DIAZ GOVERNMENT TO END-- REBELS TO LAY DOWN ARMS

Program for Settlement of Trouble in Mexico is Decided Upon and Peace is Assured

Unless Some Unforeseen Trouble Should Arise When the Leaders Meet to Sign Up the Articles of Agreement

From El Paso Herald

El Paso, Texas, May 18.—Porfirio Diaz is to resign as president and the Mexican federal government has agreed that the insurrectos shall appoint 14 governors and three cabinet members; that the insurrectos shall return to their homes with their arms; that they shall be granted amnesty for having been in arms against the government; all expenses of the revolution will be paid by the federal government; pensions are to be paid for deaths and wounds of insurrectos, the same as in the federal army; all federal army officers who have served with the insurrectos are to be restored to their positions; all big landed estates are to be bought up and sold to the people in small lots, and taxes are to be equalized.

These things have been agreed to between the federals and insurrectos. The conditions had all been accepted except the matter of the resignation of Diaz. This came yesterday and electrified the insurrectos throughout Mexico. Madero at once agreed to an armistice and Judge Francisco Carbajal telegraphed to Mexico City for approval.

CERTAIN OF ARMISTICE

"That is everything," said Madero, when asked of his opinion regarding the Diaz resignation. It appeared to wipe away all doubt from the mind of the provisional president. "Now we will have an armistice," he said, as if the principal objection had been removed.

"In my conception it is the end, and sure to make peace," said Abram Gonzalez, provisional governor of Chihuahua, and chief of the local military zone.

Nearly every official and member of Madero's cabinet expressed almost certainty that the Diaz manifesto will bring immediate peace. Only did Juan Sanchez Azcona, general secretary to Madero, express a doubt. "We will see if he does it," he exclaimed. "The ministers are no guarantees," he said. "The governors are little more." He referred to the agreement of the federals to permit the insurrectos to name 14 governors and three cabinet members.

DEMANDED RESIGNATION

While it is not made public, it is certain that the present peace lineup contained a demand for the Diaz resignation. The announcement of that clause at the time of the former negotiations evidently caused their prompt breaking off on the complaint of federal officials that uncalled for publicity had been permitted by the peace officials.

But it is reasonably sure that the Diaz resignation demand was included in the present demands of the rebels. It doubtless was sent to Mexico, and it was an answer to which Judge Carbajal awaited yesterday, when suddenly the press announced that Diaz would resign. Removing the most important disagreement in the document, Madero was willing to an armistice, for which the federals were even more eager. Now that Diaz announces his intention to resign, and specifies the time of his stepping out of harness. Madero is willing to consider the detail of the demands by process of formal peace negotiations during the period of armistice.

GOVERNORS NAMED

Madero last night announced the governors and cabinet ministers as agreed upon by the provisional government. While these are merely given out as agreed upon by the insurrectos, it is probable that they have also been credited by the federals through the peace negotiations. It is doubtful if the exact nature of the negotiations ever will be made public.

Of the 14 governors to be selected, Madero announces the following: Chihuahua, Abram Gonzalez; Sonora, Jose Maria Mariorena; Coahuila, Venustiano Carrenza; Zacateans, Guadalupe Gongalez; Sinaloa, Manuel Bonilla; Yucatan, Pino Suarez; Oaxaca, Benito Juarez. The ministers are to be: Justice, Vasquez Tagle; war, Gen. G. Salos; gobernacion, Dr. Vasquez Gomez.

WHOLE CABINET TO RESIGN

Sr. Sanchez Azcona, general secretary to the provisional president, announces that the entire Diaz cabinet will resign, but says he can offer no more authority or particulars. "Through direct understanding with Diaz, peace is assured," he declares. "There is no question about it now."

A meeting of Madero's provisional cabinet will be held this afternoon in the Juarez custom house. The proposition that Madero go to Mexico for direct conference with Diaz will be taken up and decided upon.

Judge Carbajal federal peace envoy, says that the proposition of Madero's trip was made by him, and that it was merely a suggestion prompted only by his personal opinion. If Madero goes to the national capital he will be accompanied by members of his cabinet.

WASHINGTON GETS THE MEXICAN PEACE TERMS

Washington, D. C., May 18.—The Mexican embassy last night gave out a message received from Mexico City announcing the government changes incident to the cessation of hostilities. The message follows:

"The president and vice president will present their resignations to the chamber of deputies before the end of May, and on the acceptance of the resignations, senior Francisco de la Barra, secretary of foreign affairs, will assume the presidency ad interim.

The president ad interim will appoint a subsecretary to take charge of the department of foreign affairs, and a secretary of war.

TO RESTRICT NEWSPAPERS

Measure in Ohio Senate Providing Penalty for Failing to Publish Candidates' Answers

Columbus, Ohio, May 17.—The Committee on Privileges of the Ohio Senate reported out today the Kimble bill, drafted by the Representative from Adams County, which places several restrictions on the newspapers of the State.

One paragraph in the measure says that if any newspaper shall refuse to publish a candidate's answer to any attacks or charges in that newspaper, the same publication shall be guilty of "corrupt practices, and shall stand a similar sentence and fine. This bill has arisen since the first blow-off in the legislature regarding the bribe charges was made and is said to have been framed to keep the newspaper in check.

"The guilty fleeth when no man pursueth." The man that is afraid of newspaper criticism would do well to steer clear of politics.

TWELVE-DAY BATTLE IN SINALOA.

Culiacan, State of Sinaloa, via Nogales, Mex., May 18.—News has just reached here of a 12-day battle which has left the town of Corsala, in the mountains southeast, desolate. A force of rebels, said to have numbered 1400, assaulted the town, which has a population of 7000 and was garrisoned by 400 federals. The fighting continued with little intermission during the entire period.

The defenders were given no opportunity to bury their dead, and bodies fell from roofs and barricades and lay in the tropical sun until finally the federal commander marched out under a white flag. He offered to surrender the town if the rebels would agree to let them move out with the honors of war and guarantee not to destroy the government records. These conditions were accepted by the rebels. The reports indicate that this battle was one of the most sanguinary of the war.

VERA CRUZ IN HANDS OF REBELS
Mexico City, Mexico, May 18.—Ignorant of the fact that a general armistice had been declared the rebels who have been surrounding Veracruz for several days, yesterday afternoon demanded the surrender of the place, and were joined in their demand by the marines on the Mexican gunboat Bravo.

Gen. Joaquin Maas, commander of the port, realizing the weakness of his force, offered to deliver the city to the rebels without resistance, on condition that the federal prisoners in San Juan De Ulua and the city prisoners should not be released.

In San Juan de Ulua prison are Richardson, Mason and Harle, the New York life insurance prisoners, arrested in El Paso in 1903 and convicted in Chihuahua of murdering Mitchell and Denvers for their life insurance.

LORIMER ELECTION RESULT OF BRIBERY

Such is the Finding of Investigating Committee of Illinois Senate

From Dallas News.

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—In a report submitted to the Senate this afternoon, the five investigators assert that the proof before them tends to show that a large corruption fund was raised and used in bribing members of the last General Assembly in order to induce them to vote for Lorimer for Senator.

The committee reports that it sought to follow up trails leading toward the sources of the bribery fund, but that it was blocked by the habeas corpus decision of Judge Adeler Petit in behalf of Edward Tilden, George M. Benedict and Wm. C. Cummings. It reviews the evidence dispassionately and gives its conclusions in the following terse sentence:

"Your committee has reached the conclusion that the election of William Lorimer would not have occurred had it not been for bribery and corruption."

The finding is the direct opposite of that reported by the subcommittee of the United States Senate after its hearings in Chicago last summer. Brief as the conclusions are, the expectations here is that they will afford ample warrant for a reopening of the Lorimer case by the United States Senate.

The report was accepted by the Senate and made a special order for consideration tomorrow morning, by which time it is expected to be out of the hands of the State Printer.

In drafting the report, the committee carefully steered clear of sensationalism. The document is remarkable for its temperate tone. It makes no recommendations, the committee contenting itself with reviewing the evidence, dovetailing it together and voicing the simple conclusion that the Lorimer seat was bought.

Scattered through it are significant paragraphs relating to the testimony about the $100,000 corruption fund from several witnesses, among them Clarence S. Funk, manager of International Harvester Company; C. F. Wiehe and W. M. Cook of Duluth.

The committee reports that it has learned that other pertinent proof concerning the corruption exists in states outside of Illinois. Although the report says nothing further on this score, this information is to be given to the investigators from Washington if the Senate reopens the case.

When the report is considered tomorrow resolutions may be introduced that the finding be transmitted to the United States Senate.

As a preliminary to the presentation of the document the Senate this morning adopted the Hurburgh resolutions that no appeal be taken from the Petit decision and characterizing the decision as "unwarranted and unlawful interference with a legislative branch of the Government:

Justice is Equal to the Occasion

Three leading attractions were called off last night: The old stable and well attended Air show, also Mollie A. Bailey with her trained animals. Then last night not least the Commencement exercises which were held at the Baptist church.

Miss Florence McCarver presided at the piano. Rev. A. E. Miller and Miss Vernon McCarver sang a duet to the delight of all which was evidenced by the prolonged encore that called them back for a second song, which was followed by a piano solo ably rendered by Miss Kathleen Bennett. Prof. J. S. Long then introduced Dr. E. A. Burton who delivered the literary address.

District Court

May 17—State of Texas vs. George G. Liles, larceny. Mistrial. Hung jury. 7 for conviction and 5 for acquittal.

May 18—State of Texas vs. I. A. Boren, larceny, called 9:30 a. m.; motion by E. C. Canon for the defendant for a continuance; motion overruled and the Court proceeded to try the case. Jury called and there not being a full list present sheriff was ordered to summons five more jurors; jury secured and sworn at 2 p. m.; State began to take testimony and when the third witness testified the Court stopped further proceeding and instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, the Court writing out the verdict and appointed the foreman, instructed him to sign it and the defendant released.

The Times thinks that this act of the Court was commendable and if more such procedures were had the country would be better off.

WINS STATE MEDAL

Twelve-Year-Old Girl of Blackwell, Okla., Gets First Honors in State Spelling Match

Chickasha, Okla., May 17.—Miss Laura Robinson, of Blackwell, Okla., is the winner of the medal given by the Department of Education for the best speller in Oklahoma. Miss Robinson is only 12 years old. She stood up for eleven hours in the spelling contest. The contest opened at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued until 11 o'clock last night and opened at 8 o'clock this morning and continued until 7 o'clock this afternoon, when Miss Robinson was standing alone. Nearly every county in the state had a representative in the contest.

The GIRL OF MY DREAMS

A NOVELIZATION OF THE PLAY BY WILBUR D. NESBIT AND OTTO HAUERBACH NOVELIZED BY WILBUR D. NESBIT

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I. Harry Swifton is spinning along in his auto, his thoughts dwelling in happy anticipation of a coming visit from his fiancée, Lucy Medders, a Quakeress, who nursed him when he was injured in an auto accident out in the country. His mind taken off of his surroundings by these pleasant thoughts he crashes into another auto containing a German count and a beautiful woman. The woman's hat is ruined. Absent-mindedly Harry thrusts the remnants of the hat in his pocket and makes his escape.

CHAPTER II. Carolyn, Harry's sister, arrives to play hostess. Socrates Primer, a distant relative of Lucy's, arrives with a hat intended as a gift to Lucy. Harry is trailed to his home by the German count and the lady of the damaged hat.

CHAPTER III. Who, it develops, is Mrs. General Blazes. She is in distraction lest her husband should hear of her escapade. She declares that her milliner told her a duplicate of the ruined hat had been delivered to Harry's house. Responding to her demands for the hat Harry insists that he knows nothing about it. Lucy Medders and her father arrive and the Count is secreted in the library and Mrs. Blazes in Harry's bedroom.

CHAPTER IV. Lucy professes curiosity regarding the room in which Mrs. Blazes is hidden and Harry is forced to do some fancy lying.

CHAPTER V. The milliner arrives to trace the duplicate hat. She proves to be Daphne Daffington whom Harry had shown considerable attention to in the past and the situation becomes more complicated. She agrees to make another hat providing Harry will take her to dinner. Lucy and Carolyn call Harry and Daphne is hustled into the room occupied by the Count. The Count and Daphne it seems had carried on a flirtation before and greeted each other warmly.

CHAPTER VI. The Count asks Daphne why she had left him standing on a corner waiting for her one evening, she explains that she met a dear friend and had accompanied him to dinner, the Count had given her a ring on a former occasion and demanded its return, Daphne explains that she had given it to General Blazes, at that the Count was in a state of mind bordering on insanity as he had given Mrs. Blazes a duplicate of the ring that her husband had. Daphne and the Count exchange bitter words and Daphne refuses to stay in the same room with him, so she enters the room that Mrs. Blazes is concealed in.

CHAPTER VII. Harry and Lucy enter the room, accompanied by Mr. Medders, who was busy looking around the house and before Harry could stop him had opened the door of the library, where the Count was concealed. Explanations followed and the Count played the role of Harry's German tutor. Harry is forced to tell what he has learned and the Count assists him, the deception proves a success.

CHAPTER VIII. Things seemed to be running smoothly again when the group is startled by the sudden appearance of the General, who is in a highly nervous state of mind, he accused Harry of concealing his wife, and he demanded to see her. Harry's protestations were futile and Mr. Medders is called upon to calm the General. The General apologizes and is about to leave the room when a loud sneeze came from Harry's room, which the General recognizes as his wife's, as he is about to enter the room Daphne walks out and the General is dumfounded. Lucy gives way to tears and seeks comfort on her father's shoulder.

CHAPTER IX. Carolyn tells Harry that his behavior during her absence has been scandalous and that she is ashamed of him. When she regains her composure the Count says he can explain the whole affair. He tells them that Harry is innocent of any wrongdoings and takes all of the blame upon himself. They are inclined to doubt his story but reserve their verdict until later when Harry tells them he will vindicate himself.

"It ill befits me to offer advice in the house where I am a guest," said Mr. Medders, "but I might suggest to thee that we ask Harry to tell us his side of this story later. It is unfortunate truly, but I do not doubt that he will explain all to us. Daughter, we will remain here, as we planned, and now let us try to forget this unpleasantness, and make ourselves welcome."

"Thank you, Mr. Medders," Harry said. "I can see that you and Lucy still have a faint suspicion of me—but I can clear that up readily enough."

"I've got more than a faint one," Carolyn told him.

"Oh, well, I don't have to explain everything to you, sis," Harry said, easily. "But arguments are bad on an empty stomach. I happen to know that there's to be a pretty good dinner tonight, so we'll all get ready and eat it."

"You will excuse me," the Count said. "I must—"

"No, sir!" Harry said, heartily. "I want you to show the folks that you're not half as black as you have painted yourself."

CHAPTER X.

It was a quiet dinner they ate that evening. After much persuasion, the Count had remained. But even his stumbling attempts at witty sallies brought few smiles.

Harry had succeeded in quieting Carolyn's alarms, and she in turn had given her own version of matters to Lucy. And a long talk Harry had with Mr. Medders had helped. Harry would not tell Medders the inside facts, but he told him that later he would make everything plain. At this time, he said, to disclose everything would be to tarnish a woman's name—and Medders partly understood. The good old man was fond of Harry. And he had lived long enough to know that appearances were often deceitful. He was willing to give Harry the benefit of the doubt.

"My Boy," the General said, "I Couldn't Help Coming Back to Assure You That I Am Deeply Sorry."

But it was a quiet dinner. After they had left the table Harry succeeded in getting Lucy to come and talk with him in the reception room, and there he begged her to be patient until he felt that the time had arrived for him to make a clean breast of everything to her. At last he coaxed back the smiles to her face, but only after giving his word of honor that so far as he was concerned, the presence of Daphne in his house was not a reflection upon him.

Meanwhile the Count, endeavoring to keep his promise to get Harry out of the scrape, slipped out into the lawn, and by throwing pebbles against the window of the room where Mrs. Blazes was attracted her attention.

She opened the windows, and in an almost hysterical voice, begged him to get her out.

"I will, if you only be quiet," the Count said. "Your husband chust vent in. I saw him ven I come out."

"But what can I do?" she asked. "Trust me!"

"I did," she sighed, "and lost my hat."

"Yes, and I let you have my ring, too."

"Bother your old ring!" she answered. "I'll give it back to you. I hate the sight of it!"

"Give it to me, den," the Count whispered, eagerly.

"I will," she hesitated, "when I get out of here."

The Count swiftly disappeared from view as the front door opened and Harry and the General came down the steps. The General's arm was across Harry's shoulders.

"My boy," he was saying, "I couldn't help coming back to assure you that I am deeply sorry."

"Say no more about it, General," Harry begged.

"But, Harry," the General asked, confidentially, "how did that little flirt happen to be in that room?"

"Well," Harry explained, "that was a little affair concerning her and Count von Fitz. I don't feel at liberty to go into details—but it's just a flirtation, you might say."

"She's a charmer, all right enough. Harry, my boy!" the General said. "Ah! If my wife only knew—if she ever found out how I have flirted with some of these dashing damsels!"

Mrs. Blazes, from the safety of her window, listened intently.

"What?" Harry asked. "You flirt, General?"

"I'm deep, Harry, devilish deep! I say nothing, but I saw a lot of wood. Don't worry about any little flirtations of your own. Come to me for advice if you need it. Everybody must sow his wild oats, you know."

"Yes," Harry agreed, "but the wild oats you sow the night before don't make good breakfast food the morning after."

"Well, anyway," the General said, "we understand each other. No more hard feelings?"

"Not a bit. Not a bit," Harry reassured him. The General waved his hand cordially as he strode down to the street. Mrs. Blazes watched him disappear in the dusk, nodding her head significantly.

"Wild oats, eh?" she said. "Flirtations, eh? Wait until I get home!"

She leaned out of the window and called to Harry. He glanced up at her and smiled wearily.

"How in the world am I to get out of here?" she asked, petulantly.

"I think I'll have that run as a puzzle in the Sunday papers," Harry answered, grimly. "I'll say this, though: When you do get out you needn't be too punctilious about making your party call."

"This is no time for joking—"

"It's the only time I've got. You've put me in a pretty mess."

"I'm just as sorry as I can be, Mr. Swifton. But look at the muddle I am in."

"Oh, I've seen worse muddles than this," Harry answers, easily.

"And I'm simply starving to death," she said, hungrily.

"I'm going to slip some sandwiches in there for you, if the blockade doesn't lift pretty soon. Meantime, keep away from that window as much as possible. Some one may happen to see you—and I'm out of explanations."

Mrs. Blazes drew back a bit from the window, and asked:

"Have you heard anything of my hat?"

Harry sank down on a lawn bench with a weary air.

"Where have I heard of hats?" he said. "I've ordered a hat for you. Daphne, the daffy daffodil, is making one for you. She'll have it here before long."

"That's dear of you!" Mrs. Blazes smiled, appreciatively.

"How do you know what it costs?" he asked, grimly.

Mrs. Blazes clasped her hands melodramatically and went on:

"And I'm so worried about my husband!"

"COCKS"

for the game fight haven't any place in our curriculum. The business of

is more matter of fact. In our work and among our supplies we use the best the market affords in the way of

COCKS, FAUCETS, PUMPS

and other auxiliary sundries. We do good work at reasonable prices
