HAS LONG CONFERENCE WITH THE SECRETARY OF INTERIOR.

MANY FRIENDS CALL DURING THE DAY

In the Afternoon He Boards a Train For Middleton, Conn.—Cabinet Meets Next Tuesday Morning.

Publishers Press. Washington, Nov. 11.—Having returned from his circle through the states, President Taft got down to hard work in his office this morning. He had a long conference with Secretary of Interior Ballinger, and later in the day he made an address before the convention of the Laymen's Missionary Society.

Many prominent men called on the president during the day, among them being Senator Cummins of Iowa, and Vice President Sherman and Chief Justice Fuller.

This afternoon at 5 o'clock Taft left here for Middleton, Conn., on a short business trip. No regular meeting of the cabinet will be held until Tuesday.

The return of President Taft is expected to put an end to the policy of delay which has dominated the Taft administration since the passage of the tariff bill last August. Since the departure of the president and almost his entire cabinet from Washington, many matters of great importance

So That She Could Marry Another Lover, Woman Wanted to Rid Herself of Husband, Is His Argument.

Publishers Press. Paris, Nov. 11.—The advocate general called in on the Steinheil case today in behalf of the government, abandoned the charge that Madam Steinheil murdered her husband and mother, and confined the government's case to a charge that she was the author of and an accomplice in the killing of her relatives.

That Madam Steinheil wanted to get rid of her husband in order that she could marry M. Borderela were the lines on which the advocate general argued the case today. Borderela was one of the numerous lovers of the woman prisoner.

ORIENT PAVES WAY FOR TWO MILLION DOLLAR BOND ISSUE IN TEXAS

Publishers Press. Austin, Nov. 11.—In order that it may issue bonds to the amount of two million dollars, the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient has asked the Texas Railroad Commissioners to place a value on its 200 miles of completed railroad in this state. It is understood that the money realized from the issuance of the proposed bonds is to be used in the extension of this line from San Angelo to a connection with the Mexican National railroad. The work of construction on this gap between San Angelo and the Mexican border is now under progress. The Orient is hitting a stride in railroad construction that is attracting the attention of railroad men here world over, and it promises to develop into one of the greatest systems in the country. Arthur Stilwell, its president, is a man who keeps everlastingly at it. He lays his plans and then puts them into execution, never letting the wheels of progress stop turning.

THE NEW SAN ANGELO.

Travelers who are interested in the unique towns should hasten to visit San Angelo before it becomes modernized by the many new railroads which are now building into it. Standing for years at the terminus of the Santa Fe railway, San Angelo has grown into a city of considerable importance without losing any of the charm and interest of a frontier town. It boasts a hotel in which some of the rooms have private baths and in front of it lounge bronzed Mexican sheep herders with wide-brimmed, silver-mounted sombreros and gaudily colored sashes. It has more automobiles for the population than Fort Worth, yet one can ride out in an automobile only a few miles with the possibility of killing a wolf. The customers at the local stores come a hundred miles to buy their groceries and many of them have seen a railroad train only when they visit the San Angelo yards.

But this is changing now. The Orient is pushing on toward the Mexican border. It is already running trains into Kansas City. The squatter's rights of the prairie dogs are giving way to the superior rights of the railroad graders and the Mexican sheep herders are donning caps and overalls and going to work in the construction camps. San Angelo is going to grow into a big town with trolley lines and sky scrapers and high-browed women's clubs and ward politics. Those who own land there now will grow rich and leave fortunes to their children, but while this is going on the old San Angelo will disappear. The new town will be more prosperous but it will not be so picturesque.

Those who knew the old San Angelo will congratulate the new town on its growth, but at the same time there will be a tinge of regret that the old-time town has disappeared.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Benard of Houston, vice president; Frank Cloen of Fort Worth, as secretary and treasurer, and W. A. Isaacs of San Antonio, as conductor.

MARKETS.

Stocks.

Publishers Press. New York, Nov. 11.—The stock market was heavy all day. The failure of the Bank of England to advance a discount rate had a good effect at the opening. The money situation in America is exerting a repressive influence on this market.

Weakness was noted in the Union Pacific and the Northern Pacific. Western railroad shares were weak and this is thought to be due to the demands of employees for higher wages. Harriman issues sagged this afternoon. Reading, Pennsylvania and New York Central yielded. Small lots of steel were traded in. Missouri Pacific declined a point.

The market closed heavy. Governments unchanged; others firm. Call four and half, five.

Cotton.

Publishers Press. New York, Nov. 11.—In the face of poor cables the cotton market opened steady to eleven points lower to one point higher. Business was active and advices from the South reported the spot market firm. Before 10:30 o'clock May sold up to fifteen sixteen.

A break in Liverpool at noon was followed by some reaction here. Very little cotton was offered for sale and Wall street houses gave orders that couldn't be filled. Wall street was a big buyer of March and May.

The market was nervous and irregular at close. Exports for day 14,226 bales. Spot, 14.95. Liverpool spot quiet and unchanged at 7.7.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT.

In suggesting that a permanent exhibit of Texas products be maintained in Dallas as a means of advertising the wonderful possibilities of the state, the Dallas News has advanced an idea that should meet with the hearty cooperation of every county and result in the establishment of such an exposition.

Texas is growing faster than any other state in the union, and West Texas is coming in for its full share of home-seekers. The eyes of the world are on this state. The people are just beginning to learn that this is the most productive country in the world and offers opportunities that can not be equaled elsewhere.

The Press-News believes that the best time to strike is while the iron is hot. Therefore it indorses the suggestion of the Dallas News and hopes that the papers of the state will urge the importance of carrying into execution the plan outlined.

Dallas is the commercial center of Texas and of course, while the exhibits would be a big advertisement for that city, the good that would result to the sections of the state from which these products are taken would be inestimable. Thousands upon thousands of homeseekers are coming to Texas yearly. Most of them must necessarily change cars in Dallas or Fort Worth. With a good exhibit of farm products in Dallas it would be the means of attracting these people to the various counties represented.

The Press-News feels safe in saying that if the exhibit is established West Texas will be one of the first sections of the state to respond, and Tom Green county will be well represented. The farmers of Tom Green county, while few in number, are among the most successful in the state. Crops in this section this year are declared to be the best in Texas, and this claim is attested by the splendid showing made by the Tom Green county exhibit at the Dallas fair. For individual displays this county carried off the honors.

West Texas has the kind of ground and the kind of seasons that produce the crops that count, and this section could well afford to have a display in Dallas.

In regard to this matter the News says:

"The various counties of Texas would not easily find a better means of advertising their resources than by maintaining a permanent exhibit of their products in Dallas. Dallas is visited by more people from other states than in any other city in Texas, and if the exhibit should be at all representative of the state's products it would make such a show as few visitors to Dallas, whether from within or without the state, would resist. The most hurried visitor to Dallas would feel that such a show was worth at least an hour or so of his time, both as a spectacle and as a lesson. When one reflects that the number who visit Dallas during the course of a year, either on business or pleasure, exceeds many times the number brought during the two weeks of the state fair, one can make some estimate of the value of such an exhibit as an immigration influence.

But there is a reason aside from this practical consideration why citizens of Texas should hope for the success of this project. This other reason is that only by the continuous effort that this project would necessitate may we ever hope to make a complete exposition of this state's soil products. The agricultural and horticultural exhibit at the state fair is the best made in Texas, and it has shown improvement every year; but that it lacks a very great deal of being representative of the state's soil products everyone knows, though only the few who have traveled lately in all sections of Texas can appreciate the degree of its inadequacy. A permanent exhibit does not necessarily imply a complete exhibit in the beginning; but a permanent exhibit would imply an expanding exhibit, and eventually we should have a museum of the state's agricultural and horticultural wealth that would mark its industrial progress, be of immense instructive value to those engaged in husbandry, strengthen the Texan's pride of state invigorate the sense of kinship between sections which, because of distance and diversity of interests, are tempted to become estranged, and make a spectacle that would dazzle and awe him who is a lover of nature's art. This project has immense possibilities of a utilitarian kind; but the possibilities which it holds forth of political, social, ethical and artistic kind are even of greater value. As course such an exhibition as we have prefigured to the imagination would require larger building space than is now available for it; but Dallas could so well afford to provide what might be needed that no one could doubt its willingness to do so."

WANTS TO TALK IT OVER.

Ablene, Brownwood and San Angelo are all pulling hard for everything in sight. Ablene has just about landed a candy and cracker factory. If we can get the Ballinger merchants together we will—well, let's get together and then talk.—Ballinger Banner.

It's a good idea to get the people together just as often as you can and talk over things for mutual good. When people meet frequently and exchange opinions they usually do some thing. Perhaps you read in the Bulletin of the remarkable success of Tom Richardson, of the Portland Commercial Club and the great work being done by that organization. There is no factor that contributes so much to the success of that organization as the fact that the club members in large numbers meet daily at lunch and exchange opinions and following the lunch hour hold their committee meetings and transact business before them. What Richardson is doing at Portland, Brownwood could do in a similar way, and Ballinger could do it. But pending that a banquet something like the annual banquet of the Brownwood Commercial Club. Keep pushing at it, and make it a go.—Brownwood Bulletin.

SPECIAL SESSION NOT NECESSARY

The penitentiary investigating committee has brought to light evidence of the horrible conditions which obtain in the penitentiaries of Texas. Prisoners are huddled in unhealthy quarters and treated more like wild beasts than human beings. It is likely that a special session of the legislature will be called, to enact remedial legislation.

While something should be done at once, and a special session called at once if there is no other way to remedy matters, yet it seems to The News that penitentiary officials and contractors could be made to furnish sanitary quarters and food for the prisoners, and to treat them humanely under the present state laws, without having to call a special session of the legislature.—Ablene Morning News.

Arrange your business dates so that you may attend the West Texas Development Congress, which meets in San Angelo December 6. It will be worth while.

It is said that the return of Taft to Washington after his circle through the states will put an end to the policy of delay which has dominated his administration since the passage of the tariff bill last August. Since the president's departure many matters of importance have accumulated and now that he is back, the wheels should begin to turn. Just watch his smoke.

One million dollars worth of corn cob pipes were made in Missouri during the last year. A corn cob pipe is a very simple thing, but that the business makes money for the manufacturer and increases the dinner pail brigade for towns in which the factories are located, is clearly shown. A few big factories in San Angelo would come in handy just now.

Live One.

F. E. Dooley, chief clerk in the engineer of construction's office at Sweetwater, was in the city Monday looking around. Mr. Dooley does not get to visit San Angelo very often, as the great amount of work he has to do keeps him very busy. This time he took a day off and came over to San Angelo, as he expressed it, "just to see what the people had to boast about."

"You have one of the best cities on the Orient here," he said. "This is a booming town with all the modern necessary facilities that go to make up a live one. I am glad to see such a great city on the Orient. I also am glad to find such a great place working in harmony with its neighbor city, Sweetwater. Surely if that leads up, the two will some day be the leading cities of West Texas without any exceptions."

HIGH SCHOOL ELEVENS TO MEET
THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

SIMMONS FOR SATURDAY

Collegiate Institute Will Attempt to Get Revenge for Defeat Administered by Ablene.

Playing the final game of the season between these elevens, the High School and the College will go up against the Ballinger High School and the Simmons College respectively this week. The high school plays Ballinger Friday and the College tackles Simmons Saturday.

For the last week these two local teams have been practicing very hard, preparing for the great games that will end their career in football playing this season.

The last game that the High School played with Ballinger, the latter was defeated by a score of 26 to 0. The coming game, however, will have a different trend, as the Ballinger school team has been practicing very hard and is on to many new tricks. It will be the contest of the season for the best playing. Both teams are well matched in size and playing, so there is no ultimate reason why one of the fastest games ever witnessed will not come off.

This game is considered a minor one by the San Angelo Junior College team. The College says that the game it will play Saturday afternoon with Simmons College from Ablene will no doubt be the Varsity-Farmers game of the West.

The local college bunch has for the last two weeks gone through with very strict training and is in excellent form. If ever a game for blood was played, this one will be of that nature. It will be hot from the two colleges realize what is before them.

THREE FAILURES IN TEN MONTHS

SAN ANGELO ESTABLISHES RECORD THAT IS HARD TO BEAT.

MANY NEW CONCERNS

Business Institutions Are Starting Up Almost Every Week—Some Figures for Comparison.

During the past ten months but three firms have failed in Tom Green county, and this is sufficient reason to believe that San Angelo is the liveliest city in the United States, as no other city having a population of under 20,000 can hardly produce a record to rank with this.

New concerns in numbers have been started in San Angelo and other parts of Tom Green county during the year, and it is a well known fact that the larger number of failures in most cities is composed of the younger institutions. But in San Angelo the business conducted by every concern has been successful and Thursday it took County Clerk Keating, with whom all the petitions in bankruptcy are filed, but a moment to compile the number he has received since January.

Atlanta, Ga., is considered the "Chicago of the South." In fact, it is the liveliest city south of the Ohio river. This city is not more than ten times the size of San Angelo and a recent compilation of the number of petitions in bankruptcy filed there shows the number to be over 1500. In other words, Clerk Keating's books should record over 147 petitions to compare evenly with this record.

New business houses and other industries are coming to light weekly in San Angelo and the number of business houses is insufficient to supply the demand for them.

TRIES GAS.

Emily Miller of Brooklyn, Attempts Suicide in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—Alone and unable to obtain employment, Emily Miller, of 41 Sidney Place, Brooklyn, an attractive girl of 16 years, was found on the floor of the little room which she had rented at 1502 Arch street, with a gas tube, which she had evidently held between her lips until unconscious, near her. A slip of paper bearing her name was pinned to her dress.

The girl came to this city from New York on Friday last and engaged a room at the Arch street address, saying that she was a milliner. She gave her name simply as Miss "Burg." Her good looks and the unusual character of her clothing caused much speculation among the people in the house.

She is said to have made a number of trips to the general delivery window at the postoffice and on Saturday is said to have received a letter from Brooklyn. She did not retire until late Saturday night.

On a scrap of paper pinned to her dress was the name and address, "Emily Miller, 41 Sidney Place, Brooklyn." Beneath the pillow on the bed were two other pieces of paper with the names, "Mrs. Helen Allgorve, 401 East Fiftieth street, New York," and "Miss Mary Miller, 41 Sidney Place, Brooklyn." No other papers or letters were found.

At the hospital the girl was revived after much effort and later she told Dr. Reeves, the resident physician, that she had run away from home in Brooklyn. She said she had sought employment in this city and had been unable to find any and was unable longer to support herself. She steadfastly refused to tell why she had run away from her parents.

Her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Miller, of Brooklyn, was notified by the police, and in company with a sister of the girl, Miss Mary Miller, she arrived in this city. The hospital authorities refused to allow them to take the girl away until she was out of danger.

Takes Well.

New York, Nov. 11.—"Herod," with Salome and William Faversham in the planetary niche, is doing well at the Lyric theater, and it should, because the lines are beautiful, the costuming brilliant, and the production capital in every respect. Stirring mob scenes, poetic tragedy, imposing spectacle and excellent acting are the features. Herod is presented with a single scene. Upon its artistic care money has evidently been lavished. The production took well from the start in New York and had a good run guaranteed it.

RAILROADS AND THE PEOPLE

The Press-News publishes below the tenth article of a series prepared by this paper, dealing with the railroads and the people. In the following reasons are given why the general public, and especially the people of the southwest should feel friendly to the railroad and should encourage it. The railroads are making Texas what it is to day, and the people should lend every effort in encouraging the building of new lines.

In recounting reasons why the general public, especially in the southwest, should feel friendly toward the railroads, mention should be made of the maintenance of immigration departments are conducted at large expense for the express purpose of advising homeseekers as to the best place to go. Through these agencies tens of thousands of contented settlers may now be found where but a few years ago only the cattle range existed.

It is a big problem for the farmer in the east or northeast to select a new home in the far southwest, even after he may have decided to go there. The time and expense necessary to a complete investigation of the several localities precludes the possibility of his personally learning all about them. He must get some advice beforehand and must learn from those who have made a study just what the conditions are in the several localities which have attracted his attention. He may have let his thoughts wander to a half dozen different places, and must needs make up his mind between them before making a purchase. It is here that the immigration departments serve him. From these departments go forth great volumes of letters and printed matter intended to give a clear opinion of the lands along the roads interested. It may be expected to be authentic, because it is to the advantage of the roads to represent things as they are and to secure a satisfied settler who will become a steady producer and hence a source of steady profit.

One of the most elaborate organizations of this kind is that maintained by the Rock Island-Frisco lines. The literature it sends out counts up into the tens of thousands of pieces, and several people are kept constantly at work answering individual inquiries regarding the southwest country through which these roads run.

Every effort is made and no expense is spared to give every man who asks about the country that kind of information which will make him feel perfectly at home when he gets there. Through this department tens of thousands of families have found contented homes in the southwest.

These people who receive this assistance should be the friends of the railroads. If they would but stop and consider what it would have cost them had it been necessary for them to make their own investigations, they will see that the railroads have saved them an enormous expenditure. Instead of having to devote two or three months to investigation, during which time expenses would pile up very fast, these people have been able to go over their correspondence with the railroads and find their home with little trouble. The difference that would otherwise have gone for expenses is available for getting things started.

It is almost beyond belief that in some localities made up almost exclusively of people taken there through the assistance of the railroads that a short while back there should have arisen a clamor against these same roads. Of course, as we have said before, we know it was the politicians who caused the trouble, and it is a pleasure now to notice that the farmer has returned to his senses and is thinking out these problems for himself. He is showing a greater willingness to give credit to the railroads for the good they have done, and they see how necessary it is to the further up-building of the country that the railroads be given some degree of freedom.

Our own state has been one of the worst offenders in placing obstacles in the way of railroad development. Had many of the unnecessary restrictive laws never been written into the statute books there would be more hundreds of thousands of acres available to settlement through the medium of the immigration departments of the railroads.

There are land hungry farmers enough to buy all the land that is put on the market, provided it may be reached by rail. Men will not go inland, because in these days of railway development it seems necessary to have railroads near at hand.

Without stopping to consider any other subject than the one of great benefits to the farmers through the medium of these departments that have pointed the way to success for them, that subject alone contains enough to make every farmer in the great southwest a fervent friend of the railroads. If these men will just think of the railroads in the same manner they would think of a friend who had done them a kind act they would find it much easier to change their attitude. And there is nothing in the world of a more friendly nature than a railroad company, when we take it in its broadest sense. We find in charge of the railroad systems just the same kind of plain, ordinary, common sense men that we find on the farms and in the stores. They know their success and the success of their companies depends upon the co-operation of the people along the line. They would like to be looked upon as ordinary human beings and not as if they were thugs and robbers. How wrong it is to heap abuse upon a man just because he happens to represent an institution that represents tremendous investment. The man with the biggest investment always has the most at stake and always needs more at the hands of his customers than anybody else. The farmer can do without the railroad, but the railroad could never do without the farmer. It would be well to think of that and to let it in some way impress you with the reasons why so much money is expended by the roads in finding homes for the farmers and getting them installed there.

Just as soon as the farmers and the railroads become real neighbors, just that soon will we a new spirit of development in this splendid southwest country.

NOW IN EUROPE
BECAUSE GOD
LED HIM THERE

Publishers Press.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Rev. Wm. Burt, D. D., LL. D., who bears the title of "Resident Methodist Bishop at Zurich, Switzerland," in answer to the question "Why are we in Europe?" said recently: "We are there because God in His providence led us there just as surely as He called the Apostle Paul into Macedonia. German and Scandinavian immigrants to America were converted here, and then sought to evangelize their relatives and friends in the fatherland. It was simply the story of the New Testament over again. Andrew finds Jesus and immediately goes and tells his brother, Simon, saying: 'We have found the Messiah.' These friends in the fatherland asked to have preachers sent to them. As a result of these pleadings, Dr. Jacoby was sent to Germany in 1849, and others later to Scandinavia. Now the work extends from Bulgaria or the Black Sea on the east to the British Channel on the west, and from Hammerfest on the north to the Mediterranean on the South. We have ten annual conferences reporting more than 500 ministers, 67,000 members and nearly 90,000 Sunday school scholars and teachers. We have publishing houses, deaconess homes and hospitals of the first order and schools of all grades."

Monday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a special meeting of the San Angelo Club, for the purpose of providing for many improvements that are to be made.

Securing the entire possession of the second story of the Baker-Hemp-hill building, the club has decided to make many improvements and equip the club with more furniture.

All members of the club are urgently requested to be present, as their assistance in the matter is needed.

This movement is to enlarge upon the room and provide more facilities for its members. There are many handsome and needed improvements to be made and it will be at the cost of a large amount of money. For this reason all the members must be present and take a hand in the proposition.

POWELLS SELL TO DR. MARCH

DISPOSE OF RANCH AND LIVE STOCK HOLDINGS.

DEAL INVOLVES $85,000

Includes 6500 Acres in Coke County, on Which Is Stocked About 1000
Head of Cattle.

Closing one of the biggest land and live stock deals made in quite awhile in San Angelo, C. H. and J. C. Powell have sold their entire land and live stock interests to Dr. John Abe March. The deal involves something like $85,000. It was not altogether a cash consideration as part of it was turned over to Dr. March for two farms located in Robertson county.

Messrs. Powell owned about 6500 acres of land in Coke county and it was stocked with about one thousand head of cattle. The two farms taken in exchange are located in practically the best farming district in Texas.

Besides the cattle some horses were sold, but the exact number has not been learned.

The Powells are now practically out of the ranch and cattle business. The two men have been among the foremost ranchers in West Texas for many years. C. H. Powell has not taken such active part in the business, as he is the cashier of the First National bank, but his brother has looked after that interest.

PRECIPICE.

Vancouver Editor Plunges Over Thousand-Foot Cliff to Escape Bears.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 11.—Plunging over an almost sheer precipice, a thousand feet, in the Kootenai Mountains in an effort to escape three bears, F. H. Blochberger, editor of a German paper at Vancouver, rolled to the bottom bringing up in the deep snow and finding himself little hurt.

Blochberger had started to visit his mining claims near Rossland. The snow along his road was three feet deep. Suddenly he espied three bears pursuing him and in his effort to get away from them plunged over the precipice.

The snow at the bottom had drifted to a depth of seven feet, and broke his fall. With great effort he finally dug himself out of the drift and made his way to the railroad, a few miles away.

NOT WORRIED.

Collector at New York Says He Has No Fear of Investigation.

New York, Nov. 11.—"I have no fear of the outcome of any investigation that may be made of the New York custom house," Collector William Loeb, Jr., said. "I do not, in fact, think any investigation is really being planned."

The collector had just finished a dissection of a report from Washington that a group of powerful New York importers had planned to oust him from office through the medium of the New York delegation in congress.

"In my belief there is not anything in it but talk," said Collector Loeb, smiling. "There is not a single thing in my administration concerning which I can be logically attacked."

"All the trouble in the custom house was there when I took office. I am cleaning it up as fast as possible."

PARKER.

Washington Hears He May Be Peck-ham's Successor.

Washington, Nov. 11.—It is believed here that President Taft in appointing a supreme court justice to succeed the late Rufus W. Peckham, will select a New York Democrat, Justice Peckham having been a Democrat and from New York.

One of the New Yorkers mentioned, Alton B. Parker, is most frequently discussed. Another is Louis Marshall, of the firm of Untermyer, Guggenheimer & Marshall, corporation lawyers of New York City. Mr. Marshall has fought both for and against corporations. His latest importation service was as attorney for Adolph Seigel, in his suit against the Havermeyers.

Should President Taft go outside New York for his appointee, he may take Judge Horace H. Tutton of Springfield, O., former Secretary of War Luke E. Wright of Tennessee, Judge George Gray of Delaware, Judge Howard Hollister of Cincinnati, or Henry M. Hoyt, counselor for the State Department.

ORIENT OFFICIALS HERE EN ROUTE TO CHIHUAHUA MEX.

San Angelo to Sweetwater in as good shape as it is. Instead of being rough it is smooth and well ballasted, making a good road over which trains can run."

When asked about extensions and future intentions of the Orient, he declined, in a pleasing manner, to talk.

"We can not state just now about the intentions of the Orient. Of course there will be something done later on, but for the present I have no news that can be published.

"From San Angelo we go to Mexico, where we will be for quite awhile, inspecting the road. If the road in Mexico is in as good condition as the line from Kansas City to San Angelo, the officials of this road will be immensely pleased. I have not been in Mexico in some time, but I am sure everything is running smooth."

As to whether these men are coming back to San Angelo after they get through with Mexico is not certain, but it is likely that they will not.

A. H. Dickinson, son of E. Dickinson, and superintendent of the northern division, is also one of the crowd who is exceedingly glad to see San Angelo and the western country.

Glad to Get Here.

"My visits to San Angelo have been few an d far between, but I am always glad to get here," he said. "This is no doubt one of the best cities on the Orient and we are proud of it. We also delight in helping San Angelo in any way possible. While I am assigned to the northern division, and am well pleased with my 'job,' I sometimes wish it were so that I could be on this end and be a frequent visitor to your fine city."

Among the officials is the sterling gentleman Walter W. Colpitts, chief engineer of the Orient. Mr. Colpitts, though he has been away for several weeks, has not forgotten the great and happy hours that he has spent in San Angelo. He is also one of the men who exhibited great joy and happiness when the last spike was driven on the Orient between San Angelo and Sweetwater. Most of his time, however, was devoted to talking about the road and its condition. The on-to-Mertzon line was the main subject for his talk.

"The Mertzon extension, so I have learned, is progressing in a fine way," said he. "I have not had the opportunity, owing to other urgent business, to get down to San Angelo and look over that new road. I am confident, however, that it is in good condition. The also inform me that the contractors are fairly making the dirt fly down there and are going on to Mertzon in a hurry."

"I have not as yet decided whether I will inspect that line before I leave, but very likely will not, as they need me in Mexico."

Wednesday night was spent in Altus, at which town these nabobs made a good survey of the situation. The party was also joined by two of the San Angelo-Sweetwater residents who belong on the Orient—Col. Nicholas J. O'Brien and H. H. Sparks.

It is a well known fact that these two prominent men are immensely pleased with the situation in Texas. Col. O'Brien, who is in Sweetwater most of his time, accompanied by H. H. Sparks, went to Altus to join the officials and "sorter" pilot them into San Angelo.

Although joining the party at Altus H. H. Sparks will not leave San Angelo with it. Mr. Sparks says Mexico is a good country and he likes to visit it once in awhile, but just now San Angelo will suit him. He also has much business on hand that prevents him from leaving.

An Interpreter.

Col. O'Brien, however, will go to Mexico, where he will likely do the interpreting act for the crowd, as he speaks Spanish very fluently.

When the fine was completed between San Angelo and Sweetwater Col. O'Brien was right there and watching the work well done.

"When I get to Mexico I will feel a little at home, as I have spent much of my time there," he said.

"It will be a pleasure to me, though, I am sure when I return, as this country and especially San Angelo, is to my notion the only place to reside."

J. T. Odell, ex-governor of New York, who is a vice president of the Orient, told with great enjoyment what he thought of San Angelo and West Texas.

"It is with great pleasure that I have come to San Angelo," said the great New Yorker. "For to these many years I have been wanting to come to West Texas and take a look at it," he said. "I never dreamed of seeing what I have."

Messrs. Dickinson, O'Brien and others have often told me about the great country around San Angelo. I had an opinion that it was fairly good, but nothing like it is.

"I have found a very fine country, and San Angelo is a good city. If I were to seek another home I know of no other city that would entice more than San Angelo. The glow of the midnight lights has the appearance of Broadway and the rumble of the city sounds like Wall street."

While Mr. Odell was talking he was making a survey of the city from one of the car windows.

New York of the West.

"If the whistles of great steamships and powerful locomotives were resounding through the air San Angelo would indeed be the New York of the West. It is wonderful to see such great prosperity and growth in a city this far from the center of the United States, especially in the western part. I have no other idea that within five years San Angelo will have 25,000 inhabitants. I trust that it will, for the location for a better railroad and market center can not be found in the United States."

"Whenever I take another tour over the United States San Angelo will be on my itinerary without fail."

"Great, wonderful and progressive is the city of San Angelo," said T. Mertshelmar.

This was about all that could be pumped from him, but he showed signs of great love for San Angelo and West Texas.

E. H. Shaulfer, traffic manager of the Orient, devoted his conversation to freight and such affairs.

Freight Business.

"The traffic business of the Orient has increased wonderfully since this part of the country has been added to it as a feeder," he asserted. Our freight receipts are increasing every day, and very likely we will have to put on some extra trains before long. To show you the great freight business that is being handled by us I will mention what this little town Bronte is doing. They have so much cotton and freight to ship that enough cars can not be supplied them. It is practically that way all along the line, however, and it is getting more so as each day rolls by."

Before leaving Friday about 2 p. m. these moguls of the Orient will take a ride over the city in automobiles, making a general survey of the country.

President A. E. Stillwell would have been along, but owing to the vast amount of business that he is confronted with in New York, it was impossible to make the trip.

Instead of traveling over the great Orient line that he is president of he is in his office looking after the interests of the company while the other officials are inspecting the road.

Let The Press-News get it for you.

FARMERS MUST BE SCIENTIFIC

H. HANS OF BELLVILLE, RELATES HIS EXPERIENCES.

PAYS TO BE SELECT

If Good Crops Are Raised Only Good Seed Should Be Planted--Objects of Farmers' Institute.

"What good is obtained from the Farmers' Institute? and what is the use of such an organization?"

Those two questions are answered in a simple manner by H. Hans, of Bellville, Texas.

"The purpose of the Farmers' Institute of Texas is not to form a coalition against any faction or order so as to enhance the value of farm products," he said.

"The Farmers Institute is to get better prices, but in an entirely different manner. Good prices can be gotten for our farm products provided we have good agricultural goods. When a farmer plants any kind of seed and raises worthless cotton, corn, etc., he cannot, at least he should not, get good prices for his productions.

"There are ways of securing good prices for these products in a way that is common and satisfactory to all classes and societies. Raise good cotton and corn and good prices will be paid for them.

"How can we raise good cotton, corn, etc.? Only by planting seed from the best grades of cotton and corn.

"Agricultural products are like fine stock. A good grade of cattle and horses cannot be kept up if the proper breeding is neglected. The course of evolution is sure to take hold and degenerate the grade of stock if the proper care is not taken. So it is with farming. Farmers must be scientific in order to produce good products. I have tried it and I know what I am talking about. For many years I went along in a one-sided way trying to be a successful farmer by planting the seed that I raised from my cotton and corn. I found that it was a worthless idea and I diverted into a different way of farming. The fashion I chose was identically the same as the Farmers Institute suggests.

"There is another important thing in the Farmers Institute. That is education. Cultivate the children in farming and they will cultivate the land.

"We sometimes speak of entering the fields of some sort of business. We can enter any field, but if we do not cultivate it, nothing good and successful will result.

"When I go to a farm and see poor stock, meek children and a ragged appearance on all sides, I say to myself that man is no farmer. The mere fact of renting a few acres of land, buying a few farming implements is not farming. There are many men in this world who call themselves farmers who do not know the first principles of farming.

"Go to a plantation or a small farm and see a man taking particular pains in the selection of his seed and particular pains in what kind of tools he is using, and you will see a good farmer. That is the test and the difference.

"Compare the two men I have spoken of and watch them farm. Go to their farms a few weeks after they have planted and you will see the difference. The first will have stunted cotton and yellow corn. The latter will have a clean crop that is green and pretty. Now which is farming? The manner of dilly-dallying around is a worthless business. If you are going to farm, be a farmer or be nothing at all.

"Also there is another essential thing in farming. That is the care of your teams and implements.

"When you have good and fat teams to work with, it is easier to farm than it is when you have a poor lot of half cared for stock that are hardly able to pull your plow from one end of the furrow to the other.

"How can a team be kept in good condition? The farmer who plants any kind of seed feeds his teams as much as the one who plants good seed, but still his team is not fat and will not get fat. The farmer wonders why it is that his team will not fatten. It is no mysterious thing. It is a plain, simple matter.

"If you raise any sort of feed and give it to your teams, they will not fatten, but on the other hand they will be on the decline all the time. So you see that planting select feed is not only serviceable in one sense, but in many.

"This is only a brief resume of the good in a Farmers Institute. One could enumerate instances after instances in which the selection of good seed and the proper cultivation of your land is beneficial.

"I have always thought the West would make a fine farming section, and it will, if the farmers will follow the instructions of the Farmers Institute."

PRESIDENT TAFT AT HOME GETS DOWN TO WORK

have been postponed for settlement pending their return.

At present nobody in Washington pretends to know what the Taft administration expects to ask for passage at the coming congress.

The state department presents the most chaotic condition of any of the executive departments as a result of the policy of delay. Changes in the diplomatic corps at London, Paris and Peking are on the table, and the new Far Eastern and Latin-American bureaus are yet to be put on a working basis.

In the absence of Secretary Nagel the Department of Commerce and Labor is being administered by Solicitor Earl, who is the acting secretary since Ormy McHarg, assistant secretary, resigned. The customs division of the Treasury Department, which administers the new tariff law, is being supervised by Charles D. Hilles, assistant secretary of the treasury, in addition to his regular duties, which are in themselves onerous. This situation is the result of the resignation of James R. Reynolds, assistant secretary of the treasury, who has become a member of the tariff board.

It is assumed here that all of these vacancies will be filled in the near future, and that the customs court authorized by the tariff law will also be appointed. To date only an assistant attorney has been appointed.

In connection with this board. There is also a vacancy on the supreme court, caused by the death of Rufus W. Peckham.

It is understood here that this hiatus of public activity on the part of the higher officials of the administration has not been without result. Practically all of them, from the president down, have been giving a close study during the summer months to departmental affairs, with a view to outlining a definite administration policy in each.

Negro Vote.

Publishers Press.
Fort Worth, Nov. 11.--"Goose-neck" Bill McDonald, erstwhile negro Republican leader, today addressed a letter to William E. King, editor of the Dallas Express, urging all negroes to vote for the men and policies, regardless of the Republican party. He says President Taft need not hope to build up a Republican party in the South by flattering Southern leaders and distributing federal patronage among the sons of the prominent Democrats.

WHO WILL SUCCEED GAYNOR?

Brooklyn Republicans Concerned Over Appointment of Vacant Justiceship.

New York, Nov. 11.—The appointment of a successor to Mayor-elect William J. Gaynor on the supreme court bench is a matter of considerable interest to the Republican managers in Brooklyn.

The Republican organization favors Almet R. Latson, who was defeated for the resignation of Justice Dickey by Isaac M. Kapper, his Democratic opponent. Friends of Mr. Latson, however, fear that his defeat may prove a bar to his appointment, and it is considered likely that Governor Hughes will name one of the other dozen or more aspirants.

Some prominent Brooklyn lawyers believe that if the governor decides to appoint a Republican he will name Justice Dickey, as he is still two years under the age limit.

SOUTH LOSES
GREAT WORKER FOR CHURCH

Publishers Press.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Right Rev. William Hobart Hare, D. D., Bishop of South Dakota, who died a few days ago, was once one of the great missionary leaders of the American church. Born in Princeton, N. J., May 17, 1838, he was educated at the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1859 began his work in the ministry of the church. For eleven years he was occupied with work in important Philadelphia parishes and then spent two years as secretary and general agent for Foreign Missions. On January 9, 1873, he was consecrated Bishop of Niobrara and began his work among the Indians in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Wisconsin. In 1883 he became Bishop of South Dakota and in this field he has labored among the Indians and white people ever since. Bishop Hare's work began amongst the Indians when they were a thoroughly wild heathen people and only three years after he took up his residence among them occurred the famous Custer massacre in Montana. The Bishop combined the skill of a statesman with a patience of a saint and his plans were laid in a broad and far reaching manner. He felt that the only solution of the Indian problem lay in the education and development of the children. He established four large boarding schools for this purpose as one of the most important features of his program. Through this instrumentality hundreds of Indian youths have been trained to decent living and to telling service on behalf of their own people. From these have come many of the Indian clergy, teachers and helpers.

Bishop Hare traveled many hundreds of miles every year, over the prairies visiting the scattered Indian homes. Many a night he slept on the ground under his wagon or in the little army tent which he always carried with him on his tours. The Indians learned to trust him and he never betrayed their confidence. The result is that the whole character of Indian life has been utterly changed. Of the 25,000 Indians in South Dakota, 10,000 have been baptized through the efforts of Bishop Hare. With his own hands he confirmed about 7,000 and there are today 4,900 living communicants. An Indian chief of the Yankton tribe was one of the Bishop's early converts and is now a priest. The chief, speaking recently to an Indian congregation, said: "My friends, God found us, as it were, with our faces toward the ground. He was merciful and he sent to us the good white men and women who have come to us and put us upon our feet with our faces turned toward Him." Once a year Bishop Hare gathered the Indian Christians in a great convocation. They came by hundreds from the different reservations to the appointed place of meeting out on the open prairie. With posts and boughs they would build a rude church or booth. Their tents and teepees—400 or 500 of them—were ranged in a great circle a mile or more in diameter around this church, and here for four days services and meetings were held, plans formed and counsels given. Then the 2500 Indians who would spend those days with the Bishop they loved went back to their scattered homes to live and work another year as self-respecting Christian folk. Of course, life of so sterling a character as this had its profound effect upon the white people with whom the Bishop came in contact, and as one of the daily papers in Sioux Falls expressed it on a recent anniversary kept in his honor, "Bishop Hare's great influence toward a higher standard of morals and manhood and the growth of pure knowledge, laid all the people of the state under profound obligations which can never be repaid, but which are keenly felt by all." Bishop Hare deserves to be ranked as one of the church's great apostles, one of the best friends the Indian people have ever had and one of the noblest and most patriotic citizens of our country.

WESTERN TEXAS SOIL BEING BOOSTED BY REAL ESTATE MEN

BASEBALL MAGNATE HERE

Surprised to See San Angelo So Much Larger Than It Was About Five Years Ago.

"There seems to be four buildings now where only one stood then," said Clarence Phillips, now here, in speaking of a visit to San Angelo five years ago, when he managed a visiting ball club. "I firmly believe that the growth of this city since then has surpassed all others in the United States."

"I was surprised on arriving here last week, although I had heard much about San Angelo during my absence. Put a few thousand acres of Tom Green county farming soil on sale this fall and if San Angelo would not double its size within five years it would be surprising to me.

"A general dissatisfaction reigns among the farmers of my home state and other parts of the South, because of the exceptionally poor showing made in the cotton crop, and this gives rise to the theory that the immigration to Western Texas this fall and winter will more than double that of any other year.

"Western Texas soil is the sensation of the Eastern real estate world this year, and the amount they have for sale now will be insufficient to supply the demands of the central states farmers.

"It has not been many years back since residents of Eastern states boasted that nothing but scrub mesquite scrub would grow in Western Texas, but that day has passed and now there are thousands of farmers who would be only too willing to buy a farming tract in this section."

Mr. Phillips is a resident of Memphis, Tenn. Several years ago he visited San Angelo, managing a baseball team called the Eastern all-stars.

PENITENTIARY REPORTS TRUE

HON. BROWN F. LEE BACK FROM TOUR OF INVESTIGATION.

CONDITIONS DEPLORABLE

All That Newspapers Have Said Regarding Matter Backed By Committee's Finding.

"Reports in the newspapers about the affair were correct, and I noticed no exaggeration."

This was the only statement Hon. Brown F. Lee would make Thursday when asked regarding the result of the investigation made by the penitentiary board on the state prison conditions. Judge Lee is a member of that board and he returned Wednesday from Sugarland, where he left the party Tuesday. The board will proceed from Sugarland to Brazoria, where convicts are being worked on the sugar farm.

When shown a dispatch stating that the board found that prisoners were cruelly whipped with a long and heavy lash, one man seated on the victim's head and one on each foot, he admitted it to be the truth. However, he said that they witnessed no such acts as this, but the information they secured proved it to be the truth.

Other reports regarding the cruel treatment the convicts had been receiving were also verified by Judge Lee.

The board of investigation will complete the inspection this week and Tuesday a meeting will be held in Austin and a report will be formulated later to be forwarded to Gov. Campbell.

The investigation conducted by this board has covered a period of nearly three weeks, and the report which it will give to the state will contain some really horrible facts concerning the treatment of the state convicts.

Judge Lee will be present at the Austin meeting.

ELECTRICITY.

May Be Means of Ousting the Use of Dynamite.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 11.—An electric gun has been invented by Alexander F. Humphrey of No. 30, Federal street, Extension, which he says will do away with the use of powder, and it will be absolutely noiseless in action. He claims to have discovered the method of propelling projectiles by electricity at a greater speed than powder or dynamite can. The plan of the gun is similar to that of rifles in use, except in the mechanism. The inventor says:

"My first design was of a gun of 13-inch calibre for coast defenses and as the principle of the electric cannon is adapted to either large or small caliber guns, I designed a gun for use in field artillery.

"This proposed gun could be manipulated by the application of electricity without noise, smoke or recoil. By pulling or holding the trigger a continuous stream of projectiles may be fired. These projectiles may be expelled with enormous muzzle velocity.

"In field practice the gun being remote from any permanent location of electrical supply, an armored auto car of special construction becomes the base of electrical supply, and that of transportation; also a battery of three or more of these proposed guns could be hauled by means of the auto car to any desired location.

"Several years ago I discovered the fact that metal missiles could be projected by the agency of electricity, just as they are projected by the powder guns of today, only with enormous speed. Embryo models proved the theory correct."

SUFFRAGETTES FALLING INTO SOME NEW JOBS

Publishers Press.

New York, Nov. 11.—Ever since the Suffragettes have begun pining to become truck drivers and coal heavers and steamship stokers, new occupations for the fair ones have been springing up daily, but the latest is the female ticket speculator on Broadway. She came the other night and the men were so astonished that they allowed two persons to pass into the foyer unmolested. The young woman appeared in front of the New York Theater with a couple of hundred dollar bills twined between her fingers just like a regular speculator. She was attired in a long, light-colored coat of a semi-automobile cut and of Parisian fashion (as some one said who had been to France in the course of his career), a Russian toque and chamois skin gloves. Oh, yes, she wore French heels, too. She said her name was Marion Alexander.

So great became the crowd around the young woman that some one in his excitement tore down the big sign reading "tickets purchased from speculators on the sidewalk will positively not be accepted in this theater." The management has started a rigid investigation and has already ordered a new sign. The young woman said she made $38 the first night, which was a very, very poor one on account of the excitement over the lost sign.

ROYAL VISITS FEWER THAN HERETOFORE

Publishers Press.

London, Nov. 11.—It is understood at court that the royal visits to this country next year will be fewer than in previous years. The king and queen of Spain are expected to be here once more in the early part of the summer, but this will be a private visit in order that King Alfonso may enjoy some yacht racing on the Clyde and elsewhere, and no public duties will be undertaken. Should affairs in Greece have sufficiently settled down King George is expected to pay another visit to this country during the London season, when he would stay for about a week while hopes are expressed that the Queen of the Netherlands will also come. King Edward is expected to pay state visits to both Madrid and Lisbon in the spring, and will later have a meeting with the King of Italy, and will probably exchange private visits with the Ger-

JUDGE CRANE WILL BE HERE

INTENDS TO PARTICIPATE IN DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS.

FAVORS THE MOVEMENT

Always Willing to Encourage Propositions Looking Toward Development of Texas.

Among those who have been invited to attend the West Texas Development congress to be held in San Angelo beginning December 6, is R. C. Crane, attorney at law, of Sweetwater. In answer to the invitation Mr. Crane wrote the following letter:

"Sweetwater, Tex., Nov. 9.—Col. A. J. Baker, Chairman, San Angelo Texas. Dear sir: Acknowledging receipt of the invitation of your invitation committee to be with you during the West Texas Development congress December 6, I write to say that it is my present expectation to be on hand.

"I am in favor of every proposition every time that makes for the development and upbuilding of Texas, and especially this part of Texas. Yours faithfully, R. C. CRANE."

Mr. Crane is one of the city builders of West Texas who has played an important part in the upbuilding of Sweetwater. He is a sterling man with high ideas. It is the brain and will power of such men that the development congress is seeking. There are men from all parts of the state who are coming. They are coming en masse like the birds of colder regions, that seek the southern climes when the autumn days come.

R. C. Crane is already, heart and soul, to devote his best efforts to the development of this western country. There are but few men in Texas who are so eager and willing to undertake such tasks, but wherever there is one to be found there will also be found in that land from whence he comes prosper and development.

SUBURBAN TOWN FOR SAN ANGELO

DR. CLAY JOHNSON TO OPEN BIG TRACT OF LAND.

STREET CAR SERVICE

Property Lies North of Town and Consists of 20,000 Acres—Pictures Future Growth.

Within three years, according to the present plans of Dr. Clay Johnson, a surgeon of Fort Worth, the building of a quiet little residence district, to be a suburb of San Angelo, will be in progress. Mr. Johnson is now here in company with C. G. Jester, a capitalist of Fort Worth. Their visit here is connected with this enterprise.

Twenty thousand acres of land, located six miles north of San Angelo, and the property of Mr. Johnson, is to be the site of the proposed suburban town, which will be connected with San Angelo by street railway. That the street cars will run there Mr. Johnson has been assured.

Three years ago while looking for an investment, Mr. Johnson purchased this tract of land. Since then the value of this investment has doubled, and it is gradually increasing, as is all other land in this section of West Texas.

"The most progressive point on the globe," Mr. Johnson said Thursday night at the Landon hotel, in speaking of San Angelo and Tom Green county. "A population of 25,000 may be claimed by this city within three years. I think, at the rate the affairs seem to be progressing now. This place is the talk of the outside country, and there's going to be a tremendous increase in the value of property by that time.

"My property is worth twice the money I paid for it three years ago, and the boom has just started. I intend to divide the greater part of this land into town lots and there won't be many left unsold soon after that, unless the present outlook is deceiving."

Mr. Jester came to San Angelo to look over the city and country with a view to the investment of thousands of dollars. While he has not closed any deals yet, his views of the situation correspond with those of Mr. Johnson, and he contemplates a return visit in the near future.

Those gentlemen arrived in San Angelo Wednesday afternoon and they are to leave Friday afternoon for Ft. Worth. During their stay they saw much of the country surrounding San Angelo. Mr. Johnson is a brother to Hon. Cone Johnson, a Democratic candidate for governor of Texas.

PECAN CROP ABOUT GONE

YIELD THIS YEAR MUCH SMALLER THAN THAT OF LAST.

SHIPMENTS VERY LIGHT

Not More Than Four Car Loads Have Been Sent Out of San Angelo, Against Forty in 1896.

Pecans where art thou?

This is a question often propounded by many who like to eat the little oblong-shaped fellows. It is an easy question to answer, however. They have wandered into the deep, dim shadows of the bygone days in a blasted condition. This year is an era of no pecans, in West Texas.

In 1896 forty cars of pecans were shipped from San Angelo, which is the biggest crop ever known by any man who has lived in this country.

"That year," says a prominent pecan man of San Angelo, "will never come again, I am afraid. It was amazing to see such an enormous amount of pecans in the country. If the people had gathered them that year as well as they do now, no doubt that there would have been at least sixty cars sent from the portals of San Angelo, instead of forty."

"This year there will be only one-tenth of that amount sent from this city. Four cars compared with forty is hardly reasonable, but it is true."

"Several succeeding years after 1896 there were all the way from fifteen to twenty-five cars marketed from San Angelo. During the late years, however, the pecan crop has been falling short in this section. In other parts of the country it has not been so. Instead of having short crops, they have been increasing. The increase in other pecan regions has kept the market low and the pecan people of West Texas have been getting a hard deal.

"It is ever thus, however with such things. Some years prosperity and plenty are at the doors of every homestead, and in others famine is in its stead."

"This does not mean that starvation exists in West Texas. It only means that the pecan crop is exceedingly short and the measly little squirrels are getting a poor deal for something during the winter."
