JANUARY 31
is the LAST DAY for men now in the U. S. Army to reenlist and be sure of retaining their present grades.

TALK . . . meetings

"What do they talk about at these conferences?" my wife asked me.
She was reading the front page of a newspaper which headlined one conference after another about strikes.
"I don't know," I said. "I suppose they discuss labor's demands and try to see if they can come to some agreement."
"But," she complained, "these headlines always say just about the same thing. They either say that no agreement was reached or that another conference is being planned. In some of the strikes people have been meeting for months and nothing seems to happen. I can't see what they talk about all the time."

My reaction — a sort of defense of the male — was to try to point out that men of importance don't sit around together by the hour without discussing subjects of weighty concern. Women might, yes. But not busy business executives. But as I tried to build my case, I too began wondering what on earth did keep the conversation rolling at these long-winded conferences.

CONFERENCE . . . delay

After struggling with this mysterious problem for some time, I finally came to the conclusion that one of those many conferences between Mr. Anderson of General Motors and Mr. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers must have gone something like this:

Mr. Thomas: Well, are you going to give us 30 per cent?
Mr. Anderson: No.
Thomas: What's your best offer today?
Anderson: 13 per cent. And that's final.
Thomas: You know we won't accept that.
Anderson: You know we won't go any higher.
(Thomas lights a cigar 30 per cent longer than the average cigar. Anderson lights a short pipe. They sit at the conference table glaring at each other. After an hour of silence, Mr. Thomas clears his throat impatiently.)

Thomas: Any change yet?
Anderson: Nope.
(Each gets out a newspaper and begins reading. After another hour Mr. Anderson breaks the silence.)
Anderson: Ready to take 13 per cent yet?
Thomas: Nope. Still 30 per cent.
Anderson: It's getting late. Shall we call off the conference?
Thomas: Okay. What will we tell the papers?
Anderson: I've just written out a statement. Here.
Thomas: (reading) "After conferring until midnight, no agreements were reached although the union representative indicated that he would be willing to consider a compromise proposal."

PUBLICITY . . . repetition

Of course, if Mr. Anderson did hand Mr. Thomas a statement like that, the conference would continue in a more explosive vein. Like this, perhaps:
Thomas: What'd you mean, I am willing to compromise?
Anderson: You made that very clear two hours back when, after I refused 30 per cent, you asked for my best offer.
Thomas: Well, we're not giving any statement like that to the papers.
Anderson: Then what do you want to tell them?
Thomas: I want to tell them that you are trying to stop progress, that you want to beat down the working man, that you won't bargain with us, that . . .
Anderson: What I want to say wouldn't be fit for print, but do you want to get together on a joint statement?
Thomas: I just want to give the public the facts.
Anderson: You mean you want to confess that the union is trying to high-pressure us into increasing the cost of automobiles, that you will admit the fallacy of seeking higher wages when production is at a standstill, that . . .
Thomas: Don't try to be funny. I guess we have to issue the same old statement. Have you got a fresh copy?
Anderson: You mean the one headed "Conferees Fail to Agree" or "Conferees to Be Continued"?

Thomas: Haven't we got any others? My members are getting fed up with those.
Anderson: (thumbing through papers) Let's see . . . well, here's one we haven't used for a month — "Conferees Explore Areas of Agreement."
Thomas: Okay, give them that one. And next time let's go home earlier. I've been missing out on 30 per cent of my sleep.

MONKEY HERO GETS SPOTS BEFORE HIS EYES . . . "Jimmie," a pet monkey credited with turning in a fire alarm that saved lives in a burning Brooklyn home, goes into a tizzy when he meets up with "Duchess," the Dalmatian pet of a hook and ladder company that answered "Jimmie's" alarm.

H. W. (Bill) Allen Makes Statement To the Citizens

In announcing for re-election as District Attorney of Coryell, Hamilton, Bosque and Comanche counties, I am conscious of how much I owe you for assistance in the past and when someone becomes available whom you feel can serve you equally well, I will still have that gratitude. So many of us have worked together for law and order that I am sure you know I am for strict law enforcement, with fairness and justice to all, and that anyone can get along with me by doing the right thing.
I am opposed to "Gestapo" tactics just as you are, and I have never found an ex-serve man who wants such a system for America. Our law provides that guilt shall be established in Court upon legal evidence after a fair trial and that no evidence is admissible which is obtained in violation of any law. As we have a number of laws which regulate the manner of law enforcement, in order that the innocent may be protected, we must respect them or the evidence will not be legal. For instance, it is a violation of the law to mistreat persons to "make them talk" or confess to knowledge of offenses for the very good reason that someone might be made to say something that was not true. The law has been, and can be, enforced without violating the safeguards to the innocent and I pledge you that these laws will be respected in this District, for after all if we do not respect the laws, how can we ask others to do so? The juries are our safeguards against thieves, murderers, robbers and others, and also the bulwark which protect good people from suffering as a result of hate, suspicion, gossip and lies. Poor judgment in filing cases where evidence will not satisfy a jury and will lead to a verdict of "not guilty" does not help law enforcement, and because I am for the jury system I want all of us to work together hard enough to prove violations to the satisfaction of a jury in the right way.
Hamilton County has as high or higher a percentage of people who believe in doing the right thing as any other. It is from such a good citizenship that our veterans left to serve the nation and in my opinion, they have returned even better men, for they will be more active than before in upholding the right thing, as their buddies of 27 years ago have done. I do not mean that no offenses are committed, for we have a number of unsolved crimes such as filling station burglaries, cattle thefts, etc., where no one has been caught, which will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law if the guilty are caught. What I do mean is reflected by the records. Of the last ten men who were committed to the pen, only one was a resident of the County.
I favor helping the man or boy who is wrong to get right and I am proud of the men who were in trouble at some time and who have since been for the law because it was fair and square.
Your District officials are also proud that Bosque County petitioned to be added to our District Court, a change which we did not seek and for which no added pay was given or asked. After serving them for awhile, they traveled to Austin to protest being taken away from our District. There is indeed some compensation to the performance of duty besides dollars and cents.
I will gladly submit my record to you based upon what the impartial citizens who know the most about law enforcement think that is, the jurors, and others who take part in court. Thank you for your consideration and friendship. Although these four counties cover a lot of territory, changed conditions should make it possible for me to see you this year. To those of you I may be unable to see, please consider this a solicitation for your support. I promise you the best service of which I am capable in order that we may have law and order in a country where we also hope for an era of peace, now that the turmoil and heart aches of war are over.
Sincerely, your District Attorney,
BILL ALLEN.

Firestone Will Operate At Full Capacity Soon

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 21.—Unless industry acts to insure the continued upward trend of the standard of living, it will fall in its responsibility of helping to guarantee a sound economic basis at home and abroad, John W. Thomas, chairman of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, asserted Monday.
Commending the postwar plans drafted by Firestone scientists and production engineers, which were among the first completed in the industry, Thomas reported that the company had nearly completed its reconversion.
Reconversion in March
Firestone's tire plants should be operating at capacity by mid-March, turning out more passenger car and truck tires than ever before, he said. The company's industrial products and plastics plants, with increased capacities, also enjoy a favorable outlook, he said.
In all phases of operations, from basic research to sales, the last year was one of consistent progress for Firestone, Thomas stated. Firestone innovations during the year, he said, included the development of a new, high-concentrate synthetic latex at the company's newly dedicated research laboratory, a wide cord heavy duty tire which is practically blowout-proof, a complete line of wide base tires for farm tractors, and adoption of rayon cord for all truck, earth-mover and special purpose tires. Butyl rubber, which retains air 10 times as effectively as natural rubber, also was adopted in making all civilian tire tubes.
Need for Synthetic Plants
"With world production of natural rubber unlikely to return to normal for one or even two years, the United States is determined never again to be deprived of important sources of rubber," Thomas declared.
"We should continue to operate a sizable portion of our synthetic rubber capacity and keep on with our intensive research for the improvement of this product," he said. "We should also provide for a good-size stockpile of natural rubber to be accumulated when surplus amounts become available."
Commenting on the human side of the company's reconversion, Thomas said that about 2,800 of the 16,000 Firestone men and women in the armed forces during the war had been reinstated, and that nearly 10,000 World War II veterans who did not formerly work for the company had also been placed in jobs.

ACCIDENT VICTIMS IMPROVE

H. G. Driver, father of Johnnie and Donald Driver, injured in a car-train collision here last week, reported to the News Review Thursday about noon that both boys were getting along better than it was at first thought they would.
Donald, he said, was on his way home that day, and it was thought that if improvement in Johnnie's condition continued he could be moved by ambulance in a short time.

Machinery Dealers Warn On Care of Present Equipment

It will take several years for farmers to obtain all of the new machinery needed for replacement and expansion, states Clyde Weatherby of the Weatherby Tractor Co., Ford Ferguson System dealers in Hamilton, in sounding a warning on winter care of the tractor and implements with a view toward longer wear.
They pointed out that all manufacturers are rushing tractors and various types of equipment to dealers everywhere as production increases, but that the serviceability of machinery now in use can be maintained by the following helpful suggestions:
Give the engine a chance to warm up before racing the tractor in cold weather.
Keep the battery clean, the terminals greased, the cells filled with clean distilled water.
The charge in the battery should be maintained by running the engine or taking it to a service station for recharging when the tractor is not in use for some time. Never store the battery on a concrete floor or in a damp place.
Clyde Weatherby Tractor Co. suggest that a hot engine be allowed to cool gradually before refilling with cold water. In freezing weather, let the engine cool off a bit before draining the water.
Slow starting in cold weather may be caused by too heavy crankcase oil, frozen water pump, water in the fuel system, moisture in the distributor, or dirty spark plugs.
The following steps are advised for tractor storage:
Store tractor in shed or some other sheltered place; drain entire fuel system and cooling system; remove the battery for proper storage, and relieve the stress by elevating the tractor on blocks.
A coat of paint not only improves the looks and serviceability of the tractor, Mr. Weatherby says, but the machine will work better and last longer.
While the U. S. population increased only 43 per cent from 1910 to 1940, the increase in technicians—including engineers and scientists—amounted to 226 per cent. Many thousands more will get technical training through enlistment in the Regular Army.

Drastic Need For Increase In Texas Corn Production

"The production of a corn crop in Texas will assure the producers the full OPA ceiling prices," stated Arthur Burden this week in commenting on a statement of G. E. Blewett, secretary-treasurer of the Texas Grain and Feed Dealers Association. Blewett's statement continues:
"For the past two or three years, and especially the last year, it has been impossible for Texas mixed feed manufacturing plants and other corn processing plants to obtain sufficient supplies of corn to fill their requirements, as although the total U. S. corn crop for the past two years has been unusually heavy, the Texas production of corn last year only amounted to about 66,000,000 bushels whereas the State requires in excess of 100,000,000 bushels and during the last 20 years there has never been a crop sufficient to fill the State's need."
"The enormous increase in the animal and poultry population of Texas, together with a large amount of prepared stock and poultry feeds for export has placed an unusually heavy burden on these mixed feed plants, thus causing them to consume a much larger amount of corn than they did in normal years, and it is obvious this demand will continue throughout the coming year, and it is certain that anyone processing corn would be willing to contract for the farmers' production of corn at the OPA ceiling prices."
"At this time it is impossible to buy any corn, as the Northern crop produced in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois, and other Northern states, is of such high moisture content as to prohibit it being shipped to Texas, so I feel quite sure that the Texas farmers need have no concern over finding a market for all the corn they will produce in this year's crop."

Notes From Office Of County Home Demonstration Agt.

Egg prices are going down and feed prices remain high—what can the poultry farmer do?
The following practices are recommended: (1) cull out all poor producers; (2) follow recommended feeding practices; (3) provide adequate housing; and (4) keep hens free of insects and internal parasites.
If we would think of a hen as a little factory and that we are responsible for the finished product, we would do a better job of providing adequate housing and follow recommended feeding practices.
We say it takes cotton, twine, and materials in addition to labor and the necessary equipment for a mattress factory to make mattresses.
An egg is made up of proteins, water, fat, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals; therefore these are required in proper amounts to maintain the hen's body and for producing the egg.
Bulletins on insect control, culling, feeding practices, and poultry houses and equipment can be obtained from your County Extension Agent's office.

A STORY

By MISS STELLA JONES

"I was a stranger and ye took me in."—Matthew 25:35.

As I don't have much news I will send a story for the children and others who care to read it.

A little girl of 12 had arrived home from school one cold day in January. The sky looked as if a snow storm was on hand.

The parents of this child were very poor. She was their only child. They lived at the edge of a good sized town. Their home was a very poor one. They could not keep very warm.

After school every other day this girl would go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ware and wash dishes and do other things. Mrs. Ware had a maid, but when she got the lunch fixed she would leave. Today was the day for her to go.

"Mother, it is so cold I have a notion not to go," she said.

"Ethel, you can wrap up and you can make it," her mother said.

Just then her dad came in very drunk. "You go on and make that money, I want it for some more whiskey," he said.

"George Adams, you don't get this—do you understand?" said his wife.

Ethel started and before she got half way through the snow storm started and she was blinded and was very cold. There were not many people on the street that she knew. She got in front of a fine home and fell in the snow.

A girl about her age saw her fall and sent a man servant out after her. "I don't know who she is and I don't care." Her mother, Mrs. Ray, wasn't so eager to have her in, but she didn't say anything. The man brought her in and laid her on the day-bed. After a while she opened her eyes and Alma Ray was by her bedside. Ethel knew the verse in the Bible and said to her, "I was a stranger and ye took me in. You will get your reward."

She was given a warm bath. Ethel told them who she was and where she had started. "I don't feel like I could go on."

"No, you stay here," said Mrs. Ray. "We will phone the woman." She gave her the name and the woman sent a servant after her. The car was nice and warm.

The girl was given another good hot bath and put to bed and a nice hot supper was brought to her and she was soon asleep. By the next morning she had a cold that was caused by being exposed to the cold.

As this was Saturday she didn't have to go to school. The lady sent word to her parents that she would be home Sunday. Her cold was some better by the time she left.

When they passed by the home that took her in, Alma had a box of clothing for her. "These will keep you good and warm." She also gave her some money. The lady she worked for gave her more than would have been her wages.

"I am sure thankful for all this, but my old Dad will want all the money, but I will not give it to him," Ethel said.

"I will see that he doesn't get it," said Mrs. Ware.

He was at home and a little sobered up. He got on a big drunk Monday and was put in the city jail. The wife was glad of it, for she was afraid of him. He had beaten her some.

The woman and her daughter left this place and moved close in town to a place that was closer to school. Mrs. Adams got work in a dry goods store. Ethel went to the fine home of Mr. and Mrs. Ware every day and helped with the work. The couple had twin girls two years old and Ethel loved them very much.

This verse of Scripture came to Ethel very often. All of this would not have happened to us if the girl had not taken me in. "For I was a stranger and ye took me in." Ethel and Alma got to be good friends in after years. Ethel still thinks of the cold afternoon when Alma Ray took her in.

Mrs. Adams and Ethel had a comfortable home. Mr. Adams was killed in a car wreck a short time after his wife moved to town. He lived a life of sin. "For the wages of sin is death."

SENIOR NEWS

Well, the horrible week has passed for all of us Seniors, and we are already looking forward to the next one, which for us will be the last final exam in our High School days.

Quite a few Seniors have come in with snow in their hair and all over them this week, and as usual the girls get the biggest part of the snowballing, with the boys producing most of the snowballs.

JUNIOR NEWS

As this is the beginning of a new semester, we are hoping everyone is getting straightened out on their new subjects or are doing fine with their old ones. The report cards go out this week, but we are afraid some will carry bad news.

The ball games are not coming out so good, and some had to be cancelled on account of the bad weather.

We are sorry to report that Billie Louise Jackson is moving to Dublin. She joined us at the first of school, but isn't staying as long as we wish she would. We have enjoyed her being with us very much. Come to see us some time, Billie Louise.

Bob Wren is also leaving us. He is going into the Navy in a few days. We are sorry to lose him.

HOME-MAKING NEWS

The girls are all eager to start their new semester's work. Monday, the class checked in the old books only to receive more books for this semester.

Last semester the first and third year girls studied sewing, and the second year class studied cooking. Our teacher, Miss Hammons, is giving us preference as to what we would like to study this semester. I am sure we will all enjoy this work.

With snow on the ground, it is very hard to settle down to work, to try to bring up our last semester's average.

We would like for our Home-making Club to have its regular meeting soon. We hope the meetings continue with more regularity than before.

IN THE CRYSTAL BALL

Here we go again with our little jaunt through vision land.

Thursday night, Leroy and Betty Dodd were seen together. Don't the strangest things happen?

Now the vision appears of Wendall S. at Betty D.'s house. Complications have arisen.

Clovis G. took Billie Louise to DeLeon to the basketball games and Wendall took Sammie. There is a rumor going around that Sammie has "lethal brother" trouble.

Terry T., Patsy M. and LaVerne P. were seen conversing on the corner by the post office. Patsy has the cutest giggle.

In Study Hall, Betty Knight was seen helping (?) Ray J. with something or other. What could it have been?

Annette P. was with Ray M. Sunday. She said she got in at seven P. M. that time. She seems to be improving.

Don was seen at the show Sunday by himself. What is this younger generation coming to?

Due to the coldness of the weather, the Crystal Ball has clouded over and refuses to give with any more visions.

We wish to register another appeal for letters. The new low struck by our fan-mail is appalling; no letters, to be exact, and we feel it is up to you all to do something about it. If you don't have any problems, create some and get some of our expert advice. After all, it couldn't do any more than kill you.

TIGERS WIN ONE OUT OF TWO GAMES AT DE LEON

Last Friday night the Tigers went to De Leon to tangle with the Bearcats, and they did tangle. The girls played a very good game all the way through and were ahead of De Leon several different times, but the last half proved to be the fatal one for the Hico girls.

The boys had a tough game, and the score was very close until the last few minutes of the game, and the boys stepped out in front to win the game with a score of 29 to 19.

A WORM'S EYE VIEW

O. K. so I'm a worm. So what? A worm's got a right to an eye-view just like anyone else.

For years people have been discussing worms: good worms, and bad worms; worms that make pretty butterflies, and worms that make moths; but, pal, the worm has turned. This one's going to discuss people.

Who? Well, I don't know. Let me see. How about the small blonde over there? The one with the skin you love to touch. She has brains plus, and more friends than a spider can count on all his tinkles. Why? Because she has blue eyes that twinkle when she smiles and when she laughs, you laugh, too—or, bud, you're a square. She's as crazy as a Freshman even if she is a Senior, and on her it looks good. Her future plans are to fill the human stomach scientifically with food, yet. That, to a worm, is a most agreeable subject, as it is a worm's most favorite occupation. This worm's, anyway. Who is she? Why, don't you know? Of course, she is the editor of The Mirror.

INTERNATIONAL "TOWN MEETING"

Addressing the United Nations Organization meeting in London, Dr. Eduardo Zuleta Angel of Colombia spoke of his hope that the assembly might become "the town meeting of the world."

That seemed to hit home. For we have long felt that if nations could learn to get along together like people in small towns—putting up with each other's faults, recognizing each other's virtues, and living close together in peaceful and friendly fashion—the idea of war might be erased from the imagination of mankind.

In this case the neighbors are the countries of the world—and the problems involve issues such as the atomic bomb—but that is merely a matter of proportion. The aims of peace and progress can readily be compared with meetings we might have in our town to decide how to improve our schools and how to enlarge our police force.

SEES ALL, KNOWS ALL

A recent release tells us that the Office of Price Administration has exempted from price control—all of all things—umbrella stands.

But we didn't run a news item on the umbrella stands, because we decided that most of our readers probably never knew that they were under price control in the first place.

However, the release did serve to make us think OPA must be a pretty smart outfit—that it apparently hasn't missed anything, so far as price control is concerned. For, in addition to umbrella stands, they know about foot scrapers, grass catchers, ice creepers and tree-saver bands.

Of course, there may have been a lot of umbrella stands installed around Washington when we were expecting visitors like Chamberlain before the war. Maybe that's how OPA got to know about them. But as for foot scrapers and grass catchers—well, that made us start wondering whether there is any product in the world OPA hasn't got its finger on. What about glass eyes for bear rugs, Mr. Bowles?

Wee Bits of JESTURE

[Opinions expressed in this weekly feature are the writer's, and not necessarily those of the News Review.—E.B.]

General Motors admits possession of the "Pie!" Accuses labor of trying to "get their finger in it." Now, folks, isn't that a pretty howdy-do for two grown-ups like management and labor to be going on like that? "You done this and you done that." "We offered to do so-and-so, and now you won't do so-and-so." "Keep out of our books, you don't like to read no-how." "Stop that leaning on our front yard fence or we will sic the cops on you." Doesn't that sound just like them, folks?

Of course labor has a pie, too, and even though its flavor wouldn't appeal to many people's taste, management likes them flavored that way, with "sweat and elbow grease." Therefore, it looks like to me that management is trying to get its finger into labor's pie. The Fact-Finding Board, after working both day and night, has failed either to determine the ingredients used in these "troublesome pies" or the baking process of them.

Every now and then some anti-labor spokesman jumps up out of his seat and of all the blamed weeping you ever heard take place he does it. He sheds great big "crocodile tears" for the public that are as dry as a poor relative's handkerchief at a rich uncle's funeral. He makes it appear that the "public" should kick all these strikers right in the seat of their pants, but not once does he try to explain how one million and a half "pickets" could kick themselves on that "particular spot." There is a solution to all problems, and here's mine. Let management and labor agree to take "one poke apiece at each other's pie" and that will settle this thing. Even a darned half-wit knows one can't drag out enough pie on one finger to get fat on.

Example We Didn't Get

A lot of grown men act like children while their country suffers humiliation and the rest of the world starves. Management gets "hurt feelings" and stands on what it imagines is its "dignity," when the really dignified procedure would be the seeking of every opening through which it could possibly reach agreements with the unions, and thus help its willing workers, its stockholders and its country. The unions rush around like bulls in china shops abusing management out of one nostril and government out of the other, while their leaders, unable to control the communist extremists within their own ranks, allow that un-American element to drag them into situations which must eventually curtail all union labor's privileges. Government does little to remedy the situation for fear of losing the labor vote. It still doesn't seem to grasp the fact that there are others who vote in this country beside members of the CIO.

If—before these labor troubles were started—the managements and unions, now involved, had shown the same patriotic spirit as did John L. Lewis when he called off the coal strike because he knew it would spell tragedy for the country in this out-of-balance period—we would have far less fear of the anti-democracy ideologies which are sweeping Europe and percolating rapidly into our own beloved land.

The half-wrecked world must needs find some successful example to follow in order to pull itself out of the dreadful mire in which this last war left it. It looked to America first—to that resilient young nation which had led the world in war efficiency and which would lead it back into the paths of freedom and plenty. What does it find? A small but obstructive minority of snarling industrialists and professional labor unionists squeezing the nation's jugular vein as apprehensive lawmakers stand around and allow the Red Star of Russia to outshine the Golden Eagle of "The Last Democracy"; and we the people look on with our mouths open and won't even lift a torpid finger to shake it at these offenders.

The Tired Child

By Dr. J. B. Warren
I DON'T WANT TO PLAY!
If a youngster who likes play and has a good appetite begins to stay indoors more, has a poor appetite and is tired all the time, something is wrong. Sometimes it is because of infection—teeth, gums—and other times because of some emotion that is upsetting him. In the first case, removal of infection is necessary and in the second place readjustment of the child's home and school life may be necessary.

THIS AND THAT

By JOE SMITH DYER

FROM MY DIARY:

Belawar, India, September 11th, 1935. The strange superstitions in India make traveling for the white man hard. He is as safe from violence as he would be in England (Much safer than if he were at home in America) but once off the beaten track he finds it a very hard job to get the "sine qua non" of the tropics—water! India is divided into districts and each is governed by a chief commissioner and a vice-commissioner. When either of these men are to be consulted about something they are always told that "the commissioner is now snoozing" and evidently the commissioner snoozes constantly and thereby gets out of a lot of work—if they work at all. Yesterday we were in Trichinopoly and in all that town I found only three people who spoke English. It was hot there. Heat waves hovered like fog before us all day. Occasionally a pathetic looking tree cast a weak shadow, like a splash of ink, across the white, hot road. Coolies, their skin immune to heat, shuffled throughout the town and the scraping of their feet on the pavement almost drowned out the other noises. In the night a breeze lessened the heat and when I awoke I remembered that it was Sunday but Sunday in India brings small change to the teeming hordes of people.

The dhoty came for my clothes despite the fact that it was a day of rest, or supposed to be one. A dhoty is a laundryman. He is a man of great energy. High above his head, like a flail, he swings each garment down on his flat stone as if his greatest desire in life is to split it to bits. When he can not fling it down any more he jumps up and down on it. If he can reduce the garment to the component parts—in which the maker cut it, his joy is complete. Half of the population of Trichinopoly have that dreaded disease—elephantiasis. On our arrival a youth was entertaining the people on the station platform with a spicy story. His language was the lazy, half enunciated English of the tropical hybrid. His feet and arms were swollen to three times their normal size and to accommodate his abnormal arms his shirt sleeve was slit to the shoulders. Before we left the platform he had finished his story and walked away, dragging his incurable affliction with him, leaving in the sand foot-prints like a bird's nest.

The favorite occupation of the people of India is sleeping. On the train yesterday everyone was sleeping. No one spoke at all. At every step the conductor would have to awaken some one and hustle them off hurriedly before the train started off again. Some of the people sleep on trains with their feet sticking out of the windows. An Indian train bristles from engine to guard-van with bare, brown legs that give it the aspect of a battery of small guns. Tomorrow morning we take the train for Puri, on the shores of the Bay of Bengal. It will be night before we reach there and the station, they tell us, is built two miles in the country so that it will not mar the sacred city. There is only one hotel in Puri and we hope they will let us stay there. India is everything rolled up into one. To some people it is "the promised land." To me it is poverty, beauty, romance and despair. It was this part of the world that Kipling had in mind when he wrote: "Ship me somewhere East of the Suez where the best is like the worst." And that is true because the best in India is bad.

It is reported from Billy Conn's training quarters in the East that the heavyweight challenger is not nearly so fast on his feet as he was when he met Joe Louis before. This may be a fatal weakness, unless he can speed up a lot in the intervening months. Conn never was one for serious training... the grinding sort that is so tedious. Most fighters don't like it. Only Gene Tunney in the big time was an exponent of tough workouts, even when fights were far away.

The Cardinals seem to have an overwhelming edge in high quality material, with eight crack outfielders, as many good to excellent infielders, and a dozen fine pitchers available on their minor teams, as well as on the big league club itself. What the ultimate destination of this classy lineup will be is a mystery. Proper distribution of these up-and-coming stars could go far toward equalizing the major teams, some of which were little better last year than class A minors used to be.

Madison Square Garden, New York City, was 20 years old in December. This arena has been the scene of most of the important fights of the last two decades, as well as of many other events — six day bicycle races, hockey matches, basketball games, ice skating shows, rodeos, track meets, tennis matches and circuses. It was originally intended for boxing only. Tex Rickard was the promoter and organizer of the Garden corporation.

Notre Dame U. has been playing basketball since 1897... in the intervening years the Irish have won 523 games, lost 216. They have scored 23,773 points against 20,175 opponents.

Pop Warner, at 74, wants to get back into football coaching. He would like a setup where he could have complete charge of the offensive, while a young assistant would carry out plans and do the leg work. This was the way he had it at San Jose college, Calif. Pop invented the famous double wing-back formation when at Carlisle Indian college in 1901.

Le Roy Dissinger, a scout for the St. Louis Cardinals, has resigned to become chief scout and director of "farm teams" for the New Orleans Pelicans. A former FBI man has been chosen to head the Thoroughbred Racing Association of America. The new organization, with members from 33 leading tracks, is intended to curb abuses that have been creeping into the game lately. Two flagrant doping cases last season stirred the racing fraternity into counteraction.

Fairy

By Mrs. J. O. Richardson

At this writing (Monday night) everything is blanketed with snow—something like two or three inches has fallen. We hope to see some fair weather soon, as this kind of weather is hard on livestock and feed is scarce, too.

There were several of our men-folks gathered at the cemetery Thursday of last week and burned most of the dry grass and weeds, which will improve the appearance very much. They were to have some lots surveyed off, but we did not learn whether this part of the work was accomplished or not.

Elbert Akin delivered his first sermon at the Baptist church here last Sunday night. There was very good attendance and there would have been many more attended had the services been announced more fully. Elbert has been working in San Antonio since his graduation from high school here, but was inspired by the illness and death of his mother, Mrs. S. N. Akin, who passed away early in December, to take up the ministry. We wish for Elbert much success in his new profession.

Mr. and Mrs. Truitt Turner and little son returned home Saturday from Fort Worth, where they had spent several days at the bedside of his father, who is seriously ill of a heart attack in a hospital there.

Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Betts and little daughter, Judy, came in Monday of last week for a few days' visit in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Betts. They left Friday afternoon for Fort Worth, where they spent the night with his mother who is employed there and was unable to come home while they were here. On their way to Stillwater, Okla., where he will take up his duties as an instructor of electrical engineering and radar. He is on terminal leave and expects to receive his discharge in March, and was engaged in the above work when he entered the service.

Workmen on the E. M. Hoover residence finished the shingling of the roof just in time to save a lot of snow-shoveling on the inside. They have been greatly hindered by the inclement weather, but can proceed much faster now.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Richardson and daughter, Mrs. Carl Ray Sellers, and little daughter, Carolyn, visited last Sunday night in the J. T. Abel home. Their son, Louis, who is a patient at the McCloskey General Hospital in Temple, is home on a 30-day leave, and is enjoying visiting among his relatives and friends. He had only a short stay when he arrived from a Jap prison camp, having to report to Harmon Hospital in Longview, from which he was later transferred to McCloskey. He showed us a lady's purse he was making of hand-tooled leather and hand lacing, which will be very pretty and serviceable when completed.

Bert Trantham of Hico, accompanied by two of his sons, Cecil and Clarence, and the latter's wife, were touring the Fairy section Thursday afternoon of last week. The boys recently received their discharges from the service; also two other of the Trantham sons, Charlie and Elwood, have been discharged. We know Mr. and Mrs. Trantham feel they have a lot to be thankful for, having had four sons in the service and all being fortunate enough to return. The Trantham family resided near Fairy for a number of years, moving to Hico not long ago after the health of Mr. Trantham became impaired. We are always glad to have them visit with us and still have a feeling they belong to Fairy.

Capt. and Mrs. A. L. Betts and little daughter, Judy, and Mrs. Brittle Little were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Abel and son, Louis, Thursday night of last week.

Mrs. Carl Ray Sellers recently received word from her husband that he had fainted while on guard duty at Nuremberg jail and was later given a two weeks' leave at the Elbfee Hotel, a former German rest camp which has been taken over by the occupation forces. All kinds of entertainment is provided for the men, and judging from the pictures we have received of the hotel and surroundings, it must be very beautiful. Pictures of the interior of the hotel show its furnishings and drapes to be very luxurious.

Our school was dismissed early Monday afternoon, due to the inclement weather, and it seems from all accounts that they have taken today (Tuesday) off, as so far at 10 a. m. no buses have come in. We are sure this was a good decision, as it's an impossibility to keep kiddoes out of the snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis McAdams of near Cranfills Gap were visiting here Sunday with her father, Mr. Robert Parks.

Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Newman were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Walker and son Saturday night.

This Week in WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (NWNS)—It looks as though labor's demand for a 30 per cent wage increase has been definitely broken—but broken in a way which gives labor the big end of the stick so far as compromise is concerned. For it can be expected, after the President's fact-finding committee recommended wage increases for General Motors workers averaging 17½ per cent that all unions will insist that this be the minimum wage increase for their members.

Many industries, it is expected, will refuse to give in to such a wage increase at first, but since that increase has received government sanction and is favored by the President, it looks as though that percentage will be the basis of a new formula for wages.

The next problem will be prices. Many of the industries involved in labor disputes will be able to prove that they will operate at a loss if they have to increase their payrolls by 17½ per cent without being permitted to increase prices of the goods they sell. And all indications now are that the government will finally give in on that point and permit a general but limited rise in prices.

All of which makes it increasingly apparent that the fight to "hold the line against inflation" appears to be crumbling. Chester Bowles, head of the OPA, seems to be continuing his one-man fight to keep prices down, but he cannot be expected to succeed if he has opposition from his superiors. Thus it looks as though at least part of the higher wages which labor will get will be paid for by the public in the form of higher prices.

One way of getting around price increases was suggested in regard to butter. That was to keep the price of butter sold to the public down, but increase the price of the large quantity of butter bought by the government for the army, navy and for shipment to other countries. This would mean that the public would still pay the bill—but would do it through taxes, instead of direct. Most conservative congressmen consider this suggestion a very dangerous one—a means of fooling the public which could be applied to all sorts of goods and lead to eventual disaster.

The new congress is hardly getting off to the "flying start" which President Truman tried to force, but it is evident that most congressional committees are somewhat speeding up their activities in an effort to report important bills that they have been holding up for many months.

Most congressmen say that they didn't get as much mail as they expected to as a result of the President's speech blaming congress for doing nothing in the face of emergencies. And it is evident that the President's speech hurt rather than improved his relationship with congress.

Congress, apparently, intends to decide for itself what measures should come first—and it seems doubtful that it will follow the President's formula for labor legislation and other legislation he has requested. Some congressmen feel that the need for immediate labor legislation has been lessened by the President's own action on strikes during their absence. Although there are many who are strongly opposed to the new wage formula, they feel that it has gone too far for them to do anything about it. Consequently, they take the attitude that any labor legislation now considered should consist of a broad, carefully thought out labor policy, including definitions of the responsibilities of unions.

PERSONALITY CAN BE DEVELOPED

G WYNNE A. PROSSER of the American Institute of Banking told a group of teachers that more people lost their jobs because of bad manners and unattractive personality than because of anything else!

He says that most high school graduates have more than the necessary skill for the jobs they want, but that only one out of twenty has enough courtesy and consideration to make the prospective employer want to hire him.

I'll suggest a way for you to eliminate your worst personality trait. Go to several of your friends and say: "I want you to do me a tremendous favor. I want you to tell me my worst fault. Please be frank with me. I won't get mad, whatever you say. Instead, I'll thank you a thousand times."

Then set out to eliminate it. Think of it a dozen, a hundred, times a day.

But get rid of it. If it is a disposition to argue too much, stop it. If you hurt people's feelings, go after that woeful shortcoming with hammer and tongs.

Don't put this off. Call up your friends today and have a talk with them. Start now.

You want to be happy. Here is a thought that may help you. Seneca, an old Roman philosopher, said about 40 years after the birth of Christ: "If what you have seems insufficient to you, then though you possess the world, you will yet be miserable."

So if you can't possibly have what you want, then want what you have. If you see no prospect of achieving your desires, appreciate the advantages you already have. Set about to make the most of them. It may work out for the best for you in the end.

Six-Inch Sermon

BY REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

A People at Worship.
Lesson for January 27: Exodus 28: 1; 35:4-9; 20:29.

Memory Selection: Matthew 4:10.

We saw in the last lesson how a people delivered from the land of bondage were given laws—the Ten Commandments. Today we study the provision that was made for their worship. That the people had but dimly discerned the nature of God is true, and it was the task of Moses to bring them to know God more truly through a fitting form of worship.

Aaron, brother of Moses, was designated as the high priest, and his sons as the lesser priests, who became the original priesthood that was made hereditary in the tribe of Levi.

Next provision was made for the Lord's house—the first one, the itinerant house, the tabernacle of the wilderness. A remarkable building it was. The offering that was made at the call of Moses was one of the most generous on record. It was a free-will offering unto God for the building, provision for and decoration of his house. The people willingly brought their jewels and precious things, metals, fine fabrics, also spices, oil, and incense.

The glory of the offering was found in the willingness of it—no one was constrained to give, the only reason for the great offering was the desire of the people to give their best unto God for the building of his house in the wilderness.

"The gift without the giver is bare." Evidently the people in the wilderness gave themselves with their gifts. And when the tabernacle was completed, the light of the shekinah shone upon the mercy-seat.

Thousands of American soldiers serving abroad are continuing their education while still in uniform at such world famous universities as Sorbonne University in France.

U. S. Regular Army men may retire at half pay for the rest of their lives after 20 years of service, or three-quarters pay after 30 years.

Urban people must form a good pep-squad and get behind the team if farmers are to win the fight against soil erosion.

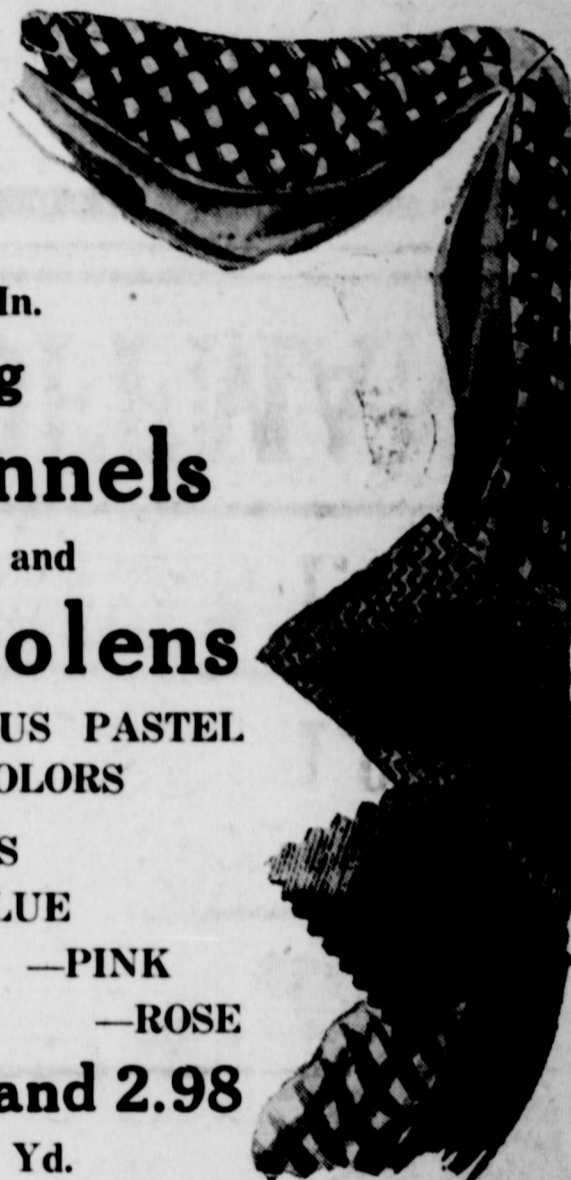

OUTSTANDING YOUNG MAN . . . Henry Ford II, 25, president of the Ford Motor company, selected as the "nation's outstanding young man" of 1945, in the annual competition held by the U. S. Junior chamber of commerce. The award was based on his record in industry and community affairs.

These stripes mean a lot

You bet they do! And you can keep them and have all the other new enlistment privileges if you reenlist in the new peacetime Regular Army within 20 days after your discharge and before February 1, 1946. Don't miss this opportunity. Reenlist now at your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station.
