METHODIST MINISTER SAYS MANY BRIDGES ARE CROSSED BEFORE THEY ARE REACHED.

WORLD IS GROWING BETTER

If It Takes War and Panic to Bring About Legitimate Business, They Are to Be Welcomed.

The sermon preached Sunday night at the Methodist Church by the pastor, Rev. S. A. Barnes, was full of sound, every-day philosophy.

CONTENTMENT AND ITS RESULTS.

"Let your conversation be without covetousness, and be content with such things as ye have. For I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."—Hebrews 13:5.

The apostle is addressing the church or individual Christian. He would make it a personal matter, and press home the importance of contentment, because of the necessity of this virtue to the well being and highest joy of Christian living.

"Mr. Webster says: 'Satisfaction is positive pleasure, but contentment always has enough and one satisfied has received enough. Satisfaction is more lively but less permanent.'

"Shakespeare said: 'The noblest mind the most contentment has.'

"Covetousness is a sin to which most of us are inclined. It is exceedingly an insidious and perilous sin. It does not carry an outward and visible stigma, as some other sins. They who are guilty may be respectable, maintain a good reputation in society, retain their communion in the church, while their life and Christian character is being consumed and destroyed by it.

There is no sin more destructive to spiritual life, nor more fatal to the highest and divinest things in man. It quenches the noble aspirations and degrades the soul. It's a prolific parent of all sins and the root of all evil.

"Henry Ward Beecher said: 'Contentment does not mean to be content with indifference or indolence or unambitious stupidity, but the content of industrious fidelity.'

"When we consider how few are our real needs, we will cultivate the grace of contentment. Contentment softens our privations and sweetens our provisions. It will make a cottage as fair as a palace. He is not a poor man who has but little, but he is a poor man who wants much.

"This age is general and this generation in particular is productive of discontent. This hurrying, hustling, and busily bustling age in which we live naturally breeds discontentment, just as a carcass breeds stench. Manhood comes, old age finds us and the grave claims us before we are settled in the boat of life and ready to think. Then bitter tears run down our cheek because the saddled steed of opportunity has passed forever.

"We sigh sometimes for the good old days of bygone years, because we have never stopped to think of the rich heritage that we now enjoy and the good fortune vouchsafed to us at this present time. Discontentment breeds discord, in society, in politics, and in the church.

"Discontentment and dissatisfaction will develop fanaticism. If there is one class above another that is to be pitied it is the fanatic. He becomes one-sided, one-ideal.

Christianity does not lead to discontentment and dissatisfaction. Chris-

Servians Ask Russian Aid Against Austrian Absorption

PETROGRAD, Nov. 19.—M. Tsemovitch, a special envoy from the Servian government, has arrived here. His mission is to urge the Russian government to assist his country against Austria. The Servian army has been reduced from three hundred thousand to one hundred thousand, and Austrian absorption is feared. It is feared that Franz Joseph may give Bulgaria, Roumania and Greece part of the State of Servia to gain their support.

STATE INSPECTOR SAYS PLAINVIEW CLEAN TOWN

"There Is Not a Case of Contagious Disease in Plainview," Says City Health Officer, Dr. McClendon.

"This town is decidedly better than the average," said J. D. Thompson, of Austin, a State Food and Drug Inspector, after having made, in conjunction with Dr. E. F. McClendon, City Health Officer, a careful inspection of the grocery stores, drug stores and soda fountains of Plainview this morning.

Yesterday afternoon the slaughter pens were visited and inspected. This morning calls were made at the stores, restaurants, soda fountains, etc. Mr. Thompson made many suggestions to the proprietors on just how to keep their places of business in the most sanitary condition possible. On his next trip he will leave score cards and will file complaints on all unsanitary stores. For two years Plainview and the other towns of the South Plains have not been inspected. The light, scattered population of this district, when compared with East and South Texas, where a relatively greater need for inspection exists, explains this action of the State Board.

Mr. Thompson will be in Plainview again within a week or ten days, after he has completed the inspection of Canyon City, Amarillo and Hereford. He will visit his parents, in Texico, before he comes back. A desire to see some of Hale County's wells in operation explains his future visit.

Dr. E. F. McClendon, City Health Officer, said to a Herald representative to-day that the health condition of Plainview is excellent. "There is not a case of contagious disease in Plainview at this time," he said. "There has been for two weeks an epidemic of colds among the smaller children, but no serious illness. We dismissed the last case of contagious disease on the fifth of this month. During June there were two cases of contagious disease, in August two, in September one and in October one."

Seth Ward Gets Hundred Fifty Volumes Library Day

Yesterday was library day for Seth Ward College. A committee was at the Methodist Church from two until six o'clock to receive the books donated by friends and patrons of the college.

Over a hundred fifty volumes of books were given to Seth Ward. Most of them were reference works. Two encyclopedias were included in the list.

WILL DEDICATE NEW CHURCH 6 MILES EAST OF PETERSBURG.

Church Cost $2,500; Will Be Out of Debt When Dedicated; Best Country Church in Texas.

The best country church in Texas is to be dedicated Sunday, November 29. The members of two communities of the South Plains, Harmony and Allmon, have met on ground half way between the communities, six miles east of Petersburg, and built this church. It is modern. Besides having a large auditorium, rostrum for pulpit and choir loft, the church has three modern Sunday School rooms. The windows are of Florentine glass. The church is a memorial to Rev. W. H. Carr, a pioneer Methodist minister.

Rev. S. J. Upton is the pastor of the church. Although his home is in Plainview, he serves the Lorenzo charge of the Methodist Church. Rev. Upton will have to his credit the building of two churches and one parsonage this year on the Lorenzo work.

In the morning of the dedication day Rev. O. P. Kiker will preach. Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Plainview, will fill the pulpit in the afternoon at three o'clock.

LUBBOCK'S NEW WHITE WAY IN OPERATION.

Lubbock people are rejoicing over the completion of their new white way. They have seven blocks in the business district lighted with clusters of three one-hundred-watt series Mazda lamps on ornamental iron posts. All of the wiring is underground in conduits. GENERAL JOFFRE FRENCH COMMANDER.

Wilson Optimistic Over Future Business Outlook

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—"A future clear and bright with promise of the best things," was the way President Wilson summarized his view of the prospect in a letter to Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department upon the opening of the Federal Reserve Banks. "Business wrongs may now easily be righted. A new day has dawned," said the President.

Heavy Taxes Are Imposed by English House of Commons

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The House of Commons has passed all of the revenue measures advocated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd-George. Taxes on beer, tea, earned incomes are among the taxes levied. Mr. Lloyd-George said that the country had to find by the end of the fiscal year £535,367,000 ($2,676,835,000) or there would be a deficit of £339,511,000. The first two years of the war, he estimated, would cost at least £450,000,000.

Turks Fired on Launch Sent Out From United States Ship

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—There has been no official confirmation of the report sent from Athens to the effect that a launch sent out from the United States cruiser Tennessee had been fired upon while attempting to enter the Gulf of Smyrna to arrange for the cruiser to come into the harbor. At the Turkish embassy here it was said that the report is probably untrue.

The Secretary of the Navy, Daniels, has communicated with the commander of the Tennessee giving instruction for no advance to be made by the cruiser without orders from the United States Government, and at all costs to take no steps which could in any way embarrass the United States.

MRS. WILLIAMSON DEDICATES TRACT OF LAND TO THE CITY.

Mrs. Emam Williamson has dedicated a tract of land to the City of Plainview. White Street and Main Street have been closed where they come into contact with acreage property of Mrs. Williamson's. The dedication made to the city this afternoon extends to the intersection of these streets, providing an open street through the property.

Interest Rate Falls When Federal Reserve Bank Opens

Chicago Tribune of Tuesday publishes the following paragraphs in commenting upon the general financial condition of the North and East: "The first of the many benefits expected to be derived from the new regional reserve bank system came almost simultaneously with the opening of the doors of the new Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago yesterday in the form of an announcement that the interest rate on collateral demand loans will be reduced by the larger National banks of the city from 7 to 6 per cent.

"This reduction on commercial paper, a sure sign of the lifting of the general financial depression throughout the country due to the flood of cash upon the money market from the Federal reserve banks, bears out the prediction made about ten days ago by George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National Bank."

German Guns on Belgian Coast Rake North Sea

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—Reports have been received here of the destruction of the British torpedo boat destroyer Falcon, the cruiser Brilliant and the sloop-of-war Rinaldo, which have been disabled by German guns off the coast of Belgium.

BENEVOLENT LEAGUE WANTS WORK FOR DESTITUTE WOMAN.

There is in Plainview a woman with children who is in destitute circumstances. The woman wants to do washing, but cannot call for clothes. She has little children she must care for. She is not strong enough to carry the clothes. Some man or woman who wants to be a "Goodfellow" has an opportunity here to help in a way that will mean little to them, but much to the woman they assist. Anyone who can carry their clothes to the home of this woman, and call for them, may have the name of the woman and her address by calling Mrs. Otis Trulove, president of the Benevolent League.

TWO-MILLION-DOLLAR LOSS IN FIRE AT GALVESTON.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 18.—The Sunset Elevator burned here yesterday. The loss is estimated at two million dollars. Most of the grain that is handled in Galveston by the railroads and exported abroad is handled by this elevator. Six firemen were injured in fighting the flames.

WAR TAX MUST BE PAID BEFORE DECEMBER FIRST

Theatres, Motion Picture Shows, Tobacco Dealers Will Be Taxed; Bills of Lading Must Bear Stamps.

After December first all bills of lading, whether for express or freight shipment, must bear a one-cent revenue stamp, that is if the amount of the bill is five cents or over. R. F. Bayless, local agent for the Santa Fe, has been notified to this effect by the Santa Fe officials. This is a part of the war tax voted by the recent Congress. The shipper must put the stamp on the bill of lading and cancel it himself.

Another part of the scheme is a tax on trades. This tax is due now, and if not paid before the first of December a penalty of fifty per cent will be added.

The war tax applies to the following trades in the following amounts:

- Brokers, $30.
- Pawn brokers, $50.
- Commercial brokers, $20.
- Custom house brokers, $10.
- Proprietors of theaters, museums, picture shows or concert halls, $25 to $100.
- Proprietors of circuses, $100.
- Proprietors or agents of public exhibitions not otherwise enumerated, $10.
- Commission merchants, $20.
- Dealers in leaf tobacco, $6 to $24.
- Dealers in tobacco or cigars or cigarettes, $6 to $24.
- Manufacturers of tobacco, $6 to $2,496.
- Manufacturers of cigars, $3 to $2,496.
- Manufacturers of cigarettes, $12 to $2,496.
- Proprietors of bowling alleys or billiard rooms, $5 a table or alley.

County Attorney Clements says that the payment of the tax will probably be taken up by the revenue officer of the United States at Dallas. As he understands the law, those motion picture houses having a seating capacity of three hundred will come under the class taxed. Tobacco dealers selling two hundred dollars' worth of cigars, cigarettes or tobacco per year will be taxed.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LAWRENCE WILL BE HELD AT KRESS.

Mrs. G. T. Lawrence, of Eastern Oklahoma, died Sunday at 2 p. m. at the home of her father, J. A. Bush, four miles west of Kress. Mrs. Lawrence, who had been in bad health for some time, left home in a wagon, accompanied by her husband, but was so much worse when they reached Memphis that they came the remainder of the way on the train.

The body was embalmed by Flake Garner, and is being held pending the arrival of her brothers and sisters from Oklahoma and Tennessee.

The funeral services will be held at Kress Saturday.

GERMANS AGAIN ATTEMPT CAMPAIGN ALONG COAST

FLOODS AND WINDS HAMPER THE PROGRESS OF GERMANS ALONG FRANCO-BELGIAN FRONTIER.

RHEIMS SHELLED AGAIN.

Allies Hard Pressed by Germans on Attacking Line in Region of Ypres.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Although hampered by heavy floods and wintry winds, the Germans are still making an effort to break down the Allies' defense along the Franco-Belgian frontier. The line from the coast to Nieuport, which has been receiving less attention since the Germans have been trying to get the British out of Ypres, has again been subjected to bombardment.

Rheims has again been subjected to a heavy rain of shells.

It is stated that the pressure of the Germans on the line of the French around Verdun has been relieved by reinforcements to the French army.

In Galicia the troops of Emperor Nicholas have been driving the Austrians back.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 19.—The pick of the Russian army is being sent into Poland in an effort to break the German center there. Around Cracow a pitched battle seems imminent. The Germans have been retreating from the Russian forces in Poland, but have turned and are now on the defensive.

On the morning of October 17, according to advices from the General Staff, a German squadron of two cruisers, ten torpedo boats and a number of steamships bombarded Libau, setting fire to many buildings. On the same day a Russian fleet off Trebizond bombarded that city and burned many buildings along the coast.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Allies have been hard pressed by the Germans who have recently arrived to strengthen the German attacking line. In the region of Ypres the attacks have been severe. From the coast of Flanders to the River Lys the Germans have been keeping up a bombardment. Fighting along the entire front has continued with no appreciable advantage to either side.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—An official communication says:

"The day has been marked by a very violent and almost uninterrupted cannonade on our front from the north. In the region of St. Mihiel, the Germans have blown up the west part of Chauvincourt, which they had mined. There is nothing to report from other parts of the front."

Pope Names Four Causes Promoting European War

ROME, Nov. 19.—The lack of mutual and sincere love among men; contempt of authority; injustice on the part of one class of people against another, and the consideration of material welfare as the sole object of human activity, are assigned as the four reasons for the war between the nations of Europe, in his announced encyclical urging peace among the warring nations.

FIRE DOES LITTLE DAMAGE TO J. B. FARMER'S HOME.

Fire To-day at Noon Handled Well by Fire Company; House Not Damaged Much.

Fire to-day at noon damaged the house occupied by J. B. Farmer, Wells Fargo Express Company's agent at Plainview. The house is owned by L. T. Mayhugh.

Mrs. Farmer was preparing dinner and had gone to a neighbor's on an errand for a few minutes. When she returned the wall paper on the kitchen above the stove was afire.

An alarm was turned in. The firemen responded promptly, and soon had the flames under control.

The furniture was damaged by water. Little damage was done to the house, except to the room where the fire started, and joists in the attic.

Leaders In Europe's Great War

The Strange Man of the Ottomans

A slim, youthful, rather foppish man looms above the other figures pushed into international notice by Turkey's dramatic entrance into the European War, as Napoleon did above his generals. Enver Pasha is the "strong man" of the Ottomans.

Since the Young Turk party took over control of the government, in 1908, Enver Pasha has been a prominent figure in Turkish political life. But, until recent weeks, he was not suspected of having sufficient strength to dominate the empire.

Enver Pasha is only 31 years old. He has been war minister for two years. Turkey's espousal of German's cause was due more to his efforts than any other man, or party.

He was born at Constantinople in 1883. He entered military school at the age of 11 years, and was commissioned when he was 19. When the Young Turk movement broke into open revolt he was a major in the army. He was in Macedonia. Abdul Hamid sent for him and held out offers of high favor providing he supported the throne. Enver's answer was to leave the capital and join the active revolutionists.

At this stage of his life Enver Pasha seems to have been the only prominent man in Turkey who did not seek power. After Mohammed V had been made sultan, Enver went off to Berlin in the unimportant capacity of military attache. There he was cultivated by German officers. Even the kaiser, it is said, became his personal friend. He studied German military tactics and became a warm admirer of General Von der Goltz, who was called to reform the Turkish army.

Some political disturbances at Constantinople caused Enver Pasha to return home. He quashed a revolt against the Young Turks, leading a charge on some revolting soldiers in person. His popularity increased after that, causing him to be sent to Tripoli during the Italian War. There he demonstrated that he had marked military ability. He organized the defense of Benghazi, the most stubborn fight of the campaign. He returned home to find his popularity greater than any other character in Turkish life. Especially his Asiatic troops spread the fame of his name. At this time Enver Pasha seems to have acquired the desire for power.

He took a prominent part in politics during the Balkan wars. He was a figure in the overthrow of the Kaimil Pasha ministry and in the incidents that led up to the assassination of Nazim Pasha. At the close of the second Balkan War Enver Pasha became chief of staff of the Turkish army. He was the leader of the war party. One of his announced determinations was that Adrianople and the islands of the Aegean Sea should remain under Turkish control at any cost. He succeeded and was appointed minister of war shortly afterwards.

His sympathies have always been pro-German, and ever since the beginning of the great campaigns he has made no secret of his personal desire to aid the kaiser.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

John Kendrick Bangs, in Life.

WHEREAS today is the date appointed by his excellency, the President of the United States of America, for all good Americans to render thanks unto the Supreme Governor of all our ways; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That in a spirit of profound reverence, and with a deep sense of gratitude, I do hereby render up said thanks to the said Supreme Governor, as ordered by the said President of the United States, and said date,

FOR THAT:
The broad Atlantic rages still
'Twill me and seething Kaiser Bill.

FOR THAT:
Despite the troubles dire that come
I do not dwell in Belgium.

FOR THAT:
'Twas not a part of Nature's plan
To make me a Parisian.

FOR THAT:
I was not born to make a lunch
For guns to save the kaiser bunch.

FOR THAT:
No luggage, bag, nor wife of mine
Is lost somewhere along the Rhine.

FOR THAT:
Nobody's ever asked me yet
To join the British cabinet.

FOR THAT:
No Zeppelin across the sea
Can drop confetti onto me.

FOR THAT:
I have no question to determine
If I shall dance or fight the German.

FOR THAT:
No overwhelming army corps
Is raising thunder at my door.

FOR THAT:
No bomb from out the heavens high
Can fall into my pumpkin pie.

FOR THAT:
My only war cloud dark and murky
Is knocking stuffing out of Turkey.

FOR THAT:
In short, my days and years increase
In sunny paths of joyous peace.

FOR THAT:
Where only blessings mobilize,
I lift in gratitude my eyes
To him who's made me what I am:
A son of good old Uncle Sam!

THE HERITAGE.

The rich man's son inherits lands,
And piles of brick and stone and gold,
And he inherits soft white hands,
And tender flesh that fears the cold,
Nor dares to wear the garment old;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits cares;
The bank may break, the factory burn;
A breath may burst his bubble shares;
And soft white hands could scarcely earn
A living that would serve his turn;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits wants,
His stomach craves for dainty fare;
With sated heart he hears the pants
Of tolling hands, with brown arms bare,
And wearies in his easy chair;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Stout muscles and a sinewy heart,
A hardy frame, a hardier spirit;
King of two hands, he does his part
In every useful toil and art;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Wishes o'erjoyed with humble things,
A rank adjudged by toilworn merit,
Content that from employment springs,
A heart that in his labor sings;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
A patience learned of being poor;
Courage, if sorrow come, to bear it,
A fellow feeling that is sure

To make the outcast bless his door;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

O rich man's son! there is a toil
That with all others level stands;
Large charity doth never soil,
But only whiten, soft white hands—
This is the best crop from thy lands;
A heritage, it seems to me,
Worth being rich to hold in fee.

O poor man's son! scorn not thy state;
There is worse weariness than thine,
In merely being rich and great;
Toil only gives the soul to shine,
And makes rest fragrant and benign—
A heritage, it seems to me,
Worth being poor to hold in fee.
—James Russell Lowell.

MOTHER SHIPTON'S PROPHECY.

(First published in 1488; republished in 1641.)

Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe.

Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.

Water shall more wonders do
Now strange, yet shall be true.

Through hills man shall ride,
And no horse or ass be at his side.

Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.

In the air men shall be seen
In white, in black, in green.

Iron in the water shall float
As easy as a wooden boat.

Gold shall be found and coined
In a land that's not now known.

Fire and water shall wonders do,
England shall at last admit a Jew.

The world to an end shall come
In eighteen hundred and eighty-one.

Radioactive Manures Not Good As Field Fertilizers

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—The specialists of the Bureau of Soils, U. S. Department of Agriculture, who have been investigating the use of radioactive substances as fertilizers, have recently embodied their results in Department Bulletin No. 149. The investigators report that while the use of concentrated radium ores or extracted radium in certain quantities in pot experiments seem to stimulate plant growth, or to retard it in greater concentration, the quantity of radium present in the amount of so-called radio-active manure ordinarily recommended for application to an acre is not great enough to produce any appreciable effect on field crops. The radio-active manure consists of ground uranium-radium ores of too low grade to be used for the extraction of radium, or of ores from which uranium has been removed. The amount of radium generally present in such of these materials as have been placed on the market has been found to be so small that in the quantity ordinarily recommended for application to an acre, there is less radium than is actually already present on an average in an acre foot of soil.

The specialists point out that all ores which contain radium also contain a very much larger proportion of another radio-active element called uranium. The latter is ordinarily recognized as a plant poison, being very injurious to plants when above a certain concentration, but when present in very small quantity it acts as a stimulant to plant growth; other metals like copper and lead act in the same way. These effects of uranium are entirely different from those of other radio-active elements of the same radio-activity. It is, therefore, concluded that the results obtained with uranium are not due to its property of radio-activity, but to its chemical properties, and that the conflicting results obtained with radio-active manure from different sources are to be explained by the presence or absence of uranium, and possibly of other constituents of a non-radio-active nature. Until further knowledge is gained with regard to the way in which plant poisons, like uranium, affect the growth of plants, the soil specialists are inclined to advise against the use of radio-active manures or any other material containing uranium, as a fertilizer in general farming.

Good Roads

By Homer D. Wade, Stamford, Secretary Texas Good Roads Association

The country road is a most important factor in rural life.

A well-kept road is an ear-mark of a well-bred population.

Highway improvement is always followed by better living conditions.

The next best thing to a good home is a good road by which to reach it.

Although good roads are expensive to construct, they are of too much value to be neglected.

Bad roads intimately affect the Nation's standard of life and its future among the powers of the world.

Good roads and streets are the arteries of community circulation, and a town without them is retrogressing.

The rising generation of America will demand quicker intercommunication than is possible on many of the country roads of to-day.

King Albert of Belgium a Hero of All Europe

By CAROLYN WILSON.

NICE, Oct. 16.—There is not a writer of great literary reputation, there is not a hack writer at a penny a line, there is not an occasional aspiring contributor to the letter column who has not tried to eulogize Albert, King of the Belgians. We all feel deeply the things these writers would say, but it takes a touch of exquisite simplicity and great beauty to convey to paper those two traits so noticeable in the character of the soldier-king.

Perhaps the most understanding of all the appreciations is that of Maurice Maeterlinck, which appeared in the Journal. In part, M. Maeterlinck said—and I regret that no translation can give the effect of his musical, simple French:

"Among all the heroes of this enormous war who will live in the memory of men, one of the rarest, one of the purest, and one that mankind will never know how to love sufficiently, will be the young and great king of my little country. In the critical hour he was truly the providential man, he whom all hearts awaited; he knew how to incarnate in a sudden beauty the profound desire of his people; he was, suddenly, all Belgium revealed to itself and to others."

Belgians' Plight Pitiful.

Later, in speaking of the Belgian people, he says:

"Not a murmur, not a reproach. Yesterday a town of 30,000 souls received the order to leave their little white houses, their churches, their meeting places where life has passed very smoothly, full of industry and gaiety. The 30,000 inhabitants, women, children, and old men, fled into the night to seek an uncertain haven in a neighboring city, menaced like their own, to be vacated in its turn perhaps tomorrow. And they do not know where the end will be, for the country is so small that one arrives quickly at the end of its lands and there is no more shelter."

"Never mind! They obey in silence, all approve and bless their sovereign; he has done what was necessary to do, and if they suffer as no people has suffered since the barbarian invasions of the early centuries, they know that he suffers more than any of them, for in him is the sum and end of all their sorrows, enlarged as they may be. They have no idea that they could have acted differently, that they could have been saved at the sacrifice of their honor. They do not separate duty from destiny."

Caesar Praised Belgians.

In the light of the current praise of Belgium, it is interesting to read again the comments of one of the bravest generals who ever lived, Julius Caesar. When I was in Italy and was struggling with the language, I said one day that with a fair knowledge of Latin Italian was as easy as English. A friend brought out a volume of Caesar and said, "Let's see how well you remember your Latin," and I started translating "De Bello Gallico."

Soon we were both interested hunting down remarks about the Belgians and the Germans. In one place Julius Caesar writes that he considers the Belgians the bravest of all the Gauls, and for his chief reason he gives because they are always fighting their neighbors, the Germans. He says that the Belgians alone have defended their country against the Teutons, who have devastated all of Gaul, and "they yield nothing to an enemy, and, well aware of their skill in military arts, they are brave and proud beyond all nations."

Cites German "Treachery."

In the Gallic wars he spoke again, with that simplicity and decision which is quite lost on the third year high school translators, of the crimes of the Germans, of their treachery and cruelty. He ends by saying:

"Whereupon the Germans (although supposed to be allies, following their custom, threw themselves on the ground, disemboweled the horses, and killed a great number of the cavalry, putting the rest to flight. This sufficiently assured Caesar of the perfidy of his adversaries . . . and he would not listen to propositions of peace from people who, after promising loyalty, engaged in war through ruses and treason."

If one can believe even a part of the later to one of barbarity, firing on ambulances, false uniforms and lying information, this general in the fifty-second year before Christ was not so very far removed from modern judgment of the Teutons.

A German Woman's Plea.

Even the women in Germany seem to have joined the ranks of the barbarians. For a note taken from the pocket of a soldier wounded at Berry-le-Bac was written by his wife. After various bits of news and prayers for his safety, she ended: "I hope that you will spare neither women nor children." The soldier was taken to a town near Bordeaux, where he was tended, and it was there that a doctor took the note from his pocket and returned it to the wife in Germany with the words: "Madame: This note was found in the pocket of your husband, who was wounded, but is now receiving every care and attention at the hospital for prisoners."

And it is more than probable that the German woman did not recognize this "beau geste," as they call it—pretty gesture of retaliation—which was all a Frenchman could say.

Germans' Captives Suffer.

In Germany the prisoners and wounded are being made subjects of rabid pro-German movement. Under a pretext of humanity and kindness, the papers announced that all French prisoners are being supplied with newspapers written in French telling about the war and home. One of these newspapers, which was brought back by an escaped prisoner, turns out to be columns of vituperation against England, letters of gratitude, presumably false, from French prisoners, and such news as is given puts at a maximum the number of French dead and wounded, and its reports of battles are enough to discourage even the most optimistic French heart.

FEWER FIRES MEAN
SMALLER INSURANCE RATE.

By S. W. ENGLISH, Austin,
State Fire Marshal.

The man who permits a crack to remain in his chimney or flue can be termed as one who is "cracked" in his cranium.

Big oaks from little acorns grow. Just so do destroying conflagrations spring from the little cracks in the chimney that you procrastinate about having repaired.

No man ought to retain the esteem of his fellows who permits a menace to remain on his property.

It doesn't cost much to see that chimneys and flues are in good repair. It may cost the savings of a lifetime if you fail to perform this bounden duty.

Cheap fire insurance rates do not spring from carelessness. No fire insurance company does business in a haphazard way. Fire insurance companies are conducted along business lines. Every time there is a fire somebody must pay the cost of somebody else's carelessness. And every time there is a fire there is a stiffening of the fire rates.

Look after your chimneys. Look after your flues. Satisfy your own conscience that you are exerting every agency human endeavor is capable of to prevent fires, and your day of sorrow will be long deferred.

THERE IS DANGER LURKING
IN ALL UNCURED FODDER.

Unsafe to Feed Fodder Made from Badly-Fired Corn Until All Molding Has Ceased.

E. A. Trowbridge, of the Missouri Experiment Station, in the Breeder's Gazette.

It is the general opinion that it is not safe to feed fodder made from badly fired corn until it has become entirely dry and cured, which is some time after frost comes. The general opinion is that after it is thoroughly dried and the molds have ceased to be active it is comparatively safe to feed. Fodder should not be fed either unshredded or shredded until it is thoroughly dry. If it is put into the barn damp or green it is apt to spoil, so that fodder should not be shredded until dry, which is after frost comes. It should be allowed to mature fairly well standing in the field and then be put in a shock of such size as to dry out. If the season is bad it may be difficult to get good shredded fodder from it.

After the molds cease to be active in corn fodder there is less danger than early in the season. The activity becomes less after corn fodder is properly cured and put away. Chemists state that freezing tends to volatilize and liberate the poisons which sometimes occur in corn fodder. Cattle are subject to the same general difficulties from fodder poison as horses, but not to the same extent. There are fewer losses of cattle reported than of horses. I know of no method of determining definitely under ordinary conditions whether fodder is dangerous or not. Until a method is known caution and care are safe policies to pursue.

FAMILY CARES.

This Information May Be of Value to Many Mothers in Plainview.

When there is added to the many cares inseparable from the rearing of children that affliction of weakness of the kidneys and auxiliary organs, the mother's lot is far from a happy one. This condition has often been corrected by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. When relief comes the mother's burden will be lighter and her home happier.

Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, W. California Ave., Plainview, Texas, says: "I can say that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy for those afflicted with weak kidneys. We got our supply from the Long Drug Co. and gave them to a child who had trouble with the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills were the only remedy that brought beneficial results."

THE EMDEN.

The Emden's little play with fate has ended with as much gallantry as it began. To play the part of a maritime weasel, to move by stealth and seize the fat hens right from under the noses of the watch dogs, to prey upon the ships which were the pride of the nations, to escape all traps and continue depredations with a constant waxing wrath of the plundered watchers—this action of the scionness of an ever-increasing Emden on the sea is to go back to the maritime exploits of the English on Spanish commerce and adventures. It reverts to the days of Drake, the daring Englishmen who ventured into the Pacific, where only the Spaniards had gone before, and carried off much booty in his little vessel, the Pelican, finally taking "a great vessel with jewels in plenty, thirty chests of silver coin, eighty pounds weight of gold, and twenty-six tons of silver," then sailing around the world and laying his jewels at the feet of Queen Elizabeth, who paid little attention to the expostulations of the King of Spain. It recalls the adventures of Hawkins and Frohisher.

This explains why the British, who suffered heavily from the inroads of the German cruiser Emden, demanding its annihilation, were, nevertheless, most admiring of its achievements. This is why they wanted the captain of the cruiser landed in England as a prisoner. This is the kernel of the inheritance in sea tradition of the British and the kernel of what they respect most in seamen.

Only a census can reveal the extent of the cost of human life of the European war. The Emden and its crew, while they lasted, were conspicuous, and tasted of the glory and admiration of men. Their glory was short-lived. They were nothing more than integral parts of a scheme and organization to which the loss of one individual man, or unit composed of men, is as the loss of a gnat in a whirlwind. Their glory is of the type that is sublimated out of risk. Without a friendly port, they lived upon the supplies taken from their prey. With no coaling station, their existence was limited by fate. No port would receive them; the ire of a nation and the revengeful searching out of a powerful fleet was directed toward them. Their fate was written. They merely did not know the extent of the volume.

More Books?

(From the Keokuk, Ia., Constitution-Democrat.)

It was the late Frank Norris who many years ago wrote, regarding the reading habit, "Get them to reading, anything, no matter what, if they will only read." That spirit has largely permeated our reading and our publishing in this country. But once in a while we do well to stop and question this means of encouraging the reading habit. Even the makers of books have stopped to question the wisdom of this theory. "Fewer books and better" has been adopted as the slogan of certain publishers. And when one stops to consider the flood of indifferent volumes that is being perpetually rushed upon the market it seems as if the time for merely more books had passed, if indeed it ever existed.

There are hundreds of critics all over the country engaged in the rather thankless task of trying to tell the public something about all of these books. There are so many reviews that obviously a very busy person would have time to read only a small number of these. But with our flood of so-called literature we do not appear to be producing any more deserving books or any more discriminating readers. We do not even seem to be encouraging the reading habit in the best sense of the term.

One is inclined to feel that the sane and appreciative reader needs something more than the mere liking or facility for skimming through indifferent novels. To the person who loves and understands the best writing it ought to be a bore to have to read mere trash. It may be that what we need more than much reading is the habit of thoroughness, the taste for genuine artistry in writing, and the economy which forbids us to waste our precious leisure over pages that are stupid or empty of any enduring message or truth.

KANSAS CITY STOCK MARKET IN DETAIL.

KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS, Nov. 19.—A good cattle market met shippers to-day, 15 to 25 cents above the close of last week. Receipts to-day were 14,000 head, as compared with 34,000 a week ago. Chicago and St. Louis are open to-day, after their temporary closure, but total cattle supply at the five leading Western markets is only 33,000 head, a thousand head less than Kansas City had a week ago.

All stock received at Chicago and St. Louis must be slaughtered, none is permitted to be shipped out, which condition throws most of the Eastern orders for live stock to Kansas City again this week, a very strong market feature here.

No prime natives are here, fair short fed steers selling at $8.50 to $9.50. Good to choice cows brought $7.00, heifers $7.00 to $9.25.

Panhandle yearlings and twos of good breeding sold at $7.00 to $7.75, medium and low grade stockers $6 to $6.75, stock calves $7.00 to $8.00. Kansas and Missouri are the heavy buyers, as quarantine regulations shut out Iowa and Illinois buyers for the present. Kansas particularly is in need of cattle.

Colorado cattle are selling sharply higher than last week. Two loads killing steers from Frank Parks, Rifle, 938 pounds average, brought $7.35 to-day; his shipment here October 6th weighed 969 pounds and brought $6.90. Other Colorado killers brought $7.75 to-day, 1,140 pounds average, and yearlings and twos sold at $7.15 to $7.75.

A few droves of quarantine cattle sold at $6.75 to $6.90 this morning, and some 1,100-pound steers Friday at $7.50, but bulk of the receipts are low grade and mixed, market on which is stronger to-day, as packers are devoting more attention to orders for canned beef than they did last week.

Hogs sold strong to 10 cents higher to order buyers this morning, receipts 20,000 head, top $8.10, bulk of sales $7.60 to $7.85, exhibiting the weakness of that market without any order buying trade, which trade is centered at Kansas City while the foot and mouth quarantine is effective. Some light hogs, 130 pounds average, sold here at $8.00. Packers held back, and bid 10 cents lower on the late market, refusing to pay above $7.85 for such hogs as had been picked over by order buyers.

Sheep and lamb receipts were featured to-day by the first shipment of fed lambs from the Arkansas Valley, Colorado, which weighed 76 pounds and brought $9.25. That is a record price for the opening of the season, and, while there may be some decline, the market is expected to hold up pretty well, as receipts will run moderate for a while. Best fat ewes are worth $6.00, and feeding lambs sell largely at $6.50 to $6.75, weighing around 50 pounds, fleshy 60-pound feeders up to $7.25. Receipts were 7,000 to-day.

MORE POULTRY ON THE FARM.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 21.—"Less Cotton and More Poultry" is the slogan which the new department of poultry husbandry at the A. & M. College has adopted. That the hen on the farm is one of the best and most effective means of swatting the high cost of living is the theory of the poultry department. Prof. F. W. Kazmeier, newly elected instructor in poultry husbandry at the College, has arrived and has taken charge of his work. Every student in agriculture will be required to take work in poultry breeding, feeding management, diseases and their cure, egg production, preparation for market and marketing and other phases of the poultry industry.

That Texas farmers who manage their hens in the proper way may expect returns of from $1 to $2.75 per hen per year on an investment of practically nothing is the statement of the head of the poultry division. Striking examples of where poultry is paying where cotton has proven itself a losing proposition are coming to light at the College each day.

DIVERSIFICATION BULLETIN READY FOR DISTRIBUTION.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 21.—The bulletin on crops to plant in a diversification scheme for all of Texas, prepared by the Extension Service of the A. & M. This bulletin shows what crops should be planted as substitutes for cotton and gives expert advice on the planting and cultivation of these crops.

"The Collins apartment was decorated in cut flowers and ferns, and an arch of fern and roses had been improvised in the library. Mrs. S. B. Graham played Mendelssohn's wedding march, and the bride and groom entered together, unattended. Miss Collins wore a handsome tailored suit of green broadcloth, and the groom wore a dark business suit. Rev. M. E. Hudson, of the First Baptist Church, performed the ceremony, during which the pianist played the Flower Song.

"Following the ceremony sandwiches and coffee were served to the guests, who included the immediate family of the bride, Mrs. Douglas and daughter, Miss Ida Mae, of Sanger, and Mrs. Robert Ramsdell, of Dallas.

"Mr. and Mrs. Alexander left on the noon train for Dallas, where they will spend a few days before going to Plainview, where they will make their home. Mr. Alexander is a civil engineer with the Texas Land and Development Company at Plainview."

FOWLE-ARCHIBALD.

The wedding of Miss Rosa May Fowle to George Walter Archibald, of Durant, Oklahoma, was solemnized yesterday morning at eleven o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. L. Vaughn, 600 Highland Avenue.

The marriage was heralded by a series of brilliant pre-nuptial events, showing the popularity of the bride and the esteem in which she is held by those who have known her from childhood.

White chrysanthemums were the chosen flower for this beautiful wedding. The piano was placed in a recess of the hall, screened by these favorite flowers of early fall. They were banked in snowy splendor in hall, living room and dining room, mingled with the delicate greenery of ferns and smilax.

The presents were displayed in the library, which was filled with handsome and costly gifts, including cut glass, hand-painted china and articles of virtue and needlework.

Just prior to the ceremony, Miss Mabel Wayland sang "A Psalm of Thanksgiving" in a way that won the hearts of her hearers. Mrs. Lloyd Mayhugh, Miss Myrtle Wade and Messrs. George Hutchings and J. D. Rankin sang the "Wedding Chorus" from Lohengrin, with Mrs. Tom Carter as pianist. During the ceremony the latter played soft, sweet music as an accompaniment to the solemn words of the wedding vows.

The bridal couple, unattended, stood under an arch of smilax, banked on either side by palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums.

Elder R. A. Highsmith, pastor of the First Christian Church, pronounced the marriage ceremony. The wedding ring was used in solemn significance.

The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of Russian green broadcloth, with hat to correspond. Her ornaments were diamonds.

The guests were met at the door by little Mildred Vaughn, a niece of the bride. Mesdames John P. Crawford, L. M. Faulkner and Jim Anderson and Misses Edna Harrington and May Jones assisted in receiving the large number of friends who attended the marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald left on the 12:10 train for their future home, at Durant, Oklahoma, where Mr. Archibald is a prominent business man and editor of the Durant Democrat.

Miss Fowle is one of the most popular young ladies in Plainview, and has been prominent in church, social and club circles. She goes to her new home with the good wishes of a host of friends.

The out-of-town guests were Sam Archibald, of Durant, Okla., brother of the groom; Mrs. R. L. Stringfellow, of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. M. E. Skillman, of Kansas City, and Miss May Jones, of Amarillo.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

On Wednesday, Professor Harrison inaugurated spelling in the High School. He hopes after practice to attempt an old-fashioned spelling match against the patrons of the High School.

Last Thursday afternoon the second team of the High School played against the first team of Seth Ward, with Mr. Wilson as referee and Miss Kinder an umpire. High School was victorious, the score being 26 to 5.

Friday afternoon was the regular time for the meeting of the two literary societies. One of them met and had a very interesting program, but on account of deficiency of the program committee, the tenth and eleventh grades did not meet.

Friday night we had the second number of the Lyceum Course, given by the Hampton Court Singers, which was enjoyed by a large audience.

The two divisions of the eighth grade organized their society last week. The following officers were elected: William Snell, president; Erma Leach, vice president; Lena Donohoo, secretary; Herwin, Gallaway, critic; Oscar Mitchell, sergeant-at-arms.

MRS. VAUGHN ENTERTAINED WEDDING PARTY WITH DINNER.

For the wedding party of her daughter, Miss Rosa May Fowle, Mrs. J. L. Vaughn gave a six-o'clock dinner Tuesday night that was a fitting climax to the series of pretty social functions given in honor of the bride. The table was centered with a large heart composed of red geraniums. Ribbons of the same color were suspended from the lights above to the places marked for the guests by hand-painted score cards, hart shaped. An elegant five-course dinner was served to the following: Messrs. and Mesdames George Hutchings, Tom Carter and Lloyd Mayhugh, Misses Rosa May Fowle, Mabel Wayland, Myrtle Wade and May Jones, and Messrs. TEXAS TO GET ITS FIRST STOVE FACTORY.

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Nov. 19.—A proposition to organize a big stock company here, having for its purpose the manufacture of the "Zeigler Hot Blast Gas Heater" and placing it on the market, is being seriously considered by a number of prominent citizens of this city. J. A. Kemp is at the head of the movement, and a meeting will be held this week to perfect the organization of the stock company. If the plan matures and the factory is built, it will be the first stove manufactory in the State.

Ignorant Purchasing of Foods as a Factor in High Cost of Living.

Probably the greatest waste in the American household to-day is in the purchasing, care and preparation of foods. Mrs. Richards, a pioneer in the field of Home Economics, says: "It is not the food which is really eaten that costs so excessively, it is that wasted by poor cooking, excessive quantity, and by purchasing out of season, when the prices are all out of proportion to its value."

The first cause of household waste, however, is undoubtedly ignorant buying. So many of our foods are produced and manufactured at such distances from the final point of distribution that the woman who purchases them has only a limited knowledge of the factors which control their manufacture and final cost. Meats, vegetables, fruits, and canned goods of all descriptions are bought from the four corners of the world and dazzle the eye and bewilder the mind with the varied selections offered her.

The manufacturer has not been slow to take advantage of this ignorance, and in consequence many cheap foods and foods which are really deficient in nutritive value have been put upon the market in fancy packages and alluring labels and sold for many times their real value. Many so-called patent breakfast foods may be cited as an example. Some are made of by-products of certain grains from which some of the most nutritive constituents have been removed. Others are inferior or broken grains which would bring only a normal price on the market at best.

The National Pure Food Laws have done much to obviate this evil by requiring accurate statements on all labels. The law holds that "to offer a food under a false or misleading claim as to source, kind, quality or amount" is considered misleading.

According to interstate law, food is misbranded:

1. If it be an imitation or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article.
2. If it is labeled or branded so as to deceive or mislead the purchaser, or purports to be a foreign product when not so, or if the content has been substituted in whole or in part, or if it fails to bear a statement on the label, if it contains any narcotic or habit-forming drug.
3. If when sold in package form it fails to bear a statement of weight, measure, or numerical count of its contents, provision being made for reasonable variations and for certain exemptions.
4. If the package containing it or its label should bear any statement, design, or device which is false or misleading in any particular.

These laws have done much to elim-

FRENCH SUGGESTS "HOT HOUSE" LAMBS FOR TEXAS FARMERS.

Nearly All Sheep Now Raised in Texas Are Raised for Wool Producing, Few for Meat.

A suggestion of much value to every farmer interested in diversified crops and live stock in place of cotton alone, comes from Mr. C. C. French, of the advisory board of the Texas Industrial Congress, in the following statement:

"The sheep men of Western Texas and New Mexico will always raise sheep of the wool type, and not the mutton type, because they must have sheep that will herd well; their men will not be sheep feeders. So they will always have more or less old ewes to sell in the spring of the year. These ewes can easily be separated from the herds at shearing time.

"Many of the old ewes appear on the Fort Worth market every spring, rarely ever fat, and when thin sell at a low price. These ewes, if bred in the spring at as early a date as they can be purchased to bucks of the mutton type, will produce a fine lamb that if pastured on wheat and oats in the winter and put on full feed and fed until spring can be made to weigh from 50 to 75 pounds, and sometimes more. These lambs always sell at a good price, and it is now well known that these "spring lambs," as they are called, can be produced in Texas for less than one-half what it costs to produce what is known as "hot-house lambs" in the East. There is a great demand for this kind of meat. After the lambs are sold, the ewes that have been well cared for all winter can be full fed and marketed two weeks before the grass sheep reach the market, and will sell at a good price.

"I regard this method of handling a small bunch of sheep as very profitable; the deal is cleaned up every year, and the farmer knows what he has made. "There are many farmers in Texas who want to reduce their cotton acreage and do not want to raise hogs. Let them come, or send, to Fort Worth Stock Yards next spring and secure some of these ewes, and handle them as outlined above. They will find that they have opened up a new and profitable industry, and that there are other things than cotton."

BULBS MAY BE RAISED INDOORS.

Not only are tulips and other bulbous plants attractive around the lawn in early spring, but they are also most satisfactory for indoor culture during the winter. They should be used in separate pots rather than in window boxes. Holland bulbs, such as the narcissus, tulip, and hyacinth, are practically the only plants that will flower satisfactorily in the house with ordinary care. About the only plant giving similar satisfaction is the begonia, according to the department's specialist, who has experimented with many varieties.

The essentials for growing bulbs indoors are that they shall become thoroughly rooted before the tops are permitted to grow. This is done by planting the bulbs in soil either in pots or what florists know as "pans," which are shallow porcelain pots, or in boxes. These bulbs are then put in a cool place in the dark for a period of two to six or eight weeks, or even longer, if desired. They should be left there until the roots are well started. The bulbs should then be brought into a slightly warmer place, with some light, for three or four days, and then gradually brought into greater warmth and full light. During all the period of growth the ground should be kept moist without being water-soaked.

Occasionally the roots should be examined to see whether or not the plant requires repotting. This is done by holding the hands over the top of the pot, inverting plant and all, tapping the edge of the pot so as to loosen it, then lifting the pot off. This can not be done unless the soil is moderately moist. If the ball of earth is completely covered with roots the plant should be put in a slightly larger pot, with new potting soil firmed about the old ball of earth by firming with the fingers, and then wetted thoroughly.

Those who do not have gardens would do well to get potting soil of the nearest florist. If it is desired to prepare it, one part compost, one part good loam and one part sand should be used. The compost should be cow manure and good turf rotted together for a year and turned two or three times in the interim. Well-decomposed leaf mold would answer as a partial substitute for the compost. One-twentieth part bone meal is a good addition to the mixture. If the loam is very heavy, containing much clay, its proportion should be somewhat diminished. If the loam is light and sandy, reduce the amount of sand or, in some localities, omit it altogether.

Narcissi take about five weeks to develop from the time they are brought into full light. Hyacinths take a longer time, and tulips about the same time as hyacinths. The Roman hyacinths come in a little less time, while the paper-white narcissus for late winter, four weeks. It is hard to hold the paper-white narcissus for late winter. The hyacinths and tulips are hard to bring into bloom before February. The various forms of the yellow narcissus can be brought into bloom from December until the time for outdoor blooms by starting the bulbs early in the fall and bringing them into the light at intervals of a week or 10 days. For the earliest bloom it is desirable to get the bulbs started in October, and all of the bulbs should be planted before the middle of November.

Tulips require special care and attention. It is best to place the pots or pans in a box and cover the whole pot with at least 2 inches additional soil or ashes and leave them there until the bud has pushed clear above the pot; otherwise the blooms will be strangled in attempting to get out of the bulbs.

Instead of placing in the cellar, these pots and boxes may be buried in the open ground, the pots being covered with 4 inches of soil. In localities where the ground customarily freezes hard a heavy coating of manure should be added as soon as the first crust freezes over the bulbs. This layer of manure will prevent their freezing and will permit the bulbs to be removed to the house from time to time as needed.

The hyacinth, paper-white narcissus, and especially the Chinese sacred lily are frequently grown in water. Special glasses for these bulbs may be purchased in which they may be successfully grown, or they may be placed in any attractive dish and supported by pebbles. The water should be kept so that it touches the bottom of the bulb.

Ancient Art of Antwerp

City is More Than 1300 Years Old and Has Been Great Center of Art and Commerce

The city of Antwerp, or Anvers, is as the French and Belgian-French have it, the German name being Antwerpen. It is more than 1,300 years since the founding of Antwerp, and it rapidly grew to be one of the most important seaports of Europe, with merchant princes rivaling those of Venice and Genoa. For hundreds of years, with occasional checks by reason of wars, it has been the principal seaport of all that region in Europe, thousands of vessels arriving and departing every year. It suffered greatly in the old days of Spain's dominance. It was devastated by the Duke of Parma and the desolation was more pronounced when Belgium was invaded by the Duke of Alva, the fiend of the Inquisition, and who boasted that his executions numbered 18,000, which were more than the soldiers killed in battle. The whole history of the city is blood-curdling up to the time of Napoleon, who, recognizing the splendid possibilities of the wonderful harbor, restored docks and quays and did much to revive the old glory of Antwerp. Again it is a curious fact that in 1874 the city had differences with the Belgian government which almost amounted to war, and the citadel, 300 years old, was blown up in the presence of King Leopold II.

If, however, the great city of the present, more than 300,000 in population, the capital of the province of Antwerp with a population of around 600,000, is to have the fate of Liege, Louvain and other cities, the commercial paralysis will concern the world less than the sentimental contemplation of the loss of grand religious and other edifices, of priceless works of art, the Hotel de Ville, and the unique Musée Plantin-Moretus, an ancient printing house, the most notable in Europe in its day, producing wonderful works of art from the types.

Examples of these, impossible to reproduce, are preserved by the hundreds in this museum, which is in the original house where Plantin amazed the then civilized world with his productions. Not only these, but some of the most precious paintings of the Flemish and Dutch masters, such as Rubens, Rembrandt, Van der Weyden, Steen, Hals, Matsys, Teniers, Van Dyck and Jordans, are on the walls of the house, which in itself is one of the most interesting memorials of Europe. Rubens, Teniers and Van Dyck lived in Antwerp and have monuments there, and Jordans, Matsys an dother of the famed Flemish artists had their home in Antwerp.

The Gothic cathedral, begun in 1553 and not finished until 1592, one of the towers unfinished to this day, as has happened to many of the ancient religious edifices, is one of the finest in Europe, its finished tower being more than 400 feet in height and holding a chime of bells incomparable for their sweet musical qualities. Every American tourist who ever visited Antwerp holds as one of the most precious memories the sound of the marvelous chimes of that cathedral. On the walls of the cathedral is the masterpiece of Rubens, "The Descent from the Cross," a notable departure from the often coarse productions of this artist, as, for example, the several great canvasses in the Louvre at Paris, painted at the request of Marie de Medici, and representing the "apotheosis" of that unfortunate queen, who was exiled by her own son and whose heart is buried under one of the stone slabs in the cathedral at Cologne.

In nearly all of the notable buildings are fine examples of those great painters of Belgium and Holland, some of whom were almost contemporaneous with Raphael and Michael Angelo, and all of whom were inspired to a degree by the masters of the Sixteenth Century. Rubens, for instance, went to Spain, and he and Velasquez painted together for nearly a year, each influencing the other.

Not only are there these priceless works of art, for other examples of which foreign galleries and European and American millionaires have paid unknown millions of dollars, but in Antwerp there is a municipal museum in which there are some of the best illustrations of the genius of the immortal artists who have been named, and not only in the cathedral, but also in the beautiful churches of St. James, St. Andrews and St. Paul.

Nobody in all the world who has admiration for great art and great architecture, created in the days when there were great art and great architecture, but will fervently hope that if the city surrenders that things will be spared which, if destroyed, can never be reproduced. All of the machinery of trade and commerce can be recreated, but art treasures once destroyed are destroyed forever.

an increase in general expenses formed a combination which helped make up a bad annual report for the St. Louis Southwestern this year, according to the annual statement which has just been announced. Total operating revenues decreased 4.15 per cent, while expenses increased 5.99 per cent, according to President Britton. As a result, the road wound up the year with a loss.

"Despite adverse conditions, the management calls attention to the fact that the equipment and track have been kept up to a high standard of condition.

"Britton's report says: 'Freight revenue decreased 5.77 per cent. A general depression of business throughout the entire country, in connection with adverse weather conditions in the Southwest, affected the freight traffic movement. Drouths, floods and early frosts occurred at intervals during the year, resulting in an almost complete failure in the fruit and vegetable yield in Eastern Texas. The tonnage of lumber, which constitutes a large percentage of the company's revenue, decreased 11.47 per cent. Passenger revenue increased 1.66 per cent, this being attributed principally to an improved passenger movement to Texas. The volume of travel in Southwestern States shows its usual normal increase, due to the natural growth and development of the country, and had the rates inhibited by the Supreme Court decision prevailed during the year, the company would have enjoyed a very material increase in its passenger revenue. The estimated loss to the company by reason of reduced passenger fares in Missouri and Arkansas is $340,000.

"The per cent of expenses to revenues was 76.64 per cent, as against 69.31 per cent of the preceding year, or an increase of 7.33 per cent.

"During the year the main track mileage operated by the St. Louis Southwestern was 1,753.8 miles, an increase of 145.3 miles over the year before, this being due to the acquisition of the Stephenville North & South Texas and the Paragould Southeastern."

BUSINESS CONDITIONS ARE BETTER IN WEST TEXAS.

Traveling Freight Agent of Santa Fe Says Much Cotton Has Been Sold and Goods Ordered.

Sunday's Fort Worth Star-Telegram publishes the following interview with Alex Graham, traveling freight agent of the Santa Fe Railway:

"West Texas merchants are showing more confidence now in business conditions than they have since the European war broke out, according to Alex Graham, traveling freight agent of the Santa Fe, who returned Saturday from a tour of that part of the State.

"He names several West Texas merchants who, during the past week, have wired big orders for fall and winter merchandise. At the beginning of the war these merchants had already ordered big supplies or were preparing to order. The war curtailed their buying, however. The fact that they are sending in rush orders for goods gives evidence of prosperity in West Texas, Graham says.

"Much cotton is being sold," Graham reports. "Money is getting back into circulation out there. Debts are being paid. The farmers are buying. Merchants have developed a great feeling of confidence in the last ten days."

MOST OF OUR TROUBLES IMAGINARY—REV. BARNES.

trianly is a sensible thing. It is a matter of profit and loss, pleasure and satisfaction. We will accomplish but little in the world by parading and putting on exhibition our troubles. I have seen folks who seemed to be sensible on almost everything else except their troubles. This they proclaimed from the housetop.

"May the Lord deliver the church from professional calamity howlers. I have heard calamity howling until I am sick. It doesn't matter about the seasons, the crops, wars, prosperity, or anything else, there is so much calamity gas that must be expended. But strange man's financial troubles are seldom heard except in church circles.

"A recent fable says: 'A very hard-hearted clapper in an old church tower professed the most intense distress because its bell was cracked. Many wished the sad-hearted clapper a new bell, and thought its state a miserable one, but just then the ghost of Diogenes, the sage, floated in through the window and whistled most angrily: 'Master clapper, cease your noise, and remember in the first place you cracked the bell, and in the second place, no one would have known it, had you not told it.'"

"Neither will we be a blessing so long as we are always looking on the dark side of life. I have seen some preachers who hadn't seen a ray of light or sunshine for twenty years because their eyes were closed to all the beautiful about them. Some have cried 'Wolf! Wolf!' until the echo has ceased to respond.

"I had rather be born in the paradise of fools than in the cradle of discontent. Many a man passes his days like to old bachelor, 'Who lives his life in sight of paradise, too cowardly to put his arms about it and claim it for his own, or like the old maid who lived her three score years and ten in solitary loneliness, because she was too proud to say yes, and too prim to say no.'

"I do not believe with Russell Cromwell that 'You can laugh off everything.' There is a time to laugh and a time to cry. We are not supposed to be a laughing box, nor a machine gummed up with blues.

"Most of our troubles are imaginary. We are always crossing bridges before they are reached. Some people have predicted famine, panic and starvation. If you will use common sense and reason on the matter you will at once see that our country is in better shape than it has been in years. You are not going to starve or suffer. You may not be able to make as much as you have. The real trouble is that there are too many who want two dollars for one—that's selfish and dishonest. When we get down to legitimate business it will be the best thing, if it takes wars and panics to bring it about.

"There are some people who never see the beauty of the flower or whisp its fragrance for fear of poison. They never behold the beauty of nature for fear of clouds. If it is dry, it's going to be an eternal drouth. If it's wet, it's going to be a flood. O that we might quit playing the fool and 'lift our eyes unto the Hill from whence cometh the light'!

"Why should I brood and mourn over the broken fortunes of life? Why tarry in the hall of pessimism?

"I believe that the world is better to-day than it has ever been since the fall of man. Her culture, refinement, education, superb churches, benevolent organizations are indicative. What is religion if it is not the representatives of Christ looking after the highest interests of man? I believe that we are climbing slowly but surely, round by round, the ladder which will lead finally into the paradise regained. God hasten the day on eagle's wings!

"I am primarily an optimist. Brother, if you have soured on the world, don't bore others with it. Go out with the vultures and heave it up. If you have unkind words to say, say them to the dead, for their hearts you cannot wound. If you are blind to all the good about you, a good case of religion will open your eyes. If you are disgruntled, sour, grouchy and inclined to nagging, a good case of common sense will greatly help you. The world has enough thistles, briars and thorns without our sharpening them with the rock of our harshness. O what a garden spot and paradise we could make this old world—we could turn it into a perpetual rose garden—if we would but trample down the thorns and noxious weeds! We could add perfume where there is stench; we could bring a halo of light where there is darkness; we could bring joy and gladness where there is heartache and sorrow.

"God is not dead. Life and the world are what we make them to ourselves.

The life of the Christian is joy, patience and long suffering. The treasures heaped upon the poor musician by Mathrodates caused joy and happiness and relieved suffering. But, oh, the Christian has a greater treasure than that bequeathed by any earthly king. It should cause him to rejoice even more. He has the promise to which no one can lay claim and wrest from him: 'I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.'"
