

A RAILROAD MEETING

Major Gordon, the Veteran Railroad Promoter Says Plainview Can Get Another Road

Meeting was called to order by R. P. Smythe, Dr. J. B. Hanby was elected to occupy the chair W. E. Armstrong was made secretary. In an address by Col. Smythe he stated that Major Eugene Gordon was in Hale County for the purpose of building a Railroad and Plainview was going to have it.

By request Major Gordon addressed the meeting, but made no specific proposition. He built the present road, has built several roads and intends building another thru this part of the country.

He made a flattering talk concerning Plainview and the Panhandle country.

Will return to Plainview shortly with a definite proposition. Major

Gordon would not guarantee anything, he leaves everything to his record.

As there was nothing further to be done the meeting adjourned.

During his recent visit to Plainview Major Gordon made the statement that he considered Hale County one of the finest counties in the United States.

N. K. Smith, who had a stroke of paralysis some weeks ago, is still confined to the apartments in the Wayland building where he was moved for treatment when first taken sick. Mr. Smith has been under the care of a trained nurse, and has had the best medical treatment. He is improving.

Storm at Norfleet

Quite a wind storm with hail swept over the Norfleet country last Saturday night, doing considerable damage to crops and orchards but more to farm improvements. The sheds and chicken-house of L. H. Triplett were completely demolished, also buggy torn up and seventy-five chickens killed.

The barn of H. R. Ferguson and two wind-mills of J. J. Rushing were blown down. The Norfleet school was moved from its foundation and some damage done to the building. This is one of the worst storms that ever occurred in this country, but still did not approximate a cyclone.

What might have been a disastrous fire occurred Wednesday morning at the rear end of Paxton & Oswald's furniture store. Several barrels of lime which were just behind the building got wet in the heavy rain of Tuesday night. They ignited thus causing a blaze, which however was discovered in time to prevent a serious fire. A slight damage was done to the building and a few articles of furniture.

OUR SECOND COLLEGE

Plainview Makes Another Long Stride Toward the Goal, "The Athens of West Texas"

In an interview with Dr. Mays, pastor of the Baptist Church, he stated to the Herald reporter the following interesting facts: At a meeting Tuesday night, the College Committie, decided that the institution shall be literally and technical. He also said, that in the cluster of five buildings in one, which shall constitute the college; three of the great leaders of the Christian education in America are to be commemorated. The library, to which the public will have access, is to be called the R. B. C. Howell Library in honor of Dr. R. B. C. Howell of Nashville, Tenn., grandfather of our fellow citizen who bears his name. The Science hall is to be named after Dr. Rufus

C. Burleson, one of the ablest and oldest educators in Texas. His widow is living in Plainview with their son, Richard Burleson. The building will be known as Burleson Hall. Another of the buildings will be named after Dr. Francis Wayland, the first great president of Brown University, and the author of a valuable work on moral and political science. Dr. Francis Wayland was an ancestor of the Wayland family who are old residents of Plainview. Thus in commemorating these three great educators, many of the prominent people in Plainview will be honored. Dr. Mays also said that the Baptist parsonage, when completed, will be the finest in the state with the exception of the one in Galveston.

Died

Harvey McReynolds, aged sixty-two, died of typhoid pneumonia, at his brother-in-law's, S. Morgenstern's four miles west of Plainview. He died Tuesday at 1.30 p. m. Remains were interred in Plainview Cemetery on Wednesday at three o'clock p. m.

Mr. Reynolds came to this country about three months ago and was in the employment of his brother-in-law when taken sick. He was taken with typhoid fever, but other complications set in, causing his death.

Miss Marie Vanderplans, a trained nurse, attended him during his last illness. Every other possible means was used to alleviate his sufferings and prolong his life, but death claimed him as his own. The body was embalmed by E. R. Williams.

Experimental Farm

The experiment farm near Plainview is being double disked this week. DeLay and Lancaster are having the work done for Mr. Cambell. In a short time a dwelling will be erected and other improvements made on the farm.

Mr. Hodge is doing the work.

FOR SEWERAGE

Board of Aldermen Preparing to Submit This All-Important Question to the People

At a meeting of the City council Thursday night, the question of a Sewerage System for Plainview occupied most of the time and was freely discussed by the Aldermen. All of the councilmen are heartily in favor of such a move, but deem it wise to further get the will of the people before they order an election for bonds. Hence mass meetings will be called within the next month in which the citizens will be given an opportunity to express themselves concerning the matter. Every citizen of Plainview should be present at these meetings and do his part in agitating such a movement, the most important issue that has ever come before the people. Let us get before the city council in such a manner and do all in our power to Plainview a cleaner Plainview.

Plainview's New Roller Mill At Work

Jones Bros., C. N. and H. W., made their first flour Thursday evening and invited the public to inspect the plant and watch the machinery move. Many accepted the invitation and generally expressed astonishment at the smooth and almost noiseless movement of the vast and complicated aggregation of moving mechanism.

The building is full of machinery from basement to attic, and all

Several cars of brick arrived this week for First Nation Bank, and just as soon as the weather dries up, work will commence on the foundation, and the building will be pushed to completion as fast as possible.

Frank Dorsey's Twins

Frank Dorsey, who lives on the eastern edge of the city limits, is wearing a pleased countenance because of the arrival of a fine pair of twins at his place. Now, twins are nothing unusual in the Plainview country, but the remarkable thing about these twins is that their mother is only 31 months old and that the twins are her second offspring. She is a thoroughbred jersey, by the way, and gave birth to her first calf at the age of 18 months. Frank invites his friends to come out and see his fine cow with three calves, all trying to suck at once.

Fire Limits Extended

The city council Thursday night passed an ordinance again placing the block that Lee Mitnhell's barber shop is on in the fire limit of Plainview. Hence the buildings that are constructed on that block from now on will have to be of either brick or stone.

Texas Woman's Press

The late meeting of the Texas Woman's Press association in Fort Worth, was the fifteenth convention of brilliant women who so ably uphold the position of woman in the ranks and file of Texas editors and writers. Miss Katie Daffan was re-elected president, an honor rightly deserved by that talented lady.

moved by a quiet-acting 60 horsepower steam engine. This is a first-class mill with all the up-to-date conveniences of the modern roller mill.

C. F. Randall, an able millwright, with able assistance, was two months in placing the machinery, and the neat work and accuracy of all the adjustments evidence his skill as a workman. This will be a great boon to our town and country, giving our wheat grower a market. Of course our people know that the wheat is too new for milling, and will have to season out for a few days in order to secure the best results. As soon as the wheat is ready for the roller the mill will start up for a continuous run.

The Herald extends best wishes to the Jones brothers, and hopes their reward will be commensurate with their enterprise and expenditure.

WHEAT MOVING

Plainview Country Ships Out First Car. Some Good Yields of Golden Grain Reported

The first shipment of wheat from Plainview was made last Monday by the Plains Lumber and Grain company. The wheat was raised on the Clinkscales and Thomas place east of town. It brought ninety cents per bushel, weighed sixty-one and one-half pounds to the bushel and made an average of twenty-five bushels to the acre. These facts show what the south-plains country can do in the way of wheat. A few years ago, the Panhandle was conceded to be exclusively a stock country. Now, on the contrary, broad fields of grain are seen on every side, and the sound of the thresher is heard in the land.

Good Yield of Wheat

B. M. Thomas, on the Clinkscales old place, made 17½ bushels of wheat to the acre on 200 acres. Bradford Cox, about seven miles east of Plainview, had 400 acres in wheat. Nearly a hundred of it was on sod, first crop, which yielded 14 bushels per acre. The balance, on old land, yielded 26½ bushels per acre. The Herald got this information from the men who raised it and are delivering it to the Plainview flouring mill.

A short time since N. J. Lovern brought some fine samples of wheat to The Herald office, raised on his farm on the Floyd county line sixteen miles northeast of town. The heads shown by Mr. Lovern were unusually large and fine, all of them well filled and measuring five and a half and six inches in length.

Mr. Bob Smith, living on the Engel place, near Running Water, has the distinction of having brought the first wagon load of wheat to the Harvest Queen mills. There were fifty-five bushels of fine grain in the load.

Real Estate Exchange

To the Land owners of Hale County:

The Hale County Real Estate Exchange was recently organized in Plainview, and we take this method of informing you of some of the objects of the exchange and its method of doing business.

The principal object of the exchange is to establish a more cordial relation among the real estate agents of Hale County and the land owners and to establish business rules and regulations for the conduct of the real estate business, which will be more conducive to the best interest of the seller, agent and buyer as well, and to this end the exchange has adopted among other things, the following:

1st. This exchange approves and adopts the exclusive agency plan for the sale of all lands or properties placed with its members and authorizes the use of forms provided by the exchange for that purpose.

Every member of the exchange shall have an equal privilege of selling all lands listed with its members, but in case of sale the deal must be closed by and through the agent listing the property.

The following is a list of members of the Hale County Real Estate Exchange:

- J. W. Grant & Co.
- Holland & Pepper.
- DeLay & Lancaster.
- C. C. Callaway.
- J. W. Golden.
- Perry Dowden & Dowden.

- Tilson Land Company.

List your property with us and it will receive our prompt attention.

Respectfully,
HALE COUNTY REAL ESTATE EX.

A COURT HOUSE

One of the Needs of Hale County Soon To Be Met If People Vote for Bond Issue.

Nothing was done last Saturday by the County Commissioners in the way of ordering an election for bonds for building of a new Court House. They decided that the July session of Commissioners' Court would be a more opportune time. We are confident however, at that time they will order the election, as the majority of the voters of Hale county have signed a petition, thus expressing their views regarding the matter. There is nothing that would add more to the looks of the town than a new court house as the present building is an old one and presents a bad appearance to the many strangers who visit our town. Other towns in the Panhandle are building new courthouses. Why not Plainview?

Small Cyclone Originates Near Lockney

Saturday night, of June 6, a big rain visited our country and with it came some wind. About two miles south of town a small cyclone formed on Logan Kennedy's place and made a bee line for his house.

Mr. Kennedy had feared there was danger in the cloud, but was dozing (he and his household) when the "twister" hit and started his house to rolling. About the first turn the roof hit the yard fence posts and dug holes in the top of the house, and when the wind had ceased the house was on its side, with the household goods on top of the family. Mr. Kennedy worked himself out of the house in about thirty minutes and came to town for medical and other aid.

None of the family was hurt severely, but all dishes etc., were put out of commission.

Sunday and Monday a subscription list was started and about $150 was "made up" among the townspeople to help somewhat the condition of affairs. This week and last he has been assisted by neighbors to rebuild his house.—Lockney Beacon.

Efficacy of Prayer

Among esteemed neighbors there is a family known for the piety of its members and the implicit confidence in the efficacy of prayer. One of the daughters, Miss Kate B—, has reached the age when she would be referred to ungallant as an old maid. She is the target for many good-natured quips.

Not long ago a certain society of young men which had interested itself in the campaign for higher saloon license sent a committee visit the homes of the district and obtained signatures to a high license petition, says the San Francisco Call.

When this committee numbering a half dozen members, ascended the front steps at the B— home my friend's wife was the first to see it through the front window.

"Laws John!" she exclaimed to her husband. "See all those young men coming to visit us!"

Mr. B— glanced out of the window noted the number of the invading force and remarked with an air of conviction: "uHmph! Kate's been praying again"—Fort Worth Record.

Cure For The "Blues"

The doctors call it neurasthenia. In common parlance we call it the "blues." It is a disease. And the disease can be diagnosed just like measles or typhoid fever.

The disease, says the physicians, is caused by nervous worry. It is peculiarly American because in this country it finds favorable conditions. American methods of living overstrain of nerve fiber. Overstrain brings worry, and worry brings the "blues."

Americans go the limit.

The average business works to the verge of his strength during business hours, which is not all right. By dwelling on difficulties he magnifies them. He loses sleep and in consequence loses power to overcome. The cumulative force of the continued strain brings on a lit of the "blues."

Many American woman suffer the same way.

Household burdens grow heavy. Nerves are taxed to the finish. The woman begins to worry. She worries over the fit of her dress, over the style of her hat, over her husband—anybody, anything, affords occasion for worry and the "blues."

And the higher up the woman lives in the case of society the greater the liability to neurasthenia. Late hours, the strain of social requirements, rich food, the bad air of theaters and ballrooms, lack of exercise, excitement—all these promote the conditions that bring on the blues.

Some—both men and women—under the strain of modern life resort to stimulants to restore strength and temper of mind, which only makes matters worse. Stimulants simply hasten the day of nervous breakdown.

What is the cure for the "blues?"
Saner living, that is all.

Saner living means simple food, plenty of sleep, exercise in the open air, sunshine and, above all, a serene wind. In a word, the cure for the "blues" is "the simple life."

Of course it is not easy throw off the habit of brooding over one's troubles. But one can do it. The physician of the rich solves the problem by sending his patient to a health resort. His object is to secure a change of scene of his patient. The change of scene produces a new viewpoint—breaks up the mental habit.

If you have strong will power you can get the new viewpoint yourself—and save the doctor's bill.—Amarillo Daily Panhandle.

Soldier of the Old South Passes Away

John DeWitt Clinton Atkins, who was a member of the Confederate congress, and also several terms as a representative from Tennessee in the United States congress, died at his home here today aged 84 years. At the outbreak of the Civil war he organized a regiment for the Confederacy, and under Cleveland's first administration he was United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Col. Atkins served his country in many capacities and with honor. He was born June 4, 1825, in Henry county, Tenn., the son of John Atkins and Sarah Manley Atkins. He was educated at the East Tennessee University and was first honor graduate of the class of 1846. Nov. 23, 1847, he was married, his first wife, Elizabeth Bacon Porter, dying in 1887, at Paris, Tenn., Mrs. Florence Crawford was married to Col. Atkins, June 24, 1908. He served as a representative in the Tennessee Legislature from 1849 to 1851 and was elected to the State Senate in 1855. The following year he presided over the Democratic convention of Tennessee. Col. Atkinson became congressman from the ninth Tennessee district in 1858 and held his seat until the following year. In 1860 he was a delegate at large to the Charleston convention, withdrawing from that body with the Tennessee delegation. He was a candidate for presidential elector on the ticket for Breckenridge and Lane in 1860, and the following year was elected a member of the provisional congress of the Confederate States of America, and to the permanent confederate congress in November 1861, to which position he was re-elected in 1863. He was Lieutenant Colonel of the Fifth Tennessee Regiment, C. S. A. In 1884 he was chairman of the Tennessee Democratic state convention.

Palo Duro Park Action

On suggestion of Congressman Stephens, a citizen's mass meeting was held at the courthouse Wednesday morning for the purpose of selecting and sending a delegate to the Internal Improvement convention which holds forth at Shreveport, La., Friday and Saturday of this week.

Chief among the matters to be considered there is the Palo Duro Park proposition. Congressman Stephens writes that he will be there himself.

Jasper N. Haney was selected as delegate from Canyon City and a fund readily subscribed to cover his expenses.

Mr. Haney, who by the way is President of the Park association and therefore a most fitting representative in this matter, left on Wednesday evening train for Amarillo where, joined by other Park delegates from that city, he took the train for Shreveport.

The News expects to report something good for the Park project on Mr. Haney's return.—Canyon City News.

To Texas Press Members

You shape the morals of the world;
And when earth's last lone flag is furled,
When earth's last press has ceased to whirr,
Its driving motor ceased to purr;
When life's last stick is laid aside
And all your forms are justified,
You'll turn you from the record made
And face God's judgment unafraid.
For your ideas are good; you go
Your daily journeys to and fro,
Through winter storm and summer heat,
By village road, by city street,
Unfearing and unbought and free
To do what seems to you to be Best for the world, and cheer men on
Up heights that still remain unwon.
The item that would hurt or fill
A heart with woe 'tis yours to kill;

The word to put feet on the way
To better things 'tis yours to say;
Lift up the weak, cheer on the strong
And set life's toiling to a song,
Do most to help men on their way
And do it for the smallest pay.
I'd rather that my lot were cast
With yours, to stand with you at last
And be judged with you, than to stand
Alone, or with whom men call grand.
You shape the morals of the world
And when earth's last lone flag is furled,
And you your tale of talents tell,
'Twill be seen you have shaped them well.

Rex Beach took to writing quite as an afterthought. He began only five years ago after his return to America from the Alaska gold fields, and in this time has written "The Spoilers," which is also on the boards as a play, and "The Barrier," which the Harpers are quoting as a best seller. Mr. Beach's experience is the reverse of the stories writers usually tell about rejected manuscript.
"It was recently the result of a bet," he says. "I am into a fellow staying in the same place with me who had come out of the gold country a little sooner. He had written two or three articles about Alaska for some paper devoted to the interests of agricultural implements and they had paid him a few dollars. He gave me the stories to read and seemed proud of them. I thought to myself, 'If he can get real money out of this, I can.' I made a bet that I would sell some stories, too, but, instead of following his example and working up from the bottom, I decided to start at the top, and let the force of gravity do the rest, so I sent a short story to one of the magazines and sure enough it was accepted. I thought for a long time somebody in the office was playing a joke on me. Then I got into other business in Chicago, and one day the editor of the magazine was passing through and called for me and asked for some more stories. I gave him all I had, and he took them away with him. A week or so later he wrote to me that they were all accepted."—Fort Worth Record.

The Ladie's Home Journal and the Saturday Evening Post are the two big publications of the Curtis Publishing company of Philadelphia, both which have large circulations in this country, have been refused recognition as second-class periodicals by the Canadian post office department.

Baily May Not Attend

Friends of Senator J. W. Baily think it very doubtful if he will be able to take any active part in the Denver convention as he may not even be fit to attend. He is still in bed at the Waldorf-Astoria and it will be a week or ten days before he can get out. It was reported the sub-committee of the of the Democratic National committee had been considering Baily for Chairman of the committee on resolutions.

Julian Roberts, Foreman of The Herald, left Tuesday for Denver, where he will visit relatives and also attend the National Democratic convention. He will represent and report for nine newspapers including The Herald, while in Denver.

The St. Louis Republic on July 12 will issue a one hundredth anniversary edition of about 100 pages of reading matter, including all history-making events of the last century in the middle west.

Among other feature the edition will contain a reproduction of the earliest issue in 1808 of the St. Louis Republic, the old style type and spelling being reproduced exactly as the original copy. From the files of the Republic and other historical sources a mass of interesting matter has been collected and will be presented in an attracting farm in the centennial edition.

W. H. M. S.

Monday afternoon the W. H. M. S. met in regular session. After the usual devotional exercises the members proceeded with their first quizz meeting in which they discussed the following subjects: Home Mission Schools, State Educational Institutions, Righteous Laws, etc.
An interesting talk was made by the president on the duty of lending our moral influence of the betterment of our civil laws, special attention being drawn to the liquor traffic and present divorce evils.
A decision was made to change the time of meeting from three to four p. m. to postpone the election of a delegate to the District meeting at Lubbnck until next Monday.
The program for next meeting will be our regular Bible study, as that was neglected on the third Monday.

John Liederbach from near Olton was in town Wednesday and paid the HERALD a call. Mr. L. is formerly of Buffalo, Minn. He came here about three months ago with a Soash excursion and bought land fourteen miles west of Plainview. In regard to this country he said to this reporter: "This is the finest country I ever saw. Since the last two rains I would not give an acre of my land down here, acre for acre for the land I sold in Minnesota at $65 per acre. I like the country so well that I am trying to induce my old neighbors to come down and buy."
Mr. Liederbach had his name placed on the HERALD list and is now a full fledged citizen.

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Slocum, a Puritan miss, and Lord Carrington of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed, just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tilt, caused by jealousy.

CHAPTER II.—Lord Carrington and his wife each made charges of faithlessness against the other in continuation of the quarrel.

CHAPTER III.—First objecting against playing cards with the guests, Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Strathgate, whose attentions to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100,000 failed to perturb her, and her husband then out for his wife's I. O. U. and his honor, Carrington winning. The incident closed except that a liking for each other apparently arose between Lady Carrington and Lord Strathgate.

CHAPTER IV.—Additional attentions of Lord Carrington to Lady Cecily and Lord Strathgate to Lady Carrington compelled the latter to vow that she would leave the castle.

CHAPTER V.—Preparing to flee, Lady Carrington and her chum Deborah, an American girl, met Lord Strathgate at two a. m., he agreeing to see them safely away.

CHAPTER VI.—Ellen fled, Strathgate driving. He attempted to take her to his castle, but she left him stunned in the road when the carriage meets with an accident. She and Debbie then struck out for Portsmouth, where she intended to sail for America.

CHAPTER VII.—Hearing news of Ellen's flight, Lords Carrington and Seton set out in pursuit.

CHAPTER VIII.—Seton, locating a fishing village, hit the trail of Ellen and Debbie. He then rented a fast vessel and started in pursuit, Carrington pursuing Strathgate.

CHAPTER IX.—Strathgate, bleeding from fall, dashed on to Portsmouth, for which Carrington, Ellen and Seton were also headed by different routes.

CHAPTER X.—Strathgate arrived in Portsmouth in advance of the others, finding that Ellen's ship had sailed before her.

CHAPTER XI.—Strathgate and Carrington each hired a small yacht to pursue the wrong vessel, upon which each supposed Ellen had sailed.

CHAPTER XII.—Seton overtook the fugitives near Portsmouth, but his craft ran aground, just as capture was imminent.

CHAPTER XIII.—Ellen won the chase by boarding American vessel and foiling her pursuers—Strathgate, Seton and Carrington. Carrington and Strathgate, thrown together by former's wrecking of latter's vessel, engaged in an impromptu duel, neither being hurt.

CHAPTER XIV.—A war vessel, commanded by an admiral friend of Seton, then started out in pursuit of the women fugitives, Seton confessing love for Debbie.

A moment after—an incredibly short time it seemed to Seton, who was unaware of the way in which an admiral's requests are obeyed—Captain Beatty, the officer mentioned, presented himself before the admiral.

"You wish to see me, admiral?"
"Yes, Beatty. By the way, let me present to you Sir Charles Seton of the Sussex light infantry, captain in his majesty's land forces. Seton, this is the Honorable Archibald Beatty, my flag captain. Beatty, will you get the Britannia under way at once?"

"Yes, sir," returned the captain. "Are the rest of the fleet to follow us?"

"No," answered the admiral, "signal to the rest of them to disregard the movements of the commander-in-chief. Then signal to the Renown for Lascelles to take command until we return."

"Very good, sir," returned the captain. "And what course shall we lay?"
"That which will get us into the channel quickest, and then as due east as the wind will let us. I'll be on deck, however, before you're ready for that."

"There are several boat parties ashore, admiral, do you wish me to wait for them?"

"No, sir, you will weigh at once."

"Very good, sir," returned the captain, saluting and turning away.

"And Beatty," the admiral called after him, "a drop of navy sherry with me before you go."

"Thank you, admiral," said Beatty, filling his glass.

"I'll give you a toast, Sir Charles," said the admiral.

"Yes," returned the soldier.

"A short cruise and the women at the end of it!"

"I drink to that with all my heart!" returned Sir Charles.

"And I also," said Captain Beatty, greatly mystified, "although I don't understand exactly."

"We're going to chase a Yankee merchant ship, Beatty, and take a couple of ladies in whom Sir Charles is interested off of it."

"A couple!" cried Beatty.

"I'm only interested in one of them," said Sir Charles warmly.

"It's a runaway sweetheart and a runaway wife, Beatty," continued the admiral, "Lady Carrington and Mistress Deborah Slocum."

"And which one is Sir Charles interested in?" asked the sailor, smiling.

"In Mistress Slocum, of course," laughed the admiral. "Now, captain," he continued, assuming his quarter-deck manner, "I want you to get the ship under way in the quickest possible time. Let's show this land lubber here what his majesty's navy can do when it's in dead earnest. Imagine there are a dozen Frenchmen out there, all boiling for a fight, and bear a hand!"

"Ay, ay, sir," said Beatty, saluting and withdrawing from the cabin.

A moment later there came faintly through the bulkheads the shrill whistling of the boatswain and his mates, followed by a deep cry:

"All hands up anchor!"

CHAPTER XV.

Captain Jeremiah Tuggles Is Insulted.

It was a moment of splendid triumph for the heroine of this mad escapade when she drew under the lee of the great ship tremendously above her. Her eyes were as keen as Carrington's. She had recognized, or divined, that the tall figure standing on the rail of the larger boat staring at her was her husband. She knew that in some way they had concluded that she would try to escape on the merchantman and that they were trying to catch that ship. She was experienced enough, also, to know that their efforts would be futile and their endeavor in vain. There was only one possible contingency which could prevent the accomplishment of her desires now, and that would be the refusal of the captain of the ship to stop for her when she ran him down.

Ellen had a well-filled purse and she hoped to persuade him with that. At any rate, she kept recklessly on, although the little boat came near to swamping and Deborah, between terror and disappointment, was in a state of collapse. Ellen boldly ran down under the lee of the big ship. By skillful handling she brought her boat within hailing distance of the merchantman.

A man stepped on the rail to leeward and stared hard at her.

"What ship is this?" asked Ellen. "The Flying Star of Boston."

Ellen's heart sank.

"I thought it was the New Eagle of Philadelphia," she cried.

"She sailed yesterday."

"Where are you bound?" asked Ellen, fighting against the sinking of heart caused by this news.

"For Bordeaux and then to Boston."

"Take me aboard of you."

"We're not shorthanded," replied the other.

"I mean as a passenger."

"Can you pay your passage?" came from the ship.

For reply Ellen held up a well-filled purse.

The man nodded to her, disappeared inboard, and presently came back followed by an older sailor.

"Who be ye?" cried the older man, apparently the captain of the ship.

"My name's Carrington," answered Ellen.

"Are ye fugitives from justice?" asked the captain.

"No, no, I swear we're not."

"Be ye a runaway couple?"

"Yes, yes," answered Ellen, grasping at the suggestion presented by the captain's misconception of the situation.

And indeed they were a runaway couple, though not exactly of the kind the captain meant.

"And them boats yonder, are they chasin' you?"

"They are," cried Ellen. "Won't you take us aboard?"

"Well, I don't know," said the captain, slowly. "I guess so. I don't want to heave to, them boats to port is chasin' hard."

"If you'll make a half-board, I'll run the boat alongside of you and we'll manage to get aboard."

"All right," said the captain.

He spoke to the helmsman and a moment after the sails slatted in the wind, the big ship swung up toward the breeze and ranged ahead, her way clearly checked.

Ellen acted promptly. Before the big ship swung up into the wind she had run her little boat alongside. She dropped sail, ran forward and took a turn with a painter across the fore-chains. She let the boat drift aft until it came abreast the battens on the side, leading up the gangway. Up this she drove Debbie, reluctant, protesting, frightened out of her wits. Indeed it was a hard climb for a girl unused to such performances and encumbered by her skirts. Shoved by Ellen, however, the girl clambered up until hands reached through the gangway dragged her to safety. Ellen followed quickly after her.

"And your boat, what of her?" asked the captain.

"She's no use to us any longer," answered Ellen, enduring the keen scrutiny of the old sailor as best she might. "You may have her, captain."

"Here, Bud," said the captain to an old sailor, "jes' drop down the fore-chains and make that boat fast. We'll swing her up on deck after awhile, if she's worth it. Now, sir—" he looked harder than ever at Ellen, "what did you say your name was?"

"Carrington," answered the countess thoughtlessly, "Ellen—"

"Ellen!" exclaimed the captain, "Gee Whillikins! I thought so. And this young lady?" he turned to Deborah.

"My name's Slocum, Deborah Slocum of Massachusetts, of Boston. I should like to get ashore."

"Young ladies," said the captain—and at that word Ellen knew that all her hopes of concealment were blasted—"what's the cause of this, I don't know. Why you're masqueradin' in boy's clothes, ma'am, I can't tell. I take it that the other is a female in spite of her woman's riggin'."

"Yes, you may be sure of that," whimpered Deborah with difficulty repressing a strong inclination to cry.

"Captain," began Ellen, resolutely, "you've guessed the truth. I am a woman."

"Lord love you; you didn't expect to disguise it, did you?" said the captain, laughing grimly.

"I never thought anything about it," said Ellen, "I was so anxious to get away."

"To get away from whom? I thought you was a lover and his lass."

"We're not," cried Debbie, indignantly; "she's trying to escape from her husband, and I—"

"An' you, miss?"

"I'm not trying to escape from anybody. I want to go ashore! Won't you put me ashore, captain?"

"Hardly," said the captain, dryly. "You've come aboard and I guess you'll have to stay unless I heave to and wait for one of them other boats."

"What is your name?" asked Ellen.

"Tuggles," said the captain, "Capt. Jeremiah Tuggles, at your service."

"Capt. Tuggles," said Ellen, "did you ever hear of Capt. William Penn Slocum of Philadelphia?"

"That I have, miss."

"He was my father."

"Oho!" said the captain. "Are you the Pennsylvania girl that married the English lord?"

"I am."

"And is the English lord in one of them boats out yonder?"

"He is."

"An' you're tryin' to git away from him?"

"Indeed, I am. He has used me cruelly."

"Well," said the captain, nodding thoughtfully as if he understood it all, "for the honor of America I'll do all I can to help you. An' you, miss?" turning to Debbie.

"I'm not trying to get away from any English lord," answered Debbie, "but there's a gentleman—"

She stopped.

"Well, I'm very sorry for you, miss," said Capt. Tuggles, "but the best I can do is to take you with your friend. You can get off at Bordeaux and go where you please, meanwhile the ship is yours."

"Will those boats catch us, captain?" queried Ellen, stepping slowly across the deck to the landward side.

"Not if I don't want 'em to," said Tuggles, grimly. "Mr. Manthy," he added, turning to a surly-looking mate who was pacing the quarterdeck, "the breeze is fresh'nin', better give her more sail. An' we've had enough of south'n', better set our course for the east'ard until we get well up the channel. You're safe, miss. There ain't no small boat in England that can overhaul Jeremiah Tuggles an' the Flying Star, an' there ain't many ships can do it, either."

"Are you sure, captain?"

"Sartin'," said the captain.

Preservation of the American Buffalo

The success of the American Bison society in getting congress interested in its plan to establish a national buffalo range on the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana indicates that Americans are waking up to the necessity of taking steps toward preservation of their native animals.

Yet long before the American bison society was organized, Captain Charles Goodnight, a veteran cattlemen of the Panhandle, was slowly building up a herd of buffalo merely from a desire to preserve the animal from destruction on its native ground.

Further than that, Captain Goodnight has been conducting a series of breeding experiments for more than thirty years, and has developed the catalo or hybrid cattle.

Captain Goodnight is now an old man, but it is his hope to successfully breed buffalo back from catalo before his death, and if he is successful he will have solved the problem preserving the bison.

The American Bison society ought to get acquainted with Captain Goodnight. In its collection of buffalo from all over the United States it will have difficulty in matching some of the specimens which have been on the Goodnight ranch in Texas.

Captain Goodnight has been wholly unselfish in work of saving the bison. His efforts and experiments have cost him thousands of dollars, much more than the $10,000 fund which the American Bison society hopes to raise for the purchase of buffalo for the Flathead pasture. The work of the society is commendable, and it deserves success, but it should not overlook the real pioneer friend of the American bison who lives in Texas, and who has been working away quietly at his project for the last generation.—Texas Stockman Journal.

Thinks It Saved His Life

Lester M. Nelson, of Naples, Maine, says in a recent letter: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery many years, for coughs and colds, and I think it saved my life. I have found it a valuable remedy for throat and lung complaints, and would no more be without a bottle than be without food." For nearly forty years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventative of pneumonia and healer of weak lungs it has no equal. Sold under guarantee by Plainview Drug Co. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve

Tom Moore, of Rural Route No. 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a twenty-five cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee by Plainview Drug Co.

The President's Coffee

A grocery merchant way down off the beaten track of Pennsylvania avenue now has the exclusive privilege of furnishing coffee for the nation and the way it happened was this:

One day the president was looking down from the terrace of the White House when a wagon drew up to deliver some estates. Across the sides, painted in gorgeous red, was the legend: "We Rost Our Own Coffee." The chief executive was tremendously interested, and everybody in the White House at that particular juncture was called out on the terrace to see how the grocery men of Washington were following the exalted ruler in the matter of phonetic spelling.

Not satisfied with admiring the Among other things, the President is charged with having a hot temper and a cold manner. Seemingly a uniform temperature is insisted upon.—Lynn Co. News.

TULIA SKINNED

Plainview Ball Team Reports a Wipe-Out On Tulia Diamond; Canyon Game Postponed

Last Friday the Plainview baseball team crossed bats with the local team of Tulia on the latter's diamond. Judging from the score reported here the game was a walk over for our boys from start to finish, as the score at the close of the ninth stood 18 to 0.

Baseball this season in Plainview has been at a standstill, no one seeming to have taken any interest in the game up to last Friday. Very few games have been played this year. However the game last Friday seems to have enthused the boys a great deal, as this week they have reorganized and the way they are going at it looks as if they mean business. The business men of Plainview should likewise become interested in this sport and give the boys encouragement financially as well as by words. Baseball is an amusement that people never grow tired of, and a good baseball team speaks well for a town, as it is always the most enterprising town that has the best ball teams. Plainview has some of as good timber for an amateur team as any town in the State, and with the proper training she can wallup any local team in the Panhandle.

Canyon Game Called Off.

On Tuesday circulars were distributed on the streets announcing that a double-header would be played on Wednesday between the Canyon team and the locals on the Plainview diamond, but on Wednesday it was announced that the game was called off on account of heavy rain Tuesday night. This was quite a disappointment to the Plainview fans, as the game was looked forward to with much interest.

The Canyon team is reputed to be one of the best teams in the Panhandle and no doubt there would have been a close tug if the games had been played.

They Canyon boys came in on Tuesday evenings train and returned on Wednesday.

We are informed by Manager Burch, of the local team, that the two teams will cross bats as soon as the weather permits and games can be arranged.

A Motor Trip

Mr. Golden of the firm of Golden and Pitt of Plainview, who run an automobile line from Plainview to Lockney, stopped in Dickens Sunday night on his way to Rotan to meet some prospectors who wished to look at the country from Plainview to Rotan. Mr. Golden brought them through this part of the country in a touring car. The many prospectors to this vicinity is exclusive proof that the unexcelled quality of this land is very widely known over the state.—Dickens Item.

Randolph Complimented

Judge H. C. Randolph, of Plainview attended District Court this week. Judge Randolph is one of the ablest on the Plains, and has a lucrative practice. He left for home Wednesday and will go immediately to Fort Worth to argue two important cases before the court of civil appeals.—TerryCounty Herald.

Glad To Get Back.

Mr. King, who sold four sections in Crosby county more than a year ago and went to Wyoming, has returned to his first love. He sold his land for a very low price, and left on account of his wife's health.

He states that they did not see any rain while they were in Wyoming, and that when they left, cattle, sheep and horses were dying for the want of water. He is glad to get back to the plains. He and his family left on Wednesday for their old home near Emma.

Immigrants Arrived

Last Friday morning a long procession of vehicles was seen wending its way to the westward. "Who is dead?" asked a bystander, but instead of a funeral, it was a number of pretty live corpses who were being transported into the treeless wilds of the west. Sixteen hacks and buggies were filled with prospectors were being taken by the Soash Land company to Olton, the new town in Lamb county. They attended a picnic there on Friday, returning to Plainview on Saturday.
