BIG EVANGELISTIC MEETING FOR PECOS

The above picture is the likeness of Rev. Trigg A. M. Thomas, D. D., who will preach at the great evangelistic meeting to be held in Pecos at the Presbyterian church from September 12 through September 26.

The evangelist, Rev. Thomas, is a native of Tennessee, but is now living in Kansas City, Mo., where for ten years he was pastor of one of the large churches of that city. For four years following this successful pastorate, he was superintendent of home missions and evangelist for the Presbyterian church in Missouri. During the war he was one of the soldier evangelists, preaching to thousands of soldiers. He became one of the most popular camp preachers with the boys in the service. Since the war he has been holding great evangelistic meetings over the country.

Dr. Thomas is a man of strong personality and great magnetism. He is admired by all, and especially by young men who want to make their lives count for something in this world. He is a Bible scholar, man of prayer, walks with God, and presents the truth with eloquence and power, as you will see from the testimony of the following pens:

The Tribune-Enterprise of Chatham, Va., says: "One of the biggest things which has ever been in Chatham is the revival meeting now on in the brick warehouse under the leadership of Evangelist Trigg A. M. Thomas of Kansas City. The large crowds and growing interest speak well for the ultimate success of the meeting. One of the delightful things in connection with this effort is the splendid way in which the people of all denominations are attending this community meeting."

The singer, Edward Clare Harding, is a native of Missouri, a graduate of Moody Bible School, a member of the Apollo Music Club of Chicago, and of the North Texas Festival Chorus of Evanston, Ill., a member of the Inter-Denominational Association of Evangelists and a director of the church musical association.

Several special nights have been provided for, the first being Friday night of this week, which is devoted especially to the young people. The pupils of the schools all over the county are asked to attend, and seats will be reserved for them. The girls of the Chatham high school will render a musical number. Besides this a Booster Chorus of boys and girls under the direction of Mr. Harding, will give a short program in the early part of the service. This program is largely original with Mr. Harding and is unique and interesting being very different from ordinary children's work. Both of these men are experts in their line, have had special training and wide experience and are well worth hearing."

Again the Tribune-Enterprise of Chatham, Va., says: "All possible provision is being made to seat the thousands of people who are attending the meeting. No such crowds have ever gathered in Chatham before. The powerful preaching of evangelist Thomas and the good singing of Mr. Harding and his excellent choir, together with the prayer and personal work of the ministers and people of God throughout the county have brought about a great sight, for God is moving among the people in a mighty way. The next few days promises unusual spiritual results in the salvation and consecration of multitudes, for the people have a mind to pray and work as is seldom seen. The evangelist strikes straight from the shoulder and denounces sin in all its forms regardless of who may be hit. And yet he does so in such a masterful way and with such power and love that the people are compelled to hear and heed. People in general are saying, 'Oh, it is wonderful, and never saw it like this before. Rev. R. McLees and his people are to be commended for promoting this revival and bringing these men of God to Chatham. See great meetings for Sunday, at 11 a.

Newspapers Face Suspension Because of Orders on Cars

The Associated Press last week sent out the following from New York which is self-explanatory and shows something of the crises now being experienced by the newspapers over the country:

"Many newspapers will have to suspend unless the Interstate Commerce Commission modifies its priority orders on wood and coal cars, Philip T. Dodge, president of the International Paper Company, said yesterday. He said 400 newspapers are dependent upon his mills, which cannot secure cars.

"He said coal cars are needed to bring fuel to the mill for operation, and he says the priority order does not take the needs of the mills into consideration.

FLASH ELECTION DOPE

The City Pharmacy will flash the election returns at intervals of ten minutes on a bulletin board in front of that store Saturday night and Sunday. At night the board will be illuminated by tallow candles since Pecos is now without a semblance of an electric light system and in that respect has retrograded into the dark ages.

m. the evangelist will give his great sermon on 'God's Unspeakable Gift.' At 3:30 p. m. there will be a great massmeeting for men and boys only, when the evangelist will speak on 'The Meanest Man in Pennsylvania County.' Every man and boy in the county is most cordially invited. The final service of the meeting is Sunday night when Dr. Thomas will deliver his winning sermon on 'The Value of the Soul.' Some subjects of sermons as announced: 'Justification by Faith; The Pre-eminence of Christ; Is There a Hell?; The Fellow Who Got Married; The Meanest Man in Christianburg; Straight Talks on Forbidden Subjects; The Greatest Thing in the World; The Only Foundation; The Fall and Rise of a Great Man; Making a Modern Man; The Second Coming of Christ; Christ Our Foundation; Among the Soldiers; The A, B, C, of Religion; Five Full Grown Men Given Away; Heaven, What and Where? Christian Service; Consecration.'

The following comes from the North Avenue Presbyterian Church News of Atlanta, Ga.: "The selection of the leader for our evangelistic services was made after much prayer. None who have been in attendance upon these services, can doubt that in the choice of Dr. Thomas as our evangelist, we were divinely directed. The past two weeks have been full of God's favor and fruitfulness."

An officer in the Spring Garden Church of Virginia writes thus: "Dr. Trigg A. M. Thomas preached for us recently. The services were remarkably spiritual and blessed of God. The whole community was deeply stirred and impressed with the nearness of God and the need of Christ. Men and women hung on the words of the preacher, and took home the truth as seldom they do. Dr. Thomas' sermons are lucid and logical, scriptural and impressive. They are fresh in thought and grip the conscience. Dr. Thomas knows the word of God and uses it with a power that is rare and an effect that is tremendous. He is perfectly fearless in his denunciation of sin and its terrible consequences. Dr. Thomas is deeply earnest and compels men to listen. Each hearer is impressed with the fact that he is a man of compelling force and a capable Bible student. His sermons are indeed educative as well as persuasive. I am sure there is a great future for Dr. Thomas."

The Tribune-Enterprise of Chatham, Va., says: "The last three services of the meeting, Saturday morning and night and Sunday morning presented scenes beyond description. The last service Sunday morning lasted four hours from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m., every moment of which was tense with spiritual power. At the Saturday morning services forty-one stood around the altar in a wide circle, and were received into the church, the officers of the church passing around extending the right hand of fellowship, followed by the congregation while all sang 'Oh Happy Day.' Strong, mature men, business and professional men with eyes brimming in tears and voices choked with emotion stood before the great congregation, and testified for Christ and pleaded with their men friends to yield their hearts to God. One dear woman whose husband and three sons were among the saved, shouted. Dr. Thomas goes to Cartersville, Ga. to hold the annual meeting in the great Sam Jones Tabernacle, where none but the leaders among the preachers go to preach."

The Evangelist Thomas is a masterful leader, a man with a victorious faith and has a burning message from God. Let everybody plan, prepare and pray for a great revival in winning and building souls for the glory of God in Reeves County.

STANDARD RIG FOR ESTES WELL AT MONAHANS

The big drilling rig shown in the picture was erected six miles southwest of Monahans on the ranch of W. A. Estes, by the Toyah Valley Oil Company, is a standard Ranger pattern 82 feet high, with six-inch irons, and new heavy machinery of the latest types. Mr. Stratton, who is in charge at that point, informs the Enterprise that no better outfit was ever installed in any oil field, that it is rapidly being put in shape to drill and that ample notice will be given the public to attend the big barbecue and picnic that will be given when the well spuds in.

OIL ITEMS OF INTEREST

Arrohead No. 1 on section 11, block 54, township 4, which was spudded in Aug. 3, has been making good progress, in spite of the unfavorable conditions of weather, and is now drilling beyond three hundred feet.

This well is being drilled by H. B. Davis of Magnolia, Miss., and R. A. Kelly of Akron, Ohio, contractors, on the property of the Arrohead Oil Company, 50-50 basis. Mr. Davis, who is making headquarters in Pecos and looking after the field work, reports that Mr. Kelly, who is also interested in drilling operations near Stamford, Texas, will arrive in Pecos in the near future to look over the field.

The standard derrick is being erected on the Jack Wells drill site by Pierce Bros. rig contractors, as rapidly as weather conditions will permit; the Arrohead Oil Company have unloaded one of their Armstrong No. 25 special tractors to put on this well, using the standard derrick for handling casing, but have not, as yet, been able to move out to the lease on account of road conditions. A start was to have been made Thursday morning but Wednesday's rain will cause a few more days' delay.

There seems to be no question, in the minds of those who have carefully examined the Wells location, but that it is on the same structure as the Bell-Reeves, in which the oil sand was found at approximately 1500 feet.

E. L. Anderson, general manager of the Arrohead Oil Company, has been confined to his bed for several days with a very severe case of tonsillitis, but is improving and able to be out again.

Work has been resumed on the Bell discovery well, following a delay caused by the rain and wind storm. There is still some of the fill-in to be drilled out before the oil sands are reached. It is necessary to follow the drill with casing owing to cave-ins. Every indication at the well is to the effect that the cement filler has shut off the water from above the casing but there still remains some water at the bottom of the well that leaked in before the filler was set.

The Laura well has been successful in shutting off the water flow and the drill is now standing idle while waiting for a shoe.

Will P. Brady of the Sunshine Oil Corporation dictatorial has returned to Pecos, after spending the summer in Los Angeles. The headquarters of this company have been moved back to Pecos after a location of several months on the Pacific coast.

The Dominion river well passed through a salt and rock formation at about 1200 feet this week. The drill is boring away with water flowing in the hole. This is the well which formerly cased off so much water flow.

The Soda Lake well is delayed awaiting casing which was caught on the other side of the flooded district.

The heavy rains of recently have delayed the operations in the field until activity is almost at a standstill. Transportation facilities both on the road and the railroad have been held up.

The casing and necessary tools arrived this week for the Trans-Pecos well and drilling will be resumed at 300 feet. The drillers have found many cave-ins since the well was shut down.

MEXICAN SHOT FOUR TIMES—IS WANTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER

A two-mile running gun-fight between a Mexican man-slayer and the sheriff's posse resulted in the Mexican being shot four times with a shotgun yesterday near the Ben Qualls ranch. The Mexican will possibly lose one eye and a hand as a result of wounds, if he recovers at all.

A Mexican appeared at the sheriff's office yesterday with a note that he would identify a man coming in on the west-bound train, wanted near the border for manslaughter. When the train pulled in the killer recognized the other Mexican and slipped through the train and hit for the open country. The posse followed in pursuit and by scattering out soon found the bandit behind the sage brush. He opened fire at Deputy Middleton, who dropped to the ground and returned the fire. There then ensued a two-mile running fight in which both men emptied their pistols twice without getting any results. Sheriff Kiser then caught up with the hunt and opened up with a Winchester rifle but failed to get a result.

Finally Ben Qualls, on whose ranch the battle was held, came out with a shotgun, thinking to join in a snake hunt. The gun was immediately appropriated by Deputy Middleton and the first shot was effective, but not deadly. The posse were in shouting distance of the slayer and they hailed him to throw down his gun or they would have to kill him. The Mexican obeyed the command, but when the posse started forward he reached for it again. The deputy turned loose with another round and repeated the command and the Mexican again laid down his gun but when the posse started forward he picked it up again and was shot at a third time. Kiser then laid the Winchester rifle on the fighter while Middleton started forward, but the Mexican was game to the last and he again raised his gun and Middleton fired his fourth shot, which relieved the Mexican both of his gun and his balance.

He was brought in to the local physician where it was found that he had been hit at least four times. His wounds were dressed and if he recovers, as it is believed he will, he will be sent to the border authorities to answer a charge of manslaughter.

VALLEY FARMERS TO ORGANIZE UNION

The organization of a co-operative marketing association among the farmers of the Toyah Valley, southwest of Pecos, was practically completed Thursday afternoon at a meeting at Saragosa, and under this plan the farmers expect to group their products and market them in larger lots, to what they believe will prove to their benefit and to the benefit of the buyer, eliminating to a great extent the middleman.

The organization is to be known as the Toyah Valley Marketing and Warehouse Company, and starts off with a capital stock of $2,000, all pledged. Its first purpose is to secure a warehouse where the cotton and alfalfa can be brought, divided into the various classes, and then sold so as to bring the best possible price.

The location of this warehouse has not been determined, but it will probably be located in Pecos. The original plan was to locate it in Saragosa, but considerable interest has been aroused in Pecos over the plan and it may be brought here. Pecos was proposed as the location by F. I. Townsend, warehouse examiner of the state board of marketing and warehouses, who was here to advise in the organization of the company.

"Pecos is the logical place for the warehouse," Mr. Townsend told the thirty farmers who gathered at Saragosa yesterday. "All cotton and hay raised in the valley must eventually clear through Pecos. By locating the warehouses in Pecos, the company can draw on the products of the entire valley, and will get considerable from Carlsbad, as the New Mexican state laws do not provide protection to the cotton men, that can be secured by sending their products to a state bonded warehouse, such as the proposed building will be."

"All cotton placed in the warehouse would be classed by a bonded cotton classifier, thus insuring the farmer getting the full value of his crop, while the local merchant benefits to the extent that the farmer is guaranteed the full value of what he raises, and will be able to purchase more home comforts."

It is possible that the old alfalfa mill in Pecos will be leased for this year, and the erection of a warehouse postponed until next year.

The directors of the organization are Will Gould, Charles Amrine, J. B. Delaney, John Wendt and J. W. B. Williams.

CITY COUNCIL MEETS TO DISCUSS LIGHTS

Fire protection for the city of Pecos was assured during the period when the engine at the light plant is out of order, as a result of the action taken by the city council at a meeting held Wednesday night. A committee consisting of Aldermen Sims and Williams was named to chase down a pump to put the water in the tower for fire purposes. The council also arranged with Van Havis to take charge of this engine and to act as general utility man, taking care of all the city machinery and looking after sewer conditions.

It is probable that a ten-horsepower engine will be purchased, as machine men present at the meeting declared that size to be sufficient to pump the water.

Bob Lewis, who has been acting as night policeman, was relieved of his duties, effective September 1, in order to permit the addition of an engineer to the city payroll.

W. D. Cowan, a heavy stockholder in the Pecos Light and Ice Company, was present and stated that he was unable to make a definite announcement as to the intentions of the company. He did say, however, that the big Diesel engine at the plant was in such condition that it would be dangerous to run it and that the cost of a new engine would be prohibitive.

Through the efforts of local business men and the chamber of commerce, a number of possible buyers of the plant have been asked to look the proposition over. Several of these men have already expressed an interest in the local plant and prepared tentative offers.

According to the engineers at the light plant Pecos is destined to be without lights for some time and until a deal can be consummated for the purchase of the plant.

LOOKS LIKE BEST YEAR IN COUNTRY'S HISTORY

The prospect for the largest cotton crop in the history of this section of the country was never better. Besides having in a greater acreage the conditions have never been better for a bumper crop. Just at the time when the river became low and the crops were threatened with lack of water for irrigation the rains began to fall and have been sufficient to carry the crops through to the time of maturity. It would probably be better for the cotton farmer if no more rain fell on his crop until it is gathered, but this is hardly probable.

A conservative estimate has been compiled of the cotton and alfalfa crops of this immediate section by C. S. Elliott of the Southern Pacific traffic department, and the secretary of Pecos' chamber of commerce which runs about as follows:

Approximately 21,500 acres of land was found to be in cotton in this vicinity, divided as follows: Pecos district, 3,000; Toyah valley around Balmorhea and Saragosa, 7000; Barstow, 8000; Grandfalls, 3500. Figuring on an average yield of between a bale and three-quarters of a bale per acre, which estimate will probably be exceeded, it is easily seen that with the promised prices, the return will probably exceed the three million dollar mark.

This will probably be the largest crop of cotton in the history of the territory, as more acreage is in this crop than ever before, and the yield promises to be as bountiful per acre as it was in 1919.

While the exact figures were not obtainable, it is estimated that about three-quarters of a million dollars worth of alfalfa hay will have been shipped from this territory before the end of the season. About 12,000 acres are estimated to be in alfalfa and this land is estimated to yield on an average of over three tons to the acre for the season. Much of the alfalfa will greatly exceed these figures, and while some of the seed crops and cut hay was damaged by the storm, the plentiful supply of water that will result, will, according to the farmers, make the remaining cuttings heavy enough to take care of the loss.

A review of these figures will show that aside from the oil, cattle and sulphur industries, which have heretofore been the making of this section of country and upon which our people depended almost solely for the prosperity and welfare of the town and the people of the country as well, Pecos may confidently look forward to one of the most prosperous years in its history. The oil development going on in this section just at this time, which is outstripping any field in the United States today with the same production, is bringing much money into the county and will add greatly to the farming, cattle and sulphur industries, all of which will bring many dollars into our community.

A Chicago man accidentally kissed his wife and was arrested by the police. Had it been some other fellow's wife perhaps no notice would have been taken of it. Verily, the Chicago policeman is a brick with a conscience as clear as mud.

ADVISES FARMERS TO HOLD COTTON

The following is given out by the State Agricultural Department:

The cotton market is going down, the cause being that cotton is being sold at the decline. Immediate steps should be taken by the growers to stop the decline and advance the price.

We note in the press that merchants are not placing orders for cloth, and for this reason that mills are refusing to buy cotton, which accounts for a declining market.

If the farmers continue to sell cotton on the decline, how can they expect those gambling in the price on the exchanges to bet it higher than the farmers are willing to take for cotton? So long as they are willing to sell cotton at a decline how can the mills be expected to buy cotton, or the merchants to buy cloth? Would you buy an article this week which you expected would be cheaper next week? Those picking cotton have it in their power to advance the price and save themselves from undue loss. Why not do it? Why lose $75 to $100 per bale on their cotton and make it that much harder for the central and northern belt farmers to advance the market?

Those now picking are the only ones who can offer resistance to a decline, or encourage a decline. They are the only ones who can offer encouragement to the bulls to bet the price up or to the bears to bet it down. Which will they do? It is up to them. It is in their power to name the price of their cotton. No one will offer more or bet the price higher, for any article, than the party having it for sale is willing to take for it. This is as true of cotton as anything else. The only way to hold up or maintain price, is to refuse to sell for less. To do this with cotton, those to whom the farmers are in debt, should mobilize their credit and influence behind the farmer, and aid and encourage him not to sell on a declining market, or at a price that is not profitable.

Since every man has a different guess as to what a profitable price is, the State Agricultural department has farmers in all sections of the state keeping record of cost of production. In this way the average cost, based upon the estimated yield per acre by the government, September 1 is found, and to cost a reasonable profit is added. This will be given out at the State Farmers' Institute meeting to be held in Austin September 8, 9 and 10. It is a state agricultural department meeting, and everybody is welcome.

Call your people together, talk things over and take action. If the sale of cotton stops a few weeks and then sells as the demand is hungry for it, no one will be hurt. Such action will produce results and should not be delayed. Give notice of your action to the press. Remember this is a state and nation-wide movement. Immediate action for self-protection is the duty of all farmers, and all friends of the farmers.

Cotton Marketing Specialist,

Italian Puzzled; Can't Beat Wife in America

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 14.—Salvatore Colorassi, 25, can't accustom himself to these strange American methods.

His 15-year-old wife sued him for divorce, charging that Salvatore had flogged her nearly every day since they were married three years ago.

When brought into court Colorassi acknowledged the truth of the young wife's statements, and was very much peeved when the court allowed an interlocutory decree.

"Since when can't a man lick his wife when she needs it?" he demanded of the court.

Women Want to Look Into the Private Lives of Party Candidates

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 20.—These presidential candidates are due for some very careful scrutiny as to public and private records, if all the women in the country are to exercise the vigilance manifested by the gentler sex here. Mrs. Overton G. Ellis, well known suffragist, addressing a body of women anent the subject of the candidates, expressed herself thus on the presidential rivals:

As to Harding: "I wonder if it is generally known that Senator Harding owns 40 per cent of the stock of a large brewery. I don't like to discriminate against any of the candidates, and I wouldn't lower myself to say a word against them, but I believe thinking women will appreciate this statement."

As for Cox: "It is reported that Governor Cox is a Catholic. This is not so. I know him well, and he is a Protestant. He is such a fine, good-looking man and he will surely make a fine President."

After which another woman in the audience arose and said:

"Thank you truly, Mrs. Ellis; that is the sort of information we ought to have. We women are going into this campaign perfectly clear-minded and are not going to make any scandalous remarks, but we must know the private lives of each candidate, for private life influences public life more than anything else."

Second Reunion of the 90th Division in Oklahoma City

The second annual reunion of the veterans of the Ninetieth Division will be held in Oklahoma City September 25, 26 and 27. The 90th division was originally made up of men from Oklahoma and Texas and trained at Camp Travis, Texas. However, many replacements were received from every state in the union. The division took part in the St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensives and was one of the divisions honored by a place in the Army of Occupation in Germany. Every man who trained or served at any time with this division is cordially invited to attend the reunion. The 90th division has permanent headquarters in Dallas, Texas, in charge of Arthur J. Reinhart, secretary.

Special rates have been granted by the railroads from all points in Oklahoma and Texas to all veterans of the 90th division attending the second annual reunion of the 90th division which is to be held in Oklahoma City September 25, 26 and 27, according to word received by Arthur J. Reinhart, secretary of the division. These dates mark the first three days of the Oklahoma state fair and in addition to this attraction, Mayor Walton has promised to make it "the best entertainment ever given anyone and that the city will be turned over to the former soldiers during their entire stay in the city."

A bully time and a royal welcome awaits these vets.

County Organizations To Care for the Near East Relief Funds

American aid is still needed in Armenia and the near East, according to governmental and Near East Relief workers who have recently returned from an extensive investigation of conditions there as they exist today, and from information given out from the state headquarters of the Near East Relief in Texas.

Following such authentic reports, the Near East Relief organization which has been operating there so successfully for the past few years under charter granted by congress, has prepared plans for their next appeal to the American people for financial support.

This appeal, according to Chas. L. Sanger of Dallas, state chairman of the Near East Relief, will be carried to the people of Texas through county organizations as has been done in the past, but upon a scale more in keeping with the conditions existing in each county. Many counties will be reached during the coming year, a number of counties planning their movement at this time. Intense campaign methods will be eliminated as far as possible and this will be covered through the organization of "Orphan Adoption Clubs" in the various counties and communities.

Texas has been assigned a definite territory in the Near East to care for, and has been assigned a total of approximately 5000 orphans to "adopt," feed, clothe, shelter and educate during the coming year. An orphan "adoption" is based on the pledge of $10 a month for a period of one year. North Texas headquarters of the Near East Relief are at Dallas, and South Texas headquarters at Houston, to which points contributions may be forwarded.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

Wounded Cowman Goes for Seven Days Without Food

El Paso, Texas, Aug. 20.—Instance of rarity of human endurance has been shown by Jake Filleman, a cattleman, who is recovering at a Globe (Ariz.) hospital, after having lain with a broken thigh on a bare Arizona hillside for seven days and nights without shelter, food or water.

The mishap occurred twelve miles from Geronimo. Filleman's leg being broken when he was thrown from a mule which ran away with him. Without even a hat for shelter, he used one of his gloves for a pillow and the other as protection for his eyes from the burning sun. He managed to drag himself to a bush, where there was a little shade.

Filleman had sharpened his knife and decided to end his misery on the seventh night if no help came. Help came. Two fellow-range riders followed his trail until they found him under the bush, his tongue swollen, apparently almost dead from thirst, hunger and exposure.

Marriage Vows in Dallas Fast Losing Adhesive Qualities

"Till death do us part" is losing its adhesive quality, if conclusions may be drawn from complaints of wife desertion filed in the district attorney's office. During the first eleven days of August there were eight such complaints made, while for the same period last year there was only one.

"What Makes Husbands Leave Home?" was the topic of informal discussion yesterday morning at the court house. Sheriff Harston said the cause was "sorry husbands," while Special Investigator Wilson of the district attorney's office declared that the high cost of living was running off the men with small salaries.

The observer ventured the opinion that maybe the wives were "militant suffragettes" and then entered upon a tirade against the corrupting influences of politics on women. Another settled the argument by saying that the open season on husbands was still in effect in Dallas and that the sensible fellows were doing the "fadeaway" before the undertaker could get in his work.—Dallas News.

CLERK S. C. VAUGHAN PLAYS LUCKY ROLE

Just about the time the oil boom was at its best in Pecos this spring our efficient and obliging county clerk, S. C. Vaughan, disposed of quite a few leases and replenished his bank account. For many, many moons he had been using coal oil lamps at his home on the north side of the Texas and Pacific tracks and he and his better half had long since wished for better things, but the time had not yet come, for they had other needs for the money on hand. When these leases were sold and to make sure they had something which would be worth while and not be lost again by speculation, they decided to do some improving on their place. It did not take long for them to decide that they could get more benefit and pleasure from an electric lighting and power system than from any other source and they had the funds in the bank to pay for same—all cleared up from selling leases.

To make a long story short, they now have a complete electric lighting system in their beautiful home and power for pumping, churning and other farm and home uses. Even when the electric light plant was at its best there was probably not a family or home in Pecos so elaborately and conveniently fitted up in this matter of comfort and convenience as is Mr. Vaughan. And one of the best parts of this is that he always has lights and never has to get up and light his kerosene lamp in order to see, and grope around in the dark and fall over half a dozen chairs in trying to find it. His storage batteries prevent all troubles of this kind.

As to the cost of putting in this private plant, Mr. Vaughan stated to the Enterprise that the entire cost of installation of all the works was not more than six hundred dollars, and the half has not been told of the home conveniences and labor-saving appliances he has installed with this plant. His daily expense in running the plant which furnishes him lights, power, etc., is not more than ten cents per day.

Inasmuch as Pecos is now in total and absolute darkness with little prospect for the conditions being improved there will be many of our citizens interested in this proposition, and while the Enterprise may be making a lot of bother for Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan by people visiting their home to investigate this plant and see just what has been accomplished with this small amount of money with a view of putting in a similar plant, it is sure they will be delighted to show them around and put them next to anything they have gained by actual experience and convenience in the installation of this plant.

After all it appears to have been a fortunate affair that Mr. Vaughan was unable to have lights installed in his home by the light plant, since he now has so far as the Enterprise knows, the only private home in Pecos who has electric lights and does not have to depend upon a defunct light plant for his juice. Fortunate for the picture shows—they have their own plants and do not have to depend upon the power plant for their juice.

SCHOOL BOARD SECURES MICHIGAN FOR FACULTY

M. Somes has leased to the school board the upstairs and the lower east portion of The Michigan for the school year, ten rooms in all, which will be occupied by the teachers in the Pecos schools for the coming school year.

The Michigan has been recently furnished from top to bottom with nice, up-to-date furnishings, including bath fixtures on both floors and it is convenient to the school building as well as a convenient distance from the business part of town and churches. In the Michigan will be housed the entire faculty, including Superintendent Rutledge and family, and the price to be paid—$125 per month—will do much toward cutting living expenses of the teachers, who will, it is understood, employ a cook and all live at home. No more convenient or desirable a place could have been found in the town, and the price is low now and when the next oil boom arrives will be next to nothing.

It was a wise conclusion the board came to and should be very pleasant to all the faculty and enable them to save much more money than they could have done had each one looked after his or her own apartments as formerly, and then possibly have to take chances of being thrown out as was the luck of some in the spring when the demand for houses was greatest, owing to the oil excitement.

Now Is the Time to Plant Rescue Grass

All during the past two winters many citizens of Pecos would drive by the home of the Enterprise editor to feast their eyes upon the beautiful green lawn which is as pretty and green in the winter as is the bermuda grass in the spring, summer and fall months. Many inquiries have been made as to the kind of grass it was.

It is just a plain mixture of bermuda and rescue grass and now is the time to plant your rescue seed. Every home in Pecos can have just as pretty a yard this winter as they did during the summer with very little effort. If you have bermuda already growing in your yard dig holes every foot, or less if you wish, drop in a few seeds, put the dirt back, tramp it down and the job is finished. You will have a beautiful green yard the year around, for your rescue grass has made a good start before the frost gets the bermuda and in the spring, if the lawn is kept mowed the bermuda will be up and growing before the rescue dies down. If you have no bermuda just scratch up your yard in places where you want the grass and plant the rescue seeds and water the ground the same as if you were growing bermuda.

It is an easy task and will not be worth while as a beautifier of your lawn but will furnish plenty of green feed for your chickens, rabbits and cow as well.

There is a fine season in the ground and now is the time to plant. Seeds may be obtained from any of the large seed houses over the state.

Postmaster Examination

At the request of the postmaster general of the United States civil service commission has announced an examination to be held at Pecos, Texas, on September 15, 1920, for the position of postmaster at Toyah. This office has an annual compensation of $1,000.

To be eligible for this examination an applicant must be a citizen of the United States, must actually reside within the delivery of the office and have so resided at the time the present vacancy occurred.

Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their sixty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination.

Application form 2241 and full information concerning the requirements of the examination may be secured from the postmaster at the place of vacancy or from the civil service commission, Washington, D. C. Applications should be properly executed and filed with the commission at Washington, D. C., in time to arrange for the examination of the applicant.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

Prepared for The Enterprise by the First National Bank in St. Louis.

As a result of the favorable growing weather which prevailed during the month of July, the government crop forecast on August 1 showed a condition of general excellence for practically all of our major crops. While the bounteous yields thus indicated may not be entirely realized, as the conditions prevailing during the present month will probably prove determining factors, the outlook nevertheless is very promising. Usually weather conditions and insect ravages are most troublesome during the month of August.

At the present time there is every indication that we shall have available about 250,000,000 bushels of wheat for export purposes. The indicated yield of winter wheat on August 1 was placed at 533,000,000 bushels. Spring wheat promised a yield of 263,000,000 bushels—the total therefore, would probably run close to 795,000,000 bushels. The carry-over from last year is placed at from 100,000,000 to 125,000,000 bushels, making a total of over 900,000,000 bushels available for domestic and export requirements. Domestic needs, including seeding, will probably run not over 650,000,000 bushels, thus leaving about 250,000,000 for export purposes.

The oat crop on August 1 indicated a yield of about 1,400,000,000 bushels, which compares with the 1919 harvest of 1,248,310,000 bushels, and that of 1918 of 1,538,000,000 bushels. The indicated yield while somewhat below the average of the war period, is well above the ten-year average.

The potato crop gives promise of an exceptionally large yield. The estimate is over 400,000,000 bushels, a figure which has been exceeded but few times in the past decade.

The rice and tobacco crops likewise give promise of exceeding past records. The tobacco yield is estimated at 1,544,000,000 pounds, which compares with the previous high record of 1,389,458,000 pounds reached last year. The rice crop is estimated at 52,000,000 bushels, whereas the previous high record reached last year, totalled 41,059,000.

The Daily Oil Bulletin is a mimeograph publication printed at Pecos on one side of an eight and one-half by fourteen, or legal size sheet. The Toyah Basin Oil News is another daily of the same sort except printed on both sides of the same size paper and was started and is being published by the Toyah Basin Chamber of Commerce from the fact that the town of Toyah has had no newspaper since the Enterprise moved from there four or five years ago. Had Toyah had a newspaper those people would have been loyal in its support instead of trying to put it out of business by starting a mimeograph daily. The Daily Oil Bulletin will hereafter be put out by the Pecos Chamber of Commerce as will be seen by the following announcement in its issue of August 14: "With this issue the Pecos Chamber of Commerce takes over the publication of the Daily Oil News Bulletin, and proposes to send the paper to every member of the organization in addition to the list of out of town subscribers who have been kept informed of the daily happenings in the field for the past four and one-half months through this publication. The first issue was published on April 4, 1920, as the first newspaper of its kind in the United States for the benefit of the brokers and leaseholders having headquarters away from Pecos. Although not issued directly under the auspices of the chamber of commerce it has played an important part in the publicity campaign undertaken by that organization. Under the new plan, it is believed that the publication can perform a much greater service towards furthering the development of the Pecos field, and the management asks for the continued co-operation of the operators in order to keep the investing public informed of conditions in the local territory."

"It is harder on blind men now than ever. Fashion has decreed that women's skirts will be two inches shorter than they were last year," says the Cleburne Daily Enterprise. "Most every one knows how short they were last year. Besides the shortness of the skirts, the ultra-fashionable will have the new slit down—the what shall we call it—the thing that holds the body to the foot. It appears to one who has lived a long time and has seen the changing fashions as they have been handed down the various years that fashion has decreed during this particular period that women shall exhibit more of their beautiful curves than ever. And still they expect men, animals as they are by nature, to be good."

A special from Pecos, Texas, to the Texas Oil Gazette, published in Fort Worth, Texas, contains the following paragraph: The Pecos drilling field now extends over a territory 100 by 75 miles, but there are several wide territories in which no development has yet entered and the Pecos chamber of commerce has secured several tracts of acreage which they are in a position to offer to bona fide developers on very satisfactory terms in return for early exploration.

The Pecos chamber of commerce apparently has gotten into the oil game and it is supposed that not only the individual members of the organization but the people of the entire county will benefit by the operation, yet there will be some of our people who will object to such a procedure. The Enterprise is for anything which is just and honest to keep the ball rolling.

It may be that the women of Texas will clean up the political ranks of the democratic party, but when this is done they will realize that they have had a full-grown man-sized job on their hands.

The Cox and Roosevelt Democratic League of Texas, with headquarters in Dallas, judging from literature sent the Enterprise for free publication, is nothing more or less than an organization whose sole purpose is to defeat Bailey for governor of Texas. The Enterprise is against anything or anybody who have not the nerve and honesty of purpose to come out in the open and make a clean fight. Judging from the literature being published over the state and by the accusations made by both sides, it looks as if the next governor of Texas will be no better than was Jim Ferguson. Whether its Bailey or Neff Texas will have a good governor the Enterprise believes, and the editor would not walk from here to Barstow and back through the mud in order to be able to name the winner.

The editor of the El Paso Herald has written a good long draught of toquela when he wrote the following paragraph, which appears under a three-line double column head in this morning's paper: The Texas and Pacific crosses the Pecos river between Odessa and Midland. Near the banks of the river lies a long, narrow depression which has been responsible for the difficulties now faced. This lake or depression is at least 75 miles east of the Pecos river. The Herald editor should take a trip east on the T. and P. and take a few notes on the topography of the country before publishing such rot as this.

It will be up to Pecos housewives to dig out the old brass lamps from the chimney corners and polish them up for use again. The light plant has shut down indefinitely and it is rumored that the present company is looking for a buyer. The city council met Wednesday evening to discuss the light situation but nothing definitely could be done as the city is already bonded to capacity, which makes a municipal light plant an impossibility. Nothing definitely has been heard of as yet and in the meantime housewives will do well to put a good flicker on the old Alladians until the present light company's franchise expires—forty or fifty years from now.

Obeying Laws

Some men openly defy certain laws and refuse to obey or respect them and some officers refuse to obey or enforce certain laws. Then why should we wonder at other men taking laws into their own hands and running things their own way. If one man can refuse to obey and respect a law that does not suit him, then another man has the same right to refuse to obey and respect a law that does not suit him—and there you go. According to this rule, then any man can pick out his law and disregard it and another man does the same. We are all equal, brother, and if you can disrespect any law I can do the same about any other law. That is fair, is it not? Are you a fair man? Do you want to do the fair thing? Then let me disregard any law I choose if you take that privilege. Then where will we land at under this way of doing?—Mission Chronicle.

The trouble about hard times is that the average man who has money is afraid to put it out. He takes no risks and will not spend a dollar unless he is convinced beyond any reasonable doubt that that dollar will come back to him on time. If he would all "brace up" and have more confidence in ourselves, more in other people and specially more in the country and its future, we should have better times.

Many people, through fear of death, are all their lives subject to bondage. The questions: How shall we die? When shall we die? and where shall we die? are continually worrying them. Indeed, there have been several suicides caused by this haunting terror of death. The thought of it made their lives insupportable, and they killed themselves in order to know the worst.

Cash Wanted

A rural flipper of the frisket waxeth forth poetically thus: "Forward, turn forward, Oh Time in your flight, turn me a fortune and set me up right. I am weary of running in debt for my clothes, and owing for grub that down my throat goes; weary of working for what I have not, weary of owing for what I have got. Never, no, never turn backward for me for well I remember my good mother's knee. I remember her slipper came down with a slam, whenever I got in the blackberry jam. The days, too, at school were a bore, when I was obliged to stand up on the floor; and all in the world that ever I done, was to wink at a girl—pure matter of fun. The days of the past, like the days we meet, composed of fair mixture of bitter and sweet. So, forward, turn forward, oh, time in your way, and give me some cash—just enough for today."

Word from J. R. Rountree, director of the Bankhead Highway transcontinental convoy, to the Pecos chamber of commerce is to the effect that "the Bankhead transcontinental convoy expected to spend Thursday night in Pecos, but on account of the heavy rains and six miles of almost impassable road between Trent, Texas, and Sweetwater and Colorado, makes it impossible for us to reach Pecos Thursday night. Will wire you at a later date when we will reach Pecos. Convoy is tied up here indefinitely."

This is the first definite word the city has had regarding the stop here. Arrangements will be made for the entertainment of the party. The convoy is composed of a long string of army motor trucks which are making an overland trip from coast to coast.

ON SECOND THOUGHT

By TOYAH CHAMBER COMMERCE

BIG TANK FILLED.

The great earthen tank of the Texas and Pacific, south of the railway station grounds now has nearly nine feet of water and is affording much sport for the people of Toyah and the surrounding country who like to swim. The water is very cold as yet and because of the temperature and depth swimmers are warned to exercise the greatest care in order to prevent accidents. This is the first season in many years in which rain enough has fallen to cause the great reservoir, which covers 84 acres, to fill. It is, by far, the largest "swimming" hole in West Texas.

MANY CATTLE SHIPPED FROM TOYAH.

As an evidence of the importance of Toyah as a cattle shipping point it may be cited that since January 1, 1920, more than 600 carloads of livestock of all kinds have been shipped into or out of this city. The figures quoted represent the livestock handled by the Texas and Pacific company alone. In addition, it is said that not less than 100 carloads of cattle which should have passed through the Toyah stockyards were shipped from Balmorhea and River-ton, because of inability to get cars or to be accommodated at the Toyah loading pens.

STOCK OF VANILLA EXTRACT IS EXHAUSTED.

The stocks of vanilla extracts held by Toyah stores are said to have been exhausted during the past two or three days. The money stocks of some of the consumers almost reached the vanishing point after they settled the score with the judge this morning.

The real reason for the arrest of Dr. E. W. Ritter has just become apparent. In one of his reports covering the properties of the Great Southern Sulphur Company, of which he was chief chemist and general manager, he referred to his discovery of the "allyphatic series of the heterocyclic tetra-ramidocarbonhydrothynates" and the stockholders feared he was trying to put something over on them. They were especially sore when they discovered that the long word was the technical name for bat manure. They thought the learned doctor was hiding out a radium mine or somep'n.

STILL EXPERIMENTING.

Jess Knight, manager of the Panhandle Power and Light plant, says that he has not yet secured the proper paraphernalia with which to refine the crude product of the shallow wells of the Toyah oil as it should be handled in order to bring about the best results. He is making changes in his little refinery and will continue making them until the right process is hit upon.

"I am getting some of the finest lubricants I ever saw," said Mr. Knight, "but I have not hit upon the proper methods for separating the oil into the many grades which the laboratory tests show it can be separated. I will continue my experiments until I learn just what is necessary in the way of machinery, methods of heating, etc. The oil is the best in the world and I want to be in position to make the most of it for myself and for the producers."

It is Mr. Knight's intention to build a refinery large enough to handle the entire output of the shallow field when he has determined just what is needed. The proposed plant is already financed, in that he has the men with the money ready to join him when, as a result of his present experiments, he can show them what can be done and how much money will be needed with which to do it.

Gambling may be all right—in its place, but it is respectfully submitted that pitching dollars "for keeps" in the public streets is not an example which most people relish having set for the young boys and girls of this or any other community.

PHOTOGRAPHS ARE SENT.

The photographs of the Toyah stockyards taken the morning after five calves, part of a shipment which had been unloaded to be fed, were drowned or smothered in the mud of the pens, have been received from the finishers and will be sent to the officials of the Texas and Pacific company as part of the record of the request of the Toyah Basin chamber of commerce for better facilities for handling cattle at this point.

SEND IT TO TOYAH.

The people of Pecos are in a quandary. They have a combination electric light and ice plant but no funds with which to operate it. It is suggested that they send it over to Toyah where money is plentiful and where the plant could be used to advantage.

RICHARD BRISCOE POST THANKS PEOPLE FOR BIG ATTENDANCE

The Richard Briscoe Post No. 91, of the American Legion realized something over $40 from the picture show benefit last week, and wishes to thank the people of Pecos for the big attendance.

The post is now negotiating for the lease of a lot on which to build a club house, and is planning a baseball game between the soldiers and the sailors of the local members, as well as a home talent show, in the near future, for the purpose of raising "club house" funds.

Club rooms, with showers, game rooms and reading rooms, are badly needed in Pecos, and the Legion expects to have one for the use of its members, and possibly may allow outsiders the use of the rooms also on payment of monthly dues.

Zuni, New Mexico, Aug. 1.—A life-size figure of a house priestess, many hundred years old, was unearthed near this place by Frank W. Hodge, who is in charge of the excavation of the ancient village of Hawikuh.

The priestess was found buried under the ruins of the stone walls of the town and was removed with the greatest care. The head was made of terra cotta and the body of straw, with a covering of baked clay. The figure is being prepared for shipment to the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, of New York City, under whose auspices the researches are being conducted at Hawikuh.

Another find uncovered by Mr. Hodge and his associates is two bundles of prayer sticks covered with yucca fiber.

The Zuni diggers, helping Mr. Hodge on the work became very much excited about the prayer sticks and said prayers to them. One of the old Indians said a prayer, claiming the sticks were his father's. All took pains to breathe in the sacred spirit from the sticks.

These prayer sticks have their prototypes in use in the Zuni village today, and are very carefully guarded by four priests, and are used in their most sacred ceremonies. They are known as "et-o-nay" in the Zuni language.

The prayer sticks were buried in a sacred jar, beautifully decorated and covered with a slab of stone. The water jar had a hole in the bottom, or was "killed" as are many of the jars being unearthed which are found buried with food for the use of the spirit in the next world.

Many hundred bodies have been found, some with interesting articles of food and raiment, while all manner of pottery, stone, axes, awls, knives, arrow heads, dishes and utensils are daily uncovered.

In the part of the village now being excavated, many articles of iron, copper, bronze, glass beads, and china plates are found, showing that these rooms were occupied during or after the advent of the Spaniards.

Associated with Mr. Hodge are E. E. Coffin, who is the photographer of the party, and makes careful photographic records of all the findings before and after their removal from the debris of the houses, and Jesse Nusbaum, who uncovered the ancient church and monastery. Nusbaum was especially fitted for this work by his experience in uncovering the old church near Pecos, N. M., not far from Santa Fe.

The excavating of the church and monastery shows that these buildings were burned, as all the timber of the roof and floor as well as the carved wood beams forming the steps leading up to the altar, are charred and burned.

The monastery was a large affair of many rooms and is supposed to have contained the water supply of the village. The water has not been discovered as yet and its location lies buried in the ruins, perhaps an eternal mystery.

The excavations of the present summer are made especially to determine facts about the structural features of the village. In many places it was verified that there were at least three villages, one built upon the other and separated one from the other in its existence by a lapse of time covering a good many years. In digging down in the houses the excavators have come upon the roofs of previous homes and in the floor depth of these roofs of still other houses have been discovered.

Mr. Hodge was unable to estimate the age of the oldest life at Hawikuh or pre-Hawikuh, for that was the name of the village that the Spaniards found there when they came in the sixteenth century. But there is scarcely any doubt about the oldest houses dating back about one thousand years.

The finding of so many burned homes has verified the Zuni tradition of the place being raided by the Apaches in the seventeenth century. But even though the pueblo was buried and virtually destroyed by the murderous Apaches, the work done this summer has shown that the floor beams, fireplaces and seats, as well as many of their utensils, are still in a good state of preservation.

Hawikuh is closely linked with the early history of this country as the place where Coronado brought his army of young Spanish blue bloods and introduced the first sheep, cattle, goats, and horses to the southwest. The Zunis attempted to kill Coronado here but he was saved from death by Captain Cardenas, who afterwards discovered the Grand Canyon of Arizona. From this place Coronado wrote his famous description of the people and customs of the Indians to the victory of Spain. Others who visited this region were Custano de Sosa and Antonio de Espejo in 1583, while Juan de Onate was here twice, once in 1598 and again in 1604 and 1606.

Onate's visit is recorded on the south wall of El Morro national monument, near Ramah, where he left the inscription in which he says he passed by the place in 1606 on his return from discovering the sea of the south or the Gulf of Lower California.

On inscription rock is also recorded the fact of the visit of Don Francisco Manuel de Silva Nieto, who was the governor of New Mexico after Onate, and it was Silva

Nieto who took the first priests to Hawikuh and established the mission there in 1629.

There the old church was built and the monastery, the ruins of which were uncovered last summer by Mr. Hodge's party. Friar Martin Arvide and Ropue Figueredo were the first missionaries here. Father Letardo followed them but was murdered by the Zunis on the 22nd of February, 1623, in front of the church when he sallied forth in his priestly robes to chide the Zunis for late attendance at mass. He was shot by their arrows and scalped, and his scalp was worn in their ceremonial dances for many years afterwards.

There is an inscription on inscription rock which bears out the Spanish history on this killing. It is signed by one Lujah, who was sent from the garrison in Santa Fe and relates how he passed the rock on the 23rd day of March, 1623, to avenge the death of Friar Letardo.

In 1680 was the pueblo rebellion when all the Indians decided to overthrow the Spanish people and their hated religion. They were fairly successful but the Zunis fled to the top of Corn Mountain, which stands just south of Black Rock Indian Agency near Zuni, and they did not return to take up their abode below or in any of the villages below until they were induced to come down by Antonio le Vargas, who reconquered the entire country for the king of Spain in 1628. His work is also recorded on inscription rock.

Inscription rock lies forty miles east of Hawikuh, but on the old traveled road between the Zuni villages and Acoma which was the closest settlement on the east.

Hawikuh was abandoned after the Apache raids in 1670, but was re-occupied for a time. It is one of the biggest and most important ruins in the country and in uncovering it the Museum of the American Indian is rendering a scientific service of great value to history and archaeology.

This is Mr. Hodge's fourth summer at Hawikuh. His party will spend one more summer on these ruins before a complete report will be made on their findings.

It is a place well worth seeing, but strange to say it is visited by very few people. Hawikuh lies on a good road, but twelve miles southwest of Zuni, and close to Ojo Caliente, about forty miles from St. Johns, Arizona, and can be reached easily from Springerville, Arizona, St. Johns, Gallup, or Albuquerque.

PROFITEERING IN OIL TOWNS

Whenever a community becomes fortunate enough to have an oil field in its vicinity there is a tendency on the part of some merchants, hotels and eating houses to take undue advantage of the situation and boost their prices to an unreasonable height. They know that the oil men must eat and sleep and purchase various articles of clothing, etc., at times in the nearby town, and practically having a monopoly on the necessities of life they often make it hard on the wage-earner and others and incur a dislike by those affected. This situation was particularly true during the boom days of West Texas.

Other towns that have since come into the limelight because of the proximity of oil fields have had an opportunity to profit greatly by the experiences of their neighbors in this respect. Citizens who have the welfare of their community at heart and are really trying to make it advantageous for all concerned are acting within the bounds of reason in the prices they ask. The local editors and chambers of commerce in some places have accomplished a great deal in maintaining the good will of the public by their efforts along these lines. They should be heartily supported and commended for these endeavors.

However, there is great room for improvements in some of the present oil towns and in others there is a noticeable difference. Constant traveling around the various fields in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma places a person in constant touch with this situation. Oftentimes towns only a few miles apart have a wide variation in the prices charged by the merchants.

There is nothing which hurts a community more than profiteering and an antagonistic attitude among the citizens towards the oil men, strangers, who appear in their midst. Some towns have actually killed themselves by their treatment of the oil fraternity. The mistaken idea prevails that anyone connected with oil has plenty of money and should be "stung." Thanks to the fair-minded citizens of these communities who do not take advantage of a helpful situation by unreasonable charging. Let the chambers of commerce and others continue in this good work.—Texas Oil Ledger.

World's Oil Resources

Ample for Many Years

The heading above represents, in substance, the opinion of T. A. O'Donnell, president of the American Petroleum Institute. It also practically represents the opinion of C. A. Bedford, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

No greater authorities on oil exist than the two gentlemen referred to, and their views carry extreme weight.

These optimistic utterances, coming in the midst of a flood of pessimism concerning the world's future oil supply, hearten the prospector and gives impetus to increased production.

Both point that increased consumption, not decreased production, now features the oil trade, and both plead for a curtailment of government restrictions and the giving of free opportunities to the oil prospector as the practical solution of the problem.

Of late weeks the daily press, and not a few trade journals, have been deluged with dire prophecies of a world-wide petroleum famine. Technical experts in the United States Bureau of Mines, geological survey, have issued warnings that smack of the lamentations of Jeremiah. Some of these prophets have had the temerity to even forecast the exact amount of petroleum in the earth's reservoirs and the number of years, about 20, it will take to exhaust the supply at the present rate of production and consumption. Speakers at oil and gas conservation conferences have invariably harped upon the same subject. Other wiseacres have professed to see in the situation an effort by the oil companies to bull the market and kite prices. It is noticeable that the heads of the big oil companies have not joined in this chorus, and the latter charge therefore falls flat as a pancake. It is both refreshing and illuminating to hearken to practical oil authorities.

Mr. O'Donnell, in an address at the organization meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris recently, pointed out the necessity for free development of oil resources outside the United States, in order to meet the increasing demand for petroleum. He said, in part:

"There seems to be a general impression that the petroleum resources of the United States have been practically exhausted, and that the apparent shortage which has grown rather acute in the last few months has been caused by the exhaustion of sources of supply. This is not correct. It has been brought about by increased demands rather than by decreased production. We are producing in the United States today more crude oil than we ever have in the history of our country, but we are drawing heavily every month from stocks, which are already low.

"Notwithstanding the necessity for increased production, nearly all governments seem to be adopting a destructive policy of restrictive legislation, which cannot but curtail the necessary prospecting and production of petroleum. Personally, I am not pessimistic as to the future supply, as I believe there are many parts of the world in which petroleum exists in sufficient quantities to supply the requirements of humanity, no matter how extensive they might be. I believe that if all governments would establish the policy of open and free opportunity for everybody from everywhere to prospect and develop the petroleum resources of the world, the result would be gratifying and sufficient to meet the requirements.

"At present, the increased demands have become so enormous that it is generally believed by those in the petroleum industry in America that increased activity of the wildcatter will not take care of the world's requirements. It will therefore be necessary for the same kind of activity to be brought about in other parts of the world, and this can only be accomplished by the removal of government restrictions, and the giving of free opportunity to the prospector."

Mr. Bedford, in an interview, said: "Oil development is in the nature of a gamble. If your supply begins to run short you must develop new territory and you have to gamble $50,000 or more on a well.

"That's the only way to find a new field. "But new fields constantly are found. When oil has begun to run short before new fields have sprung up almost overnight, and this will occur in this country again and again."—Southwestern Oil Journal.

A SERMON BY "BROTHER JOE"

A SERMON DELIVERED BY REV. JOEL FRANK HEDGPETH, FORMERLY OF PECOS.

From the Christian Advocate, the organ of the Methodist Church, South, the following sermon, by "Brother Joe," a beloved pastor of the local Methodist church, is taken, and will, no doubt, be read with pleasure and profit by the many friends and admirers of that popular preacher in this city and county:

"I am ready to be offered; and the time of my departure is at hand. I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."—2 Tim. iv. 6-8.

This is, at one and the same time, an epitome of Paul's life and character, with a concise summary of his conception of life. Having reached the summit, he looks back on the way whither he has come. And the end was vantage point to Paul—not a valley and shadow full of mists, but a serene and sunlit height from which he clearly sees and calmly judges the issues of life. So in this passage, without vanity, without excuse, in a trenchant syllabus he sums up his own life and achievement, then forecasts the struggles and conquests of every brave, true, and struggling one who shall follow this way after him.

To this unique old hero here was not a deathbed adieu submerged in sighs and dripping with tears, but a ringing valedictory on the occasion of his graduation from earthly scholarships to that celestial university beyond the vale.

Notice that he says nothing of death; rather does his terse resume throb with the pulsations of a larger life, breaking its bands and scorning its futile limitations. And shall we make this a study of life and not death? After all, death is not the wisest study of the wiser heart, but rather the limitless opportunities and potencies of God's unmeasured and immeasurable life both here and hereafter.

Thus looking back on a life marred by mistakes, red with the blood of sacrifice, dim with the tears of suffering, sometimes dark with doubts and fears, the tolls and trials of a long, long trail.

Paul tells us of what life means to him. And what did it mean to him?

1. Life is a conflict. "I have fought the good fight," says Paul. Time is the battlefield of the eternities. To every one who shuns the wrong and strives to maintain the highest in ideals and conduct life is indeed a combat.

Well sang the sweet singer of other days:

"Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease,
While others fought to win the prize,
And sailed through bloody seas?"

And right heroically does he answer his own question:

"Sure I must fight if I would reign.
Increase my courage, Lord;
I'll bear the toil, endure the pain,
Supported by Thy Word."

Not enmity toward my fellows, not hatred of the good, green world that God has made, not pugnacious activity toward those who go wrong. The great field is the inward fight.

Paul had left many a battlefield behind but none where the scars were deeper nor the victory greater than those where he struggled with the forces that raged within. He who conquers self conquers all. When the kingdom of selfhood is won, every principality is won. He who is regnant in will and purpose over the desires of the lower and lesser self, that one is king and ruler indeed, be he ever so poor and unknown.

"I'm greater than all outward things,
Would I but claim my own;
Shame on the slavery that brings
My self-reproach and bitter stings
For evil deeds ungrown.

If slave I be, I am self-bound,
To passion, pride or pelf;
No power, the universe around
Hath God revealed or wisdom found
To do me harm but self."

2. Life is a journey.
You remember some one has said:
"Life is a thoroughfare, not a terminal."
"I have finished my course," cries the exultant old footracer as the goal appears in sight. This same Paul wrote once before: "I count not myself to have attained . . . but forgetting the things that are behind, . . . I press forward." Christianity is not any one experience alone; it is the sum of every experience that reveals God in me, for me, with me, and beyond me.

It is not a moment's fleeting impulse; it is the very essence of every impulse and inspiration that is God-born, or that returns God-ward, projected into the continuity of every day's existence. He who can rest in the fading glow of an experience a dozen or score of years gone has but stale bread and stagnant water. It is not alone the princely and pathetic prophet of Nazareth that tears down the kingdoms of evil and cements the living stone of God's eternal temple into a vital tie. It is that same Christ, dwelling in the hearts, molding the wills, and directing the energies of mankind through all ages, with the same power of love and the same might of godliness that hallowed the hills of Judea and stilled the tempest on Gallilee.

"There are so many hills to climb upward,
I often am weary for rest;
But he who appoints me my pathway
Knows just what is needful and best:

And so in His word he has promised,
"Thy strength it shall be as the day,
And the toils of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way."

3. Life is a trust.

"I have kept the faith." Can we say it? Can America, gone wild mad after pleasure, wasting her resources, "spending her money for that which is naught"—can America look up to the Giver of her every good, the Maker of her national greatness and say, "We have kept the faith?" Paul was not referring to some standard of orthodoxy. He laid no claim to perfect agreement in all things with all his brethren. In fact he and Peter, and he and John Mark disagreed most sharply. He was saying: "I have been faithful to the trust committed to my charge." Ah, but how this age and this race needs to realize more deeply, more pungently, more heart-breakingly that time, money, influence, and intellect, are treasures that the King hath given into our keeping. We are trustees of the Eternal. We are stewards of Heaven's highest blessings of time and eternity. How are we who are the sons and scions of the past inheritors of the greatness of other days—how are we administering this heavenly estate?

4. Life lived as a conflict, a development, and a trust becomes an "offering unto God," and will receive a "crown of life." The mother, the missionary, the preacher, the teacher, are continually offering up their lives as a "living sacrifice," that men may become what God has dreamed. O, but we need more of this kind of "oblations," more pouring forth of all our powers for God and His kingdom. More personal work, less professional and traditional teaching and preaching. Our work is not a "profession," it is a vocation. We are not mere "professors of religion." There are too many professors of that sort already whose curriculum is one of selfishness and whose graduates are but illiterates in the science of service. The mere repetitions of well-worn formulas, however beautiful, will become lifeless and mechanical unless warmed into life by a burning heart until they shall glow with freshness and ring with truth. Conventional truths may be carved into forms as lovely as a wax flower, but truth, made vital in human hearts and wills, will be as fragrant as a wild rose.

What matters if our stately forms and decent methods be as faultless as a marble shaft? The world needs the truth that shall be as strong as the foundations of the hills. Such a life cannot fail of reward. O, God, give us a Church that is pouring out its wealth, baptized in its own heart blood as an "offering unto God."

And what is "a crown of life?" A crown is a sign of victory, the emblem of royalty; it belongs to him who hath overcome—and here is the kingdom where the "divine right of kings" is recognized, for He hath said: "Ye shall be kings and priests unto God." I do not know all that the Apostle meant by his glowing figure. It will be crown enough for me to see my shattered models made perfect by that deathless Artisan, who left for me an ideal yonder on Calvary. I ask no brighter diadem, no more radiant crown than to have my dreams of God, and Christ, and of heaven and home, come true in that "land of morning dawn." I ask no more regal privilege than to be able to enter into that blessed awakening, when the dream of life is over, and the reality of Christ's unclouded presence shall shine forever on me.

How Cold Is It in Alaska

Kerosene in Alaska is said to be an effective remedy to use in extracting frost when a person's hand, foot or ears become frozen. The process, it is said, requires several hours.

In Alaska "coal oil" begins to thicken at 40 degrees below zero, and at 60 and 70 degrees below becomes as thick as lard, and resembles that substance very much, only it is darker. It can then be cut out of the can with a knife. A lighted lamp or lantern left exposed in this temperature will freeze and go out within about 80 minutes.—Oil World.

WASTE NOT WANT NOT

The greatest obstacle in the path of advancement and success of the average worker today is waste; and the most valuable quantity wasted is time.

Everybody is aware that for the wage-earner the element of time is divided into three divisions—work, recreation, rest. But only a few are alive to the realization that from each of these divisions flows a little stream made up of wasted moments. And these little streams, flowing on through life, merge into one swiftly moving current of lost golden hours—hours that can never be reclaimed.

The place to dam this River of Wasted Hours is at the source. You cannot hope to check its onward rush at the middle, much less at its end, where it broadens out into a whirlpool that gently sucks you into a vortex of mediocrity.

If you are a waster, you must cut out the waste. When at work give of the best that is in you. Continually strive, setting up goal after goal. The ladder is high and the rungs are many—and slippery. If you are giving only six hours of effort—and that half-hearted—out of the eight you are being paid for, you are wasting two hours of constructive endeavor every working day. How can you hope for advancement?

When at leisure make the most of it. If your work keeps you away from the sunshine and the fresh air the greater part of the day, all the more reason why your spare time should be spent out in the open as much as possible. And if out of your leisure you cannot afford time for at least one hour of upbuilding study a day, thus fitting yourself for a more responsible position, how can you hope to succeed?

The harder a man works, the more he should value his hours of rest. Hours that are spent in dissipation, instead of laying up a store of energy for the morrow's tasks, are wasted hours. They are hours that leave the workman heavy-eyed, dull, lethargic. How can such a one hope to get on?

Harbor your resources. Be like the athlete who wins a long-distance race.—Coal Age.

We want your business and offer the inducement of "more goods for less money." Strictly cash. Pecos Bargain House. 35th

He deposited two bucks with the editor for a year's subscription.

Will P. Trenary of El Paso was in town this week on his way to Plattsville, Wis. He stopped off at Pecos to visit the pump irrigated farm down the P. V. S. and was highly pleased with the looks of things out that way. He contemplates selling his Wisconsin farm before returning.

Mrs. Geo. F. Williams, who has been in school at Wesley Hall, Nashville, during the summer months, writes the Enterprise as follows: "Do not send the paper to above address any longer. Address to Pecos until further notice." From this the Enterprise infers she will be home in a few days.

W. W. Dean and family returned Saturday evening from Carlsbad, where they attended the American Legion carnival. Captain Dean states that the carnival was very successful from point of enthusiasm and attendance, although rainy weather interfered considerably. A big four-day roping contest was pulled off, in which two or three Reeves county cowmen contended, one being Mr. Jim Cooksey, who was "in the money" up to the last day. Floods of rain were encountered on the trip home some twenty miles out from Pecos, where the Dean car traveled for several miles hub deep in water.

Colwell and brother, Bud Turner, left last week for Forbing, La., in answer to a message notifying them of the serious illness of their father, Mr. Edward Turner, who died on the 11th instant at his home in Forbing at the ripe old age of 66 years. He had been an invalid for the past fifteen years and his death, while a shock, was not unexpected at any time. Mrs. Colwell and Bud both arrived too late for the funeral. Mr. Turner has returned home and is again on the delivery wagon of the Pecos Mercantile Company, but Mrs. Colwell is still in Forbing visiting relatives. The entire community extend to the bereaved deepest sympathy.

They will go by Dallas for a visit with relatives there before going on to Belton. Stamper, prosperous farmer-ranch people of the Saragosa community.

A fishing party from Pecos, composed of Woody Browning, Monroe Kerr, Chas. Manahan and M. W. Collie, enroute to Independence, jollied away a few rainy hours here Sunday afternoon. Notwithstanding they had been in the mud and water most of the way over and had the appearance of having already had plenty of fisherman's luck, they were determined that their fish craving appetites should be appeased before returning, despite the obstacle the weather man was placing in their way.—Fort Stockton Pioneer.

H. F. Anthony of Pecos, was a visitor in the Spring City last Sunday. While here he rounded up a number of friends and exchanged greetings and discussed the muddy road conditions between here and Pecos City.—Fort Stockton Pioneer.

Jim Wheat is a strong believer in the Pecos oil field and in the operators in the field as well—especially has he great faith in the Dominion Oil Company and in their intention and ability to make a hole. Recently he and Jack Hubbs wagered a suit of clothes on their progress. Wheat was strong enough in the faith that the three wells now drilling would when combined make 3,000 feet of hole by the end of the day August 19th and so made his belief talk and won, for when the hour arrived he had won by a clear margin. Jim will soon be wearing a new suit of clothes as a consequence and Jack Hubbs will be the donor.

C. Brown and family left this week for Calipatria, California, to make their home, where it is understood Mr. Brown will farm. C. It is with regret that the Enterprise chronicles his departure and that of his most estimable family and wishes them unbounded success and happiness in their new field of labor.

SIGNS PINK BOLLWORM QUARANTINE ORDER

The acting secretary of agriculture on July 21 signed the pink bollworm of cotton quarantine, applicable to Louisiana and Texas. It is effective August 1. The operation of the quarantine is restricted to areas known to be infested or suspected of possible infestation, but this restriction is conditioned upon enforcement by the states concerned of certain necessary control measures. These measures are subject to modification by the secretary of agriculture at any time. For present purposes they are summarized under six heads.

The growing crop must be under the full control of State authorities in co-operation with federal authorities, who may inspect fields as often as necessary and may require prompt destruction of any cotton in fields that are found to be infested. State and federal authorities shall exercise joint control over all cotton seed grown in the quarantined areas, shall forbid its use for planting and shall require its prompt milling within the state, and if possible within the infested or regulated area where it is grown. If any such seed must be moved out of the infested or regulated area for milling, the movement must be made under such regulations as the authorities may see fit to require. All cottonseed hulls are to be disinfected at the mills as a continuing part of the process of hulling and milling. All forms of lint cotton are also placed under full joint control of State and federal authorities. It can be shipped out of state only through designated ocean ports of the state concerned, and, if it re-enters the United States, must come by all-water route thru New York, Boston, or some other northern port designated in the permit, and shall there be treated and controlled as is foreign cotton. All cotton from the quarantined area of Louisiana must go out thru one of the ports of Galveston, Houston, Texas City, or Port Arthur.

All railway cars, boats, and other vehicles used in conveying cotton or cotton products grown in the infested districts or that are fouled with such products are subject to inspection, cleaning, and disinfection as a condition of movement within the state. The same applies to hay and other farm products, farm household goods and farm equipment.

All volunteer or other cotton growing in a non-cotton zone must be promptly destroyed.

DODSON WOULD STOP SALE OF CALOMEL

Says Calomel is Mercury and Acts Like Dynamite on Your Liver.

Dodson is making a hard fight against calomel in the South. Every druggist has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason, "Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

What is the use of working for money unless you BANK a part of it so that it will some day work for you? He who spends ALL has nothing; he who banks a part of his earnings regularly MUST prosper.

That's arithmetic. Let our bank have your spare money on deposit. Money piles up fast if you leave it in the bank and keep on adding to it.

Try it. It pays! We invite YOUR banking business.
