SPARROW-HAWKS GOT SNAKE GUARDIANS TO BE TRUSTED

Reptile Seemed to Have Small Change One Would Think, However, Resource Against the Little Though Fierce Birds.

We soon found that there were two sparrow-hawks about, and by the 7th of March it seemed evident that they scarce, so the native prince, ruler of were mated and were considering the the country, uses crocodiles to guard locality as a summer residence.

We now saw them almost daily, and the perfect domestic harmony, indeed I should say affection, shown between them, and the tender care and gallantry on the part of the male, would ures safe from those who coveted seem to suggest a high plane of evolution, and reminds one again that | guards, because like as not the guards all the world is kin. Indeed, what have we of altruism which may not have its beginning in the humblest creature?

In accord with history and tradition the male was chief hunter, but very often shared the game with his mate after the "killing." Rushing to the back window, attracted by a loud call of killee, killee, killee, we would frequently see him returning from the hunt with a rat, a mouse, or an English sparrow, and it must be confessed that even small song-birds were not strictly prohibited under his liberal interpretation of the law. In a moment the female would light on a perch nearby, whereupon the male would immediately remove the mouse from his talons, with which the prey is almost always carried, and politely deliver it to his mate from his beak.

One bright, sunny afternoon there was an unusually excited call heard. It seemed that a garter-snake had glided forth from its hiding place to enjoy the early spring warmth, a circumstance which proved more fortunate for the "early bird" than for the early snake. It was most picturesque and exciting even to a spectator to see this fierce little bird, slightly smaller than a flicker, flying about from tree to tree as if in search of a more favorable stand, struggling with his writhing prey. When the snake had been decapitated and several inches of its length devoured, it seemed sufficiently subdued to be offered to the mate, although it was still wriggling when she accepted the offering. She ate it with evident relish, holding it firmly on the branch under her foot while she pulled off small pieces. When the tail was reached it became very difficult to hold this slender, tapering morsel.-S. Harmsted Chubb in Scribner's.

Was Marcus Aurelius a Persecutor? Under the reign of the prince philosopher, Marcus Aurelius, were the Christians persecuted? After Renan, Linsenmayer and Ahard have charged the memory of that emperor with this infamy, now A. P. The Old Family Toddy.

According to a rural paper a central Kentucky man prides himself in the possession of a "toddy glass" that has been in his family for over a century. The "toddy glass" recalls an old Kentucky custom that was an institution down to ante-bellum days.

The "toddy glass" was utilized for the mixing of an old-fashioned toddy that was passed around and partaken of by company and the family. The common toddy existed before the sanitary crusade started and individual toddies became the vogue. In these days even if prohibition did not stand in the way, the old-time "toddy glass" game," said the captain of the first likely would be placed under the health law along with the common drinking cup.-Louisville Courier-Journal.

New Kind of Auto.

David Cook, age five, of Wabash has been around automobiles ever since he was born, but was never at Lake Wawasee until last Sunday, A friend of the Cook family had the youngster out showing him the sights, and finally pointed out a sail boat which was traveling in the distance. ful Thief Might Consider the Use of Poisoned Bait.

Thieves are plenty in Annata, in southeast Asia, but steel safes are his treasures. Rulers in that countre have great wealth in valuable jewels. gold, and silver.

The prince of Annam was puzzled for a long time how to keep his treas them. He could not trust armed would turn around and steal some of the gold or silver or precious jewels when the prince was not looking. Finally he thought about crocodiles, They are ferocious animals and do not steal.

In the interior of his palace he caused to be constructed a basin which he kept filled with water. Then he procured several teak logs, bored them. through, placed his valuables in the logs, sealed both ends and sunk thems in the basin of water.

Having obtained two crocodiles, heput them in the tank of water to guard the treasures. The crocodiles are fed just enough to keep them perpetually hungry. The prince feels safe. Anybody attempting to fish the logs out of the pool will be a nice meal for the crocodiles.

ANTS' KEEN SENSE OF SMELL

Are Said to Have Neither Sight Nor Hearing, but Remarkable Olfactory Nerves.

Ants are said to be both blind and deaf, but none are known to be destitute of the sense of smell. The olfactory organs are little sensory pits in the antennae. It is evidently by means of their sense of smell that ants recognize the members of their own nest, and those of other species which they treat as enemies. However, certain species of ants are evidently not deaf, because they are capable of producing sounds. which must be heard by others of their own kind. One species has a file-like soundproducing apparatus on the abdominal segment. Another ant of this group is provided with a stridulating file, and in another ant there is a stridulating organ consisting of a band of very fine raised lines on the second segment behind the node. Other ants tap on the surface of a leaf with their heads, producing a sound audible to human ears, as does another species by scraping the end of its abdomen on the dry leaves of its nest.

Discipline.

A northern guest in Pinehurst happened upon an old negro who was beating down dried cotton stalks. "Uncle, what did the boll weevil do to you this past year?" he inquired.

The old man looked up, saw "one o' dem nawthern folks," and answered him in this manner: "Lawd, boss, dey was de wust here

"I have no idea, uncle. What was it?" the northerner replied. "Lawd, cap, de old pappy boll weevil had a big stick beating all de little boll weevils 'cause dey wouldn't take two rows at a time."-North Carolina Boll,

United States Citizenship.

The fact that a child of a citizen of the United States is born abroad does not affect that child's citizenship in the United States. By the revised statutes of the United States a son born to parents who are citizens of the United States while they are traveling in Europe is an American citizen as fully as if he had been born in this country and is entitled to all the rights of a citizen when he becomes of age. The federal Constitution provides that "no person except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President," so that a naturalized citizen cannot become president.

How She Interpreted Dream.

Sir Frederick Bridge, for over 40 years the organist at Westminster abbey, tells a story about a lottery which permitted the choice of special numbers on the tickets.

A little girl bought a ticket for a lottery, and insisted that she should be allotted No. 23. As she would buy no other ticket, her wish was granted, and she won a considerable sum.

"Why did you want that number?" she was asked afterwards.

"Well, I had a dream," she said. "I dreamt that I had bought No. 7, and I dreamt it three times." So I said to myself: "Three sevens are twentythree, and that's the number for me!"

The Canterbury Tales.

How essentially, how intimately English the famous poem is! So admirably has he managed to interweave the various tales with the encounters. and casual dialogues of the actual wayfaring that, long before Broughton on Blee is reached, we have come earing acres of Kent! - LI Powys, in "Thirteen Worth

"INSTITUTIONS OF PUBLIC SERVICE"

Guaranty Fund banks have been rightly called "Institutions of Public Service."

This, because they are actuated by the idea of safeguarding the funds of every depositor, and as such, are fully measured up to the highest principle and purpose of the Guaranty Fund Law.

This law was enacted for the primary, intermediate and ultimate purpose of Insuring Protection to Depositors, and so splendidly has it operated that Not a Penny Has Ever Been Lost by a Depositor on a Non-Interest Bearing and Unsecured Account in a Guaranty Fund Bank in Texas.

This bank, as an "Institution of Public Service" Invites Your Account.
