Dr. J. C. Anderson Welcomes Odd Fellows And Rebekahs; Ellerd Speaks For Lodge

STORES SHOW WELCOME

Busy Bee Erects Patriarchal Tent; Carter-Houston, Richards, Plainview Merc. and Others Decorate

The coming Thursday of the Panhandle Association, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, is a big thing for Plainview. This is the twelfth annual convention of the association.

The Rebekahs are also in session. The delegates were met at the 12:05 and 1:10 trains, and were taken immediately to the Odd Fellows' Hall, where lunch was served and homes assigned.

Adjourning to the Opera House, where the whole of Plainview was invited to do honor to the visitors, Dr. J. C. Anderson, President of the Chamber of Commerce, delivered the address of welcome in behalf of Plainview.

Reuben M. Ellerd delivered the address of welcome in behalf of the Odd Fellows, and Mrs. Lalla Davis in behalf of the Rebekahs.

Special Decorations.

Plainview has put on her best dress in honor of the members of the old and honored order who have assembled within her gates. Business men have decorated their windows with the colors and emblems of the order. "Welcome" is written on the faces and in the hearts of the citizens.

At the Busy Bee Cafe can be seen a patriarchal tent, whose doors stand open, displaying the bread, water and salt emblematic of the hospitality of the old patriarchs. The tent and windows are draped with royal purple, the color of the Encampment and Canton orders. The interior of the cafe is decked with red, white and blue, and pink and green, the colors of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Words of "Welcome" and the three links of "Faith, Love and Truth" are to be seen in nearly all of the show windows.

In Carter-Houston's a beautiful "Rebekah at the Well" smiles a welcome to the passer by.

In Richards Bros. & Collier's a Rebekah and an Odd Fellow stand with crook and spear to greet the visitors.

At the Necessity Store Jonathan greets David beneath an arch of welcome.

At the Plainview Mercantile Company, the Rebekah colors, pink and green are honored in a tasteful display.

TEXAS BAPTISTS TAKE WAYLAND INTO SYSTEM

President Gates Says Local People Must Finish Up Hundred Fifty Thousand Main Building

The Baptists of Texas have agreed to take Wayland College into the System of School which the church is maintaining. This is the word brought back from Waco by Dr. I. E. Gates, President of Wayland.

The only condition is that we finish up the main building, Dr. Gates said. We have been working on that all year, and hope to have it completed in a very short time now.

Wayland College main building cost about $150,000. It is one of the handsomest college buildings in Texas.

President Gates says the outlook for his school is brighter than ever before. Wayland enrolled 300 students last year. This is a hundred per cent increase over the year before.

George T. Perdue returned from Tyler with his wife to spend the remainder of his vacation with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Perdue. Mr. Perdue has been compelled to prolong his vacation on account of failing health conditions.

DORMITORY ESTIMATES FOR COLLEGE MONDAY

President McDonald Says Plainview's Part of Funds For Seth Ward Building About Signed Up

MAIN BUILDING REPAIRED

Floydada, Kress And Tullia Are Liberal-Only Endowed Junior College In Texas

Architects' drawings and estimated costs of Seth Ward College's new dormitory will be submitted to the Board of Trustees Monday. President C. L. McDonald said to-day that he hopes to break ground for the new building within ten days.

When campaign was begun for funds for the new dormitory Plainview agreed to raise one-fourth of the amount. President McDonald said to-day that this amount has been practically secured. R. A. Long, W. A. Nash, E. West Lemond, J. E. Willis, Principal, and C. L. McDonald, President of the college, have been working as a local committee.

Rev. O. P. Kiker, Presiding Elder, and C. L. McDonald, President, will go out into the field Saturday to finish up the campaign. They will also cover the Plainview district in a campaign for students.

Floydada promised $1,000 to the new dormitory. Nine hundred and fifty dollars has been subscribed. Kress pledged 1,000, and has signed up for $50. Tullia pledged $1,000, and has signed notes to the amount of $800. Other towns in the district have not been worked.

The main building is being repaired. Work on the roof will be finished up Saturday.

President McDonald says that Seth Ward is the only endowed junior college in Texas. Plainview contributed more than $50,000 to an endowment fund of $75,000 raised last August and September. President McDonald is also saying to parents that no member of his faculty chews or smokes. He feels like they furnish a finer example to the student than if they used tobacco.

WANTS HUNDRED CARS FOR AUTOMOBILE RIDE

D. M. Unger Asks That Visitors And Hosts Be On Hand Promptly At Eight O'clock

It's Saturday morning, instead of Friday, that our visitors are going automobile riding. The time set is eight o'clock.

D. M. Unger is anxious to have 100 automobiles. There are more visitors in Plainview now than have been for a long time. Of course, all of them must go out Saturday to see our big wells and fringed farms.

There never has been a man who saw a Plainview well but that he said, "You haven't talked one-half as much as you might." It is the best sort of advertising Plainview could have. There are more than 450 automobiles in Hale County. Surely 100 ought to respond to Mr. Unger's call.

But be prompt. The party is scheduled to start from the Ware at 8 o'clock.

Lewellen Has "Dry" Oats Grown Fifty Inches High

G. W. Lewellen brought in a sample of oats 50 inches high. These were grown out toward Runningwater. The head is well filled out and is more than 12 inches long.

Mr. Lewellen has about 40 acres of these oats. He says they will make 40 bushels to an acre. They have not been irrigated.

Miss Hixie Pittman, who has been visiting the Gidney girls, went to Tullia to-day to visit.

17 CANDIDATES ENTER HERALD AUTO CONTEST

Trip To World's Fair, Grand Canyon And Yellowstone Park Is Added As Alternative

MONEY FOR ALL WHO WORK

Friends Are Busy Helping Secure Subscriptions To Twice-a-Week Herald; Nominate Your Friend

Seventeen candidates have entered The Herald's big subscription campaign. The publishers of The Herald will not be satisfied until there is a Herald in ever home in Hale County. Contestants believe this will be so when this contest is finished.

Why not? The Herald prints all local news; it will carry news from every community around Plainview; general development news of Texas and world news of special interest. It will print articles on all phases of farm, garden and stock growing. The paper is issued twice a week and costs only $1.50 a year.

You can't lose. There is the Overland automobile for first prize, and the choice of eight big trips for second prize—including a trip to the World's Fair in San Francisco next year and a visit to Grand Canyon and Yellowstone Park. If you had rather have money, get out and work. Every contestant who does not win a prize gets a percent.

Why not get in? Your friends will help you. The Herald will furnish lists of names and co-operate with you in any way possible. The contest was announced and those who started out next day have only been working four days. That isn't a big start. The person who puts in most faithful licks during the next eighty days will win. Why not get your friends to help and win? The automobile has self-starter and electric lights. It is the finest car ever offered by a Northwest Texas newspaper.

The list of nominations are as follows:

- Dr. I. E. Gates, Plainview.
- Miss Leatha Shropshire, Plainview.
- Rev. O. P. Kiker, Plainview.

CLARENDON GETS NEXT ANNUAL I.O.O.F. MEET

Amarillo Wins Banner Offered In Competition With Claude And Hereford; First Degree Work

MIAMI MAN IS PRESIDENT

Judge Jennings of Canadian Vice President; Anderson Is Secretary; Rebekahs At Elk Hall

The year's meeting of Panhandle Odd Fellows will be in Clarendon. Hereford made a bid for the meeting.

Teams from Claude, Hereford and Amarillo competed for an elegant banner in initiatory degree work last night. Amarillo won. Claude had won the banner two years, and would have kept it permanently if that team had won this year.

The Hereford team also exemplified work of the first degree team. The floor work was especially good.

Judge J. C. Dial, of Miami, was elected president of the Association; Judge J. L. Jennings, Canadian, Vice President; Elmer Anderson, Plainview, was re-elected Secretary.

At the meeting of the Rebekahs Thursday night, at the Elks' Hall, the delegates from the Hereford lodge put on some fine contest work, and would undoubtedly have won the medal had one been offered. No other lodges competed.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Lalla Davis, the Noble Grand. A large number of Rebekahs are in attendance, and much interest is manifested.

There will be a social meeting at the Elks' rooms to-night, to which the friends of the Rebekahs and Odd Fellows are invited.

SANTA FE OFFICIALS LIKE PLAINVIEW BEST

C. L. Seagraves And Party Give Universal Verdict After Spending Week in Oklahoma And Texas

H. M. Balner, Agricultural Demonstrator of the Santa Fe Lines, came in from Amarillo Thursday. He was en route to Lockney and Floydada to help in working up a Floyd County fair.

Mr. Balner says his company has about 11,000 acres in experiment farms this year. He never saw crops better over the entire Southwest than they are this year.

Mr. Balner says his people are enthused over the Plainview country. Last week a party of Santa Fe officials accompanied C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, from Chicago, over the Southwest. They spent a week going over West Texas and Oklahoma. When the trip was finished a gentleman asked the party what was the best country they found of all they had seen. "Plainview," was the unanimous response, Mr. Balner says.

COMMON LIME IS BEST TO RID PLACE OF FLIES

Dr. McClendon Says Clean Up, Drain Water Holes And Empty Trash Cans Pests Won't Breed

Common lime is the best thing for places where flies are breeding, Dr. E. F. McClendon, City Health Officer, said to-day—"lime and sunshine."

Dr. McClendon says that carbolic lime is good, but it is no better than ordinary lime. If you want to be rid of flies, just clean up, the doctor says.

Manure is a fine breeding place for pests, if it is piled up. It is not if scattered over your land. Dump places, barrels of refuse, open-air toilets, decaying vegetable matter or dead animals breed flies—by the thousands. But if you get rid of these and use lime plentifully you won't be troubled with flies, or the filth they carry.

A half million flies were burned Tuesday. Yesterday the health officer found a big pile of manure and a barrel of scraps within a block of Pacific Street. One such place will produce fifty to a hundred thousand flies a day. Just burn them, or, better, place the manure on your land and burn dead animals; use lime liberally and the flies won't be born.

Oil of lavender drives flies away. This has a pleasant odor and may be used around the house or table.

Dr. McClendon gave these suggestions at request of a Herald reporter, in response to a number of inquiries as to the best way of getting rid of flies.

THIRTY FIVE SYNDICATE VISITORS IN PLAINVIEW

Texas Land And Development Co. Has Many Prospectors For Irrigated Farm Lands

The Texas Land and Development Company had thirty-five visitors in Thursday. This is one of the excursions which the company is bringing in twice a month.

The Texas Land and Development Company has developed nearly fifty wells during the last year. Farmers have moved onto all of the places they have ready, and others have been contracted for. E. Dowden, in charge of farms not yet developed, has a little less than 20,000 acres of cultivated land under his supervision.

The Company has put 6,000 acres of land under irrigation in fifteen months. Nearly half of this is in alfalfa.

Only bona fide settlers are buying their lands. Some men have bought farms and placed them in charge of expert managers. Every farm they sell is operated under irrigation. One of their purchasers is J. O. Crockett, of El Paso. Mr. Crockett and his associates are buying 1,000 Duroc-Jersey and Poland-China brood sows for their farms.

Bull Frogs From Louisiana By Express For Lake Plainview

A glee club at Lake Plainview is our town's latest innovation. It isn't an ordinary sort of glee club, either. The songsters are bull frogs.

A shipment of twenty-four came in by express to-day from New Rhodes, La. They are immense. H. I. Miller had the frogs shipped to Plainview. They will rid Lake Plainview of mosquitoes and other insects. After awhile there will be sufficient number there that some of them may be eaten—not now.

Incidentally, Lake Plainview is the largest body of water in Texas which is kept up by a well. It covers 30 acres and is nearly a mile around.

HIGH-NOON DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Glenn gave an elegant dinner at high noon to-day at their home, on Boswell Heights.

The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McGlasson and Rev. H. H. Street.

Dr. ANDERSON WELCOMES I.O.O.F. AND REBEKAHS

Judge H. C. Randolph Calls First Meeting To Order And Introduces Speakers For Afternoon

INVOCATION BY REV. PARK

W. R. Frances Grand Master For Texas And W. H. Walker, Secretary, Interest Visitors

A large concourse of citizens met yesterday afternoon at three o'clock to greet the delegates and visitors to the Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, which convened here yesterday.

The meeting was called to order by Judge H. C. Randolph, who introduced each speaker in order.

After the invocation, by Rev. Sterling Park, Dr. J. C. Anderson welcomed the Association in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce and the citizens of Plainview.

Said Dr. Anderson: "We have looked forward with pleasure to the coming to our city of one of the greatest of modern fraternal orders, that now numbers a million members and three-fourth of a million Rebekahs."

Dr. Anderson went on to speak of the advantages in the way of climate and pure water as inducements for the building of the Orphans' Home in Plainview.

Canadian Man Responds.

Hon. J. L. Jennings, of Canadian, made the response. His talk was humorous and complimentary to Plainview. Mr. Jennings is a charter member of the Association and an enthusiastic booster for its cause and the country.

The address of welcome made by Mrs. Lalla Davis, of Plainview, in behalf of the Rebekahs, met with a ready response by Mrs. Ora Sanders, of Hale Center.

Hon. R. M. Ellerd, in his response for the local lodge, said the word "welcome" was not large enough to express the feeling that Plainview had for her guests.

Compares First Meeting.

"I am glad you have come to drink at the fountain of the triple links, Friendship, Love and Truth," said Mr. Ellerd.

The speaker contrasted the first meeting of the Association held here some years ago with the present occasion.

"The town has grown," said Mr. Ellerd, "not only as a city, but fraternally."

The speaker stressed the importance of striving to get the Orphans' Home for Plainview, and complimented the loyalty of the thirty-two counties that comprise the Association.

Two distinguished members of the Grand Lodge are present at the convention—Hon. W. R. Francis, Grand Master, and W. H. Walker, Grand Secretary.

The former kept his audience in a continuous state of good humor by his complimentary remarks to the country and town. Mr. Francis is a land agent; therefore he feels very much at home in Plainview.

He said: "I never grow eloquent except when I am trying to sell a fellow a piece of land," but his hearers differ from him. His remarks were right to the point and full of interest.

Mr. Francis continued: "I like people who do things. I do NOT like the person, the town or the lodge that sits down and lets the opportunities drift by."

Mr. Walker, Grand Secretary, spoke mainly of the order he represents, and of its great auxiliary, the Daughters of Rebekah.

At its close, the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs adjourned to their respective lodge rooms.

KARO COOKING SCHOOL DEMONSTRATION SATURDAY.

In addition to the many other attractions of the week, there will be a demonstration of Karo Syrup and Kingford Corn Starch at the Wayland Building. A lunch will be served between the hours of four and six-thirty o'clock p. m.

The demonstrator in charge is Mrs. J. M. Fines, of Dallas, assisted by Mrs. E. M. Aldrich, of Wichita, Kansas.

TOM BALL IS COMING TO SPEAK JULY 15th

State-Wide Gubernatorial Candidate Will Tour Northwest Texas; Walker Hall Saturday

W. P. LANE HERE TODAY

Comptroller of Public Accounts Favors Conservation And Marketing System; Would Be Congressman

Tom Ball will speak in Plainview July 15, according to advices received from A. W. Walker, campaign manager. It is also hoped that Walker Hall, of Vernon, may be able to reach Plainview and speak Saturday.

W. P. Lane, Comptroller of Public Accounts, candidate for Congressman-at-Large, spoke to-day. His voice was hoarse and he did not speak very long. Mr. Lane discussed State and National issues. He touched upon tariff, banking and conservation.

"If there is any State that needs conservation," Mrs. Lane said, "it is Texas. We have wasted our living, and are just beginning to realize that conservation means."

Mr. Lane thinks the marketing problem is paramount. He favors the immediate establishment of a marketing system. "I have seen products rot in East Texas, when the cities were crying for fruit and vegetables. You have seen the same up here," Mr. Lane said. He also favors a Federal marketing system to dispose of unperishable products, such as alfalfa.

W. E. Prescott, candidate for Congress to succeed John H. Stephens, also made a short talk. Mr. Prescott comes from Paducah. He thinks a man who has been close to the people can represent them better than a man who has been spending his time in Washington. Mr. Prescott thinks, too, that West Texas is entitled to more than we have been getting.

Mr. Prescott and Mr. Lane went to Lubbock this afternoon.

H. E. Skaggs was elected county chairman. It has been decided that a majority shall elect instead of a plurality in the primary election.

STATE LETTER

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—Agricultural co-operation is not complete so long as it is confined to the farmers themselves, and will not be complete until it embraces every class of commercial and industrial activity that at any point, comes into contact with the production of the farm.

This is the theme of an article on "Independent Co-operation" written especially for the United Press by Ed R. Kone, Agricultural Commission of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"Recent years witnessed a rapid disappearance of that greatest obstacle to the co-operation of the farmer and the business man, the hostility which, for some strange reason, had been fermented through generations between towns and the rural districts of many of our agricultural sections, said Commissioner Kone. "The first effect has been to bring the farmers nearer together in their separate co-operative work and to demonstrate to the business interests of the town that their own interest lies in the prosperity of the farms, since the farms are, ultimately, the source of business supply, just as the towns and cities must furnish the markets for the farms."

"As to the productivity of the farm has been multiplied by intensive operation, improved machinery and modern methods, the towns and cities have grown apace, expanding concurrently in commercial and industrial importance. Perhaps the greatest triumph of these new considerations is demonstrated in the extent of good road building authorized by popular vote and for the most part affecting the rural districts. In Texas fair examples are Ellis and Lamar counties, each of which after long years of effort, have either completed in course of construction extensive system of macadam roads. These have followed, in Lamar and other counties in north Texas at least, by co-operative stores, conducted by farmers exclusively, paying current dividends and to that extent doing something toward reducing the high cost of living. Co-operative gins are common and co-operative ownership of heavy agricultural machinery is by no means unknown."

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cox went to Dallas to-day, where they will reside.

Mrs. H. L. Puryear and on passed through Plainview to-day en route from Floydada to Mayfield, Kentucky, to visit Mrs. Puryear's mother.

BONDS APPROVED

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—An unusual number of bond issues for various purposes, mostly public improvements have been coming to the attorney General's office for approval during the last four weeks. Public utility plants in many of the smaller towns are being enlarged and improved and new ones established. There is quite a bit in good road building, due largely, it is thought, to the necessity for better highways disclosed by the recent prolonged spell of weather.

GOOD ROADS TO BE BUILT

WACO, Texas, June 17.—Bids for $1,075,000 worth of good roads in this district were to be opened here today by the county commissioners. It is expected a number of contracts will be let. The bonds brought a premium when sold a few weeks ago and the money is now in the local banks ready to be used. None of the new roads will be within the limits of an incorporated town, although Waco, West Hewit and Lorena are all in the district which voted the big bond issue this spring.

OPENING OF NEW HOTEL

WACO, Texas, June 17.—The ten-story Riggins Hotel, which cost $350,000 to build, is practically completed and the date for the official opening has been set for June 25. Waco expects to get some of the state conventions, now that this fine hotel is located here.

GOOD CONDITION OF CROPS

WACO, Texas, June 17.—McLennan county crops are in good condition. It had been feared that the long rainy season did considerable damage but an automobile trip covering 110 miles disclosed that cotton and corn were in fine condition and oats and wheat did much better than expected.

COUNCIL ORDERS FREE MAIL PETITION DRAWN

Ordinance Is Passed Prohibiting Loafing In Automobiles, Vehicles And Public Stairways

WATER RATES CONSIDERED

Amarillo, Dalhart Clovis, Sweetwater Charge More; Portales Supplies Citizens At Lower Cost

At Monday night's meeting the City Council passed an ordinance prohibiting loafing in automobiles, other vehicles and in public stairways. Several complaints have been made by owners about individuals scarring up their cars, eating peanuts therein and throwing matches on the floor. There have been instances of petty theft from cars.

Offense is punishable with a penalty of from $1 to $10, on complaint of owner.

The Council also considered the matter of lowering the rate on water. Comparison with other towns brought out some interesting facts. Clovis charges $2 a month for hydrant and $5 a month for residences having sewer or cess pool. A charge of 50c a month is made for all stock over 1 head. Twenty-five cents for each front foot is charged when water is used for sprinkling.

Minimum meter rate in Clovis is $1.50 for 1,500 gallons a month; all over this to be charged for at 25c a thousand gallons.

Amarillo charges 50c a thousand for the first 15,000 gallons; 45c for the next 10,000; 40c for all water in excess of 25,000 gallons.

Dalhart charges a minimum of $1 for houses with less than four rooms and 25c for each additional room. Minimum meter charge is $1.50 for 3,000 gallons; 7,000 gallons at 30c and all over 10,000 gallons at 25c.

Sweetwater charges a minimum of $1.50 for 2,000 gallons; the next 6,000 gallons costs 40c, and there is a reduction in cost of 5c on each 6,000 gallons used until a minimum 25c a thousand gallons is given when consumption amounts to 30,000 gallons a month.

Portales charges a minimum of $1 and furnishes each consumer 10,000 gallons of water. For consumption in excess of 10,000 gallons the charge is 8c a thousand. The town clerk states that this rate is below cost.

Plainview charges a minimum of $1 for 3,000 gallons and 25c a thousand gallons for all in excess of the minimum.

The Chamber of Commerce believes that water rates are as low as can be made on quantity used. They question whether or not there would not be a sufficient increase in quantity used at a lower rate to make a larger net profit to the department.

The Council took under advisement the question of appointing an assistant fire driver, so that Fred Cousineau can have at least two Sundays off each month.

It was ordered that petition be drawn for free mail delivery.

Wheat=Alfalfa=Oats

Right at this time Hale County is puzzled as to how it is to take care of the enormous crop of wheat, alfalfa and oats that is ready for and is being harvested. All other crops are making the same good showing. Are you going to sit and dream about this wonderful country instead of making a prompt decision to come and see for yourself that it is really as great as we picture it to you.

Listen: Pay Day has two drawbacks--It doesn't come often enough, and it doesn't bring enough when it comes. You can't very well increase the number of pay days from a salary standpoint but you can increase the amount of pay by investing in an irrigated farm in Hale County.

Flooding Alfalfa at GARWOOD, Two Miles Northwest of Plainview

At this time it does not cost you very much to buy a fine tract of land here and place a big well on it. But after you have done this your farm has AT ONCE doubled in commercial value. IF WE CAN PROVE THIS TO YOU, WOULD YOU BE INTERESTED?

Write us you are coming and will expect us to prove our statements to you. You might ask us to send you one of our Photo Albums, showing many farm and irrigation scenes of Hale County. At least, we will be glad to hear from you.
Yours truly,

TO THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS:

A candidate for Governor, and the organized liquor interests of this State—one to obtain office and the other to serve their business, are making a desperate effort to divert the minds of the voters of Texas from the real issues involved in this campaign, and thereby divide the forces in this State which stand for clean politics and good government.

My headquarters, at Dallas, has received, and my personal mail has contained, so many requests for individual answers to various campaign falsehoods that I am going to trespass upon the press of the State to do me the courtesy to allow me the use of their columns to make reply to some things which I have neither the time in public speech or by correspondence, nor the inclination, to answer, and which, if I alone were concerned, I would not dignify with a reply.

In addition to Mr. Ferguson's campaign of $30,000, which he stated was set aside by him, an unlimited slush fund is being used in this State, as is known to every intelligent man, to encompass my defeat, whereby the liquor interests of Texas and their hirelings would be the dominating factor and hold the balance of power for many a day to come.

Hundreds of low creatures who take this dirty money are now circulating throughout the State, under various aliases and pretended lines of business, to disseminate slanders upon me and to try and destroy my reputation, in order that they may escape the consequences that would result from my election. Here are some of the things which are being said in the effort to prejudice my candidacy:

It is said that I am a member of the Houston Club and the Country Club in the City of Houston; that said clubs are licensed to sell liquor, and that I am a stockholder therein; that large profits are derived therefrom and dividends declared in which I participate and share; that I accepted from a saloon keeper a contribution of $2,000 to my campaign fund; that I am a constant drinker and have large bar bills, some of them unpaid; that I have an interest in a number of saloons; that I have houses rented in which liquor is sold; that I have an uncontrollable appetite for drink, and frequently have to be carried home in the unfortunate condition resulting therefrom. One man is going up and down the streets of the city of Fort Worth telling that I have to drink a quart of liquor a day in order to get through the day's business. Some of these hired agents from whom I have heard profess to be from Houston and to be friendly to me, saying that they intend to vote for me, notwithstanding these regrettable things.

Space will not permit the mention of all slanders of this kind which are being circulated in the hope of helping my opponent and saving the business of a class of people who would be giving me their unqualified support if they believed what they say of me to be true.

The facts are that, while I have not been a total abstainer all my life, I have not for many years drank liquor of any kind, not even beer, and any statement to the contrary from any source is absolutely false, and the man who utters it is either grossly deceived in my life rented a house to a liquor dealer; I have never had an interest in any saloon; I have never received a dollar's profit from the sale of liquor; I have never received a dollar's contribution from a saloon keeper, and the business man whose name was given as being such a contributor has denied it in emphatic terms, and pronounced their statement a falsehood that he owns any interest in any bar at the Rice Hotel or elsewhere, and states that he has only given $100 to my campaign fund, because I would not accept more.

As to the Houston Club and the Country Club, it is true that I am a member thereof, and was when I conducted the great prohibition fight in 1911, and was, as stated by me, when I accepted the endorsement of the Fort Worth Convention. The membership fee in each of these clubs is $100 and the dues of each is $50 per annum, payable quarterly. Neither club issues any stock and neither declares dividends, nor have I or any member thereof received or shared in any profits therefrom.

These clubs were organized by business and professional men in the City of Houston, just as similar clubs exist in every large city in Texas and elsewhere. The members are more than 5,000 in number, including bankers, wholesale and retail merchants, lawyers, doctors, editors, judges on the bench and he district attorney. The membership consists of both prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists. In addition to reading rooms, library and parlors, each club has a large dining room, capable of seating 200 people at a time. The Country Club has large grounds with golf links and tennis court. Members of the club entertain their out-of-town guests and their families, but residents of the city who are not members are not entitled to the privileges of either. Drinks are served, if a member desires to order them, for which the member pays, but no one not a member is permitted to order or pay therefor, each member paying for what he eats, drinks or smokes, and for his golf sticks and service. No guest, however distinguished, would hesitate to be entertained there, and no member of the club would hesitate to have his wife or daughter, or their friends, as his guests. Liquors are served as they are by every first-class hotel or restaurant in the City of Houston, or in any other wet city, and as they will be served until prohibited by law.

I have not seen fit, as a business and professional man, to cut loose from my friends and associates and refuse to be a member of such entirely reputable organizations because the sale of intoxicating liquors is allowed, nor have I refused to put up at hotels where liquors are served, nor to have my headquarters in the Southland Hotel, at Dallas, where liquors are served, although I am anxious for the day to come when it will not be lawful to sell liquor anywhere in Texas, either in bar room, hotel, club or elsewhere.

The radical difference between Mr. Ferguson and myself is that he seeks to make political issue of my membership in the Houston Club—to which he obtained admission as the out-of-town guest of a member—by holding it up falsely as a disreputable place, and then proposes to protect himself from any loss of support by members of this and other clubs or fraternal orders in Texas which serve liquor by promising to veto any legislation that will affect them or the sale of liquor in hotels, bar rooms or elsewhere, or that will take the liquor hirelings out of politics, or prevent breweries and bar rooms from contributing to candidates or any political cause; while I am pledged to submission and the prohibition of the sale of liquor in bar rooms, hotels, clubs or anywhere in Texas, as soon as prohibition can be had, and in the meantime to all lawful measures that will minimize the evil of the liquor business, and to put the liquor interests out of politics in this State, with or without submission or prohibition.

Mr. Ferguson and myself, in our platforms, have both dealt fairly with the liquor interests. He has promised them immunity from legislation of any kind, if he is elected, and I have promised to put them out of business, if I am backed up by the people and the Legislature. The breweries, bar rooms and organized liquor interests in this State are, therefore, solidly lined up against me and naturally supporting Mr. Ferguson.

There are multiplied thousands of anti-prohibitionists in Texas who have no liquor to sell, and who do not take liquor money in exchange for their political birthright, who are supporting me in this contest, and I am grateful therefor.

If here are any prohibitionists in Texas who find themselves more fully in accord with the position of my opponent than with mine, or can find any comfort or congeniality in lining up with the agencies and influences which are against me, I freely concede them that privilege. If they desire to vote against me because of the slanders that are being circulated and the desperate efforts that are being made, and the slush fund being expended, to encompass my defeat, I shall not complain, although it seems to me that it ought to be clear to any man that Mr. Ferguson's success will enthrone the liquor interests in the politics of this State and perpetuate the grafters who are on its payroll.

I do not believe Texas is going to elect a Governor who will be the beneficiary of a campaign conducted on the plane of this one, nor do I believe it possible to defeat me in such way.

I served as mayor of my native town, Huntsville, six years; was president of the school board there and a member of the local board of the Sam Houston Normal Institute; was elected four times to Congress; have been identified actively with the progressive Democratic policies, State and National, for thirty years; have been sent as a delegate to every State convention since 1886, and as a delegate or delegate-at-large to every National convention since 1892, except the convention of 1908; I have been in business, practiced my profession, served as President of the Bar Association of Harris County, and during all these years, not until I became candidate for Governor, was any effort made to destroy my good name before the people of Texas.

Even here in the City of Houston, where I live, and which I served faithfully in Congress and since my retirement therefrom, there are unscrupulous men who are inspiring a bitter fight upon me, and, I regret to say, many whom I have respected and who have professed friendship for me are at least winking at the low methods and tactics which are being used against me by men without character any many of them without visible means of support.

I have only respect for honest opponents who are against me because of my prohibition views, and freely concede the right of others to differ from me, but I have only contempt for those who, to save a business which no one can defend, or to earn money which no reputable man would take, resort to means which are dispicable and methods which only conscienceless scoundrels would employ.

I do not propose to be taking up my time or that of my office force in making answer in the future, to any great extent, to slanders which are being used in this campaign, as never before, by the desperate interests who look upon my election as the day of doom for the liquor business in this State and their base hirelings in politics. Let my friends give less attention to such matters and march forward to the triumphant victory which will soon be ours.

THOS. H. BALL.

FERGUSON'S SPEECH.

By Y. W. HOLMES.

Many people are under the erroneous impression that the last Legislature was so busy wrangling over prohibition that they would not take time to consider any important matters. In order to fan this wrong idea, and to impress his claim that he would put a stop to such practice by vetoing every liquor bill from either side, Mr. Ferguson made several statements not one of which had any foundation in fact.

He pointed out that the students of the University are reciting in barns, saying the Legislature was so busy wrangling over when a man should take his last drink at night that they would not consider it. Every one at all informed knows that the Legislature did make provision against this, but Mr. Ferguson's present ardent supporter vetoed the provision. He said the A. and M. College was not properly provided for, but the Legislature was so busy with the liquor question that it would not give the matter attention. The Legislature did provide for A. and M., and had it not been for the Governor's veto of the appropriation for improving the fire protection there, the buildings probably would never have been burned.

He spoke of the abject poverty over the State, but said the Legislature would give it no attention, on account of wrangling over the liquor question. Where is this abject poverty? I suppose there is some in all the larger cities, as there is in every city. But I did not hear him propose any remedy for this poverty.

He spoke of the deplorable condition of the penitentiary system, and said the Legislature would not give it any attention for wrangling over the liquor question. As a matter of fact, the Legislature has provided ample penitentiary legislation (both the last and preceding). It must be ample, for Mr. Ferguson does not propose or suggest any other. He only proposes a different way of administering the laws.

If there is something wrong with the penitentiary, the fault lies not in the Legislature, but in the Executive, Mr. Ferguson's ardent supporter.

He said the blind children are in a fire trap, which the Legislature will not attend to for wrangling over liquor. Every one knows the Legislature did provide to eliminate this fire trap; but Ferguson's ardent friend Colquitt vetoed it.

Such misstatements, to increase a prejudice, and an erroneous idea, made for the purpose of securing votes, ought to be thoroughly condemned.

MR. GEORGE KLEINE'S SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE VISITS PLAINVIEW.

On account of existing conditions of the moving picture business here, Mr. W. G. Todd, Manager of the Dallas branch of the world-wide famous Geo. Kleine attractions, sent his special representative, Mr. H. H. Williams, here to investigate the interests of that firm.

Mr. Williams expressed his opinion that the moving picture industry here would not permit the showing of his company's high-class photo-plays at the prices that features are now being shown at at Plainview playhouses. He wishes the public to know that all of the Geo. Kleine attractions are of the superior class, and far above the average feature, as hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent on every production put out by the company represented by him.

By wiring the Dallas office, Mr. Williams received permission from Mr. Todd to use his own discretion in placing a feature on trial, and, as very satisfactory relations have existed between The Mae I Theatre and that Company, he has arranged with Mr. Bonner, the manager to play on July 1st at that theatre "Antony and Cleopatra," a production that cost Mr. Geo. Kleine three hundred thousand dollars to produce.

This picture is in eight reels, and takes two hours to show. If the theatre-going public can realize the value, cost and superiority of these attractions, all of them will be shown in this city in the near future.

It has been mutually agreed to play "Antony and Cleopatra" at The Mae I Theatre at admission prices of ten cents for children and fifteen cents for adults, as a trial in order to introduce to Plainview theatre-goers a picture of superior merit, class and photography, and the public will have on Wednesday, July 1st, the opportunity to witness the original production of "Antony and Cleopatra," which is without a doubt a photo-play masterpiece.

Mr. Williams has requested that the story of this picture be placed elsewhere in this issue. "Antony and Cleopatra" is now running the entire summer season at the Chandler Theatre, 42nd Street, New York City, at admission prices ranging from fifty cents to one dollar and a half.

The following statement was made by the Kleine representative:

"Plainview is a very pleasing and attractive city, and my visit here has been a pleasure. Everybody seems business-like, which denotes intelligence, and I feel sure that people of that nature would appreciate our splendid historical and educational attractions."

Mr. Geo. Kleine is the only original producer of the following attractions:

- "Quo Vadis," in eight parts.
- "Antony and Cleopatra," in eight parts.
- "Savage and Tiger," in six parts.
- "The Last Days of Pompeii," in six parts.

Neglect it and ill soon creep in, and the look of old age, sometimes quickly, sometimes gradually follows. That headache, so common among women, brings with it the sunken chest, the headache, tired muscles, crow's-foot, and soon the youthful body is no more youthful in appearance—and all because of lack of attention. There is no reason why you should be so unfortunate, when you have at your disposal a remedy such as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—recommended for over 40 years as a remedy for ailments peculiar to women. We have thousands upon thousands of testimonials on file—the accumulation of 40 years—testifying to its effectiveness. Neither narcotics nor alcohol are to be found in this famous prescription. WHY FOREIGN CARS MAKE THE BEST SHOWING.

(Chicago Tribune)

Now that the annual 500 mile race is over, the majority of those who spent all the way from $1 to $12 to see the contest wonder what it was all about—wonder what it proved, that its existence as a sporting event is warranted—wonder what result it will have on motor car building in this country, and should wonder whether a lesson has been learned that will make it possible for an American car to win.

Four foreign cars finished ahead of the first American car to show. 10 foreign and twenty American cars started in the race. Six foreign machines finished, four in the four places. Four American cars were in the money and three were running when the tenth car finished. Thirteen domestic machines were forced to leave the race. Only four foreign machines were forced to withdraw.

Six American manufacturers were represented as against 6 from across the sea. Two of the American manufacturers had cars finish in the race. Four of the foreigners were in the money.

The foreigners to have factory entries were Deage, Peugeot, Sunbeam, Evecclor, Bugatti and Isotta. The Americans were Stutz, Mercer, Keeton, Maxwell, King, and Marmon. Of these Delage was represented by two cars, Peugeot three, Sunbeam two, and Excelsior, Bugatti, and Isotta one each. Stutz had three cars, Mercer two, Maxwell two, and Keeton, King and Marmon one each. It is understood, of course, that one of the Peugeots, the Isotta and Keeton, and Marmon were private entries, although in every case they were supported by the factories—that is parts were supplied by the factories.

Delage secured first and third places Peugeot second and fourth, Stutz fifth, Excelsior sixth, Sunbeam seventh, the Beaver Bullet eighth, the Maxwell ninth, and the Duesenberg, one of the outsiders tenth. The Duesenberg really corresponds to a factory entered or to a factory supported car. None of these specials, more properly termed freaks, finished, and at no time during the race, were they in a position to warrant their appearance in the race, this of course, excepting the Beaver Bullet, which finished ahead of the Maxwell and Duesenberg.

One question is, why is it that foreign cars make such a wonderful showing compared to the Americans? The answer is simple. In Europe racing is a business. Delage and Peugeot who gathered most of the fruit and almost all the money out of the race, have been building racing cars for a number of years. It took Peugeot three years to build the cars entered at Indianapolis. The Peugeot racing plant and the Peugeot stock car plant are as different as the Mercer factory and the Stafford factory. Their locations are about 700 miles apart. Bollot and Goux are the engineers of the Peugeot racing team. Another set of engineers turn out the stock cars.

Every effort of the Peugeot racing factory is made toward the turning out of a faster set of cars for 1914 than was turned out in 1913. In fact the 1913 cars are not considered good enough or fast enough to be campaigned in France in 1914. They are thought good enough to bring over her for 1914, and this, in a measure may account for their defeat at Indianapolis. They had to meet Delage here, and Delage were prepared to meet cars a year old with cars of similar age but in better condition. Delage also refused to be tied up with a tire contract which would prevent them having the best for the speedway. Had Peugeot only had to meet the cars of American design it would have won. Witness Goux's lead over the Oldfield in the Stutz.

There is little difference between Peugeot methods and those of Delage. However, the Delage racing factory is run in conjunction with the stock plant at Paris. The two plants are not so completely divorced as in the case with Peugeot.

The two Sunbeams practically are stock cars, and in respect they correspond closely to the Stutz. The Excelsior was a special creation built first for the 1913 Grand Prize in France and not properly balanced for the speedway. The Bugatti was close to being a stock model. The Isotta was an old lumbering hack that never should have started. It did not represent the best of the Milan factory's cars, and to compare it with even the poorest American special entered in the race is impossible.

The Sunbeams and Bugatti were the only cars in a class with those of America entered at Indianapolis this year. For example, it is possible that the maximum cost of any car entered in the race excepting the Peugeots and Delage was $2,500. The Peugeots and Delage may have cost little more but today they are being held for $8,000 each and probably will be sold to Americans at that figure.

None of the infinite cars in construction, in the selection of materials and in the training of drivers is indulged in here given in Europe. Bollot, Goux, Thomas, Duray—all the foreign drivers in fact—do nothing else than race automobile or build automobiles to race. Their spare moments—moments of relaxation—are given over to the gentle sport of aviation. This is not true of our cars nor our drivers. Take for instance, the Mercers. It is safe to presume that these cars have been sent over 3,000 miles of road speedway at an average of eighty mile an hour before the start in the Memorial Day. The Mercers were raced all of last year. Besides being used in actual conflict, they have been sent over many weary miles of fast practice. Compared to this, the Peugeots and Delages have been used as gently as eggs.

In matter of preparation, compared the Peugeot and Maxwell entries. The Maxwell cars are built in less than three months. They were an experiment, and will remain and experiment for many more months—until the little faults of hasty construction have been eliminated. The Peugeots have been building for three years. All the "little bugs" in them were removed at least a year before Harroun started to build his cars.

What is the answer—the result of these few facts are presented? What difference does it make here or in Omaha or San Luis of Peugeot wins or whether they even finish? Does Delage of Peugeot sell any more cars? Does the added business Peugeot secured in this county from racing interfere with the untrammelled enjoyment of life by the American manufacturers? Obviously it does not. Delage makes an attempt to market its cars here. Delage had only personal pride in winning, for its drivers were loaned the cars to get what money they could win with them.

Obviously, the American manufacturer would have much to gain if he won or made a good showing. Both Stutz and Maxwell unquestionably will get results from their competition. Possibly next year they can come back and make even better showing. Perhaps Mercer and Marmon can beat the foreigners, perhaps other factories can be persuaded to enter machines and make they will be faster than the fastest on the continent. But if they anticipate any of this success or any part of it they must begin the construction of their cars now. It has been demonstrated that cars to win the 500 mile race cannot be built in three months or nine months, possibly not in a year, but it is reasonable to presume that a car has a better chance of success after a year's grooming than when the part of it is built the night before the race.

If it is worth while to race, it is worth while to be prepared. It does much to maintain a racing team, but it costs more to lose. If a manufacturer decides to race, it is safe to presume that he intends to race to win.

Indianapolis in 1914 had its lessons, and the best of all is that preparation alone can win the race.

Six chairmen of the highway commissions of the several New England states and the governor of New Hampshire have been invited to attend the midsummer meeting of the American Automobile Association, to be held at the Hotel Maplewood, Bethlehem, N. URGES CO-OPERATION FOR FARM AND GARDEN

Edw. O'Brien Gives Some Interesting Facts And Figures On Marketing And Production

"A SECOND ROCKY FORD"

Practical Grower Thinks Natural Advantages of The Plainview Country Exceed All Others

(This is the second of a series of articles on marketing and production. Mr. O'Brien will give Herald readers the third at an early date.)

The grower of garden products who travels in the line of least resistance, and raises those things which mature quickly and promise quick and large returns for labor expended, usually has a perishable product and a host of competitors and an overstocked market with low prices as the usual result. He then concludes that there is an overproduction in vegetables and trucking generally, and abandons the field.

Bless your soul, reader, there is not going to be an overproduction in staple products which are used upon our tables as a regular diet during your lifetime. All food products have advanced in price during the past twenty-five years, with the possible exception of wheat.

So long as the population in cities and towns increases out of all ratio to the rural districts, making an ever-increasing demand for farm products which are used for human food, there cannot be an overproduction nor a lowering of prices. That universal law of supply and demand will settle that question as it ever has. If every available acre of land within three or four miles from Plainview were used to grow one staple product, it would not disturb prices perceptibly. In one locality lying south of Chicago they raise annually from 5,000 to 6,000 acres of sugar corn for canning. One locality in Southeastern Texas has already shipped 1,500 cars of early cabbages to Northern markets.

Onions Profitable.

Another Texas point has already marketed 1,000 car loads of Spanish onions. Land suitable to growing Spanish onions, with available water for irrigating them, is worth from $500 to $600 per acre, and will pay the grower from 10 to 25 per cent yearly upon this valuation under intelligent methods. The rich valley that skirts Plainview on the south would probably grow these onions, under skillful methods.

The State of Georgia finds market for thousands of carloads yearly of watermelons, and of a quality vastly inferior to the melon of the South Plains.

At Rocky Ford, Colorado, the growing of a cantaloupe, by that name, has made fortunes for the grower, and upon lands which sell around $200 per acre. This was made possible by co-operation through an organization which looks after the shipment and sale of their product. They ship them to all the Northern cities and to the Atlantic Coast.

Cantaloupes cannot be grown that are well flavored under an altitude of 2,000 feet, and, as all sections above that altitude need irrigation, it will readily be seen that the territory adapted to their culture is necessarily restricted. If that industry was established here, and a method adopted of hastening their ripening twenty or thirty days, the markets of the North and Northeast would be opened to us, and we would have absolutely no competition at that period.

An experiment looking to this end and which promises very satisfactory results is being worked out here this season, and The Herald readers will get full details of the plan in a very short time. By a united effort of growers here we could make this section a second Rocky Ford District, and easily market a hundred or more carloads of cantaloupes at good prices. Our product equals the famous Rocky Ford melon in quality, and runs larger in size.

The experiment of raising cantaloupes for shipment has been tried here in a limited way, but incompetent or rascally commission men in the North made the undertaking unprofitable, and the attempt was abandoned, temporarily at least.

Co-operation at Hagerman.

As an illustration of the results of co-operation, as compared with the "go-it-alone" method, I wish to touch upon the alfalfa industry at the greatest shipping center in the world. This is at Hagerman, New Mexico, in the Pecos Valley. In 1912, 2,700 cars of alfalfa were shipped from that point. The growers are organized into an as-

MAN WHO HELPED LAY OUT PLAINVIEW DIES

Isaac McCormack Left Here About 18 Years Ago; Was in Portales; Leaves Family

News was received here Thursday of the death of Isaac McCormack, at Portales, N. M., on the 12th of June.

Many of the old residents of Plainview will remember Mr. McCormack as one of the pioneer citizens of the town. He came here about twenty-seven years ago, and was instrumental in the organization of the town. He left here about eighteen years ago. At the time of his death his home was at Plammons, Texas. He went to Portales for treatment, but succumbed, dying at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Pendley, very unexpectedly. He was buried with Masonic honors.

Mr. McCormack was a brother-in-law of Mrs. J. M. Shafer. He is survived by a widow and nine children.

CIRCLE A OF BAPTIST LADIES AID WITH MRS. SAWYER.

An enthusiastic meeting of Circle A of the Baptist Ladies' Aid was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. T. W. Sawyer.

It was their initial meeting, and much interest was shown by each lady in the plan of work proposed.

Semi-monthly meetings are to be held with the leader, and at those meetings work is to be done for the annual bazaar and books of peculiar interest to Baptist women read.

Plans were discussed for the coming Fourth of July dinner, and also the usual First Monday chicken pie dinner.

The coming protracted meeting also received a share of the discussion.

Purple and white were adopted as the circle's colors. After the business session, Mrs. Sawyer, assisted by her charming daughter and her equally charming friend, Miss Mary Braselton, served a delicious ice, with cakes and wafers.

Miss Mary Broselton gave a reading, very much enjoyed by all.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Longmire dismissed the ladies with a short prayer.

There were fifteen ladies present, and the meeting was altogether an enjoyable, as well as profitable, one.

DAYS OF ADVENTURE.

Much talk now of simple life. Boys dream of the glory of Drake of Stanley in Africa; sometimes of robber knights; of frontier Americans.

Young Americans sigh for the days when there were worlds to conquer.

Fortunately, some of them do not forget that we live in a primitive country—not West Texas, all America!

Red-blooded youths are finding their wits taxed to the uttermost trying to work out the tenement problem in New York City, Chicago, a thousand lesser cities.

You're not interested?

Perhaps you are not much more attracted by the battle which stamped out yellow fever in Cuba or the fight which won Panama from Typhoid and made possible the building of the Canal.

The men who made that fight attacked something more deadly and immensely more wary than the King of Beasts.

The fight against the housefly is a struggle to save a hundred thousand lives each year.

There is a pear tree in your back yard with leaves turning black. That is pear blight. It is a fungus growth. Find out a way of destroying it and you win fame and fortune.

San Jose scale, army worm, cotton boll weevil, green bugs—all of them are more terrible enemies than any four-footed beast. They are infinitely more elusive and destroy immeasurably larger amounts of wealth.

Texas wants Irish potatoes. Some man will find out what we need to grow them here. He will become less famous than Burbank, and he will win a fortune.

There are enemies for you to-day, young man, more deadly than any of the pioneers found to fight. Those enumerated don't poke their heads out of the grass to be shot at. You must go right in and fight them hand to hand.

THE MEDIATORS AND CARRANZA.

Carranza won't be represented at Niagara Falls. That is, he will not be if the mediators refuse him recognition except on condition that he declare an armistice.

On the face of it, the mediators seem to be inclined to "save Huerta's scalp." Literally, that is well. But when it comes to permitting the man who has flaunted all ethics of civilization in his usurpation of power to dictate his successor, or even having an influential part in naming the man who shall take up government which he has practically lost—that is another question.

Carranza has won all of North Mexico, with insignificant omissions. It is plain that Huerta cannot oppose him much longer. Carranza claims that he is fighting for human rights and for his native land. His actions seem to bear this out.

Says the Chicago Tribune:

"Carranza, it is reported to The Tribune from Washington, has asked for the aid of the United States in the pacification of Mexico. He has asked that this Nation do for his country what it has done successfully in Cuba—restore order, supervise elections, sustain the government thus established, and maintain order by the promise of its renewed intervention in case of revolution.

"If this report accurately sets forth Carranza's proposals, he must be regarded as a far-sighted Mexican. The United States ought to be, and we believe is, ready to establish this sort of protectorate over its distressed southern neighbor, insuring the stability of decent government, the protection of legitimate property interests, the security of life, the correcting of peon wrongs, the elimination of the military adventurer, the restoration of peace.

"We ought to be ready to give the Mexicans such self-government as they prove themselves able to maintain. We have seen the need of requiring that their government be orderly. We can do for Mexico what we have done for Cuba.

"We ought to be, an dit is believed that we are, willing to do it upon the same conditions. The Platt amendment is a protection to orderly Cuba. A spot in the western hemisphere which vexed the heavens and tried men's souls is quiet. Another such spot may be quieted by the same means."

OATMEAL AND BEANS.

According to investigations just completed at Harvard, oatmeal possesses the highest food value of any of the commoner restaurant offerings, considering the price as well as the quantity of nutrition. Second comes pork and beans. Even pie—restaurant pie—has a high standing. At the bottom of the list tomatoes are placed, worth less at their price than any other form of restaurant fodder.

Of course, such well-known articles of food as pate de foie gras, Perigord truffles, artichokes, pickled eels, and alligator pears are not included. Considering both cost and value, they would come far below tomatoes as to be lost to sight.

On the whole, the hearty average American will not quarrel with the findings. He usually likes pie. He is not averse to oatmeal. And as for the beans, here is a veritable Harvard and Boston triumph.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Importation of Living Canes Prohibited on Account of Plant Disease

WASHINGTON, D. ## IMPROVEMENT IN CROP OUTLOOK

DALLAS, Texas June 17.—The fair weather over the state since June 1 marks a wonderful improvement in the crop outlook, and in spite of the lateness and handicap caused by the wet spring, present conditions justify the expectation of normal yields in some crops in the eastern half of the state that were almost despaired a month ago. The drying out of the fields and opportunity to use the harvesters has resulted in the cutting of nearly all the wheat and oats in Central and Northern Texas; and farmers are finding that while their yields are not so good as were hoped for they are much better than expected. It is not thought that the government estimate of 16,500,000 bushels of wheat will be realized, but the state will produce and market not less than 13,500,000 to 14,000,000 bushels of there are no further unfavorable conditions to offset the present outlook.

The conditions as regards oats are hardly as favorable as regards wheat. In the Plains country a greater than normal yield will be made, but further south in the small grain country the condition of the crop, owing to excessive rains, becomes less good. The oat crop in South Texas is practically a total loss owing to damage from rains and rust; however, taking the state as a whole, a yield of from 21,000,000 to 24,000,000 bushels of oats may be expected as against last year's yield of 31,000,000.

Cowpeas, Peanuts and Beans

The harvesting of the small grain crop will make 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 acres of land available for further use and farmers should break, harrow, and plant these fields to soil renovating crops, such as cow peas, peanuts, soybeans, and other nitrogen gathering legumes, which can be plowed under for humus in the winter or used as pasturage for livestock, or both. The loss arising from leaving such a great body of land lying idle and subject to washes in the fall rains is a great one to the farmer and business interests and should by all means be changed into a grain from livestock and increased fertility. Cotton, corn kaffir, or milo should not be planted on the stubble lands.

The U. S. Crop reporter places the condition of the Texas cotton crop at 65 per cent of normal, the lowest for many years. Considering the backset from excessive rainfall and April freeze, the failure to plant full acreage in many cases, and the weedy condition of the crop, this estimate is justified. But the business men and farmers of Texas should remember that the unfavorable outlook will be and is being materially changed for the better by better weather conditions the replanting, and the cultivating and the hoeing that the cotton has been getting since the estimate was made. The lateness cannot, of course, be made up, but the other unfavorable factors can be and are being measurably changed for the better.

The corn on the uplands in North and South Texas is in very fine shape and promises good yields. The loss in the lowlands through overflows can yet be made up to a very considerable degree by planting kaffir, milo, Spanish peanuts, or other heavy yielding, quick maturing crops. The corn crop, with average weather conditions henceforth should not be less than 100,000,000 bushels, which is approximately 65 per cent of last year's yield; with one or two good rains about the time of forming the ear, the crop should be very much better than 65 per cent, although it will be considerable later than that of last year. The corn and cotton should receive frequent, shallow cultivation until they are matured, to preserve all the moisture now in the ground.

Our Crops Poor In South

The almost total loss of the oat crop in South Texas, so far as the effect on business conditions is concerned, is made up in part by the marketing of good berry and cabbage crops earlier in the season and the fact that by June 1 more than 1800 car loads of onions had been sold from that section at better prices than the growers have received before. As to feed, the loss of the oat crop can be offset by heavy acreages of kaffir, milo, feterita and the hay crops, which can still be planted and may be expected to make good yields with the thorough soaking the ground has received.

The East Texas tomato crop has suffered like all the other crops, but the clear, fair weather of the past two weeks has raised the outlook from a 65 per cent yield to a more favorable prospect—in many places a normal production is expected. The early canteloupes and tomatoes in the Houston district, where a rainfall for May of 15.47 inches was reported, were water-soaked and of very poor quality. The South Texas potato crop was reduced to about a forty per cent yield. Rice that was planted before April 1 will make good yields but this was a small acreage. Indications are for a rice crop about equal to the poor crop of last year, of 9,500,000 bushels. Generally speaking, the crop conditions and crop outlook over the state are 10 to 20 per cent better than on June 1, owing to the cessation of general rains permitting the farmers to resume their work.

NORTHEAST TEXAS. The berry crop, about 60 per cent of normal has been marketed and early peaches are coming in. There are a few peaches for shipping as compared with former years, probably 10 to 20 per cent, as the Texas demand will about take up the supply. The cotton and corn acreage will be reduced by 15 per cent. These crops are getting cultivation at this time and rounding into shape in a very encouraging way. The cessation of the rains at the end of May stopped wholesale losses from rust in the small grain crops at the beginning and the wheat and oats are now mostly harvested. The acreage of grain sorghums will be larger than that of last year.

NORTHWEST TEXAS. The wheat and oat crops are in very fine shape, and harvesting is beginning. Practically every county north of the Texas & Pacific railway and west of the Fort Worth Gainsville branch of the Santa Fe reports a larger acreage and better yields of wheat with little damage resulting from rain and hail. The wheat crop in northwest Texas should be about 130 per cent of last year's crop; the oats much less, say 110 per cent. The corn and cotton crops are in good shape, and from present indications will make average though somewhat late yields. There will be practically no fruit in this section of the state. The ranges were never in better condition, and the cattle industry is in correspondingly good shape. Crop conditions, taken as a whole.

Central Texas Hit by Spring Rains.

CENTRAL TEXAS. Hard hit by the incessant spring rains, the 1914 crop of Central Texas has received damage that cannot wholly be made up. The oat crop suffered considerably from rust before the cessation of the rains, and the wheat to a less degree. In Bosque Comanche, Erath, Hood, Hamilton, Johnson, and Somerville counties the yield will be no better than that of last year on a larger acreage; in Bell Milam, Travis, Williamson, and other south central counties on the western side of this section, Lampasas, San Saba, and McCullough, the small grain crop will be two or three times as large as in 1913. Corn and cotton prospects are also good in these three last named counties, but elsewhere in Central Texas the damaged territory has been replanted since June 1 in feed and forage crops. The wheat and oat crops in Central Texas may be figured at about 65 per cent, the cotton at about 70 and the corn at 75 per cent.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS. This section lying lowest in the state, has received the greatest rainfall and the greatest damage. The Houston branch of the Weather Bureau reports a rainfall of 15.47 inches for May, more than three times the May average for 32 years. The unusual condition has covered parts of a dozen counties lying from northwest of Houston eastward to Sabine and northward along that stream. The damage to the corn, cotton, potatoes, truck and berries since April 1 has been very heavy the field crops having been washed out as fast as they were planted. However, the crops are being replanted again since the cessation of the rains, and there will be a fair acreage of corn and cotton. The rice yield is expected to be little, if any smaller than 1913, and the potatoes are hardly half a crop. As one goes south from Houston the crop conditions and outlook as regards corn, cotton, and the grain sorghums are stated to be very fine, better than for years, with slightly increased acreages. The beginnings of trouble from the boll weevil are reported in Liveoak and Bee counties.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS. This section, devoted mainly to livestock growing, is in fine shape. The wool clip is 250,000 pounds greater than that of last year with a good demand for every pound. Cattle ranges are in ev-shape and water holes are full. Great truck crops have been marketed from the sections on the Rio Grande. Farmers are stated to be planting their stubble land to corn, cotton and the grain sorghums in Blanco and some other counties, and this should not be done, cowpeas, soy beans and peanuts being preferable.

GENERAL: While the season of rainfall has been long, the last two weeks of bright weather have made a wonderful change for the better. Texas has a way of pulling out and will pull out this year. Good times that have been deferred are all the better when they come.

O'BRIEN CULTIVATING EARLY BEARING PLANTS

Local Man Expects To Market Cantaloupes And Vegetables Before Others Are Ready

Ewd. O'Brien is a theorist who puts his ideas into practice. He is working out some advanced ideas on gardening.

Mr. O'Brien has six acres of land just north of the Malone Light and Ice Company plant. He grew plants for this in the Plainview green house and set them out before many people put seed into the ground. His plants are from two to four weeks ahead of any others.

Cantaloupes, squash, cabbage, water-melons and many other vegetables are being grown. Mr. O'Brien plans to have these on the market just after extreme southern products are out of market and before those more northern-grown come in. In fact, he will beat local growers by about two weeks.

Some have thought that hot-house plants would not stand out-door weather. Plainview Floral Company has a row of cabbage that was set out just before the last snow. There was a freeze the second night. These cabbage were not hurt. Plainview Floral Company grew vegetables for Mr. O'Brien's experiments.

Mr. O'Brien is using water which cools the radiators at the ice plant. This is many degrees warmer than water from wells, and it is thought will considerably stimulate plant growth.

ALLENE SCHICK GETS NEWS GOLD MEDAL

Plainview School Girl Wins Award For Best Work; Banner For Westside

The County Board of Education met on Saturday, June 13.

In regard to awarding the gold medal offered by the Plainview News, after duly considering all the applicants, Miss Allene Schick, of Bellview School, was declared first. Miss Schick is nine years old, and went three miles to school and made a wonderful record. Close following her as contestants for the gold medal were Frank Buchanan, of Happy Union School; Pete Norfleet, of Norfleet School, and Auty Hooper, of Mayfield School. All of these made remarkable progress.

After awarding the gold medal, the next question taken up was the award for the best school in Hale County. Westside School was given the banner. This school was taught by Prof. D. M. Green. The trustees were M. C. Cornelius, T. A. Douthitt and Fred Sever. The school added a heating and ventilating plant, a good library, painted the house, put a cupola on top of the house, planted trees, had a fine school garden, purchased an agricultural chart, had a school society, erected sheds for horses, and since November has had more than fifty visitors.

Westside had the best attendance of any in the county, and, taking everything into consideration, the school has certainly accomplished a great work during the past year. Close following Westside for the banner might be mentioned Bellview, Strip, Happy Union and Center Plains. All of these deserve a banner for excellence, but, of course, the banner could only go to one school.

The Plainview News has kindly consented to offer a gold medal for the best pupil in Hale County for next year, and, of course, the banner will have to be won again next year by the best school.

California Aroused Over Blind Girl Singer's Death

OAKLAND, Calif., June 18.—Whether or not Miss Helen Mesow, aged 30 years, a beautiful, blind singer, killed herself or was murdered is being investigated.

The woman died mysteriously at midnight. A friend was summoned by telephone message, equally mysterious. She found the girl unconscious on a couch.

The doctor worked an hour with a pulmotor. The dead woman's stomach will be analyzed.

Suspicion points to W. C. Dorchmann, a real estate dealer. He wrote a note found on the table. It said: "Helen, I wanted you to come to dinner this evening, as it is our last night." Dorchmann said the note was left Sunday, and was merely an invitation on the eve of a business trip.

No reason is known why the girl should kill herself. She was known as "The Helen Keller of the West."

Summer Advertising

From The New York Times.

The most valuable asset in advertising is age. It is something which cannot be rushed or bunched. It has no overnight competition. The new advertiser can't date back.

Advertising cannot take a vacation without a loss. The cumulated values of previous months or years immediately begin to shrink or evaporate. It will invariably cost more to make good the shrinkage than to omit the vacation.

Good advertising is a continuous performance before the same audience. No better definition was ever invented. It admits of no exceptions or variations.

Buyers are not so firmly attached to buying traditions during the summer months as at other seasons. They go about more, enjoy more freedom, are interested more in variety. The new advertiser finds it easier to break in: the old advertiser finds it necessary to be more persistent and watchful. The province of advertising is to attract new customers, as well as to hold old ones, and the vacation season, more than any other, is the season of changes; the season, more than any other, when the advertiser can least afford to permit his goods and service to be forgotten. The trifling purchase of July or August is often the forerunner of a much larger purchase in October or November.

THE NEW CITY HOUSEKEEPING.

(Mrs. Hickman Price)
This paper was read before the Federated Clubs and is printed by request. The subject I am going to speak to you about this afternoon is the new city housekeeping, which is the type of work now being done by civic leagues and department clubs all over the country.

This new type of activity for women came into existence because by the laws of evolution it had to come. Conditions have so changed and women's industry has been so revolutionized, particularly in the larger cities, that it was inevitable that purely literary and social clubs should make way for the more pressing need of a mother's and woman's hand in conditions that affect the health and morals of her own children and in turn of the whole community.

I am reminded in this connection of the anecdote of the little boy who was asked by his teacher: "who supports the world Jonnie?" "Atlas Mam", he replied. "And who supports Atlas?" inquired the teacher. And Jonnie thinking a minute replied, "I don't know mam but I think it's his wife." Our efforts in our new city housekeeping are making us realize that without the support of his wife, the many Atlases of our modern cities aren't going to have very clean or efficient city housekeeping.

"A man shares the responsibility and guilt of the society which he belongs" said Isben, and never has that had greater meaning than in the twentieth century, when our social consciousness has begun to yawn and awaken after its sleep of thousands of years. Never before have all of us been so keenly alive to creating and maintaining better social conditions than in this age, and with this imperative call toward a bigger, more brotherly Christianity how can women dodge the issue and refuse to do their duty?

Evolution has been at work. Progress has gone. Progress is not static. Progress means change. And the changing economic and social condition, woman feeling herself a vital factor and an integral part in this interesting scheme of things—is adaptable enough to meet changing conditions with new remedies.

With the inexorable trend of organized industry, woman lost her job. When less than a century ago women harnessed water and looked around for some use to put it, he naturally snatched from tenuous, confiding woman one of her jobs—(he couldn't have dared taken from someone his size)—namely the spinning and weaving of cotton and wool into cloth, blankets, clothes, etc. Then seeing what a success organized industry could be gradually all the time honored work of women trooped out of the door to the factory to join the recreant cotton and wool. Next even the children slammed the door in our faces, to join the Pied Piper of modern conditions who piped them into the public schools where they remained to his day, and don't see any chance of getting them out, we must follow them in! But I forgot to mention the men in my tuxedo about the children. The men simply flew out to money making, that they have left us in undisputed sway of the home every since.

And I don't wonder! Because if there is anything uninteresting it is a lone home, with a lone woman in it, waiting for her husband, her children and her work to come back into it. But thank Heaven there are not many like that. The American woman is not built that way, to sit and wait. She is much more apt to get up and do, and in our new city housekeeping she is solving the problem.

She is dragging the work back into the home, because without work nobody can be happy, or have direct energies. All he vitality will be mispent in endless parties, and spending money on her foolish little body, or other wasteful silly things.

So, as she literally and fortunately could not bring the crude, unfinished labor that her grandmother did, back into our small homes, she is bringing it back into an ultra-finished state—too ultra for the old time politician and the bloated financier. The obtaining of pure foods, pure milk, clean streets, up-to-date schools and better living conditions for everyone, are the things occupying her time.

Let us view the transition of conditions. Whereas, formerly, the home was an individualized, quiet, producing, manufacturing and finishing raw products with the husband wife and children working in it—conditions have so changed through organized labor and finance that a totally different situation confronts us today.

The great majority of people are now living in villages, towns and cities of large population filled with modern problems which women must help men to solve. Our city housekeeping is no longer enveloped in that shroud of mystery embodied in the word "politics" but is largely only a greater or bigger housekeeping. And in the cities where the problems are still "politics" it is time for Atlas' wife to get busy!

Why should not women be interested in the problem of pure food, adulteration food and flies? It has only been in the last few years since women's clubs have agitated it that meat and vegetables have been screened in public places. Has not then, the municipal city markets and stores, become a woman's question since she is the buyer.

Do not the question of adulterated food become a woman's question. Since it is her duty to protect and safeguard the health of her family. When typhoid fever ties crepe on every other door in olden times it was a visitation of the Lord and to be home with patience. Now it is much more likely, that a committee of club women will visit on an inspection of the city water supply or demand another inspector of dairies.

Is not the question of clean streets principally a woman's problem? Whose house, whose curtains and furnishings, and whose health is more directly affected than the woman's and what is more important, than the children's?

And that's the motive power that makes women act; when, more often than not, when left to the men, the motion is "tabled," or left with a committee which effectually buries it. When tuberculosis and pulmonary and throat disease are directly traceable to unclean streets, it becomes a woman's question. The wonderful street cleaning system of New York City was the result of a woman's suggestion, advice, and of the laws which she got the Legislature at Albany to pass. Her name is Mrs. Kimicott, the wife of a New York physician, and the little carts now used were invented by her. Until city sweeping came into vogue, man had never handled a broom, but woman had through many centuries; so it became woman's duty to show him how.

Are not the public schools primarily a woman's problem? By what specious magic do the children cease to be ours when they enter the public schools? It would seem so when the carelessly turn their mental and moral training and physical welfare over to young teachers who have never been mothers and to boards composed of men who, also, have never been mothers or housekeepers. We have let men take our jobs—that's all—and the man or woman who resents the so-called "interference" of women in school matters and on boards of control, casts a slur upon womanhood and motherhood! What more vitally concerns a woman than the lighting, heating, ventilation, cleanliness and sanitary conditions of the school which her child attends? What is of more paramount importance to her than his mental training and moral environment? The age at which the children enter the public schools, and the entire period they are there, is not the time for women to resign themselves in blessed innocence and ignorance of all matters pertaining to it. It is more than ever the time when woman's influence and opinion should prevail.

As Texas ranks forty-sixth among the forty-eight commonwealths in the percentage of children who are attending school, and thirty-ninth in annual expenditure for instruction, it is time the women of Texas shouldered this woman's problem—and she can solve it if she puts her shoulder to the wheel.

Is not the matter of clothing and its relative industries—all cotton and woolen and linen products—a woman's problem, since it is the woman who is the buyer of these things? It is woman's duty to raise conditions under which these materials are made. Very largely, sweat-shop labor and child labor could be abolished if women were on to their jobs, with their great power of sympathy and conservation. Until women can see that the conditions under which the materials they buy are produced are a part of their business, money will be wrung from children or wage-slaves the country over.

The necessity of recreation and natural play for young people is recognized as a big factor in the life of growing cities. It is a part of the mother's duty to see that the children get their birthright in green grass and flowers and a little dirt to dig in, and it is the woman's housewifely duty to see that it is as clean materially and morally as the four walls of her home.

The streets of the city are essentially a woman's problem—because the conservation of the children is here her biggest job. Of what avail to teach the young moral and religious training, when they must combat conditions on our streets, and in public places, which they cannot withstand? It is, therefore, woman's duty to enter this new city housekeeping with a broom so high, so wide and so strong that it will not only materially clean our thoroughfares, but morally clean the refuse from the pavements, and sweep the cobwebs of ignorance and superstition saw to it that they were better treated, as their day's work should consist of only eight hours. As some one said, "Evidently this was intended that the man should get home and prepare the evening meal before his wife returned."

And, lastly, what affects this scientific city housekeeping more than the laws enacted in our city councils and legislative chambers? You will find in these bodies a great many interests represented—the manufacturer, the farmer, the miner, the ship builder and every other builder but the builder of the home. Why is it? Because women are neglecting their business. They've been vainly hoping somebody would look after their interests in the interim of all the other demands. It's time they were waking up to the fact that one can look after her own business better than anybody else. And, as men never were and never have been and never will be women or mothers, or housekeepers, its perfectly natural that woman's interests got sidetracked while "big business" went through on a "special."

Was it not our own former Senator, Mr. Bailey, of Texas, whose voice was loudest in denouncing and condemning the efforts to secure in the Senate an appropriation for a Children's Bureau? And after a bitter fight it received the smallest appropriation of any department ever established by the Government! Yet at every tick of the clock a little life goes out! But if hogs and cattle can go on being scientifically studied and treated, to the agrardgement of men's pocketbooks, why endeavor to put human life on any more scientific basis? The first is an asset; the second, except in the cotton mills, is a liability!

The women of Texas must have forgotten that at the last session of the Legislature they needed representation. A law was passed restricting women's work to ten hours, while the

As 98 per cent of the workers in cotton and woolen goods are women, their fellow sisters who are more fortunate than they should see that living wages and decent working conditions be afforded every worker. How else can the vigor of the race be maintained unless the mothers and future mothers be protected from unfit environment and long hours of relentless labor?

The passage of laws regulating liquor, co-guardianship of children, married women's property rights, compulsory education and countless others very actively affecting women and their children are every day in legislative halls needing the voice and hands and brains of woman.

So, you see, this cumbersome machinery of state and city, when analyzed, amounts only to an enlarged housekeeping, the problems of which woman's hand and head will help to solve in the coming years. If some women are apathetic and disinterested in city housekeeping it is because of their failure to see the inseparable union between the homes and the city. The physical and moral welfare of each are so inextricably intertwined that it behooves women to lay aside their selfish and trivial pastimes and work together in a systematic spirit for the greater good of both.

As Benjamin Franklin said, "Employ thy time well if thou meanest to have leisure. Leisure is the time for doing something useful."

I, therefore, urge all of you who are not members to join the Civic League, so that we can, together, work co-operatively toward a bigger, better and more beautiful Plainview.
Signed, MRS. HICKMAN PRICE.
