ROUND-UP BAILEY ARGUMENTS

The Final Marking and Branding of Opponents' Statements. Hon. D. F. Goss and Hon. R. M. Ellerd Were the Speakers on Wednesday and Thursday Evenings

Bailey was nobly defended here last Wednesday evening by Hon. D. F. Goss. Mr. Goss took up each of the transactions of Bailey with the Waters Pierce Oil company, Kirby Lumber company and the Tennessee Lumber proposition. The questions were handled with clearness, and the speaker showed in his defense of the junior senator that he was vindicated at the investigation at Austin last year.

So far as we know Mr. Goss' speech made no converts to his side, but the Bailey forces have been greatly strengthened by his strong and convincing personality. Mr. Goss left Friday morning for Lubbock, where he was to deliver a Bailey speech.

Thursday evening the familiar face of Hon. R. M. Ellerd greeted the eager Bailey forces. He made the final round-up, cut out all mavericks, marked and branded the accusations made against the junior senator, and sent the entire herd of them to the dipping vat. A few were shown to be so bad that necessity demanded that they be destroyed on the spot, and he proceeded at once to lay low and take off the hides.

Mr. Ellerd is one of us, having lived in Plainview for several years.

He replied to the charges made by Senator Veale concerning Senator Cailey's tax rendition. These charges were torn to shreds by the presentation of a sworn statement from J. H. Midkiff, tax collector of Cooke county.

Mr. Ellerd has been making a vigorous campaign in the interest of Joe Bailey through this part of the country for some time. He has made himself felt as a vigorous campaigner and the results of his work, assisted by others, will soon be known. The crowds that have greeted the speakers have been large and attentive.

The Floydada boys added much to the enthusiasm of the rally by the song they sang, which named the candidates on both sides:

Our Old Editor Back

We are pleased to announce that Mr. D. H. Stovall is again with the Herald, in the capacity of editor. Having been connected with us before, it is unnecessary to make any extended comment, as he is well known to our readers and his ability as a writer and "mixer" is unquestioned. Any favors shown him in this connection will be appreciated by himself and the Herald.

East Side Social Club.

Mrs. J. T. Mason was hostess to the East Side Club Thursday afternoon. Most of the members were present and the meeting was one of the most delightful in the history of the club. In the game Mrs. Grant won guest's honor for highest score, and Mrs. Slaton both club honor and high score, which will entitle her to the pleasure of being the first to wear the new club pin. An elegant two course luncheon was served, in which the color scheme of pink and white was carried out, as well as in the decorations of pink and white roses. The guests of the afternoon were Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Dowden, Mrs. Ware and Mrs. Amick of Amarillo. The next meeting will be with Mrs. L. C. Penry. MRS. L. C. COLE.

Odd-Fellows and Rebekahs Celebrate

The Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah celebrated the anniversary of their organization last Saturday night. Quite a number of visitors were present from neighboring towns, among them Mr. Holiday of Canyon and the Rev. Mr. Smith of the Methodist church at Floydada. Both of these gentlemen made interesting and instructive talks, being upon the work and interests of their order. Mrs. Waldrop also gave a short talk and Mrs. Kieth a reading. One of the most pleasant features of the evening was the serving of cake and lemonade. Mr. C. S. Williams was toastmaster of the occasion.
Miss Fronia Johnston furnished the music. On Sunday afternoon the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs completed their celebration by marching in full regalia from their hall to the Baptist Church, where a large crowd awaited them. The opening ode was sung, after which Mr. Tair, the Chaplain introduced Mr. Smith, who preached an able sermon. The services closed by the singing of the grand old hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds."

Harris Digs Out

Ed Harris, who has been connected with the Herald for several months—part of the time as editor, shook the dust of Plainview from his garments last Sunday morning, without going through the monotonous formality of bidding his friends good by.
We believe in giving every man all that is coming to him, and so we shall endeavor to be impartial in our judgment of him.
Mr. Harris was a good newspaper man—one of the best in the southwest. In addition to that he was a good mixer—in fact, too good, as it now seems. As a result, many of the merchants of our town have donned the deep garb

RAILROAD ADVANTAGES TO CITY

Plainview a Testimony of Growth—Shown By Business Development and as a Shipping and Trade Center—The Commercial Metropolis of the South Plains

Plainview and adjacent country has made great advancement in the last year. New business enterprises have located here while much local capital has been invested in different enterprises. A good flouring mill will soon be completed, owned and will be operated by Jones Bros. of Wabash, Indiana. They came here last year and looked over the plains country, being shrewd business men they soon saw the need and the opportunity for a good flouring mill. The town raised money to pay freight on machinery and gave lots. Now one of the most up-to-date mills of the country will soon be ready for this year's crop. Colleges have looked over this great plains and have decided to locate here, seeing that Plainview offers so many inducements for the near future. The leading denominations are anxious to locate at the most central point.

An electric light and ice plant has been established, rather the plant that at first was very small and furnished only a few lights and a small amount of ice, has been enlarged and now proposes to supply the town. Heretofore the demand was not great enough to encourage capital in this direction. One of the best steam laundries on the plains has been operating successfully for a year and runs to its full capacity all the time. Plans are, we are told, in the hands of contractors to put up several brick buildings. The man wanting a safe investment and quick returns looked upon this country five years ago and said he had no faith in it. Circumstances have changed the quiet isolated village of that time has grown to be an important business center.

The best shipping point for all the great panhandle country.

In one day fifty-two cars of cattle were shipped by one company.

Farmers are coming in and buying small holdings and preparing to build houses. The substantial houses in town and country tell of the preminent class of people who have become believers in the future of Plainview and adjacent territory.

Words mean nothing regarding a country, but what the country has done and is doing, is the thing that tells most. Men who work here get results equal to the workers in any part of country. The nursery business has been receiving much interest for several years as is clearly proven by the many nice orchards that go so much towards beautifying the houses of the town and country.

According to the records at the Santa Fe Depot Plainview holds an enviable place as a shipping and receiving point. The number of emigrant cars carried into the Panhandle by the Santa Fe alone, for 1907, 2,519, cattle forwarded, cars 1190, hogs 37 cars, hay 51, wheat 14. Total 1292.

Lumber received, 1039 cars; building material, 133; flour, 105; immigration outfits, 253; coal, 381. Total 1911.

Merchandise received, 70,656,294 lbs. Merchandise forwarded 30483,000. Bales of cotton shipped season 1907 and 1908 to Feb. 22, value $126,050. Considering that 1907 was the first year the railroad ran into Plainview the amount of products shipped out is indeed a fine showing. But it does not come up with what the country will do this year if present promises are fulfilled.

Fine Ear of Corn

A party of Floydada citizens came up Thursday afternoon to hear Hon. R. M. Ellerd's closing speech in the Bailey campaign and to participate in the rally. The members of the party were J. T. Pitts, E. L. Norris, Glad Snodgrass, Jim McPeak, Dave Price, R. H. Baker, Arthur Curry and Bud Curry.

Ousley Realty Co. have an attractive ad in this week's Herald. It will pay the buyer or seller to read it.

Judge J. E. Lancaster was prevented from going to Petersburg Tuesday on account of court duties.

Mr. Willis, of the Wyckoff & Willis Drug company, came in Wednesday from Mexia.

R. M. Ingle, who lives a few miles below town, says he has eighty acres of good wheat growing for the new flour mill.

A. H. Gifford, one of the country's best farmers, gave Jim Lash the banner ear of corn which measured nine inches in circumference and eleven inches long. Mr. Gifford made forty-five bushels of corn to the acre.

The Plains' Future

Not Settling Up Quite as Fast as It Should, Says J. C. Hunt

The following is an interesting little story by J. C. Hunt, in the Canyon City News of last week:

I said in my last that I would give you some of my ideas of the future of this plains country. If we make a few figures we can readily see why this country looks like it is not settling up fast enough. Take the Panhandle counties and the plains from the northern part south for about 300 miles and a strip about 170 miles wide making 50 counties with an average of 900 sections of land to the county making 45,000 sections of land practically every foot of which is fine agricultural land. Now suppose that we put a farmer on every section, we will have 45,000 farmers; if we put a farmer on every half section, we will have to settle 90,000 farmers, or 180,000 farmers if every quarter section is settled. It finally will average a family to every half section or 90,000 farmers, a population of 450,000 people on the farms to say nothing of the cities that will be populated. Fifty county seats, when this country has a farmer on every half section, will have an average of 10,000 each to say nothing of the smaller towns not county seats. So we have room for 950,000 people now, and then we will not be as thickly settled even as Oklahoma is. In these 50 counties today there is not exceeding, all that, a population of 150,000 people and we are wanting now to put a farmer on every half section and a town population to the county of 10,000 people making 800,000 settlers to come. They are coming, will be here some time, but had you thought how long it will take this number of people to get ready to pull up stakes and come? When we get this, we will have a voting population in this, the plains country, of 190,000 people. Imagine 50 years from today, when doubtless the most of us will be consigned to the dust, the crossing and recrossing of railroads, the beautiful cities, a progressive people, automobile roads straight from town to town, electric railways from one end of the country to the other, farmers hauling the products of the farm with motor wagons, see great excursions of air ships moving through the air like funeral processions while underneath can be seen the great fields of waving wheat, and oats and factories of all kinds. And from the present tendencies, preaching of the gospel of the lowly Nazarene will be reduced to a business; public school teaching done mostly by lectures; guardians placed over our children to instruct and correct them; prohibition by law from eating victuals while hot; people prohibited from driving horses exceeding a certain speed and compelled to feed them so much a day; taxation sufficient to protect and care for the very unfortunate of every class and age and a complete revision of the laws we now have. I say this is likely to be the case, so it behooves us now to be careful how we legislate, how we act, and to have an eye on those who are to help us shape the destiny of this great state. Let us look well to the future. Let us maintain good government, be loyal to the constitution, encourage a safe and thrifty population, thus laying the foundation well.

The Baptists are improving the pastor's home; three more rooms are to be added, the house raised and other improvements. This is a good move—a thing that has been wished for by many members of the church for some time.

City Council Meets

The city council met Monday evening. Important business was discussed. The committee on the electric light plant gave in their report. They had heard from twenty-one towns that have electric lights. Thirteen of that number have the same rate—that is, 20 cents per kilowatt. The entire twenty-one towns report cost per drop $2.50 to $3.50. The committee on investigation was continued.

A tentative agreement was reached regarding the waste water.

Last Week's Storm

Last week's record of destructive storms was perhaps the worst in the history of this republic, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Texas in the south and the Dakotas in the Northwest. The trail of the storm extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the great lakes north. The loss of life is estimated at more than 220, while the loss of property is very great. Louisiana perhaps suffered most. The velocity of the wind was estimated at about ninety miles an hour, and it cut a swath two miles wide, demolishing or wrecking everything on the trail. Louisiana's dead are estimated at 149, and injured, 400.

Will Anderson Announces

We this week announce Will D. Anderson as a candidate for the office of county attorney of Hale county. Mr. Anderson has had experience in the county attorney's office before coming to this county. He is a good lawyer, a good citizen, and if elected will make a good officer and a vigorous prosecutor—but never a persecutor. He has been in this county four or five years, part of the time in Plainview and at present makes his home at Hale Center. We take pleasure in recommending him to the consideration of the voters of Hale county.

Anonymous Letter

We received an anonymous communication from "A Horse Man" from Plainview last Monday, but owing to the fact that no name was signed for identification we can not publish it in full. "If you get anything good you have to pay for it, and by getting something good you can get in the swim and get something for the stock you raise. You have to get out of the rut you were in when this land was cheap and go to raising stock that will compare with the price of the land." We quite agree with the gentleman whomsoever he may be. We are thinking too much about how much we could get for the land if we were to sell and not enough about how shall I make this a paying investment for a home. Corn, cotton or even maize cannot be raised with a profit on twenty dollar land unless it be fed stock that can be sold on the market for a profit. The stock that we are raising wouldn't take a prize at "Sears & Roebuck corner" not to say anything of a county fair. Let's raise the standard.—Lockney Beacon.

First Sermon

Last Sunday morning Rev. W. H. Carr preached the first sermon in the new Methodist church. In the afternoon many of the people gathered together to organize a Sunday School. After Rev. Carr had shown the many advantages to be derived from the work by both the young and old, a permanent organization was perfected with E. P. Thompson as superintendent. Some of our most pleasant recollections are of the many Sunday mornings spent at Sunday School. Let's all hope it will be a success.—Lockney Beacon.

Saturday's Storm

About 8 p. m. Saturday a stiff breeze from the north swept down through our city, and increased in velocity to a gale that would have done much damage in the lowlands of Texas or any other state. Many luckless pedestrians had to stem the wind on their way home and were kept busy to stay on their feet. It was a dusty, dirty, profanity-provoking zephyr—simply that and nothing more—no damage resulting here. Always following such winds our people watch the metropolitan dailies, sure of finding accounts of destructive tornadoes in the lowlands. About the only damage ever done here by the wind is the inverting of the temper of the, at other times, most amiable of citizens.

Next Meeting at Roswell

The Panhandle Cattle Raisers' Association voted to hold their next annual meet at Roswell, N. M. On the first count Amarillo carried by 79 to 70, but a recount in which some votes of members in arrearage for dues were thrown out, changed the majority for Roswell. G. M. Slaughter and others from Roswell worked hard for their city and promised all comers a glorious time next year.

It Reached the Spot

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, O., and is president of the Adams County Telephone Co., as well as of the Home Telephone Co., of Pike county, O., says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee by Plainview Drug Co. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

L. W. Sloneker is on the sick list this week.

Storms in the Lowlands

Four Texas counties—Navarro, Lamar, Red River and Bosque—were hit by cyclones on Wednesday of last week. These counties are a long ways apart and it must have been four different twisters that did the damage. In Lamar county twenty-five residences were destroyed, a number of business houses demolished, one man killed and several injured. In Red River county several houses were destroyed and a number of people injured; three negroes probably fatally hurt. In Bosque county five or six people were injured, a church demolished, and roof of school building torn off. In Navarro the wind was accompanied by rain, hail and floods which did considerable damage.

WAS CALLED "SPOILED DARLING"

Duc de Chaulnes's Record in Paris—French Nobleman Had Been Leading Life Which Attracted Comment

Paris, France, April 28th.—Although no autopsy will be held on the body of the Duc de Chaulnes, since Dr. Castex certifies that he died of embolism of the heart, no doubt remains that the death of the young nobleman came as the result of his ten years' habit of taking several kinds of drugs, especially morphine. Dr. Castex says the Duke was warned several weeks ago that only the prompt cessation of the habit and prolonged quiet would save his life. Never having been subjected to any kind of control, the duke was morally unable to help out medical advisers by following their counsel.

Moreover the end was hastened by the Duke's financial troubles, which constantly succeeded one another even after his "rich American marriage." The Duke evidently did not mean to pay his old debts with his wife's money unless there was no other way out of it.

At the same time a handsome house the De Chaulnes intended to occupy was being constructed in the most fashionable part of Paris and this occasioned adverse comment regarding the Duke's probity, which did not fail to reach his ears.

All this threw him into a highly irritable and even excited state, which hastened the end, although the couple managed to keep secret the fact that he had cardiac trouble.

The Duke enjoyed only the reputation of a "spoiled darling" in Paris. His parents alternately kidnaped him and his sister until his mother, the beautiful princess Galitzin, died leaving them on the hands of the Duke's grandmother, the Duchess Chevreuz, whose austerity and severity did the Duke more harm. During her life his mother grudgingly allowed him a day, but when she died she left him an income of $30,000 a year.

Thus in twenty-four hours the Duke rose from penury to wealth.

Starting in at once to make a record as a spendthrift he did it so thoroughly that in two or three years he had recourse to the life of an adventurer, now being found in the army, now living a wild career in Paris, and now giving a picturesque spectacle of how even in the French Republic a young nobleman with a historic title still may put his back against the wall and fight host of creditors with a single weapon, consisting of the promise, "I mean to marry a rich American girl soon."

A member of the family said this morning: "Now that poor Emmanuel is dead the truth might as well be told. The real difficulties in the way of the marriage were made on this side and not on the Shonts' side.

Talk at Court House

An able address was delivered at the Court House Monday night by the Hon. J. R. Bowman of Amarillo in defense of Senator Bailey, and "the Fort Worth ticket."

Mr. Bowman is representative of this district in the State Legislature, and witnessed the investigation last winter. He is a fluent speaker, and handled his subject well, and to the satisfaction of those who are supporting the Fort Worth ticket. His speech was free from vituperation and abuse, resorting only to the facts to sustain his position, which he did in a very forceful manner. Such speeches are the kind that the people will approve of, and the kind that will finally win.

Sell Ranch Holdings

The great ranch holdings are being sold. Many have already sold and are now shipping out their cattle. This condition does not prevail in districts lying near the railroads, but all over the plains country the large ranchers are quitting the business. This will on the part of some of the large ranches take perhaps several years, yet the large ranch day on the plains is passed.

One of the ranchers who had just shipped out fifty-two cars of cattle Kansas grass said Wednesday "We are quitting the cattle business."

Land is too high to pay interest to graze cattle on. This is a statement frequently made by cowman, and for the large herd it is true. But in going over the country we note a few men are in the cattle business on a small scale.

Petersburg Items

Jesse Boyd returned last Friday from New Mexico, where he has been prospecting. Mr. Boyd says: "There's no place like the plains. I'm satisfied here."

Miss Minnie Howard of Estacado spent this week here visiting her sister, Mrs. Reeves.

John Haynes of Silverton spent several days with his mother, Mrs. N. W. Haynes, this week. Mr. Haynes is a ranchman, and says stock never wintered better than they have this year.

I. Z. Smith made a business trip to Amarillo this week.

After several months' absence, Mrs. True Rosser returned this week from Colorado Springs, Col., where she has been visiting her parents.

Miss Joe Haynes has been real sick; but is better.

The men are busy farming and the women are gardening.

The closing exercise of the school last Friday was one of the most entertaining features we have had here for some time. There was a spelling match between the Sand Hill and Petersburg schools; score 11 to 13 in favor of Sand Hill. An appetizing dinner was spread by the patrons and friends of the school. Immediately after dinner an interesting program by the small children was rendered. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in playing baseball, horse racing, broncho riding, etc. Members of the literary society gave an entertainment that evening which was enjoyed by all present. Miss Amy Kelsey, Miss Hattie Linn, Jack and Jinks Linn of Estacado; Miss Hinds and Mr. Zoen from Strip, Glad Snodgrass and Chas. Owens of Floydada, Clabe and Roy Pearson of Emma, were numbered among the visitors here Friday. They all reported an enjoyable time.

The agony will soon be over. Tomorrow's election will close the present Bailey and anti-Bailey contest. In 1901 he was vindicated by a legislative committee. In 1906 was endorsed by 30000 democrats of Texas in their primary, and was elected by a large majority of the votes of both houses at Austin; was investigated again by the 30th legislative committee and again a verdict of not guilty was returned. On tomorrow the voters in Texas will endorse him two to one, and then again will be vindicated by the people who believe him innocent of the charges preferred against him from the stump in every county in the state. Charges preferred by men who on oath refused to make one damaging remark against him, are traveling up and down in the land spreading charges of infamy most of which are as harmless as the croaking of the bullfrog or the midnight yowlings of the thomas cat. Bailey is in a higher class and they can do him no real harm, the elections tomorrow will show. This is our belief.

Unity of purpose means the achievement of great results. The warm weather is coming on. There is need that every precaution that knowledge and industry can bring about, be taken to make our town clean and keep it so.

Plainview is an ideal spot. No town of the great plains country is better advertised. Yet, when those who have heard of it from afar see for themselves they say, as did the queen of Sheba of old, "The half has not been told me." We must continue to advertise. We must push things at home and abroad.

The Fly Problem

Science has done much in the last few years toward finding the real breeding place of all disease. That bacteria carry disease has been proven, and their home being known, it now has become the giant task of the people to think and act. The birthplace of the fly is in the filth of the barn lot or other places where impurities are permitted to accumulate. The state of New York is to take action against this great enemy of life. Governor Hughes has received a report gotten up by the Merchants' Association which explains how the pollution of New York harbor by the sewerage has been the direct cause of developing the entire river front into a huge breeding ground for the production of flies. Almost every disease known to man is carried out by the sewerage pipes. These bacteria being in the filth, the breeding ground of the fly, they come in contact with him, and it has been found by microscopic examination that one fly can carry as much as 100,000 bacteria on its legs and mouth. From its home of filth the fly starts and carries typhoid, cholera and all the intestinal diseases. The investigations of the chief of the government bureau of entomology, Dr. L. O. Howard, shows that the stable is the breeding ground of about 95 per cent of flies. The eggs are laid in the dirt of the stable and come out in 24 hours in the form of footlight maggots. They are hardy fellows from the start, and inside of two weeks are full-fledged flies, moving from house to house scattering disease. It being shown that the fly is a menace to good health; should we not take precaution to destroy him in his work? The fly is a thirsty soul, and if poisoned water were placed in the barn the greater per cent would be killed before doing any damage. Kerosine, poured from an ordinary sprinkling pot on the dirt of the stable, would stifle the life out of all immature insects. The dirt of the stable should be moved and placed in a bin fixed so as to let no flies that might hatch out escape and to keep flies from lighting on this waste. In this way much of the trouble would be prevented. In the Spanish-American war typhoid fever carried away far more victims than did the bullets. Infected water was first thought to be the cause, but on investigation it was found that flies were the disease carriers. So swift and malignant are these bacteria in developing, that everywhere they drop they grow and spread, and to them might be traced the destruction of many thousand lives. Tests have been made and it has been proven that the fly does spread disease. Then it behooves every citizen to be careful about all decaying filth, for there is the home of the deadly fly. We have no doubt but that many years will pass before the people will be educated to the point where they will take the care to prevent the accumulation of filth where flies may deposit eggs and hatch out thousands of deadly pests, yet it is clear that action along this line would meet the hearty approval of every thinking man.

Jones-Penry

One of the prettiest and most impressive weddings in the history of Plainview took place at the Baptist church last Wednesday afternoon, the 29th inst.

The church was artistically decorated with hot-house plants and cut flowers, forming a complete bank of foliage in front of the organ. Just before the entrance of the bridal party, Mrs. Lloyd Mayhugh sang "All for You" in a beautiful and impressive manner. Immediately following that the bridal party came in to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Elsie Cobb. The ushers, Messrs. Will Rushing and Clarence Wofford preceded the groomsmen and bridesmaid, Mr. Tom Jarman and Miss Jo Keck. The latter was beautifully gowned in white mull trimmed with Irish point. Miss Allene Penry, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and wore a gown of blue Rajah silk also trimmed with Irish point. The bride entered on the arm of her father, Mr. L. C. Penry, meeting the groom at the altar, attended by his best man, Mr. Will Goode, of this city. The bridal couple stood under an arch of green from which was suspended a wedding bell of white.

Rev. Jenkins, pastor of the Amarillo Baptist church, sealed the vows of the contracting parties in a few beautiful and solemn words. After the ceremony the relatives and a number of invited guests repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where an informal reception was held and the many beautiful presents inspected and admired.

Misses Sue Mag McWhorter and Clara Tandy presided in the dining room where punch and a variety of cake were served in abundance. The bride's cake was cut and divided among the young folks as a harbinger of pleasant dreams. Miss Frances Jones got the ring, Miss Lockie Mayhugh the thimble, Miss Jo Keck, the shell, which indicates travel, Mr. Tom Jarman, the needle, indicating good luck.

Special mention should be made of the lovely flowers carried by the bride and her attendants. Each carried arm bouquets of white carnations and brides roses. The groom presented the bride's flowers, the bride those to the bridesmaids.

The bride was elegantly dressed in a going away gown of green, elaborately trimmed with lace and silk, with hat and gloves to correspond. Her gifts to the bridesmaids were solid gold brooches in the form of wish bones. Those of the groom to his attendants were handsome stickpins set with pearls.

Both of these young people are great favorites and have a large number of friends in Plainview, as was evinced by the many costly and beautiful presents which they received.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Stocum, a Puritan miss, and Lord Carrington of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed, just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tilt, caused by jealousy.

CHAPTER II.—Lord Carrington and his wife each made charges of faithlessness against the other in continuation of the quarrel.

CHAPTER III.—First objecting against playing cards with the guests, Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Strathgate, whose attentions to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100,000 failed to perturb her, and her husband then cut for his wife's I. O. U. and his honor, Carrington winning. The incident closed except that a liking for each other apparently arose between Lady Carrington and Lord Strathgate.

CHAPTER IV.—Additional attentions of Lord Carrington to Lady Cecily and Lord Strathgate to Lady Carrington compelled the latter to vow that she would leave the castle.

CHAPTER V.—Preparing to flee, Lady Carrington and her chum Deborah, an American girl, met Lord Strathgate at two a. m., he agreeing to see them safely away.

CHAPTER VI.—Ellen fled, Strathgate driving. He attempted to take her to his castle, but she left him stunned in the road when the carriage meets with an accident. She and Debbie then struck out for Portsmouth, where she intended to sail for America.

CHAPTER VII.—Hearing news of Ellen's flight, Lords Carrington and Seton set out in pursuit.

CHAPTER VIII.—Seton, locating a fishing village, hit the trail of Ellen and Debbie. He then rented a fast vessel and started in pursuit, Carrington pursuing Strathgate.

CHAPTER IX.—Strathgate, bleeding from fall, dashed on to Portsmouth, for which Carrington, Ellen and Seton were also headed by different routes.

CHAPTER X.—Strathgate arrived in Portsmouth in advance of the others, finding that Ellen's ship had sailed before her.

CHAPTER X.

The Bewilderment of Strathgate.

As my Lord Carrington rode with increasing satisfaction and Sir Charles Seton sailed in a growing sense of self-congratulation in that he alone was on the right track, my lord of Strathgate was full of bewilderment. Like Carrington, he, too, made inquiries at every posting station, at every wayside inn, from every passer-by, as to the whereabouts of the two who had escaped him, and everywhere he had been met by an absolute lack of information.

A dozen times he had hesitated—mentally, that is—as to his course, yet in every case he had persuaded himself that the fugitives must be headed for Portsmouth. Ellen had made it quite clear to him that there was her destination. There had not been the least secrecy as to her plans. There was nothing whatever to be gained by pursuing the way Strathgate had taken them when she, to him, unfortunate accident to the carriage had occurred. They must have retraced their steps, but if they had done so, where had they gone? They seemed to have disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed them.

It was possible, of course, that Ellen might have thought better of her escapade and returned to Carrington, although knowing what sort of a reception would probably greet her, Strathgate thought this was hardly likely. At any rate, since he could not return to Carrington, and since he had no trace of his quarry, he reasoned clearly enough that the best thing for him to do was to get to Portsmouth as soon as possible. He had missed them somehow on the road, but if, as he believed, Portsmouth was their ultimate destination, he would be in a position to mature his plans and make ready to intercept them when they did arrive.

Strathgate was a man who did not believe in doing things by halves, and he rode to Portsmouth as if on a wager. His interest in Ellen was that which might have been expected from a man of his time and condition, but the fact that she was not to fall into his hands, that she had already baffled him; that she had shown such tremendous spirit in endeavoring to kill him, added a joy to the adventure which immensely tickled his jaded soul. He had started out on the undertaking and he was determined to see it through at all hazards. Of course, he realized that Lord Carrington would enter the game as soon as he could get within reach of the table, but Strathgate was as brave as he was vicious, and he rather welcomed the added player.

If he had known, and indeed it did dawn upon him after a time he would have the more enjoyed the fact that his own rapid progress greatly hindered Carrington's advance. Indeed, toward the latter part of the afternoon he threw many obstacles in the way of a possible pursuer, on the chance that it might be Carrington—or even Seton—by securing all the post horses that were worth anything at every station and mounting hostlers and post boys on them, with instructions to ride to the next station at his expense. Consequently while Strathgate's progress was faster and faster, Carrington's advance became slower and slower.

Strathgate, by hard riding, reached Portsmouth about nightfall. Carrington was not to arrive, although he pressed on all night, until the following morning. Strathgate was morally certain that the people he was chasing could not have reached Portsmouth before him. Indeed, he had made a record-breaking trip from Carrington, so he was not hurried in his preparations for the night. A bath, a royal supper, clean clothes, all of which his money and his rank made easy to procure, greatly refreshed him.

Therefore, although he had been up all the night before and wanted sleep badly, he determined to make some inquiries before he went to bed. He found, to his great surprise, that the New Eagle, which was the name of the ship owned by the countess of Carrington, had sailed that morning. So far fortune favored him, for Lady Ellen would arrive at Portsmouth, he thought, and find her ship gone.

He enlisted the service of the landlord and secured a number of men whom he posted at the various inns, with instructions to notify him immediately in case Ellen and Deborah arrived. He could give an accurate description of the two, and he felt that he had thus spread a net which they could not escape. Then he went comfortably to bed and slept the sleep of the very weary, if not of the conscience free.

Carrington, plunging along on exhausted, half-foundered horses, the leavings of Strathgate, lost the comparative cheerfulness of the morning and worked himself up into such a fury that if he had come across the earl he would probably have killed him out of hand without giving him a chance for defense.

The only one thoroughly satisfied with the situation was Seton, and even his dash eastward was stopped, for the wind, which had held briskly for the greater part of the day, died out about nightfall and left the gallant captain helplessly tossing in the short waves of the channel. He could only guess that Ellen in her boat had not yet been able to reach Portsmouth and entirely escape him. Capt. Seton was a man of energy and resource, and by the use of a judicious system of bribery, he induced Whibley and the two boys to break out the oars. He himself completed the quartette, and through the long hours of the night, the four, with short intervals for rest, urged the little boat after the fugitives.

So far as the objects of all this riding and sailing and mad chasing were concerned, although success had attended their efforts up to this time, it could not be said that they were either of them particularly happy. In the first place, the sun beating down upon the unsheltered boat—although the winter season was approaching—was very hot. In the second place, hard bread and water were not exactly luxuries. Time was when Ellen could have eaten them without dissatisfaction and have even been thankful that she had them, but that time had passed. Although her spirit was as great as ever, the luxurious living of Carrington had naturally affected her taste. And Debbie had had no experience of that kind at all. The younger manifested a disposition to reproach the elder, only checked by Ellen's stern and mandatory method of dismissing the subject.

To hearten up her young friend, Ellen put a brave face upon the whole matter. She pointed out to her how comfortable and free from pursuit, or interference, they would be when they boarded the New Eagle at Portsmouth; what a pleasant voyage they would have back; and made various other suggestions to cheer her young comrade and to fight down the growing dismay in her own heart. It was only by constantly holding up before herself the picture of my lord and Lady Cecily in each other's arms in the arbor that she kept herself to the pitch of her adventure.

She found herself thinking wistfully of the happy days of the past; of the many pleasant cruises which they had made in these very waters. What a gallant, devoted, royal lover he had been! How she hated Cecily Carrington! She looked at herself and took for a moment prefer that weak and vapid creature to his wife.

But it was not personal beauty or charm that she lacked after all. He had been ashamed of her ways, of her inability to enter into the customs and practices of a vicious society on terms of equality with those who had been born and lived in it all their vitiated lives. He was ashamed of her! A proud woman was Ellen, Lady Carrington, and sometimes she almost forgot her jealousy in her outraged dignity. And between the two passions she vowed that she would never see my lord again until he came begging forgiveness. If he wanted her, he would have to chase her across the ocean, and when he got there, if he came, she would make him feel all that he had lost and the price that he must pay before he could be re-established in her good graces.

And yet it is probable that Ellen had never loved Carrington as she did while tossing about in that little open boat, a lonely speck upon the sea, munching dry hard bread and drinking tepid water and trying to console the whimpering little maiden by her side.

And it is possible, too, that Lord Carrington never realized how much he was in imminent danger of losing and how much the loss meant to him as he plunged along through the darkness on the way to Portsmouth.

Ellen had advanced much farther on her journey when she ran into the calm which later overtook Seton. It was just as well, she thought, for she would scarcely have dared to undertake the navigation of Portsmouth harbor in the night, and if the breeze sprang up after midnight, as it was apt to do, she calculated from the hours she had been sailing and the probable speed of the boat, that she would be able to reach the harbor at daybreak. Ellen intended to board the New Eagle, which she knew from the advice she had received from the supercargo, was about ready to sail. She had nothing to do in Portsmouth save to purchase a few necessaries and then she would order her ship to be got under way for Philadelphia at once.

All Ellen's ready money, except what she carried on her person, had been left to Carrington in the cheque on her desk, but she still retained control of several stout merchantmen which had come to her from her father and the New Eagle was the best of them. Once she set foot on the docks of that ship, she would be perfectly safe. Meanwhile, as she had been up practically all the night before, she felt that she must have some slumber.

She furled the sail of the little boat, turned the tiller over to Debbie with instructions for her to let the shallop drift and to waken Ellen in two hours by the watch. Then she stretched out her tired body beneath the thwarts, pillowed her head on her arm and went instantly to sleep with the readiness of a sailor who learns to take his rest and refreshment whenever it can be had.

It was very lonely and miserable for poor Debbie. She was flying like Ellen from that she loved best, but unlike Ellen there was no reason on earth for her to break away. It was only the constraint put upon her by the stronger will that had brought her to this wretched pass. She sat idly in the stern sheets, holding the tiller, while the tears trickled down her pretty red cheeks. She wished that she were anywhere else under heaven than in this boat. She looked at Ellen almost malevolently, surveying her slight and boyish figure with a venomous glance and the thought that since clothes of the other sex so well became her, Ellen should have been born a man.

Poor Debbie felt very wretched and very lonely tossing idly about in the quiet seas under the calm stars. She wondered if Sir Charles did really love her as she had more than once indicated, or whether he were like the faithless Carrington and the insidious Strathgate. Was there no honor and virtue among men in England, she queried. And alas, out of her experience, she found little comforting assurance. Yet a man who could sit for an hour with a woman looking at Baxter's "Saints' Rest"—surely that was the test of love if ever there could be one!

Deborah knew nothing about the proverbial willingness of the devil to steal the livery of heaven to delude mankind, and especially womankind, and if she had, she would have spurned the thought as doing an injustice to her ideal of Sir Charles. And indeed, whatever else Sir Charles might be capable of, he was really in earnest—not over Baxter, that was a mere incident—but over Debbie. If he had not been, nothing on earth could have induced him to toil and sweat over an oar through half the night three or four leagues behind.

After a long while Debbie felt sorry for Ellen. The latter had turned in her sleep and Debbie could see her face clearly in the rising moonlight. There were traces of tears upon it. Debbie forgot her own grief, which was largely experimental, in commiseration for Ellen's real misfortunes. And so she resolutely kept herself awake and let Ellen sleep until long past midnight. Indeed, unused to the hard bed in which she lay, Ellen at last woke of her own motion, and re-

Miss Lucile Penry was the recipient of a linen shower last Friday afternoon, given by the Bachelor Maids in honor of her approaching marriage. Miss Elsie Cobb, the hostess, served a dainty one course luncheon to her guests. Punch was also served throughout the afternoon, and toasts were given and responded to, appropriate to the occasion. The bride received many handsome and useful presents, thus showing the affection of her girl friends. Little Miss Mildred Penry assisted Miss Cobb in receiving the following guests: Mrs.
Lloyd Mayhugh, Mrs. Maxey,
Misses Lucile Penry, Allene Penry,
Rosa Fowle, Lockie Mayhugh,
Frances Jones, Nell Holland, Clara
Tandy, Jo Keck, Sue Mag Mc-Whorter, Alice Smiley, Burleson and Newton. Miss Emma May-hugh and the Misses Parr were prevented from being present, but sent handsome gifts.

Mrs. Green Wilson was at home to the Highland club at its last regular meeting, Thursday, April 23.
Her spacious parlors were thrown open to the club members and their friends. Six tables were provided which were all filled with enthusiastic forty-two players. Mrs.

Hughes was fortunate in winning the favor for progression, and Mrs.
Grant carried off highest score.
An artistic salad course, followed by an ice, completed one of the most delightful club meetings of the year. Mrs. J. T. Mayhugh, Mrs. Tom Wilson, Mrs. Maxey,
Mrs. O. Holland, Mrs. Barnes,
Mrs. Carl Donohoo, Miss Rosa
Fowle and Miss Allene Penry were the invited guests of the hostess.

Fruit Not Hurt

The hard wind Saturday night and Sunday, and also Tuesday night, did some damage to fruit, but it was not hurt by the cool wave that came accompanied by a ing. People are rejoiced for the promise of a bountiful fruit crop was never better than now.

Dry Farming Area

Great Progress Being Made in that Method of Cultivation

There has been great progress made in "dry farming" during the last year: that is, a great deal more land is now being cultivated by the "dry farming" method than a year ago. As showing the advance of the work in Colorado, the Denver Post gives the following:

Total number acres "dry farmed" in Colorado, 300,000; total number acres "dry farmed" in Eastern Colorado, 200,000; increase over last year for the state, 100,000.

This, as will be seen, shows that the increase in the average under "dry farming" during the year in Colorado is 50 per cent. The Post adds: Non-irrigating farming is practiced in practically every section of Colorado to a more or less extent, and therefore these figures must be estimates. Eastern Colorado includes all that section lying east of Denver and tributary to Denver. The greater part is commonly termed "Denver's back yard," extending along the Union Pacific and Rock Island Railroads from Denver and Colorado Springs through to the Kansas line. This tells the story in brief of what is being accomplished without irrigation in Colorado, and gives one a very comprehensive idea of the amount of money some men are making in the unwatered section of the state. Only a few years ago the "dry farmer" was considered a dreamer—a visionary who saw crops on the non-irrigated land of eastern Colorado with the eyes of a fanatic, but today it is realized that he is neither a dreamer or visionary, but a practical every-day man. In the last two years more than one thousand homesteaders have gone into the country lying just east of Denver and along the Union Pacific railroad. That these people are staying in the country and are planning to improve their claims is proof of their faith in non irrigated farming.

The above clipping shows the results that are being obtained in one of our sister states in the arid belt. Experiment has shown that here a similar manner of cultivation has given an abundant yield. Ours is not the arid belt of Colorado. The question in this and all farming countries at some part of the crop-growing season is, how can the crop make an average yield without more rain? Now, the system of dry farming followed closely has given abundant yield in the past so why not in the future? A dry mulch must be kept on the surface to act as a cover to hold the moisture. Frequent shallow plowing will do this. But to insure abundant moisture make frequent use of the disc harrow to keep a mulch on the surface, and in grain run the surface packer. The disc and surface packer should be used on alfalfa fields as well as on grain.

A Happy Father

is soon turned to a sad one if he has to walk the floor every night with a crying baby. McGee Baby Elixir will make the child well—soothe its nerves, induce healthy, normal slumber. Best for disordered bowels and sour stomach—all teething babies need it. Pleasant to take, sure, and safe, contains no harmful drugs. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by J. H. Wayland Drug Co.

Buy the best. We have just received a car of the Davis Piedmont Smithing coal, shipped direct from the mines under the mines' seal. We store in a close bin, keeping it free from dust. Tandy-Coleman company, Plainview.

The Praetorians

The Praetorians, with national headquarters at Dallas, Texas, are occupying their own building, a sixteen story structure. This magnificent structure is the pride of the great southwest. The modern order of Praetorians has had a phenomenal growth and being a home company and investing their money in the locality where it is paid into the order, that is, after a certain number of members have been obtained. This order has made Plainview headquarters for the south plains country and this means a great deal for our town.

Those wanting insurance on a basis that means cheapness and security will feel proud to know that such an order has seen fit to place district headquarters here. We have on our desk literature stating the leading features. These are such as to make it worthy of close study.

A Californian's Luck

"The luckiest day of my life was when I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve," writes Charles F. Budahn, of Tracy, Cal. "Two 25c boxes cured me of an annoying case of itching piles, which had troubled me for years and that yielded to no other treatment." Sold under guarantee by Plainview Drug Co.

Loses a Pioneer

The News regrets to state that W. T. Moreland left us last Friday for Plainview intending to make that place his home. He goes there to take charge of his deceased brother's business and his family will follow in a few days, at the close of business anyway. He has disposed of his interests in the Canyon City Supply Co. to Frank Ames and his bank stock to Dr. Black, retaining his undivided interests in the buildings only. We all regret to lose Mr. Moreland and his family, and Plainview may well rejoice in securing them.—Canyon City News.

A Smile

is a pretty hard thing to accomplish when you're blue, bilious and out of sorts. This is a sure cure for all kinds of stomach and liver complaints—constipation and dyspepsia. Ballard's Herbine is mild, yet absolutely effective in all cases. Price 50 cents per bottle. Sold by J. H. Wayland Drug Co.

Nearing Completion

The flour mill is being rapidly pushed to completion. Most of the machinery has been received and the work of placing is going on nicely. Mr. C. N. Jones is very enthusiastic and inspires all who meet him with the same enthusiasm.

The End of the World

should it come tomorrow would find fully 1-3 of the people suffering with rheumatism of either slight or serious nature. Nobody need suffer with rheumatism for Ballard's Snow Liniment drives away the trouble, relieves the pain instantly and leaves the user as well and supple as a two year old.

Saw the Bride Off

A jolly crowd of young people was at the depot Thursday morning and showered the Mr. Thornton Jones Jr. and bride with rice just as the train pulled out.

NOTICE.

We have received our coupon books and hereafter all goods sent out will be C. O. D. (cash or coupons on delivery). Cash Grocery Store. Next door east of post-office. Phone 174.

Improving Amarillo

We note in the Daily Panhandle an article speaking of the work of Deputy Sheriff Keeton is doing towards beautifying the grounds around the Court House at Amarillo.

He is planting trees and blue grass, white and red clover, flowers, timothy, vegetables of many varieties etc. Though he is doing so much to enhance the beauty of the county's most conspicuous spot, there are some who forget and walk over the tender growing plants. We have no need to speak of the need of trees. We have as nice trees on our court yard as can be found anywhere. But it would be of great value and would enhance the beauty of the grounds of our citadel of justice if the tall grass and weeds were cut.

Boys Will Be Boys

and are always getting scratches, cuts, sprains, bruises, bumps, burns or scalds. Don't neglect such things—they may result serious if you do. Apply Ballard's Snow Liniment according to directions right away and it will relieve the pain and head the trouble. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by J. H. Wayland Drug Co.

Dr. Mays to Preach

Dr. L. T. Mays of Houston, pastor elect, will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist Church Sunday morning and evening. All the membership and friends are cordially invited to be present to hear brother Mays preach, also to form his acquaintance.

Good Addresses

Judge J. E. Lancaster and Col. T. J. Tilson had a joint discussion at Hale Center Saturday evening. Judge Lancaster made a rousing speech for the junior senator, while Mr. Tilson with much ability showed up the opposing side.

Closing Agreement

Plainview, Tex., April 4, 1908. This is to certify that we, the undersigned, do hereby agree to close our respective places of business every night at 7:30 o'clock, except Saturday night, which is left to our convenience. And on the first five days of each week we agree to take no orders later than 6:30 p. m. to be delivered on the same day. This is to go into effect on May 4, 1908.

A SURE THING

The American people in general today are getting tired of the so-called schemes and are looking for sure things. This is the sure thing we are going to offer you--for awhile, at least.

When you buy 50 cents or more of goods, we are going to give you a ticket for the amount of the sale, and when you get fifteen dollars worth of these tickets bring them back and we will give you one dollar IN CASH FOR THE TICKETS; and when you buy twenty-five dollars worth at one time we will give you two dollars in cash for the tickets. This does not include our tailoring department.

This is no game of chance; you will get one dollar cash for every fifteen dollars worth of goods you buy from us. Be sure and call for the tickets. We are still selling the famous KUPPENHEIMER suits, ranging in price from fifteen dollars to twenty-seven dollars and fifty cents and will give you a guarantee that there is no better in the world. (I / FORD means quality. We have the nicest line of Oxfords that can be found in any city from three dollars and a half to five dollars. Cluett and Monarch Shirts from a dollar and a quarter to two dollars. Always the nicest line of ties ever bought. Remember, we will begin giving the tickets next Monday, and on cash sales only.

Bailey's Property in Cooke

The following came to H. E. Skaggs direct from Judge B. F. Mitchell in a private communication. Judge Mitchell is ex-county judge of Cooke county.

Gainesville, Tex., Apr. 27, '08.

I, J. H. Midkiff, tax collector of Cooke county, do hereby certify that the tax rolls of this county for 1907 show that Senator J. W. Bailey and wife rendered property to the value of fifty thousand and ninety-five ($50,095) dollars.
