The Art of Advertising—No. 3
The world is at last coming to know the utility of advertising. A commodity cannot be sold until the public knows that it is on sale at a designated place. The newspaper is the best medium of publicity whether of a utility design, a political gathering, or a religious service.
The Bible is authority for appealing to the mind and the spirit through the eye. Deut. 6:9, instructs the Israelites in regard to the commandments: "Thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."
The patent medicine men are wiser in their generation than the children of light. They placard the bridges, the trees and the sides of houses. They are determined to make their wares go, and they do it by persistent advertising.
But the fine art of legitimate advertising puts forth no extravagant claims. It consists in setting forth everything attractively, but modestly. It must catch the eye of the reader, and in order to do this the page and the position of the ad. on the page both enter into the account. Plainview has two papers, and they are both good newspapers.
Chronicle regrets that we are to lose from our city that choice spirit, Rev. Mr. Davis, who has just resigned the pastorate of the Christian church. Brother Davis is a big-hearted, fraternal Christian gentleman. Chronicle desires for him a prosperous and happy pastorate in his new labor.

Missouri Lady Suffered Until She Tried Cardui.—Says "Result Was Surprising."—Got Along Fine, Became Normal and Healthy.

Springfield Mo.—"My back was so weak I could hardly stand up, and I would have bearing-down pains and was not well at any time," says Mrs. D. V. Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 6, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. I saw after taking some Cardui . . . that I was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person."

"Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me . . . My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

Thousands of women have suffered as Mrs. Williams describes, until they found relief from the use of Cardui. Since it has helped so many, you should not hesitate to try Cardui if troubled with womanly ailments.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies today that relieve, but do not cure. Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results to thousands. Here is Plainview evidence of their verities. St. L. says: "About two years ago I found it necessary to use a kidney medicine, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Long's Drug Store, Inc. I had been troubled for some time with my back being weak and lame. The kidney secretions had been too frequent in passage and highly colored. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills helped me and continued use made a cure."

When the old fort was laid out the great and rich Plains lands of Texas

Cigarette

To seal in the delicious Burley tobacco flavor.

It's Toasted

were looked upon as worthless desert waste. How different now!

Captain Marcy in his report called them the "Llano Estacado," of the great Sahara of North America. He says:

"It is a region almost of vast as the trackless ocean—a land where no man, either savage or civilized, permanently abides. It spreads forth into treeless, desolate waste, of uninhabited solitude, which always has been, and must continue, uninhabited forever. Even the savages dare not cross it except at two or three places, where they know water can be found."

How different the picture now, all over West Texas!

And how much is the vast difference due to the forces turned loose in that region when Old Fort Phantom Hill was established.

"Where are Elm and the Clear Fork mingle, as they journey to the sea; Where of old the dusky savage and the shaggy bison trod;

Where the twilight loves to linger, ere night's sable robes are cast, Round grim-ruined, spectral chimneys, telling stories of the past; There upon an airy mesa, close beside a whispering rill,

There today you'll find the ruins of Old Phantom Hill." —Chittenden.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS

"How prone we are to forget," says Editor Ransome of the Cleburne Enterprise. "We do not live alone. Each is dependent upon the other for something worth while and essential. We are all traveling to the same place. Why not travel in friendliness, why not go along the way with hand outstretched and with a willingness to be of service wherever we can?"

Shall we realize this truth with the coming of the millennium, that period to which the world looks forward with happy anticipations? It must attend that time, for it is a condition of mind, leading to actual reality, that will help bring on the millennium.

People are prone to forget favors, but not so likely to forget an ill deed. And yet the latter is frequently unintentional and often exists more in fancy than in fact. Failure to make allowance for the point of view of another, inability to know the other's thoughts and failure to remember that one's own thoughts are not known to the other, leads often to misunderstanding, and a friendship is broken or becomes estranged without real cause.

There is an old fable about two travelers, each carrying a full bag and an empty bag, one struggling under the weight of his burden and the other apparently being buoyed up by his load. The struggling man told how he put all favors done him in a bag with a hole in it, so they fell through the hole and were forgotten, while he placed all the ill deeds and discourtesies in a sack which had no hole, and the weight had become very great. The other traveler reversed this order and his full bag acted like a balloon, proving no weight at all and lifting him over rough and difficult places.

It is easy to travel in friendliness, remembering favors and forgetting ill deeds, if the habit be formed. Recalling good deeds of others leads to the performance of good deeds. It brings friends closer together and makes more friends. It makes life more enjoyable for all, lightens the dark places and brushes away obstacles. One ill-humored person in a household will bring on gloom just as a handful of mud will darken a basin of water, and that gloom will be carried from the household into other households into the school rooms, into the business offices, its ripple, like ripple of a pebble cast into the water, traveling a long distance. It is forgetfulness of the friendship of others and thoughts of self alone that brings on such ill humor.

But a bright smile, a cheery word, a courteous act or a good deed will travel much further. If it were not so the world would be cast down with gloom. People are learning this truth and more and more, for policy's sake if for no better reason, are adopting the smiling manner and cheering message. It is gaining headway even in the home where the grouch has always seemed to claim a preferential right, and it is spreading over the world. The world is more friendly today than it was several centuries ago. Personal distempers are becoming less common and sympathy is more widespread. War has become so deadly that self-interest will require it be stopped. Certainly there is every reason to look forward hopefully in firm belief that the world is steadily getting better and the people of the world are learning how to be happier.—Fort Worth Record.

Fifty Killed in Airship

London, Aug. 24.—The new American dirigible ZR-2 exploded over Hull today at 5:45 p. m. and broke in half and fell wrecked into the Humber river.

Fifty men were believed to have perished in the disaster. Two were saved. Waters of the Humber near where the bag tumbled to destruction were being searched for traces of the crew.

Captain Maxfield of the U. S. Navy was on board.

The remainder of the crew was composed of 331 British air service men who were instructing the Americans in the handling of the gas bag, preparatory to starting the flight for the United States within a few days.

Captain Maxfield had not yet officially taken over the ship which was technically in charge of Captain Wann of the British air force until the tests had been completed.

Big Results From A Small Outlay of Money

The News carries the largest volume of Want Ads of any paper in this section. There is a reason for this, for if satisfactory results were not obtained people would not continue to spend their money for Want Ads in this paper.

The News is read by more farmers and other people in Plainview trade territory than any other newspaper, and these people buy lots of things. They sell lots of things. They rent rooms and houses, etc.

A Want Adv. in the News costs only 15c for fifteen words and 1c for each additional word, but it is read by possibly six to eight thousand people. Isn't that very cheap publicity? Can you beat it?

If you have anything to sell or trade, a room or house or farm to rent, there is something you want to buy or trade for; something lost or found; a cow or horse strayed, some notice you wish to give publicity to, you will get results if you use the News Want columns.
