CROCKETT WILL BUY
 THOUSAND FINE SOWS

El Paso Railroad Official Has Purchased Four Farms In Plainview Country

PLANS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Modern Cattle And Hog Barns And Silos; Duroc Jersey And Poland China Hogs

"Hogs and alfalfa" is the slogan of J. O. Crockett, Vice President of the Mexico Northwestern Railroad and enthusiast over the possibilities for profitable farming in the Plainview country.

Mr. Crockett left to-day for his home, in El Paso. He will return in ten days or two weeks and bring a foreman with him to begin the erection of a modern cow barn and a hog breeding barn. Both of these will have concrete floors, overhead carriers for feed and other up-to-date improvements.

But this isn't all. Mr. Crockett and associates have purchased 234 Duroc Jersey and Poland China sows. There are a few in this lot which will be culled out. "We expect to keep only the best," Mr. Crockett said to a Herald reporter to-day. "And this is only a beginning. We will buy 1,000 Duroc Jersey and Poland China sows just as rapidly as we can find animals which suit us."

"I bought a quarter section of irrigated land last fall. This trip I bought the W. Y. Price quarter section, also irrigated, and a dry quarter section. I now own four farms in the Plainview country. That shows my faith in what you offer, doesn't it?"

"H. I. Miller, President of the Texas Land and Development Co., will return next month. He will build silos and barns on his irrigated farm. July 1 we expect a man here from Chicago. He is an expert silo man, and is coming to advise us with regard to building silos and making other improvements on our farms."

Mr. Crockett repeats what he said a year ago: "The Plainview country is the greatest irrigation proposition in the world." He is backing up that statement by purchasing four farms and 1,000 sows.

When you understand that Hale County hogs topped the Fort Worth market forty-two times last year, it seems that Mr. Crockett has ground for his confidence, doesn't it?

SUES ILL. STATE AUDITOR FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Mrs. Mary Quinlan Kuhn-Brady Is a Favorite in Springfield Society

CHICAGO, Ill., June 5.—Political circles are amazed by suit brought by Mrs. Mary Quinlan Kuhn-Brady against James Brady, State Auditor. The woman alleges breach of promise and asks $50,000 damages. She is a striking blonde, and is a favorite in Statehouse society.

Mrs. Kuhn-Brady declares in her bill that Brady introduced her everywhere as his wife, following a secret ceremony performed in Detroit in April, 1913. This was two days after she obtained a divorce from Charles Kuhn.

The secret marriage was invalid, according to Illinois law, prohibiting remarriage of divorced persons within a year. Brady failed to keep his promise to have a second ceremony, she said.

Man Who Stole Mona Lisa
 Given Eighteen Months

FLORENCE, Italy, June 5.—Vincenzo Perugia, whose theft of the painting "Mona Lisa," from the Louvre, in Paris, created a world-wide sensation, was to-day sentenced to 18 months imprisonment.

HELEN TEMPLE TO CUT ALFALFA SATURDAY

Joe Wing Found Roots of Alfalfa Seeded Last Fall Six Feet Underground

WILL BUY MORE HOGS

Dr. A. C. Scott's Plans Call For Five Hundred Duroc Jersey Brood Sows

"That is the best alfalfa I ever saw," Joe Wing, Associate Editor of the Breeder's Gazette, and "Alfalfa King" of America, said two weeks ago when he was driven past Helen Temple Farm. The alfalfa was planted last fall. Joe Wing found alfalfa roots six feet deep two weeks ago. Dr. Scott ploughed his land 16 inches deep.

Claude Beck, manager of the farm, was in town to-day. "We expect to cut 90 tons from 80 acres our first cutting," Mr. Beck said. Mowers will begin work Saturday or Monday.

Dr. A. C. Scott has 100 acres in wheat and a considerable acreage of oats and row crops under irrigation. He will seed another 100 acres to alfalfa this fall.

Helen Temple Farm has 80 acres seeded to alfalfa which is used for hog pasture. This is divided into 10-acre tracts. Mr. Beck says that they may cut these pastures into 5-acre tracts.

Mr. Beck and Dr. Scott will go over the great hog-growing states this fall and buy 100 brood sows. They expect to make another trip for like purpose next spring. When Helen Temple Farm is fully developed, Mr. Beck says 500 brood sows will be kept there.

These will all be Duroc-Jerseys, and will be the finest Dr. Scott can find in America. His Tom Frazier herd is reputed to be the finest in Texas.

REBELS PROTECTED
 CONSUL AT MONTEREY

John Allen Says Huertist Mob Surrounds His Home During Four Days

OAKLAND, Calif., June 5.—John Allen, deputy United States Consul at Monterey, arrived to-day. He tells a harrowing story of his experiences. "A mob surrounded our home, crying 'Death to the gringos,' when it was learned in Monterey that United States marines had landed at Vera Cruz," Consul Allen says.

"For four days they surged about the consulate. The building was stoned and they could not force their way in. My only weapon was a butcher knife, and Mrs. Allen made me promise to stab her to death if the mob rushed the house."

The capture of Monterey by Constitutionalists ended Allen's imprisonment. He says he was treated hospitably by the rebels.

Mrs. F. N. Rollins, corresponding secretary of the Missionary Conference, came in to-day from Asperment. Her daughter, Miss Eula Mae Rollins, is with her.

E. B. Stroud, of Port Worth, was here to-day.

Walter Bellah, of Hale Center, was in Plainview this week on business.

 DIDN'T DOMINATE HIM

Member of Board of Directors for New Haven Denies That Men Were Dummies

OFTEN OPPOSED MORGAN

Witness Characterized Profit In Boston And Maine Transaction As "Outrageous"

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.—Lewis Cass Ledyard, testifying to-day in the New Haven inquiry, denied that directors were "dummies" or that Morgan or Mellon dominated the Board. Ledyard said that he had often opposed Morgan and that directors generally took part in the proceedings. John L. Billard's profit in the Boston & Maine transaction Ledyard characterized as "outrageous." He refused to testify regarding one entry in the New Haven minutes regarding the Billard transaction. He would not say that it is false, but said that it does not represent what occurred. The witness clashed with Folk over certain questions which he insisted in answering his own way. Ledyard said he yielded to Morgan in accepting certain dividends, but that the gave this money to charity. "So Morgan had his way after all!" Folk quipped. "He had his; I had mine," the director retorted.

TOKIO, Japan, June 5.—Western and Southern Japan was swept by a terrific hurricane to-day. Hundreds are believed to have drowned. Fishing boats were sunk by scores, according to meager dispatches. Many buildings were blown down. Nagasaki suffered most serious damage.

"HOLD TAMPICO OPEN PORT;" MAYO'S ORDERS

Pretense of Cessation of Hostilities May End If Huerta Attempts Blockade

MEDIATORS WAIT ON CARRANZA

Constitutionalists Levy Loan of Million Pesos On Sanguir In Tepic; More Ammunition

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.—Pretense of cessation of hostilities between Huerta and the United States may come to a sudden end, if the Mexican fleet attempts to blockade Tampico and stop shipment of arms for Carranza on the Ward Line Antilla. Mayo's orders are "Hold Tampico as an open port." This situation furnished the critical element in the Mexican muddle to-day. The mediators at Niagara are waiting Carranza's delayed reply to Huerta's proposals that he will resign when Mexico is pacified. Officials to-day discussed the situation arising out of possibilities arising from shipment of arms for Constitutionalists at Tampico. Another ammunition ship left New York to-day. Secretary Bryan reiterated that Tampico is an open port. Upon being asked if Tampico would still be "open" when ammunition reaches there, the Secretary replied: "I leave the future to those who would speculate."

NEW YORK AUTO BANDITS GET AWAY THROUGH CROWD

NEW YORK CITY, June 5.—Highwaymen robbed a pay clerk in Brooklyn of $3,000 to-day. They took a waiting automobile to Manhattan. It is thought the same men hold up a bank messenger, getting $2,700. The men made good their escape in an automobile, while hundreds looked on.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 5.—The Main Steamship Company's vessel "Northland," aground on a reef 12 miles from here, in Long Island Sound, loading her 76 passengers on the wrecking tug "Tasco" for transshipment to Portland. The Northland struck at midnight. Wireless calls were sent out for a revenue cutter. It was found later that one was not needed. There was no mishap in transfer of the passengers. Little excitement prevailed. The sea was calm.

"SERVICE TO HUMANITY U. S. MISSION," WILSON

President Tells Naval Academy Graduates of Higher Ideal Than Desire To Fight

MEDIATORS PROTEST

Niagara Conference Regards Shipment of Ammunition For Rebels Violation of Armistice

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 5.—Salutes from warships and shore batteries greeted President Wilson's arrival at the Naval Academy to-day. He came to attend graduating exercises of Uncle Sam's midshipmen. On the Mayflower, the President received a long wireless message from Niagara Falls, but he said it did not materially change the situation. It is believed the message protests against shipment of ammunition for the Constitutionalists clearing from New York for Mexico. The mediators regard the Antilla shipment as a violation of armistice.

"Service to humanity, instead of a desire to fight at the drop of a hat, or some such slight pretext," summarized the President advice to naval academy graduates. He predicted that the occupation of Vera Cruz would have the effect of leaving a "different taste in the mouths of people who fear and despise the Americans."

"Of course, our men used some force at Vera Cruz," the President said. With bowed head, the President exclaimed: "I pray God they will not have to use any more force." He paid a high tribute to Fletcher. Many of the Naval Academy graduates will leave for Mexican waters soon. "The mission of the United States is to serve humanity; not to conquer more territory," President Wilson said.

LONDON, England, June 5.—Miss Estuary and Miss Eleanor Helen Broomfield are the young women who made a sensational suffragette demonstration last night before the King at Buckingham, Palace Court. FOUR DEAD AND HEAVY CROP
 DAMAGE IN NORTH OHIO STORM

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 5.—Four are known to be dead and many were injured as a result of a storm of wind, rain, hail and electricity to-day. Crops suffered heavy damage, and wires are demoralized.

The storm was worse than any other which has visited Northern Ohio in years. Reports that Helena, Ohio, was demolished are discredited. Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Russell returned to-day from Florence, Bell County, Texas, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Russell's mother.

CIVIC LEAGUE BURNS
 300,000 FLIES IN WEEK

Blasingame & Klinger Paying Fifty Cents A Week To Trapper Catching Most

WOULD MAKE "CITY OF TREES"

Flower Beds Will Be Inspected Each Month; Prizes Given In October

The regular monthly meeting of the Civic League was held at the club room at the City Hall yesterday afternoon.

The committee on soliciting for the "fly fund" reported about twenty-five dollars a month promised until October first. Everybody, they said, with a very few exceptions, was glad to donate to such a fund, and many expressed their approval of the work and their belief that it was going good. There were a few business men who were out when the committee made the round, and so have not been seen yet. These will be called upon later. Several have phoned that they wanted to be counted in for the good cause.

The firm of Blasingame & Klinger are still giving a bonus of fifty cents to the child who brings in the most flies each week. The flies are to be brought to the laundry every Tuesday morning between the hours of seven and nine o'clock, where they will be paid for and burned.

More than a hundred pints were burned Tuesday morning and paid for at the rate of 5 cents a pint.

A note was read from the teachers and pupils at the West Side School thanking the members of the League for their assistance in helping to pay for the drinking fountain at that school.

The flower committee will make an inspection some time during June of flower beds that have been entered in the prize contest. They will be inspected once a month until the first of October, when prizes will be awarded for the most attractive beds.

The League members are hoping to set out a number of trees at the school grounds in the fall, and in the meantime have promised to talk tree planting to all property holders in the city. Plainview, we think, might be known some day as the "City of Trees" if everybody would do what they can in this way.

Several new names were added to the roll. The League meets on the first Wednesday in each month, at three o'clock p. m., in the club room in the City Hall, and all citizens of Plainview, men or women, who are interested in making the town a better and more beautiful place in which to live are invited to become members. Annual dues are fifty cents.

CARRANZA MUST MOVE IN MEDIATION GAME

Delegates At Niagara Falls Think Huerta's Promise To Resign Opens Way For Rebels

CARRANZA IS SKEPTICAL

Constitutionalists Do Not Believe Dictator Is Honest When He Says He Will Quit

NIAGARA FALLS, Can., June 4.—Carranza must make the next move in the mediation game. Mexican delegates announced last night that Huerta would resign when provisional government is ready to assume control. This paved the way for entry of the Constitutionalists into the proceedings.

It is understood that the mediators have found a middle ground which will overcome objections of the Constitutionalists to an armistice. They seem optimistic about settling the trouble.

The diplomats await Carranza's reply to their note asking if he will discuss internal and international questions.

Meanwhile, the Niagara group has "passed it up" to Washington to bring Carranza around to Huerta's latest position. It is generally believed that Huerta wants the United States to save him from Villa.

Huerta's delegates have answered arguments of the Constitutionalists against discussing internal affairs by saying that international and internal phases of the Mexican situation are inseparably interwoven.

DURANGO, Mexico, June 3.—Carranza refuses to comment on the proposal of the mediators to discuss internal affairs. Rebel officials don't regard seriously Huerta's statement that he will eliminate himself as soon as Mexico is pacified and the government placed in control of a joint commission.

Commis Fighting for Renomination

DES MOINES, June 3.—Voters of all parties are at the poles today casting their ballots at the primaries for candidates for the nomination of every office from United States Senator to township trustees. Altogether there are 5,000 men running for office and it is estimated that their combined campaign expenses will amount to $250,000. The big fight is over the United States Senator. Senator A. B. Cummins, up for re-nomination, apparently has the edge on State Senator Savage, but in the democratic race for Senator a count of the ballots tonight will be necessary to decide whether E. T. Meredith, publisher, or Congressman Maurice Conolly of Dubuque has won. S. H. Basher and Casper Schenk, of Des Moines are the Progressive candidates for senator.

For Governor Geo. W. Clarke will apparently be nominated over District Judge Lee of Nevada and J. W. Rawley of Keosauqua both whom are hunting on a platform opposing the capitol extension measure which Clarke defends. Candidates for judges of the supreme and district courts on non-partisan tickets are being nominated, all parties are putting candidates for congress in the field and there will be state, county and township offices nominated by the time the polls close at 7 o'clock tonight. All the nominees will go on the ballot for the November election.

Navy Plucking Board Meets

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Many navy officers "shivered in their boots" today when the "plucking board" of the navy met to arbitrarily retire fifteen officers. Five captains, four commanders, four lieutenant commanders and two lieutenants of the present list will be retired to make way for the promotions in the service. Admirals, Southerland, Knight, Reynolds, Caperdown, and Capt. McLean composed the "plucking board" which met today.

Four Labor Conventions on

NEW YORK, June 3.—Four labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor are holding their annual conventions today. The International Union of Cutting Die and Cutter makers of America convened at Boston. The international Association of Marble Cutters met here. The International Ladies' Garment Workers are in session at Newark, and the International Seamen's Union of America is meeting at Boston.

ABILENE

ABILENE, Texas, June 3.—Jarred Grisard 26, stomp clerk at the post office, died last night as a result of a horse falling on him six days before. He was picked up unconscious and remained in this condition without ever gaining consciousness. An operation performed on his head revealed that his brain cells had been destroyed by the jar.

The seventeen passengers of train number one of the Wichita Valley railroad who were injured more or less hespectively when three coaches of the train rolled off an embankment eight miles north of Abilene late Saturday night, when the engine ran into a washout caused by a waterspout, are reported in better condition. Traffic was interrupted for about 14 hours. Mrs. Jones of Spur was the worst injured, receiving cuts on her head and body.

Construction work begins this week on about ten new buildings for the Central West Texas Fair, which will be held here October 3 to 10 inclusive. The buildings will be of the old mission type and painted white. The grounds secured are on the west end of the street car line. A five-eighths mile race track will be constructed at once. Something like $30,000 will be spent immediately towards buildings at the grounds. Secretary Fred T. Wood of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce, has been made general manager of the fair association. He has already sold almost of the exhibition hall which will be one of the largest of the buildings to be constructed.

The Minges Gospel team under the auspices of the Christian church will be here about the middle of the present month and will hold a meeting which may continue three or four weeks. The team is composed of seventeen evangelists, singers and personal workers. A mammoth tabernacle will be erected immediately. It will be situated in a central location. Great fruit for the cause is expected to be realized from their work.

Oil Drilling to Begin

Oil drilling will begin here as soon as the weather fairs. An expert oil geologist has made a complete survey and complete investigation of the local field and has found a "rome" where oil in great quantity may be secured with proper drilling. A stock company will be organized at once. The Guffey Oil Co. has dispatched a man to Abilene to investigate the field and this company may be expected in the near future to further the oil development work of the Abilene country.

Wet weather springs bursting up from paved streets in Abilene are objects of speculation that have never before been witness here. The heavy rains of a month have caused wet weather springs to boil up in places which for years and years has been hard pan.

Construction work on the new $150,000 Taylor county courthouse was retarded last week by the absence of steel beams ordered from New York City. They arrived Saturday evening and will be at once inserted in their proper places on the third floor frame of the building. Most of the concrete work for the second story has already been poured. The building will be one of the finest structures of its kind in the state for the amount which has been appropriated for the purpose.

The Abilene High School Commencement has become ancient history. There were twenty five graduates and two honor students. D. T. Harkrider was valedictorian.

Our Austin Letter

AUSTIN, June 3.—Patronage picking have been mighty scarce for the men in Texas who were opposed to President Wilson's nomination. Politicians have noticed, a possible realignment of Democratic leaders in the gubernatorial contest.

It is claimed by the men promoting Thos. H. Ball's campaign that he belongs to the progressive wing of the party. This being true it would be easy for the former reactionary leaders who have come out for Mr. Ball for governor to get into the Wilson bandwagon.

Some observers here view the re-alignment of the former anti-prohibition leaders in Texas in another light. The influence of the new adherents to Ball will be felt when it comes to making up the platform of the party at the coming state convention and in the deliberations of the next legislature.

Texas Democratic leaders believe events are shaping themselves for a second term for Wilson. There may still be time for his former opponent in Texas to right themselves with the element of the party in power and thus perhaps share in some of the good plums being handed around.

LONDON SUFFRAGETTES BURN AND SMASH AGAIN

Two Belfast Editors Are Assaulted; Women Will Now Fight For Rights Note Says

LONDON, England, June 4.—Two suffragettes horsewhipped Dr. Francis Forward, medical officer of the Holloway jail, to-day. The women say this action is a "protest against forcible feeding, for which this 'beast' is responsible."

Forward was whipped once before. Two fires were also attributed to the suffragettes.

An attendant in a picture gallery was seriously injured by suffragettes, who beat him on the head with a hat rack. She smashed two paintings. The woman left a note saying the suffragettes have heretofore been too "ladylike," and must now fight for rights.

BELFAST, Ireland, June 3.—Two suffragettes, one of them a giantess, assaulted the managing editors of two Belfast newspapers to-day. One editor has since been confined to his bed. The man is under surgical treatment.

CORSICANA BARBER KILLED.

Hugh F. Parr, Printer, Surrendered for Crime.

By Associated Press. CORSICANA, Texas, June 3.—George Costillow, barber, was shot and killed here to-day. Hugh F. Parr, a printer, surrendered. Parr is prominent in labor circles, and is an anti-prohibition speaker.

LANSING, Mich., June 3.—Under proclamation of Gov. Forris—the first of its kind ever panned by a Michigan executive—citizens all over the state "boo ray." In many cities and towns banks, business places and factories will be closed for the day and thousands of merchants and bankers will work side by side with laborers and factory men for the improvement of the state's highways.

The State Highway Commissioner, who endorsed the governor's plan for "road boo day," realized the necessity of effective organization if the results hoped for were to be accomplished, and he accordingly prepared and caused to be spread broadcast over the state, a bulletin setting forth effective methods of road building, repair and improvement. His suggestions were expected to be generally followed. In nearly every school district in the state, a "road boss" was appointed, and under his direction thousands of citizens planned to work loyally throughout the day, for the improvement of the 70,000 miles of rural highways in Michigan last year and another large sum will be appropriated for the same purpose during 1914.

Tom Ball Is Coming To Plainview Later

Tom Ball isn't coming to Plainview June 6. The State-Wide nominee had planned an itinerary which would bring him to the Shallow Water metropolis Saturday. It has been necessary to cancel this engagement. Mr. Ball's managers say that the gubernatorial candidate will come to Plainview at a date to be announced later.

IS A WONDERFUL ROAD

That from Vera Cruz to Mexico City Was Built by Cortez

The good roads movement was begun in Mexico by the Conquistador Cortez. He and his followers and the Indians he impressed into his service built the boulder paved highway that is crossed and recrossed by the mountain railways and connecting Vera Cruz and the Capital City. So well did they build that long sections of this road have always since been traversable and during the stage-coach era, it was kept in excellent condition. Travel in those days began with daylight and ended with dusk for there were brigands abroad then as are now. Fifteen years ago a remarkable trip was made from the city of Puebla in an automobile over this paved way with little trouble. Here and there the mountain torrents have washed out portions, but so well was the route chosen that many miles of practically undisturbed paving exists with a strait and plum retaining wall. Of course these famous Spanish masonry had the advantage of Indian trails that had been used for centuries before. Narrow winding paths they were, tacking in and out of the little canyons, but always climbing higher in the great gorge that led up between the mountains of the range that had to be crossed after leaving the low, hot country and before entering the high-hung Valley of Mexico.

In recent years in response to the world-wide demand for good roads for automobiles, parts of this and other old Spanish roads in Mexico have been rebuilt according to the most approved modern methods, but the traveler to-day may look out of his Pullman window and see little bands of laden burros being driven by Indians wending their way along the Cortez road, the same broad highway that has borne the traffic of centuries. The Cortez road is twice as wide as the famous Appian way of Rome and as well constructed as the old Roman roads of England. Indeed, it has been said that the Spaniards should be called the pioneer road builders of America as the Roman is of Europe.

Many of the Mexican Indians still look with fear and suspicion upon railroad travel, and many cannot afford to pay the price of a journey over so short, so they traverse many miles barefooted over the mountain trails that lead into the Cortez road and the railroad that has not out-rivalled it. The writer once saw a caravan of Indians descending a steep mountain path, each carrying upon his back a mahogany railroad tie, which he would sell to the Mexican Railway for the munificent sum of 6 cents. But even those portions of the railroad that were laid upon solid mahogany will be worn to dust, while the old Cortez road, paved with torrent-washed cobbles, will endure, perhaps, another 400 years.—Kansas City Times.

INDUSTRIAL WORKERS TROUBLE ROCKEFELLER

Sheriff of Westchester County Dep-utizes Additional Men And Prohibits Open Meetings

NEW YORK CITY, June 4.—So many Industrial Workers of the World have gone to Westchester County, where John D. Rockefeller lives, that the sheriff has authorized deputizing fifty additional men.

There seems to be fear of a concerted attack on the oil magnate, who has been severely condemned for his policy in Colorado strike troubles. All open-air meetings have been prohibited. Sixteen were arrested for a recent demonstration. The men have abandoned the threatened hunger strike, and are eating anything they can get.

"BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER"

Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nerves. Thinness of the blood, or anemia, is common in (ily vented factories—or those who are shut up indoors in winter time with a coal stove burning up the oxygen, or smothering carbonic (oxide) gas. This blood, or blood which lacks the red blood corpuscles, in anaemic people may have been caused by lack of good fresh air breathed into lungs, or by poor digestion or dyspepsia. Sometimes people suffer intense pain over the heart which is not heart disease at all, but caused by indigestion. Whatever the cause, there's just one remedy that you can turn to—knowing that it has given satisfaction for over 40 years.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

It is a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action. It then assists the body to manufacture rich red blood which feeds the heart—nerves—brain and organs of the body. The organs work smoothly like machinery running in oil. You feel clean, strong and vigorous instead of tired, weak and faint. Nowadays you can obtain Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery Tablets, as well as the liquid form from all medicine dealers, or tablets by mail, prepaid in $1 or 50c size. Address R. V. Pierce, M. NEW HAVEN PROBE AGAIN

Director Says When Committee's Judgement Was Contrary Morgan's Suggestions Were Followed

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—The New Haven inquiry was resumed today. J. S. Elton, a director, said that he did not personally approve of the "extravagances" shown in purchase of subsidiary lines.

The Board depended largely upon an Executive Committee, Elton said. "When the committee's judgment opposed the desires of Morgan, William Rockefeller and Director Bush, every one usually acquiesced to Morgan's suggestions."

"Why were you afraid to object?" Elton was asked.

"Natural timidity, I suppose," he replied. Elton said the directors passed from one meeting to another of the New Haven subsidiaries so fast that he "couldn't keep up."

Witness said he expressed disapproval of the purchase of trolley lines worth $8,000,000 for $20,000,000, but admitted that he didn't have nerve to defy Morgan at the time of purchase. He said Morgan's and Mellen's errors were "of judgment and not of heart."

$700,000 IN GOOD ROADS BONDS ISSUED DURING MAY.

FORT WORTH, Texas, June 3.—The Texas Business Men's Association has completed a report relating to the road and bridge bond elections which were conducted in the various counties of the State during May, and, according to their figures, eight elections were held in seven counties, resulting in the issuance of bonds in the sum of $700,000. Only one proposition to authorize bonds was defeated during the month, and that was held in the Teague Precinct of Freestone County, involving road bonds to the amount of $250,000. This is more than twice the amount of road bonds authorized during the same month of 1913, and is also a substantial increase over March and April of this year.

Following are the counties, precincts, date and amount of the successful issues:

Bell County, Rogers Precinct, May 1, $250,000; Blanco County, Road District No. 1, May 21, $20,000; Fannin County, Bonham District, May 16, $250,000; Milam County, Road District No. 8, May 27, $100,000; San Patricio County, Causeway Bonds, May 23, $50,000; Zavalla County, entire county, May 12th, $10,000; Zavalla County, Precinct No. 1, May 12, $20,000.

The defeated election was held in Freestone County May 29th, and involved highway improvement bonds totaling $150,000.

The issuance of the $250,000 bonds in Bell County last month brings the total authorized for road building in that county since the first of the year to an even million dollars. The proceeds of these elections will afford sufficient funds for the construction of a complete system of highways throughout Bell County.

The good roads advocates in Bonham District of Fannin County won a decided victory when they carried the $250,000 issue in the face of two defeats inside of three months. This proposition carried by an overwhelming majority, and its success was largely attributed to the unswerving support afforded the project by the Bonham Chamber of Commerce and the papers of that city.

Only two voters opposed the issuance of the $50,000 causeway bonds in San Patricio County last month, the final vote being for, 227; against, 2. The proceeds of this election will be used to construct a causeway across Nueces Bay connecting the mainlands of San Patricio and Nueces Counties.

This work will be started as soon as the bonds are approved and disposed of.

The two bond issues in Zavalla County were given a handsome majority at the polls, there being only one dissenting vote cast against the $20,000 issue in Precinct No. 1.

According to the members of the Commissioners' Court, the proceeds of the $20,000 election will be used to construct a section of the Southern National Highway, which passes through this county. The $10,000 issue will be devoted to road improvement generally in the entire county.

MRS. L. C. PENRY ENTERTAINS LARGE PARTY WITH 42 and 500.

"Did you ever see such beautiful roses as we are having now?" asked one lady at the party yesterday. "No, I never did outside of a greenhouse," was her answer, and she knew whereof she spoke.

There are roses everywhere, and at the Penry home yesterday it seemed as if they had all been gathered to welcome the guests, who, despite the showers, assembled to do honor to the invitations issued previously by Mesdames L. C. Penry, J. L. Wheeler and J. E. Griggs.

Vases and bowls of roses, pink, white and red graced mantel and other available space.

At the door to greet the guests was Miss Olive Wheeler, who ushered the arriving friends to Mesdames Penry, Griggs and Wheeler.

Scorecards were distributed for fourteen tables of Five Hundred and Forty-two. The modishly gowned ladies were seated and the games began.

Delicious home-made candy was served while merry guests talked, ate, progressed and enjoyed themselves generally.

MUSIC AND BANQUET FOR VISITING PHYSICIANS.

Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Hanby Tender Hale County M. D.'s a Delightful Evening's Entertainment.

The best local talent of the town was employed last night on the program for the musicale at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Hanby. It was given for the benefit of the piano fund of the Presbyterian Church, and, though the offering was small, the enthusiasm was great.

The vocal and instrumental selections given were especially fine, and were very much appreciated by the guests.

After a professional meeting of the Hale County Medical Association, the doctors adjourned en masse to the Hanby home, where they enjoyed the music and the delicious punch served to all.

At the close of the program, the M. D.'s were again marshaled by their energetic and hospitable host and taken to the Busy Bee, where a six-course banquet was served.

Mrs. Hanby, accompanied by the wives of the physicians who were present, and Mrs. A. F. Quisenberry also adjourned to the Busy Bee, and were admitted to the charmed circle.

After supper, Mrs. Hanby was presented with a cut glass vase filled with carnations by the Association, as a mark of their appreciation and regard. The affair was entirely informal, no set speeches being made.

King George Celebrates Forty Ninth Birthday

LONDON, June 3.—King George received private congratulations today from the crowned heads of Europe on the occasion of his 59th birthday. Official congratulations are not due until July 22, as George is too busy to take a proper birthday and has postponed the formal celebration until the third anniversary of his coronation. Nevertheless a salute of 49 guns was fired by artillery in St. James' Park, and at Windsor, while flags were flown from all government buildings. For several days packages containing presents from members of the Royal family and intimate friends have been arriving at Buckingham palace, and his sons and daughter clubbed together for a birthday present of which they made a great secret. The King, who married Queen Mary in 1893, has five sons and one daughter. He succeeded to the throne May 6, 1910, on the death of his father King Edward VII.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 3.—Judge Foell, of the Superior Court, to-day made permanent injunction preventing Pitcher Johnson from playing with the Federals. The injunction was granted on petition of Cincinnati, after Johnson jumped his contract.

The judge admitted that he could not compel Johnson to play with Cincinnati.

Battle of the Wilderness, 50 Years Ago. Grant's Big Mistake

The bloodiest battle on the American continent. The University, Warren of the Army of the Potomac. The making of the greatest mistake in Grant's military career, and the consequent abandonment by him of the line on which only a few weeks before he had purposed to fight the war out if it took all summer. These are the memories which next Wednesday brings.

It was early in the last act of the drama. Grant, flushed with his Western triumphs from Donelson through Vicksburg to Lookout, had come east to win success where McClellan, Pope, Hooker and Burnside had failed, not realizing that now, for the first time since Shiloh, he was confronted by first class commander with an effective army. On May 21, 1864, he gave the order, "Forward to Richmond!" which three years before had led to so disastrous results; and on May 31 he crossed the Rapidan, the Rubicon of his campaign.

There he plunged into that "region of gloom and the shadow of death" which men appropriately named the Wilderness, hoping to get through it before he met the foe. The hope was vain. To the Southern soldiers every acre of that jungle was as familiar as the streets of their home towns. So within three days Lee struck fiercely, and each army lost in the first impact more than one-sixth of its entire force.

Grant's Historic Boast

That was the prelude. Grant instantly made not Richmond but Lee's army the prime object of his attack. That was his line and "I propose," he said, "to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." The very next day he fought Lee at Spotsylvania with appalling losses and little, if any, gain, though Barlow led his division of Hancock's corps almost to crowning victory in one of the most gallant exploits of the war. Still the order was: "Forward! Fight it out on this line!"

May 23 found the two armies fighting again with the same recruits at North Anna. And now Grant realized that he had in a measure been betrayed. Butler, at the South, had failed him, just as Grouchy failed Napoleon at Waterloo. Deprived of that aid there seemed to be nothing to do but to push straight on, depending solely upon himself.

So June 1, found him within sight of Richmond, less than seven miles away. He was now on ground that was familiar to Meade and many others of the army of the Potomac. They had been there two years before under McClellan. The battle ground was then called Gaines's Mill, the scene of the second of the seven days' battles, in which Fitz-John Porter did deeds of valor which would have ended the war then and there had not McClellan neutralized them with the biggest blunder of the whole campaign. But now the positions of the two armies were exactly reversed. Lee had McClellan's ground, and Grant had Lee's. The Federal army was on the very fields over which Stonewall Jackson and D. H. Hill had made their desperate but fruitless attack upon Porter; and now it was to make a still more desperate and fruitless assault upon the impregnable lines of Lee.

Sheridan Captured Old Cold Harbor
The operations began auspiciously. Sheridan, on June 1, captured the vantage point known as Old Cold Harbor—or Coal Harbor, as most then called it—and held it in spite of the furious attacks of Fitzhugh Lee. The next day he was relieved by Wright, with the Sixth Corps, and Smith with the Eighteenth, who had that evening made a vigorous attack upon Lee's lines, and made substantial gains, though at heavy cost. Lee essayed a counter attack upon Warren's Fifth Corps, with little effect.

It was a restless night. Repeated attacks were made by Lee, in the face of which the Federal lines were rearranged. Grant held a council, of which the often repeated story is told that all his generals despondently advised that the army should fall back at day break from the position where it could not hope to hold; that Grant grimly overruled them, saying "We will not wait till daybreak, but an hour before it move forward all along the line"; and that Lee, on hearing the onset next morning, exclaimed "The Confederacy is lost, for the Yankees have got a man to lead them at last!"

The story sounds well, but it is scarcely susceptible of entire verification; though indeed, that morning the advance was made all along the line.
Morning of June 3.
It was Friday morning, June 3. After the restless and busy night there was an hour of quiet at dawn. Then a single cannon shot at 4:30 o'clock—about sunrise—gave the signal for the charge. The whole Federal line rushed forward. Hancock was at the extreme left with the Second Corps;

next came Wright with the Sixth, Smith with the Eighteenth, Warren with the Fifth and Burnside with the Ninth. It was the first three that did the bulk of the fighting and again, as at Spotsylvania, it was Barlow's division of Hancock's corps that won the chief honors of the day, with Gibbon's division sharing them.

Never was there fiercer fighting, and never in our wars was there greater slaughter. The men seemed to have a premonition of what was before them for thousands of them before the charge was made wrote their names and home addresses upon cards or scraps of paper and pinned them to the backs of their coats, in order that their dead bodies might be identified. No reconnaissance had been made at the front and the advancing troops were everywhere met with a cross fire from Confederate intrenchments. Barlow and Gibbons, despite the butchery, broke through the first Confederate line and struck the second or main line.

But they could not be supported, and were swept back by simply irresistible physical force. Within twenty minutes they had lost three thousand men. The Sixth Corps also struck clear into the Confederate main line before it, too, was pushed back with more than eight hundred lost. "Baldy" Smith's Eighteenth Corps had a particularly hard tussle, and it emerged with one thousand less than it had entered.

Repulsed, the army did not retreat, not even to its first position. At a distance of from twenty-five to fifty yards from the Confederate line the men halted, lay down, and with drinking cups, bayonets, knives and even with their bare hands, dug trenches in which to shield themselves, and thus held some of the ground which had been so hardily won.
In less than half an hour the Federal army had lost more than seven thousand in killed and wounded, a loss never equaled in any other battle in the war in the space of time. More than half that loss was suffered within the first ten minutes after the signal gun.
Grant was remorseless. Another charge was promptly ordered. Meade transmitted the order to the corps commanders. Some of them ignored it. Some passed it on to their brigade and regimental officers. Some of them repeated it to the men. But not a man stirred. The order was repeated, with the same result. A third time Meade issued it, and a third time it was not obeyed, Smith openly refusing and the others making no effort to enforce it. The men lay in their shallow furrows, firing at every enemy that appeared, but not one would advance a step. They were ready for battle, but not for suicide.

The Euphemistic News Report.

"Owing to the formidable character of the enemy's main works it was deemed impolitic to continue the assault." Thus ran the euphemistic news reports of the incident. The concrete, frigid fact was that the whole army spontaneously mutilated against the repetition of an undertaking that never should have been made at all. The corps commanders at last persuaded Grant of the futility of any further efforts of that kind, and he reluctantly acquiesced.
The crowning horror was the fact that for two or three days many of the dead and wounded lay uncared for upon the field, because Grant and Lee were unable to agree upon the terms of a brief armistice. When at last an agreement was reached the roll of the wounded had been greatly diminished and that of the dead correspondingly increased.

For nine days Grant stubbornly maintained his place. Then, on June 12, he retired from Cold Harbor, the poorer by 12,738 men than when he first reached the place. Since crossing the Rapidan he had lost 54,926 men in fighting an army of only 65,000. More than that, he abandoned his whole plan of campaign. On May 11 he had said: "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer"; the line being to strike at Lee's army again and again until by sheer attrition, if in no other way, it was defeated and destroyed. On June 12, with the summer not yet really begun, he quit fighting on that line and removed his army to the south side of the James, making not Lee, but Richmond, by way of Petersburg, his chief objective.

Grant Admitted His Error.

Cold Harbor has been the subject of much controversy, sometimes acrimonious, which it would seem unprofitable to renew or to recall in detail. Final judgment has been passed upon it by the one man who was responsible for it. "Cold harbor is, I think," said Grant, "the only battle I ever fought that I would not fight over again under the circumstances." And again, in his "Personal Memoirs": "I have always regretted that the last assault on Cold Harbor was ever made. No advantage whatever was gained to compensate for the heavy loss we sustained." From that verdict there can be no appeal, while the frank and voluntary rendering of it goes far toward atoning for the most costly and perhaps least excusable error in the great soldier's career.

BANGS FIELD TO FURNISH BROWNWOOD WITH GAS

BROWNWOOD, Texas, June 5.—With the bringing in of a gas well in the Bangs field a few days ago, natural gas is assured for this city and at present arrangements are being shaped for the surveying of such a line.
Now that natural gas is a certainty for Brownwood, the local Commercial club will make strenuous efforts to get new industries to locate here.
The supply of gas is abundant and the promoters of the gas pipe line say that with the ultimate completion of the project a minimum rate will be accorded all heavy users of this product. The line will be approximately 10 miles long.

THE WONDERS OF THE AMAZON

More light is thrown on a region which lately has been attracting considerable attention, by a book just published in London. The book is "The upper reaches of the Amazon" by J. F. Woodroffe. The London Globe gave it the following notice:
"As M. Da Faria, who contributes the introduction to this book, writes, there is probably no region of the world which Nature wears so rich and luxurious a garb as in those lowlands through which the mighty Amazon winds its course. Primeval forests of majestic trees, a rich, thick undergrowth, insects and birds of rare beauty, deadly reptiles and fierce beasts, all combined make it the fitting setting for adventure and romance. Here Nature holds her most intimate secrets for science to discover but alas she also offers rubber and roche natives for exploitation by the soulless capitalist."

It was Mr. Woodroffe's evil fate to be enmeshed in the rubber industry and the book is largely the story of what he saw and what he endured when he was in those toils, and of how at last he escaped from them. He is studiously moderate, as becomes a man who has been compelled to look on in silence at outrages he was powerless to prevent, but in his moderation there is most convincing proof that the horrors of the Putumayo are no fiction, but gasty, hideous truths. But we prefer to turn to the many wonders of this fascinating region as they were seen by the author.

Mr. Woodroffe went birds' nesting in some sand holes:

"After removing a quantity of sand I placed my arm in the hole and felt what appeared to be the tail of a small alligator. I dug away with renewed zeal and after a few minutes was startled by the inhabitant of the hole darting out and running at a good pace toward the water. I started in pursuit, but could not catch him. On rejoining the party I recounted my experience with a "young alligator." The story was greeted with roars of laughter and remarks about "river chicken". It was subsequently explained to me that I had dug out a large green iguana, a species of lizard about three feet long, which is largely eaten, and is not easily distinguished from chicken. The color of the flesh, its taste, and the similarity of its bones make it an easy matter to induce one to believe that he had partaken of fowl, when in fact he has eaten the flesh of a reptile."

Naturally there came a day when his croon upset and he found himself in the river with two alligators, one above and one below, taking the keenest interest in his plight. His cries brought his friends to the rescue and these friends in their anxiety and excitement, nearly shot him instead of the alligators.

After being lost in the bush, Mr. Woodroffe was rescued and taken charge of by an Indian tribe, among whom he saw many strange and curious customs. In this tribe a young man who desires a wife has to prove his capacity to maintain her by fighting all the other admirers, besides any champion her father sees fit to nominate.

"At a late hour of the night, among a burst of small drums and peculiar whistles used by the men and women, the young Indian stepped into the center of the square, and was followed by another big specimen of manhood. Both wore nothing but a loin strap, and, at a given signal, took up a crouching position, each ready for the first move of his antagonist. Creeping slowly round one another, they were soon indistinguishable among a whirl of arms and legs, out of which presently emerged one of the girl's champions, smeared with blood. He taken in charge by the medicine men who joined the cut parts together and covered the whole with red clay, and after several other futile efforts to damage the young lover, he abandoned the contest, and the lover was declared to have proved his ability to defend her and take her to wife."

NORTH TEXAS MEDICOS MEET AT GAINSVILLE

GAINSVILLE, Texas, June 5.—One formal paper of treating of cancer was on the program of the North Texas Medical Association whose summer session of two days was called here today. The cancer paper was on tomorrow's program. He was to deal with the certain phrases connected with cancer of the tongue. The medical papers covered a wide range. Outside these papers of strictly technical medical nature there were two covering the business and ethical side of the medical profession. There were "The Fee Splitting Evil" and a paper entitled "Something I have observed in our profession that should not exist."

Miss Elaine Wood, of Dallas, came in yesterday to spend the summer with her aunts, Mrs. E. B. Hughes and Miss Effie Casey.

W. Y. Holmes Democratic Candidate for the Legislature

Live in Plainview, native Texan, on farm till 26 years old, academic graduate University of Texas, Lawyer since 1898. Served in Legislature in 1905; Lived in Gonzales 9 years, in Amarillo 3, and in Hale county, 4—investigate me, and if it shows good and you like my platform, WONT YOU VOTE FOR ME?

Cannot see you personally but will make speeches, and will discuss briefly in this column part of the following propositions every two weeks. Watch for them.
Favor statewide prohibition, most strict regulation till statewide is secured, and full protection of dry territory against liquor traffic. Seven years ago I was an anti-hating saloons but sincerely believing strict regulation to be the remedy. But I concluded a rattlesnake could not be regulated. It must be killed, I voted, and made speeches, for statewide in 1911, and will again in 1915. Till statewide is secured, I favor every measure which tends to restrict and minimize the traffic. I favor every law which tends to prohibit absolutely sales, or shipments, into dry territory.

2. Favor ample provisions for buildings, equipment, maintenance and protection of all State educational institutions, particularly the Canyon Normal. They should all be provided for by separate tax, and thus removed from politics. We want this country settled; but settlers will not come where there are no good schools; and to have good schools, we must have trained teachers; therefore this section particularly needs a good normal. Canyon did the handsome thing to get this normal; therefore she is entitled to have it rebuilt, protected and maintained.

TERRELL WANTS CITY MANAGER

TERRELL, Texas, June 5.—Difficulty in finding the right man for the place has delayed full application of the provisions of Terrell's new city charter. Terrell is looking for a general manager, and the commissioners are acting on the principle that it is worth while to delay a little if necessary in order to get the best man available.

Salient features of Terrell's new special charter are:

- Five commissioners from designated districts, 2 at large.
- Commissioners elective; likewise city secretary, tax assessor and recorder, city attorney, city recorder. Minor officials appointive.
- City manager central, sanitary, fire and public utilities departments, (city owns light and waterworks plant.)
- Records court to have concurrent jurisdiction with county court.
- Compulsory education.
- Recall and initiative referendum.
- Loan by city to individuals unable to build sidewalks of money for that purpose on ten year terms at 6 per cent.

- Franchise limited to thirty years except interurban whose limit may be fifty.

- City has authority to appropriate funds for municipal bond.
- Commission has authority to establish parks and appoint park boards. Limit tax rate exclusive of special axes to $1.95 on the $100.

- Requires petition of thirty per cent of the qualified voters to initiate legislation.

- Requires petition by forty per cent of poll tax payers to bring the recall into action.

- Empowers the commission to pay the city manager from $1800 to $2500 per annum.

TEXAS WHEAT CROP 20,000,000 BUSHELS

HOUSTON, Texas, June 5.—Estimates of the 1912 Texas wheat crop has been made by the Texas railroads at 20,000,000 bushels. The roads are already concentrating cars at storage points so as to be able to move the enormous yield.

The major portion of the crop will pass through Galveston.

BUY A BOILER AND SAVE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

With Outdoor Canning Waste of Surplus Product Is Without Excuse, and Saving of It Becomes a Neighborhood Social Event.

By MRS. C. F. THOMPSON, in Farmers' Mall and Breeze.

We probably all know the story of the Englishman who asked an American what he did with all his corn, and received the reply, "We eat all we can, and what we can't we can." Of course, English obtuseness is illustrated in the Englishman's attempt to repeat the story and in his wonder at the absence of smiles when he quoted the farmer as saying, "We eat all we can, and what we can't we can't eat we put in little tin cans."

Most people may not claim so much thrift. Many eat all they can, put some of the products of garden and orchard in glass cans, and waste the remainder.

A steam-pressure canner enables one to can any vegetables or any meat product as well as the fruit that every homemaker aims to keep in store. If one wishes to use a canning outfit for fruits alone she might well get the materials needed for soldering tin cans and set up an old stove out of doors. A wash boiler with water in which to immerse the cans would answer all requirements. To can corn successfully without a large amount of salt and sugar requires a higher temperature than that of boiling water. This may be secured only in some closed retort, where steam and heat may not escape.

Can Be Used for Cooking.

Besides enabling one to can everything, these steam boilers admit of various other uses. Large jars of beans may be thoroughly cooked in them in an hour. The toughest of meat may be made tender by cooking it for a short time at 260 degrees. In hot weather we have boiled most of the things needed for dinner at one time, and outside of the house. When we were trying to get ready for threshers by preparing chickens, beans, etc., the day before their coming, we might have wasted most of our food when rain postponed the day of their coming; but the chicken, canned with a liberal supply of butter, was even better than when first cooked, and other things were no worse.

We bought our outfit three years ago. It is known as the home size, and consists of boiler with lid that may be screwed tight enough to prevent the escape of steam, an inner crate for the boiler, a thermometer, a steam pressure gauge, and a safety valve. It is possible to get 30 pounds pressure to the square inch, or 260 degrees temperature. We have also as part of the equipment a gasoline blast furnace, two capping steels, a tipping copper, and a pair of tongs. Besides these, if one is using tin cans, she needs some solder, solder flux, and a piece of sal-ammoniac to use in polishing the steels.

Tin Cans Better Than Glass.

Our outfit cost about $25. It was the only small-sized boiler made at the time, and was intended for use on a stove. But so much heat was radiated from the boiler that we built a furnace out of doors, using stone and cement. This was so constructed that more than half the boiler was in the firebox. The boiler-makers now advertise a boiler heated by a gasoline flame which at the same time heats the steel and copper. I should think this might have several advantages over other forms. Glass can may be used, but tin ones can be used with so much more speed and ease that they are about the only kind to consider.

Some companies will, for a small additional charge, ship these cans in re-erping cases. If the canner intends to ship her canned goods she will find it highly desirable to order such cases; solder-hemmed caps for cans cost a little more, but they save so much trouble that is money well spent. Small orders for cans receive special attention if sent in early. There is considerable delay sometimes if the home canner waits till wholesalers are telegraphing their car-load orders.

The cans are numbered according to the number of pounds they hold, as No. 1, 2, 2½, 3, 10. The smallest size may be seen on grocery store shelves with labels denoting meat and fish contents. Sizes 2 and 2½ are used for peas, beans, tomatoes, corn and fruits. Size 3 is the one usually used for tomatoes as well as berries, peaches, plums, pumpkin, kraut, etc. Size No. 10 holds approximately a gallon. The home canner will seldom use these. Grocery price lists quote prices on apples and pie peaches in this largest size can.

How to Open Cans.

The larger the order for cans the cheaper is the cost a can. The smallest order would probably not bring the cost for each can over 3 cents, and this is, including freight charges. For home use cans need not be wasted when opened. A coal of fire from burning hardwood stacked on the cap soon melts the solder and makes it possible to pry off the cap with a pointed knife blade. If the can is emptied at once—as it always should be—and washed, it may be used any number of times.

Our boiler holds 14 No. 3 cans and three No. 2 cans at one time. Any one can easily seal the 14 cans in less time than she can properly screw the lids on three Mason jars. The process is simple. Capping steels and tipping copper are heated in the blast furnace. The solder-hemmed cap is brushed with solder flux and placed over the opening in the can. A turn of the steel melts the solder around the edge of the cap. Steam caused by this melting is allowed to escape through a small hole in the center of the cap; otherwise the solder would not set or harden. This small hole is closed by applying the tipping copper to a bar of solder and allowing the drop of solder to fall directly upon the opening. The beginner's mistake is to fill the cans too full, and thus prevent good sealing.

Fruits Quickly Cooked.

In canning fruits such as apples, peaches and berries, the cans are nearly filled with the fruit, a syrup added, the cans sealed, then cooked a few minutes—three minutes at 240 degrees for peaches—and the work is done. Tomatoes may also be canned by placing the raw tomatoes in the cans, sealing tightly and cooking. Peas, beans and corn, however, possess an acid property which must be steam out or allowed to escape before being permanently sealed, or they will become mushy and disagreeable. They are said to "digest themselves." These vegetables are best and easiest handled when blanched or heated to near boiling point before being placed in cans. Complete and simple directions accompany each boiler sold.

There is much fruit wasted everywhere, but especially in this true of peaches in Oklahoma. There are few farms lacking peach orchards which produce bushels of good peaches. They are not always as free from spots as spraying would make them, but they are good none the less. There is no local market for these peaches; it is unprofitable to ship by express or in less than carloads, not always then; and so bushels are fed to the hogs or allowed to rot on the ground. In our own Oklahoma orchard I have seen better peaches rotting on the ground than we were able to get in Wisconsin for $2 or $2.50 a bushel. It was this sight that suggested the thought that we might profitably can some peaches and ship them to Northern states.

Profit on Peaches.

Two years ago we canned over 1,000 quarts of peaches and sold most of them for about 25 cents a quart. We figured that we cleared 7 cents a quart, or more than $1.50 a bushel. It is, of course, necessary to label canned goods sold to grocery stores. We also exchanged peaches for Northern berries and other fruit. Canned corn, beans, pork and beans, kraut, etc., may often be sold in plain tin to furnish cook shack supplies for threshing crews. Grocery stores will generally accept guaranteed goods, but one needs to have a good supply of what she asks a grocer to handle for her. If canning on a large scale is tried, it is well to send samples to jobbers or wholesale grocery houses and solicit patronage.

There is money in the canning business. If rightly managed, much may be made from what is usually wasted. There is unlimited opportunity to save in the family's living expenses by having well-stocked shelves. Summer fruits and vegetables make the needed balance in winter diet; winter meats, pork and beans, soups, etc., save on summer meat bills.

We have occasion almost daily to appreciate what the canner has done for us in helping to supply our table. Personally, I appreciate even more the delightful co-operation with my neighbors that their use of our canner made possible. Had it not been for their help with peaches in exchange for the use of the canner to save tomatoes and corn, we should probably have seen little of each other in the busy summer season. Working together, I am sure we all enjoyed what would otherwise have been hard and tedious work.

FLOWERS HELP TO KEEP THE YOUNG FOLKS ON THE FARM.

Grow the Older Varieties, Which Have a Wealth of Pleasant Associations.

When a farmer, with up-to-date methods for land cultivation, applies them in beautifying the farm house or yard, he will have done much toward solving the problem of keeping the boys and girls in the country.

There is one way to beautify his grounds that is within the reach of every farmer. That is the planting of flowers.

It is better to use good taste in selecting a few standard varieties than to experiment with the rarer but less hardy plants. For the May flower bed or border, the columb is indispensable. It has no flower, its chief claim to beauty lying in the dark reddish, or varicolor, leaves. The so-called "Joseph's Coat" is another good foliage to use in massed beds. Among hardy bloomers is the canna, with broad, graceful leaf and crimson blossom. The canna bulb may be set out as soon as the frost has left the ground. If planted this month, there will be blossoms from July until late in the fall.

Pansy beds may be set out now to good advantage. In combination with violets, the velvety pansy presents a scheme of deep rich color. When the violets cease blooming, the foliage salvia can be used as a "fill-in."

If the old-fashioned garden, with its indiscriminate flower massing, is preferred, a host of flowers, dear to our grandmothers, presents itself. Hollyhocks, cosmos, larkspur, poppies, perennial phlox, sweet-williams, pinks, all suitable for planting now, breathe the very essence of old-fashionedness.

In order to have success with any flower, two things are necessary, cultivation at least once a week and a sufficient supply of manure. In extreme hot weather, a straw mulch about the roots serves as a good retainer of moisture.

There will be very little trouble caused by insects on outdoor plants. In case there is, a prepared tobacco extract serves as a good remedy. Different flowers call for soils of varying richness, but with judicious fertilization a comparatively rich soil may be obtained. The best fertilizer, well-rotted manure, should be worked into the ground every year after the flowers have ceased blooming.

Miracles can be worked with a package of seeds and trowel. It will pay the farmers to encourage the working of these miracles on his lawn, and thus make the farm a better place to live.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

RUSSIAN DREADNAUGHT LAUNCHED AT ODESSA

ODESSA, June 5.—The third stage in Russia's ambitious naval program for the Black Sea was concluded today with the successful launching of the dreadnaught Ekaterina II at the Nikolaioff navy yard.

The two dreadnaught already launched, and soon to go into commission, the Empress Maria and the Alexander III. The fourth, the Ivan-the-Terrible, is to be laid down on the ways vacated by the Ekaterina II. The six destroyers and the six submarines, included in the new program, have already been completed, and two armored cruisers are building. There is only being constructed one of the largest floating docks in the world, capable of carrying a vessel of 40,000 tons. It will cost $2,000,000.

Notwithstanding this formidable force, naval experts say that Turkey would have a decided advantage on the Black Sea in the event of war between the two countries, as the Russian dreadnaughts are to be armed with only 12-inch guns, as against guns of 13-inch and 15-inch respectively on the two battle cruisers recently acquired by the Turkish government, one from Brazil and the other now completing in England. The longer range of the Turkish guns would, it is believed more than counterbalance the greater aggregate tonnage and armament of the new Russian craft.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Warnings to farmers against burning off woodlands, or "logged off" lands are being sent broadcast by the Department of Agriculture. It is stated that after careful and widespread experiments by the forest service, it is now demonstrated that in burning off lands the valuable "humus" is destroyed.

The fires rob the soil of this crop-producing element it is asserted. Where fire has been entered, a large amount of vegetation matter, providing considerable fertility, and good texture is retained.

"How to fight dandelions" is the topic of a government booklet just issued, coming to the rescue of the spring lawn mower brigade. Three remedies are suggested by the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture.

One remedy suggested is to thicken the stand of grass, so as to crowd out Mr. Dandeloin. If this doesn't work cut out the dandeloin tops and sprinkle salt on the exposed roots. Then if the weed does not succumb, the only sure remedy is to spade up the ground and start afresh.

Spraying dandelions with iron sulphate is disapproved. The iron kills the grass as well as the dandelions. Cutting off the tops only aggravates the plant, it is said unless the roots are poisoned. After cutting, the roots grow deeper, thicker and harder. Spring is the time to choke off the dandeloin crop. In some countries, dandelions are a valuable truck crop, the Department declares.

"Housewives, stop using salicylic acid in your preserves," says a warning from the Department of Agriculture. Because of the alarming increase in the use of this acid the Department sent out an urgent warning. "It is true," says the department, "that these powders may prevent the decay of fruit of vegetables, but they also encourage uncleanly or careless work and their excessive use may be attended with very serious effects upon the health."

"Salicylic acid is a medicine and it is well known as a poisonous substance and one of the evils which may accompany its use in derangement of the digestion. It is therefore plain that its extensive use in food may lead to disturbances of digestion and health."

The shipping of eggs, hams, little neck clams and maple syrup by parcel post is a success. Records received daily by the Department of Agriculture and the United States postoffice show that farmers in the eastern states especially are shipping farm nearby cities. Centered about Washington alone there are 174 farmers who are selling by parcel post. One of them living in Quimby, Va., offered little neck clams in 100 lots and sold 990 to employees of the local postoffice the first day.

The plans for shipping are simple. Any customer desiring goods from a farmer mails him a basket and a letter ordering the goods. The farmer fills the order, hands the basket to the postman and the goods are delivered. A. G. Drane, one parcel post patron has been purchasing eggs nine months by parcel post. He orders four dozens at a time. During the nine months he used the same corrugated box and only one egg was broken, and that was when the box was finally worn out.

Three Departments of Federal Government have just ruled that all packages of food must tell the truth, on their wrappers, of the amount of volume of their contents. By signing the "net weight law" the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce and Treasury have put into effect stringent regulations respecting the packing and bottling of food stuffs.

The regulations require that the quantity stated on the container must represent the actual quantity of food exclusive of wrappings and container. Under this requirement it would not be enough to state that a package of candy contained 24 cream peppermints, candies vary in size and this would not be a statement of the actual quantity in the package. In general solids must be stated in terms of weight and liquids in terms of volume.

The new rule is so varied, too, that queer-shaped bottles must not show discrepancies greater than those of standard square or round bottles of the same capacity. Packages weighing 2 ounces or bottles containing less than one fluid ounce are exempt from the regulations.

LAST DAY FOR MISSOURI CANDIDATES TO FILE PAPERS

AMUSEMENTS

"The Savage and the Tiger," a George Kleine production, exhibited at The Mae I yesterday, is one of the most remarkable picture dramas ever shown here. It is strong in plot, well enacted, and magnificently staged. The photographic effects are especially deserving of favorable comment. If any scene was more striking than another it was the night scene where natives bearing torches walk through a marsh in the Indian jungle. The Kleine players are all capable and the wild animal adventures are admirably presented.

It is to be regretted that plays so rich in setting should be marred by inattention to details. Doesn't it seem strange that a hunter so skilled with the rifle that natives of the Indian jungle marvel at his never-failing success in felling wild animals should repeatedly fire into a bunch of natives at close range and never bring down a man? And whoever heard of a "crack shot" using a double-barrel shot gun in hunting and killing big game with the fighting qualities of a tiger?

The Shepherds and the Goats

When Mr. Charles S. Mellen retired from the presidency of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad he was asked what he intended to do.

"I shall retire to my farm," replied Mr. Mellen, "and raise goats, for which there seems to be a considerable demand."

It was understood at that time that Mr. Mellen intended to convey his sense of the injustice of being made the goat, the scapegoat, for the sins of others, but the full force of his meaning was made clear only yesterday in one of the most remarkable pieces of testimony in the history of successful "muck-raking."

The Interstate Commerce Commission was—and is—inquiring into the purchase of the Westchester line by the New York, New Haven and Hartford. Mr. Mellen testified that the latter paid for the former "around $35,000,000."

"What was the value of the Westchester at the time of the purchase?" was asked by Mr. Folk, counsel for the Commission.

"I think," replied Mr. Mellen, "that work amounting to about $1,000,000 had been done and there was $4,000,000 in real estate. The original theory was that it should cost the New Haven about $5,000,000."

It finally cost the New Haven seven times that amount, and even at the beginning of the deal nearly twice the amount it was said to be worth was paid down, or about $9,950,000 paid.

Yet when Mr. Mellen, president and director of the corporation, dared to suggest to Mr. Morgan that the report of the committee in charge of the purchase, which at that stage involved over $11,000,000, was not in the shape it should be, Mr. Morgan cut him short brusquely, to his great humiliation.

"The proposition," said Mr. Mellen, "was submitted by the committee headed by Mr. Morgan and was adopted by the directors. I thought that I was entitled to know more about the transaction than I did know. I thought I was entitled to know why we were paying $11,000,000 for a great big basketful of stuff that we did not know the value of."

But he neither protested nor resigned. He "stood in greater awe of Mr. Morgan than of any other man," and he felt that in disagreeing with Mr. Morgan that redoubtable individual would be right nine times out of ten.

So in the face of an expenditure for a $5,000,000 line of over $11,000,000 and the expenditure incomplete, he swallowed his humiliation, to say nothing of his duty, his common sense, and acquiesced.

But Mr. Mellen was not the only captain who held his breath in the presence of this mighty power. There was Director Skinner.

"'Holy Caesarea Philippi' Mr. Skinner shouted. 'What have you been doing here with $11,000,000 of New Haven money?'

"'I'll appoint you a committee of one to find out,' I suggested.

"'Not on your life,' said Mr. Skinner.

"There was enough said by Messrs. Hemingway and Skinner to satisfy the other directors," said Mr. Mellen, grimly.

A wonderful glimpse of high finance, a picture to make the professional "muck-raker" die of envy and chagrin.

But what of the goats and goat raising?

If Mr. Mellen was a goat, surely he can comfort himself with the thought that he accepted the office and was well paid for it. Whereas in many a little town of New England are widows and spinsters and men of little means but great faith in the great railway system which runs through one of the richest regions in the world and once itself was rich and solid as New England thrift. These, too, are goats, goats who did not accept the office and are paying, not paid for it.

For these goats Mr. Mellen, Mr. Skinner, Mr. William Rockefeller, and others, as well as the late lamented Mr. Morgan, were shepherds! Poor little goats!

The story of the New Haven trusteeship, this parable of the goats, will make laws, and we hope it will make morals, for many years to come.—Chicago Tribune.

A City's Investment

The Board of Trade of Scranton, Penna., announces the successful organization of a new plan of civic development. "The Scranton Million-Dollar Investment Company" is the outgrowth.

This company will invest in factories which come to Scranton. Eight days ago a campaign to sell a million dollars' worth of stock to men and women in Scranton was begun. At the end of the week the committee announced that $145,000 more than the million had been secured.

Local banks took $200,000.

Women employees of one hotel, including chambermaids and scrub women, took $2,500 in stock. Business men of the Syrian colony purchased $10,000.

The Company expects to pay 5 per cent on the stock. Its entire energy will be centered on bringing new industries to the city.

A million dollars in eight days!

Scranton's investment represents the money of individual citizens. The most splendid loyalty was not the magnificent subscription of $200,000 by Scranton banks. It was the investment of $2,500 by the women employees of one hotel. Next to that comes the $10,000 invested by merchants of the Syrian colony.

No town ever becomes great until all its citizens "get together" and pull for town-building enterprises.

For the building of Plainview it is just as vital that the day laborer do his level best, that salaried men shall "invest" in these forward movements, as it is that the man of money shall put up his share.

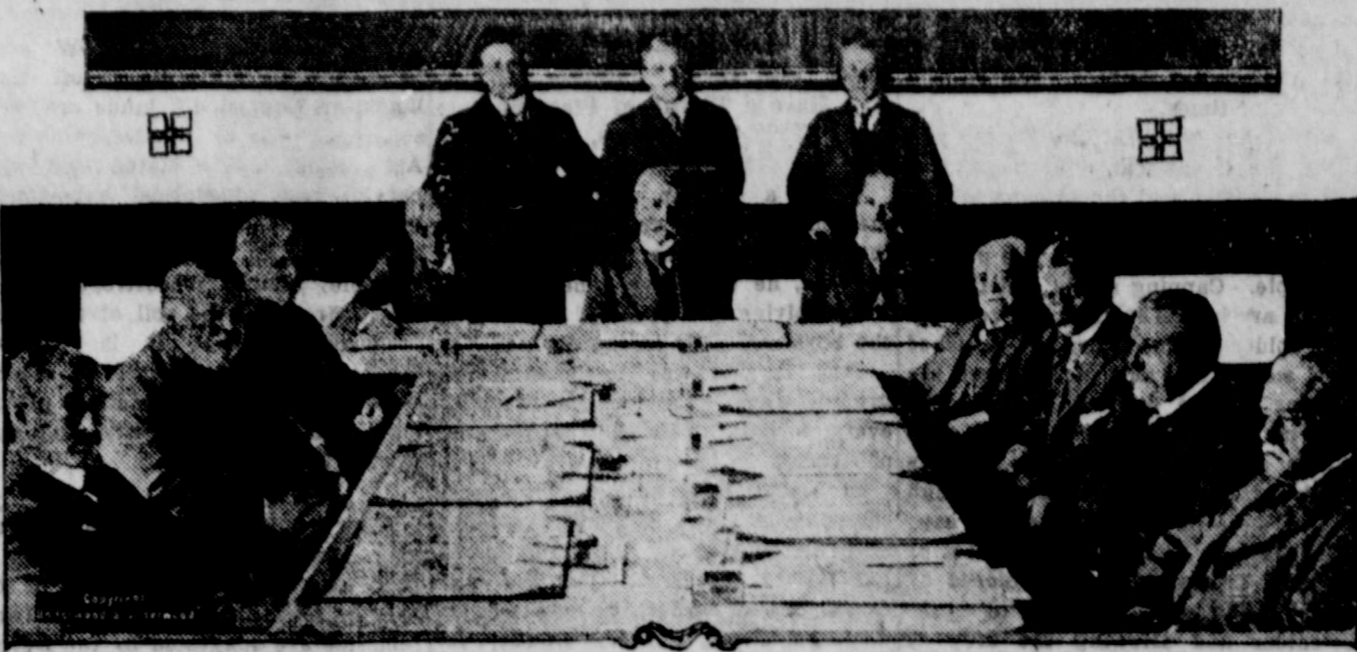

Perhaps the thing of most immediate importance is that some of our citizens who are amply able shall build sidewalks. Plainview is promised free mail delivery when that is done.

Association Program Mapped
In point of territory covered, the meeting will be the most important; a record breaking attendance is expected.

FORT WORTH, Texas, June 3.—Plans for the ninth annual institute of the Texas Commercial Executives' Association to be held at Mineral Wells the week beginning July 13 have been mapped out by the Executive Committee.

The program is well arranged with a number of the men doing big things in Texas occupying the leading roles. Primarily, the meeting is a results convention where the spirit is to advance Texas and Texans.

French Deputies Convene

PARIS, June 3.—The new Chamber of Deputies, elected for the next four years met today for the first time, the mandates of the old deputies expiring last night at midnight. The Socialists, with their 102 seats, a gain of 27 over the expiring period, hold the whip hand which fact, together with the presence of nearly 200, or 30 per cent new members, Clemencou to remark that "Franco" stands face to face with the "Spinx". No one, with the professional political casters, can tell what will happen.

The new French governing body has, as a whole, been picked up and shoved over to the left. The reactionaries and nationalists of the right have lost ground whereas the "revolutionary socialists" as Joan Jaures' party is called in France, has made 30 per cent gain. With them all the candidates with leanings toward the left were swept on to a victory so startling that the Socialists themselves admit surprise.

The Radicals and Radical Socialists, the governing bloc, number 245 in the new chamber. But they are badly torn by factions and internal dissensions. The socialists and their friends with socialistic leanings, muster 140, the next strongest party in France by long odds. And by reasons of bargains struck at the May elections, those two parties are expected to vote together on most issues. The party of Aristido Briand ex-prime minister, President Poincaré and ex-Premier Louis Barthou, numbers some 185 in the chamber, the Progressives 62 and the entire right—Conservatives, Liberals, Nationalists, Bonapartists, Royalists and Clericals, 73 all told. The socialists, is a voting body is compact as the proverbial Solid South, the other parties splitting on almost every question.

LUBBOCK

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 3.—Crop conditions were never better in this county than to-day. While there is still a considerable amount of planting to be done, yet the farmers are not worrying about it, as they know there is plenty of time.

In April Lubbock had 1.47 inches of rain, while in May there was 4.94 inches. So far in June about two inches has fallen. All of this has come in such a way as to do the most good. While there will be plenty of work for the farmers to get the weeds cleared out, everything is growing fine, and it would take a calamity to keep the South Plains from having bumper crops.

Superintendent Cory makes the following estimate on crops that are enough advanced to judge: Wheat, 125 per cent; oats, 100 per cent; rye, 110 per cent, and grass, 125 per cent. Cane, kaffir, feterita, milo maize, Sudan grass, etc., are all well started, and there is generally a good stand throughout the county.

Already good reports are being received for Sudan gras from elsewhere. Reports from both South Texas and California say that the grass is from seven to eight feet high, and the small amounts planted there are creating much interest, and those in those parts of the country who are fortunate enough to have a little planted are already receiving orders for seed.

It is now a common thing to see petitions circulated for new sidewalks. Lubbock residents are waking up to the benefits of good walks in these wet times.

Mrs. E. C. Rascoe, of Tulia; Mrs. Kate S. Brien, of Amarillo, and Mrs. Julia C. Polk, of Coleman, sisters of W. Y. Price, who have been visiting their brother and his family, at this place, left to-day for their respective homes.

CHILD'S TENDENCY UP THIS CLUB WOMAN SAYS

Mrs. Warner Thinks Environment And Mismanagement Keep Young Life On Low Plane

Mrs. W. A. Warner, of Claude, chairman of the State Educational Extension Work, lectured yesterday afternoon at the Presbyterian Church.

A small number of enthusiastic club women were present, including some of the mothers of the town, who treasured up in their hearts the words of admonition and counsel uttered by the speaker.

Mrs. Warner is known among the club women of the State as "The Little Brown Wren," because of her modest, unobtrusive manner.

She does not claim to be a speaker. She is vitally interested in her subject, and out of the fullness of her heart she speaks words of gold.

Mrs. Warner began by paying a tribute to the well-kept homes of Plainview, with their smooth lawns and shade trees.

The Value of Co-operation.

Co-operation, the getting together of country and town women, was the first thought brought out by the speaker. Throughout her talk, the good of the child was stressed in every phase.

Beginning with the physical, Mrs. Warner showed by a diagram the seven lives of a child, and the time of the awakening of each—(1) physical, (2) social when the child first recognizes the mother, (3) mental, (4) moral, (5) industrial, (6) political (when the child first begins to want his own way), and (7) spiritual.

Mrs. Warner's motto in regard to child rearing is, "There let my way appear steps unto Heaven." She contends that a child's tendency is to grow upward, and is only kept down by environment and mismanagement.

Home Shortcomings.

The home provides food and clothing, but, outside of home, every year in the United States 20,000,000 children are dumped upon teachers, the majority of whom are neither fathers nor mothers, and who cannot enter into the real life of the child.

In some states, all children do not have even this chance, as there are thousands who are not made to attend school.

Mrs. Warner believes in the teaching of domestic science in all its branches. She believes in teaching how to make home attractive.

"The woman's clubs," said Mrs. Warner, "are doing a grand work in the upbuilding of the school and the home in the rural districts." She stated that the country woman is the foundation of the Nation.

The Devil Progressive.

She said that the devil is a most progressive character. He is constantly devising new means for the downfall of the child.

Mrs. Warner made the startling statement, backed by statistics, that only nine boys out of every hundred go to church.

She believes in more amusement at home and less abuse of amusements. She thinks there is mental and moral training in games, if they are played honestly.

Mrs. Warner is an advocate of the county federation of women's clubs. She thinks too little of the social life of the city reaches the remote rural districts.

The Blue Ribbon County.

Mrs. Warner spoke in glowing terms of the rural work in Lubbock County and of the Federations in Bee and Armstrong Counties. She incidentally alluded to Hale as the county that carries off most of the blue ribbons.

Her address was so replete with wholesome thoughts and helpful ideas that it is impossible to condense them in a small space. Those who did not hear the lecture missed much that would have done them good and would have helped them materially in the vocation of home-maker and mother.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 2.—The Attorney General's Department held today in opinion rendered that the County Attorney of Angeline County was correct in his contention that a local option election held less than two years after a previous election was valid, if this election is not contested. MISS MAYHUGH ENTERTAINS SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS.

COLORADO MAN TO DIG TWO IRRIGATION WELLS

F. V. Scneider Says Maximum Profits Can't Be Realized By Extensive Farming

F. V. Scneider returned to his home, in Colorado, to-day. "The more often I come, it becomes harder for me to get away," Mr. Scneider said. "Just as soon as I can get business matters adjusted I am coming to live near Plainview."

Mr. Scneider owns 320 acres of land 7 miles east of town. He came to Plainview with the intention of putting down a big well and irrigating. "I have changed my mind," Mr. Scneider said to a Herald reporter. "I will come back next fall and put down two wells instead of one. I will also build another house and make two complete irrigated farms out of the half section."

Mr. Scneider owns a section of land twelve miles north, and will combine the three places for growing hogs and cattle. Mr. Scneider knows the irrigation game. The Plainview country offers the largest possibilities for irrigated farming of any country in America, he says. He urges smaller farms. Mr. Scneider nows that maximum profits can't be realized in an irrigation community when a man tries to farm 320 acres.

By request, Mrs. Walter Day recited "Cleopatra's Protest," which was much enjoyed. Miss Mabel Wayland sang two Browning lyrics, "Thy Face" and "The Year's at the Spring."

A report from the Public Library showed five hundred and sixty books now on the shelves, with an order out for sixty new volumes. As it is just a year since the library was organized, this is considered a good record.

THE STOCK MARKET IN DETAIL.

KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS, May 29.—The bulk of the week's supply of cattle sold when the bloom was on the market, 10 to 25 cents above the low time last week. After Tuesday heavy steers met some coldness from buyers, but on the whole markets were active during the week, and the moderate runs went over the scales early, carrying their fill, quite an item in computing returns to shippers.

Prime yearlings sold at $9.15 and $9.20, several lots of heavy steers brought $9.00, and bulk of native steers sold at $8.00 to $8.65. No prime cows were received, good to choice ones selling at $6.00 to $7.50, bulls $6.00 to $7.25, veal calves $9.00 to $10.50, bulk of the stockers at $7.00 to $7.75, a few up to $8.25. Colorado and the West contributed a few scattered shipments or cattle the first of the week, and none since.

Several droves of Colorado sold at $8.60, and similar cattle which were sent farther East sold at destination at the same price. Quarantine arrivals this week were 98 cars, nearly all South Texas grassers. Two trains of the Welder steers sold at $7.40 to $7.85, other South Texas grassers at $6.90 to $7.50. Some steers from Georgetown sold at $8.15; North Texas fed steers at $7.85 to $8.20.

Cattle up in the native yards dropped off 2,000 from last week, and 5,000 from the same week a year ago. The result was a full line of buyers in the quarantine division every day, active and strong markets, and an early clearance. Prospects indicate small cattle supplies here for the next four or six weeks.

Hog supplies dropped off suddenly after Tuesday, and the week's total will be 10,000 less than last week, and 13,000 less than a year ago. Killers are finding out that punishment, such as was administered to the market the first of this week, is answered by a refusal to load in the country, and that although the country is getting back into hogs stop orders on loading are still effective.

The market has reacted 10 cents from the low spot Wednesday, the light supply of 3,000 head to-day selling steady, top $8.22½, bulk $8.05 to $8.20.

This is probably the last big week for Texas sheep and goats. Colorado is done, and natives are not fairly started yet, hence the drop in receipts of 10,000 head from last week, to 36,000 for the week.

Prices have been uneven, but are settling to a basis half a dollar under the high spurt of last week, choice spring lambs $8.75, clipped lambs $7.25 to $7.75, yearlings up to $7.25, wethers $6.50, ewes $5.75, top clipped Texas ewes closing worth $5.35, clipped Texas wethers $5.75, goats at $3.75 to $4.50. J. A. RICKART, Market Correspondent.

HIGHLAND CLUB WITH MRS. WYCKOFF.

Pansies and Maiden Hair Fern Are the Favors for Last Meeting.

With a cordial welcome for the happy guests, with hundreds of Plainview's beautiful roses to smile an additional greeting, the Highland Club held its last meeting yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. J. O. Wyckoff, at the Adams home, 615 West First St.

Seven tables were placed for forty-two—the game that has afforded so much pleasant amusement for the members of the club ever since its organization, nearly six years ago. The games were ended, the linens spread, and an epicurean luncheon served that would have done honor to a French chef. The menu included shrimp salad on green peas, tomatoes in nests of shredded cabbage, ripe olives, raisin bread and cheese and lettuce sandwiches, iced tea with ripe cherries and angel food cake.

Pansies and maiden hair ferns were given as favors to each guest.

Mrs. John J. Roberts, of Hale Center, and Mrs. Charles Saigling, from the Saigling ranch, were the out-of-town guests.

Such was the meeting yesterday of this popular club with a still more popular hostess. The next meeting will be in September.

of the United States. These results are of great practical value and besides the primary object of affording a basis for the charts of the coast they furnish a framework of accurately determined points for use in geographical, geological, topographic economic and other surveys, and in works of improvement and engineering projects undertaken by the Federal Government, by the states or by other organizations.

The geographic positions of the stations are given in convenient tabular form and a description is given of the location and marking of each station. All Alphabetical Index to stations, two index maps and sixteen diagrams are included in the volume. The line bearing and distance between each two contiguous will be of value to local surveyors who may wish to obtain the exact value of the variation of the compass.

LEARN TO FORGET

Petrarch Caesar was so ready to forgive that even Cleo, who was by no means a constant friend to him, relates, as a singular proof of his noble heart, that he never used to forget anything except the wrong done him. Indeed, to pardon is a most beautiful revenge; but to forget is still more beautiful.

THE RISE OF WOMEN IN THE MINISTRY.

The first woman to become a regularly ordained minister was born eighty-nine years ago to-day. She was Antoinette Louise Brown, later Mrs. Samuel C. Blackwell, the daughter of a farmer of Henrietta, N. Y. When she came to consider a college education, in 1843, the Collegiate Institute, now Oberlin College, was the only institution of its kind in America where women could pursue a collegiate education. She was graduated in the literary course and in the theological school, but although she established later a reputation as a brilliant speaker, she was refused a license as a preacher. She turned to lecturing upon women's rights, and was a leading member of the first woman's rights convention, in Worcester, Mass., in 1850. Three years later the bar was lowered, and she was ordained as pastor of the Congregational Church at South Butler, N. Y. Later she joined the Unitarian ministry, always continuing her agitation for woman suffrage.

To-day more than twenty-five hundred women now are preaching as regularly ordained ministers in the United States. More than seven thousand others are regularly certified physicians and surgeons. Probably two thousand more are registered as members of the legal profession, and thousands are scattered among various professions and industries which half a century ago were considered solely fields for masculine endeavor. Many cities to-day have women as mayors and heads of civic departments. State and city school boards are headed by women. There are a score of women who have the right to practice law before the United States Supreme Court. Many colleges have adopted co-education, while there are more than thirty colleges devoted exclusively to the feminine sex. In the universities, colleges and technical schools in the United States during the last year there were more than five thousand women professors and instructors and more than one hundred thousand women students.
