"Are prospects good?" he said. "I should say so. Of course I am a tenderfoot at the business, but from the talks of the oldtimers out there, no such year has been experienced in many—in fact, they say that as far back as the memory of the oldest settler runneth this is the brightest year in all the history of Pecos ranching."

"The grass is tall and luxuriant, the product of many fine rains. Everybody is happy and everything looks good for winter range."

House Party.

At the magnificent home of George B. Hendricks in East San Angelo Miss Anne May Hendricks is entertaining with a good old time house party. The master and mistress of the manor have turned the keys over to the visiting girls, and they are most certainly making a merry home merrier still. On Thursday and Friday evening the young ladies will entertain their gentlemen friends.

Bell County Preparing for Election.
Rev. J. D. Young in San Angelo.

Rev. J. D. Young, D. D., for several years pastor of the Glenwood Methodist church in Fort Worth, later business manager of Polytechnic college, and now pastor of the First Methodist church at Belton, is in San Angelo.

"We are having a great prohibition and anti-prohibition racket in Bell county at present," said Dr. Young, and it is the topic of the hour. The forces are lined up like an army on both sides, and an unusually warm election is promised. The anti claim they will have a majority of 500, and the pro put their figures in the same notch. It would not surprise me, however, if the difference is no more than twenty-five votes."

In speaking of crops Dr. Young declares that although he has seen some mighty fine products in West Texas, his county not only has this section outclassed, but it is head and tail above every county in the state.

"Why, we have some corn that will make forty bushels to the acre. Already the movement of cotton is in full swing, no less than 1200 bales having been received in Belton this season. A new $75,000 compress will open for business next week."

Dr. Young is out here on a visit. He likes San Angelo and makes several trips here every year. He declares that this is the best place in the world for a man to rest.

See the play that made such a hit in New York, "The Wrong Doctor," at the Yale.

Nearing Completion.

"Within two weeks," August Balfanz said, "the Central drug store can move in its new home. However, it will be about thirty days before the building will be completed."

This four story structure, belonging to Dr. C. E. Mays, is rapidly nearing completion.

BROWNWOOD FOR NEXT MEETING OF THE PRESBYTERY

SECOND DAY'S SESSION WELL ATTENDED—REV. W. T. SULLIVAN PREACHES STRONG SERMON.

TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY

Final Meeting Scheduled for Thursday Morning—Majority of Members Will Leave on the Afternoon Train Thursday.

Deeply interested in the spirit of Christianity, Rev. W. T. Sullivan of Brownwood delivered an eloquent sermon to the Presbytery at the Harris Avenue church Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, taking his text from the book of Exodus.

"What did Moses see in the burning bush?" was his theme, chosen from the third chapter and second verse of Exodus.

1. "He saw a fire, consuming in its nature, but the bush was not consumed. This is a symbol of our religion. We are said to be seen in the midst of spirit-filled Christians and tongues of fire.

2. "He saw the afflictions of his people—afflicted and consuming in their nature, but not consumed.

3. "He saw a fulfillment of the promises made to his forefathers. He saw this in his younger days. A thing which he had seen when a boy now came to his view.

"He saw signs and symbols that were to be performed in the presence of the Israelites. To the enemies of God they were plagues; to the friends of God they were signs."

Dr. Sullivan showed the signs of Christianity, the cause of Christianity and the reward received by those who abided by him. The symptoms of his sermon were the feelings of his hearers. No more select time for the deliverance of a sermon of such nature could have been chosen. With the feeling of his own words in his bosom he cherished the people before him with the happiness of religion. The cause of Christianity was there, and in his sermon he used the words of God as one should, and the point he was striving for was gained.

As regards the business which the Presbytery had before it Wednesday morning, the most important matter acted upon was receiving Rev. H. J. Wilson from Princeton Presbytery into Brownwood Presbytery by letter as a candidate for the ministry, and Rev. F. M. Ewing from the Arkansas Presbytery.

Brownwood, after very little discussion, was selected as the next meeting place of the Presbytery, which will be in April of next year.

Of course it is natural to let the women and children have a part to play in such affairs as the meeting of the Presbytery, so Wednesday the sturdy ministers and delegates yielded to them in order that they may do their share of the work. Women, however, are more devoted to missionary work at home and abroad, and that was the nature of the program.

Mrs. Roberson read a very interesting paper which dwelled on missionary work in oriental countries. It was highly commended. Little Miss Gertrude Wiggins recited a touching piece pleading for the assistance of men in furthering the work of Christianity.

Rev. George W. Fender responded to a request made by Mrs. Yates for a talk.

"I believe in missions and think they are the thing," he said, "but I believe we have enough work here in our Brownwood Presbytery to do without going to Africa or other countries on that side of the world." In making this remark his aim was to promote the welfare of the Christian work at Rowena and assist a young lady who wants to do missionary work in that vicinity. He encouraged the people to give and aid her in her endeavor.

"The people at Rowena are mostly Bohemians," he said, "and have the Moravian church, but the English language is very unfamiliar to them."

Responding to a request, Dr. Sullivan, who preached the morning sermon, concluded the program. After relating some funny anecdotes which illustrated his purpose he called for a donation and over $20 was cheerfully given.

Thursday morning at 8:30 the Presbytery will meet and finish the business which is at hand. That will conclude the meeting here and the members will leave for their homes in the afternoon.

entries are an everyday occurrence. "One of the greatest causes that I assign as a reason for this enthusiasm is the fact that we are offering larger stake money than has been offered in the state this side of Dallas. I haven't seen anything on the San Antonio stakes and they may come up to ours. Sufficient to say we are offering more and better prizes this year than we have ever offered before, and we are going to have a fair that will stand in history as the greatest we have seen in West Texas."

And Berney Alexander said: "The merchants of San Angelo are preparing to do things up brown as regards fixing up their fronts in dress show for the fair. They will add a holiday appearance to their places of business and thus newcomers will see that all the business men are together as regards making the fair a success."

"Quite a number have already evidenced their desires along this line and it is fully expected that many more will join in the movement ere the week is over."

"All kinds of designs will be used, advertising of course, but still of great material benefit to the association in aiding it in putting on a real good show."

RACERS.

Some Splendid Animals Being Entered for Fall Fair Program.

Coming like minute-men of the revolutionary war days in America, when the cause necessitated them, are race horses of all kinds to enter the fall fair, and among the swiftest running horses to compete for laurels this season is Capt. Captain Steve, as he is commonly known around here, is only 6 years old and this is his first time on the turf for races of any note.

Tearing back to horses that have had their day long before now, Mr. Dykes recited the pedigree of his horse as a little boy making a speech in the old red school house on the hill.

"You are a madman!" cried Lady Agnes. "Stay here? They would kill you in a jiffy! Absurd!"

"Not after they've had another good long look at my warships, Lady Deplingham," he replied, with a most reassuring smile. "I think I'll take a stroll along the wall before turning in."

He arose and leisurely started to go indoors. The princess called to him, and he paused.

"You know I do—yes, yes!" she cried from her heart, keeping her face resolutely turned away from him. "I am sick with love for you. Why should I deny the thing that speaks so loudly for itself—my heart! Listen! Can you not hear it beating? It is hurting me—yes, it is hurting me!"

He trembled at this exhibition of released, unchecked passion, and yet he did not clasp her in his arms.

"Will you come into my world, Geneva?" he whispered. "All my life would be spent in guarding the love you would give to me—all my life given to making you love me more and more until there will be no other world for you to think of."

"I wish that I had not been born," she sobbed. "I cannot, dearest—I cannot change the laws of fate. I am fated—I am doomed to live forever in the dreary world of my fathers. But how can I give you up? How can I give up your love? How can I cast you out of my life?"

"You do not love Prince Karl?" "How can you ask?" she cried fiercely. "Am I not loving you with all my heart and soul?"

"And you would leave me behind if the ship should come?" he persisted, with cruel insistence. "You will go back and marry that—him? Loving me, you will marry him?" Her head dropped upon her arm. He turned cold as death. "God help and God pity you, my love. I never knew before what your little world means to you. I give you up to it. I crawl back into the one you look down upon with scorn. I shall not again ask you to descend to the world where love is."

WOMAN READY TO FLY.

Miss Todd May Astonish Staten Islanders at Fair Next Week.

New York, Sept. 8.—Miss E. L. Todd, the only woman aeroplane pilot is ready to fly. Miss Todd's flying machine, which has been in course of construction since last October, is practically complete and the inventor is looking about for suitable grounds to test it. The apparatus is a biplane with a spread of 43 feet over all and measures 61-2 feet from back to front planes. It is about the size of the Wright aeroplane. The most distinct feature is an automatic equalizing device said to be established on an entirely new principle.

The machine has been fitted with a 40-50 horse power automobile engine, which has been tested for endurance and used in races. Miss Todd expects to make trials within a very short time, and should the machine prove efficient it will be exhibited at a fair to be held at Dongan Hills, Staten Island, next week. Miss Todd is a member of the aeronautic society.

It is estimated that the department will save 13 per cent in weight.

Of the total number of postal cards contracted for 3,400,000,000 are to be 31-2 by 51-2 inches, the regular or single size; 77,000,000 are to be double or reply cards, and 10,000,000 are to be the size corresponding to the current index card, 3 by 5 inches.

George Dickinson Here.

George S. Dickinson, traveling man, and like all traveling men, high-pressure, purse-proud, is in the city. Dickie, as he is called where he feeds regularly, represents the Mergenthaler Linotype company. He was out here three or four weeks ago, when he sold The Press-News a new model 5 machine. That machine ought to be shipped by next Saturday, according to Mr. Dickinson.

"The Press-News is the only newspaper in West Texas that has bought a new Linotype machine this year," said Mr. Dickinson last night, "but I expect to place one in Ballinger in it."

Street Work.

In Marx & Blum's addition, just south of L. O. Dailey's nameless addition in North San Angelo, the property owners, feeling the need of civic improvement, have co-operated with Mr. Dailey and will put the streets in tip-top condition.

The citizens have agreed to have the streets grubbed up and Mr. Dailey will have the grading done. The streets and avenues to receive attention will be Blum, Marx and Bailey streets and Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana and Maryland avenues.

"We will brook no delays," declared Mr. Dailey Tuesday. "We will put men to work Wednesday and we will rush the work through."

"The people in this addition have struck the keynote of civic improvement, which is first to look after your roads. We expect to make this one of the most beautiful additions in the city."

Notes Progress.

"Well, well, well, how things have changed," declared John Huffman, the genial drummer, on his return to this city after an absence of many years. "Is this the San Angelo I knew? I guess it is—at least that is what the people tell me—but what changes and advancements have been made."

"I presume it is an oft-repeated remark that you have the best crops of Texas, but it is true—every word of it."

OKLAHOMA IS VERY DRY

Dr. March Gives Reasons Why He
Shipped Cattle Back to Plains of West Texas.

With the fall fair at hand and every prospect for great success as regards range and range cattle, the big ranchmen and sheepmen are making cattle deals with prompt regularity.

Among the others Bob Hewitt and Rome Shield sold 250 head of steers, 2's and 3's, Wednesday to S. J. Blocker, realizing $23 for the 2's and $27 for the 3's. These cattle were delivered Wednesday.

"Why did I ship my cattle back from Oklahoma?" said Dr. John Abe March Wednesday. "Well, for the reason that Oklahoma is simply burning up and there was no grass to feed them on and they had an admirable opportunity of starving to death. And we had such fine grass and such excellent prospects out here in West Texas this season. We have got them all skinned this year."

SAN ANGELO CLUB MAKING ARRANGEMENTS FOR FINAL EVENT

In Honor of Miss Helen Ragsdale and Others Who Are Soon to Leave for School.

In honor of Miss Helen Ragsdale and all the other boys and girls who have been in San Angelo spending their vacation from the strenuous duties of college life, a dance—one of the good old-time dances where everybody has a good time—will be given in the San Angelo club rooms the early part of next week. The majority of those who will return to college for the ensuing term will leave within the next ten days.

Society has had one continuous round of unabated pleasure all of the summer, as is the usual case when the college students are at home.

"It is but a fitting conclusion for the summer season that the club should entertain Miss Ragsdale, our queen, who was inaugurated in the earlier part of the year," said a member of the club Wednesday.

An interesting group will be added to the senate social circle in Washington when Senator William Lorimer and his family take up their official residence in the national capital. The new senator was elected by the legislature of his state recently after one of the longest senatorial contests in Illinois. This in connection with Mr. Lorimer's previous prominence in politics—he has been a representative in the lower house of congress several terms—brought Mr. Lorimer before the country in an unusually strong light. His interesting family has added much to his celebrity. His wife was born in Canada and went to Chicago

Two are boys. The eldest, a son, is twenty-three; the youngest, a daughter, is nine. Every daughter of the family is a beauty. Mrs. Lorimer has personally superintended the education of her children, especially their musical studies. Mrs. Lorimer is prominent in social and church circles in Chicago. She is a Catholic and is noted for her work for charity and institutions. She is a vocalist of some repute and has given her services freely to newly created parishes until they were in a position to retain paid singers.

Miss Marion Peters of Middletown, Pa., has succeeded in perfecting a process of photographing on tiles. Permanency is the property in which the tile excels all other photographic groundwork. Fixed by firing and protected by the surface glaze, the pictures are practically indestructible, provided they are not shattered. The tile is sensitized with a solution of bichromate of potash, which hardens under the action of light. Then a print is made from a photographic negative, after which the tile is coated with a fine pigment. Where the light has penetrated the negative the sensitized coating is hardened and the pigment will not adhere, but where the negative has obstructed the light the bichromate solution remains sensitive and retains the pigment. When the pigment picture is obtained the tile is fired. This burns the pigment picture into the tile, the transparent glaze protecting it much more effectively than the glass over a painting. The firing of the photographic products differs from that of ordinary decorated china and requires some practice.

Canal by an American Princess.

Princess Lazarovich, formerly Eleanor Calhoun, an American actress, is interesting capitalists in this country in the scheme of her husband, Prince Lazarovich Hebronianovich of Servia, to build a canal through his country, connecting the Danube and Aegean sea. Possessed with rare business acumen, she has obtained the promise of a number of American financiers to back the enterprise. Through her assistance the prince has formed a corporation, chartered in New Jersey, with a capital stock of $500,000. The company will further the preliminary work of the canal and when the concessions are obtained from Turkey it will be absorbed by a larger corporation. The canal will cost $75,000,000.

The canal will extend through the great highway from Belgrade to Saloniki. It will start from the Danube near Pozarevac and will follow the Morava river to the divide at Presevo and thence the Vardar to the Aegean sea. MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

Fort Worth Insurance Man Sees Great Future for San Angelo.

"This is the best town for its size I have seen in Texas, and I have traveled around a great deal, too," stated J. W. Willis, with the Kansas City Life Insurance company, who is here from Fort Worth. "I came up on the train at night and did not have an opportunity to see any of the surrounding country, but I am sure that it must be fine, otherwise you could not have such a splendid little city here."

"And talk about fresh air—why, this is the best I ever breathed. I have been under the cover every night since I came here. The water is also of the very best. In fact, I am carried away with San Angelo, and I predict for it a great future. I see no reason why it should not be a town of 25,000 population within five or six years. You have the very making of a big city. All that you need is railroads, and I understand that you are getting them as fast as they can be built."

Mr. Willis is favorably impressed with San Angelo's broad streets, and says the whole place looks spick and span.

BROWNWOOD FOR NEXT MEETING OF THE PRESBYTERY

SECOND DAY'S SESSION WELL ATTENDED—REV. W. T. SULLIVAN PREACHES STRONG SERMON.

TWO CANDIDATES FOR THE MINISTRY

Final Meeting Scheduled for Thursday Morning—Majority of Members Will Leave on the Afternoon Train Thursday.

Deeply interested in the spirit of Christianity, Rev. W. T. Sullivan of Brownwood delivered an eloquent sermon to the Presbytery at the Harris Avenue church Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, taking his text from the book of Exodus.

"What did Moses see in the burning bush?" was his theme, chosen from the third chapter and second verse of Exodus.

1. "He saw a fire, consuming in its nature, but the bush was not consumed. This is a symbol of our religion. We are said to be seen in the midst of spirit-filled Christians and tongues of fire.

2. "He saw the afflictions of his people—afflicted and consuming in their nature, but not consumed.

3. "He saw a fulfillment of the promises made to his forefathers. He saw this in his younger days. A thing which he had seen when a boy now came to his view.

"He saw signs and symbols that were to be performed in the presence of the Israelites. To the enemies of God they were plagues; to the friends of God they were signs."

Dr. Sullivan showed the signs of Christianity, the cause of Christianity and the reward received by those who abided by him. The symptoms of his sermon were the feelings of his hearers. No more select time for the deliverance of a sermon of such nature could have been chosen. With the feeling of his own words in his bosom he cherished the people before him with the happiness of religion. The cause of Christianity was there, and in his sermon he used the words of God as one should, and the point he was striving for was gained.

As regards the business which the Presbytery had before it Wednesday morning, the most important matter acted upon was receiving Rev. H. J. Wilson from Princeton Presbytery into Brownwood Presbytery by letter as a candidate for the ministry, and Rev. F. M. Ewing from the Arkansas Presbytery.

Brownwood, after very little discussion, was selected as the next meeting place of the Presbytery, which will be in April of next year.

Of course it is natural to let the women and children have a part to play in such affairs as the meeting of the Presbytery, so Wednesday the sturdy ministers and delegates yielded to them in order that they may do their share of the work. Women, however, are more devoted to missionary work at home and abroad, and that was the nature of the program.

Mrs. Roberson read a very interesting paper which dwelled on missionary work in oriental countries. It was highly commended. Little Miss Gertrude Wigdina recited a touching piece pleading for the assistance of men in furthering the work of Christianity.

Rev. George W. Fender responded to a request made by Mrs. Yates for a talk.

"I believe in missions and think they are the thing," he said, "but I believe we have enough work here in our Brownwood Presbytery to do without going to Africa or other countries on that side of the world." In making this remark his aim was to promote the welfare of the Christian work at Rowena and assist a young lady who wants to do missionary work in that vicinity. He encouraged the people to give and aid her in her endeavor.

"The people at Rowena are mostly Bohemians," he said, "and have the Moravian church, but the English language is very unfamiliar to them."

Responding to a request, Dr. Sullivan, who preached the morning sermon, concluded the program. After relating some funny anecdotes which illustrated his purpose he called for a donation and over $20 was cheerfully given.

Thursday morning at 8:30 the Presbytery will meet and finish the business which is at hand. That will conclude the meeting here and the members will leave for their homes in the afternoon.

entries are an everyday occurrence. "One of the greatest causes that I assign as a reason for this enthusiasm is the fact that we are offering larger stake money than has been offered in the state this side of Dallas. I haven't seen anything on the San Antonio stakes and they may come up to ours. Sufficient to say we are offering more and better prizes this year than we have ever offered before, and we are going to have a fair that will stand in history as the greatest we have seen in West Texas."

And Berney Alexander said: "The merchants of San Angelo are preparing to do things up brown as regards fixing up their fronts in dress show for the fair. They will add a holiday appearance to their places of business and thus newcomers will see that all the business men are together as regards making the fair a success."

"Quite a number have already evidenced their desires along this line and it is fully expected that many more will join in the movement ere the week is over.

"All kinds of designs will be used, advertising of course, but still of great material benefit to the association in aiding it in putting on a real good show."

RACERS.

Some Splendid Animals Being Entered for Fall Fair Program.

Coming like minute-men of the revolutionary war days in America, when the cause necessitated them, are race horses of all kinds, to enter the fall fair, and among the swiftest running horses to compete for laurels this season is Capt. Stevenson, a well trained bay stallion with roan specks, belonging to C. W. Dykes of Fort McKavett.

Captain Steve, as he is commonly known around here, is only 6 years old and this is his first time on the turf for races of any note.

"As to his running," Mr. Dykes said, "I am positive that he will win every race that he is in. Of course I do not intend to brag so much on him, but that just shows my faith in him."

Mr. Dykes says Steve is one of the best bred horses not only in Texas but in the United States, and he has the proof of his statement, a pedigree which is reliable indeed.

Each day brings some new competitor for the honors that will be bestowed upon the winning horses at the fair and not scrubs, but some of the best blooded horses in America.

Tracing back to horses that have had their day long before now, Mr. Dykes recited the pedigree of his horse: "A little boy making a speech in the old red school house on the hill.

Such racers as these are the ones that are given to make things interesting at the fair, and furthermore they are the ones that will take the blue ribbon. Horses like Captain Stevenson are what the managers of the fair want, and every possible means is being used to secure them.

All Happy.

Karl Von Metzradt is back in San Angelo after an extended sojourn on P. O. Perry's ranch near Sheffield.

"Are prospects good?" he said. "I should say so. Of course I am a tenderfoot at the business, but from the talks of the oldtimers out there, no such year has been experienced in many—in fact, they say that as far back as the memory of the oldest settler runneth this is the brightest year in all the history of Pecos ranching.

"The grass is tall and luxuriant, the product of many fine rains. Everybody is happy and everything looks good for winter range."

House Party.

At the magnificent home of George B. Hendricks in East San Angelo Miss Anne May Hendricks is entertaining with a good old time house party. The master and mistress of the manor have turned the keys over to the visiting girls, and they are most certainly making a merry home merrier still. On Thursday and Friday evening the young ladies will entertain their gentlemen friends.

PROHIBITION.

Bell County Preparing for Election.
Rev. J. D. Young in San Angelo.

Rev. J. D. Young, D. D., for several years pastor of the Glenwood Methodist church in Fort Worth, later business manager of Polytechnic college, and now pastor of the First Methodist church at Belton, is in San Angelo.

"We are having a great prohibition and anti-prohibition racket in Bell county at present," said Dr. Young, and it is the topic of the hour. The forces are lined up like an army on both sides, and an unusually warm election is promised. The anti claim they will have a majority of 500, and the pros put their figures in the same notch. It would not surprise me, however, if the difference is no more than twenty-five votes."

In speaking of crops Dr. Young declares that although he has seen some mighty fine products in West Texas, his county not only has this section outclassed, but it is head and tail above every county in the state.

"Why, we have some corn that will make forty bushels to the acre. Already the movement of cotton is in full swing, no less than 1200 bales having been received in Belton this season. A new $75,000 compress will open for business next week."

Dr. Young is out here on a visit. He likes San Angelo and makes several trips here every year. He declares that this is the best place in the world for a man to rest.

See the play that made such a hit in New York, "The Wrong Doctor," at the Yale.

Nearing Completion.

"Within two weeks," August Dalfan said, "the Central drug store can move in its new home. However, it will be about thirty days before the building will be completed.
