In Memoriam

On the death of Dr. Robert J. Orr, who died at Marfa, Friday, the 18th of November, A. D. 1921.

The physician lay sick. He who so often with kind words and infinite skill had ministered unto others, was being attended by the loving and watchful care of an other. It was not dreamed the end was so near, that the black shadow of Death was just hovering outside the chamber door. He would arise in the morning-the need and care of others called him to duty. But not so, quietly and peacefully as a tired child, or as one during the toil of day was weary with the load stops awhile on the way, he closed his eyes in the sleep that knows no awakening here, and the brave, kind and gentle spirit left the precincts of the day. And to us the physician was dead.

The word was whispered near, then carried far-our friend is dead! It was so sudden, strange, so unexpected. How could one so busy, so full of life, so intent on helping others, die and leave his friends, the afflicted and suffering, his loved ones? How he will be missed. His place, how difficult to fill! The lame, the halt, the afflicted, the rich and poor, the old and young, all, the city, the county, humanity have suffered a great loss. His passing was a tragedy-filled with sorrow and tears. Yes, the great loving physician has gone on a long journey-he will not return. The call for him will sound in vain now-he has gone to that bourne whence no traveler ere returns.

For hours the casket lay open for his humble friends to pass by and look for the last time on the still form-upon whose kingly lines the seal of mystery had been placed, to gaze on those marble cold hands once so skillful to touch with the healing art natures adversity. Hundreds passed by, the poor, the old, the outcast and the alien. He was a friend to mankind-and the universal cord of human sympathy was touched. He lived for Service. He visited the poor, and sat by the bedside of the lowly, and with ready touch and sympathy his healing art had ever been given freely and w ithout price to the afflicted ones. They remembered-and now he is soon to be taken away from them. They wanted to see him for the last time, and so with silent steps and slow-with sad faces and tears falling, they paid their only tribute—a tear.

Then the body was taken to the church house, and there were many, who, on account of the crowd and the press had not seen him, followed. The casket, as it entered the Sanctuary was laden with flowers, and there being no more room, were heaped about the railings of the chancel, even up to the altar. The throng being so great many stood throughout the services for the dead and the words of consolation and exhortation to the living. The flowers and the crowd-and here were tears and sorrow too-these were the tribute of the Cors. For the physician went about in many places doing good and waiting on those who were imprisoned with pain. Whether in high places it mattered not-and they mingled their tears with those that followed. The great Leveller had struck-a shining mark had been touched, and many of the manmade things disappeared. Sorrow enters with death alike the abodes of all, whether it be the lowly home of the peasant or the lordly dwelling of the prince. The silver cord had been loosed and the pitcher broken at the fountain. The good physician was dead.

And they took his body to the sepulcher in the city of the dead and a great multitude followed. The young and the gay, the old and sad, the rich and poor, the lowly and those of a high estate, all followed to witness the final scene-to place on his grave the flowers and whisper good bye to the loved physician—for he was gone—Dead!

"There is no death; what seems so is transition; This life of mortal breath

Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,

Whose portal we call Death."

Now death where is thy sting? And Grave, where is thy victory?

The Good never die. They will live among us in the memory of deeds and in the glorious lessons of service. The truly great live on—they are immortal! And we shall not always sleep in that silent place of the Dead. The good physician will rise again. The call will be given for him in that last day, and the Great Physician over alf will call him home to Glory, saying as he enters in at the gate: "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter into thy

The NEW EDISON

SURROGATE'S COURT

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

June 2nd 1921

General Wingate

commanded the 52nd Field

Artillery in France. As

Judge Wingate, he is now

Surrogate of Brooklyn.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison.
Orange. New Jersey.

Dear Mr. Edison :

GEORGE ALBERT WINGATE

I want to tell you how highly impressed

I was by the realism which the New Edison showed in the comparison test which was given before the Reville Post of the American Legion.

Miss Clark's recreated voice were the same as the quality.

tone and humanness of Miss Clark's living voice. With my eyes shut, I could not tell one from the other. The same is also true when Mr. Young played in comparison with a Re-Creation of his own piano-playing. -- and when Mr.
Philips sang in comparison with the Re-Creation of his own voice.

Very truly yours.

George allust Compati ..

Helen Clark Making the Test

The test General Wingate heard was made May 25th, 1921, in the 2nd Field Artillery Armory, Smallyn, before Reville Post No. 123, American Legion, and its friends. Miss Clark, it will be noted, stood right beside the New Edison while making the comparison.

"With my eyes shut, I could not tell one from the other."

Before You Buy, Hear the Phonograph That Had General Wingate Guessing!—Compare!

CERTAINLY,—you have never denied this:

That the ideal phonograph is the one whose reproduction of music can not be told from the original music.

Your reason, however, has probably insisted—that so perfect a phonograph can never be.

General Wingate tells you it can be—and IS! Read his letter.

Last month, Bamboschek told you the same thing:

—and he is principal conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House.

America's magazines and newspapers have printed numerous articles by leading musicians and music-critics —and they also said what General Wingate has said.

The proof of the New Edison's perfect realism is in black on white.

We can show it to you,—and will.
Whether all this convinces you or

Whether all this convinces you or not, doesn't it suggest something?

Doesn't it suggest that you are overlooking the newest, most interesting and most significant development in phonographs—unless you hear the marvelous New Edison yourself?

-Unless you compare.

—Unless you try the phonograph that does sustain the comparison-test against those which do not:

Why not make sure that your Christmas phonograph is the phonograph which will bring your family music's highest pleasures and benefits?

Come in and hear the comparisons we've arranged.

Please come—any time.

Do You Know?

That Edison is first with Broad-way hits?
