ALVIN YORK, HERO

Sergeant Alvin York faces the loss of his fine farm in Tennessee because he sees no way to meet a mortgage of $12,500 that will fall due this autumn. The outstanding American hero of the world war who single-handedly captured 132 Germans in the Argonne on Oct. 18, 1918, has found the drop in corn and produce prices in the last year a much tougher enemy than that of the Boche machine guns. But if he loses his farm he will retain his self-respect, as under no consideration will he exhibit himself for profit, though to do so would net him far more than enough to pay off the mortgage. His religious scruples and sense of patriotism will not permit him to capitalize his war record, which he calls "an act of Providence." And so today Alvin York is working in the fields, worrying how he will meet the mortgage and take care of his wife and Alvin, Jr. Just when is a hero a hero?—Wichita Falls Record-News.

"THEY SAY"
That phrase has blasted more character and wrecked more homes than any other in the language. Call a halt on the lecherous peddler who comes at you with his wares—"They Say!" Fire point blank at his cowardly heart. Put it straight—"Who Says?" That hits the spot. You cannot afford to miss. The person who circulates a scandal or peddles truth (one is just as good as the other), is a social vampire. He sucks life blood. No combination of words in the language has caused more trouble, pain and sorrow. Shadowy—it hits in the dark. It is anonymous. It has no personality. It cannot suffer any reaction. It is wholly irresponsible. The phrase ought to be put under the ban. It is this way: You speak to some one of a mutual acquaintance. There is a shrug of the shoulder, a lifting of the eyebrows. There is a lowering of the voice, with the preface—"They Say." Even when the gossip fails to give his authority he has put an evil idea into your mind respecting the person of whom he speaks. You cannot rid yourself of the suggestion. The impression stays. The suspicion lurks. A great wrong is done. "They Say." The ears that are eager for that always find a mouth to pass it on to other eager ears. The assassination of character has begun. What "They Say" may sometimes be a true message. But is it a necessary message? Will it make the old world better or worse by the telling of it? It is very plain that much suffering and sorrow might be prevented by cutting these ugly words clear out of your vocabulary. If a man or a woman won't cut them out, you cut them out. And be quick!—Ex.

No Worms in a Healthy Child
All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. 60c per bottle (Advertisement)

"THEY KNOW I'M HERE."
The writer lacks considerable of being a couple of hundred years old, but he can remember when a storekeeper (not a merchant) would say: "Oh, they know I'm here, so I don't need to advertise." We supposed that idea had been buried along with Old John Barleycorn and other obsolete things. But it came to light the other day when an Alpine "storekeeper" (not a merchant) dragged the cold clammy corpse from its grave and held it up to an Avalanche ad solicitor.
Now wouldn't that pull the cork out of your great grandmother's bottle of smelling salts? Geewhiz. That reminds us of the fellow who said he knew where the cemetery was, but he wasn't doing anything to get him there.
But in this modern day live men believe in advertising. Of course they realize that, like the fellow said about whiskey—before the drainage system was established by Volstead in this country—it was all good, only some kinds were better than others.
Nowadays the only man who is beating the income tax man is the fellow who believes the other fellow should advertise heavily, and when he brought the crowd to town, the non-advertiser would reap a part of the benefit—and it is true this plan is worked in many cases, but, of course not in Alpine.
The man who is letting the other fellow do the advertising is the man who is letting the other fellow pay the income taxes, and there is no getting away from it, bad as we hate to pay the income tax, we're all glad to be able to pay some.—Alpine Avalanche.

OH, THE SHAME OF IT!
Just think of an American ambassador asking a prime minister of the old world if he could go home, or anywhere else! A few days ago at the recent meeting of the Supreme Council in Paris when Premier Lloyd George announced that he was going to return to London, Ambassador Harvey said to him:
"Do you think I ought to return to London too?" Lloyd George answered: "I am afraid I must leave an important decision as that to yourself and Washington."

Now think of the ambassador of this great country to England asking such a question. The people of this country have been humiliated at this fawning before English aristocracy in a manner they will not soon forget, and President Harding will be derelict to his duty and stand in the light of endorsing Harvey's taking orders from England if he does not recall Colonel Harvey. If he don't he will be surprised if he is a candidate for reelection.
We now stand as a vassal to England.—Alpine Avalanche.

TRIANGLE IN HOUSTON'S FIRST LOVE

General Sam Houston married Eliza Allen, a Nashville belle, in 1829, when he was governor of Tennessee. A few months after the marriage he suddenly separated from his wife without a word of explanation, resigned the governorship and went among the Indians. Three years later he threw his lot with the Texans. Under his leadership they thrashed the Mexicans and made a republic of Texas. Houston was not content; he caused the annexation of Texas to the United States. In April, 1836, he married Moffette, having been divorced from his first wife, who exercised an ennobling and restraining force over him, was from Alabama. His youngest son, Temple Houston, the picturesque Oklahoma lawyer, died August 18, 1905, at Woodward, Okla.

Long after General Houston's death according to a newspaper story, the mystery of his separation from his first wife was solved by means of some private letters which fell into the hands of his heirs.

Eliza Allen, his first wife, before she met Houston, had been engaged to a Tennessean named Douglas. When Houston fell in love with Eliza her ambitious parents caused her to break with poor Douglas and accept the famous young governor. Still loving Douglas, she married Houston. And three months later Houston, had, somehow, found out that his adoration was lavished on a woman who had been sold to him by her parents and who cared for another man.

Houston, heartbroken at the discovery, behaved in heroic fashion. He gave up everything, left his home and high office, took himself wholly out of Eliza's life, and bore without contradiction the vile rumors that were circulated about him. Eliza, after her husband had wrecked his career for her sake, obtained a divorce on the ground of abandonment and married Douglas.

The above bit of history, particularly interesting to the people of our own section of country is clipped from the Kansas City Times of the 25th instant.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

Prepared For The Enterprise By The First National Bank In St. Louis.

The American Petroleum Institute reports that in the last week of July and the first week in August (after six weeks of consecutive declines) oil production shows an increase in daily average. This increase is mainly due to the activities in the Southwestern fields.

Recent estimates place the known resources of the world at 43 billion barrels. The oil reserves of the United States are placed at 7 billion barrels, which at current rate of consumption, can meet our domestic requirements for only thirteen years. The United States is at present dependent upon foreign resources to the extent of 20 percent and this percentage will continue to increase.

It is reported that there is a very large number of wells whose daily output is so small as to necessitate their abandonment because at current quotations operations cannot turn out profitable.

In holding back production, draining by neighboring leases often occurs, and this is the problem which producers must bear in mind in choosing between storing their product and curtailing output. Storage involves heavy expense, existing facilities being inadequate, while the construction of new ones would prove unprofitable. A depressed market makes financing a very difficult problem to solve.

The Journal of Commerce reports that the flow of capital into the oil industry during July was the smallest of any month since December 1918 when there was a sharp slump owing to cessation of hostilities. The aggregate investment of new companies whose authorized capital was $50,000 or larger represented $39 millions in July as compared with $53 millions in June and $117 millions in July 1920. During the first seven months of the current year, 614 companies have been formed with a total authorized capital of $851 millions as against 2,033 concerns with an investment of $1,660 millions in the same period of 1920.

BEADED HEADPIECE

Crochet needles are flying all over the land these days as American women design many new and pleasing creations in sweaters, slip-overs and scarfs. But it was the versatile Lydia Lipkowska, famous Russian prima donna who appeared opposite Caruso at the Metropolitan in New York, who gives us something new in this beautiful headpiece crocheted in beads. She has just been signed by Henry Savage to sing the revival of the famous Merry Widow.

A PATHETIC SCENE

A sad thing was witnessed at the T. & P. Station Tuesday when Mrs. Baker waited for the Santa Fe to leave for Carlsbad where she was to lay to rest her only son and support who was killed in a wreck when a train crashed into the truck he was riding some ten days ago at Riverside, California.

The truck was dragged some fifty feet, according to Mrs. Baker, when the wheels were torn loose, the truck turned upside down and the gas exploded which burned the young man to his death.

The mother, a lovely looking, middle aged lady, was alone with the casket and stood near it as she was waiting for the train to leave, which would bear her beloved son and only support to its last resting place, unable to bear her grief in silence.

It was a noble son who had "always been mother's baby" although six feet a real man.

The young man was reared in Carlsbad and both the Carlsbad papers speak in the highest terms of both mother and son.

May the God who gave the son comfort and bless the afflicted mother.

VALUE OF SOIL SURVEY WORK

"Four years of soil survey work in Texas done by the State Experiment Station, cooperating with the Bureau of Soils of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has cost less than $1.00 per year for each 500 people living in Texas."

Observing that two field men cover a county of several hundred square miles in six to eight months, Mr. Carter suggests: "If every person in the state contributed but one cent a year for soil survey work, Texas would soon be one of the foremost states in having an accurate knowledge of its many and varied fertile soils."

"The soil survey is a basic study of soil resources. The maps and reports published give fundamental and complete information as to soil resources of the county or region surveyed. The information gathered in a soil survey deals with the practical agricultural use to be made of the facts discovered and are written up in plain simple style and distributed without charge to those interested."

"The report deals with each soil in a county and gives a description of the texture, structure, depth and color together with the topography and drainage. The suitability of each soil for different crops is given. Where field observations and the experience of farmers have shown that certain practices aid in maintaining soil productivity, these results are distinctly brought out in the report."

"The soil survey serves the farmer. The information is issued by the Experiment Station as a foundation in advising farmers concerning many agricultural problems. County demonstration agents are also aided in their work by the use of the soil survey reports and maps."

"The soil survey records are also largely utilized by many people who desire information concerning the land and agriculture in parts of the country with which they are unacquainted. In the latter case they are about the only absolutely unbiased basis of information for the prospective home-seeker. As farm lands become scarcer the eyes of thousands of people in other states are turning toward Texas and it is of great importance that the lands of Texas may be made known to them in such a way as to enable them to locate soils best suited for the type of agriculture in which they wish to engage. Thus the soil survey will be of untold aid in assisting in the settlement of the large areas of Texas lands and in bringing the vast domain of our state into the highest utilization of her natural agricultural resources."

"The actual soil survey work is done by experienced field men who use long augers to bore to a depth of three feet in order to learn the character of both soil and subsoil. Samples of the soil are collected from several depths by the field men and forwarded to Washington and to the Chemist of the Experiment Station at College Station, where laboratory examinations and analyses are made to determine their value as well as their fertilizer and tillage requirements."

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Last Sunday a most interesting tennis tournament was pulled off on the local courts between players from Roswell, Pecos and Carlsbad for prizes offered by the Commercial Club for winners in doubles and the Godbey loving cup for the winner of singles. On account of so many players participating the tournament was not completed and was postponed by the management until Sunday, Sept. 4, when the prizes will be awarded the victors.

J. B. Morris, of the local club, participated in exactly 104 games during the day, which is probably a record and only one with a strong physique could undergo the strain.

Morris and Marquess are in line to play finals with the Browning brothers, of Pecos, and in singles all have been eliminated except Browning and Sheldon, of Roswell.

The scores: Monahan vs. Sheldon, 6-1, 6-3. Morris vs. Weldon, 6-3, 3-6, 10-8. W. H. Browning vs. Bassett, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. Daniels vs. Marquess, 6-3, 6-3. Gragg vs. McConnell, 5-7, 3-6. Buckley vs. B. WANTS MONEY ON IRRIGATED FARM

The editor does not know where anyone could borrow a dollar on anything, but it may be that other readers do. If so they here have an opportunity to lend a helping hand. The following letter is self explanatory:

Dallas, Texas, Aug 29, 1921.

Editor of Enterprise, Pecos, Texas,

Dear Sir:—

I have 80 acres of good land 3 miles south of Barstow. I want to put in loan company for 2, 3 or 5 years to the amount of ($1500.00) fifteen hundred dollars, have you loan companys there that will consider the proposition? Will be glad you hand this to such party. Do not care whether loan company or individual, rather the individual. This land is known as the "Crumble and Dow farm," 80 acres in cultivation.

Will be glad to hear from someone at once.

Very truly, J. R. ANDERSON, 4841 Worth St., Dallas, Texas.

Judge Landis says that the acquitted Black Sox are nevertheless through with organized baseball. If they were not through with it we suspect that a number of the patrons of baseball would be through with it. It would have been the end of decent interest in the game. Judge Landis took his baseball position to give organized baseball a character both with the Black Sox back in the game the both would have looked worse than if it had been drawn from the Missouri river in flood time and the country would have been ready for a return to the old foot race game, the crookedest thing known in sport. Baseball is already hippodromed so that it is a circus rather than a sport. With Landis keeping it straight it may hold its place. If it goes crooked the organized part of it will be run out of existence by the semi-pro and amateur teams.—Chicago Tribune.

It is related of a Fort Stockton man who with his wife were delayed on the road to Alpine by something that went wrong with the machine that while he was under the auto trying to find out the trouble and suffering from the heat and temper, that a stranger came along and offered the usual customary remark—"Need any help." The other man lifted his grimy head from under the hood and replied: "Yes, I wish you would answer my wife's questions while I am fixing this infernal machine."—Alpine Avalanche.

AN OLD COMPLAINT.

A rural editor received this question from one of his readers:

"What is the matter with my hens? Every morning I find one of them laid out stiff and cold on the hen-house floor."

Next day this answer appeared:

"Your fowls are suffering from death. It is an old complaint. The only treatment that we can prescribe is burial."

BISON STILL ROAM WESTERN PLAINS

The American bison is doing very nicely now. It bids fair to be around for many years in small number for posterity to look upon as the one thing typical of America. This is due to the foresight of Uncle Sam, who didn't want to see the species become extinct so set aside a national range in Washington state where Warden Andrew Hodges keeps guard over them. Hodges is shown here, while in the background can be seen part of the big herd which roams at leisure over the plains.

A CURIOUS DREAM

I dreamed one night, as fellers will when everything around is still, an' what I saw it seemed to me, was true to life as it could be.

It pleased me lots, to realize that I'd been wafted to the skies, where everything was bright an' fair, with music soundin' everywhere.

Each buddin' flower an' shinin' face that filled the mighty boundless space, was chantin' chords so powerful sweet, I really never seen the beat!

I told an angel, standin' near, that I lived in another sphere, an' bein' a stranger thataway, I couldn't think of much to say an' while I stood to watch it all, I felt concerned, for fear I'd fall.

The angel saw that I was scared, an' told me not to be afeard, remarkin' as he took my arm, that heaven was mighty free of harm.

"This home of ours," he says to me, "was built to last eternally. It's underpinned with love of God, an' latticed with the chastenin' rod; the mortar mixed with blood an' tears,—it ort to stand, a billion years. . . . I reckon you would never guess that heaven is built on man's distress, an' gained by one unfaillin' plan,—THE GOOD-WILL OF YER FELLER-MAN. . . ."

. . . . I waked at early dawn of day, an hated that I couldn't stay,—so I resolved, right then an' there, to treat my friends an' neighbors square!

Yr. true friend, Uncle John.

This new picture just taken of the Pan-American Building at Washington shows the beautiful structure all ready for President Harding's International Disarmament Conference, scheduled to start Nov. 11. DAIRY COUNTRY PROSPERS

Farm specialists are urging more and more that farmers of the country break away from the one-crop system, insisting that the southern dairyman prospers while the cotton grower is asking loans and that merchants in towns surrounding milk producing districts report business to be exceptionally good.

The country about Fort Worth offers exceptionally fine opportunity for the dairying industry, as is attested by its steady growth in Tarrant county and other portions of North Texas.

Business people in a western Pennsylvania town which became interested in promoting dairying and improved agriculture generally have had an experience which should be illuminating to southern bankers who have not been converted to diversified farming.

In five years there was built up a large membership in various dairying associations; 43 members in the cow-testing associations, 96 in bull associations, 187 in breeders' and 698 in creamery patrons' associations.

During the year ended June 30, 1920, the creamery paid out $410,125.15 to its patrons.

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER

The local newspaper must always be the mainstay of any advertising campaign designed to catch the eye of the masses of the people—the buying public.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS

"How prone we are to forget," says Editor Ransome of the Cleburne Enterprise. "We do not live alone.

People are prone to forget favors, but not so likely to forget an ill deed. And yet the latter is frequently unintentional and often exists more in fancy than in fact.

It is easy to travel in friendliness, remembering favors and forgetting ill deeds, if the habit be formed.

But a bright smile, a cheery word, a courteous act or a good deed will travel much farther.

'THE REPUBLICAN ROUTE NO NORMALCY, OR OVER THE HILLS TO THE POORHOUSE'

At least enough of the inhabitants of these United States were disgruntled at President Woodrow Wilson, under whose administration there was greater prosperity than at any other time in the history of the nation.

More than five months ago Warren G. Harding was sworn in as president of the United States. Behind him there is a republican senate and a republican house of representatives.

Now the question is: How far have we gone on that question? If any human being can put his finger down on a single achievement that has helped to lift a burden from the back of a struggling producer or laborer between Bangor, Maine and Del Rio, Texas, we want to see the length of his finger and the spot where he is going to put it down.

People are prone to forget favors, but not so likely to forget an ill deed. And yet the latter is frequently unintentional and often exists more in fancy than in fact.

It is plain enough to see now that we have been inflated with the hope of a false republican promise.

as they are behind great wealth, able to buy everything under the sun their hearts desire, they can afford to clamp down the lid until grim starvation makes the helpless throw up their hands and surrender.

Congress too, has been waited upon and those who were chosen as servants of the masses there, have been made the slaves of the classes.

Here in America we have production; there is no famine, no war. Enough has been raised for all people and the vaults of the banks never bulged with so much money in the history of the country.

It was to meet this crisis that the present administration was called to power. But it has gone against it about as effectively as a Mexican billygoat could go against a mogul engine.

Uncle John's Josh

MEN'S COATS WILL BE TIGHTER THIS FALL BUT THE MEN WON'T BE.

FAITH IS NEEDED.

Lack of faith is responsible for adverse business conditions, according to the American Lumberman, which points out that there should be no cause for complaint by the people of the richest nation in the world, having abundant harvests, which are crowding already bursting granaries, having millions of acres nearing readiness to yield their annual wealth of grain, and with unnumbered flocks and herds upon a thousand hills.

It is asked if the farmers are likely to stop buying lumber, machinery and other commodities and if they are going to remain content with inadequate and often run-down buildings? Are the residents of cities and towns going to stop building homes in the face of a shortage of one and one-half million dwellings? Are no more factories, stores, hotels, theaters, churches and schools to be built? Can the railroads postpone indefinitely the replacement of failing equipment? Are all the normal processes of life in a nation of 100,000,000 people, accustomed to the high standards of living, suddenly to stop? It is well known and not denied that the people of America will keep on buying and building in steadily increasing volume; marrying and setting up new homes, buying new furniture, machinery, automobiles, clothing and shoes; demanding more and better transportation facilities and everything else required by intelligent and ambitious people.

It is faith we need, according to the Lumberman, which says: The trouble with business, at the present stage of affairs, is essentially a lack of that faith which is the twin brother of confidence and the inseparable companion of courage. In one of the greatest chapters of the greatest of books we are told that "without faith it is impossible to please God," which profound spiritual truth has a material and practical application, for without faith no great achievement has ever been wrought. Faith, declared the Great Teacher, will even remove mountains. "Nonsense" says the iconoclast, yet not many years ago

A man went down to Panama, where many a man has died, To slit the sliding mountains, and lift the eternal tide.

A man stood up in Panama, and the mountains stood aside.

Faith removed mountains, and built the Panama canal—the faith of a great statesman and great engineer. Money, machinery and men were merely the agencies through which faith triumphed over apparently unsurmountable obstacles. Faith and America are almost synonymous. By faith Columbus turned the brows of his tiny caravels westward and when his terrified and almost mutinous crew implored him to turn back, each day gave the unchanging command "Sail on!" Three hundred years have passed since by faith the Pilgrims "moored their bark on the wild New England shore." By faith the signers of the Declaration of Independence took their lives in their hands and defied King George the Third. By faith Washington and his ragged Continentals endured the hardships of Valley Forge, and ultimately achieved our national independence. By faith the pioneers subdued the wilderness, and by faith the empire builders of a later generation linked East and West, North and South, with highways of steel.

As has been said faith is the essential thing—but faith without works is dead. The only way to revive industry is for everyone to resume buying all along the line, thus enabling the railroads and the manufacturers and distributors in all lines to give employment to the thousands of men now idle. Not only is a great economic loss being sustained through the decreased or vanished buying power of these hordes of idle men, but they constitute a grave menace to our national well being. We cannot afford in the present unsettled and inflammable condition of the world, to augment the forces of discontent, crime and pernicious radicalism of every sort, through wide-spread unemployment.

In proportion as a man's faith and courage are strengthened his productive capacity is increased, whether he be a brain worker or a hand worker. The man who is depressed and apprehensive of the future unconsciously slows down. Have faith, be courageous, be optimistic and you will inspire your associates, your customers and your employees.—Fort Worth Record.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

The State of Texas, To the Sheriff or any Constable of Reeves County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon the unknown heirs of E. Meyersburg by making publication of this citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Reeves County, to be held at the Court House thereof, in Pecos, Texas, on the third Monday in November, 1921, the same being the 21st day of November, 1921, then and there to answer a petition, filed in said Court on the 29th day of August, 1921, in a suit, numbered on the Docket of said Court No. 2159 wherein Ella Fraser is Plaintiff, and The Unknown Heirs of E. Meyersburg are defendants, and said petition alleging that E. Meyersburg is dead, but before his death, he made, executed and delivered to plaintiff's father, G. M. That the said G. M. Fraser paid the said E. Meyersburg for said property, and it then became the property of the said G. M. Fraser. Plaintiff further alleges that she has had and held peaceable and adverse possession of said Lot No. 12, in Block No. 12, in the Town of Pecos, Reeves County, Texas, being the property claimed in this petition, using and enjoying the same for a

Herein fail not, but have before said Court, on the said first day of the next term thereof, this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

FARMER BAKER GIVES YANKEES PUNCH

"HOME-RUN" BAKER.

Even with the mighty Babe Ruth in their lineup, it was a farmer of Maryland who pulled the N. Y. Yanks up in the race for the pennant. "Home-run" Baker, formerly of Philadelphia Athletics, is the man. Out of season Baker is a farmer working his own place at Trappe, Md. His steady, consistent playing and hard hitting gave the Yanks the punch they needed when he was persuaded this year to give up the farm for a season and come back to baseball. He does not smoke nor chew nor drink. He is 35 years old, and even in the city goes to bed before nine and is up before daylight every day.
