Star Lites By Bill Ellis

READERS OF THIS column will probably realize (if they don't, then this is by way of pointing it out) that up to this point, ye editor has chosen not to waste even an inch of space commenting on President Reagan and the so-called Iran-Contra affair.

We figured all along--and rightly so-that the mass media would provide plenty of "overkill" on the subject. Boy, have they ever.

Now that the Tower Commission has made its report, and that former Chief of Staff Donald Regan has been bumped and Sen. Howard Baker has been named as his replacement, maybe-just maybe--we can see the news out of our nation's capital taking on a different slant.

For more than three months, members of the national media have hounded the president to death. They have built up the Irancontra affair in an attempt to make it President Reagan's own personal Watergate. As one writer adeptly put it "They have waited with pencils poised and cameras ready for the Tower commission report. To the dismay of some, there was no indictment of Ronald Reagan for a cover-up or unlawful activities. Whatever mistakes were made were not in goals but in execution."

Those who attack the president on every small point are still grinding out copy pointing to Reagan's age, lack of attention to detail, and his forgetfulness. But these things, according to the rank and file, are not nearly enough to call for a vote of impeachment.

popular presidents of this century. He has established himself, and given Americans considerably more pride by fighting such things defensive.

Kissinger, appearing in Amarillo that the Iran-contra affair has diverted national attention away from more pressing matters. It's the type of diversion that you don't need when you are trying to maintain your country's image with world powers, and as a leader in the free world.

As commentator Andy Rooney said this week, we need to change our tactics in this country. Rather than waiting until a president is dead to honor him with a holiday or monument, Rooney suggests that we practice being a little more kind to him while he is alive (and on the job).

Rooney posed the question, given all of the flack that President Reagan has had to face since the emergence of the Iran-contra deal, "Who would even WANT to run for president, anyhow?"

Based on what we have seen over the years, there will be a number of "takers" for the president's job, as the 1988 election approaches. But as Rooney implied, such things the recent anti-Reagan campaign may, in fact, cause some who might be more qualified to hold the office to say to themselves "I don't think it would be worth all of that --"

And that would cause the country to be hurt, rather than helped, by all of the do-gooders we've heard during the past three months.

The ABC-TV poll conducted on Thursday showed that 78,000 people felt Reagan would still be effective, compared to 31,000 who did not.

The Friona Squaws will open their 1987 track season on Saturday in their own meet.

Coach Vicki Hatton will have some outstanding individuals, but her main problem appears to be lack of numbers on this spring's track and field squad.

Only 14 girls are out for the track team, and of this number, eight are freshmen.

But Coach Hatton has returning two school record-holders in seniors Lacye Osborn and Ronda

Other upper classmen out for the team are Dara Wells, Sindy Preston, Shannon Atwell and Keri Parker.

Chieftains Ready For Track Season

Although the Friona Chieftain "Due to the weather, this is the track team saw its first action last first week we could really work out weekend at Boys Ranch, Coach on the track. We have had a couple Steve Williams was looking of good workouts, and I'm excited forward to this weekend, when he for the season to get here and for can get a better look at his team in us to get into our routine," Williams says.

Williams has good cause to be excited. A couple of good reasons are pole vaulter Rod Britting and high jumper Shy Burney, who set new school records last year as juniors. Then there is vaulter Sam Montoya, who pushed Britting.

there is middle distance runner Daniel Echols, whom Williams predicts will be the catalyst for this year's team.

"We should be exceptionally good in the field events. All of our people here have experience. We have a lot of depth in every event. This should help us a great deal," Williams said.

Toby Gibson is a transfer student who excells in middle distance running, and his addition has Williams drooling at Friona's chances in the mile relay this spring.

"Before we got Gibson, I thought we could be competitive in the relay. With him added, I think we can be really great," the
