FREE RAILROAD PASS ISSUED TO ELEVEN LUNGERS ASS'N

The following story from the Dallas News will be especially interesting to readers of the ENTERPRISE in this section since Chas. B. Eddy is well known by many of our citizens. Eddy, New Mexico, now known as Carlsbad, if the writer is not mistaken, was named after Mr. Chas. B. Eddy. Anyway, whether you know any of the parties or not, the article is interesting and pathetic. It follows:

Twenty-one years ago eleven "lungers" who had migrated to Fort Stanton, N. M., with the hope of lengthening their days, believing that in union there is strength, formed themselves into an association with the objective of getting a free ride to El Paso and return, so that they might enjoy the then popular comedy, "R U A Mason?" Having organized, they proceeded to forward a letter to C. B. Eddy, president of the El Paso & Northwestern Railway, asking for passes. In due course of the mails they received an answer—and a pass for "J. Ross Thomas and Eleven Lungers." Both of the letters are unique, abounding in wit and humor, treating a very serious subject in a very light way. Copies of the correspondence came to the Dallas News recently through J. D. Frank of Dallas.

The writer of the letter to Mr. Eddy was Oliver P. Newman, who subscribes himself as "Grand Recorder of Hemorrhages, etc." Newman, and also J. Ross Thomas, who subscribed himself as "Imperial Hard Cougher, President," got what they went to New Mexico for, and they are still in the land of the living. Newman was on the legislative staff of the San Antonio Express and Houston Post at Austin, in 1904-5. Afterwards he was connected with various newspapers in Northern states. While at St. Joseph, Mo., he wrote a notable series of political fiction stories for the Saturday Evening Post. He served as one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia by appointment of President Wilson, but resigned that position to serve in the World War, in which he was a Major of field artillery. Since the war he has practiced law at Washington, but during the political campaigns he works with the Democratic National Committee and is engaged in such service at this time.

J. Ross Thomas is the commandant of a military school in Roswell, N. M. The text of the letters follows:

THE REQUEST

Amalgamated Association of Consolidated Lungers of New Mexico, Fort Stanton, N. M.—Mr. C. B. Eddy, Esq., President El Paso & Northwestern Railway, Alamo, N. M.: Honorable Sir—We the Amalgamated Association of Consolidated Lungers of New Mexico, port of Fort Stanton, commonly known as the Officer's Mess, take our pen in hand to indite you these few lines, which you may use to hang clothes on or fish with, whichever you prefer.

Each and every signer of this document is a lunker, duly qualified to hold membership in our short-lived but gallant society, having met the requirements of cough, expectation, hemorrhage, night sweats, etc., laid down by the rules of the order. Sad as it may seem to one living in the gay metropolis before the bright light of civilization, progress and modern advancement, no member of our association has experienced the joy of witnessing, hearing and absorbing a theatrical performance in the last twelve months, one year ago being the date upon which our youngest member forsook the delights of the society for the quest of health on the isolated plateau of New Mexico. But sadder yet, oh, much, much sadder, is the fact that some of us must, before many moons are born to blush unseen, traverse the unknown path to that great beyond where all good lungers go.

Trust you have borne with us gently and patiently till now, we will hasten to tell you where you come in. We desire you to cause to be issued to each and every one of us, or to the society as a body, certain pasteboard credentials which will be honored by your train robbers—we could say conductors—for our travel to El Paso and return from Carlsbad. Our claim to the right to have this transportation is based solely and wholly on our blow-in-the-bottle, undelivered, ninety nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent pure nerve, crust or gall, whichever you wish to call it. (It makes no difference to us so long as we get the passes.)

Before acting on this modest request we beg of you to consider. Think of the great service you, as the representative of a great and moneyed corporation, will be doing for a band of one-lunged semi-comatose, one foot in the grave has-beens. Such an opportunity may not come to you again in a lifetime. Think with what a clear conscience you can retire to your more or less downy couch if you grant us this little boon. Think, oh think how, when that great day of reckoning comes, you can hold up your head among the elect and eloquently say:

"I seen my duty and I done it!" We desire to assure you that you need not hesitate for fear of attendant casualties. We number among us four doctors, a minister and an undertaker, all of whom will travel with us. An extra coffin or two shall go on the same train, in "the baggage coach ahead," and our medical staff will be supplied with the Murphy apparatus for stopping hemorrhage. Each member will go armed, as usual, with two spit cups.

We desire to go to El Paso on Nov. 29 and return on Dec. 1, taking in, while there, the production of "R U A Mason?" If you can acquiesce in our little suggestion regarding railroad fare, you will be elected to honorary membership in our association and fondly spoken of and remembered while we live. Such a service could not be forgotten; our "esprit de corps" would not permit it. On the other hand, as the man said when he changed his cuffs, if you "refuse meh," we fear, very, very much that, when we present ourselves at the ticket office of your great pathway of commerce at Capitan and the agent asks for money, it will be the first time in our lives we were ever unable to "cough up."

Hoping with all our lungs you will do your modest share toward helping a little ray of sunshine to filter through the gloom into our dark and shadowy lives, we remain, honorable sir, breathlessly yours,

J. ROSS THOMAS,

Imperial Hard Cougher, President.
OLIVER P. NEWMAN,
Grand Recorder of Hemorrhages, Secretary.

Members of the association: H. G. Eberts, M. D.; J. W. Laws, M. D.; Reginald R. Walker, M. D.; Thomas J. O'Reilly, M. D.; Chalmers P. Dyker, Whitney M. Stevens, F. Beale Thompson, J. I. Buckner, G. B. Wilcox.

THE REPLY

Mr. J. Ross Thomas, Imperial Hard Cougher, A.A. of C.L., Fort Stanton, N. M.: Unfortunate Sir—I have received your most "touching" petition, and my admiration for unmitigated gall has never before been so fully inspired nor so thoroughly exercised. You appear to proceed upon the theory the mountaineer advanced when he refused fare to the conductor: "You've got up steam and you're going away."

Now, there would have been nothing amiss in your asking a half rate, since, possessing but one lung, you would be entitled to such consideration by the rules of the road. But the El Paso & Northwestern was built for your benefit. The stockholders of this soulless corporation would expect no greater joy than to realize that at last an opportunity has arrived to move your admirable association. It is the climax of the philanthropic motives that first led us to lay our stool upon the New Mexico desert.

Damage suits may come and go, trains may be dented and snow drifts abound, but such trifles may easily be forgotten in the delight of acquiescing in your polite and most artistic noloquid. We cough up, not bugs, but cardboard. Ride and rest easy. Promise that if the train is wrecked, or you are sufficiently shaken up by accident to change the good lung all over to the bad side, you will each and all sue the road for not less than $42,500 for personal damages.

Words are inadequate to express the pleasure we feel in complying with your request. We trust you will drink from the full cup of joy and that mirth is the only thing with which you will be filled during the brief moment you loiter in the daze of city life in El Paso.

For men who already feel the daisies growing over them, you seem a cheerful association. Others could yet emulate your example of calm yet mirthful resignation to the long journey you expect to take soon after your pleasant, though enthused us with admiration for the huffer, ride over our road. You have so many cause in which our road is operated that we regret we can not, under present conditions, extend our line to the Pearly Gates in time to give you passes via St. Peter's turnstile. However, we trust you will make the most of opportunities such as ours to continue in their noble missions. Even a lunker may serve some purpose in life. A man with one lung is an ideal "deadhead." He possesses such talent for getting something for nothing that he ought to breathe easy—but he doesn't. He will be the first to awaken when the great horn toots on the final day. He will ask for something before the last echo dies away, and he will get it. All things come to the man with a cough, and when he forms himself into an association he is invincible and irresistible. He is the only person in existence who can draw interest on an overdraft at the bank. The world stands aghast when he coughs, especially when he coughs "in his cups."

When grapes grow on thorn trees, and figs on thistles; when vinegar is sweet to a child, when water runs uphill, when the sun becomes an ice plant, when Russell Sage spends 30 cents, or Bryan is elected President; then will a Lunker meet with the first denial of his request.

With the best wishes for a few days' prolongation of your lives and hoping you may enjoy "R U A Mason" to the thirty-third degree of pleasure, I remain faithfully yours,

CHARLES B. EDDY,
President.

TO MEET IN EL PASO THE 25TH

Information has reached Pecos that the commissioners who are to settle the division of the waters of the Pecos river between the states of New Mexico and Texas will meet in El Paso on the 25th instant. The action of this commission it is hoped, will settle the matter and the work of constructing the Red Bluff reservoir will then go merrily on.

President Harding in a T. R. Role

President Harding at Cedar City, Utah, on his Alaskan trip, donned cowboy attire, recalling to Westerners Roosevelt's great liking for "roughing it" clothes. The President rode through the new Zion National Park, where scenic beauty is said to be the most wonderful of the great West. The famous "Angel's Landing" rock can be seen in the picture back of the President.

TWO CANDIDATES ENTER RACE FOR MAYOR OF PECOS

The posting of notices on Friday of last week by Mayor pro tem S. M. Prewitt, calling for an election on July 28th for the purpose of electing a mayor to fill the unexpired term of Mayor Ben Palmer, deceased, has so far brought out two candidates for that office, namely: B. A. Toliver, and John Ross, young son of Judge Jas. F. Ross.

Friends of both parties have been hard at work soliciting votes. It is understood that the Pecos Volunteer Fire Department boys are supporting Ross while those who believe in dividing the honors and giving recognition to others than Judge Ross and his immediate family are supporting Toliver. From what the ENTERPRISE can determine from street talk it will be a hotly contested race and each of these gentlemen will make a very creditable race.

Mr. Toliver has been in the mercantile business in Pecos for several years and has been identified with every interest which had as its purpose the upbuilding of the town and country.

John Ross was reared in Pecos and since graduating from the Pecos high school has been studying law in the office of his father.

BLONDE BESS OPINES

Mr. Tuff must be an awful honest man. He told me he worked in a Turkish bath—and never yet had taken one.

BROWNING WINS IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

For the second time Walter Browning took the honors in the tennis tournament on July 4th at Carlsbad and again will his name appear as winner on the loving cup. The next and last siege will, if he wins, entitle him to the full ownership of this cup. Of this portion of the sports indulged in on the Fourth at Carlsbad the Current has the following to say:

"While not as much interest was manifested in the tennis tournament this year as last, there was a good list of entries from Carlsbad, and Pecos and Artesia were also represented. Hagerman had one player here, Pete Losey, but he would not enter as they have not been practicing at Hagerman, and tennis is a game where practice counts for much.

"As was expected, Walter Browning, of Pecos, carried off the honors in singles, and will have his name engraved on the Pecos Valley loving cup for the second time, and he has only to win another year for the cup to become his permanent property. However, he did not win this year in a walkaway, as both Morris and Etter made him play his best in order to win. Another year and Etter should be able to defeat the best of them."

Miss Nellie Wilcox, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. R. P. Hicks, left Monday for Ranger, where she will visit another sister before returning to her home at Lubbock, where she is superintendent of nurses in the West Texas Hospital.

HIGHWAY ROUTE THRU PECOS STILL BEING WRANGLLED OVER

Harry Anderson and Bud Thompson this week made a trip to Monahans and Grandfalls. Mr. Anderson states that the Bankhead Highway is just about completed from Monahans to Poyote and is in splendid shape.

To make this a continuous stretch from Big Spring to El Paso only needs the completion of the strip of road from Poyote to the Pecos river in Ward county, and from the Pecos river to a connection with the east end of the completed road just beyond Hermosa. Arrangements have been completed for the construction of these two stretches and it appears that all that is now retarding the work is the contention of residents of Pecos as to which street the Highway will pass over through the town. Private interests are making the struggle of their lives in an effort to have the Highway pass by their personal property and thereby delaying the work which would mean so much to every citizen of the town and county.

It is said by some that this contention may result in the Highway Commission refusing altogether to build the road through the town at all and thereby cost the taxpayers some four or five thousand dollars for this work. Whether this be true or not this editor does not know, but he does know that the best interests of the town and taxpayers are being impaired by this wrangling.

ELECTRIC GIN IS NEARING COMPLETION

The Pecos electric gin is about completed and most of the machinery is set, and will be ready to go when the first bale of cotton comes upon the scene. This, when completed, will be by far the best and most complete gin outfit in this section of the country. Everything will be propelled by electricity and housed in an adobe-concrete structure, which makes it practically fireproof. Everything is brand new, just from the factory, and is being installed as fast as possible by that expert gin man, J. W. Rheinhardt.

The ENTERPRISE editor hopes to pay a visit to this model plant next week and give a more detailed account of the business.

A. B. C. CLUB

The A. B. C. Club held an informal meeting this week at the residence of the president, Miss Janie Drummond. Extensive preparations were discussed for the initiation of new members at the next meeting. The weird and occult ceremony of initiation into this organization requires serious observation and mystified treatment. The novitiates are sworn to inviolate secrecy as to the activities of the members and other intricate obligations are supposed to be observed with religious fervor. The members abhor the hooded variety of secret organizations, do not keep any tar and feathers on hand and only wear night gowns when it is proper to wear them.

TOYAH CORRESPONDENT GIVES ENCOURAGING NEWS OF CUL- BERSON CO. WELLS--OTHER NEWS

STUCK IN SAND FOR ONE NIGHT WITHOUT FOOD AND WATER

Stuck in the sand, without food and water for a night, was the experience that befell a party of Pecos people on their way to a ranch in New Mexico.

The party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Ritz, their daughter, Mary, and sons, James and Francis, left Saturday noon for the ranch of Mrs. Caroline's brother-in-law, Mr. Goedeke, in New Mexico.

At Porterville the party got off the road, making a wrong turn, and after a few miles ran into huge patches of sand. With everybody pushing, the gallant Ford coughed its way to a ranch, where water was supplied by the owner, and the car was filled up for the rest of the journey.

After leaving the ranch, darkness overtook them and they became hopelessly lost. To add to this, the car was laboring through deep sand, and the entire party, with the exception of the driver, were compelled to push. The sand was so deep that walking was a hardship, but with the united efforts of the party, the car made about five miles before it died, red hot, not a drop of water in the radiator.

Because of all the pushing and exertion the party had gone through, they were naturally thirsty, but not a drop of water for either drinking purposes or for the car was to be had. Neither was there food, nor were there facilities for sleeping.

Facing the situation as best they could, the party settled down for the long wait to dawn. Only those who have gone through such an experience will realize the uncomfortableness of the situation.

After the hours had slowly dragged by, and the sun had come up, they found themselves only about three-quarters of a mile from a ranch, where water and food was soon forthcoming, and directions given that put them on the way to the Goedeke ranch, three miles distant.

Ranchers living in that section were astonished that they got through, saying no car had passed over that stretch of sand for three years. However, Mrs. Caroline states that she does not care to attempt that stretch for thrice three years again, and not then if she knows what she is doing.

The party returned to Pecos Monday, having enjoyed their visit at the ranch very much, but not caring at all for the night they spent on the New Mexico desert.

DISTINGUISHED CHARACTER HERE

The ENTERPRISE editor is a busy personage and often when he puts off a duty for a day he puts it off indefinitely. His memory is not so good as it "uster" be, anyway.

Last week Pecos had a distinguished visitor in the person of Capt. John M. Hughes and the ENTERPRISE deferred writing up his visit and forgot it altogether. Capt. Hughes was for years in the ranger service and his duties called him to Pecos so often that he became close friends with many of our residents of a few years back, all of whom speak of him as a real man, brave, honest, upright and faithful to a duty and friends. A few years back, he stated, "I laid off the gun never to buckle it on." Later he was offered the office of Chief of Police of El Paso but refused. Of this gentleman the Midland Reporter of last week had the following to say:

"Capt. John M. Hughes, who for 28 years gave loyal service as a Texas Ranger, was in Midland the first of the week on his way home to Yaleta. He had been attending the Ross and Good trials at Lubbock, in which he felt an interest because it had been in his Company that H. L. Roberson had served as a ranger.

"Though over 70 years of age, Captain Hughes is still a healthy, active man, and since he resigned from ranger service in 1921, has been farming near Yaleta. His greatest exploit, back in the earlier days of our State's history, was the pursuit across three states, and subsequent capture of 3 noted horse-thieves. In the performance of duties such as this he has been wounded over 20 times, but seemingly with more lives than the proverbial cat, he still lives.

Despite Captain Hughes' reputation as a "bad man," and one quick to avenge the law, he retained always his gentler nature. He is a devout Christian and has taught a Sunday school class for years. Truly a remarkable man, well liked and respected by his many friends."

Mrs. Milo Burlingame, of Magdalena, New Mexico, arrived in Pecos Sunday to attend her daughter, Mrs. Jimmie Crawford, who has been ill the past week. Mrs. Burlingame will make a stay of several weeks before returning to her home.

The Flood well, being drilled on the ranch of McAlpine & Grisham, by a diamond core drill has reached a depth of 2600 feet after encountering two excellent showings the last of which at 2100 feet attracted a great deal of attention. Now drilling in black shale alternating with sand and expect to enter the hard black lime within 500 feet. Excellent progress is being made on this well.

The Sayles well has temporarily shut down for repairs and will resume drilling this week at about 3000 feet. Owing to various obstacles slower progress is being made, but J. D. Wesner is on the job all the time and is pushing it as fast as would be possible.

The Lawney interests of the Tatum well is still negotiating with former associates and hopes to resume drilling soon.

The well of the Toyah Central of Philadelphia five miles from Toyah to the northeast is expected to resume drilling at an early date and it is rumored will be finished with the diamond core drill.

The Owen No. 2, according to reliable sources, will resume drilling within two weeks or as soon as drilling preparations at the rig can be made.

Another deep test for Toyah is reported but not confirmed and development is steadily pushing on with grim determination.

PECOS FIELD OIL NEWS

F. M. Berry came in from California, Monday at the Bell well where he will remain until this well is either brought in or every effort to do so has proved in vain. All the pumps for the clearing of the hole of water is now on the ground and the casing and tubing ordered some week or so ago is expected to arrive daily. Upon its arrival no time will be spared in installing same and clearing the well of water when it is expected that the strong gas pressure will bring the oil to the top. Everything has been put in tip-top shape and all is set for the casing to be inserted.

The ENTERPRISE has had no report from the Ramsey No. 1 well and suspects that little if anything is being accomplished at that site. A letter from B. J. O'Reilly this week states that he expected to be home from Niagra Falls in a few days prepared to push things in the way of clearing that well of all obstacles. It is believed all that is necessary to bring in this well is to clear the hole and a good portion of that work has been accomplished already by O'Reilly and Slack.

H. Nystrom, one of the men behind the core drill test for oil being made in Culberson county, was a Pecos visitor today and a pleasant caller at the ENTERPRISE office. Mr. Nystrom states that they are now drilling in shale at 2650 feet—this morning—and making splendid headway with fine indications of a real oil well. He states that they have encountered three strong gas strata which has held its volume and will burn freely. He is a pleasant gentleman and was surprised to see such a plant as the ENTERPRISE has in so small a town as Pecos.

A NOTABLE CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

A distinctive civic improvement has been added to the residence district by the erection of a commodious and modern bungalow, owned by, and to be occupied by, Mrs. J. Y. Lilley. The residence has an attractive appearance and is a creditable example of bungalow construction. The built-in conveniences reflect the master hand of carpentry and cabinet work. The entire construction and decorations, inside and out, bear evidence of faithful and artistic workmanship. The architect and builder was Charles Meterneck, of North Pecos, who practically completed the woodwork without the assistance of experienced workmen. The builder, after a few minor instructions as to floor space, was given free hand to make the building an attractive and convenient home, and the bill was filed.

The outside and inside painting and decorations are the handiwork of Will Davis, well known as a careful and conscientious workman, and the painting and paper hanging are a creditable finish to the construction. The plumbing is not quite finished and is in charge of Mr. Rhinehardt, which is sufficient guarantee that the lavatory conveniences will be satisfactory to the owner. The residence, independent of the porches, is 28 by 54 feet, the dining room 18 by 18 feet, and the cost is approximately $4,000.00.

SOUTHWEST'S OLD MINES DESCRIBED

The history of the great Southwest is one in which romance, daring and hardships feature, unequalled by the history of any nation or country. There has not been a history of the Southwest studied in the public schools, and it is perhaps the most interesting of all histories.

In the following article, Mrs. Jeanie M. Frank, head of the English Department of El Paso high school, writes a portion of the story of our Southwest, which was published in the El Paso Herald. The story follows:

As rich as the mines of which it treats is the history of southwestern minerals. Mines of the 19th century were often mines of the 17th century and even of the 16th, although in almost all cases there were long periods of inaction and unproductiveness before they came again to be known in the 1800's.

Such is roughly the history of Planchas de la Plata, whose story (as far as it is connected with Europeans and their descendants) began in the days of Fr. Kino in the 18th century.

With these mines there have been times of glowing activity when they were worked and owned privately, times when the inertia of royal ownership stifled their life, and times when the murderous red of Apache raids stained the rifts and cuttings and left them desolate.

Probably they were worked as early as 1739 and were certainly included in the region Humboldt described as the "treasure house of the world."

Later the far-reaching greed of the kingly arm of Spain claimed them by a decree of Phillip V 1741, "on royal account," mentioning in particular one mass of pure silver which weighed 2700 pounds "as a great natural curiosity which should have been sent to Madrid."

They appear as modern mines in 1878, worked by American methods, stripped of all romance, save that glitter that hovers more or less over all mining for precious metals.

FAMOUS ARIZONA MINES
Almost contemporary with them are the mines named after the broad valley of the Santa Rita in Arizona. In the first 1800's the Spaniards worked busily in these old mines.

Up the side of the steep black walls ran cedar pegs, slim footholds for the bearers of 100 pounds of ore in rawhide bags, the pull of which fell on broad bands of rawhide straining across the sweaty brown foreheads.

The weight must have been so heavy that it almost bent the "tenadores" backwards and the slightest slip in accurate placing of hand and foot meant a frightful fall and a mangled body at the foot of the black depths.

An armed guard stood alert and vigilant at certain spaces on the mountain side, with eyes sweeping the horizon. A start! A call! A rush to arms! The Apaches were upon them! Shout! Yell! Scream! Clash! The thud of body against body—a sickening crunching of human bones and flesh—shot after shot through the canyons—a sinister silence broken only by hateful grunts as the Apaches gloat over their victims and their booty—then the cloop-cloop of horses' and mules' hoofs down the trail and the Santa Rita mines are left to the coyotes, the birds of prey and the dead for another term of years.

In the Santa Rita mountains is another relic of Spanish days, the Salero mine or Salt-Cellar, the quaint story of which is as follows: The bishop of Sonora was visiting the good father in charge at Tumacacori mission, and was being fed upon the fat of the land, chickens, fruits, and wines, but alas! among the appointments of the table a salt-cellar was lacking.

Humiliation overwhelmed the poor padre, he had not sufficiently honored his superior—but he would show him honor. A few sturdy diggers were sent into the mountains to dig ore, to smelt it and to mold a salt-cellar. On table next day was a massive salt-cellar. From that day on the mine was known as the Salt-Cellar.

THE MOWRY MINE
About ten miles above the Mexican border in Arizona is another "old and famous mine" known as the Patagonia or Mowry.

This mine was undoubtedly known to the Spaniards but probably the secret of its location was lost or kept from the Americans, for it was rediscovered by Americans in 1858.

The ownership of this mine was a cause for contention for some years and the story goes that because of difficulties with his superior officer, Sylvester Mowry, who had been in the United States army as a lieutenant and who owned four-fifths of the mine, was arrested, imprisoned, and his mine confiscated. Mowry was released later and received about $40,000 damages from the government, but is said to have died in poverty in London.

Possibly among the first Americans to appear in mining annals of Arizona were the Patties, father and son, who crossed country from Socorro, New Mexico, to Santa Rita, causing thereby the wildest alarm among some Indians who had never looked upon a white man before, while on the other hand, some of the natives looked upon the white men with such viciousness that they attacked them murderously but unsuccessfully.

The father, Sylvester Pattie, leased the Santa Rita mines and worked them with fair success, though, of course, he had the usual attacks and depredations of the Apaches to gishhearten him, plus the loss of accumulated savings of years through the defalcation and theft of a trusted assistant—a Spaniard.

the Gila river, taking away the daughter as a captive.

One of the army rescue parties sent in pursuit of the girl consisted of Sgt. Cross-thwaite and Privates Wornley and Flannigan. Over the burning desert they traveled, finally losing themselves in their forbidding wastes. Two of the horses died and with swollen tongues and hungry vitals the soldiers pushed on.

In a little canyon they came upon a live spring, whose sparkling waters saved their lives. After a night's sleep following the deepest exhaustion, they found to their amazement that the sparkle of the water was partly that of gold unalloyed, lying in great "gobs" at the bottom of the spring.

All about and around them was quartz-bearing metal, in places so thick that they could gouge out the yellow metal with their knives. Loading the one horse with 50 pounds of the quartz, they tried for the Gila river.

Again the horrors of the desert were upon them—thirst a hundred times aggravated, and heat. Cross-thwaite died, so did the horse, and Flannigan, utterly spent, laid down under the sparse mesquite to wait for death. Wornley reached the Gila, a pitiful creature, mind gone temporarily and body near the point of death.

Flannigan was brought in before he had succumbed and later the rescue party found the dead horse and the quartz.

Again and again did Wornley and Flannigan try to find the Golden Spring, but they never did, and countless prospectors have searched for the golden heart of the pitiless desert, but never has it been found. Had the 50 pounds of quartz not brought $1800 in gold, the whole story might have been dismissed as the ravings of thirst-craved men, but "money talks," indeed, it gives evidence, as it did in this case.

THE DUTCHMAN'S MINE

A wily old Dutchman who came into Wickenburg to get supplies, always had loads of quartz, so heavy with gold that the very thought of finding the source of it made the Wickenburgers delirious with joy. No cunning, no artifice, no coaxing could get from him the secret of his treasure's location, and meeting cunning with cunning, he tied his burro's feet in gunny sacks so that when he and they vanished for the last time there was never a hint or trace of the mine's whereabouts.

Stories of "lost mines" that are more mythical in their nature are those of the gray ghostly camel which led a man to a golden water tank where the yellow riches lay around for the picking up, and another of the Yavapai Indians using gold, hand-picked from the rocks, to make rifle bullets.

THE SILVER KING

The story of the Silver King is an illustration of the unkindness of fate. In the year 1872 a man called Sullivan used to wander about the Pinal mountains knocking off queer looking black lumps of metal which he flattened under his hammer.

The man for whom he worked, Charles Mason, knew the value of the black ore well, and after he had lost sight of Sullivan, tried to locate Sullivan's "find," but was unsuccessful. In the course of a few years' prospecting, Mason and the party with whom he was, were attacked by Apaches and immediately after the attack, one of the party when looking for a mule, found the croppings of the black looking metal. It was Sullivan's "find"!

A company was formed and fabulous wealth discovered. Some years later into the busy scene of the Silver King in full operation came an aged man, bewilderingly looking around him. It was Sullivan, the original discoverer of the mine! And he was employed as a miner on the ground which might so easily have made him, too, a "silver king."

BEGINNING OF TOMBSTONE

As long as Arizona shall be, I suppose so long will Tombstone be Tombstone, and as such be a standing monument to the cruel and deadly nature of the Apaches, for when in 1877-1878 the worn and unkempt prospector, Ed. Schieffelin, started out towards the Apache-infested mountains he knew well the significance of his Job's comforter friend's parting remark. "The most likely stone for you will be your tombstone."

When Schieffelin found a wonderful prospect in a ledge, he said with grim humor, "This tombstone is sure good enough for me." And good enough it was, for though the original claim was not of great wealth, one claim led to another and to the richest one is attached a separate tale.

Again there was a mule of wandering disposition, during which wanderings he trailed a chain behind him, which chain had acquired a noticeably metallic glitter in the course of the mule's peregrinations, and the enormous Contention mine was located! Williams, the owner of the mule, and his partner took one part of the property and Schieffelin and his friend the other, hence the "Contention."

FINANCIAL REVIEW

Prepared For The Enterprise By The First National Bank In St. Louis.

The figures on the consumption of raw cotton as announced by the census bureau for the month of May indicate an increase of 43,569 bales, over the month of April or a consumption of 620,965 bales. This 7 per cent gain does not indicate an increase in the rate of consumption considering that the normal working time in May averaged 26.5 days for the entire country while in April the average was 24.6 working days. Therefore the average daily production in May was less than that of April, which was due to reductions in the Northern States as Southern cotton mills established new high records consuming 63.2 per cent of the total for the month or 392,575 bales, this being 500 bales more than the record consumption in March.

Although fewer spindles were operated in the country as a whole during May as compared with the record month of March, the cotton growing states established a new record of 16,089,463 spindles as compared to the total of 35,390,187 operated by the spinning industry. Cotton spindles active during May as compared to the number operating in May 1922 show a gain of 3,749,006 spindles.

Likewise exports of raw cotton continued to fall off in May, amounting to 160,368 bales of which 2,818 bales were linters. This is a decrease of 65 per cent as compared with May 1922 when we exported 469,397 bales.

SHE SAID IT ABOUT FLOWERS

Here is the best story of the season. It was a brilliant church wedding in New York City, and a daughter of the very top layer of the Four Hundred was walking down the aisle. She was a charming, delicate girl, blushing and smiling in a filmy wedding gown, walking daintily along, seeming almost to float, so feminine and graceful she was, her gossamer veil floating like a halo about her lovely head. She was any man's best bet for an angel. At the very altar she stubbed her toe against a potted lily resting on the floor, and she was plainly heard to say to the astonished preacher who stood there waiting to perform his office: "That's a hell of a place for a lily."

HOW THE STENO GOT THE JOB

She was applying for the position of stenographer and the big man behind the big desk was grimly questioning her.

"Chew gum?"

"No, sir."

"Spell 'cat' and 'dog' and such words correctly?"

"Yes, sir."

"Get here on time and work while you are here?"

"Yes, sir."

A pause. Then she said: "Smoke bad tobacco while you're dictating?"

"Why—no."

"Take it out on the office force when you've had a row at home, or got beat playing golf, or made a bust?"

"Certainly not."

"Know enough English grammar and spelling to appreciate a good letter when it's written for you?"

"Why—er—I think so."

"Want me to go to work or is your time so valuable—"

"Say," said he, "there's a locker there for your wraps. Hang them up and let's get busy."

WORLD'S SMALLEST BOOK

What is believed to be the smallest book in the world is preserved in an out-of-the-way corner of the British Museum.

It consists of 100 pages of extremely thin paper, and the engravings, highly creditable pieces of work, are printed in colors.

The exact size of the book, taking the measurements of the outside covers, is 3-4 inch by 1/4 inch. It bears the date 1839 and is therefore 84 years old. The title of this curiosity is "Schloer's English Bijou Almanac."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GALOMEL IS A DANGEROUS DRUG

Next Dose may Salivate You, Loosen Teeth or Start Rheumatism

Calomel is mercury; quicksilver. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.

FORD FIRST--HARDING SECOND IN NATION-WIDE BALLOTING

A grand total of 679,906 ballots were cast in the ENTERPRISE nation-wide Presidential Voting Test which started June 1 and closed July 1, final returns of which were received in this office today.

Henry Ford was first, polling more than a third of the entire vote. Ford received 276,874 votes to President Harding's 140,728.

The Ford and Harding votes combined total approximately two-thirds of the entire vote cast, which indicates that the political issue in the mind of individual voters today is, Ford vs. Harding. What bearing, if any, this sentiment will have on the major party conventions, the Democrats in particular, may prove very interesting.

However, political observers say that Ford will have to run on an independent or third party ticket if he makes the race at all. The Republicans are virtually committed to the renomination of President Harding. The Democratic leaders obviously do not want Ford. That is the situation as the ENTERPRISE final vote shows Henry Ford a virtual 2 to 1 choice of voters throughout the country.

HARDING FINISHES STRONG
The biggest development in the closing days of the ENTERPRISE voting was the swing to Harding which followed his trip and speeches across country on his way to Alaska. The President's assurance of the G. O. P. nomination gives him a strength not indicated in this vote. With the party organization back of him and Ford rejected by the Democrats and may be on an independent ticket, the official race would likely show entirely different figures for reader perusal.

Ford showed unusual strength in all parts of the country. He carried Florida, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, South Carolina, Missouri, Michigan, Colorado, Arkansas, Idaho, Connecticut, Montana, Virginia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama, Indiana, Iowa, Texas, Georgia, North Dakota and Tennessee.

President Harding carried New York, Maryland, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, California and Maine. The President led Ford by more than 8,000 votes in New York, but both were led by Governor Al. H. Smith, Democrat, who polled 43,571 of his 81,319 votes there.

Al Smith of New York is in third place, still the national strength of McAdoo shows that the race between these two for the Democratic nomination is going to be a hot one. McAdoo polled a consistent vote throughout the country and especially in the Democratic South. Smith votes were more scattered, his New York vote being his chief source of strength.

LAFOLLETTE AND JOHNSON
In the Republican ranks, too, a similar condition exists. Hiram Johnson's showing throughout the country was second to President Harding. Still LaFollette with big votes in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Montana polled about a hundred more than did Johnson, putting him in sixth place.

The vote cast for former President Wilson was more in the nature of a compliment, inasmuch as he will not be a candidate. The early vote showed a Wilson strength which gradually disappeared as voters became interested.

Underwood votes came mostly from the South but showed a wider range than merely favorite son sentiment.

Senator Borah's vote was fairly well distributed, although his home state vote of 5,862 helped him into ninth place.

MANY FAVORITE SONS
The total of 7,842 votes classified as scattered votes, show how favorite sons were choices in the various states. Haskell of Oklahoma ran strongest of all favorite sons with 852 votes—although his state went to Ford with a total of 24,093. In New York, Judge Daniel F. Coahalan, Supreme Court Justice of New York State, received a consistent favorite son vote. So it was with Lowden of Illinois, Ralston of Indiana, Edwards and Silzer of New Jersey, Beveridge and Marshall of Indiana, also Taft, Pershing, Brookhardt, Groesbeck, and Carter Glass.

A comparison of the ENTERPRISE test vote with that conducted by Collier's, The National Weekly, shows only slight differences in city and rural voter sentiment. Collier's vote is representative of the city and large town vote. This newspaper's test is representative of the smaller town and country America choice.

Collier's vote showed Ford leading Harding, approximately 3 to 2. McAdoo third, Cox fourth, Johnson fifth, Smith sixth and Hughes seventh. In this newspaper's vote, Cox and Hughes ran in tenth and eleventh places.

The final vote in ENTERPRISE balloting is representative of the sentiment throughout the country at this time. It has been conducted by Republican, Democratic and Independent newspapers. Through this newspaper's membership in the Publishers' Autocaster Service of New York it was in position to conduct this contest. The voting was steady throughout the test, the line-up of the candidates being about the same at the end as during the second week of voting.

The ENTERPRISE in presenting this exclusive story to its readers feels that the test vote is an accurate cross section of American political sentiment in 1923.

Answering the question we asked June 1—"Whom do you want for President?"—it would seem—

Ford or Harding.

WE ARE JUST AT THE BEGINNING OF ELECTRIC AGE

Charles A. Coffin, whose genius put the General Electric Company on the map, in a recent interview says that forty years ago electricity was the thing you read about in the papers; how far it might become commercially significant was a problem much discussed.

"Electricity is not only the cleanest and most efficient servant that mankind ever had, it is also the cheapest. It works for less than a collier's wages and its wages are going down every day while its efficiency is constantly being increased. In addition to this, it does its own traveling, at a rate of 186,000 miles in a second and doesn't have to be transported. Heretofore we have been compelling it to take us to the city, and it has done so beautifully, more quickly and comfortably than we have ever been moved about before. Hereafter we shall simply touch a button and have it take the city out to us. Heretofore we have been mining coal and carrying it across the country to be turned into power. Soon we shall be sending the power across the country. If we persist in getting power from coal, we shall at least burn the coal where it is mined, converting it into electricity and not use up a big fraction of the power, as we do today, in the process of transporting it.

"But there is every indication that we shall go much further than that. In the country where our food grows is the best of all places to eat it. Sending it to the city costs much more than getting it out of the ground, and it has lost lots of its flavor by the time it has reached the ultimate consumer. Also there isn't any room to live in the city, especially for children. They can't have real homes. They can't stretch and grow, physically and spiritually, as human children should. The city has destroyed the home, but it has provided other advantages which the modern man can hardly do without. If only these advantages could be brought to the country village and farm—well, watch what electricity is going to do next.

"The next big step in industry, it appears, will be the development of the small, electrically driven factory, in the places where the raw materials are found. This will save the transportation of coal and raw materials. It will also do away largely with seasonal unemployment, for manufacturing and agriculture can arrange winter and summer schedules as conditions demand.

"Cloth will more and more be manufactured where the cotton is grown. The flour mills will leave the cities and go back to the farm. Everybody will be using machinery and learning how to use it, and because the population will follow the machinery the country districts will become inhabited again."

DEMAND FOR TAX-EXEMPT BONDS IS VERY GREAT

The proneness of municipalities to continue borrowing at a high rate is a development that causes no end of alarm in the business world. The indebtedness of states, cities and other political subdivisions throughout the country has increased by leaps and bounds within the last three or four years, the income-tax exemption feature of the bonds sold making their distribution a comparatively simple matter.

The paradox of a progressive income tax and the apparent exemption of the municipalities to issue tax-exempt securities in unlimited volume should receive the attention of every voter. The ideal solution of the problem would be to withdraw the tax exempt provision of municipal bonds, which would require a constitutional amendment, and considering the present day's sentiment would be almost impossible of accomplishment. The other method of coaxing capital into productive channels is to reduce the surtax. —Forbes Magazine.

PUBLICITY vs. PROPAGANDA

A prominent and successful newspaper publisher, when asked recently by the department of journalism of a western university, how to distinguish between "legitimate publicity" and "propaganda," gave the following definitions: "Legitimate publicity is the spreading of truthful information, or facts, about any cause or condition which is of interest or importance to people generally, and not for the pecuniary or other advancement of the person spreading it." "Propaganda is the giving out (or hiring) of opinions, arguments, or pleas to induce people generally to believe what some individual, group, or organization, wants them to believe, for the pecuniary or other advantage of the individual, group, or organization giving out (or hiring) the propaganda."

PATRONIZE YOUR HOME TOWN

When we see Marfa merchants patronizing out of town commercial printing offices and then yell their heads off when the general public patronizes mail order stores, it makes us feel like publishing their names, so that anybody can see what an asset they are to our community.

Only a little write-up on our part would suffice to put such business houses out of business for a long time, but we are not inclined that way, but we are ever ready to face fair out of town competition, but it does look cheap for a Marfa merchant to do such a thing. A good town booster boosts his home enterprises, and especially his home paper that always works for the upbuilding of its community and its business institutions.—Marfa New Era.

A Newcastle, England, paragraph states that "to escape paying the cent toll two men walked through the parapet of High bridge, where any misstep meant death, and then were arrested and fined $250 each." That's economy to the last word and if kept up will make these men rich—in experience, at least.

One of the fireboys recently made the statement in effect that to oppose this department in any manner meant the destruction of that man and his business. When any organization decides to rule at ruin and demands that a business man kneel at their feet, so to speak, before it enters business, that institution becomes a menace to the town. Whether the statement of this one fireman is the policy of the organization or not the ENTERPRISE does not know, but if it is, few, if any, broadminded people but what will say it is bad policy and a poor way to build up a town. Let's hope our fireboys are above such a conspiracy.

The boycotting game in Pecos appears to be growing if street talk counts for anything. That is a mighty poor business anywhere and will never win in a small town like Pecos. Our people are just one large family and should pull together in the upbuilding of every legitimate enterprise of the town. To do otherwise means only strife in the family and the downfall of the town. There was never a time in its history when it was more necessary to the prosperity of Pecos that her people stand together and work for their town and its every interest. There is no room in Pecos at this time for the mischief-maker or the one who devotes his or her time in arraying one citizen against another. "The house divided against itself will fall."

THE FUTURE
"What will we do when our oil plays out?" is a question which is asked the oil man frequently because it is a question in which the oil man and the oil consuming public are mutually interested.

Although the U. S. Geological Survey assisted by the Association of American Petroleum Geologists, made a survey of the oil supply of the United States some two or three years ago, the survey was based upon so much theory, some of which has already been upset, that the oil industry generally did not accept it at its face value. In fact, this survey which estimated the U. S. reserves on January 1, 1922, at 9,150,000,000 barrels was not offered as anything but the most general estimate, based to a considerable extent upon guesswork.

If the reserves on January 1, 1922, amounted to only 9,150,000,000 barrels, this means that at the present rate of consumption we have about 14 years more supply left within our own borders. The possibilities are that consumption will materially increase.

We had above ground according to government reports, 280,388,000 barrels of crude oil, including imports from Mexico, on February 29th of this year. It is enough oil to take care of consumption at our present rate for about 142 days.

Answering questions propounded recently by the Literary Digest, it is an evident fact that consumption of petroleum is steadily increasing. However, production seems to be increasing at an even greater ratio at this time.

In answer to the Literary Digest's questions as to whether or not there is waste in present methods that can be reduced or eliminated, no doubt waste can be reduced by more efficient methods of drilling insofar as the oil business is concerned. A greater saving, no doubt, could be brought about by more effective oil burners. This applies to the burners used in the oil fields and by industrial concerns, but the saving even then would not run more than a very small per cent.

The necessity of storing oil above ground is responsible for much waste. This waste through evaporation, which runs a tremendous proportion, is now being cut down through improved tank building, but the best place to store oil, as many a veteran oil man has said, is in the ground. In other words, it should be left in the ground until needed. However, the mad rush to get the oil out of the ground before the competitor gets it, makes it very difficult to control production. This is a problem the industry is facing in California today.

As to whether or not a substitute can be developed to take the place of petroleum, there is no doubt that alcohol can be successfully used as a gasoline substitute. We understand that in France alcohol is blended and sold with gasoline extensively.

It is not unreasonable to suppose that eventually a substitute other than alcohol may be found for gasoline or that alcohol may be produced extensively enough to take a real place as a commercial engine fuel, although there seems to be some doubt in the minds of many engineers as to this. There are many substitutes, however, that have explosive elements that gasoline has and probably the time will come when internal combustion engines will be operated with gasoline substitutes.

BUT—it is extremely unlikely that there will ever be found a substitute in sufficient quantities to take the place of mineral lubricating oil. We can think of no mineral except one, and its use will always be limited, that has a lubricating quality and it is utterly out of the question ever to attempt to return to lubrication by animal or plant oil.

And here is a point worth considering. It is in lubricating oil before it comes lubricating oil that the greatest waste of oil takes place. Oil that should go into lubricating oil is burned as fuel oil. While there seems to be no remedy for the situation right now due to the fact that sufficient lubricating oil is being made to take care of the nation's needs, our country may some day come to regret its burning under its boilers the most precious of all liquids—lubricating oil.

The Literary Digest inquires if new sources of supply are in sight. New sources of supply are in the future expect a barrel of crude oil to make even more gasoline than it has in the past through the improved refining methods already in use. So, we can not see the oil industry "played out" in fifteen, twenty-five or even thirty years to come.

The oil industry is solving its own problem right now. American companies are prospecting in scores of foreign lands. Their geological forces are pioneering ahead of their drilling crews. American oil men will develop oil where oil is to be found at home and abroad, and the development of an adequate foreign supply will go a long way toward extending the life of American fields.—Texas Oil News.

HOLD YOUR HEAD DOWN AND SHAKE TO CURE "POT-BELLY"
"Pot-belly" is a disease and can be corrected.

This statement of interest to thousands of men and women of 40 and over, was made by Dr. Thomas L. Ray of Fort Worth, former president of the American Osteopathic Association, in an address before the twenty-seventh annual convention of the association at New York last Friday.

"We physicians," said Dr. Ray, "call it 'visceroptosis,' but we ought to find some worse name than that for it, for it causes every kind of trouble from hernia to softening of the brain. It means a sagging of the abdominal organs, and if 'pot-bellied' people on going to bed would get on their knees and bump their foreheads on the sheet, and while in that position give themselves a thorough shaking, till the organs had swung back into place, then lie down without sitting or standing, they'd be surprised at the results."
"It would mean eight hours' rest nightly for those tired supporting tissues, which would gradually regain their tone and strength."
"The trouble, of course, started a long way back, when mankind first began to walk upright and nature failed to suspend his organs to comply."

AIN'T DEMOCRACY GRAND
"Of course they were interested in the President, but their eyes turned quickly from his stalwart figure to rest avidly upon the woman by his side. Evidently they approved of her, the smart Harding blue hat with its blue flower trimmings, the stylish printed silk of Egyptian design, bound in henna, and the white-gloved hands waving response to their greetings. The Kansas City women not only waved welcome, but many called out "Howdy, Mrs. Harding," and the small boys and girls they carried in their arms made known their welcome with flags or horns."—The Kansas City Star.

SEVENTEEN-YEAR LOCUST
The periodical cicada, or seventeen-year locust, as it is popularly called, appears in some part of the country every year. These various groups are recognized as different broods by entomologists, and each has a number, according to its appearance. Brood XIV is appearing just now in the East-Central States and also in scattering numbers in parts of Maryland, and a single individual was taken at Maywood, Va., according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture. Brood XXII, which belongs to the thirteen-year race, is appearing in full emergence in the four southwestern counties of Mississippi.

PORCH PARTY
Miss Jane Looby, one of the most popular and charming young ladies of Pecos, entertained informally Thursday evening of last week with a porch party. The diversion was dancing by music from the Victrola. Ice cold punch was served throughout the evening and home-made candy was passed. The following enjoyed this delightful hospitality:
Misses Evelyn Slack, Ruby Mae Beauchamp, Ora Pruet, Frances Hubbard, Estelle and Mildred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Prickett, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith, Mrs. Arthur Scudamore, Mrs. H. R. Anderson and Messrs. Carl Pritchett, Joe Finley Holmes, Charles Lewis Rurbup, William Kerr, Keith Camp, Frances Warn, Don and Charley Bell, and Edwin Vickers.

OCCUPATIONAL TAXES SOON DUE

To avoid penalty, returns and payment must be made on or before July 31, 1923, of the miscellaneous occupational taxes, the special tax on the use of boats, provided for by the Revenue Act of 1921. Capital stock tax returns also must be made on or before July 31, payment being required within 10 days after notice and demand by the Collector.
The Revenue Act provides that "every domestic corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year ending June 30 as is in excess of $5,000. In estimating the value of capital stock the surplus and undivided profits shall be excluded. Every foreign corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business in the United States, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the average amount of capital employed in the transaction of its business in the United States during the preceding year ending June 30.
Every domestic corporation must make a return on Form 707 even though the law may indicate that it is exempt from tax. The question of exemption is one for determination by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.
A foreign corporation is "carrying on or doing business" in the United States if it maintains an agent, or an office or warehouse in the United States, or in any other way enters the United States for the purposes of its business.
Following are the miscellaneous occupational taxes: Brokers $50; pawnbrokers $100; ship brokers $50; customhouse brokers $50; proprietors of theatres, museums and concert halls where a charge capacity of not more than 250, shall pay for admission is made, having a seating capacity of $50; having a seating capacity of more than 250 and not exceeding 500 $100; having a seating capacity exceeding 500 and not exceeding 800 $150; having a seating capacity of more than 800 $200.
Circus proprietors are required to pay a tax of $100; proprietors of other public exhibitions or shows $15; proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms are required to pay $10 for each alley or table; proprietors of shooting galleries $20; proprietors of riding academies $100.
Persons carrying on the business of operating or renting passenger automobiles for hire are required to pay $10 for each such automobile having a seating capacity of more than two and not more than seven, and $20 for each automobile having a seating capacity of more than seven.
With respect to the special tax (due in July) imposed upon the use of yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, sailing boats, and motor boats, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has ruled that a vessel must be both over 5 tons net and at least 33 feet in length to be subject to such tax.
These boats are divided into three classes with respect to length and a separate tax is provided for each class as follows: Over 5 net tons and over 32 feet in length, $1 for each foot; over 5 tons, length over 50 feet and not over 100 feet, $2 for each foot; over 5 tons, length over 100 feet, $4 for each foot.

The unretorted, inoculated sulphur in TOVASCO is considered superior to sulphur which has been cooked, or melted, in mining, allowed to set hard as brimstone, and then pulverized.

The activated gypsum in TOVASCO is in process of conversion into active sulphur compound, therefore is unlike ordinary gypsum. It is not inert, but is inoculated with bacteria that produce this transformation.

MEET DEATH IN THE LEON VALLEY LAKE BY DROWNING

(Fort Stockton Pioneer)
Thursday afternoon, July 12, about 2 o'clock, our little town was shocked beyond measure, when a distress call came from Leon Valley, asking for aid in the recovery of the bodies of C. T. McAfee and G. E. Furgason, who had but a few minutes before sunk beneath the waters of Leon Valley Lake. Within a short time hundreds of searchers were enroute to the scene of the fatal accident. Though many skilled divers worked heroically it was not until 7 o'clock that Mr. McAfee's body was recovered, and it was 10:30 before the cruel waters gave up the form of Mr. Furgason.

About an hour before the tragic end C. T. McAfee, local manager of the Magnolia Oil Co., G. E. Furgason, manager of the Fort Stockton Realty & Abstract Co., and Geo. B. Pace, of the Pace Auto Co., as was often their custom, left town for a fish in Leon Lake, some seven miles distant. Upon arriving at the Lake all three embarked in a small, wooden boat and put out from shore, to set a trot line. In the excitement of setting the line and baiting the hooks, the men either did not notice, or did not give heed to the fact that their boat was leaking. In addition to this a sudden gale had sprung up and the frail craft capsized from wind and water, throwing all three occupants free of the boat, into about twenty feet of water. Upon coming up, Mr. Pace, knowing that Mr. McAfee was a good swimmer, gave his attention to the rescue of Mr. Furgason, who was also a good swimmer, but who had but one arm with which to battle the waves, wind and current. Hearing Mr. Furgason cry for help, Mr. Pace attempted to regain the boat and push it within reaching distance of Mr. Furgason, but the boat hung on some obstruction and he was unable to assist his companion in time to save his life. Seeing the waters close over Mr. Furgason, and feeling his own strength ebbing, Mr. Pace struck out for shore, thinking that Mr. McAfee had already reached safety. When he discovered that Mr. McAfee was also missing, Mr. Pace, already weak from exhaustion, was almost overcome by the shock, but he managed to drive two miles to the Del Beeman home, and send out the news which cast such a deep pall over our entire town and community.

The victims of the unfortunate affair were both prominent, highly respected and esteemed citizens, and each leaves a young family to mourn his loss. Mr. McAfee leaves one daughter, Mrs. Mary Rush Bryson, and three sons, Richard, Paul and Charles McAfee. His wife died here four years ago after a very brief illness. Mr. Furgason leaves a grief-stricken wife and three little daughters, Baby Laura, Fred, Lucille and Louise Furgason to mourn his loss.

When located Mr. McAfee's body was in a sitting position and only a few feet from shallow water, showing that he had made a brave fight for his life but wind, wave and water-soaked clothing had been too much for his strength. Mr. Furgason's body was recovered not far from where he was last seen. Had he not been handicapped by having but one arm he might have reached shore. Mr. Furgason lost his right arm eight years ago, from a gunshot wound, received while on a hunting expedition on the E. L. ranch.

This is the most deplorable and lamentable happening that has ever befallen our community, and our entire citizenship is bowed in grief with the bereaved families. The funeral of C. T. McAfee will be held at the family residence at 5 o'clock p. m., today (Friday), under the auspices of the Masonic Lodge. The body of G. E. Furgason after services at the family residence will be shipped Saturday morning to Ballinger, where it will be interred in the family burial plot in the cemetery at that place.

ENTERTAINS AT BRIDGE

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Prickett, assisted by the charming Misses Jane Looby, Ora Pruett and Evelyn Slack, entertained Friday evening of last week with a bridge party in honor of Mr. Prickett's mother, Mrs. Arthur Scudamore of Natchez, Miss., and Mrs. Ed. Doty, Pecos' most recent bride. The rooms were beautifully decorated in cut flowers and ferns. There were eight tables of players and in the games high score among the ladies was won by Mrs. M. S. Hudson, and for which honor she was presented with a hand-painted fruit plate. Mrs. O. J. Bryan won the booby, a powder puff. High score among the men players was won by Mr. H. C. Ferris, the prize a handkerchief, and to Mr. Dean went the consolation prize. The honorees were each presented with a pair of handsome linen towels as guest prizes.

At the conclusion of the games a delicious ice course was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Doty, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ferris, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Collier, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Browning, Mr. and Mrs. David Tudor, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Kerr, Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Prickett, Mrs. J. W. Moore, Mrs. Arthur Scudamore, Mrs. Mabel Beauchamp, Mrs. Ira Bell, Mrs. Woody Browning, Mrs. M. S. Hudson, Mr. Chas. Manahap, and Misses Jane Looby, Ora Pruett and Evelyn Slack.

CURIOUS PHENOMENON OBSERVED

A very curious phenomenon was observed by several people in Pecos last week. Late at night a falling star was seen of such brilliancy that onlookers gasped. According to reports the star looked to each and every observer as if it would fall directly on them.

CATTLEMAN FINDS STOCK MARKETED AT ACTUAL LOSS

Snyder, July 17.—As an indication of the tremendous discrepancy in the value of beef cattle compared to other products at this time, two shippers received returns during the last week that show the startling losses to which the cattlemen are now being subjected.

A carload of extra good cows marketed in Fort Worth returned the shipper $232 after freight commission and other expenses were paid, or less than $3 a head.

The other shipper bought two carloads of cows on which he felt certain they must be some profit in store, as they cost him only $12.50 a head; at the time of making purchase his remark was to the effect he felt like he had stolen them. On arriving at the Kansas City market they were classed as "good" cows, but returned a net loss of more than $1 a head to the shipper.

This is the same class of livestock that a few years ago was bringing $60 to $70 a head.

THE RADIO CLUB OF PECOS

As stated before under this heading, it has become necessary for the club to move from their rooms they have been using because of the hum induced in their receiving sets by the motor-generator used by the Rialto Theatre. At the meeting last Tuesday another building was secured, it being the old Palace Sweets building, and the club is preparing to move. The first thing that is being done is the erection of a permanent antenna system at the new rooms. The type that is being placed is a two-wire inverted L, and it is expected that this will be up and ready by next Tuesday. If it is, the club will meet in the new rooms, but if not, the regular meeting will be held in the old rooms.

At the next meeting the code class will continue in their lessons, and there will be a lecture on crystal detectors with tube amplification, including the reflex circuit.

The club is now working for a permanent club installation, intending to use the neodyne circuit, with two stages of radio frequency amplification, as they wish to be able to consistently receive during daylight.

Club meets every Tuesday evening at 7:00 p. m. All are invited to attend.

NEW TUBES

New tubes which have recently appeared on the market seem to have created considerable confusion in the mind of the average radio listener relative to the use of rheostats for proper control. There are four tubes which require special consideration. They are the UV-201-A, UV-199, Cunningham 301-A and Cunningham 299. The UV-201-A and Cunningham 301-A are designed to operate with a six-volt storage battery in connection with a 4 to 6 ohm rheostat. However, a higher resistance rheostat will serve more efficiently to keep the filament voltage as low as is consistent. The UV-199 and the Cunningham 299 operate on three dry cells in series and require a 30-ohm rheostat. Practically all of the other tubes function with a standard four to six ohm rheostat and for that reason the majority of "A" battery rheostats on the market have a resistance of 4 to 6 ohms. If the operator desires to use one of the three-volt tubes in connection with a 4 to 6 ohm rheostat he can do so by adding a small variable 25-ohm resistance unit to the rheostat already on the set. This supplementary resistance transforms the 4 to 6 ohm rheostat to a 30-ohm rheostat. The supplementary unit can be connected between the negative terminal of the "A" battery and the rheostat. Resistance units of this type are now on the market.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Ordinary telephone receivers will not work successfully in connection with a radio set. Telephone receivers have a resistance of 75 ohms. The average radio receivers range from 2000 to 3200 ohms. The ohm is the standard unit of resistance just as a yard represents a certain fixed distance. The principles of operation in both receivers are the same, but the radio phones are much more delicate. Receivers should not be subjected to heavy jars. It is a good idea to have a hook near the receiving set so the phones can be hung up when not in use. If they are laid on the table they are jarred and often dropped on the floor. Such treatment demagnetizes the permanent magnets and also develops loose connections or broken wires within the cords or in the metallic tips of the cords.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WNP, MacMillan Arctic Expedition, is hitting the air at a lively rate, and has been picked up by several stations. The first message was heard by IZE, reputed to be the first amateur transmitting station in the United States at New Bedford, Mass. WNP QSA'd the IZE signals, stating that he fully believed the signals would easily reach the pole.

REJECTED, OF COURSE It was in the office of an insurance agent. The doctor had come in to examine a worried looking individual who was taking out a policy. Doctor: "Are you a fast liver. I mean, do you dissipate much?" Applicant: "Well, I sometimes chew a little gum."

ALL ABOUT MAD DOGS---SAVE IT

Scientists agree that the suffering and death caused by hydrophobia in either man or beast is about the worst of all, yet experiments have proven conclusively that the cure or prevention of the disease is certain when the Pasteur treatment is given in time. A very timely article written by Lieut. Col. L. Foster, Acting Surgeon of the Eighth Corps Area, and recently published in the San Antonio Light gives data which should be read and preserved by every ENTERPRISE reader since it tells all that is to tell about hydrophobia and how and what to do when bitten by a rabid animal. The article follows.

"Rabies, hydrophobia, or madness, is an infectious disease of dogs, wolves and other animals, usually transmitted from the dog to the man by contact as by biting or by licking an open wound. The disease occurs at all seasons. The dog gets the germ of rabies by means of a bite or close contact with another dog, and in due time shows the typical symptoms. A person can only become infected with the rabies by means of the bite or by intimate contact with a rabid dog. "There is no cure for the disease, either in man or in the dog. It is always fatal. But there is an absolute means of preventing the development of the disease after a person has been bitten by a rabid animal, namely, the Pasteur treatment. "The preventive treatment requires a period of 21 days for its administration, and the cost of the material is $35 for the treatment of one person. The treatment is without danger but is somewhat painful, requiring 21 hypodermic injections, and is apt to make a person feel out of sorts, something like an anti-phosphorus inoculation. "There is only one way to make sure that a person has been infected with rabies, namely, by determining whether the animal inflicting the bite has the disease. If the dog has rabies, it is mad, he will surely show the disease unmistakably in ten days, and in vast majority of cases will be dead in that time. If the brain of the animal be examined in the laboratory, a diagnosis of madness can be positively confirmed. "If the suspected animal is killed at once, or if the brain is mutilated or decayed, a positive diagnosis can not be made, and the person who has been bitten by such an animal must be given the preventive treatment on suspicion. "If the dog is placed in confinement and survives ten days without developing rabies, the person bitten need not take the treatment, and can be assured that he will not have rabies as a result of the bite. The average time required for rabies to develop in a man after the bite of a rabid animal is 40 days, usually longer, consequently the person's safety is in no way jeopardized by waiting for the ten days' observance of the dog. In the majority of cases the suspected animal is not rabid, and the ten days' observance will make the fact certain. "It is, therefore, of the greatest importance that a suspected dog should not be killed. Every effort should be made to capture him and place him in confinement, so that he can not bite persons or animals; he should be killed only when his capture is very difficult, or the infliction of bites on nearby persons is imminent. Should it be absolutely necessary to kill the animal, this should be done in such a way as not to injure the brain. "The animal can usually be driven into a vacant lot or stall, or captured by means of a net or loop of rope or wire fastened on a suitable pole. "Therefore, the rules of procedure to be adopted in case of a person bitten by an animal suspected of being rabid are: Do not kill the dog; pen him up and observe him for ten days; if destruction is absolutely necessary, do not injure the skull; after the animal has developed rabies and has been killed or has died of the disease, the head should be carefully amputated and sent to a laboratory for examination; the bite inflicted upon the person should be treated at once by a physician."

What Advertising Means to You

Every now and then we like to talk to our merchants about advertising and we like to do it in this way because the subject is of equal interest to the public. Frankly the interest of the public, the interest of the merchant and the interest of the local newspaper publisher are inseparably linked.

The public always is best served by buying advertised goods. Goods that are advertised are goods that are more extensively manufactured and consequently cheaper because of increased production. Moreover advertising today is a guarantee of merit. No one need be afraid either of the honesty of the price or the quality of advertised goods. Competition compels honesty even if there should be a wish to avoid it.

There is another benefit, too, in local newspaper advertising. When advertising is thoughtfully employed it means the building of trade for our local merchants and this reacts in increase in real estate values generally. A prosperous business section means added population and increased conveniences. The whole scheme of advertising, merchandising and buying is one of co-operation to mutual advantage.

The merchant always wins favorable reaction when he talks frankly in his advertising to the people and shows them he is dealing honestly with them and making a normal profit.

The man who week by week consistently in his advertising shows he holds the public interest at heart is the man who wins. Many merchants lose the substance of public confidence in grasping for the shadow of immediate sales.

Why We Boost the Schools

Newspaper readers, particularly those who have no children, often wonder why newspaper editors take such a keen interest in the building of new schools and the encouragement of education. Sometimes, when the cost of school extension seems particularly heavy, efforts are made to have it appear as if the local editor were unmindful of the public interest in forever boosting for new avenues of learning. But let us lift the professional curtain so that you may see there is usually helpful thought behind the writing of an editorial.

The growth of population places succeeding generations at a disadvantage. Original stores of natural wealth are being depleted. They must be constantly replenished.

Carefree folks say that by the time exhaustion is in sight we will have taken care of the situation some other way; that when a new fuel is found, coal and mining won't be necessary. And there exactly is the point. The great need of the hour is for invention, for scientific research, for discovery, for ingenuity, for the development of all those characteristics that can find root only in the trained and educated mind.

Unless we invent and discover new methods of production and distribution in excess of our consumption and destruction, life will soon become unbearable and prices will rise to a point where human existence will be a burden.

That is why we always boost the schools, even when they are hard to pay for.

SAYS

Exercise Your Imagination

A good many men before Watt observed the steam-laden kettle vibrate on the fire. But it took a man with Watt's imagination to recognize that in that kettle was a power which might be harnessed into service.

Others saw the steam engine working, but it took the imagination of a Fulton to believe that paddles propelled by this power could drive a boat ahead and not merely splash the wash. The bromides of Spain laughed at Columbus who had imagination enough to believe that the world was round.

Since man was, he had observed lightning with only wondering awe or fear, until Ben Franklin let his imagination fly with a kite in the storm and the possibilities of electricity were introduced to the world. The telegraph and the telephone that day started on their journey to us.

Scheele observed the change of color on skins exposed to the sun. His imagination brought to us the sun-tracing scheme of duplicating drawings. To this Daguerre lent his imagination, and photography came. McCormick was laughed at because he imagined that a horse might operate a sickle that could do the work of several men with scythes.

An accident on the Boston and Maine Railroad, costing many lives, called the attention of a man by the name of Westinghouse to the inadequacy of hand power brakes. He put his imagination to work on the power of compressed air. "Foolish," said the wise ones who always know it all, "such a soft cushion can never stop a train." But his air brake made high speed travel safe.

The man who would build a palace of stone must first build with thought. Imagination is the ability to build in the mind. It is the architect, blue print, pile-driver and electric crane of the future. It foresees, plans, carves, builds. No man can be great who does not use his imagination. But wisdom must always go with imagination.

Exercise the imagination. It will some day bring Mars, Venus and Saturn to us and make this little Earth "the frontyard of the universe." He who neglects his imagination allows the key to success to rust.

Poem by Uncle John

I like to be modest, regardless of shine
—I never was vain of my rep. . . . I don't like to brag on productions of mine, no matter how potent their pep. . . . And so, I'm discrete when I happen to write the news of a social affair—an' I keep my identity clean out of sight, by signin' it, "One Who Was There."

I'm often invited to furnish the muse, when festal occasions demand. . . . I can allers dig up some selections to use, that ain't been messed over, or canned. . . . An' I fitter with mirth, jes' to see 'em in print, and it makes all the frequenters glad, as they read in the paper the pertinent hint, that "Dainty refreshments was had."

I like to record it, when Cupid's success brings on the comubial attack—and I don't overlook, that the bride wore a dress, and the groom "The conventional black!" I'll say it's a wonder—the language we got, to mighty rich curdle the blood—when we write of a victim which somebody shot, that "He fell with a sickent' thud."

LIBERALS' PROGRAM

The highest ecclesiastical courts of the respective denominations have just closed their annual sessions. If we are to believe the reports as printed in the papers, the Liberals went into those respective ecclesiastical courts for the purpose of forcing their heretical, rational and destructive views upon the church. Their program injected the fight into the church. Around the infallibility of the Bible and the virgin birth of Christ the great battle is being waged because the Liberals made the attack upon the authority of God's Word.

The program of liberalism in the church, in politics and in the world is to destroy the seat of authority, the bar of accountability, the judgment hall. They want license, not liberty.

The orthodox, practical, sincere, honest, consecrated Christians of all denominations were progressing in their evangelistic work without malice, hatred, or antagonism toward anyone except Satan. The Liberals made their attack upon the Bible, vicarious Christianity, the deity of Christ and His virgin birth because they wanted to force the fight until they got possession of the property of the church. For the last twenty-five years the Liberals have been planning and scheming to get the property of the churches in their possession.

Let them be assured now that the orthodox forces of the churches who believe in the deity of Christ, His virgin birth and His supernatural resurrection and the infallibility of God's word will never leave the church, and the Liberals shall never get possession of the property of the church. Their motives are understood, their program is comprehended, their number is written before the eye of every intelligent, orthodox Christian in the world. They shall fail. They shall never pass. They shall never get possession of the property nor the seat of power or authority.

Beware of the motive behind liberalism in church or state.

Etiquette

What & When to do it

By A. Leda

Any questions on etiquette will be gladly answered in this column if addressed to Aleda, care of this newspaper.

Dear Aleda—What is the best way to announce an engagement? (2) Who does it, the bride's family or the groom's? (3) Who pays for the engraving, etc?

Miss A. L., California.

Answer—The usual way of announcing an engagement is through the papers. Using this method: First select your paper and then send the notice to the society editor. An example is: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Black announce the engagement of their daughter Jane to Mr. John Cox, of Denver, Col. No date has been set for the wedding. It will probably take place in November. (2) The bride's family. (3) The same.

Owing to a sudden death in our family we must postpone our daughter's wedding. Will you please tell me what is the quickest and best way to go about this. The wedding was to be this September.

Mrs. R. M., Wisconsin.

Answer—Have some printed cards made. A good stationer should get them out in 24 hours. Have them word something like this and send one to each person that received an invitation:

Owing to the sudden death of Mr. Raymond Brown's father, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brown beg to recall the invitation issued for their daughter's wedding reception.

HELPFUL HEALTH HINTS

Prickly Heat.—A good talcum powder frequently applied does much to eliminate this annoying skin disease. When a case of prickly heat is severe the skin should be bathed with a mixture of one part alcohol to three of water, afterwards dusting with talcum powder.

Fruit Before Breakfast.—An orange eaten half an hour before breakfast is a splendid aid to the digestive system.

Hiccoughs.—Taking small regular swallows of water from a glass without taking a breath will usually stop hiccoughs. If this fails try giving the patient a teaspoonful of granulated sugar and vinegar.

On the Second Every Second

Human wants are constant and continuous. Food, clothing, shelter, and their infinite subdivisions are daily needs.

There is not a clock tick that does not register a million human desires.

The newspaper is the closest thing in the world to the people's daily wants. It is an expression of the ever-pressing desire for news.

The advertiser who uses the weekly newspaper reaches people with his message at exactly the right moment.

Somewhere, with some person wanting something, newspaper advertising registers every second of the day.

It brings buyers and sellers together because it brings the right message at the right time.

There is no advertising medium so close to the people as the newspaper.

EFFICIENT WESTERN UNION EMPLOYEE STAYS IN CALIFORNIA
When Dave Gotchacoa left Pecos for the fifteen days' vacation annually allowed the employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company, his many friends, both American and Mexican, wished him an "au revoir" and a pleasurable and enjoyable trip to California and a safe return. But Dave is not to return, at least for the present. His genial and pleasant greetings will be missed by the many business and professional citizens of Pecos, to whom he has delivered telegraph messages and cheerful "good mornings" for the past eight years.

He has obtained a more lucrative employment, with board included, in a large cafeteria in Los Angeles, as buss boy. Dave was nineteen years of age when he left, and has been a faithful employee of the Western Union for the past eight years. He had remarkable and fluent knowledge of the English language for a Mexican boy who had little or no advantages of an English school education.

In a recent letter to the manager here, Mrs. Ima Wilson, he laid great stress on his regrets at leaving his pleasant and instructive surroundings and was very effusive in his thanks for her past kindness and instructions in the use of the telegraph key and the code. Mrs. Wilson says Dave was an industrious and appreciative pupil who some day would have made an efficient English-Spanish operator.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR COUNCIL MEETING
On Friday, July 20th, there will be a meeting of the Council members of the Midland District of Christian Endeavor, held in Big Spring. All council members are urged to be present and visitors are welcome, for immediately afterwards there is to be a conference with the Big Spring Endeavorers concerning the Fall Convention, to be held there during September. The Coahoma folks are coming over also, house lawn, after which we will march. There will be a social held on the court to the Methodist church where a union meeting is being held.

Perhaps you will have some ideas and plans that will help us. We have several plans to present that will cause us to have a "Best ever" Convention. We know the Endeavorers of our District will do their part. Yes, we shall have to hustle if we will have one better than we did in Barstow. Will you help? Council members, please take notice of this and try to be present—we need you.—REPORTED.

From telegrams received this morning by Mr. Cooksey some of the best ropers and riders in the country will be here. THE CHURCHES

CHURCH OF CHRIST
Church of Christ meet every Lord's Day at eleven o'clock, Barstow, Texas.

BAPTIST CHURCH
When the Apostle Peter said, "I go fishing," and a chorus of voices chimed in "And I'll go with you," he had not discovered his power and position in life. But when he learned that beyond death there is life, and that the grave was merely the beginning of the glory that was to be Christ's rather than the end, he dared defy men for Jesus' sake and defend rather than defame the name of our Lord. The result was a multiplication of power and influence. Instead of breaking the bonds of despondency by leading a few kindly disposed disciples back to the old haunts of former pleasures he turned the tide of criticism into an ovation of glorious commendation and praise. And that day the church of God grew from a hundred and twenty souls to more than three thousand shouting, happy Christians. What might be the result today if all who profess Christ would but use their talent for Him rather than against Him?

A great work is being done by the churches of your town. Just what are you doing to help them? All regular services will be held at the Baptist church Sunday. There is a place for you if you come and you are invited to attend. Let's make Sunday a high day in the service of the Master.—J. M. GARNER, Pastor.

REQUISITION HONORED FOR OIL PROMOTER

Austin, July 17.—Acting Governor Davidson honored a requisition extradition of John J. Riall, wanted in Bradford county, Pa., to answer to a charge of swindling in connection with certain alleged oil stock transactions.

Riall is under bond at Fort Worth pending action of his requisition. Extradition was resisted by him, but Tuesday afternoon he said he would honor the requisition.

Sheriff Seager, of Bradford county, is expected to take Riall back to Pennsylvania.

Mr. Riall visited Pecos on several occasions during the oil boom, and it is understood had interests here.

SHERIFF KISER RECOVERS STOLEN CAR

Sheriff Kiser this week recovered a comparative new Ford sedan car, stolen from E Paso by some deserters from the army and abandoned by the thieves on the army at Fort Bliss. The car was parked banks of the Pecos river, but no one was in sight at the location when the car was recovered. It is thought there were five in the car when it was left on the river, two of whom are known to be deserters from the army. They all have escaped, so far, but from partially accurate descriptions, the entire bunch may yet be apprehended. The El Paso owner identified the car and it was turned over to him by the sheriff.
