

TAXES

We think this is a most opportune time to say something about taxes as all of us have taxes to pay and they are now due.

These taxes are reasonable considering the rapid growth of this district, and the age of our incorporated city.

There would be two results from such a resolution which would work for the good of our district and city.

Our city council and our school board have the power to do this if they so desire but unless the legislature takes quick action we are going to have to pay our state and county taxes in one payment.

The federal government learned a long time ago that it was better to collect income taxes in two payments, and it seems to us that our commissioners and school board could profit by their example and the example of numerous other cities and school districts in Texas who have already passed this resolution.

We are showing our faith in Friona and Parmer county by increasing our investment in the Star. The past week we installed the finest job printing press in the county and one of the finest in the Panhandle.

We took a trip last week to Dimmitt and Hereford. We went to Dimmitt first, and what did we see? A grader smoothing the streets. Citizens told us the streets were graded once a month.

The Star expects in a short time to open its entire plant. The Star has equipment that is second to none in the western part of the Panhandle.

We look a trip last week to Dimmitt and Hereford. We went to Dimmitt first, and what did we see? A grader smoothing the streets. Citizens told us the streets were graded once a month.

You know a fellow ought to always practice what he preaches. We preach trade-at-home and we practice it, but this is more than we can say for some of our fellow citizens, and they are the ones that howl "trade at home" the loudest.

Some merchants say they cannot afford to advertise. The fact is they cannot afford not to advertise according to the advice of all those men who have made an outstanding success as merchants.

Another example is Sears, Roebuck and company which started out in one small upstairs room. Everyone is familiar with the tremendous success of this company.

Do they advertise? The reason that the small merchant is so down on the chain stores is because the chain stores get the customers.

Rain and Snow Drench Parmer County Farms

Once more Parmer county and the Friona trade territory have been soaked with a bountiful rain. Every Saturday night for the last month there has been snow in the county, giving much moisture and making the outlook for a good crop of small grain here seem very bright.

Last Friday night at about 11 o'clock it began to rain and continued lightly throughout the night and all day Saturday, first rain and then snow alternating. It is estimated that nearly an inch of rain fell, soaking the ground with a good season. Farmers are optimistic about their chances for a good crop this year and say that the present moisture is all that they need.

Miss Eunita Williams, Reporter. L. M. Williams and Bet Bates killed hogs Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Whitson and small son called at the Williams home Wednesday.

Ollie Ditt and family called in the L. M. Turner home Wednesday. Estell Williams spent last week with Jim Williams and family.

L. M. Williams and family and Ernest Battle called in the Turner home Sunday night. Lawrence Kemp was in Hereford Tuesday.

Ben Bates visited in Hereford Wednesday. Ernest Battle, Mr. Turner and son were in Hereford Saturday. A good snow fell here Saturday and will help wheat.

W. A. Whitson and son were in town Tuesday. Mr. Kirby and brother were in Hereford trading first of the week.

Mrs. Fleet Entertained. A delightful event Wednesday evening of last week was a stag dinner given by Mrs. R. F. Fleet, honoring Mr. Fleet.

The table was centered with a basket of mixed sweet peas tied with pink tulle and augmented by tall tapers. Place cards and favors of sweet peas marked each plate. A pink and white color note was observed throughout.

A three course dinner was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Ruby Guilliams to Dr. R. R. Willis, O. M. Donaldson, J. R. Roden, Carl Maurer, Dan Etheridge, J. J. Curry and Mr. Fleet.

Grand Dads to Play Basketball. The Black school will have a basketball game between two teams composed of elderly men of the community at the school court, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The two teams will be known as the Old-Timers and Texas Rattlers.

R. O. Bennett will captain the Texas Rattlers and Mr. Hawks has been selected as captain of the Old-Timers. This will be a scream for all who attend.

Another example is Sears, Roebuck and company which started out in one small upstairs room. Everyone is familiar with the tremendous success of this company.

Do they advertise? The reason that the small merchant is so down on the chain stores is because the chain stores get the customers.

How do they get them? They advertise heavily and consistently. You never have seen a successful merchant who says he cannot afford to advertise and you will never see one. They know it pays and consequently advertise.

The merchant who makes the statement that he cannot afford to advertise or who uses a small amount of space is not in position to criticize the advice of these men. He is not successful, the volume of his business shows that—he is simply too hard-headed to learn from the experience of the leaders of his own industry.

Even that ultra-conservative organization, the American Bankers Association, says that every business should have an ad every week in his home town paper, and bankers do not advise to spend money except that they are sure it will pay.—L. E. Bauerfeld.

All club members of the county are invited to be present. Any individual can join the federation whether a club member or not. Much interest is being shown in the federation and great hopes are being held for its constructive work for Parmer county during the year, 1931.

Mrs. Sylvester's Mother Dies. Mrs. M. F. Sylvester was suddenly called to Cross Plains January 6 by the death of her mother, Mrs. W. A. Arrowwood of that city. Mrs. Arrowwood, who had been ill for a long time, left nine children, five sons and four daughters. She had been preceded to the grave by her husband.

Mrs. Sylvester after attending the funeral of her mother, returned to Friona Saturday.

The Laymen's third Sunday meeting representing all church of Friona will take place in the Congregational-Christian church at 7:30. Dr. Sheffey of State College is expected to deliver the address or send a substitute. Everybody is invited to this meeting. Don't miss it.

They Set Air Endurance Record

These girl flyers, Bobbie Trout, left, and Edna Cooper, right, made their marks in aviation history when, by keeping aloft their plane "Lady Ralph" for more than 45 hours, near Los Angeles, they set a new world's endurance refueling record for women and then continued on. They alternated as pilots.

Star Makes Offer to Farmers

The Star is more than anxious to get every farmer in Parmer county on its subscription list. We feel that we need your support and we know that you need the Star, so that you can keep in touch with what is going on in the county.

If you don't take the Star it will not be our fault. In order to get Parmer county farmers to take our paper we are making this offer to Parmer county farmers only: Our subscription rate is $1.50 per year. If you haven't the cash, bring us six dozen eggs and we will take them instead of the money.

Lazbuddie High School. The faculty play, shown in the Lazbuddie high school auditorium some time ago proved so popular and successful that the players have consented to give a second production of it at the same place on the night of January 23. "The Whole Town's Talking" has become the most talked of play ever to be produced here and because of the advertising which its first production has given it we are expecting a packed house on the night of January 23. Come early if you want a good seat. The play starts promptly at 8:00 o'clock.

Yearly Meeting. The yearly meeting of the Congregational society will take place in the church Sunday at 11 a. m. All members and friends of the congregation are notified and urged to be present.

FLYING HAZARDS!

Nunn Made Colonel.

It is Colonel J. Lindsey Nunn now, Governor Arthur Seligman has announced the selection of Mr. Nunn, who is president of the Nunn-Warren Publishing company, as a colonel on his staff. The recipient of this honor is prominent in newspaper and civic affairs of both New Mexico and Texas.

Our Merchants

Fleet's Store is one of the best and most centrally located stores in Friona. R. F. Fleet is the proprietor. He came to our city about nine months ago from Tucumcari, Oklahoma, and bought out E. V. Rushing, who started the store and operated it for some time.

This store carries a complete line of staple and fancy groceries and has a meat market under the management of Mr. Ruth where only the best grades of meat are handled. On the other side of the store there is a stock of dry goods which will fill the needs of anyone living in this vicinity.

This popular store is, through the pleasing personality of Mr. Fleet, enjoying the patronage of a long list of customers. Watch the Star for Mr. Fleet's ads.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones visited his father, Chas. Jones, Sunday. A large crowd attended literary society at the school house Friday night when several excellent numbers were enjoyed, especially "The Negro Wedding."

A fine rain fell in this vicinity Saturday. There was no Sunday school last Sunday, due to bad roads. Everyone is urged to attend our Sunday school next Sunday as new officers will be chosen. Mr. and Mrs. Boston visited in the E. B. Whitefield home Sunday evening.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Dubb Barney, Thursday, January 8, a 9 1/2 pound son at the Hereford hospital. Mrs. Barney is the daughter of Mrs. O. F. Lange of this city.

Gladys Bradley Passes Away On Sunday, Jan. 4

Gladys Bradley, 14 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Helvey who live north of town, died of pneumonia Sunday, January 4, and was buried in the Friona cemetery Monday.

Gladys Elsin Bradley was born at Clondchief, Oklahoma, August 26, 1916, and lived there until she was 13 years of age. She moved with her parents to Friona, where she passed away January 4, at the age of 14 years, four months and nine days.

Her father and two brothers preceded her to the great beyond and she leaves her mother, step-father, one brother, three step-brothers, one step-sister and her aged grand parents, with a host of relatives and friends to mourn her early departure.

Gladys was a pupil of the Friona high school where she was loved by all her class mates. To know her sunny disposition was to love her.

Entertains With Birthday Party.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Warren entertained members of the Warren family Sunday, January 11, at a birthday party and dinner in honor of their two sons, Robert Seidon, age one year, and Robert Neal, four years old.

At the table which was bountifully served were two birthday cakes, one with a single candle and one with four candles and the names of the children were written on top with colored icing.

Both the Warren boys were born January 11, although three years apart. Those attending the mother and father and honorees, were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Warren and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wilkison and daughter, Jacquelyn.

Cleaning Plant Changes Hands. The Friona Dyers and Dry Cleaners has changed hands, Chas. Clayton, one of the partners, selling his interest to J. D. Curry, who is now the sole proprietor. Mr. Curry says that he wants your work and assures the public that they will get more careful and better work than heretofore.

Community Club Meeting. The Community club met January 8 with Mrs. Clara Renner, who lives five miles north of the city. The afternoon was spent in sewing and social conversation. One quilt was quilted. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Renner to ten members, three visitors and several men and children. Club adjourned to meet January 22, with Mrs. Lillian Siber.

REPORTER. W. M. U. Hold Meeting. The W. M. U. No. 2 met with Mrs. R. F. Fleet Tuesday afternoon, January 13. After devotional reading by Mrs. Ham and prayer by Mrs. Fleet, business was discussed for some time. We then adjourned to study first lesson of the manual led by Rev. Robinette. We urge all members to be present at Mrs. Jess Curry's on the afternoon of January 20, to take the second lesson.

The Handsome Man

by Margaret Turnbull

"I know," admitted Aggy a little brokenly. "God forgive me. I'm not meaning anything heartless. But, oh, Rob, he doesn't know this country well. And he's been through such a lot. I'm just beside myself for fear something has happened to the laddie."

"We would soon have heard of it. That's why I'm not worrying about Roberta yet," said Rob sternly. "You're too much of a clucking hen, Aggy. He's a grown man and you can't keep him tied to you."

"I'm not wanting that," asserted Aggy stoutly. "I want him to gang his own gait, but to let me know where he's bound."

Despite his anxiety, Robert MacBeth could not help laughing. "That all you want, Aggy?"

"It's not much, but I do want it."

"He'll have a wife one of these days," said Rob warningly. "Then where will you be?"

"Well, your girl will have a husband one of these days," retorted Aggy defiantly. "Then where will you be?"

"I don't know." He put his hand on his sister's. "We'll maybe have to stick it out together," he said affectionately.

Aggy sighed. "Maybe. I doubt if either of us will find that so agreeable, unless we can get the youngsters to come often to see us. It's always more exciting when they're about. Let's go in Rob, where there are lights. I'll help you."

A car came swiftly up to the terrace and Roberta helped the obstinate Sir George out. The doctor had not been able to keep him in bed. It had been a remarkably silent journey home. Roberta, filled with anxiety for Sir George, had driven. Sir George's head had been on her shoulder. He leaned heavily against her. He had been saving his breath and his strength for his meeting with the redoubtable Robert MacBeth and Aggy, Rob's sister. Yet, Roberta had never would never, have a more thrilling ride than this through the night, with her stranger-husband close to her, dependent on her. There seemed no need of speech between them—yet.

Roberta's firm young arm went around him. She helped him to a chair on the terrace, and as he sank in it, twisted her hands helplessly as she stood looking at him. "You should not stand, not even for a moment! You should be in bed. Oh, what an obstinate man! If Aunt Aggy were to see you now."

"Aggy will have to keep her hands off," said Aggy's ungrateful stepson. "Roberta, divorce is easy in this country and I'll never hold you—if you want to go."

The girl gave him a swift, flashing look. "Why did you marry me?"

He looked at her in the soft light, for the storm was long since over and the late moon was rising. He laughed. "For just the one reason. I'm mad about every hair in your darling red head. I could spend the rest of my life kissing the dimple in your cheek."

"I want the truth."

"You've had it," said Sir George and kissed the dimple and her mouth.

Presently Roberta drew her head back and whispered: "I think I'll stay married to you."

He laughed softly. "You're easily satisfied. I'm still a poor Scot with barren acres and a cold, old stone house."

"And I'm still a red-haired, hateful-tempered—"

"Darling," said Sir George. "Do you think you can help me to the door and face the music?"

"Oh, here you are at last!" Lady Sandison came out on the terrace. "I thought I heard a car. Think shame to yourselves, both of you, gallivanting about, leaving your guests to find their way home the best they could, and frightening me and Rob out of our senses."

"Oh, no," said Sir George quickly. "You were not really worrying about us yet, Aggy."

"Was I not," she came nearer and perceived that Roberta's arm was about Sir George and that his face was white in the moonlight and his head bandaged as well as his foot. She ran to him. "Roberta MacBeth, you heartless girl, what have you been doing to my laddie?"

"Marrying me, Aggy," said her stepson smiling.

"What!"

Robert MacBeth had heard their voices and such was his anxiety had risen from his wheelchair and was slowly hobbling toward them. Roberta, now that Aggy was there to support Sir George, ran to him and put her arms about him. She led him to where Lady Sandison knelt, her arms about her boy.

But Sir George put Aggy aside and held out his hand to Roberta. She left Robert MacBeth and went to him.

"I—we—we're married, sir. Sorry I can't stand up," Sir George added, sinking back into his chair. "It was a little sudden, but I trust you won't object very strenuously."

"I do," said Robert MacBeth angrily, clutching at a chair to help him stand erect. "I do most strenuously."

"Father!" cried Roberta. "Wait until you hear why he did it. He wasn't in the least to blame. He did it to save me from a terrible mistake."

"Nothing of the kind," declared Sir George indignantly. "I did it because I've been mad about you ever since I first set eyes on you."

"That's the plain truth," declared Lady Sandison. "And it's me that knows it. Let the laddie sit down on this chair, and do you sit down yourself, Rob, before you get all hot and bothered about nothing."

"But not to tell me—" began Robert MacBeth.

"And why should they?" asked Aggy. "Are they not both old enough and do they not know you would have made such a big affair of their wedding that they would have been stone tired of the whole idea before it was over? No, Rob, it was a sensible thing they did and you'll come around to their way of thinking before this night's very old. You should be in bed, Sir George. I'll call August."

"You'll do nothing of the kind. I won't be managed, Aggy," her stepson said doggedly, though he knew he protested in vain, and to the day of her death Aggy would be openly or through Roberta trying to guide the Sandison family. "I'm a married man, Roberta, take her away while I talk to your father."

"Why Did You Marry Me?"

"You're in no state—" Aggy began. "Aggy," Sir George said warningly, "one word more from you and I'll put my bad foot on the ground, and stamp on it."

"Mighty me! Behave yourself, laddie. Roberta, my lamb, these men are just nothing to bother about. The poor lame crock! I wonder we're so concerned with them. Leave them to their talk. Have you had anything to eat?"

"George wouldn't eat, and oh, Aunt Aggy, he was so brave."

"I believe you, my lass. Come, lambe, and tell me all about it while we gather together something to eat."

She put her arm about her niece and they went off together, without a backward look at the two men.

Sir George faced MacBeth. MacBeth looked at him a moment and then pushed his chair nearer and held out his hand. "You look done," he said, "we'll hobble in together and you tell me about it."

"I'm the happiest man alive," declared Sir George, holding his father-in-law's shoulder and hobbling along, "but I certainly feel seedy or rocky, whichever they say over here. What put you on your feet, sir?"

"Your marriage," said MacBeth grimly. "Lie down and give me the whole tale. It looks to me like a good one."

"Well, you see," he sank down on the wide davenport. "It's a wild tale."

Roberta, sparkling-eyed and red cheeked, lovely despite her damaged dress and burnt fingers, came to the doorway.

"On the whole, sir, I think my wife could tell it better than I can. It's a quaint tale, isn't it, Bobbie?"

Nova Scotian Island Dreaded by Mariners

Every year, Sable Island, on the coast of Nova Scotia, has had its tale of disasters. During the war between the French and the English, troop ships were known to be dashed to pieces in the terrific breakers. In 1746 the Duc d'Anville lost a transport and a fireship in a severe storm near the island, and in 1761, one of the vessels that had been with Wolfe at Quebec was wrecked. A curious tale is told about the latter.

There was an old landmark on the island in the form of a pyramid of sand a hundred feet high. In 1842, during a fearful hurricane, this was completely blown away, and where it had stood were some small huts built from the timbers of wrecked ships. The huts contained articles of furniture, robes of blankets, some military shoes, and boxes of other goods. A brass dog collar that was unearthed bore the name of Major Elliott, Forty-third regiment. This was the regiment wrecked in 1761, and examination of

"It's the most thrilling thing you've ever heard," said Roberta, Lady Sandison, "but we'll have to wait for the Dowager Lady Sandison to come in. She made me promise not to tell it until she joined us."

The Dowager Lady Sandison came into the library with a large tray. She waved aside all assistance and put it on the table near Sir George, and began to arrange it for him.

"I had this ready against your coming," she said with a satisfied air. "You're a pair of poor looking lads," she added surveying the men, "for all that Roberta and I think so much of you." She began to pour out the coffee. "This'll put heart in you, my lad. Tell the tale, Lady Sandison."

Roberta, from the arm of her husband's chair, looked at them wide-eyed. "It's the most thrilling thing that ever happened."

"Hear! Hear!" said Sir George. "Romeo and Juliet's little story scarcely compares with it. Put some cream in my coffee like a dutiful wife and then talk while I eat, Roberta. After a little careful training you'll be fit for Sandisbrae and Bonnie Scotland."

"I doubt it," said the Dowager Lady Sandison, beaming at them. "She'll never be meek enough to suit. It's grand that she caught you this side of the water. Glad as I am that it happened, I am fair astonished that it ever came off. As late as this afternoon I would have sworn that Sir George would as soon see you drowned as marry you."

"So would I," declared Robert MacBeth, "and what's more, I would have sworn that Roberta would have drowned you if you'd asked her."

"How perfectly absurd!" said Roberta.

"Absolutely!" agreed her husband. Aggy looked at her brother, with a queer little smile and then turned to Sir George and his lady. "I suppose," she sighed, "there'll be no holding you on this island now."

"Oh, why not? Jolly interesting place, this island," said Sir George. "At least, it's just as Roberta says."

"Perfectly all right place for George to rest up in," Roberta agreed. "Don't see a thing wrong with it."

"I could stay here forever—with you," he told her, between bites of the cake with which she was feeding him.

Robert MacBeth, though he found locomotion tiresome and painful, rose up heavily and muttering some excuse about fresh air, which was quite unnecessary as neither Roberta nor Sir George seemed to notice his withdrawal, went out on the terrace. Aggy followed him and gave him her arm to a chair.

"It's grand," she sighed. "I'm thinking that with the Sandison weediness toned down a bit by the MacBeth stockiness your grandchildren should be a fine-looking lot."

Her brother gave a smothered roar. "You talk as though you'd planned it."

"Well," began Aggy modestly, but Robert MacBeth refused to listen.

"As yet we're in the dark as to how it happened."

Aggy laughed. "And likely to be for a while," she said cheerfully. "It's my opinion they're no very clear about it themselves."

But Rob was not to be so easily soothed. "Did you hear what they said? What's the matter with them? Are they crazy?"

Lady Sandison laughed. "It's love," she said philosophically. "We'll just have to stand it for awhile. You can do nothing with them at this stage."

"They'll condescend to stay on my island, now," Rob said it bitterly. "A while ago they were both sick of it."

"What can you expect?" asked his sister. She looked at him sympathetically. "Don't be a jealous fool, Rob. You're getting what you wanted, though not in just the way you wanted it, and so are they."

"I thought," MacBeth growled, a little ashamed of himself, though it's hard to see one's only daughter completely engrossed in another and younger man, "I thought they were after thrills?"

"Well, and have they not found them?"

"What, here on this island!"

"No, stupid man, in each other."

TIME OPPORTUNE TO CONSIDER STARTING ON FAMILY SEWING

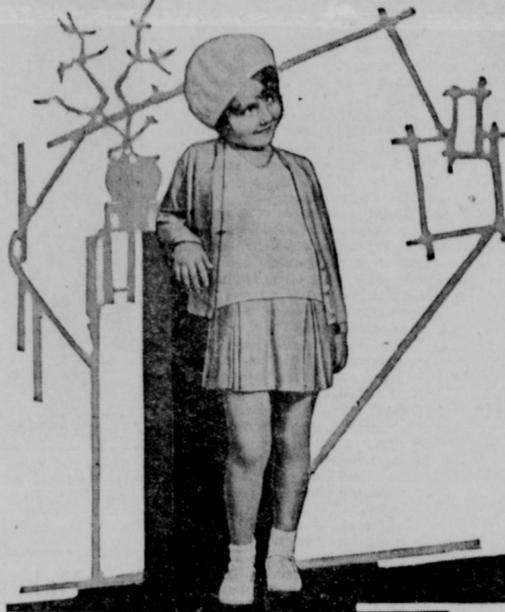

HERE'S hoping that the first weeks of the new year will be profitably spent in getting the family sewing in motion. Of course, the prologue to this annual sewing-fest is going to be a matter of looking up new materials and studying the latest patterns and attending to the numerous details which have to do with mapping out a successful dressmaking campaign.

Usually it is the little folks whose needs are considered first by home-sewing mothers, and the spring fabric collections are apt to be studied from have at least a touch of it about the costume somewhere. Even the sheers of evening frocks are apt to be embellished with fur. Winter resort fashions are going so far as to trim the new gay-print chiffons with borders and bows of dainty peltry.

The program of velvet with fur as designers are presenting it for mid-winter is a luxurious one. It is not only that the furs themselves are extraordinary but their treatment in a trimming way is most unusual.

The unique arrangement of the handsome blue fox which trims the the viewpoint of what's prettiest for little daughter's school and playtime frocks. Just now, for practical and immediate wear, crepes, both printed and plain, also plaques, attract considerable attention, and the outstanding note about them is their high colorings and the fact that they are used together in striking contrast, such as brown with yellow, pink with blue, green with white and so on. One of the discoveries in the fabric realm is that of a new weave which the salesperson will tell you is called satin jersey. It is made of beemberg which means that it is woven of a synthetic yarn which is neither silk, cotton, wool or linen, but is one of the man-created fibers which have so successfully worked their way into the good graces of modern weavers.

The cunning youngster in the picture is wearing a jacket costume made of peach-colored beemberg satin jersey. The blouse is of the same material in white. The fact that this smart little model is styled with a pleated skirt, a short jacket and a blouse is gorgeous ruby velvet evening wrap pictured below tells a story of the unusual, and it is true all the way through, wherever fur is employed as trimming, there is almost sure to be an element of novelty in its manipulation.

The designful manner in which fur trims are handled applies to both the showy long-haired type and to the thin fabriclike kinds. Perfectly stunning are the midwinter short-jacket suits which are made of velvet and which are richly embellished with fur. These resolve themselves into two classes, those which make a spectacular display such as gray tweed trimmed with long-haired gray fur, or perhaps a rich red suit elaborated with lynx or wolf or black fox, the collars, cuffs and borderings being massive in their treatment.

Contrasting these bizarre effects are the suits and coats of handsome materials, frequent, of broadcloth or of velvet which are enhanced with trimmings of flat fabriclike fur manipulated so ingeniously, their novelty something mothers should jot down in their notebooks for reference when they go to hunt up latest patterns. 'Tis said that the trend in little girls' styles is decidedly in the direction of three-piece effects of this character, the skirt flaring either because of pleats or being circular cut, and the blouse featuring color contrast.

Velvet With Fur.

Fashion is setting no limit as to the amount of fur that may be lavished on the coat, the suit or the dress. The sentiment for trimming with fur is increasing. One really must makes them outstanding. An argument in favor of suits of this type is that they are not only timely for immediate wear, but when the severity of midwinter is over the jacket and skirt costume with lightweight fur will be found wearable. In fact for midseason and until spring actually sets in two piece suits which are ingeniously detailed with astrakhan persian lamb, dyed lapin and any peltry that admits of being treated like fabric the suit will take first place.

Balloon Rises 10 Miles
A new record for upper air wind observations has been set at the Oakland (Calif.) airport. The course of a small test balloon was followed by a weather bureau observer until it had reached an altitude of more than ten miles. When it passed out of the theodolite's range, its exact height was 54,134 feet. Ninety-two minutes were required for the balloon to reach that altitude.

An Eminent Physician Prescribed this Tonic

As a young man Dr. R. V. Pierce practiced medicine in Pennsylvania. His prescriptions met with such great demand that he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and put up in ready-to-use form his well-known tonic for the blood, Golden Medical Discovery. It aids digestion, acts as a tonic, and enriches the blood—clears away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear. This medicine comes in both fluid and tablets. Colorado Land Holdings

The United States government is by far the largest land holder in the state of Colorado, according to the state immigration bureau. While precise figures are impossible to compile because of conflicts of reserves, withdrawals and classifications, the bureau estimates that the government owns or controls 37 per cent of the entire surface area of the state.

Amazes Mother

"Bobbie's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. P. S. Fletcher, Jr., 4410 W. 30th St., Los Angeles, Cal. "We found he was constipated."

"Mother used California Fig Syrup, so we gave Bobbie some. He amazed me by the quick way he became strong, energetic, well again. His bowels act freely now, and his digestion is splendid."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, head-achy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Every child loves it. It has the full endorsement of doctors. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomachs and bowels are given tone and strength.

Look for the word California on the carton. That marks the genuine, famous for 50 years.

POULTRY

BEGIN FIGHT ON CHICK ENEMIES

Attempt Being Made to Save Fluffy Youngsters.

A war against the enemies of baby chicks, in an effort to save the lives of many of the fluffy youngsters who fall by the wayside between the incubator and the laying house, is being waged by poultry men in the chief Nevada producing areas.

Through co-operation with the Nevada agricultural extension service, Prof. V. E. Scott, poultry specialist, has announced, producers in several counties are inaugurating a "grow healthy chicks" project which, it is hoped, will result in more eggs for Nevada breakfasts and more Sunday chicken dinners.

With clean chicks, clean brooders, clean yards, clean feed and clean management as their slogans and objectives, the chicken raisers have primed their guns for the fowl enemies.

Nevada poultry men, Professor Scott states, are going to begin the fight with clean chicks, which they will purchase from hatcheries having a clean bill of health and producing youngsters free from disease and capable of high production.

Brooders, into which the delicate prospective dinners will be kept, will receive the appellation of "spotless" when the chicken raisers are through with them, for they will be scraped of crust, scrubbed with a hot lye solution and disinfected. Moreover, they will be cleaned daily, says Professor Scott, for infant mortality among chicks can mount high under uncleanness.

When the chicks step forth from the brooders to get the air and sunshine, it will not be on ordinary ground, but on new sweet earth or that on which a crop has grown, he says.

Feed, too, will be clean, according to Scott, who urges a well-balanced ration in clean troughs scrubbed daily, together with fresh water in clean drinking fountains.

And the management, he says, will take every precaution to prevent contamination from other fowls or other poultry yards.

Laying Hen Will Eat Large Calcium Supply

A 200-egg-a-year hen must eat four pounds of oyster shells, limestone or equivalent, alone, writes Dr. R. M. Bethke in the Farm Journal.

If the calcium supply is short, she either lays weak-shelled eggs of low market value, or goes on a strike and quits work entirely.

Moreover, she must have plenty of vitamin D in order to assimilate the calcium. The principal sources of vitamin D are direct sunlight, sunlight through a good glass substitute, or cod liver oil.

A dozen other kinds of minerals are necessary for her highness. These are plentiful in some kinds of feed and lacking in others. If they are not furnished, the quality and quantity of eggs are low.

The poultrymen who are handling high-producing flocks, supplying eggs to high-class trade, must be well qualified mineralogists, as well as high-class experts in many other branches of poultry raising.

New Egg Mold Causing Losses to Handlers

Recently a peculiar mold which develops on egg shells during shipment and in cold storage has caused some heavy losses to the handlers of cold storage eggs. As nearly as can be learned, it seems that this mold is caused by using crates made of unseasoned or poorly seasoned wood.

This spot mold first appears on the outside of the egg shell. It leaves the egg unsightly and reduces its market value. Within a short time it will penetrate the shell, spreading through the interior surface and giving the egg a moldy flavor. It can be eliminated by using only well-seasoned egg crates.

Disinfect Incubators

A thorough disinfectant of all incubators and incubator trays previous to the hatching season is in order. Such a precaution should be taken, says Dr. C. C. Lipp, of the South Dakota State college, as an aid in the prevention of bacillary white diarrhea, an almost fatal disease to young chicks.

A carbolic acid solution of 12 tablespoonfuls to a gallon of water will do the work. This should be applied early.

Ducks and Turkeys

Duck eggs can be successfully hatched in an incubator by following the special instructions sent with the machine. Turkey eggs can be hatched artificially but it is not the usual custom. Because of the value of the eggs it is usually considered safest to place them under hens or turkeys. This divides up the risk and furnishes a good natural brooder for the pouls. A good starting feed for pouls can be made of stale bread soaked in milk and squeezed nearly dry.

HEAD HURT?

WORK won't wait for a headache to wear off. Don't look for sympathy at such times, but get some Bayer Aspirin. It never fails.

Don't be a chronic sufferer from headaches, or any other pain. See a doctor and get at the cause. Meantime, don't play martyr. There's always quick comfort in Bayer Aspirin. It never does any harm. Isn't it foolish to suffer any needless pain? It may be only a simple headache, or it may be neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatism. Lumbago. Bayer Aspirin is still the sensible thing to take. There is hardly any ache or pain these tablets can't relieve; they are a great comfort to women who suffer periodically; they are always to be relied on for breaking up colds.

Buy the box that says Bayer, and has Genuine printed in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin doesn't depress the heart. All druggists.

Swiftest, Easiest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags. Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret tonight. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored.

Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets. 10c.

Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child. All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

Palm Beach Sets Styles for Spring

COTTONS AND LINENS IN NEW OPEN MESHES ARE WELL ADAPTED TO TAILORED EFFECTS—SLEEVELESS JUMPER SUITS IN VOGUE

BY HARRIET

THE Palm Beach breezes bring rumors of the tremendous vogue for cottons and linens in the new southern fashions.

As go Palm Beach styles in January, so go all styles for spring. So, if you are clever with your needle, you can get a head start on the rest of your friends and begin now to collect the spring wardrobe.

The new cottons and linens have learned a lot from silks and wools in the way of varying their weaves. There are all kinds of fascinating new open mesh materials, striped, ribbed, flecked and those made with nubby dots and dashes. Some new cottons have the feel of woven wools and are admirably suited to tailored effects.

With the new era of economy dawning, spring promises many a smart suit, home or party frock made of cotton that would have been expensive silks in former years.

There are some smart sleeveless jumper suits in the new styles. One of these is a tricky, young looking little outfit of heavy cotton tweed. It is made with a white sponge blouse that laces up the front with a blue silk cord.

The skirt has pleats all around one side, beginning in the front and extending over the hip to the outer edge of a panel back. These pleats are stitched to hip length and a belt of the material is stitched onto the top of the skirt.

The little sleeveless jacket has smart wide revers, buttons with pointed flaps and a separate belt of the material that slips through a buckle. A blue satin turban and blue snakeskin shoes complete the outfit.

SMART also is the perfectly charming plaid gingham dress with a neck scarf with pleated ends that tie to make a fan-shaped jabot.

The colors are brown, tan, white and a narrow stripe of red. The goods is used horizontally for the hip-yoke, which gives an

An idea of what to expect in spring fashions may be had from this chic sports costume, left, with tuck-in blouse, self-fabric belt and cap sleeves. Notice the interesting pleated neck scarf. interesting novelty to the dress. Short little sleeves are set into the beautifully fitted blouse. Below the yoke the skirt is pleated across the front and across the back.

When the scarf is removed, there is a simple V neck, finished with a piping of the red and white lines. Worn with a white beret, white washable cotton gloves and white oxfords, this frock is as chic as can be.

Cotton tweed promises to be tremendously smart for all kinds of sports things this spring. It comes in loose, open mesh weave, looks and feels as substantial as homespun and is cool, in addition.

year. Then watch your business grow."

"The newspaper," he said, "is an accurate mirror of the town which it serves. If your town is a live town, one that can meet the intense competition of today, the newspaper will be filled each issue with snappy invitations to trade at the various stores of that town. Your newspaper is your weekly or daily contact with the people of your trade territory. Use it liberally and you will be surprised at the results.

"The merchants in any community where a real newspaper is published could afford to pay the subscription of the paper for every resident within thirty miles—they would get their money back many times over by increasing contacts for advertising messages.

"Boost for your newspaper. It is always boosting the community and the boost you give will pay you big dividends."

We might add to the above accurate statement that the active efforts of the publisher of a community newspaper to add to the advertising patronage of his paper are prompted entirely by his desire to make a living and his conviction that the prosperity of his business depends upon that of the people of the community served by his paper. Briefly stated, it is the publisher's duty to his community to turn out a good paper, one that will command the respect and confidence of its readers, and creditably represent its business interests. The larger his circulation, the greater his opportunities for attracting general good, and the more he has to sell to his advertisers.

In soliciting local advertising the conscientious publisher feels that he is asking others to the surest road to growth and prosperity, and to the development of the district in which they do business and that in doing so he is helping himself.—Carondelet News.

Coach Wilke of the Phillips team has gathered an array of stars, the equal of which has never been assembled on one team before.

FOUR BASIC RULES FOR FLOCK UPKEEP OUTLINED

Profits from poultry raising depend in large measure upon maximum egg production. And this in turn hinges upon the observance of four basic rules of flock upkeep, anyone of which if disregarded, will decrease the efficiency of the birds.

1. Proper feeding.
2. Providing a comfortable house with plenty of room for exercise.
3. Maintenance of healthy, vigorous birds.
4. Stocking the flock with birds bred to lay.

Ready mixed poultry mashers are very satisfactory and if readily available and not too high priced may be fed. Feeding should be done at regular hours, preferably twice a day, once in the morning and once in the evening. While their appetites should always be kept keen, the birds nevertheless should be fed all they want to eat.

Chief among the features embodied in the properly built poultry house are adequate space for the desired number of birds, adequate distribution of sunlight, adequate ventilation, comfort in quarters and equipment and durability and convenience.

The poultryman is finding that vigorous, healthy birds bred to lay are assured if he replenishes his stock with baby chicks obtained from a reliable hatchery.

Agricultural Club Holds Meeting.

The agricultural club held a meeting January 1. There was no program so the club decided on a color for their suits. Mr. Heath got samples of suits while he was on his vacation. The club agreed that members could get a jacket or suit. The same emblem that they had on their suits last year will be put on the suits this year.

Last Friday the Chiefs played Hereford a 12-12 tie in a fast game of basketball. This was one of the best games seen in this section so far this year, and every minute held its thrills.

Because of the delay in sending in this report, full report of the game cannot be made.

Home Economics Club.

The home economics club met January 7 for their annual meeting. New officers are: Juanita Crow, president; Helen Schlenker, vice president; Florence Key, secretary and treasurer; Ola Lee Callaway, reporter.

The club decided to meet at the home of members instead of at the noon hour. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Gardner.

Miss Spring On Honor Roll.

Miss Mary Spring of Friona made the honor roll for the fall term at Texas Technological College with an average grade of B on 16 term hours of work, according to the report of the registrar's office.

Kibbe's Auto Is Found; Roy Scott In Jail

From The Hereford Brand
Roy Scott, age 26, was lodged in the county jail late Tuesday night, charged with automobile theft. It is alleged that he stole R. J. Kibbe's Chevrolet car, 1928 model, while it was parked Monday night in front of the Western National Bank.

Clyde Kibbe had driven his father's car to town to attend the O'Ed Fellows' meeting, and when he came from the lodge rooms to go home he found his car missing.

Late Tuesday afternoon Clyde stopped at a farm home seven miles north of Hereford and while there observed a partially stripped motor car which he recognized as belonging to his father. Roy Scott was present, living there with his brother-in-law. Nothing was said about the automobile, but Clyde hurried to town and reported to Emmett Hales, deputy sheriff, who rushed back to the scene.

However, when he arrived Scott had disappeared. A thorough search of the house and premises was made, and Mr. Hales drove back to town. Later in the night he and Deputy Sheriff Allred made another trip to the place of the suspect and found Mr. Scott sleeping in his room, with a shotgun lying nearby on the floor. He was arrested and taken to jail, and refuses to make any statement.

Roy Scott has served a term in the penitentiary for automobile theft at Vernon, it is claimed, and has been living in this county for about a year.

Scott brought the Kibbe car to the home of his brother-in-law Monday night, and the next morning told his relatives he had traded his old Buick for the Chevrolet and the shotgun which he was carrying. The gun belonged to Mr. Kibbe and had been left by Clyde in the car.

Scott had spent part of Tuesday, according to his relatives, in removing parts from the vehicle. That afternoon he drove his old car up to the Hereford Wrecking company at Miles and West Third and left it, stating that he wanted to sell it for anything he could get, according to the managers, Lusk & Clark.

BY MRS. L. JOHNSON

Sunday school officers were chosen last Sunday as follows: Joe Kendall, superintendent; Obe Roberson, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Obe Roberson, secretary; G. P. Owens, teacher adult class; Mrs. Ky Lawrence, advance class; Mrs. Joe KeKendall, young people's class; Mrs. Gerald Morgan, intermediate; Mrs. J. B. Davis, juniors; Miss Leatrus, Walsler and Mrs. Brit Clark, primary classes.

Mrs. A. M. Walker returned home with her baby son last Saturday from the hospital in Hereford.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson returned Saturday from a month's visit with relatives at Palestine, Waco and Dallas.

Mrs. Lee Curry was leader of the W. M. S. last Wednesday afternoon. The class is studying the book on Lottie Moon, and will be examined next Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Roberson of Hereford visited in the home of his mother, Mrs. Bulah Roberson, one day recently.

Christine and Ruth Atchley and Louise Suttle entertained several girl friends to dinner Sunday.

Walter Hawkins received the sad news of the death of his father, J. Hawkins, who died at Lamesa.

Santa Fe Will Spend $100,000 In This Section

From The Hereford Brand
In replacing the 90-pound steel with 110-pound rails on the stretch of track between Hereford and Canyon, the Santa Fe will expend about $100,000 for labor, according to J. B. Briscoe, superintendent of the Plains division. Total for material and construction cost will be around $468,000.

The Santa Fe will pay 33 cents an hour for unskilled labor and it is reported that white workers in Amarillo will be employed. Eight hours will be a working day. Not only new rails will be laid, but new cross-ties will replace the old ones.

The reconstruction will begin March 1, and will furnish employment for from 200 to 250 men.

Hereford Golf Club Effects Reorganization

From The Hereford Brand
Members of the Hereford golf club met Friday night, reorganized and elected officers. J. M. Posey succeeds J. J. Clark as president; Dow Mercer was re-elected chairman of the grounds committee; John Patton re-elected secretary. One of the chief items of interest in the reorganization was reduction of annual fees from $30 to $24, payable semi-annually.

The local club has a roster of high grade golfers, hard to down by the pick of West Texas. The grounds have been pronounced much better than the average.

Students at Knox College raised a fund of $400 to maintain their baseball team. It is the best time that saved nine.

To Grade and Mark 30 Miles

An official party of the Santa Fe railroad, headed by J. B. Briscoe, superintendent of this division, paid Hereford a visit Tuesday, looking over the prospective work which will start soon in replacing the rails between here and Canyon.

The officials made the trip in a specially designed automobile, equipped with flange iron wheels for railroad travel.

W. H. Medeland of Wellington, Kansas, inspector and expert steel man, has taken quarters at the Cordova hotel where his headquarters will be for several weeks. His work consists of inspecting every rail between Hereford and Canyon and marking on them their grade number. The grades range from one to three. The best steel of the 90 pounds to be taken up will be used on another line of the Santa Fe.

The Santa Fe officials were approached while here on their employment plans in improving the 30-mile stretch and were requested to consider local men. It was intimated that 20 or 30 men from this section would be offered jobs.

LOVE DERELICT KILLS BRIDE TO GET "REVENGE"

Takes Her for Woman Who Jilted Him Before Victim Was Born.

Ottawa, Can.—The verdict of an 11-member jury was "guilty" to a tragic case when William Nelson, sixty-five, self-confessed slayer of Mrs. Olga James, twenty-one, a bride of four months, was found insane, and committed to an asylum for life.

Demented by brooding over an unhappy love affair in his youth, Nelson strangled Mrs. James to death in her own home, in the belief, police say, that she was the woman who had proved faithless to him nearly forty years before.

Memories of Wrong.

Nelson was employed as a painter on the house which Reginald James and his bride were to occupy after their marriage. When the couple first visited the house to inspect it, Nelson evinced surprise and extraordinary emotion at the sight of the young woman, who apparently awakened in his warped mind memories of a wrong done to him two score years ago.

For four months thereafter, he apparently laid cunning plans for his fancied vengeance. Gaining possession of a key to the home from the builder, he entered the house soon after the husband had left one morning, and strangled Mrs. James with a length of window cord as she still lay in bed.

Finds Bride Dead.

James, returning home at noon, found his wife dead, and an incoherent pencilled note beside the bed.

"This is your dirty work, that you have done on me," the missive read. "It may be a lesson not to treat any other man that way. This woman played the most rotten game she could play, on a man. Now see what you've done."

Acting on a description given by neighbors who had seen the man entering the house, police traced Nelson and arrested him. He confessed his crime, insisting that his twenty-one-year-old victim was the woman who had wrecked his life nearly twenty years before she was born.

Bandits Take Victim's

Chicago.—Joseph Demetriads and H. A. Ullien were the only customers in the haberdashery store of Syllin Trantafol when two men entered, drew revolvers, and marched them back to a rear room.

"Take off your coats," ordered the leader. "Now your vests, now your shirts—"

And so on down to socks. The victims' clothing was hung over the arm of the second bandit, who had previously rifled the cash till of $45. As the last of the habiliments was handed over the leader suddenly glared at Mr. Demetriads' neck below the Adam's apple and roared:

"Hey, you, give me that stickpin. Trying to get away with something, eh?"

"No, sir," said Mr. Demetriads, "I'm not. That's a mole."

So they let Mr. Demetriads keep his mole and left.

"The judge did me an injustice," said Eisen as he left the courtroom under $5,400 bond.

"It was an insult," Eisen continued. "He said I'd been arrested 37 times. It's not so. I've never been arrested but 24 times in all my life."

Modern Building to House Young Stock and Care for Their Feed

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

On the modern dairy farm the calves are taken away from their mothers a few days after birth. While this is not a handicap to their growth and health under the present-day methods of feeding and handling, housing them so they will develop rapidly and so that the work of caring for them at the least possible labor costs requires a building especially designed for the young stock. Such a building is shown in the accompanying illustration.

This calf barn is 78 feet long and 24 feet wide. As will be seen by the floor plan, there are ten pens, six on one side and four on the other side of the feed alley running through the center of the building. There also is a room for mixing the feed for the calves. The plans also include a cross section and various details which furnish sufficient information from which a contractor can undertake the actual building of this barn.

Make Livable Quarters Out of Old Basement

The old-fashioned basement—that dark, remote dungeon dreaded by timid children and shunned by every one except the man who tends the furnace—is taking its place along with ancient torture chambers and other rooms of the dusty past. It is being supplanted by livable and attractive quarters.

As new houses are constructed with an eye to utilizing every possible foot of space, the basement becomes one of the most popular parts of the whole house. In summer it is cooler than the upstairs sections and in winter, because of the location of the heater, the basement is always comfortably warm. That it is set off somewhat from the rest of the house makes it suitable for the children's playroom or for a special retreat for the man who wants room in which to keep a work bench and tools or indulge in some hobby that does not brook interruption by the rest of the family.

Even where the furnace is a coal burner, part of the basement may be salvaged for room space if it is separated from the furnace and coal bins by dust-proof doors protected with weather stripping. A certain basement storeroom, dust laden and cluttered with broken furniture and cast off odds and ends, was reclaimed as a playroom by sealing it from the furnace part and providing it with a separate entrance.

The steps leading down to the new entrance door of glass were painted with untinted white-lead paint to increase the reflected light in the room. The treads of the steps were painted a darker tone that would not readily show wear. The deep window casements were also painted with white paint. To add further to the lightness of the room, the ceiling was painted a yellow just off the white and the walls were given a coating of plastic white-lead paint in a pale green color in the vein relief effect. Plastic paint was chosen because the slightly roughened surface was more in keeping with the character of the room than a smooth finish and less likely to show scars and marks of play. During inclement weather especially will children enjoy such a room.

Home Styles in America Wretched, Says Wilbur

Three-fourths of the buildings erected in the United States in 1929 were so ugly, so badly planned, that they were liabilities from their inception.

That is the opinion of Charles H. Cheeney, of the American Institute of Architects. The opinion is shared by United States Secretary of the Interior Wilbur.

"Small house architecture in American towns in the past has been wretched," says Mr. Wilbur in the current American Architect. "People are only beginning to realize that home charm may be achieved at small cost. Indeed, the American people have endured the blight of homes built along incorrect architectural lines long enough."

The American Architect sees a promise of less ugliness.

"The swing to better designed houses has already started," it says. "Buyers have helped tremendously by demanding better design. Builders who have sensed this tendency and build better designed houses find they can sell their products much easier. Their houses create greater customer satisfaction, which in turn brings additional jobs from the buyer's friends and others."

So the end of the Rutherford B. Hayes era looms.

Fireplace Hearth Trip Simplifies Ash Removal

A new type of fireplace ash dump trips a large section of the hearth downward, instantly disposing of all accumulated ashes and dirt. The control mechanism is concealed within the masonry of the fireplace.

The dumping section is 14 by 24 inches in diameter and may be made to match the masonry work of the remainder of the hearth, so that the general appearance is uniform.

The apparatus is very easy to operate, a slight pull on the convenient control handle tripping the dumping section or returning it to place at will. A curved metal shield automatically seals the hearth opening against the escape of sparks, ashes or dust. The device may be installed in any type of fireplace, whether old or new.

A NEW NATIONAL PARK

where HISTORY WAS MADE

Pocahontas Statue
Jamestown Island, Va.

Old Bruton Church
Williamsburg, Va.

Warren Estate
Jamestown, Va.

Moore House, Yorktown, Va. Where Cornwallis Surrendered

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE NATION is soon to have a new national park, a playground for his children which is richer in historic interest, perhaps, than any other tract of the same size in his whole domain. For under the terms of the Cramton bill, sponsored by Representative Louis C. Cramton of Michigan and passed by both houses of congress last year, a narrow peninsula between the James and York rivers in Virginia, which has aptly been called the "Cradle of the Republic," will become the "National Colonial Monument."

By the provisions of the bill, most of Jamestown Island, where the first permanent English settlement in America was founded in 1607, will be taken over. A small part now in the hands of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities will remain in the custody of that organization, but the remainder will become the property of the federal government. A sea wall will be built around the island to halt the erosion which has been slowly washing it away; the marshes will be drained, and perhaps a reproduction of the original settlement, with its log cabins and stockade, will be constructed.

Jamestown will be connected with Williamsburg, six miles distant, by a picturesque, winding road, passing through trees a large part of the way, and built to resemble a colonial highway. Only enough of Williamsburg to permit the roadway to pass through the town will be included in the monument, but all visitors to the latter will also wish to see Williamsburg, now undergoing a marvelous transformation at the hands of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

From Williamsburg the winding road will proceed to Yorktown, 14 miles away. The historic field where, on October 19, 1781, the British under Cornwallis marched out with hands playing, "The World Turned Upside Down," and surrendered to the American and French, will be taken over and incorporated in the monument. The Moore house near the field where the terms of surrender were drawn up has been bought by Mr. Rockefeller and will be open to visitors.

Thus, within a radius of 14 miles from Williamsburg the tourist will be able to visit the place where American colonial history began, the place where many of the most interesting events of the colonial era occurred and the place where that era came to a close.

Of first interest in the new national monument is Jamestown, "the birthplace of Virginia and of the United States." What its part in the nation's history has been is shown by the following chronology:

May 13, 1607—The first permanent English settlement in America was made at Jamestown by colonists sent out by the London company.
September 10, 1608—Capt. John Smith began to serve as president of the council, the chief executive of the colony.
October 4, 1609—Capt. John Smith took passage for England, leaving George Pery as his successor. Smith never returned to Jamestown.
October, 1609—June, 1610—The "starving time" of which only 60 of the original 500 settlers survived.
June 7, 1610—Every one embarked from Jamestown for England, but two days later they returned with Lord De la Ware, who brought supplies and additional settlers.

1612—John Rolfe began the cultivation of tobacco.

April 1, 1614—Pocahontas was married to John Rolfe and peace with the Indians prevailed until her death.

July 30, 1619—The first legislative assembly in America met at Jamestown.

March 22, 1622—The great Indian massacre, led by Chief Opechancanough, brother of Powhatan, took place and out of a population of 1,240 whites, 347 were slain.

June 20, 1624—The royal charter of the London company was declared null and void and Virginia became a royal province.

August, 1641—Sir William Berkeley commissioned governor of Virginia.

March 12, 1652—The colony surrendered to representatives of parliament.

1676—The year of Bacon's rebellion in which Jamestown was burned by Bacon September 16, 1676.

April, 1699—Middle Plantation, now Williamsburg, made the seat of government by an act passed by the general assembly.

At present only a few ruins of the historic town are left. Most interesting of these, of course, is the square brick tower, all that remains of the church built by Lord De la Ware in 1639 and burned by Nathaniel Bacon in 1676. This brick structure had succeeded the frame structure in which Pocahontas had been baptized and given the name of Lady Rebecca and in which she was married to John Rolfe. Second only in interest to the church tower is the oldest house of English construction in America today which stands just across the river from Jamestown Island. It is known as the Warren estate (also as Smith's fort) and was built for the son of John Rolfe and Pocahontas and he lived in it for many years. A more modern structure which always attracts the attention of the visitor is the Pocahontas statue, erected in 1922 by the Pocahontas Memorial association, composed of descendants of the Indian girl, who is represented in it as hurrying with outstretched hands to help save the colonists from starvation or the tomahawk of hostile Indians.

Just as Jamestown represents the early colonial period in our history, so does Williamsburg represent the middle period or the "golden age" of the colonial regime. In 1623 Governor Wyatt considered the plan of running a palisade between the James and York rivers from Martin's Hundred to Chiskiack, but this plan was delayed. In 1632 Dr. John Pott obtained a patent for 1,200 acres of land at the head of Archer's Hope creek and the next year a palisade, six miles long, was built connecting the head of Archer's Hope creek, which is a tributary of the James river, and the head of Queen's creek, a tributary of the York river. On the ridge between the two rivers and close to the palisade, a settlement, called Middle Plantations, was made. The chronology of Middle Plantations, which became Williamsburg, is as follows:

1693—The general assembly enacted a law providing "that the Middle Plantation be the place for erecting the College of William and Mary in Virginia."

1698—After the burning of Jamestown, Governor Francis Nicholson established Middle Plantation as the seat of government.

1699—The action of Governor Nicholson was approved by the general assembly and an act was passed directing the building of the capitol at Middle Plantation. Two hundred and eighty-three acres were laid out for a city. The main street was named Duke of Gloucester street, in honor of Queen Anne's eldest son.

1705—The general assembly met for the first time in the new capitol building. Appropriation was made to begin the governor's palace.

1706—Mattey's free school founded.

1716—William Livingston built here the first theater in America.

1722—The town of Williamsburg was incorporated as a city.

1730—First permanent printing office south of the Potomac river established by William Parks.

1736—The Virginia Gazette, the first newspaper south of the Potomac, established by William Parks.

1764—The capitol building burned.

May 29, 1765—Patrick Henry offered his resolutions against the Stamp Act in the house of burgesses.

May 6, 1776—The fifth and most important of all revolutionary conventions in Virginia met and adopted the first Virginia constitution.

April, 1780—Through the influence of Thomas Jefferson, who was elected governor in 1779, the seat of government was moved from Williamsburg to Richmond.

The restoration of historic Williamsburg to its ancient appearance through funds provided by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is one of the romantic incidents of modern American history. To list all of the historic buildings which are still standing little changed by the passing of two centuries as well as those which are being restored would require a volume for the telling. Certainly none is more interesting than the structure which houses the College of William and Mary and which contains memories of so many great men. Washington received from the college his commission as surveyor and served as chancellor of it from 1788 to his death. Thomas Jefferson was a student there from March, 1769, to April, 1762. James Monroe also studied there, leaving at the outbreak of the Revolution to join the Continental army. The list of early students also included such names as the Randolphs, the Wythes, the Madisons, the Harrisons and in later years it carried on its rolls John Marshall, later the great chief justice of the United States Supreme court, and John Tyler, another Virginia President.

Other notable buildings include Bruton Parish church, built in 1715 on the foundations of the former church which had been built in 1683, which contains among other relics of interest the baptismal font in which Pocahontas was baptized; the famous old Raleigh tavern in one room of which was organized on December 5, 1776, the Phi Beta Kappa society; and the old colonial jail which held such famous prisoners as Gov. Henry Hamilton, the British "Hair-Buyer," after his capture at Vincennes by George Rogers Clark, the Virginian, and the followers of Blackbeard, the pirate.

Just as Jamestown prepared the way for Williamsburg, so did Williamsburg prepare the way for Yorktown and the historic events which took place there. The three are inseparable. In 1621 a royal patent was granted to the lands now occupied by Yorktown, and in 1691 by an act of the general assembly 50 acres of land were purchased for a port on the York river, the price paid being 10,000 pounds of tobacco, the standard of currency in Virginia at that time. This land was divided into 83 half-acre lots and streets laid out and named, many of which are the same today.

Here in 1715 the first custom house in America (still standing) was built and it became the port of entry for Boston, New York and other northern ports. Yorktown's greatest fame came, however, in 1781 when its siege by the French and American forces finally brought about the surrender of Cornwallis and the freedom of the American colonies.

Those persons and things, then, that inspire us to do our best, that make us live at our best, when we are in their presence, that call forth from us our latent and unsuspected personality, that nourish and support that personality—those are our friends.—Randolph S. Bourne.

VARIOUS GOOD THINGS

If you like the Chinese dishes this will be one to prepare for the guests who also enjoy them:

Crab and Egg Omelet.—If the fresh shrimps or crab is used, cook and cool. Shred one cupful of crab or shrimp. Cut one cupful of lean pork into inch long narrow strips. Use scissors for the cutting. Soak one-fourth of a cupful of dried mushrooms, then cut into strips. Slice one large mild onion and cut fine into strips. Fry the pork in two tablespoonfuls of peanut oil until tender and brown. Add onion, one cupful of bamboo shoots and mushrooms, a tablespoonful of soy sauce. Just before dinner beat six eggs, add the finely cut crab or shrimp and the vegetable mixture. Fry in a small amount of peanut oil in small bits like a pancake.

Lobster Club Sandwich.—Toast bread cut one-third of an inch thick, butter and keep hot. Allow two slices for each person to be served. Saute the lobster in a little butter, use either fresh or canned. Season well with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of currant jelly. Fry bacon until crisp. Place slices of bacon on toast and over this a layer of pieces of lobster; cover with mayonnaise, then top with a piece of crisp lettuce or chilled watercress; make another layer of bacon and lobster and on top place a slice of toast. Garnish the sandwiches with sliced tomato, mayonnaise and lemon. Cut into triangles and serve.

Pimiento Cup With Egg and Celery.—Drain the small red peppers from their liquor, place in gem pans to fill. Fill with the following salad: Chop one cupful of celery very fine and mix with two hard cooked eggs chopped. Into this stir one-half cupful of mayonnaise and fill the cups. Decorate with mayonnaise and small shapes cut of green pepper. Serve very cold on crisp lettuce with toasted biscuit and cheese.

How Volcanic Islands

Act as Safety Valves

Niufou is one of the Tonga, or Friendly Islands, situated halfway between Samoa and Fiji in one of the most restless geological areas in the world. Stretching across the South Pacific from Samoa to North Island, New Zealand, there is a huge fissure in the earth's crust. Volcanic islands, such as Niufou, strewn along this gigantic crack, act as vents for the molten mass within the earth. The Jack-in-the-box island of Falcon has popped up from the ocean's bottom at least twice, only to be washed and blown away each time by sea and wind. Only recently it has made its reappearance again in larger size, acting as one of these famous safety valves for the earth's mighty internal furnace.

To passengers of steamers passing close, the island looks like any other tropical isle, green with vegetation and coconut palms. Clean white houses and thatched native churches set in grassy lawns dot the hillsides. When wind and sea are quiet, landings are made in small open boats which are guided skillfully into a nook partly sheltered by fingers of lava flow. Such landings are dangerous and exciting, because the boats bob up and down with the incoming rollers and scrape against the steep, jagged cliffs.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Wanted to See the Fight

Joseph Van Raalte tells of a New Yorker who went to see the same theater play every night for two weeks. "You seem to be stuck on this show," the ticket seller said to him one evening.

"No," said the man, "it's this way: You know that part in the second act, where the husband goes out and the lover comes in the fire escape window? Well, some one of these nights the husband is going to forget something and come back for it an' ketch that bird. An' when he does, I want to be there."—Capper's Weekly.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Approaching an Agreement

"I have forgotten more about statesmanship than you ever knew," said the rude visitor.

"I don't know how much you knew in the first place," answered Senator Sorghum; "but there is no doubt in my mind about your having forgotten it."

There May be Poison in YOUR Bowels!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other pure ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system form souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drug stores sell.

MINISTRY OF JOHN THE BAPTIST

Luke 3:7-17

Golden Text: Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance.—Luke 3:8.

Introduction.

There was a wide divergence of opinion among the Jews as to what the kingdom of God they were expecting was to be like, and how it was to come; but a general agreement that its King Messiah was to be preceded by a forerunner; in accordance with numerous Old Testament prophecies, such as that quoted in verses 4 and 5 from Isaiah 40, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord."

John is in many respects a typical Old Testament prophet; like Amos and Micah inveighing against the unrighteousness of his people, insisting upon thoroughgoing positive moral reformation, preceded by honest repentance. Now this is exactly the kind of preparation that the coming of the kingdom of God (or heaven) requires. It is inconceivable that the hard-of-heart, the hypocritical, the sinful, be found in it (cp. Rev. 22:15; 20:8). It was inevitable, then, that "repent" should be the big word of John's proclamation.

A Voice Crying In the Wilderness.
The wilderness in which the voice was crying is the barren waste and desolation of the Jewish life of that day; but the "way of the Lord" is ever a way of holiness. Moffatt renders: "Clear the way for the Eternal through the waste, level a highroad for our God across the desert!" The teaching of Jesus is figuratively anticipated: At the very outset the kingdom demands that the proud and mighty be humbled—at least brought down to the common level—and the humble and meek, the common people, lifted up. "Crooked shall be made straight"; no obstacles or menacing difficulties should be able to resist or hinder the labors of the pioneers of the kingdom of God. (Cambridge Bible.)

The locality of his ministry was the sunken Jordan valley north of the Dead Sea. It was not altogether unsettled, let Robinson describe it: "A more frightful desert it had hardly been our lot to behold."

John, the Preacher.

"When John appeared as a preacher, he did not need to beat up a congregation. There went out to him all Judea, scribes and Pharisees, publicans and sinners, soldiers and civilians. Mere were conscious that a new power had appeared among them. Something, perhaps, was due to his appearance; the soft livers in the cities wondered at the unkempt, shaggy figure, whose trumpet tones shook them. His emaciated, weather-beaten face, from which there gleamed an eye all the darker and more piercing for the pallor and thinness of the features surrounding it, suggested to them that this man had gone into deeper experiences, and knew currents of feeling quicker and more profound than any they had ever been con-

Pecan Nut Discovered by Farm Agent Brings Prosperity to Mississippi Area

ABOUT 10 years ago an alert farm agent of Adams county, Mississippi, named H. J. Greer found what he thought to be a new type of pecan nut growing on a plantation near Natchez.

His discovery aroused little interest in Natchez at the time but the young agent started out to tell the land owners about the new nut and the advantages in cultivating it. And now they're glad he did.

Drought Results

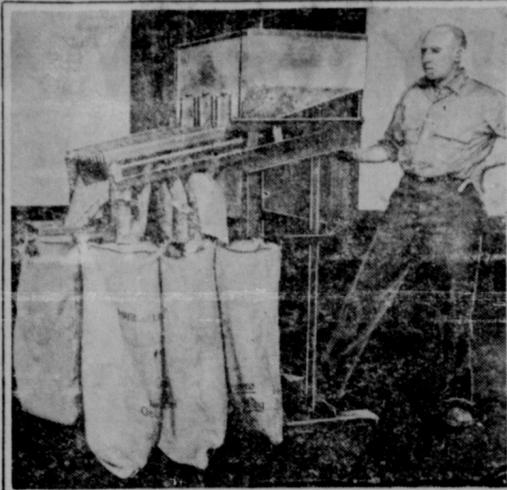

Not long ago the drought hit Natchez hard. Feed and food crops were lost. The price of cotton fell. Farmers had no money from their crops and lacked credit to carry on until another crop was made. On top of it all came the widespread depression.

Greer's missionary work began to bear fruit. Pecan nut growers who had taken Greer's advice to top work and graft the abundant wild pecan trees with new paper shelled varieties found the trees just coming into bearing. So this year, for the first time, the marketing of the nut crop forged to the front as a major business.

Millions of pounds of nuts are being shipped by the local co-operative pecan marketing association through the national association with headquarters at Jackson, Miss. Independent buyers are commanding prices of from 10 to 60 cents a pound.

The Co-operative Scheme

When local paper shell growers decided that the co-operative marketing plan offered the best opportunity to obtain top prices for choice varieties, they organized the Natchez Co-operative Pecan Marketing Association, leased a warehouse and purchased grading machinery.

Grading pecan nuts

By Dec. 15 the total of pecan shipments from Natchez reached 4,000,000 pounds, with the prospects for the shipping season to continue for two months longer.

The co-operative plan for marketing is functioning so well that the manager of the Natchez association predicts that 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 pounds will be marketed next year.

There are several recognized types of paper shelled pecan, but the "Natchez" is considered best of all because the trees bear heavily, the nuts are larger and mature well.

When Greer discovered the wild seedling from which the "Natchez" was propagated, he notified the United States Department of Agriculture. Experts there confirmed the fact that a new type of paper shell pecan had been discovered and officially listed it as "The Natchez."

A state experimental station specializing in pecan culture, was soon established in Adams county and Greer appointed the director. With the aid of an assistant, he is continuing his work of producing bigger and better pecans.

scious of."—Prof. A. B. Davidson.

Fruits Worth of Repentance.
"Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance." Moffatt translates it, "Now, produce fruits that answer to your repentance," fruits that match it and prove it.

"Savonarola, called to the death bed of Lorenzo di Medici, who appeared to be in agonies of penitence, refused to speak words of hope because the dying man declined to give back its liberties to Florence, which the great preacher demanded as proof that the despot's repentance was genuine."—New Century Bible. "And begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father." The Jews exalted themselves beyond measure in their pride in their great ancestor, Abraham (John 8:39), hardly believing it possible that any descendant of that noble pioneer could be lost. They were right in honoring Abraham, as we are right in our praise of Washington, but the more honorable the ancestor, the more disgraceful it the ignoble descendant.

"And the multitudes asked him, saying, What then must we do?" All preaching, all Sunday school teaching, all home instruction, all private meditation on God's Word, should have issue in this question. Thus after his vision of the Lord on the road to Damascus the conscience-stricken and converted Saul cried out, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Compare Acts 2:37; 16:30.

John Instructs Publicans.

"And there came also publicans to be baptized." The Romans farmed out the taxes to knights who agreed to pay certain sums to the government. They, however, collected as much more as they could, keeping the balance as their profits—a cruel system. These knights hired the publicans for the actual work of gathering the taxes and these publicans made their own profit in turn, plundering the people right and left. They were, therefore, the most hated of all classes. "And they said unto him, Teacher, what must we do?" John's preaching must have been powerful to touch the hard hearts of such men, and make them feel the need of reformation.

"And he said unto them, Extort no more than that which is appointed you." The publicans, as a class, had misrepresented the government and abused their power, and so fostered dishonesty and selfishness in the land, and sadly lowered the tone of public morality. So, without wasting words, he added the force of his stern command to the authority of their aroused consciences, and plainly told them to cease exacting from the defenseless people more than was just.

John's Greatness In Humility.

"There cometh he that is mightier than I." In recognizing his littleness in the presence of Christ, John showed his real greatness. "The latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to unloose." The "latchet" means the leather thong by which the sandal was laced together. "To bear the shoes of a person or unloose his shoe-latchet was among the humblest offices performed by slaves; and thus John protested that he was not worthy to be even the slave of the Messiah."—James Stalker. "He shall baptize you in the Holy Spirit and in fire." Thus the coming Messiah would infinitely surpass John in John's own province. The medium of water would be replaced by the medium of fire, the flaming presence and power of God's Spirit, by which true converts to Christ would be surrounded, penetrated, upheld, inspired and empowered, so that the least child of Christ's kingdom would be greater than John the Baptist, though he was the greatest of all men up to his time.

Baptism of Spirit and of Fire.

"So it came to pass that Jesus entered upon his mission in a country morally awake. There was a new spirit over all the land because John had spoken. Jesus had an audience to which he could utter words they could not have understood had John never preached. But Jesus brought more than an emphasis on John's message. He brought a satisfaction of all the need John's ministry had brought to light. Sin was a dreadful monster, the consciousness of whose presence John's ministry had roused. But John was unable to slay the monster. Some sudden sense of a dealing with sin more fundamental than any of which his ministry had been able to tell flashed through the mind of John when he said of Jesus, 'Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world.'—Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, D. D.

"We may all adopt the words of the Baptist and tell our living Head that we have need to be baptized of him—need to be plunged into the fiery baptism; need to be searched by the stinging flame; need to be caught in the transfiguring, heaven-leaping energy of the Holy Spirit, borne upon his bosom into the rare atmosphere where the seven lamps burn always before the throne of God. The blood of the Lamb and the fire of the Holy Spirit are thus inextricably united."—F. B. Meyer.

John's Martyrdom.

"John was sincere and thorough. He could not rebuke the sins of the common people, of the Pharisees, of the publicans, of the soldiers, and remain silent concerning the glaring sins of the head of the land in which he was preaching, Herod Antipas. Herod was guilty of many crimes, but his outstanding iniquity was his living with his brother's wife, Herodias. His bold rebuke of this wickedness made Herodias his implacable enemy, and the faithful young preacher soon found himself incarcerated in the gloomy dungeon of Herod's palace prison of Machaerus, a black and forbidding fortress situated near the northeast shore of the Dead Sea. Canon Tristram visited the ruins in that scene of "weird-like desolation", finding the remains of dungeons with "small holes still visible in the masonry, where staples of wood and iron had once been fixed. One of these dungeons must surely have been the prison-home of John the Baptist. There the free spirit of the man of the wilderness, of the fresh air must have wasted and worn itself out against the pitiless masonry, until the plotting of the base Herodias, combined with the dancing of her daughter, Salome, at last procured from the half-hearted Herod the great man's execution."
