A DISTINGUISHED FARM GIRL

PEGGY KEITH IS QUEEN OF EVERY AGRICULTURAL CLUB PROJECT.

By George H. Dacy, in Dearborn Independent.

After competing with 600,000 boys and girls who belong to agricultural clubs in all parts of the United States, Peggy Keith, of Warrenton, Virginia, has been proclaimed by the United States Department of Agriculture "America's most distinguished farm girl," the highest title in Uncle Sam's power to bestow on the farm girls interested in the improved methods of farming which he advocates.

If ever there was a one-hundred-per-cent farm girl, Peggy Keith is that selfsame miss. She knows how to farm. She understands the science of technical agriculture. She can nurse a sick cow or a delicate pig back to health. She is qualified to act as an experienced live stock judge at any stock show or fair in America.

Eight years ago a visitor to the Keith farm sought to buy a dozen pigs. Peggy was then only seven years old but she was sharp as a Damascus saber when it came to a matter of selecting the best pig in the litter. She knew saddle horses as well as the visitor knew the alphabet. She could distinguish the different breeds of sheep and talk fluently about the fine points of the outstanding breeds of dairy cattle. At the age when most girls were still playing with dolls, Peggy Keith was making plans for the future and was fitting herself for the remarkable career which lay before her.

At the Great Eastern States Fair which recently was held at Springfield, Massachusetts, Peggy Keith and her exhibit of ponies, pigs, poultry, dairy cows, canned fruit and vegetables and specimens of corn, potatoes and other crops which the young girl had raised were the extraordinary features. Peggy and her farm pets, including a herd of Guernsey cows, ten Shetland ponies, three baby beeves, went to Springfield at Uncle Sam's expense as a reward for winning the girl's farming championship of America. The purpose of the exhibit was to show how boys' and girls' club work, as an extension agency promoted by the United States Department of Agriculture, secures the adoption of better farming practices and transforms rural lads and lassies into better farmers, homemakers and citizens.

Fauquier County, Virginia, where the Keith farm is located, is one of the best thoroughbred horse sections of the United States. Warrenton has long been famous for its epochal horse shows, its wonderful point-to-point races and steeplechases and the exceptionally fine quality of the saddle horses which are bred and raised in that neighborhood. At four years of age, attired in rompers and hardly large enough to handle the bulky and blocky little pony she rode, Peggy Keith made her entry into the exhibition world. Piloted courageously by the diminutive Peggy, her pony, Corinne, was awarded the blue ribbon in the Shetland class. From that day to this, Peggy has been winning competitions, titles, trophies and prizes.

W. H. Richardson and E. W. Wood of Wichita Falls are here on business. J. N. Donohoo returned yesterday morning from a trip to Hot Springs, Ark.

Peyton B. Randolph left Wednesday morning for a business trip to El Paso.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Pass of Crosbyton are here. They are on their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gouddy have gone to Mexico, where they will make their home.

Earl Cowart, of the Third National Bank, and little son spent Wednesday in Amarillo.

L. P. Barker spent the past week in Dallas, where he attended a meeting of Ford dealers.

Clarence Green and family left yesterday for Greencastle, Mo., for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Coleman spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Anthony in Hereford.

J. D. Allgood of Fort Worth is here visiting Sheriff Sam Faith and attending to business matters.

Mrs. Frank Barrow and children spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Boone, in Hereford.

Mrs. V. V. Beck and baby returned Wednesday morning from a visit of nearly two weeks with her sister in Amarillo.

Mrs. Roland Zeigler returned this morning from Sherman where she was called two weeks ago to attend the funeral of a sister.

Mrs. Joseph Bueheimer of St. Louis is here for a visit until after Christmas. The family lived here for a number of years, until six or seven years ago.

Dr. E. B. Atwood has returned from attending the Baptist state convention held in Galveston the past week.

It has been announced that Plainview high school will play just two more football games this season. This team will play Slaton once more.

Peggy Keith has won twenty silver cups, several hundred dollars in cash prizes and more than fifty blue ribbons at horse shows and agricultural fairs where she has exhibited her championship stock. For three years, she has paid all her school expenses and has financed her farming operations from money which she has earned.

One of Peggy's greatest inheritances is her ability to judge. Among her ancestors are listed many famous judges of Virginia. Parson James Keith, a notable during the early days of Virginia history, was one. He was grandfather of Chief Justice Marshall, whose fame will endure as long as there is a native Virginian. Peggy's grand uncle was Judge James Keith, president of the Old Dominion Court of Appeals. Peggy today ranks as the leading juvenile judge of live stock in the United States, another example of the old saying in Virginia that blood will tell.

Seven years ago, Peggy joined the boys' and girls agricultural club of her neighborhood and grew her first crop of potatoes. She did all the work. The following year, enthusiastic over the agricultural club work, Peggy prepared the land and planted one acre of corn in competition with the other club members of her county. Unfortunately, cattle destroyed most of the corn. Peggy grew another acre of corn the following season, and harvested seventy-five bushels from her prize-winning plot.

When eleven, Peggy joined the Fauquier County Canning Club, grew one-tenth of an acre of tomatoes and pickled twenty-four quarts of green tomatoes. She studied modern canning so efficiently that for two years she canned fruit and vegetables which she exhibited and won the majority of the awards at the local county fair.

As appropriate side lines to canning activities, Peggy also engaged in poultry and baby beef production. She started operations as a poultry raiser four years ago with but one setting of eggs. Today, she has a flock of sixty standard-bred Langshans and forty Rhode Island Reds which furnish the eggs and poultry for the Keith family table and yield to their juvenile owner a tidy annual income. During the winter and spring of 1919, young Miss Keith fed two Shorthorn steers very successfully and sold them for top prices. In 1921, she fed a Hereford beef calf which made a record gain of 400 pounds and won first place at the Virginia State Fair.

Peggy Keith learned the essentials of live stock judging at a short course in agriculture conducted in 1920 by her state college. The following year she was selected to represent her county on a judging team at the state fair. The next year she was a member of the team that represented the Old Dominion at the national boys' stock judging contest held at Atlantic City. There were fifty boys in the big judging match. Peggy was the only girl. Largely through her efforts, the Virginia team won second honors.

Last summer at a county fair in Virginia, a county agent whom Peggy knew was assigned to judge all the live stock exhibits. He called Peggy to assist him. The girl did not make a single error.

Peggy Keith aided in the organization of the first pony club in America and now she is president of the unique association. The members are all youngsters who own ponies. Each summer, they have a pony show managed by juveniles which attracts many visitors from Washington, New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Many other pony clubs have recently been organized and all are outcrops of the Warrenton club.

Whenever her parents wish to buy any dairy or beef cattle, they ask Peggy to accompany them. Not only is she a good judge, but she also has achieved considerable success as an amateur veterinarian and stable nurse.

One of her purebred Guernsey cows which she purchased with money that she saved from her farming enterprises contracted pneumonia last winter. Peggy swathed the body of her valuable cow in mustard plasters. Night and day while the crisis lasted, she stayed in the barn at the side of the cow. The local veterinarian says that credit for saving the animal's life is due more to Peggy's care than to his pills and poultices.

Peggy's farm of pets now includes a string of twenty Shetland ponies, many collie dogs and an important interest in her mother's herd of seventy-five full-blood Guernsey cows.

COTTON, WOOL SILK HIGHEST

FARM AND LIVE STOCK PRODUCTS LITTLE HIGHER THAN BEFORE WAR.
Textiles and textile raw products, on a basis of prewar prices, are relatively higher today than the products of any other of the great branches of industry and commerce, such as fuel, food and feed, metals and building materials. In other words, it seems that man is in greater need of clothing than of fuel, housing or tools and machinery.
Prices of raw cotton, wool and silk range between 205 per cent and 220 per cent of the prewar levels, cotton leading slightly. Textile products, such as yarns, print cloths, sheetings and dress goods, range around 200 per cent of prewar levels and are the highest of the manufactures relatively, says the United States Department of Commerce.
Building materials range around 175 per cent of a prewar basis, but are very considerable below peak prices, due to the great heights reached by building materials during the war. Douglas fir and Southern pine are slightly above 200 per cent, while cement, brick and other materials are somewhat lower. Among the foods, sugar is highest, standing at about 210 per cent of prewar basis. It is, however, only about 37 per cent of the extreme peak reached during the period of inflation, which was 600 per cent of prewar normal. Most other food and feed prices are around 125 to 150 per cent of prewar normal.
Among fuels, anthracite, bituminous and coke approach 200 per cent, but petroleum is barely above the prewar figure. Of the metals, iron and steel and lead range from 150 to 180 per cent, but copper, tin and zinc are scarcely above 100 per cent.
Farm and live stock products, with the exception of cotton, wool, tobacco and lambs, are low, ranging around 120 per cent of prewar quotations.
In most instances producers of raw products and manufacturers have accepted fairly relative recessions from peak prices, but there are one or two notable exceptions. Various grades of hides and calfskins, for example, are about 90 per cent of prewar and only about 20 per cent of peak, while boots and shoes (Boston basis) are more than 200 per cent of prewar normal and only about 28 per cent below peak. This situation is laid by the manufacturers at the door of continued high labor in the shoe industry.
The present relative high value of textiles is due to the world cotton shortage, and is unprecedented since the days of the Civil War blockade.
Life Insurance Popular.
Life insurance is rapidly growing in popularity in the United States, if figures compiled from forty large representative companies by the United States Department of Commerce can be accepted as an index. The increase in the number of policies and the total value of new business has been steady during the last ten years. The monthly average of new life insurance business for the first seven months of the current year represented an increase of 250 per cent over the monthly average of 1913.
The monthly average new business of this year also represents substantial increases over late years, including 1920, when the previous peak was reached at an increase of 201 per cent above the business of 1913.
These figures are in contradiction to prophecies made following the war that there would be a slump in the life insurance business, due to the great number of young men carrying Government insurance. Education of the youth of the land in the benefits of insurance, authorities point out, seems to have more than offset the loss to companies through the continuance of war insurance among ex-service men.

Wheat Crops of World.
The principal wheat crops of the world this year are: United States 821,000,000 bushels, Argentina 189,000,000, Australia 109,000,000, India 402,000,000, Spain 142,000,000, Italy 199,000,000, Canada 420,000,000. In addition, Germany, France and Roumania, from which reports have not yet been received by the United States Department of Agriculture, will produce 400,000,000 bushels. Russia's production is large, but unknown. In nearly every great wheat-growing nation the production of 1922 and 1923 has been far above the average of the previous ten years, which accounts for the present bad condition on the market.—Dallas News.

Cotton Ginners' Report.
Up to Thursday, Nov. 8, the federal report shows that 3,503,199 bales of cotton had been ginned in Texas, in comparison to 2,847,427 bales to same date last year.
The gins of Hale county had turned out 1,235 bales. To same date last year 2,914 bales had been ginned. The crop this year is almost twice as much as last year, but the continued wet weather delayed picking.
Ginnings in nearby counties to Nov. 8, were: Floyd 2,040 bales, Crosby 5,893, Lubbock 6,881, Hall 7,332, Donley 2,429, Motley 2,011, Lynn 8,882, Garza 3,396, Dawson altar of overwork. They are offering to relieve unfortunate occupants of the White House of their strenuous duties by creating four or five more departments or cabinet positions. It is to be hoped that President Coolidge, who seems to be a common-sense, hard-boiled, nutmeg-state New Englander, will not fall for these kindly offers of the bureaucrats—he knows hard work never hurt anybody.

More presidents have had their careers shortened by banqueting, strong dark cigars and social high-life forced upon them than by the cruelties of hard work, or even the merit of appointing people to office.

The bureaucrats are always ready to propose a new cabinet position, or a new department, and then fasten the myriad occupants on to taxpayers for life.

Our Overworked Presidents. Academic elements in politics are representing that American presidents are brutally sacrificed on the
