High court says police require arrest warrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police may not enter a person's home to make an arrest without a warrant if there is no emergency, the Supreme Court ruled today.

In a significant expansion of constitutional privacy rights, the justices ruled by a 6-3 vote that the warrant requirement police must meet for searches also applies to arrests.

"Neither history nor this nation's experience requires us to disregard the overriding respect for the sanctity of the home that has been embedded in our traditions since the origins of the republic," Justice John Paul Stevens wrote for the court.

The Supreme Court previously has ruled that most often police must have a court warrant before searching a home. But before today, the court never had invalidated an arrest because the arresting officer failed to get a warrant.

The decision overturned the convictions of two New York City men. State authorities must now re-try the men or set them free.

Theodore Payton was convicted in the 1970 slaying of a service station attendant. Police, believing Payton was home, broke into his Bronx apartment while he was out. They found evidence that helped convict him. If a new trial is held, that evidence will not be admissible.

Obie Riddick of Queens was convicted of possessing heroin in 1973 after police arrested Riddick at his home and found some heroin there.

Stevens noted that New York law enforcement officials had argued that the arrest warrant requirement would unduly hinder police work. But he wrote: "In the absence of any evidence that effective law enforcement has suffered in those states that already have such a requirement, we are inclined to view such arguments with skepticism."

The ruling will carry immediate impact in at least 24 states that have allowed warrantless arrests in criminal suspects' homes.

Those states are Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah and Washington.

Eleven states have taken no formal position on the issue. They are Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and Wyoming. The remaining 15 states already prohibit such police activities.

The court in 1976 upheld warrantless arrests of persons in public places when police had "probable cause" to suspect them of committing a crime.

But today's ruling drew a distinction between a public place and an individual's home.

"The Fourth Amendment protects the individual's privacy in a variety of settings," Stevens said. "In none is the zone of privacy more clearly defined than when bounded by the unambiguous physical dimensions of an individual's home — a zone that finds its roots in clear and specific constitutional terms."

Stevens' opinion, however, made no attempt "to consider the sort of emergency or dangerous situation ... that would justify a warrantless entry into a home for the purpose of either arrest or search."

Presumably, police pursuing a fleeing suspect would not always have to stop as soon as the suspect ran inside his home.

STOPOVER TO IRAN — Barbara and Kenneth Timm, center, of Oak Creek, Wis., upon their arrival at Roissy's airport in Paris, France, Tuesday. Accompanied by attorney Carl McAffee, the couple is on a short stopover in the French capital hoping to obtain Iranian visa from Paris embassy in order to try to visit Mrs. Timm's son, Sgt. Kevin Hermening, 20, the youngest hostage in the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

City officials to get tough with owners of weedy lots

The city has decided to get tough with weedy lot owners.

In a news release issued Monday afternoon, City Manager Don Davis announced that "as a result of an increasing number of unsightly and overgrown vacant lots within the city, strict compliance and enforcement of the city ordinance will receive full attention by the City Code Enforcement Inspectors."

The first step in the crackdown will be a warning from inspectors to clean up the overgrown lot within 10 days.

If that deadline passes, and the lot has not been cleared, the owner will be cited, and required to appear in Municipal Court to answer the complaint.

Maximum penalty under the city's Code of Ordinances is a fine of $200 a day, with each day representing a separate offense.

If this doesn't get the job done, the city may clean the premises, and place a lien on the property for expenses incurred during this process.

Anyone wishing to report a weedy or unsightly lot should contact the office of Housing and Community Development at 267-1996.

Tax filing deadline today

Uncle Sam can use money

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're one of the millions of taxpayers who have put off filing federal income taxes until the last minute because you owe money, the last minute is here. And the government can use the money.

Legally, taxpayers have until midnight to file their 1979 tax returns or be penalized, and many post offices have made special arrangements to accept tax returns filed after the normal close of business.

The Internal Revenue Service expects to receive 6.6 million tax returns today alone, with equally large amounts during the next two days. It estimates it will receive 93 million tax returns for 1979, up from 91 million for 1978.

The government expects a major influx of cash from the tax returns filed on deadline because taxpayers who owe the government money usually wait until the last minute to file.

Many, if not most, taxpayers will have higher total tax bills for 1979, a condition that's likely to continue this year unless President Carter changes his current opposition to a tax cut.

When inflation's 20 percent annual rate results in more taxes because inflation-boosted income pushes taxpayers into higher tax brackets. This occurs even though the actual buying power of a worker's earnings declines, which happened to most workers last year.

Government receipts from all sources will equal a record 22.4 percent of the nation's gross national product in 1981, up from 20.8 percent this year. The government estimates that receipts from individual income taxes will rise from $217.8 billion in 1979 to $238.7 billion in 1980 and to $274.4 billion in 1981.

Many taxpayers will find their higher tax bills offset by bigger refunds. A refund often diverts a taxpayer's attention from the total tax bill, especially when it is higher than expected.

Will double trips to Midland

Permian to ax DFW flights

By JAMES WERRELL
Permian Airways, Inc. will take a new tack in attempting to snag local business, said Charles Seppi, president, this morning.

"Our last flight to Dallas-Fort Worth will be on Sunday. On Monday, we will increase flights to Midland from two to four a day," he said.

On April 10, Permian filed notice with the Texas Aeronautics Commission (TAC) of its intent to suspend all scheduled service at DFW. The company cited "difficulty and uncertainty of obtaining adequate fuel supplies, and ground handling inconsistencies as reasons for the suspension."

Is this primarily a problem at DFW and not Big Spring?

"Yes, absolutely," said Seppi. "DFW is geared for jet fuel; kerosene burners. There are not many 100-octane planes operating, and there is a shortage of that fuel all over the state. There is a glut of kerosene. It's expensive, but available."

The problems at DFW, however, are not the only ones to figure in the decision to suspend flights. According to Seppi, Permian carries an average of less than one passenger a flight from Big Spring to DFW.

"The business just isn't there. We are getting terrific competition from 50 miles away, and it appears that people would rather drive that distance to be on one of the big ones."

The "big ones" are the four air services operating out of Midland, Texas International, Continental, Braniff and Southwest. According to Seppi, the new system devised by Permian will be geared to take advantage of this situation.

"We are not suspending business to and from Big Spring. We are actually increasing it. Instead of two flights, we'll have four timely flights to Midland," he explained.

Under the rate schedule which goes into effect Monday, travelers can fly on Permian to Midland for $7 on a joint coach fare with Braniff, Texas International or Continental. When traveling on Southwest, cost of a round-trip excursion will be $30.

A one-way ticket to Midland will cost $20.

"What I'm after is the $7 joint fare passengers. I'll be compensated by the airlines for those. Obviously I couldn't make a profit at $7 a passenger," said Seppi.

Under the order issued by the TAC, the city will be given 15 days to show cause why Permian should not be permitted to suspend service at DFW. City Manager Don Davis said today that his first step will be to notify members of the city council to confer on a possible plan of action.

"I really don't know what kind of action will be taken. I will notify the council and discuss this with the city attorney, and try to come up with some options," said Davis.

Gwendolyn Webb, staff attorney with the TAC, stated that, in her opinion, most of the problems cited by Permian exist at DFW.

"We (the TAC) are interested in hearing the city's position on this. If the service is inadequate, we are

Census takers job available

A U.S. Census Bureau representative will be in the Reddy Room of the Texas Electric Service Company building at 1 p.m., Thursday, seeking to hire at least 30 full-time and part-time enumerators for the 1980 census.

Any person who thinks he or she can work in either capacity can apply for employment as census takers.

Thirty West Texas counties make up the Lubbock Census Bureau district and two counties, Howard and Garza, have been woefully short of enumerators.

It is important that every person living in Big Spring and Howard County be included in the 1980 census, since reports are used in the issuance of federal grants and allotments. That job runs a risk of not being completed, if at least 30 census enumerators cannot be hired this week.

The job interviews will continue as long as there are applicants in the building.

willing to solicit other carriers," she said. "I believe that this is a temporary problem that will ultimately be resolved."

Resolved so that flights by Permian Airways will be resumed between Big Spring and DFW?

"Yes," she replied. "The situation could change if we went to kerosene burners, but that is unlikely. First we would have to have the business from Big Spring to justify it, and it appears that people would rather drive 50 miles to Midland. If they want to drive, I'm gonna let 'em drive."

Wallace did say the civil courts are fast becoming too expensive for the average citizen. He added that dockets are crowded, to the point where a contested divorce takes one year before being heard.

"I think I can make a contribution to solving the problems I spoke to," Wallace said, "urging the bar to meet its own problems."

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

Judge Jim Wallace came to Big Spring Monday to emphasize his judicial and legislative experience as factors in his campaign for the Texas Supreme Court.

Judge Wallace, who comes from Houston, sits presently on the First Court of Civil Appeals. He is running in the May 3 Democratic primary against two others, Wayne Scott and John Phillips, for Place 1 on the highest civil appellate court in Texas. Place 1 on the Supreme Court is being vacated by Judge Zollie Steakley.

The winner of the May 3 Democratic primary will face Republican Jim Brady in the November election.

"There are no sure-fire political issues in this campaign," Judge Wallace said. This, he said, is mainly due to the Supreme Court having only civil jurisdiction, not criminal.

tween the two parties is substantially less and there is no cost.

Wallace said this neighborhood justice approach is being used in 45 cities across the United States. He added that the settlement rate of those cases handled this way is 75 percent.

"It doesn't clog the docket from the bottom up," Wallace said. "It is certainly a way to speed up the process."

Wallace said in Harris County the Family District Courts are using court masters. Under this arrangement, an arbitrator sits to hear family-related matters, such as divorce and custody cases.

The master makes a report on his findings, and the decision made can be rejected or adopted by the parties involved. "That is one of the directions the Supreme Court can go," Wallace said. "It is that innovative approach we in the profession should take."

Wallace maintains he has the background to serve on the highest civil court in Texas.

He has been serving since December 1978 as an associated justice of the First Court of Civil Appeals.

Before that, he sat from 1975 to 1978 as the judge of the 215th Civil District Court in Houston.

A good indication of his legal competence came when the Houston Bar Poll of Judges and lawyers approved Wallace 83 percent over his opposition.

The Texas Bar Judicial Poll showed Wallace with a 45 percent approval among other judges and attorneys, compared to Phillips' 34 percent.

Wallace has legislative experience, having served two terms from 1971 to 1975 in the Texas Senate from District 6 in Houston.

Of his legislative background, Wallace emphasized its importance in the judicial decision making process, for any time a justice renders a decision he always looks at the legislative intent of a particular law.

Wallace also favors the electoral process of selecting state judges.

"The elective process is the best," Wallace said. "Judges ought to be responsive to the people." Wallace added that an electoral method prevents judges from moving from their role of interpreting the law to making law.

Action/reaction: Shopping center lag

Q. What has happened to the plan to build the shopping centers east of K-Mart and north of the new Canterbury Apartments?

A. Mark Campbell, city building inspector, said a shopping center near K-Mart has been in planning stages for two years. "It was supposed to have been completed this year," he said. Owners have had a problem leasing the spaces and money has been in short supply, he said. The land that was to be used for a shopping center north of Canterbury has been sold to another individual, who may or may not use it for a shopping center, said Campbell.

Well finalized near Big Spring

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp., Midland, No. 1 Langley, third producer and a 5 1/2-mile south-southwest extension to the Florac (Strawn) field, separated by a 9,602-foot failure, and seven miles southwest of Big Spring, was finalized for a daily pumping potential of 57 barrels of 41.2 gravity oil, plus seven barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,596-1.

Production was through perforations at 9,398-418 feet, which had been acidized with 3,500 gallons and fractured with 21,000 gallons and 11,500 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 9,560 feet, with 5 1/2-inch casing set at 9,537 feet, it is plugged back to 9,423 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the north and east lines of 41-33-1S-T&P.

The failure, Florida Exploration Co. No. 2 Neel, was abandoned Feb. 5.

All the invitations to the Saturday, April 19, Rehab Round-Up by the sponsors apparently did not reach the intended parties.

Jan Iden and Janet Mahoney, who are members of the committee working toward the success of this worthy venture, emphasize, however, that this is very much a public event and that tickets for entry into the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, site of the program, can be reserved by calling 399-4441 (Mrs. Iden's number) or 267-7677 (Mrs. Mahoney). The tickets, priced at $35 per couple or $20 per individual, can also be purchased at the door.

Doors to the coliseum will be open at 6 p.m., with the auction due to start immediately thereafter. The round-up will continue until 1 a.m., Sunday.

Merchandise for the auction has been donated by area merchants and sponsors.

Herb Henderson will be the auctioneer.

Barbecue will be served in the East Room from 6 to 8 p.m. The auction will end at 9 p.m. There will be entertainment featuring Fiddlin' Frenchie Burke and dancing after that. Dress will be casual.

All proceeds above expenses go toward the support of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

TRANQUILITY — Marianne Caroselli, who creates a mood of painting known as "The Quiet West" strives to let the viewers of her work feel the peacefulness of nature as witnessed in this painting to be auctioned off at the Rehab Round-Up Saturday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Work of San Marcos painter to be sold

Marianne Caroselli of San Marcos, who has become well-known for her subdued style of "Old West" painting, will have some of her most recent work up for auction at the Rehab Round-Up to be held Saturday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Caroselli, who moved to Texas in 1972 from New Jersey "searching for a better place to live," says that she became so inspired with the legends of the state and its heritage, that her art became a serious endeavor.

In 1979, Caroselli had the honor of having two of her paintings selected for publication as Christmas cards by the Leannin Tree Company of Boulder, Colorado, which sells their cards throughout the United States through catalogs and gift shops. These two cards were among the top ten best-selling cards published by the Leannin Tree Company and two of her more recent paintings have been selected by them for their 1980 Christmas card line.

Seventy-five members of the Seagraves High School choir recently traveled to Big Spring State Hospital to tour the facility and to provide a musical program for the patients. Choir Director Bonnie Anderson and Band Director Bill Woods accompanied the students on the educational tour. The trip provided the students the opportunity to find out first hand about mental illness, the treatment programs available and the operation of the hospital.

The field trip was coordinated through the efforts of W.L. Willingham, superintendent of the Seagraves school. Willingham serves as a member of the Volunteer Advisory Board for the Gaines County Mental Health Center located in Seagraves.

The Center, one of ten Outreach facilities operated by Big Spring State Hospital in this area, provides community treatment resources for people who are faced with family problems, marital problems, alcohol or drug abuse problems.

In many cases services available through the Center can prevent hospitalization, as well as provide follow-up care for someone who has completed the treatment program at BSSH and has returned home.

Randy Huey, assistant coordinator of Volunteer Services, has developed volunteer programs for the Outreach Centers and has seen the interest of the citizens increase as more is known about the hospital and the Centers.

Huey comments, "It is particularly rewarding to see the enthusiasm of the volunteers working with the Centers and to see this enthusiasm spread throughout a community, especially when it involves the young people. We appreciate the opportunity to meet with these young people and to show them the positive results of receiving treatment through a community facility. As they become more familiar with mental and emotional illness, and the treatments for these illnesses, perhaps they will help us educate others which will be a tremendous step in removing the stigma long associated with mental problems."

Educational tours of Big Spring State Hospital may be arranged through the Chaplaincy Department, 267-8216, ext. 262.

House Speaker issue perks up contest

Ezzell, Shaw swap verbal jabs

Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder claims two of his liberal colleagues are working to thwart his re-election campaign to the Texas House of Representatives.

Ezzell said Rep. John Bryant of Dallas and retiring Rep. Luther Jones of El Paso are assisting Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring in the May 3 Democratic Primary for the 63rd Legislative District.

The Snyder representative said he has obtained the official records of Jones and Bryant to document his claim of outside involvement.

"We just wanted them to know we were around," Ezzell said of his gaining copies of Bryant's and Jones' telephone calls, payroll sheets and other records.

Ezzell claims Bryant and Jones are working for Shaw so as to enlist support for John Bryant's race against incumbent Bill Clayton for the Speaker of the Texas House.

Jones is currently working for Bryant's election to the top spot in the Texas House and is traveling the state to gain support.

A part-time Jones aide, Jane Churchill, has been lending her support to Shaw. She said Shaw is "very favorable" to Bryant's candidacy.

LARRY DON SHAW

Ezzell is uncommitted to any candidate in the speaker's race.

Ezzell said Churchill is working for Shaw, and the Jones aide may have violated a state law, which in effect says state employees may not involve themselves in political activities of the public's time.

"I object to a state employee doing it," Ezzell said. "She is still on Jones' payroll."

Churchill says she met Shaw at a school for legislative candidates in Austin and later volunteered her help when she learned the Howard County native was running against Ezzell.

"When I heard that he (Shaw) was running, I got excited," Churchill said. "I had an opportunity to do something, and I seized it."

Of Churchill's activities, Shaw said, "She helped me get information at the Secretary of State's office."

He added, "I didn't ask for her help, she volunteered to do it in her spare time."

Of the Bryant-Clayton speaker battle, Shaw said, "John Bryant has contacted everybody running for state representative. He has never asked for a commitment from me."

Shaw said, "If elected I would prefer to have a speaker from West Texas, but I have a responsibility to the 63rd District to be courteous to people that are courteous to me."

"It is very interesting to note that Mr. Ezzell becomes very nervous when someone looks at his financial record," he continued.

"I think he is trying to draw attention away from his voting record," Shaw said. "An article in the Dallas Morning News quotes Ezzell as being Clayton's lieutenant. Now he says he is uncommitted, indicating he is a 'fair weather' friend of Clayton's."

"Quite frankly, I think Mike Ezzell is running scared, grasping at anything he can use against me."

Teaff led Baylor to a 24-18 victory over Clemson in the Peach Bowl following the 1979 season. His Bears wound up with an 8-4 won-lost record last year after some of the die-hard Baylor fans had predicted the team would win no more than three games.

The Bears finished fourth in one of the nation's toughest conferences, the Southwest, and wound up the year ranked No. 14 in the nation.

Teaff's career coaching record at Baylor is 41-46-3. In his 11 years as a head coach, his teams have won 60 while losing 57 and tying three. He was head coach at Angelo State University and McMurry College before moving to Baylor. He also coached at Texas Tech.

Grant is active in the Fellowship for Christian Athletes, having been elected as a national trustee two years ago. The Texas Baptist Convention made history in 1975 by electing Teaff as a vice-president, one of the few times a layman has been so honored. His book, "I Believe," was a best-seller. Grant and his wife, Donell, a former Texas Tech cheer leader, have three daughters.

Liddy tells his side of Watergate burglary

NEW YORK (AP) — After a long silence, G. Gordon Liddy, the convicted conspirator who allegedly masterminded the 1972 Watergate break-in, has revealed details of his role in scandal — including fears of assassination for failing to carry out the burglary.

In the book, excerpted in this week's Time magazine, Liddy says he believed he was going to be killed on orders from the White House for failure to break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington.

The book also alleges Liddy was planning to kill newspaper columnist Jack Anderson because Anderson had published information which reportedly implicated a U.S. agent abroad.

But the plan was vetoed by Howard Hunt, Liddy's superior in the special White House political sabotage unit.

Liddy says an idea to drop LSD into Daniel Ellsberg's soup at a dinner party was foiled when White House aide Charles Colson delayed in approving the plan. The idea was to discredit the Liddy, who refused to plea bargain with prosecutors, served 52 months in jail, longer than any of the other 25 conspirators. He was released in September 1977. Liddy says that when he was in prison, he suspected prisoners were going to kill him. So he armed himself, with the guards' permission, before turning in for the night.

Weather turns from winter into spring

By The Associated Press

Clear skies and warming temperatures dominated the weather scene across Texas today as the weather turned again from winter to spring.

Forecasts called for clear skies and warming temperatures statewide. Highs were to be mostly in the 70s and 80s.

Clear skies and cool temperatures were reported statewide early today. Temperatures were mostly in the 40s. Extremes ranged from a chilly 24 at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas to 61 at Galveston on the Southeast Texas coast.

In other parts of the nation, snow flurries fell over southeast and west Michigan early today while sleet covered roads in southern portions of the state, resulting in at least one death.

Elsewhere, rain was in store for the central and northern Appalachians and in New England.

Early Monday, snow fell around Detroit and in western portions of Michigan. In Kalamazoo streets slickened by freezing precipitation made driving conditions hazardous. At least one person, an elderly woman, died in a weather-related traffic accident.

To the east, rain, whipped by winds up to 37 mph, drenched the Lake Erie shoreline. Hundreds of homes were flooded and some evacuations were reported.

Light snow extended over Illinois and parts of Wisconsin.

If you need answers to tax questions here's good news

If you need answers to tax questions to help you meet today's federal income tax deadline, here's some good news. Internal Revenue Service tax assistants will staff the toll-free telephone system from 8 a.m. 'till 6 p.m. today.

"We receive many calls asking how taxpayers should handle filing a tax return with tax due when they are unable to make full payment by the April 15 due date," said Sharon L. Wrublesky, Chief, Taxpayer Service Division, for the Dallas District of Internal Revenue Service. "Because there are penalties for late filing and late payment, it's important to make the April 15 deadline. "We advise taxpayers in these circumstances to send in the return with as much of a payment as they can manage. IRS will process the return and issue a bill for the remainder of the tax due. The bill is payable within 30 days of receipt," explained Ms. Wrublesky.

The phone number for taxpayer assistance is 1-800-492-4830.

Was justice done in this case?

The U.S. Supreme Court, by a vote of 5-4, recently upheld the Texas habitual offender statute. In so doing, the highest court in the land may have blundered. The ruling perpetuates a law which invites punishment of offenders wildly disproportionate to their offenses against society.

THE CASE HEARD by the court is a particularly apt example. William James Rummel is a somewhat bewildered looking man who is serving a life sentence because he took a fall on three felonies. These so-called outrages against society can only be classed as minor. They involved fraudulent use of a credit card, passing a forged instrument and accepting payment of an air-conditioning repair job that was never done. As a three-time loser — and thus subject to the habitual criminal act — Rummel is now a lifer.

In its decision, the court majority seems to have had highly restrictive vision. It rules on very narrow grounds, finding out that the length of sentences imposed for felonies is strictly up to state legislatures to determine. As a narrow point of view, that is, of course, correct. But we find more persuasive the view of the minority, that the sentence assessed was 'grossly disproportionate' and thus cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Constitution.

WHILE STATES are granted all sorts of law-making powers — including the power to set punishments in crimes — their statutes must follow the dictates of the Constitution. The opinion of the majority that the small amount of money taken and the fact that no violence was involved in the crimes was immaterial in determining the validity of the sentence would seem, if carried to the extreme, to obliterate entirely the constitutional protection against cruel and unusual punishment.

It is hoped that the closeness of the decision will encourage the Legislature to dismantle, on its own, the habitual criminal statute, or at least rewrite it so that the severity of offenses involved will necessarily be considered before the statute can be invoked.

Gunga Din

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I have withheld writing this column until I was certain that Dan Rather was safely out of Afghanistan. Thank heavens he is back in New York, shaved and well.

For those of you who missed "60 Minutes" a week or so ago, Dan joined up with Afghan rebels, disguised as a mountain freedom fighter, and was filmed under fire from Russian artillery.

MILLIONS OF US sat in the comfort of our living rooms watching this modern day "Lawrence of Arabia" risk his life to bring us the true story of what the rebels were facing in this remote part of the world. "Gunga Din," as the Washington Post TV critic Tom Shales dubbed him, in the true foreign correspondent tradition, knew this could have been his last story. But he still went because he believed he owed it to the American public to tell us what it was like for the Afghan tribesmen doing battle with the Soviet Goliath.

Now that he is safely back home, I think some tough questions have to be asked of CBS management. What the devil were they thinking of when they permitted Walter Cronkite's successor to risk his neck in the Khyber Pass, only a few months before he will take over as anchorman of the evening news?

When CBS declared that Dan would be the heir to the Cronkite throne we thought they would immediately throw a ring of Secret Servicemen around him and make certain that no harm would come to him until the coronation.

Rather, you would assume, was too valuable a property to be sent off to Afghanistan in disguise. It wasn't just a question of physical harm befalling him, but what would have happened if he had been captured by the Soviets?

No major power can sit idly by if one of its anchormen is being held as a prisoner of war by the other side. The pressure on President Carter would have been great to do something to free Dan, in time for the summer political conventions.

Mr. Carter's options would be limited. Having used up his Moscow Olympic boycott once already, he might be forced by public opinion to threaten military action against the Soviets. Under international law, the holding of a CBS anchorman is the moral equivalent of war.

WITHOUT BEING TOO HARSH on the "60 Minutes" producers, they didn't have to send Dan Rather to Afghanistan.

They could have sent Harry Reasoner, Morley Safer, Mike Wallace, Andy Rooney or even Roger Mudd. If anything happened to any of them, there would have been an uproar, but nothing that couldn't have been handled by Cy Vance sending a stiff note to the Soviet Embassy.

By dispatching Dan Rather into a war zone, CBS violated the first rule of television news which is, "an anchorman's place is in the studio," just as, "the President's place is in the Rose Garden."

I called the "60 Minutes" people for an explanation concerning their gaffe, and all they could come up with was, "We knew what we were risking, but the only one who could fit into the Afghan rebel robe and hat we rented was Rather."

When bladder repair is needed

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: At the last checkup my doctor said that my bladder had dropped a little. So far, I don't have trouble holding my urine, and he said I would know when I would need to have it fixed. What does that involve? Do I have to be cut open or can they fix it from below? Could I go on like this and never need to have anything done? I asked him what caused it to drop. He said that like a man gets a hernia, a woman's bladder drops. I am 66 years old. Comment please. —K.A.

The woman's urinary bladder sits above the vaginal wall. When wall tissue weakens, the bladder sags downward into the vagina. That is a "cystocele." It has to be repaired if it starts creating problems.

Often, though, women with small cystoceles have no symptoms and need no repair. If there is also loss of support for the tube through which urine passes downward from the bladder (the urethra), the woman might lose urine when she coughs, sneezes or laughs. That's called "stress incontinence," a term you may have read here before. Or a sagging bladder portion might become an unwanted pocket for accumulation of urine. That can lead to urinary tract infections. These conditions call for repair.

The repair of a cystocele is usually done from within through an incision in the vagina. The surgery is not serious. The bladder is lifted up and stitches provide new support for it. A hernia is a bulging of ANY organ through a defect in its supporting covering. One usually thinks of the bulging of a loop of intestine. I never thought of a cystocele as a hernia, but it's not a bad comparison.

The usual causes of female cystocele are stresses that cause the stretching and loss of tone of the tissue weakens, the bladder bulges supporting tissue, such as childbirth or aging.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My sister's doctor told her she has viral syndrome. Could you explain what this is, more specifically, what virus, etc.? —A.S.

I cannot be anymore specific than your sister's doctor was. There are so many viruses with so many different signs and symptoms that it is impossible to list all the problems associated with them. Viruses are individualistic little buggers.

"Syndrome," used medically, means a set of symptoms or signs that add up to a certain illness — like viral infection, for example. Most virus infections are of brief duration. Considering that they cause so many common colds, that is a blessing. Diarrheas of a few days' duration are usually virus-caused. The entire catalog of virus infections would fill a good-sized encyclopedia.

Viruses, by and large, are medical mysteries.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am on a reducing diet and eat a lot of salads, plus a lot of raw mushrooms. I have an insatiable desire for mushrooms and eat about a half pound a day like candy. I have a heart problem and am taking medicine for it. Do you think there is a connection between my taking heart medicine and my mushroom desires? I mean are the mushrooms replacing some vitamin that the medicine is stopping me from getting? My husband is worried. —F.K.

I like mushrooms, too, but not quite that much. Four large mushrooms have 28 calories, mostly vegetable protein with a little sugar, so you couldn't call them fattening. As to vitamins, mushrooms contain riboflavin and thiamine (B vitamins), also a trace of vitamin A. Your medication is not depriving you of these nutrients.

I don't know why you have this craving. I know of no medical condition that causes mushroom madness. I tried growing them in my basement once and harvested a sickly crop of weeds. Can you tell me what I did wrong?

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the purpose of putting a board under the mattress for a person with a spinal problem? —M.M.

The board acts as a passive traction device. By holding the spine straight it can help relieve pressure on a nerve causing the spinal discomfort. It works for some.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please settle this dispute. Is it true that making love can cause loss of hair and dandruff? —S.M.

What can vitamins really do for you — and what can't they do? In his new booklet, Dr. Paul Donohue separates the common sense from the nonsense about this controversial health aid. For your copy of "Vitamins: Facts You Need to Know," send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have ruined my life with alcohol, losing everything I had — my family, my possessions, and my health. Christ has helped me overcome this problem, but does the Bible promise that God will restore all the things I have lost? —R.N.A.

DEAR R.N.A.: Your story of alcohol's effects on your life is tragic, and could be repeated by countless people today. I read one expert's statement recently declaring that alcohol might soon be the third greatest health problem in our nation. Alcohol is often presented as something glamorous or normal by the media, but (as you have found out) it can be ruinous. The Bible says, "Wine is a mocker and beer a brawler; whoever is led astray by them is not wise" (Proverbs 20:1). Or again it warns: "Who has woe? Who has sorrow?... Those who linger over the wine... In the end it bites like a snake and poisons like a viper" (Proverbs 23:29-30, 32).

I have mentioned this because it may be that these verses (and the example of what has happened to you) will cause someone to think of the danger he faces because he is turning to alcohol to "solve" problems. Perhaps someone who is in the grip of alcohol (as you were) will be encouraged by your testimony. Jesus Christ can not only forgive us when we turn to Him in repentance and faith, but He also can give us strength to overcome problems such as the one you faced.

God has forgiven you — and that is a precious truth for which you should constantly be thankful. I wish I could assure you that God will also restore all that you have lost, but the Bible does not promise this in every instance. Sometimes we must pay the price for our sins, in the sense that we must bear the consequences. King David committed a great sin by committing immorality with Bathsheba, another man's wife. God forgave David of that sin (see Psalm 32), but the child which was born of that illicit affair was still taken from them by death, as God has promised would happen as an act of His judgment. Commit these things to God, knowing that He may choose to restore them. But if not, rejoice that you are His child now and He has delivered you from your alcoholism.

Truly inspiring

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Thursday night I spent one of the most inspiring few hours of my life attending a performance by a group of Lutheran youths called "Daybreak," at St. Paul Lutheran Church.

For a couple of hours I forgot the soreness in my muscles from the two hours of softball practice earlier in the day, I forgot the busy hours at work that day and I forgot the feelings of aggravation at someone calling me at home about something that had to do with work.

For a couple of hours I experienced the joy of the five young people from the Midwest. Their ability to share their faith in God with others is remarkable.

THEIR MAIN GOAL is to share their faith with young people throughout the Midwest and South. The group of five tour the region for a year sharing the Good News with others and working with young people. But, despite the fact that their program is designed to attract the interest of younger people, the older ones can get just as much out of it. I know that I did.

The main part of the program lasted about an hour but I felt like I received 10 times as much inspiration. They sang songs, asked the audience to sing along with them, acted out skits and used puppets to share their faith in God. All portions expressed the love of God and rewards of being a Christian.

The most enjoyable part of the evening came after the formal program was over. In the parish hall after some refreshments the group put on an informal show and each gave a testimony of his or her faith.

ONE SANG A SONG about testimony. The song said that although stories of drinking, gambling and shady ladies make for exciting testimonies, it's the everyday things — the little things — that really make the greatest testimonies. It is after all, sharing our life day to day with God that is the greatest testimony for others.

Probably the most fun event of the evening was when the group was asked to join in a song that required activity — pretending to be the branches of the tree that was bananas for the Lord, peaches, apples, plums, and other fruits, — the fruity song as it was called. Although a song designed for children, the adults were having the most fun.

There were not many people there, but for those of us who did attend, it was one of the most rewarding evenings and faith-strengthening events. I only wish that more could have shared the joy of the program.

Program flawed

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's whole energy program is based on a faulty appraisal of the world oil situation provided by the Department of Energy. This is the confidential conclusion of investigators for his rival for the Democratic nomination, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Sloppy research and pure guesswork by DOE's supposed experts gave the president a distorted view of the world's oil supply and demand for it, contends a staff report that has been suppressed for eight months. Yet the DOE not only refuses to acknowledge that it lacks the means of collecting accurate data, it insists that its demonstrably false projections last year were correct, the report says.

THE CARTER ENERGY policy, based on the assumption that the world experienced a significant shortage of oil during the first quarter of 1979, and that the world may experience many significant shortages of oil in the near future," states the report.

The staff findings were based on extensive interviews with petroleum experts as well as on internal DOE documents. My associate Dale Van Atta has confirmed the key findings. "Since the shortage due to Iran was not significant, and at worst was only a temporary aberration in the international petroleum system... the rationale for the Carter energy plan is flawed," the Kennedy report states.

During the 10-week period when Iranian oil supplies were cut off — from December 1978, to March 1979 — DOE spokesmen insisted, with Chicken Little hysteria, that the Western world was experiencing a shortfall of 2 million barrels of oil a day. But the administration alarmists "were not repeating a statement of fact," the Kennedy report charges: "Rather they were repeating an analysis based on three assumptions which were based on few if any facts."

Those three assumptions were DOE's guesstimates of what world oil production would be, what world demand would be and what existing stockpiles would be drawn during the winter. And the department's reckonings were seriously off the mark, the report charges.

Using a number of industry analyses and production figures, the Kennedy staff report concludes that at most there might have been a world shortfall of 500,000 barrels a day because of the Iranian cutoff — an amount that "is insignificant in relation to total Free World oil supply and total Free World oil stocks."

Indeed, the Kennedy report indicates, a reasonable case could be made that instead of a shortage during that period, there may have been a surplus of 800,000 barrels a day.

AS ONE EXAMPLE OF DOE'S slipshod methods, the report notes that its estimated demand was calculated by simply adding 2 percent to the figure for the first part of 1978 — ignoring a U.S. coal strike that led to a temporary increase in oil demand that year.

The importance of the Kennedy report's criticism goes beyond mere who-struck-John-finger-pointing in an election year. Far-reaching policy decisions that affect every American are made on the data that a president gets about the world oil situation. "There was a time," the Kennedy staff report concludes, "when it was not important for the United States government to accurately know the level of the Free World oil supply, demand and stock levels... This time has passed. In order for this country to make intelligent economic, political and national security decisions, accurate information about the international petroleum market must be available to policy makers. Neither the DOE (nor the CIA)... can presently provide this information."

HOLD YOUR FIRE: The Tax Reform Act of 1976 placed ironclad restrictions on disclosure of information by Internal Revenue Service agents. Even in cases of extreme urgency, they must go through bureaucratic channels. Consider this internal memo from the chief of criminal investigations:

"When any employee receives a death threat to the President or other elected official I want to be notified immediately. I will then notify the District Director, who in turn will obtain the appropriate disclosure authorization in order that our employee may immediately telephone U.S. Secret Service. These procedures will be observed in all instances."

DEALING AND WHEELING: Jimmy Carter's failure to back federal funds for the handicapped could cause serious disaffection among the nation's 30 million physically disabled. To assuage this increasingly active voter bloc, some Carter backers are urging him to appoint a seriously disabled person to high office — specifically, membership on the Federal Communications Commission.

Dear Editor: It is nice to read that Big Spring's budget will be "in the black" by $3,400. If the city has money left, why not hire patrols for night duty on Gregg Street, so all the people can feel safe to travel that thoroughfare!

The way it is now, the type of people who don't pay any of the taxes or provide any of the revenue that put us "in the black" have taken over Gregg on Sundays — day and night, as well as every night in the week.

Also, since when are 'beer keg parties' OK in public parking areas? I saw this going on in broad daylight Easter Sunday.

Gregg Street is also Hwy. 87. We have a lot of through town traffic, day and night. Wonder what people think of Big Spring when they drive through on Gregg, when they are hassled by some people who insist on driving wildly and parking and drinking on Gregg.

I realize $3,400 is not much to work with, but it would be a start. I think Gregg Street should be "cleaned up." It might stop a lot of vandalism, too.

Mailer wins Pulitzer for execution novel

NEW YORK (AP) — The Philadelphia Inquirer ran its string of Pulitzer Prizes to six in a row — two short of the record — and the Boston Globe won three separate awards in the 1980 competition for the prestigious journalism honors.

The Inquirer won the award for coverage of the Three Mile Island disaster. The Globe won prizes for special local reporting, commentary and criticism.

In the arts categories, Norman Mailer's "Executioner's Song," the story of the life and execution of Utah convict Gary Gilmore, won the 1980 fiction prize — although some critics said it was non-fiction — and Lanford Wilson won the drama prize for his current Broadway play "Tally's Folly," about a Jewish accountant who goes to Missouri to woo a spinster.

The Globe became only the second paper to win three prizes in a year. The New York Times won three in 1978. A five-member team combined for the Globe to report on mismanagement in the city's transit system. The commentary award went to Ellen Goodman, whose syndicated column covered subjects including medical ethics, Iran and the Three Mile Island accident. The criticism award went to William A. Henry 3d, who writes about television.

A gold medal was awarded to the Gannett News Service for meritorious public service for its 18-day series on an order of Catholic priests, the Pauline Fathers, and mismanagement of gifts and contributions.

Columbia University makes the awards on recommendation of an advisory panel and each award, except for the gold medal for public service, carries a $1,000 prize.

The national reporting award went to Bette Swenson Orsini and Charles Stafford of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times for their four-year investigation of the Church of Scientology.

WINNER PULITZER — Norman Mailer discusses his novel "The Executioner's Song" this morning in New York on NBC-TV's "Today Show." Mailer received the 1980 Pulitzer Prize in fiction for his novel based on the life and death of Gary Gilmore who was executed after a murder conviction.

Pennsylvania primary campaign

Kennedy could upset Carter

The battleground for presidential politics switches in earnest to Pennsylvania today, with backers of both President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy saying the Massachusetts senator could upset Carter in the fight for the state's 185 Democratic national convention delegates.

With the Pennsylvania primary just a week away, Kennedy is returning to Philadelphia today with his wife, Joan, and even Vice President Walter F. Mondale says the challenger could defeat Carter in the state with the third-largest convention delegation.

On the Republican side, George Bush is in Pennsylvania already, pursuing a last-ditch effort to stop Ronald Reagan from gaining the party's nomination. Reagan will be in the state Wednesday.

John Anderson, the third rival for the GOP nod, has dropped off the campaign trail for a week, meanwhile, and sources say he is deciding whether to drop his Republican effort and run as an independent.

Kennedy comes back to Pennsylvania armed with new endorsements from two unions, and Carter has won the backing of the United Mine Workers, which has 75,000 members working in Pennsylvania's coal fields.

The executive boards of the 600,000-member Service Employees International Union and 159,000-member Amalgamated Transit voted Monday to back Kennedy, citing his pro-labor record and their dissatisfaction with Carter economic policies. The leadership of the 240,000-member UMW based its endorsement of Carter on his support for increased coal production.

Mondale made his concession that the Kennedy campaign had eroded Carter's efforts Monday in Wilkes-Barre. "We might lose Pennsylvania," he said, remarking on the most recent polls in the state.

Patrick Caddell, the president's own pollster, released a survey this weekend showing Carter trailing Kennedy by a 43 percent to 40 percent margin.

Terry Straub, who heads Carter's re-election effort in Pennsylvania, said Monday that the poll "adjusts expectations in a realistic fashion."

"It pricks the balloon, especially the notion that it's an easy downhill coast," he said.

Kennedy aides dispel the notion that the Caddell poll means the challenger is ahead, but a Kennedy spokesman, Jeff Soref, adds: "The gap is obviously closing. We feel it's very close. There's more ground to be gained. It's by no means in the bag."

Meanwhile Bush, like Kennedy, is barnstorming the state, telling voters, "We can turn it around here. I haven't even begun to fight yet."

Thermostat controls to end tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mandatory thermostat controls President Carter imposed to save energy end at midnight unless some way can be found to give the program a last-minute reprieve.

Deputy Energy Secretary John Sawhill arranged to appear before a Senate Energy subcommittee today to outline administration action on the program, which requires public building thermostats to be set no higher than 65 degrees in the winter and no lower than 78 in the summer.

Last July 16, with long gasoline lines in much of the country, Carter declared "a national energy supply shortage" and imposed the mandatory temperature settings for nine months.

After a mild winter and with gasoline supplies now at record levels, several Energy Department attorneys have argued that Carter now couldn't make the finding of supply shortages required under the law to extend the thermostat settings.

Bees fall for orange bug

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Around Bibb County, it happens about half a dozen times each spring. This time a few thousand bees and their new queen fell for the Rev. James Herring's orange Volkswagen.

"There were enough to cover the whole back of the car, but most of them moved under a rear fender," Herring said Monday.

Afraid of antagonizing the little buzzers, Herring did nothing. A small crowd gathered around the car, and one onlooker suggested the reverend's only recourse was to "put the car in a plastic bag."

Fortunately, part-time beekeeper Marion Seckinger was in the neighborhood. Using a portable hive he keeps in his car for just such occasions, Seckinger corralled the queen, and the rest came along peacefully.

"Something like this happens about a half dozen times each spring around Bibb County," Seckinger said.

"This time of year, bee colonies divide. A new queen is born and the old queen and about half the colony leave and go homesteading. ... When they leave their old home, they'll hitch onto anything that happens to get in their way — a shrub, a tree, a signpost, even a car."

America's hobos invited

McGEHEE, Ark. (AP) — City officials here want to honor an American institution — the American hobo — on June 27-28. But how do you invite somebody to a party if you can't find him?

"It's sort of like trying to write a letter to Santa Claus," said Chamber of Commerce chairman Maylon Rice. "But that's easy... you just address it to the North Pole... But when you try to write to the hobos of America... who knows where they are."

The celebration is part of the pre-75th anniversary of this delta town founded in 1906 by planter, ginnee and merchant Abner McGehee.

Rice says he plans to have the mayor welcome the hobos. "There will be prizes for the hobos, too. Some of the awards will go for the best story told, most outlandish garb, and furthest traveled."

But first, he's got to locate the guests of honor. "It seems that everyone has seen hobos around the train yards, but few, if any, of the wandering vagabonds care too much about leaving a forwarding address when they pick up and leave," he said.

Haitian refugees flood to Southern Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Immigration agents, already understaffed and overwhelmed by a weekend flood of more than 700 Haitian refugees, turned to the National Guard for help in processing another 135 of the Caribbean boat people who are swarming to South Florida in record numbers.

"I don't know what we'll do if any more show up," said one weary radio operator at the Immigration and Naturalization Service office in Miami. "I guess we'll have to start taking them home with us."

Over the weekend, 736 Haitians came ashore in a dozen small boats from West Palm Beach to Marathon in the Florida Keys. On Monday, 135 more made it to Miami aboard a leaky, 45-foot wooden boat.

The three-day total — 871 — was more than half the number that arrived last month, which set a record of more than 1,400.

"This has got to be the daddy of 'em all," said William Metcalf, assistant district director for investigations for the immigration service. "This has absolutely buried us."

Your electric bill has something in common with your grocery bill---inflation.

Inflation has made every can of corn, every carton of milk cost more today.

Everything it takes to produce and deliver groceries — fuel, equipment, etc. — is increasing in price.

The same is true of electricity. The cost of fuel to generate electricity is going up. So are the costs of power lines, transformers, poles and other equipment.

We're helping fight the effect of inflation on your electric bill by building new power plants that use cheaper lignite coal and nuclear fuels.

There are things you can do, as well. By using electricity wisely, just as you shop for groceries wisely, you can help hold down your electric bill.

By attending one of our free "Operation Tighten-Up" workshops, you can learn effective ways to conserve electricity. Call us and arrange to attend a workshop in your neighborhood.

Garbo given rose painting

LONDON (AP) — A portrait of a single red rose painted by an unknown 19th-century Italian artist was left to actress Greta Garbo by famed photographer Sir Cecil Beaton, who once asked the film star to marry him.

The will on Beaton's estate, estimated at $1.1 million, was published Monday. He left his entire collection of photographs of the British royal family to Joyce Hose, his secretary for 26 years.

"I feel extremely proud to be acting as custodian of the royal photographs," Miss Hose said. "I will look after them and cherish them all my life."

The bulk of Beaton's estate was left to relatives. Beaton, who also designed the sets and costumes for "My Fair Lady," died in January.

Differences put aside

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his estranged jet-setter wife Margaret put aside their differences to attend their son Justin's first Holy Communion.

The couple has remained separated despite Trudeau's political comeback earlier this year. Justin, 8, and his brother, Michel, 4, live with their father in the prime minister's residence.

Dumb blonde pays dues

NEW YORK (AP) — For a dumb blonde who snorts when she laughs and is seemingly unaware of the effect she has on men, Chrissy has done all right for herself — and is not about to get off the roller-coaster now.

Suzanne Somers paid her dues like most pretty faces looking for a break. As Chrissy, in the hit ABC-TV series "Three's Company," she got that break.

"I get all the laughs with her (Chrissy) and everybody likes her. I don't think I've ever met anyone who doesn't think her a sweet little girl..." said the actress.

Ms. Somers has played the bubble-brained sexpot for the past four seasons and has a contract to do two more.

PETRI DISH BABY — Scientist Dr. Jack Rary demonstrates his technique recently at a Norfolk, Va., General Hospital room, known as the test-tube baby laboratory. But there are no babies and very few test tubes in the 10-by-12 room that holds the hopes of many women and men who want to be mothers and fathers, and the fears of some who envision the coming of a "Brave New World."

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — There are no babies and few test tubes in the 10-by-12-foot room known as the test-tube baby laboratory at Norfolk General Hospital.

The lab does contain an incubator, a microscope and a stack of half a dozen small plastic petri dishes, in which human eggs are fertilized by human sperm.

It also holds the hopes of many women and men who want to be mothers and fathers, and the fears of some who envision the coming of a "Brave New World."

The hospital won state approval to build the lab Jan. 8. Two months later, a spokesman for Eastern Virginia Medical School, whose doctors run the clinic, acknowledged, "The lab is in operation."

The lab is the first of its kind in the United States and has already earned Norfolk a certain notoriety. On the door to the office of the lab's public relations director is a bumper sticker reading: "Norfolkians Do It in a Dish."

An original seven couples were accepted for the program, out of thousands who applied. There were 2,500 couples on the initial waiting list; the day after the lab got state approval, 300 more called in.

An unspecified number of women have gone through the process of in vitro fertilization, in which an egg is surgically removed from a woman's ovary, fertilized with her husband's sperm in the petri dish and transferred to the woman's uterus.

The hospital has not said, and will not say, if successful pregnancies have been achieved.

EVMS spokesman Vernon Jones said the clinic's doctors, led by the husband-and-wife team of Howard and Georgeanna Jones, want to "shield the ladies" from disturbances that could disrupt the hormone levels crucial for successful implantations.

The patients are women whose Fallopian tubes, the conduits from ovary to uterus, are missing or irreparably blocked.

Jones described the process as sort of a "Fallopian tube bypass. We're providing the passage. It's sort of like a helicopter picking up cargo — the egg — in one place and putting it in another."

He said the clinic should be able to treat about 50 women a year. The procedure costs about $4,000. Blue-Cross of Virginia has said it will not pay the costs.

The women see in vitro fertilization as their last chance to bear children. But others see it as the first step toward something unsafe and immoral.

Opponents of the procedure have three main complaints: that it has not been tested enough; that fertilized eggs, which some consider the beginning of life, will be destroyed if not developing properly; and that defective embryos will be aborted.

They say they also fear that in vitro fertilization will lead to production — out of the womb — of genetically controlled babies, as described in Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World."

The Tidewater Chapter of the anti-abortion Virginia Society for Human Life failed in its attempt to get state Attorney General Marshall Coleman to seek an injunction against the clinic.

Norfolk businessman Charles Dean, chapter president, said the group plans further legal action, partly on the grounds the state review was not done properly.

But doctors involved with the clinic claim the fears are unfounded.

"They saio" the procedure has been carried out safely in England — where Louise Brown, the world's first "test-tube baby" was born in 1978 — and Australia, that abortions will be neither more nor less available to clinic patients than to other pregnant women, and that they have no intention of mass producing human beings.

Dr. Jack Rary, the EVMS scientist who runs the lab, said fertilization attempted on only one egg at a time.

Rary is responsible for checking to see if an egg is contained in the fluid removed from the woman, for setting up the egg for fertilization and for determining if fertilization has taken place.

But he noted that doctors do not make the final determination whether the egg is good — able to be fertilized.

"The sperm know which eggs are good," he said. "We don't have to make that decision."

If fertilization does take place in a petri dish, usually within 12 hours, the fertilized egg is incubated for another 36 hours and then transferred to the uterus.

That's about the same time span an egg fertilized naturally would take to travel down to the uterus and implant itself, Rary said.

Rary said he knew the clinic wouldn't receive unanimous approval, "but I had no idea there would be that much opposition."

"I guess I'm looking at it differently, that we'd truly be helping people who couldn't have babies," he said.

Rary said he has invited some opponents to visit the lab but none has accepted so far.

"I'd be willing to show them," he said. "I've got nothing to hide."

Dr. Wallace: When I was 18, the guy that I loved got me pregnant. When I told him, he said that he was not the one who did it. I now have a son who looks exactly like this guy.

Is there anything that I can do to make this guy live up to his responsibilities? My son needs his father very much. He is 10 months old and his father has only seen him once.

To complicate matters, this guy is now married. Can you give me any advice? — Dolly, Odessa, Texas

Dolly: It seems to me that you have waited too long to force your baby's father to live up to his responsibilities. I would suggest that you seek legal advice and I wouldn't spend much money for it. In fact, check and see if there is a free legal clinic available.

Dr. Wallace: Recently, I have been getting a lot of stuff through the mail that I didn't order (books, magazines, tapes, etc.). I think someone is playing a prank on me. Now I'm getting a bill from a bunch of companies and I don't have the money to pay for them. Help! — Mitch, Dixon, Ill.

Mitch: If you didn't order the merchandise, you don't have to pay the bill. That is the law. Mark "return to sender" on all merchandise you did not order. Then drop each company a letter stating that you returned the materials, that you did not order them, and that you refuse to pay the bill.

Throw away all future bills that you receive.

People need to be noticed

"Look, look at me!" Who hasn't heard young children use these words many times. Children will use this phrase over and over again in gaining attention from other children and adults nearby.

It is as natural as breathing for children to seek, even to demand to be noticed. Yet few of us are aware of or will admit to the continued use of phrases or actions calling attention to ourselves throughout our lives.

The need to be noticed, to be recognized, to be praised is strong in all people. Each of us have to know that we are worthy of notice among our peers.

The 4-H organization has always recognized this need and therefore recognizes all 4-H participants in meaningful ways, points out Linda Fuchs, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

4-H members, from 9 to 19, find a place where they can feel good about themselves and know that others care about them. From a kind word of encouragement to a college scholarship, 4-Hers earn and receive recognition for their efforts and accomplishments.

4-H volunteers also find a place where recognition is provided for their caring and giving. Carole shown by the volunteer in the interest he or she takes in young people is rewarded by the smiles and admiration of children with whom they work. Giving of the volunteer's time and energy in teaching young people and in helping them to grow and develop is rewarded in the knowledge that he or she had a part to play in molding a happy and productive adult who was once a 4-H member.

Rewards, recognition, notice — these are all found in 4-H.

Dear Abby

Don't Pursue "Dropout" Dad

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. My parents were divorced when I was 2, and my mother agreed that my father should have no obligation to her or me. I never saw him again. My mother died six years ago and I have been living with my aunt and uncle. (She's my mother's sister.)

I've always wanted to see my father but I had no idea where he was. I remember my mother saying once that Dad had a brother living in St. Louis, so I got up the nerve to call him on the phone. I told him who I was, and said I didn't want to cause any trouble, but I wanted to get in touch with my father. He said my father was married and had a family — that he'd never told anyone that he had been married before or had a daughter. He refused to give me my father's number or even tell me where he was, but he said if I gave him my number he would give it to my father in case he wanted to call me.

I gave it to him, and didn't hear anything from anybody for five months, so I called my uncle again, and he told me I should quit looking for my father because he didn't want to see me. The aunt and uncle I live with don't know I called my uncle in St. Louis. They would have a fit if they knew because they hate my father. (Everybody on my mother's side does.)

What do you advise me to do? I really want to know my dad.

LOOKING FOR DAD

DEAR LOOKING: Your father has been told where he can reach you, so if he chooses not to get in touch with you, forget him. Perhaps when you are older, you may want to pursue this search, but for the time being, dear, cool it.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Couple's divorce doesn't take; both are remarried and ashamed

DALLAS (AP) — There were no tears and little fanfare when Abe T. Jones divorced his wife, Fannie May, of nearly 60 years. Neither realized until recently they still were legally married.

"I'm so ashamed of this. I thought I had gotten a divorce 51 years ago," said

Jones, a retired furniture salesman.

State District Judge Dan Gibbs granted the estranged couple a divorce Tuesday.

Jones, 81, recalled that he was served divorce papers in 1929 and told that if he did not want to contest the action he was not required to appear before the court.

He said he heard nothing more about the divorce and assumed his marriage was dissolved.

Mrs. Jones, 79, now lives in an Arlington nursing home.

A year ago, a column in a Dallas newspaper caught the eye of Jones' second wife, Annie Lee.

"It was about a situation similar to this, and the present wife wasn't even recognized after her husband's death. I decided to do some checking," said Annie Lee Jones, who has been married to Jones for 49 years.

"I called Rockwall County and a woman there checked and called back and said she had no record of the divorce," she said. "Well, I was so embarrassed, I almost went into shock."

Mrs. Jones said the incident has caused her and her husband a lot of embarrassment since they have lived a stable family life as practicing Southern Baptists.

Fields earns best actress award

SALLY FIELDS DUSTIN HOFFMAN

Hoffman wins first Oscar for part in best movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On a tranquil night for Oscar, Dustin Hoffman and his bitter child custody battle "Kramer vs. Kramer" earned the best of the 52nd annual Academy awards, while Sally Field's portrayal of a union militant in "Norma Rae" brought her best actress honors.

"Kramer" won five major awards Monday night, including best picture, best screenplay and directing (Robert Benton), best supporting actress (Meryl Streep) and best actor — the often-nominated but never-before chosen Hoffman.

Bob Fosse's "All That Jazz," a self-inspired musical about a stage producer's frenetic and eventually fatal drive, won four Oscars — film editing, art direction, adapted score and costume design.

"Apocalypse Now," Francis Ford Coppola's Vietnam War epic, collected for sound and cinematography. "Norma Rae" was the other multiple winner of the night, garnering Oscars for best song — "It Goes Like It Goes" — and for Miss Field's performance.

Hoffman's ambivalent acceptance and a verbal sparring match with reporters backstage provided the evening's only hints of spontaneous drama, commodities of which Oscar is usually in ample supply. Monday night was an exception.

Hoffman joked a bit as he accepted his Oscar, then turned serious, making reference to his being "critical of the Academy, and for reason."

Backstage, he expanded: "I guess what I'm trying to say is that I do think that art is competitive ... but it is for the artist to do the competing. There's just no way to arbitrarily draw the line on good work."

Not at all ambivalent was Sally Field, who struggled for years with her cutesy "Gidget" image before getting roles worthy of Oscar performances. Her portrayal of the diminutive, tough-minded union organizer, Norma Rae, earned her a best actress Oscar in a difficult field that included such heavyweights as Jane Fonda and Marsha Mason.

Miss Field went openly on stage, and said afterward, "I'm absolutely shocked. ... I know I'll go home and cry some more. I've wanted to be an actress since I was three. This is incredible."

Melvyn Douglas, who at 79 was competing in the supporting actor category against 8-year-old Justin Henry, was a predicted and popular winner for his role as the craggy capitalist in "Being There."

Douglas, who has continued working despite weakened health, was the only winning actor not in attendance at Monday's ceremony.

The other supporting role award — to Meryl Streep for "Kramer" — was not unexpected, either.

Texas legislator plans bill introduction

Feds need to give consumers more warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, wants the Federal Reserve Board to make sure that consumers get more notice before the credit terms on their unpaid balances can be changed.

A bill that the congressman plans to introduce Wednesday is a response to the board's recent steps allowing creditors to speed up consumer repayments on 30 days notice.

"I do feel that it is necessary to curb consumer spending on credit and that the Federal Reserve Board has such power, but I think the Congress should override the Fed when it has used its power imprudently, as it has in this case," Eckhardt said Monday in a statement.

The liberal Houston congressman said he would be willing to soft-pedal his bill if the board would require six months notice to consumers.

The bill would prevent the board from overriding laws in 17 states that require consumers to be given three to 12 months notice before credit terms on an outstanding purchase can be changed.

It would do that by amending the Federal Trade Commission Act to make it an unfair or deceptive practice if a creditor disregarded an existing state law allowing more than 30 days notice for changing credit terms or prohibiting retroactive changes.

Texas is one of the 33 states that do not have laws on the issue.

Eckhardt's bill also would require in all states that a consumer provide written consent before credit terms could be changed.

Under the reserve board's actions, the only way a consumer could pay off a debt under the original terms if a change in terms were announced would be to stop using the credit card.

Eckhardt said consumers would not have time to rearrange their finances if a change were made with only 30 days notice.

"Let's say a family is paying $15 a month on its freezer and washing machine, but the department store decides to raise the monthly payment to $50 or call in the whole balance at once. If the family does not use its credit card again after 30 days notice, their repayment terms cannot be changed," he said.

"But suppose that letter of notification is never opened or received in the first place, and the wife goes out and purchases a $10 coffee pot on credit on the 31st day. That $10 purchase could bring the whole house crashing down on the family by requiring higher payments they can't make," Eckhardt said.

The bill applies only to retail credit cards. It would not affect creditors' ability to take action on new credit.

Eckhardt chairs the House commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations that already has held hearings on the reserve board's plans.

Bodies of five killed in plane crash moved

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The bodies of five vacationers who died when their plane crashed while returning from a Mexico fishing trip were to be moved from a Juarez, Mexico hospital to the United States today.

Military hospital crews spent Monday picking up the victims on a rugged mountain south of Juarez. The wreckage, bodies and bits of scuba gear and fishing tackle were scattered on both sides of the rocky peak.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said the plane, piloted by John W. Miller, 54, crashed during heavy fog in a snowstorm Saturday. Mexican authorities located the crash site Sunday.

Tony Conley, Miller's son-in-law, provided a list of persons said to be aboard the flight that originated in La Paz, a coastal resort city near the tip of the Baja peninsula.

He identified them as Miller, of Washington Ranch near Carlsbad, N.M., his wife, Patricia; Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor, of Houston, friends of the Millers; and Otice E. Brown, 50, of El Paso, a vice president for engineering of GUS Manufacturing Inc., an El Paso oil exploration equipment firm.

Miller was president and founder of GUS. O'Connor, 60, was connected with Geosource Inc., a worldwide electronics and oil servicing company headquartered at Houston.

Miller had contacted the El Paso International Airport control tower Saturday and reported the weather was "very bad," according to FAA spokesman Robert Dye. The pilot did not give his location, Dye said.

THE ONE WAY

by B.W. BRIGGS

Greetings friends! It's a privilege to once again share with you some gleanings from the inspired Word of God. Still on our theme of THE ONE WAY from the Ephesian letter, chapter four, let's see what Paul had to say following the one Spirit! He begins by saying, "even as ye were called in one hope of your calling." So our study today will center around the ONE HOPE. If people have more than one spiritual hope in this life, then do we find a break in the chain of UNITY!

Keep in mind that the minute one of these seven links of unity is broken, sin has occurred and violation of God's Holy Word exist. Paul mentions in this context that we were called and that within this calling lies the ONE HOPE. First of all, how are we called? Better yet, what are we called to? In the letter to the Romans Paul said that we are called according to HIS (God's) purpose. That would tell us what we are called to! Those who are called are also designated as those who love God. (v. 28). Here the word purpose in the original language refers to God's total purpose or total history for man, which HE foreknew before times eternal. God has outlined this before the creation of anything, Ephesians 1:4. At any rate, God's purpose is that man be saved through His Son, the only one who can redeem fallen man and reinstate him to a proper relationship with the Father. Therefore, man loves God, and is called to God by coming to the Son of God. When you come to God through His Son, you obey the Gospel. That brings us to the second answer to the second question, "how are we called?" We are called by the Gospel, 1 Thessalonians 1:4; 11 Thessalonians 2:13-14. We are not called on a tractor by a vision, or a voice from heaven, nor are we called while ying our hands on the TV. We are called through the Gospel, which is the Word of God, the creation of faith in man, Romans 1:16, Ephesians 1:13.

Within this calling through the Gospel, we gain FAITH or receive FAITH, in which case without it man cannot please God, Hebrews 11:6. Faith is defined as assurance of things hoped for and a conviction of things yet unseen, Hebrews 11:1. Now, having defined Biblically the calling, and having seen that FAITH deals with hope, let's find out what hope is! The best definition is found in the Bible. Again we travel to the pages of Paul's letter to the Romans. Again, we will see the context of the eighth chapter. In verses twenty-four and twenty-five Paul states that we are saved in hope. He says that hope is something that is unseen, and that anything we hope for that can be seen is not hope. Furthermore, he reveals one of the joys of life only for the child of God. This joy is found in developing patience. For when we cannot see an end to that for which we long for, then do we grow and wait in patience. What a blessing this is! So, hope is simply defined as TRUST. Therefore, when we live by the ONE HOPE then do we live in UNITY OF TRUST. But that leaves us one last point to ponder. What do we hope for in unity? The answer, we hope in unity for an eternal salvation with God in heaven. We hope for the life Jesus gave us at our new birth to continue forever. We hope for all things to work out for our best interest. We hope for our prayers to be answered, both present and future. All of these things add up in a total message, we have ONE HOPE in the ONE GOD to give us a home yet unseen; yet we approach this ONE HOPE with assurance and conviction. Have a nice week. Better yet, prepare and HOPE for a wonderful eternity! Hope is not a negative word — it is a very positive word for prepared people!

Collins is the brother of former Big Spring basketball and baseball coach Tommy Collins.

Hockey great Mikita retires
CHICAGO (AP) — Stan Mikita, the rough, tough little center who scored 541 goals in his NHL career, officially retired after 21 glorious years with the Chicago Black Hawks.

Mikita was the first man in NHL history to win the Lady Byng, Hart and Art Ross trophies in two successive seasons, accomplishing the feat in 1966-67 and 1967-68. He was the leading playoff scorer when the Hawks last captured the Stanley Cup in 1961.

Rogers led Eagles blank Steers

By NATHAN POSS

Abilene senior righthander Mac Rogers effectively mixed his fast ball with a deceptive curve in blanking the Big Spring Steers as the Eagles took a 2-0 victory here Monday afternoon in Steer Park.

The win was the first District 5-AAAA second half game for any team in the loop, and puts the Eagles on top of the standings with a 1-0 mark. The Eagles are now 11-6 on the year, while the Steers dropped to 8-12 on the season. Big Spring will return to play this afternoon in Steer Park, at which time they host the Midland Bulldogs.

Rogers allowed the Steers only four hits during the contest, and two of those were hard hit doubles by Big Spring senior Brent Pearce. The rest of the Steers were at the mercy of Rogers throughout the game.

But Big Spring hurler Robert Moran and the Steer defense kept the home team in the game. Moran allowed only five hits and one earned run in the contest, but it was enough to give the Eagles the win.

Neither team could score in the opening three innings, although the Steers twice left two runners on base. In the third inning, Pearce smashed a ground rule double over the centerfield fence that forced Steer runner Tommy Rodriguez to stop at third. Had the ball not bounced over for the automatic two-bagger, Rodriguez would have scored easily.

Abilene took the lead in the fourth with the aid of a Big Spring error. Bobby Oles led off with a walk, and Seth Smith then laid down a bunt in an attempt to move Oles down. Moran pegged Smith out, but Oles, who was off with the pitch, raced for third. Big Spring first baseman Tommy Olague had time to peg Oles, but overshot his throw, allowing Abilene to take the lead.

A walk again led to the final Abilene run in the sixth inning. After Moran retired the first two hitters, he walked Smith. Jim Hudson then was safe on an infield single, and Gary Drew singled to drive in Smith and give the Eagles a 2-0 edge with time running out on the Steers.

Pearce slammed a double down the left field line to open the sixth, and one out later Tim Shaver walked to once again put two runners aboard for the Steers. But Rogers retired the next two hitters to squelch the threat.

Beef Armendarez singled with one out in the seventh for the Bovines, but could advance no further, as Abilene second baseman Mike Blackwell robbed Big Spring's Mark Warren of a hit and then threw out Rodriguez on a ground ball to end the contest.

The Steers are expected to start sophomore Moe Rubio on the mound today against Midland. The Bulldogs won the first half contest from the Steers by a score of 11-8. Game time is four o'clock.

Shawn Smith inks with Arizona State

By NATHAN POSS

Shawn Smith, who played a vital role in the success of the Howard College Hawk Queens success the past two seasons, has signed a basketball scholarship agreement with the Arizona State University Sun Devils.

The 5'11" sophomore made her decision after considering numerous other offers, but the sunny confines and atmosphere of the Arizona State campus, which is located in Tempe, helped lure Smith to the Pac-10 school.

Smith, who averaged 16 points and 11 rebounds per game during her career at Howard College, was also impressed with the educational opportunities that Arizona State offered, as well as the athletic reputation the school is known for.

"I really liked the campus," said Smith, whose rebounding and inside scoring ability helped the Hawk Queens win the Western Conference the past season, "and it fit what I was looking for in regard to an education," added Shawn, who will major in Education at Arizona State.

The Steers are expected to start sophomore Moe Rubio on the mound today against Midland. The Bulldogs won the first half contest from the Steers by a score of 11-8. Game time is four o'clock.

SHAWN SMITH

The Arizona State girls' basketball program is under the direction of Coach Juliene Simpson, who is in the process of building her facet of the athletic program on par with the highly successful boys' program. Simpson has roots in Texas juko basketball, as she was the coach at Amarillo Junior College in 1977. She then moved to the University of Cincinnati for two years, and is now concluding her first season in Tempe.

Simpson's first Sun Devils girls' team was 12-13 the past season.

Arizona State's Pac-10 schedule includes such conference foes as Arizona, USC, UCLA, California, Stanford, plus the four Oregon and Washington schools, and Smith admitted that the lure of this widespread and recognizable conference did make a big difference in her decision.

"Yeah," Smith said laughingly in answer to the Pac-10 question. "I guess so. It was very tempting."

Smith, a second team All-Western Conference performer the past two years, also considered offers from Texas Tech, Angelo State, UT-Arlington and Texas Wesleyan before making her decision.

The newly-signed Sun Devil averaged 16 points and 11 rebounds per game while at Howard College, and was the WJC's third-ranked rebounder the past season. She played her high school basketball at Clayton, New Mexico.

Arizona State Coach Simpson has indicated that Smith was recruited for her rebounding, which was the strongest part of her game while at Howard College.

At Sports Banquet

Howard College honors athletes

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
Like a big family get-together, Howard College administrators and faculty honored their 1979-80 athletic teams during the Annual Sports Banquet Monday night.

The coaches from the two basketball teams and the coach of the rodeo team announced the winners of individual awards.

Rodeo coach Skipper Driver presented the Outstanding Hawk Cowboy Award to Guy Miller, and the Outstanding Hawk Cowgirl Award to Sherry Altizer.

Before presenting the awards, Driver said, "We just finished a very successful rodeo." The rodeo coach added that the Howard College rodeo that took place last weekend gained widespread community acceptance.

About his team, Driver said, "I have been blessed with some super individuals." He added, "I thought this week was the turning point." He said that Howard College lost the rodeo by only six points.

"I am confident we are going to Bozeman, (Montana)," Driver said. Bozeman, Mont., will be the site of the rodeo rodeo finals.

Coach Don Stevens named Joanne Lefridge as the player who contributed the most to the Hawk Queens season.

Lefridge was named All-Conference, All-Region and played in two all-star games. In one all-star game, she was named the most valuable player on her squad.

Stevens also mentioned two other players who had outstanding seasons. These were Shawn Smith and Kelly Lyons.

Of his team, Stevens said, "I was extremely proud of the season the girls basketball team had." The Hawk Queens finished with a 26-8 season. They were 11-1 in conference. Stevens said this conference mark was notable, for a pre-season poll of coaches thought the winner of the conference would lose as many as three games.

Contributing to this season, Stevens said, "We had six sophomores on the floor." He said the team had six sophomores, who guided the team through the season.

Stevens added that the Hawk Queens were able to win on the road.

"Those go hand in hand," Stevens said about his team's winning formula. Stevens said, "I think this was the best team the college ever had." He said the Hawk Queens were well-balanced, as evidenced by five players having scoring averages in double figures.

Stevens said, "They were not a good shooting team." But, he added that his team's rebounding and defense made a big difference between his team and the opposition.

Coach Harold Wilder gave out five individual awards.

Mike Wallace won awards for having the most rebounds on the team and for his free throw shooting.

Wallace had a scoring average of 29.0, which was ninth in the nation. Rocky Rawls was named for leading the team in assists.

Ren Atkins was named the Noncomer of the Year. He averaged 13 rebounds a game and had a 21.0 scoring average.

The Hustlingest Hawk Award went to Kenneth Jones.

Of this award, Wilder said, "It exemplifies drive and hustle, the guy who gives 110 percent all the time."

Of this year, Wilder said, "I felt like it was a very successful year." The Hawks turned in a 19-13 season mark.

Dan Reeves guest speaker at Stanton

STANTON — Dan Reeves, offensive coordinator for the Dallas NFL team and the man some say will be the next head coach of the Cowboys, will be the principal speaker at the Stanton High School All-Sports Banquet next Monday.

The banquet will be held beginning at 6:30 p.m., in the Martin County Community Center. Tickets, priced at $5 each, are available at Stanton Drug, First National Bank, Eiland and Associates and the Stanton Reporter.

Several awards will be presented, including the Coaches Fighting Heart Award and Outstanding Male and Female Athlete trophies.

Reeves played eight seasons for the Cowboys before he became a coach in 1972. He attended the University of South Carolina. He is a native of Americus, Ga.

West Germany and Japan, two allies whose support is considered vital to President Carter's drive for an international boycott of the Moscow Summer Olympics, appear ready to lend that support following the U.S. Olympic Committee's vote in favor of a boycott.

In addition, network sources say NBC will not televise the Moscow Olympics, although the official announcement will be delayed until lawyers are certain NBC had satisfied its insurance commitment and can recover some $57 million. That sum represents 90 percent of NBC's payment to the Soviet Olympic Organizing Committee and the International Olympic Committee.

Klaus Boelling, chief spokesman for the West German government, said Monday it would recommend that the country's National Olympic Committee vote to boycott the Games as long as Soviet troops remain in Afghanistan.

The committee will meet May 15 in Dusseldorf to decide whether to send a team to Moscow. Although the government decision is not binding, Willi Daume, West German IOC member, said it "certainly has weight."

West Germany's decision is expected to influence other Western European nations. France, for example, is on record as saying it will wait for a meeting of European nations in May before deciding on its position.

Meanwhile, Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira is scheduled to visit Washington in late April, and government officials said Ohira wanted to bring a pro-boycott decision with him.

"It is apparent the USOC's decision will have a serious effect on us, serious enough to influence our position," said Katsuji Shibata, president of the Japanese Olympic Committee.

The IOC has had no official comment on the USOC vote, but will review the Moscow situation at its executive board meeting in Lausanne, Switzerland April 21-23. "I will make no comment on the USOC's decision until I have talked to everyone else about it," said IOC President Lord Killanin.

In Moscow, preparations for the Games went on as usual. A government spokesman said, "The decision of the U.S. Olympic Committee will have no effect whatsoever on our preparations." And Tass, the Soviet news agency, said, "The Olympics will take place despite all the schemes, maneuvers, provocations, intrigues, convulsions and paroxysms at the White House."

Celtics complete sweep of Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — The plodding Houston Rockets decided to fight fire with fire with the running Boston Celtics in the fourth game of their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series Monday night.

The Rockets decided to run, too, and all they did was get burned for the 10th straight time as the Celtics flexed their muscle with another third-quarter surge and rolled to a 138-121 victory.

The win gave Boston a 4-0 sweep in the lopsided series and propelled them into the NBA Eastern Conference finals against the Philadelphia-Atlanta winner.

In nine previous losses to the Celtics, six straight in the regular season, the Rockets seldom dared get in a foot race with the greyhound-quick Celtics.

And when they opened up Monday night, the Celtics were neither surprised nor dismayed by the change in tactics.

"We're happy when people run with us," said Celtic forward Cedric Maxwell, who scored 27 points. "We think we have a good transition game and can get down the court with the best of them."

With the Celtics loping along with a 49-35 lead in the second quarter, the Rockets suddenly erupted with 12 straight points that cut the lead to 49-47 and the slumbering 13,106 Rocket fans came to life.

It was a fight the remainder of the first half with Boston being forced into a floor-length pass by Nate Archibald and a last-second basket by Maxwell for a 66-64 halftime lead.

But then the game was over for the Rockets, who watched for the fourth time in the series as the Celtics put together a breakaway third-quarter spurt that put an end to their season with a 14-4 spurt to start to start the third quarter.

Both Philadelphia and Los Angeles can wrap up their second-round series tonight at home, but they are coming into their games from different directions.

After three close contests, each won by the home team, the Philadelphia 76ers stunned the Atlanta Hawks 107-83 Sunday night in Atlanta to take a 3-1 lead in their series.

"The attitude of Atlanta fans was one of shock and disbelief," reported Sixers General Manager Pat Williams. But he's not counting his chickens just yet.

"My concern is that we might be inclined to take it a little easy and we can't do that," said Williams.

Los Angeles, on the other hand, is coming off a 127-101 thrashing at Phoenix after having beaten the Suns in the first three games of its series. The Lakers came out flat, fell behind 10-0 and never caught up.

In Seattle, the defending champion SuperSonics play host to the Milwaukee Bucks with their series tied 2-2. Seattle pulled even with a 112-107 victory at Milwaukee Sunday.

Rangers rally to win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Doc Medich was already in trouble when he tossed what he called a "mediocre fastball" down the plate at Jorge Orta.

The bases were loaded and Orta pounced on the pitch, drilling it into the fourth row of the centerfield bleachers for a grand slam homer that gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-0 lead over the Texas Rangers in the first inning Monday night.

"Yes, it was a good pitch, if you're a hitter. I wanted it back as soon as I threw it. It looked like it was going to be a long evening," the 6-foot-6 righthander said.

But Medich's teammates had their own uprising in the bottom of the inning. Jim Sundberg blasted his own grand slam homer and Texas went on to a 7-4 victory.

Mickey Rivers and Al Oliver doubled against Cleveland's Rick Waits, cutting the lead to 4-1. But the real damage came when the 6-3 southpaw proceeded to walk Buddy Bell, Richie Zisk and Billy Sample, forcing in another run and loading the bases for Sundberg.

"I just plain couldn't find the plate. I threw every pitch and couldn't get any of them over. Anytime you walk three in one inning, you're asking for trouble and I got it," Waits said.

Sundberg then lashed his second career grand slam, powering his drive over the 370-foot mark in left center to catapult the Rangers to a 6-4 lead.

After the wild first inning, Cleveland Manager Dave Garcia said, "They both settled down and pitched good ball. That's the way it goes. That's why this is such a great game. We're going to win a game exactly like this before the year's over."

Over the next six innings, Medich, 1-0, allowed only three walks and Duane Kuipers doubled before back-to-back singles by Rick Manning and Toby Harrah drove him from the game with two out in the seventh.

Sparky Lyle, who came on in relief, wasn't even close to the plate in walking Mike Hargrove on four pitches to load the bases. He then threw two more balls to Cliff Johnson before he gave up on his breaking stuff and threw nothing but fastballs for a strikeout that ended the inning.

Lyle then retired the Indians in order the final two innings to pick up for his first save.

AL Roundup

Eckersley is back

By the Associated Press

Dennis Eckersley wasn't sharp on Opening Day against the Milwaukee Brewers and it looked like it was going to be another one of those dull days against the Detroit Tigers Monday.

But after throwing 34 pitches and working out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning, the picture brightened considerably. And as Eckersley straightened himself out, so did the Boston Red Sox, with a 3-1 victory.

"I didn't have a good slider, but I could've pitched all day," Eckersley said after allowing the Tigers just three hits in seven innings.

Eckersley was replaced after a 56-minute rain delay, allowing Tom Burgmeier to finish up.

"I had to get out of there after that long delay," Eckersley noted. "(But) I felt much better than I did in Milwaukee my first time out. That time I just stunk."

Eckersley was rocked for three home runs in Boston's 9-5 loss to the Brewers last week.

Boston Manager Don Zimmer was thrown out of the game in the first inning for arguing calls with umpire Marty Springstead.

Twins 5, Angels 3

Roy Smalley's three-run homer capped a four-run ninth, pacing Minnesota over California. Angel reliever Mark Clear walked Danny Goodwin and gave up a single to Hosken Powell to open the inning. One out later, Mike Cabbage singled home Powell and moved Castillo to third. Dave LaRoche then relieved Clear and struck out Rob Wilfong before Smalley hit his second homer of the season.

Mariners 7, A's 1

Dan Meyer and Bruce Bochte drove in two runs apiece during a five-run second, carrying Seattle over Oakland behind Glenn Abbott's four-hitter. Billy Martin was ejected from a game for the first time as manager of the A's during Seattle's big inning.

NL Roundup

Robinson still offering proof

By the Associated Press

It's a new baseball season, but not any different than any other for Bill Robinson. He's still trying to prove himself, it seems.

Once a player of great promise, Robinson has had a checkered career with four major league teams. Most recently the Pittsburgh Pirates. He almost joined a fifth this year, but vetoed a trade that the Pirates made with the Houston Astros during the off-season.

Robinson says in so many words that he would rather come off the bench as a defensive replacement in the late innings in Pittsburgh than start anywhere else.

And Monday night, he not only provided the Pirates with late-inning defense but late-inning offense as well, hitting a 10th-inning home run to provide Pittsburgh with a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"Anything else would be secondary compared to playing in Pittsburgh," said the veteran outfielder who will be 36 in June.

About the proposed trade for Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar:

"I have no animosity whatsoever toward anyone. I know a trade is all business. It's nothing personal."

Reds 6, Giants 5

Dave Collins, who earlier in the day was named the NL's first Player of the Week, hit a two-out, bases-loaded triple in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift Cincinnati over San Francisco.

Collins, who had been hitless in four previous times at bat, hit the first pitch thrown to him by loser Gary Lavelle to send home three runs and cap a five-run rally.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Reds, who remained the only unbeaten team in the major leagues.

Padres 2, Dodgers 1

San Diego broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the eighth inning, one on a wild pitch by Robert Castillo and another on Willie Montanez's sacrifice fly, en route to a close victory over Los Angeles.

Region V All-Stars drop pair

WACO — The Region XIV (East Texas) All-Stars rallied in the second half for a 103-99 win over the Region V All-Stars here Saturday night in a battle of outstanding sophomore junior college basketball players.

In a Friday night contest, the Region XIV girls All-Stars rallied from a nine-point deficit to take a 78-63 triumph over the Region V All-Stars.

The Region V boys All-Stars were coached by Midland College tutor Jerry Stone, while the Region V girls All-Star squad was coached by Odessa College's Ken Hefner.

Howard College was well represented in both of the juco affairs, as Mike Wallace, Shawn Smith and Joanne Lefridge all performed admirably.

Wallace scored 16 points, and according to Howard College Coach Harold Wilder, "played real well throughout the game."

Smith scored four points and collected numerous rebounds, while Lefridge added four points for the girls stars and was cited for her defensive play.

Midland College's Robert Tate, who was named the MVP for Region V, and Wallace led the Region V All-Stars to a 49-45 halftime lead, as the pair each scored 11 points.

But Region XIV, behind the play of North Harris County guard Lynden Rose, came back to take the game in the second half. Rose led Region XIV in scoring with 18 points.

Tate was the high point man for the game with 22 points, with Wallace adding 16 and Western Texas center Greg Stewart 14.

There was also an exciting slam-dunk contest at half-time of the game, with the six Southwest Conference head basketball coaches that were in attendance being the judges. Two members of Western Texas' national championship team tied after the first round of competition, Stewart and Paul Pressey. Pressey then won the dunk-off when Stewart missed his last dunk.

In the girls contest, the Region V team jumped out to an early 19-10 lead before taking a 44-40 halftime lead.

The Region XIV All-Stars then managed to take the lead in the latter stages of the contest, as Howard College Coach Don Stevens, who was in attendance at the contest, said the game was closer than the final score would indicate.

Colombian Candidates must limit prisoners spending to $29 million in 7th week

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's Democratic and Republican presidential candidates cannot spend more than $29.44 million in their general election campaigns, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The justices unanimously upheld federal laws attacked by the Republican National Committee and others.

In other action, the court: —Left intact former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel's political corruption conviction. He, and five political associates, could be ordered to start federal prison sentences within a month. Mandel faces four years in prison for participating in a favors-trading scheme that reportedly brought him some $350,000 worth of gifts, vacations and interests in business deals.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — "The ambassador is a prisoner here; we're prisoners here," said a member of the U.S. Embassy staff as Ambassador Diego Asencio and 17 other foreign diplomats rounded out their seventh week as prisoners of leftist guerrillas in the Dominican Republic's embassy.

"Our leaves and vacations are canceled," the American diplomat continued. "I've been working every day. All the staff has been anxious."

Rooftop spotlights were being turned on and rain was lashing the iron fence ringing the embassy grounds.

"For the first three weeks there was no routine business handled," said a press officer. "I've still got my in-box piled with work from Feb. 27. The hostage situation still has first call on everyone's time around here."

On Feb. 27, armed terrorists invaded a noon-time cocktail party at the Dominican Embassy and took 57 prisoners including Asencio, 48, an experienced diplomat with 20 years of foreign service. The guerrillas have released 36 of their hostages and two Colombians and are demanding the release of seven jailed comrades.

Aides say his wife, Nancy, sends Asencio food to supplement the restricted "prison" fare. Their five children are in the United States.

Asencio is in "good shape," one aide reported. "He's lost some weight, according to pictures I've seen. He's under a lot of stress, but he has an even temperament. He talks with us once a day by telephone and passes messages to his wife and staff. He speaks in Spanish, which is apparently what the guerrillas require, and we talk to him in English."

The U.S. Embassy, an L-shaped, four-story concrete building with sliding steel doors, is one of the best guarded and largest in this Andean capital. Officials say the solid security it provided is being reinforced.

—Left intact a ruling in a California case that persons applying for welfare must receive full hearings before being denied benefits.

Monday's action does not set a national precedent but the lower court's ruling apparently is binding on all general welfare programs in California, Alaska, Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Hawaii.

—Refused to strike down as racially biased against whites the University of Washington medical school's admissions policy.

Frederick McDonald, a white man turned down by the medical school in 1976, had charged he was a victim of "reverse discrimination." He asked the justices to rule that the school's admissions policy extended beyond the affirmative action standards enunciated in their "Bakke" decision of 1978.

Under the Federal Election Campaign Act and the Presidential Campaign Fund Act, presidential candidates nominated by the two major parties may finance their general election campaigns in one of two ways. They may raise the funds through private contributions, limited to $1,000 from each individual or to $5,000 from a political committee, or they may accept public financing.

Each major party candidate who seeks public financing is entitled to $20 million, plus adjustments for inflation, for the campaign.

KNOW YOUR CARRIER

Greg Blythe

Greg Blythe is twelve years old and is already saving for a car. He earns his money by managing Herald Route 258. Greg delivers to the 3700 blocks of Adams and Caroline, 3600-3700 Calvin and Connolly, 2100-2200 Cecilia, Tingle and Hatch. He has been carrying this route since February.

Greg is not the only Herald carrier saving for a future investment. Many other carriers have a plan for their route profits — a bike, a musical instrument, college, clothes, spending money for the present, etc... Whatever they have in mind, a Herald route produces good profits for the short amount of time invested.

In his spare time, Greg likes to skate and bowl. He also participates in the advanced band at Galad where he is a 7th grader.

Greg lives with his mother, Joy Blythe, at Park Village apartment 681.

If you would like your son or daughter to benefit from having his or her own spending money, call 263-7331 or stop by the Herald for a route application.
