Consumer prices continue soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose a steep 1.4 percent for the third consecutive month in March, eroding the buying power of all Americans but insuring a higher "catch-up" raise for Social Security recipients, the government reported today.

Although gasoline and fuel oil price increases slowed somewhat last month, food and clothing prices surged and home ownership costs continued to rise sharply, the Labor Department said.

As a result, prices in the first three months of the year rose at a near-record annual rate of 18 percent. Carter administration officials have said they do not expect inflation to slow much below this double-digit pace before mid-year.

Prices last year went up 13.3 percent.

The latest inflation report means that the nation's 35 million Social Security recipients will get a hefty 14.3 percent increase in their benefit checks starting in July to make up for the dent inflation has made in their buying power.

The benefit increase, based on the rise in prices in the first quarter of 1979, will boost the average retiree's check $41 to $330 a month, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said.

Benefits also will be adjusted for the 4.1 million aged, blind and disabled people who receive Supplemental Security Income.

In a companion report released today, the Labor Department said inflation continued to cut deeply into the earnings of the nation's workers.

A 0.9 percent increase in average weekly earnings in March was more than offset by inflation and a drop in the hours worked, leaving workers with inflation-adjusted weekly earnings 0.7 percent below the February level.

IT'S HIS DAY — The Big Spring City Council officially designated today as Wade Choate Day during this morning's regular meeting. The former mayor (left) accepts a copy of the official proclamation from his successor, Clyde Angel. Festivities will include a reception open to the public from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Citizen's Federal Credit Union, followed by an invitation-only reception at the Big Spring Country Club.

Contract awarded for air terminal renovation

Council proclaims Wade Choate Day

By JAMES WERRELL

Today is Wade Choate Day. This was so declared by the Big Spring City Council during this morning's regular session.

"Wade, there is no way I or the council can say how much you have meant to us and the citizens of Big Spring," said the former mayor's successor, Clyde Angel, as he presented Choate with a special hand-lettered proclamation.

The proclamation stated the "sincere appreciation to Wade Choate for his contributions to the quality of local government, and the gratitude of the council and citizens of Big Spring for his services as councilman, mayor pro-tem and mayor."

In other business, the council awarded a bid to the Kenny Thompson Construction Company to renovate the Big Spring Airport Terminal.

"Virtually every industrial prospect we have entertained has ended up at the airport at one time or another. And with this being an election year, a number of dignitaries and candidates have met in the conference room there," said City Manager Don Davis. "The terminal is often the first impression people receive of Big Spring, and it needs to be a good impression."

The renovation will include carpeting and painting of most rooms in the terminal, installation of new windows, and construction of a new concrete walkway from the front of the building to the sidewalk.

Total cost of the project will be $21,800. Of that, the Economic Development Administration will pay $15,000 in federal funds.

Cost to the city will be $6,800 in matching funds, which have been budgeted in the city's Industrial Park Fund. "This is really the smartest thing to do," said Davis. "We are already committed to paying $4,000 in architect's fees whether the job gets done or not. That means that for $2,800 more we can get nearly $22,000 worth of renovation."

The council decided to postpone approval of the 1979-80 revised city budget until further study could be made by each council member.

"I'm really going to have to study this some more before I can give my approval," said Councilman Jack Y. Smith.

After posing several questions to city officials about figures issued in the revised budget, Councilman Larry Miller agreed: "It would just be a waste of time to discuss this further here. I will have to get with you (City Finance Director Tom Ferguson) and try to clear up some of the questions I have."

In a discussion of Permian Airways, Davis told the council that the city may not be able to sell the company fuel in the near future.

Bullet train proposal called 'pie in the sky' by candidate

By STEVE HERSBERGER

Upgrading existing Amtrak service would be more realistic for the Texas Triangle, than constructing a bullet-train for the central Texas population core, Railroad Commission candidate Buddy Temple said Monday during a press conference at the Big Spring Airport.

"Nobody knows what it'll cost," Temple said about the rapid rail system, which his May 3 Democratic Primary opponent, John Poerner, is putting forth in the campaign.

"The engineers I've discussed it with said it would be between $20 and $30 billion," Temple said. He added that heavy federal government subsidization would be required.

Poerner in a press conference here recently said the electric, elevated two-way train system connecting Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio in a triangular fashion would cost $6 billion to construct; and Poerner added that the system would be wholly financed by private enterprise.

Temple called Poerner's projections "pie in the sky."

"The bullet train is crazy and idiotic," Temple said. "The taxpayer can't afford it."

He added, "It gets down to one thing and that is his judgment."

Temple favors the proposal that is currently being supported by the Texas congressional delegation.

"It is known as the Texas Triangle Amtrak proposal," Temple added.

The idea calls for existing Amtrak lines to be upgraded and new, higher-speed trains installed. The initial redonings would take place on the tracks between Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio.

The cost for the Amtrak suggestion would be $200 million for just upgrading track; and $1.2 billion for repairing track and adding the newer trains.

The time period for the Amtrak proposal would be between three and four years, Temple said.

"This is something that can be taken seriously," Temple added.

Temple hails from Diboll. He is currently chairman of the board of Exeter Investment Company, which has bank and real estate holdings throughout the state. He also serves on the boards of directors of nine other companies.

He has served four terms in the Texas House of Representatives, first being elected in 1972.

During the press conference, Temple set down three issues which are pertinent in his view in the railroad commission race.

"The energy policy this country has pursued in the last seven years has been disastrous," Temple said. He added that the price controls installed by President Richard Nixon in 1973 increased this nation's dependence on foreign oil.

Temple said the nation's handling of the energy situation has led to higher prices, reduced supplies and induced shortages.

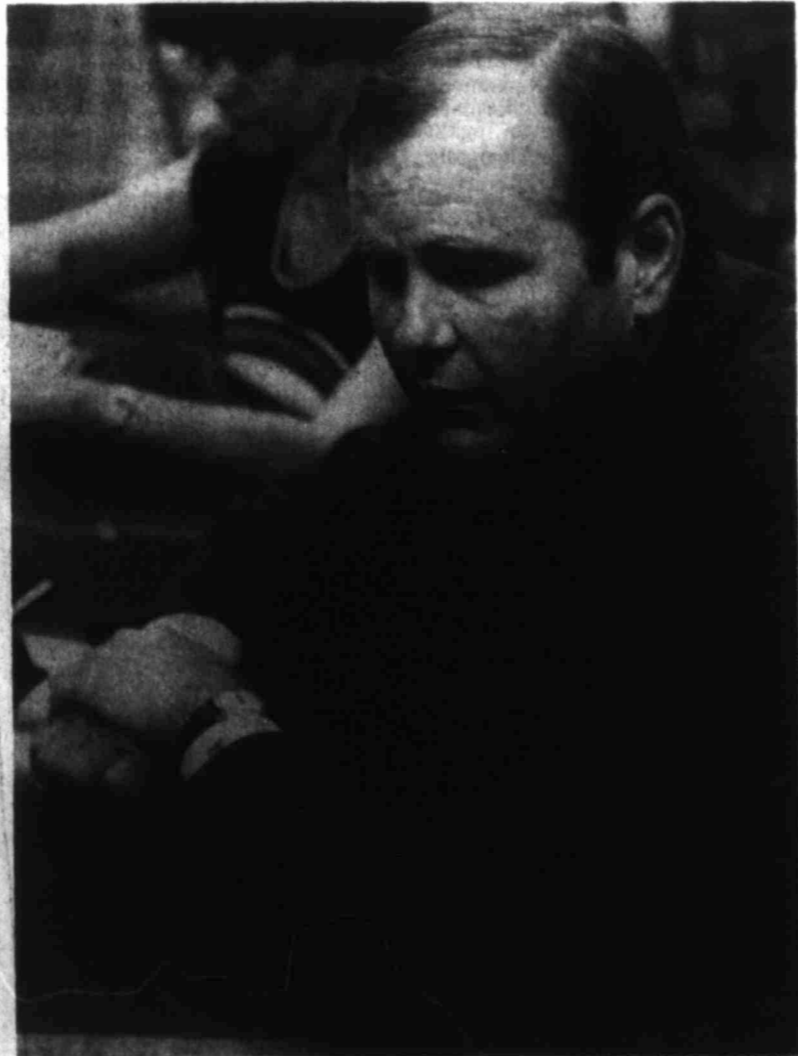

The Diboll businessman said the Railroad Commission in Texas is the closest thing to an energy agency outside of the U.S. Department of Energy.

"Texas has an obligation to be heard in Washington," Temple said.

He also said that the Railroad Commission must be more aggressive in pursuing alternate sources of energy.

Temple called for a statewide energy plan that would include

Armed robbery co-defendants enter pleas of guilt today

By DON WOODS

Co-defendants scheduled for trial today in 118th District Court entered pleas of guilt to armed robbery indictments before the trial began. Evidence was presented to jurors to determine guilt.

Accused of the Nov. 18, 1979 robbery of the 11th and Johnson Seven-11 were James Curtis Hayes, Northcrest Apartments No. 63, and Dwayne Dean Johnson, 1002 N. Main, both 17 years of age.

Hayes is being represented by attorney Jack Thompson. Johnson is being represented by attorney Wayne Basden. District Attorney Rick Hamby is representing the state as prosecution.

Barbara Rawls, store clerk, testified that Johnson held the gun and demanded money from the cash register. Hayes, she said, had said something like, "No, man, no" when Johnson confronted her.

They had been in the store 10 minutes when Johnson hit a cigarette case on the counter with a .38 pistol, said Mrs. Rawls.

"It was a little before 3 a.m. I was getting out of the vault," she said, as to the time they entered. She went behind the counter.

Hayes, she said, put something into a microwave oven, while Johnson approached the counter and demanded the money.

Mrs. Rawls turned and saw the lights of a car parking in front of the store. She said she wasn't sure at the time that it was a police car.

The two defendants were almost out the door when she turned back to see what they were doing. Johnson left the pistol by the cigarette case on the counter. Mrs. Rawls had the money in her hand.

Officer Bruce Johnson took the stand. He said when he pulled his car into the parking lot, the defendants were going out the door. He said he saw the money in the clerk's hand.

"As they left the store they proceeded east," he said. He looked back to the clerk and saw that she had her hand over her mouth. "They tried to rob me," Johnson quoted her as saying.

Officer Johnson yelled at the defendants to halt and they broke into a run. The officer then called back-up units and proceeded after Dwayne Johnson and Bubba Hayes.

Officer Johnson caught up with Dwayne Johnson three minutes later in the Baptist Temple parking lot on Goliad.

Officer James Nettles, identification officer, testified that he met Officer Johnson at the 7-11 after Dwayne Johnson had been turned over to another officer.

Nettles noticed that the pistol would not have fired if the trigger had been pulled because there was not a cartridge in the chamber. The other five chambers were loaded.

Nettles took the pistol back to the police station and dusted it for latent prints. It was entered into evidence this morning.

He also dusted a drinking cup and package of cigarettes thought to have been handled by defendants. No prints were found on them.

Defendant Hayes was arrested the same night in another part of town.

After a recess, Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin took the stand regarding the reading of Miranda rights to Bubba Hayes. Heflin went back to his office to obtain records. When he came back to the stand, he said he was certain that Hayes' rights had been read.

Basden challenged the time Heflin told Hamby the rights had been read. Heflin had said the rights had been read at 9 p.m. though the copy of the rights said they had been read at 9:34 a.m. on Nov. 19, said Basden. Heflin changed his testimony.

Basden asked Heflin if there was anything said while the rights were being given that Heflin would remember 15 minutes from now under Hamby's questioning.

"I resent the heck out of that Basden," said Hamby, objecting to the question.

Basden asked Heflin why the confession and the rights had the same time written on them, 9:34 a.m. "Was the confession given before the warning?" asked Basden. Heflin did not know.

Action/reaction: Age proof

Q. My father will be 65 this year but has no birth certificate. How can he prove it to the Social Security Administration?

A. Sometimes an entry in an old family Bible will be accepted. The most reliable method, however, is to seek the help of the Census Bureau. The bureau can document his age (although not his exact date of birth) to the first ten-year census after his birth. Send $7.50 for a form to the Personal Census Service Branch, Bureau of Census, Pittsburg, Kansas 66762. The branch will search two censuses for him and will send back a transcript of its findings to you.

RRC primary contest pits ideological opposites

By JACKIE CALMES
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The choice between Jim Nugent and Jim Hightower in the May 3 Democratic primary could be a referendum on the way the Texas Railroad Commission does business.

That's assuming that voters understand what the commission is and what each candidate proposes it should be.

Nugent, as the incumbent, defends the status quo on the powerful energy and transportation regulatory agency. Challenger Hightower is the 1980-style populist reformer.

"We've got to aggressively get on the side of the consumer," Hightower tells people. "That's what the Railroad Commission was designed to do in 1890."

Nugent, however, tells audiences that the three commissioners are supposed to be impartial arbiters in decisions pitting business versus consumer.

Nugent, Hightower says, is a tool of the energy and transportation industries the commission is supposed to regulate.

Hightower, Nugent says, is a left-wing radical, a tool of the consumer-oriented northern states.

Such political name-calling has dominated the campaign, but here's what the candidates are saying to voters on some major issues before the Railroad Commission:

Gas utility rates.

Hightower says the commission last year approved rate increases of 30 percent without consumer input at hearings. Those hikes are gouging consumers, he says.

Nugent says the commission acts as an appellate court on gas utility rates, settling differences between cities and the companies.

Nugent says 80 percent of all rate cases are settled locally, and of the 20 percent appealed, utilities usually get less than they want and go next to district court.

The courts, Nugent says, uphold the commission's orders more than 90 percent of the time.

Hightower says it's deceiving to say the commission only acts on appeals. A 1975 law gives it original jurisdiction for retail rates in rural areas and for all wholesale rates, he says.

Nugent says the commission essentially has no rate-setting power in rural areas since it applies the same rates granted by nearby cities. Hightower replies that many cities, particularly smaller ones, merely rubberstamp utilities' requests for higher rates.

Hightower also proposes to conduct hearings in the areas affected, rather than in Austin. He says the commission staff should audit the books not only of the utilities, but also of parent companies, to see if higher rates are justified.

Hightower also criticizes the commission for allowing utilities to include advertising and legal costs in rates, to make higher rates retroactive to the date the utility appealed to the commission and to apply a fuel-adjustment charge to wholesale customers for higher-priced gas.

Surface mining for lignite. Nugent talks of a "bay window" formation of lignite deposits stretching from Laredo to Texarkana that will provide 25 percent of Texas' industrial fuel by the year 2000.

And, he says, strip mining the lignite will not transform East Texas into an Appalachia-like wasteland since Texas' new surface mining and reclamation law is the best in the country.

Nugent says the law requires hearings for mining permits, million-dollar bonds pending reclamation and restoration of the soil to better-than-ever condition.

Hightower's most basic reform would change the way commissioners are elected. He says candidates should not accept political contributions from high officials in the industries the commission regulates.

Hightower does not and financial statements filed recently at the secretary of state's office show he has taken in $126,122 — about one-third of Nugent's $366,648.

Hightower says he can't afford television advertising, thought essential for winning a statewide race, while Nugent plans a television blitz before May 3.

Nugent tells those who ask about his campaign contributions, "I have not taken a dime in this race from any oil and gas company or corporation."

Texas election law forbids corporate contributions. When asked if he accepted money from senior officials in regulated companies, Nugent replies, "If I have, I'm not aware of it. I don't ask for financial statements or biographies from anyone."

Hightower says Nugent's financial statements show 90 percent of his contributors are officials, lawyers or lobbyists for regulated industries. Eighty of the donations listed are $1,000 or greater.

Nugent countercharges that Hightower is financed by northeasterners who are making a grab for Texas' natural resources.

Hightower says he had two fund-raisers, one in New York and another in Washington, D.C., which garnered $5,000 and $9,000, respectively.

Not so, says Nugent. Last year, for example, the commission granted 89 percent of all applications.

Hightower proposes to increase that number, with emphasis on small businessmen and minorities. Campaign finance.

"We told them (Permian) Friday that we will probably not be able to sell them gas because of our allocation," said Davis. "Our allocation from Exxon prior to the service locating here was based on what the fixed-base operators were selling. We have been trying to get our allocation increased, but we have had no success."

Permian ceased all service to Dallas-Fort Worth on Monday, but increased flights to Midland from two to four a day. Since Monday, Permian has had one customer, said Airport Manager Bob Clark.

"It seems to me like we're being used as a filling station," said Miller. "It also seems like we're running in competition with the fixed-base operators, and they (the FBOs) should have the first shot at selling fuel to the airways."

Initial approval was given to a request from Wayne Basden and Lanny Hamby to close two local thoroughfares, Dallas Road and State Drive. Once the streets are closed, the property will be dedicated to adjacent property owners (with Basden owning the largest amount) by Howard County officials.

City officials estimated that the streets totaled approximately 1.8 acres at a cost of $1,100. The streets are inside the Thorp Subdivision bounded by FM 700 and Wasson.

Following a closed executive session, the council authorized City Attorney Elliott Mitchell to proceed with appropriate action, including a lawsuit if necessary, against the Big Spring Electronics Company. The company allegedly owes the city $12,000 in back rent for a building at the Industrial Park.

The company was recently given a notice to vacate the building within 30 days, said Mitchell.

When no one showed up during a public hearing to object to a proposed zone change, the council approved the change on first reading. If approved at the next regular meeting, both sides of Lancaster from Fourth to 11th will be rezoned from Single Family-2 and Parking to Neighborhood Service.

Contingent on their approval, six residents were named to serve on the Citizens Airport Advisory Board. A seventh member, a layperson, will be named at a later date.

As recommended by city officials, those named to the board included: a fixed-base operator, R.E. McClure; two professional pilots, James Duncan and Carl Wyrick; chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Transportation Committee, Joe Pickle; two private pilots, J.D. Carter and Robert Dugan; and a layperson.

Council members also gave city officials permission to negotiate the purchase of 98 sanitation containers with the former owner of the sanitation service who had the contract with Webb AFB. The purchase of the containers could be the first step in converting the entire city to containerized trash pickup next year, said Davis.

In his City Manager's Report, Davis lauded the efforts of Larry Sheppard, director of the Sheppard Funeral Home, in cleaning up the damage at Mount Olive Memorial Park. Vandalism last week toppled nearly 40 tombstones at the cemetery.

"Mr. Sheppard volunteered specialized equipment, and we were able to repair all damage that occurred at the cemetery. I want to publicly commend Mr. Sheppard for his efforts," said the city manager.

The council also approved Davis' suggestion that a special meeting of the council be held at 6 p.m. May 6 to hear suggestions about capital improvements by members of the five appointed advisory committees.

In other business, councilmen:

- Approved a third, one-year permit allowing Mrs. James Doss to keep livestock on her property within city limits.
- Awarded a bid for depositing city funds to the First National Bank.
- Approved the second and final reading of a resolution establishing a non-profit Housing Finance Corporation.
- Tabled appointment of members to the Traffic Commission, Tourist Development Council, Audit Committee and Arson Board.

Reagan's daughter here Vote to be close today

Reagan's daughter here Vote to be close today

A win for Ronald Reagan in today's Pennsylvania Republican primary will not send the former California governor over the top in the GOP presidential sweepstakes, Maureen Reagan, the candidate's daughter, said Monday.

"I think the vote will be close," Ms. Reagan said of the Keystone State race between her father and former U.N. Ambassador George Bush.

Anderson, a congressman from Illinois, has been running for the Republican nomination since last fall. The Illinois congressman said recently that his name may appear on the November presidential ballots in Massachusetts as an independent.

"I think Mr. Anderson will pick up some disgruntled Republicans," Ms. Reagan said. She said that the number of Republicans voting for Anderson will be substantially smaller, compared to the Democrat's vote for the Illinois congressman.

She said the reason for this is the Republicans have about a 90 percent loyalty factor; whereas the Democrats have a 40 percent loyalty factor.

"That is true all over the country," she added.

She pointed out that the Alabama Republican primary had more voters than the Yellowhammer State's Democratic contest.

She also added that her father will benefit in November from a blue-collar cross-over. Because of this cross-over, she said the Reagan ticket will run better than expected in the Northeast.

Police beat Drug possession charged

A 17-year-old man was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana under four ounces.

The man had been arrested for public intoxication in front of the Big Spring Police Department. While the vehicle was being secured, the patrolman saw what appeared to be marijuana on the sun visor.

A teenager says she knows the man who kidnapped her. The man allegedly threatened her life if she would not go to Los Angeles, Calif. with him. She escaped and returned home from Pecos.

A 35-year-old man was arrested and charged with public intoxication and aggravated assault when he allegedly struck a woman he knew in the mouth with his fists.

present petroleum supplies with the availability of wind, sun and alcohol.

He added that increased oil production should be emphasized.

"As a short-term measure it is critically important," Temple said.

The four-term East Texas legislator opposes the windfall profits tax.

"That is going to decrease the amount of drilling in this country," Temple said. He added that contrary to popular perceptions, oil companies plow back profits into drilling. According to his figures, major oil companies invest some 90 percent into drilling and independents 125 percent.

The bill Congress passed, Temple added, does not have the same Carter Administration features and is mainly designed to give tax relief.

The final issue Temple touched upon was Poerner's campaign contribution list. Temple claimed that Poerner, who presently serves on the railroad commission, is getting some $750,000 from the same people he regulates.

About this, Temple said, "There is something inherently wrong."

Temple added, "I have developed a strong diversified base around the state."

When asked by the Herald if he is getting any money from major oil companies, Temple replied contributions are coming into his campaign coffers from independent oil men.

Soviet tours fewer Monje gains venue change

MOSCOW (AP) — American tourism to Russia has plunged nearly a third since the massive Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan last December. Western and Soviet travel officials said today.

They said the 30 percent decline in the number of U.S. tourists here and a smaller slowdown in Western flights to and from Moscow is apparently tied to growing international tension and doubts by tourists and businessmen about whether they should come to Moscow. A smaller part of the drop, they said, may be natural slack before the Summer Olympics open here in July.

Rogelio Monje received a change of venue for his manslaughter trial when District Judge Jim Gregg met with Midland District Attorney Vern Martin in Stanton Friday.

The alleged offense occurred in Howard County. Martin is handling the case because of 118th District Attorney Rick Hamby's association with Monje.

Monje is accused of slaying Joe Garcia with a pistol in 1978.

"The district attorney (Martin) wasn't too concerned about the pre-trial publicity," said Gregg. He did say, however, that "unrest and hostility" in the area made it prudent to change the venue, said Gregg.

Cuban refugees getting comforts they never had

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The Costa Rican government has moved hundreds of Cuban refugees into a first-class hotel, giving them comforts they never had at home.

"We've never seen anything like this," a sunburned refugee said Monday at the Hotel Irazu. "In Cuba, a hotel like this was too expensive for us."

Juan Jose Brave, 30, said the hotel was out of the reach of most of those on the communist-ruled island. "There are only four hotels like this in Havana and all the technical experts from Russia, Bulgaria and the other Socialist countries stay there with a few tourists," he said.

They are among the 282 exiles the government has already moved into the hotel, on the outskirts of San Jose.

The refugees are living two or three to a room in 120 of the hotel's 250 rooms. They spend much of their time sitting around the lobby talking politics, smoking cigarettes, and lounging at the pool.

A hotel source, who asked not to be identified, said they were jamming telephone lines with calls to relatives in the United States. The source said 600 collect calls were made to the United States on Sunday.

The refugees are the vanguard of 10,730 Cubans who jammed the Peruvian Embassy in Havana April 4-6 in a bid to leave their homeland. They were among the first 700 persons flown to Costa Rica last week before Cuban President Fidel Castro halted the airlift on Friday.

Dry times for Chemical Express Company holds annual Safety Banquet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Marine Mammal Stranding Center is a one-room shack built from discarded Boardwalk lumber and furnished with junkyard castoffs. But to Bob Schoelkopf — who's on unemployment — it's a way to beat death among injured and sick sea creatures.

For the past month, Schoelkopf and volunteers have been working day and night to nurse a four-foot harbor porpoise that washed up on an Avalon beach with pneumonia.

The porpoise survived its first weeks in the warmth of a men's room at Historic Gardeners Basin maritime park. Last week, the mammal was moved from a raft filled with sea water to a 800-gallon pool in a hastily-built addition to the center's "headquarters."

Employees of the Chemical Express Company held an annual Safety Banquet, 7 p.m. Saturday, in the Howard College Cafeteria. Over 160 employees and spouses attended the ceremonies. Special guests included Joe DeVoss, vice president of marketing and traffic; Henry Waldron, regional vice president; Don Taylor, regional maintenance supervisor and Delton Kneese, terminal manager.

Waldron and Verlin Knous, manager of the Big Spring Terminal, presented one-year safety awards to the following: A.G. Wilson; R.O. Fielder; C.M. White; R.A. Bloom; C.L. Chandler; C. Ortiz; J.E. Cunningham; R.B. Covington; J.O. Clayton; R.H. Jackson; J.L. Kupper; W.V. Roach; and W.F. Hancock.

Summer is just around the corner.

So here are some tips to get ready for it.

1. Have a qualified serviceman inspect your home's air conditioning unit. His help before summer arrives can save you money later on.
2. Trim grass and shrubs away from the outside compressor. Without obstructions, your unit can operate more efficiently and for less money.
3. Check your air conditioner's filter. It should be cleaned or replaced once a month.
4. Caulk and weatherstrip around doors and windows. The cool air will stay in, and the hot air will stay out.
5. Make sure your attic has adequate insulation. No sense letting the cool air you pay for escape through the roof.

Reagan-Connally rumors flying

It's almost as certain as the sun coming up in the morning that Ronald Reagan is going to be the Republican nominee for president of the United States.

The conjecture is shifting from who will be the standard bearer to the people who might be included in his cabinet, should he be elected.

The general feeling is that John Connally, because he withdrew gracefully and endorsed the former governor from California, could just about pick the position he'd like to have.

SOME VOTERS, no doubt, would regard Connally as a definite asset to the party and the cabinet. Others, of course, are not so enthusiastic about the charismatic Connally. He has been a cabinet officer in the past and he has obvious skills which he could put to use.

The surfacing of the rumor points out one fact that usually gets buried in presidential politics: When a president is chosen, voters are picking an administration and not just a president. A president's appointments have perhaps as much influence — and, in the case of Supreme Court justices, more lasting influence — on the nation's future fortunes as the top man himself.

ONE OF THE CHIEF RAPS against President Carter that we have heard is that he too often has gone to his Georgia "brain trust" to fill critical jobs with his administration.

If we went about this presidential election business in the most intelligent fashion, presidential candidates would be called upon to spell out in advance who their chief advisors would be, if they were elected. Such information would give voters a much better handle on who they really want to see elected — and a much better idea of what sort of government they would have.

It won't happen, of course, not as long as we play by the present rules. As in the case of Connally, every potential appointee has been assets and debits on his or her political ledger. No candidate wants to alienate any segment of voters by showing too much of his hand too early. Reagan did pick a potential vice president prior to the 1976 convention — but that was an 11th-hour, last ditch gamble of a candidate with nothing to lose.

SO WE WILL CONTINUE to shoot blindly, really, in picking our chief executives. The best we can do is examine closely the ones whose candidates seem most inclined to seek out for advice, pay at least some attention to the rumors which surface, and hope we are not voting for Brand X when we thought Brand A was in the package.

Timing is bad

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

I'm a jinx. That's all there is to it.

I had had the feeling that I wasn't supposed to go to Lubbock and my suspicions were confirmed a couple of weekends ago.

Ever since the summer weather faded and the winter weather began appearing, the weather has been out to get me. It would be beautiful during the week and on the weekends that I had to work. On the weekends that I had off it would turn cold and nasty. It just so happens that on my weekends off I usually travel to Lubbock to spend some time with my fiancé.

THE TRIP I MADE in March was hampered by inclement weather, but Barry assured me that the next time I came it would be the middle of April and that all the bad winter weather would be over. Well, that goes to show you how much he knows about the weather!

The week before I went, the weather was perfect, as usual. Warm afternoons, cool breezes and no rain. I was looking forward to playing racquetball (the courts at Tech are outdoors), riding bicycles and throwing softballs. I couldn't wait to spend three days of fun in the sun.

It all turned out exactly opposite of what I had planned, as usual. The night I arrived, the cold northerly winds began to blow, the clouds began rolling in and before long it began to get really nasty.

I was not prepared for the cold weather, of course. All I had brought that wasn't spring clothing was my warmup suit. I eventually had to borrow one of Barry's coats to keep me warm.

Then, on top of my disappointment came shock. As Barry and I were driving to the mall to shop I thought I saw a few snowflakes. But I told myself it was just debris because it was the middle of April and it just doesn't do things like that at this time of the year.

Was I ever wrong! As Barry and I were coming out of the mall later in the afternoon, we were greeted by great big snowflakes falling very steadily. I just couldn't believe it! Snow in April. It was more than this small town girl from the Southeast would ever have imagined.

IT SNOWED ALL DAY and into the night. None of it accumulated as it all melted as soon as it hit the ground.

Well, my weekend again was ruined. And, as usual, the weather turned fair again on Monday when I had to return to Big Spring. Just like it had on every weekend I had gone to Lubbock for the last four or five months.

And, as usual, the next weekend I had to work the weather was beautiful and I was stuck inside the office all afternoon itching to be outside.

Maybe the next time I head north, it will be different. But I won't get my hopes up. They have been shattered too many times.

Interest wavers

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Arthur H. Christy was appointed special prosecutor to investigate charges that Hamilton Jordan sniffed cocaine at the Studio 54 nightclub in June, 1978. But so far he seems far more interested in side issues than in determining whether Jimmy Carter's White House chief of staff broke any drug laws.

First he concentrated on the witnesses against Jordan, intimidating them with not-so-subtle hints of perjury action, and behaving generally more like Jordan's defense counsel than his prosecutor.

NOW HE'S FOUND a new target — and it's still not Hamilton Jordan. Christy has been interrogating witnesses about possible contacts with me and other reporters. He has repeatedly warned the witnesses not to speak to newsmen, whom he characterizes as sly rascals who are "not to be trusted." Above all, he wants to know the source of my columns and other news reports.

The irony of the situation is that it was the prosecutor's inquisitorial treatment of some witnesses that led them to talk to reporters. They concluded, from Christy's badgering, that he would rather charge a Jordan accuser with perjury than press the investigation of drug use, and this realization moved them to the press in self-defense.

Here's an example of Christy's Nixonian obsession with leaks to the press:

On March 17, I reported that Christy had interrogated Barry M. Landau, a New York public relations man who swore that Jordan had asked him where he could get some cocaine at Studio 54 on the night in question. The four grilling sessions lasted more than 20 hours, I reported, adding other details of the investigation.

On March 28, Christy summoned Landau to a fifth interrogation. My associate Gary Cohn pieced together this account of the session from various sources.

Christy: "How would they know this stuff?"

Landau: "That's a good question."

Christy: "These reporters are very tricky."

Landau: "Yeah, I'm learning that. I'm shocked at all the things they know ... And I resent some of the things they know. Most of the time they know more than I know."

Christy then accused Landau of being my source.

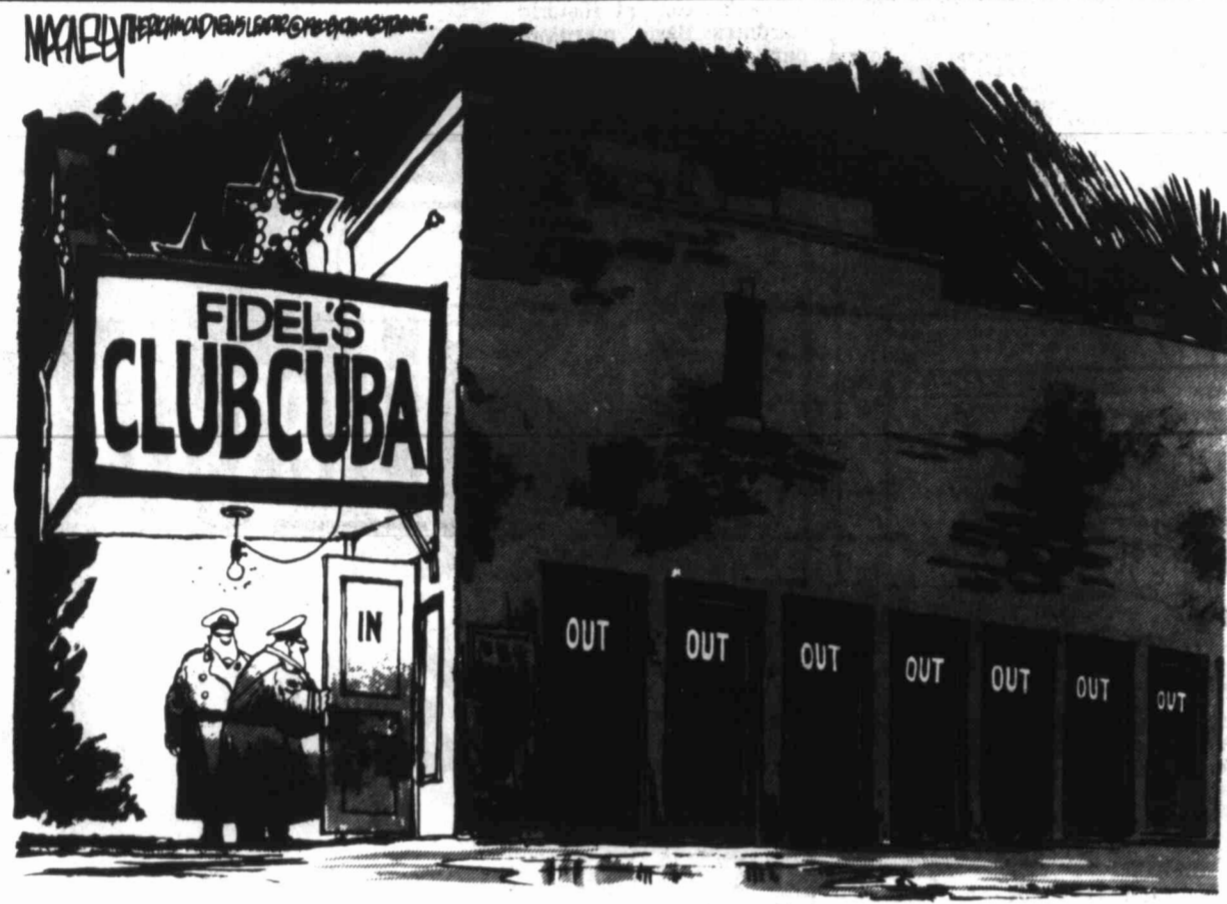

Landau: "I did not supply Jack Anderson with the information."

Christy: "Well, they tricked you... They are not to be trusted ... Who initiates the calls?"

Landau: "They do."

Christy: "Who's this Cohn?"

The special prosecutor also asked Landau about New York Times reporter Robert Pear, who has written about the case. And earlier

Testosterone shots won't build height

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I read an article recently on male hormones. I am a male, 18 years old and 5 feet 2 inches. If I start taking male hormone shots will I increase my height? I really cannot stand being this small and weighing only 110 pounds. I've tried putting on weight, but I can't even do that. I exercise a lot and stay pretty active. My mother is small and my father and brother are both tall. Please advise me about the hormones. — D.F.

If a person gets good nutrition and stays clear of serious illness in the growth years, he will attain the height his genes (heredity) dictate. Since you have this testosterone (male hormone) idea, you might ease your mind by finding out if you have a deficiency in that hormone. Hormones will not cause increase in height if your bone endings have already fused (closed). By 18 most of the fusing has already occurred.

Some people have used testosterone unwisely to increase muscle mass, as in certain strength sports. Unguided use of the hormone can create its own problems. For some the body will stop making its own supply of the hormone. Too, the hormones given can be harmful to the liver. I recently discouraged a reader from using the hormone for a hair sparseness problem.

Height does not make for happiness. I am sure it would be hard to convince you of that right now. Accepting the way we are takes practice. Once learned it can bring happiness.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a woman in menopause. For the past year I have noticed a secretion under each breast causing an odor and irritation. I wash and powder constantly when I'm at home. I have not discussed this with my doctor. I am a heavy-busted woman and have a sagging problem. I'm not one to perspire much even in summer. This problem also causes the skin to peel. Is this part of what women get in menopause? — Mrs. D.C.

The secretion, odor and irritation may be part and parcel of the same process — intertrigo (chafing), which occurs where skin surfaces overlap to prevent adequate ventilation. This is sometimes associated with infection of the skin surfaces by the yeast, Candida. Keeping the area dry and clean is important. Dusting powders help, but if there is infection with the yeast, then application of an anti-yeast ointment will be necessary. I wouldn't relate this to menopause. What the average woman can expect during change of life is discussed at length in the booklet "Make Menopause Easier." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A friend in her late 50s had kidney stones removed. She was put on a low-calcium diet and was told to drink three-four glasses of cranberry juice per day. I've heard that large amounts of vitamin C makes the urine acid and helps prevent stones. Is there anything special about cranberry juice? — A.M.

Drinking liquids of any kind is important for prevention of kidney stones. Cranberry juice, besides supplying the liquid, does help make the urine more acid, and that can be beneficial in certain kinds of kidney stones. The cranberry juice will not help in all forms of kidney stones, uric acid stones, for example. Cranberry juice is not the only food that can make the urine more acid. You are right. Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) does the same thing. Also many foods with citric acid in them increase acidity of urine. Apparently, your stones are of the type your doctor believes will be helped by acidifying the urine.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble" — it could be dangerous. Read the booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I stole some money from my employer many years ago. Now that I have become a Christian, should I do anything about this? — L.C.

DEAR L.C.: What you did was wrong, no matter how long ago it has been. The Bible says, "You shall not steal" (Exodus 20:15), and this command makes it clear that theft is displeasing to God.

Now that you are a Christian your sins have been forgiven by God, and that is a wonderful truth. On the cross Christ paid the penalty for our sins — including not only this particular act, but all the other sins you ever committed. But that does not mean you should not make restitution for the theft from your employer. In fact, I believe the Bible indicates we should do whatever we can to pay back anything we might have stolen. This was a principle clearly taught in the Old Testament, and it is repeated in the New Testament. When Zacchaeus met Christ he immediately declared, "If I have cheated anybody out of anything, I will pay back four times that amount" (Luke 19:8).

I suggest you go to your employer and speak frankly about your action. This will not be easy, but it is the right thing for you to do. It will let him know that your faith in Christ is real, and you should make it clear that you are telling him about this because you have become a Christian and know what you did was wrong. You should be prepared to pay him back for whatever he has lost because of your theft. You will feel better for having brought this into the open, and you also will no longer be haunted by the fear of discovery.

Then commit yourself to be the most trustworthy employee you can. The way you do your job should be part of your witness, so others will know Jesus Christ has made a difference in your life. "He who has been stealing must steal no longer, but must work, doing something useful with his own hands, that he may have something to share with those in need" (Ephesians 4:28).

Going nowhere

Joseph Kraft

AMMAN, Jordan — In the course of a chat with King Hussein here in Jordan the other day I remarked that he had been in power for 27 years, and that I had been coming to see him for 20. I wondered whether 20 years hence I would still be asking the same questions about peace with Israel and self-determination for the Palestinians.

What upsets Hussein should upset a lot of people. For if that ultimate survivor feels that there is no place to go with the Near East these days, it probably means that all roads lead nowhere.

Not very long ago, to be sure, Hussein could well be described as the "James Dean of Arab feudalism." He was a Bedouin monarch in an era of revolution. He was an American client in a region of rampant nationalism. He itched to drive fast at a time of return to Islam.

AFTER THE SIX DAY WAR of 1967, he was at odds to the point of war with the Palestine Liberation Organization on the question of representing the Palestine Arabs in the territories west of the Jordan River, which Hussein had lost to the Israelis. The more "progressive" Arab countries — Egypt, Syria and Iraq — tended to support the PLO and jump on Hussein. Given that opposition, even his natural allies among the oil monarchs of the Persian Gulf turned against him. In effect he became a pariah, a marginal figure, a loner in the Arab world.

All that changed after Camp David and the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. Despite blandishments and threats, Hussein arranged to be included into Yasser Arafat of the PLO patched it up with him. The monarchs suddenly found him to be a good guy. Iraqis, eager to take the Persian Gulf in tow, also rallied round. Now Hussein receives something like a billion dollars a year in subsidies from the Iraqis, Saudis, Kuwaitis and Arab Emirates. He is at the center of the Arab mainstream.

But where does he go from there? Not, certainly, to the Egyptian-Israeli peace process. A year ago he was saying that he hoped the process would succeed but doubted it. Now he has abandoned all hope.

"Egypt," he says, "has isolated itself. Israel has escaped from the process by denying autonomy to the Palestinians."

As to the U.S. Hussein feels "disillusionment and disappointment." He says he was "totally horrified" by the switch of the March 1 resolution at the United Nations Security Council. He cancelled the projected visit to Washington when it looked as though his trip might be rolled together with the visits of Begin and Sadat. He recalled, with some bitterness, that he was not invited to the White House last September, when he visited the United Nations, because he refused to see the special Middle East negotiator — then Robert Strauss — as a condition for lunching with the president.

"The ability of the U.S. to persuade Israel to do what is in her own interest," he says, "is almost nonexistent." So why should he give up his cozy position in the Arab world to join a venture he believes to be doomed?

WHAT HUSSEIN WOULD like to do is to create an "Arab alternative." He envisages the blocking out of a basic position calling for Israeli withdrawal to the 1967 boundaries; self-determination for the Palestinians living on the West Bank and including the right to form their own state; and an Arab Jerusalem under Arab sovereignty.

J. R.: They love to hate him in Britain

LONDON (AP) — More than 18 million Britons are anxiously waiting with their American cousins for the fall to bring them the answers to two burning questions.

Who shot J.R. and was he killed?

The British Broadcasting Corp., which sent American TV audiences "The Forsythe Saga" and "Upstairs Downstairs," is reeling from the success of "Dallas," America's chief contribution to the British cultural scene during the 1979-80 season.

"It is undoubtedly the most popular American TV series ever shown in Britain," said BBC-TV spokesman Keith Samuel. "I would say we now have a nation of 'Dallas' addicts on our hands."

Said The Daily Express in a tongue-in-cheek editorial: "Withdrawal symptoms are bound to set in to such an extent that Britain could clearly be facing its darkest hour."

"Clearly the Cabinet should now convene in emergency session, forget about budgets and inflation, and debate the crucial matter of the moment — how are they going to get us all through the summer months without ... the man we love to hate, J.R. Himself?"

Britons are not alone on this side of the Atlantic in their devotion to J.R., Miss Ellie and the rest of the Ewing clan.

"Dallas" didn't catch on in Belgium and Spain, but tavern owners in Athens complained that business was bad after 11 p.m. Thursdays when the South Fork phenomenon took over Greece. In Istanbul, the Turks found "Dallas" at home welcome escape from terrorism in the streets.

The Texas series has a faithful following in Zambia, Kenya and Zimbabwe. It's so big in racially-troubled South Africa that Johannesburg movie theaters closed early on Tuesday nights rather than risk competing with the Ewings.

Each week's episode has been shown in Britain about five weeks behind the American broadcasts, with the next-to-last chapter shown on April 12. Then the BBC delayed the final episode until next month, but word of the shooting of J.R. spanned the ocean.

The BBC figures that one out of every three Britons is glued to the tube watching "Dallas" during its Saturday night timeslot.

The Tewksbury Chamber of Commerce cancelled its annual bash after many couples said they had a "prior engagement."

"We needed a full house for our annual dinner and dance," complained chairman Michael Hayward, "but the biggest excuse for not buying a ticket was this program — which can only be described as compulsory rubbish."

"I Hate J.R." T-shirts are selling in the stores. A British comedy group, The Wurzels, has a new record with the song "I Hate J.R." on one side and "I Love J.R." on the other.

Even that institution Punch and Judy has been infiltrated. In the seaside resort of Brighton, puppeteer Greg Wiggins has Punch doing battle against a Western-hatted J.R.

The hero-villain was as big a hit in the flesh as he is on the screen during a recent visit by actor Larry Hagman; the fans would hardly let him out of their sight. And Mary Crosby, Bing's little girl, is now making a movie in Britain because of her "Dallas" debut.

"It's rubbish," said Annette Leon, a 22-year-old

London secretary, "but it's better rubbish than we have on our TV."

Clive James, TV critic for the Observer, says the show appeals to Britons who are fed up hearing about their richer, more powerful ally.

"It's comforting to know that being an American millionaire is no fun. That's part of the Dallas appeal," he wrote recently.

"Frankly, I find 'Dallas' appalling," said BBC spokesman Samuel. "It's corny, it's extravagant, it's terrible. But I can't stop watching it."

Firm is sued after injury

Maggie Blankenship filed a suit Friday against First Federal Savings and Loan Association for damages caused when she mistook a window for a glass door and fell through the window July 11, 1979.

The petition filed by Midland Attorney Bobby Bearden said she was "severely cut all over the body," especially her right leg and knee, arm and hand.

Bearden said the windows on both sides of the glass door are the same size and color of the door. He claims that the savings and loan was negligent in the design of the building.

Mrs. Blankenship is claiming $500 for medical expenses, $10,000 for physical suffering and $5,000 for time lost from work.

Suit is filed over blaze

Martin Edward Williams Jr., filed suit Friday against White's Auto for selling him a television that was the alleged cause of fire that destroyed his mobile home and its contents.

Williams bought the T.V. late in the summer of 1978. The fire was caused April 23, 1978, while the residents were asleep and the T.V. was turned off.

Frank Hagen T.V. Repair was also named in the suit as defendant. Williams charged the business with causing the fire if it was shown that White's was not responsible.

Amount of damages was not specified except to show that damages were above the $1,000 amount required to file in 118th District Court.

Names in the news

LORD SNOWDON LEON JAWORSKI

Marriage hurt career?

LONDON (AP) — Lord Snowdon, globe-trotting photographer and former husband of Britain's Princess Margaret, has been quoted as saying his 18-year royal marriage hurt his career.

"In the '50s I was making a lot of money — much more than I do now," he was quoted as saying Tuesday in Woman magazine.

Snowdon, whose often stormy marriage to Queen Elizabeth II's sister ended in a 1978 divorce, was quoted as dismissing any suggestion that he used his position to get exclusive assignments. He stopped taking royal family pictures "almost altogether because of exactly that kind of criticism."

Snowdon, 50, is now married to former film production assistant Lucy Lindsay-Hogg and they have a baby daughter, Frances.

One-term president needed

HOUSTON (AP) — Leon Jaworski says he is about convinced the president of the United States should have only one 4-year term.

"By the time the second term rolls around, the president has drunk too much of the nectar of power, it seems," the former Watergate prosecutor says.

"There is another disadvantage to the nation in the vast amount of time the president devotes during the second half of his first term to re-election endeavors. One must wonder just how many of his actions during the last of the first term are dictated by sheer politics to aid in his re-election to a second term."

Jaworski mentioned no president by name while making the remarks Monday at the annual conference of the Financial Analysts Federation.

EVEL KNieVEL JOSEPH BONNANO SR.

Daredevil falling behind

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Evel Knievel's sprawling house in Butte will be sold at an Aug. 21 foreclosure sale if the daredevil can't satisfy a $187,000 mortgage.

The Summit Valley Title Co. of Butte filed a notice of sale in the clerk and recorder's office Monday, alleging that Robert C. "Evel" Knievel and his wife, Linda, have defaulted on a November 1975 mortgage held by Montana Bank of Butte.

The papers also name a number of other creditors with interest in or liens on the property. Chief among them is the Internal Revenue Service, which has liens on the property totaling $709,713.

Health tests delay trial

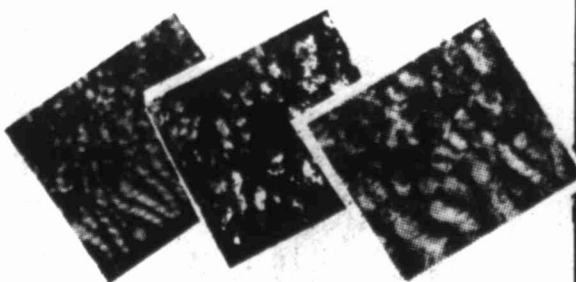

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — New medical tests have delayed the start of the federal conspiracy trial of reputed Mafia chieftain Joseph Bonanno Sr.

Federal Judge William Ingram on Monday delayed the trial to Thursday so tests could determine whether the 75-year-old defendant is able to withstand the rigors of a trial schedule.

Bonanno, a reputed "godfather" for nearly 40 years, and his nephew, 54-year-old Jack DiFilippi, are charged with conspiring to obstruct justice. The charge involves an alleged plot to interfere with a federal grand jury investigation of California businesses Bonanno reputedly used to launder money obtained from organized crime.

FOR THE UNIQUE AND THE UNUSUAL... Try the Rainbarrel today

Rainbarrel has unique, unusual gift selection

If it is unique or unusual, chances are it was purchased at the Rainbarrel in the College Park Shopping Center.

That's right, Steve and Amy Lewis, owners and operators of this Big Spring novelty shop, have gone out their way to bring you what you can't find anywhere else in town. They have brought a little of the big city shop to their home town.

At the Rainbarrel there is a rustic atmosphere. Steve and Amy invite all of their customers to feel at home, to touch the merchandise, pick it up and see what makes it tick.

The name of the shop comes from the decor, many solid oak barrels scattered throughout the building. The Rainbarrel pre-shops for their customers. While at market Steve and Amy won't buy anything that is not a good value and would be too high a price for their customers. They are in the medium to low price range for gifts.

TwEEN 12 and 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed D

Dr. Wallace: Lately, my life has been blah! I recently quit school and now I have a bad image of myself. My days are very dull and boring. All I do is baby-sit for my sister and watch soap operas. It's almost impossible for a 16-year-old to find a job. Can you possibly help me?
— Donna, Pueblo, Colo.

allow yourself to stay in the rut that you are in. Get out of the house during the day. Look for a part-time job, visit the library, volunteer your services to your local hospital, church or charitable organization. Check in to the possibility of getting your high school diploma in the evening while you stay active during the day.

The "soaps" can wait until you are tied down and can't leave the house (like when you're married and have three kids).

Dr. Wallace: I have started to write to you several times but each time I became confused and never finished the letter. I hope I can finish this time. During my senior year in high school I was really into drugs (mostly pot and speed) and alcohol. I was into this stuff because I didn't want to graduate. I didn't want to leave my friends and trusted teachers. I was afraid to face my future.

I tried to commit suicide four times. On three of the occasions, I wrote wills and prayed to God to help put me out of my misery. But now I have solved my problem. I realize that life is like a treasure box. What you put in it is what you get out of it. Every time I see someone with a frown on his face, I beam a smile and try to cheer him up. I am presently attending a community college and have made many new friends. I'm a new person and still pray to God, but now I thank Him for He is now my master. I know you can't print every letter that you receive but I feel so much better for putting my thoughts on paper. — F.E., San Mateo, Calif.

F.E.: Thanks for sharing your experience with us. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 13-cent, stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

'Diary of Democracy' program is presented

The home of Mrs. Merle Stewart was the site of the 1948 Hyperion Club meeting for April.

Mrs. H.W. Smith, president, presided over a short business meeting. A letter from the Y.M.C.A., thanking the club for donating two youth memberships was read.

A program entitled "Diary of Democracy" was presented by Mrs. W.E. Winn. She reviewed the book "In Search of History" by Theodore White.

Mrs. Winn pointed out that although White had intended to be a professor of history, his traveling interests led him to become a reporter of history. Thus grew his intense interest in the political process. He followed presidential

Husband Forces Split Decision

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 14 months and a problem came up that has me completely baffled. Last night my husband told me that I had to make a choice between him and Nan, my girlfriend. Abby, Nan has been my best friend all through school. She stood up for me at my wedding, and I stood up for her at hers. We are as close as sisters, and I can't see ending our friendship just because my husband doesn't like her.

He refuses to give me any reasons. He just says it's either him or Nan. Knowing that my husband didn't especially care for Nan, I've never asked him to socialize with Nan and her husband in the evenings. I see Nan only during the day when my husband is at work.

So what is your advice? Don't suggest talking to him. I have, and he walks out of the room.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: I don't know how old your husband is, but he has a lot of growing up to do. Tell him that unless he gives you a better reason for insisting that you end your friendship with Nan, you intend to continue it. And if he would actually terminate your marriage on such flimsy grounds, either he is looking for an excuse to do so, or something is wrong with him.

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently widowed younger woman who is in the process of moving to another town due to a job transfer. One of my best friends (female) is also a part-time realtor. When I put my house on the market, I told her that I was going to list my house with a realtor I didn't know personally because my late husband told me never to mix business and friendship and I wholeheartedly agree.

I made it very clear to her that it was no reflection on her ability as a realtor, and I hoped it wouldn't affect our friendship. Well, was I ever wrong! This woman who had been my friend for years suddenly wants nothing more to do with me. She avoids me, and when I call her she's always too busy to talk to me. When I run into her, she barely says hello and rushes away. I feel terrible about this. How can I patch things up?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I doubt if you can, and judging from the way your friend (?) reacted, a friendship that fragile isn't worth patching.

DEAR ABBY: My 22-year-old daughter, who has led a sheltered life, wants to marry a 36-year-old man who told her that he had so many women in his life he can't count them. He says he's ready to settle down now and become a respectable family man.

Abby, I say you can't change the spots on a leopard — that this ladies' man is too used to playing the field to ever settle down. I think he's a poor risk.

Our daughter disagrees. She says he has all the playing around out of his system now, and will make a true and faithful husband. What do you say?

FRANNY'S DAD

DEAR DAD: I say he could be a poorer risk if he just came out of a monastery. There is no way to predict a man's fidelity. Men are like snowflakes: Each one is different. (And that goes for women, too.)

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

THE ONE WAY

by B.W. Briggs

Greetings! The churches of Christ salute you! God again is blessing me by this honor of sharing His precious Word. Today we will study the UNITY chain by the link of ONE LORD! Remember that each time we study one of the seven links of unity, we are expected to keep all. Whenever one of these links are broken, division exist and sin is established. The link of ONE LORD probably is not a much debated issue among so called "Christians" in our nation. For all seem to realize that Jesus is Lord, the ONE LORD. What does it mean for Jesus to be ONE LORD? It means that everything is because of Him, including ourselves, if we are Christians. (1 Corinthians 8:6; Colossians 1:13-23). It means that in Him, and Him alone, are you sanctified for sainthood with all those who have called upon His name. It means that He is your Lord (Master) and theirs. It also says that there is more other. He is the ONLY LORD—the ONE LORD! (1 Corinthians 12; Ephesians 4:5; Matthew 23:10). When I call upon Him as the ONE LORD I am confessing nothing but what He said of Himself. (John 13:13). It is to say that indeed every knee is subject to Him, everything created is subject to Him, and every person should confess with their tongue that He is Lord, the ONE LORD! (Philippians 2:8-11; Romans 10:8-17). It says that I recognize Him as the only Potentate (controller of power), the King of all who reign as kings, and the Lord of all who reign as lords. (1 Timothy 6:13-16; Revelation 1:5; 17:14; 19:16). It means that He is the only one, you can serve only ONE LORD. (Matthew 6:24). It is a simple thing to bring forth verses that establish Jesus as the ONE LORD. In contrast to this, however, it is a very difficult thing to make men understand that their so called "confession" of Him will not save them by itself. People for ages have believed that confession of Christ as Lord is enough to be saved. They will sight verses such as Romans 10:9-13 as their proof text. However, they exclude altogether the teaching of Jesus upon this "calling on His name." Jesus Christ, the Lord of lords, said Himself that, "not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me on that day, Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy by thy name, and by thy name cast out demons, and by thy name do many mighty works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity (sin)." (Matthew 7:21-23). Far be it from me to even attempt to take away the importance of the good confession of Christ. Surely no one will be saved without the good confession. (Matthew 10:32-33). But what about that which you have just read? He didn't condemn them for their laziness or apathy. He condemned them for doing what they wanted to do in the name of the Christ, rather than what God wanted them to do in the name of Christ! That was the sin — that was the condemning factor of their eternity! Now, are you saved? Are you sure? Are you absolutely certain that you have done everything — everything that the Lord of lords told you to do to be saved? Have you obeyed each command of Jesus so that eternal life is more than a passing dream? That's important you know? (John 3:36; Hebrews 5:8-9). See if you have obeyed these commands of the Christ for salvation. (Luke 13:3, 5; Matthew 10:32-33; Mark 16:16; Matthew 7:24-27; John 3:3, 5; Acts 2:38). If you haven't done all of these things — and obeyed them in the spirit He demanded, He might well ask you this question in the context of past-tense, "Why did you call me, Lord, Lord, and yet you did not the things which I told you?" (Luke 6:46-48). If you want a closer view of what calling upon His name is, read Acts 22:12-18. Better think about this! If you want to talk, call me... 263-0023.

Cost of sending letters may rise by five cents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, citing rapidly rising labor and energy costs, wants to increase the cost of sending a First Class letter 5 cents — the biggest jump in history. But it could be next year before the 20-cent First Class rate takes effect.

Postal Rate Commission, which can hold hearings on the proposal for up to 10 months.

If the commission approves, as expected, the Postal Service then would have to formally approve the increase.

The 15-cent rate has stood since May 1978. Until now, the biggest First Class jump was a 3-cent hike from 10 to 13 cents in 1975.

In announcing the rate increase request, Bolger told reporters, "If there is a villain in this story, that villain is inflation."

Noting that labor costs account for 86 percent of Postal Service expenses, Bolger said automatic cost-of-living increases under union agreements have an immediate impact on the agency's finances.

He said February's 1.4 percent rise in the Consumer Price Index added $110 million to the Postal Service's annual payroll costs. "And every time gasoline rises a dime, as it has recently, $30 million is added to our annual fuel bill," Bolger said.

The 20-cent letter rate would apply to the first ounce. Each additional ounce would cost 17 cents. Postcards would go from 10 to 13 cents.

Other requested increases include averages of 1.9 percent for sending mass-circulation newspapers and magazines, 17.7 percent for bulk-rate advertising "junk" mail and 8.4 percent for parcel post.

Major business mailers would be allowed discounts of up to 4 cents per First Class item if they sort their letters before mailing them.

Bolger said the Postal Service also is considering a "holiday season" discount for people who send Christmas mail between Dec. 1 and Dec. 10. He said the discount probably would be 2 cents and would begin in 1981.

The Postal Service reported a surplus for the fiscal year ending last Sept. 30, its first in 34 years, but has been operating in the red since.

And Bolger said the $600 million deficit projected for this fiscal year could go even higher if there is no rate increase.

LANCER CASE TO JURY — Former U.S. Budget Director Bert Lance and his wife LaBelle, preceded by their son Beverly (left), exit the Federal Court House in Atlanta where Lance and two co-defendants are on trial for bank fraud. The jury received the case Monday afternoon and is still deliberating.

Montana coal tax too high?

'Whole nation suffers'

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Lawyers for some of the nation's largest coal and electric utility companies say a legislative compromise could be reached if the courts will void Montana's "exorbitant" tax on coal production.

But lawyers for the state say the out-of-state interests are simply trying to set the tax rate themselves.

The Montana Supreme court took the arguments under advisement Monday following a day-long hearing over a lower court's dismissal of a suit aimed at lowering the state's coal severance tax, which averages $2 to $3 a ton.

William P. Rogers and other lawyers for the coal companies argued that the tax, expected to bring the state more than $1 billion over the next 10 years, is hindering national policies aimed at promoting the use of coal as a substitute for foreign oil.

Rogers is a former U.S. secretary of state.

Mike McCarter, an assistant state attorney general, claimed the plaintiffs are using national energy policy as an excuse to strike down another national policy — the right of state's to tax.

The companies filed the suit more than a year ago at the urging of electric utility companies in Michigan, Illinois, Texas, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. All purchase coal mined in southeastern Montana.

Montana has about 20 percent of the nation's known stripable coal reserves. The tax is set at 30 percent of the selling price at the mines.

Texas Attorney General Mark White, appearing in support of the coal companies, said "the whole nation suffers" because of Montana's tax. He said the cost of a ton of Montana coal delivered to Texas is approaching $30. The result, he said, is that Texas may be forced to buy coal from Poland, South Africa and Australia.

Under questioning from Supreme Court justices, White conceded that about $2.10 of the cost is due to Montana's tax, while about $20 goes for freight charges.

Leo Wilking, a lawyer representing the state of North Dakota and appearing in support of Montana, said that if Montana's tax rate is overturned, the same companies will soon challenge North Dakota's 14-16 percent tax and Wyoming's 17 percent tax.

Wilking also said Texas takes in more than $1 billion a year through severance taxes on oil and gas, compared with the $59 million that Montana got last year from its coal tax.

A major claim of the plaintiffs is that the tax, ultimately paid by consumers through higher electric bills, is so high that it restrains interstate commerce, in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

Ross Cannon, one of the lawyers for the state, said the Constitution's interstate commerce clause takes effect only when commerce is totally stopped among states by some state's internal action.

Rogers said that argument was unprecedented in the history of constitutional law.

Montana Attorney General Mike Greeley suggested that if the companies don't like high state taxes they should go to Congress or the state legislature to get the taxes lowered.

There's more than one, autograph proves it

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service apparently does not think so, but Dolly Sherman now knows there is more than one Lee Meriweather in the United States.

The best-known Lee Meriweather is the former Miss America who now co-stars on the television series, "Barnaby Jones."

But Mrs. Sherman knows a Beaumont woman named Lee Meriweather — takes art lessons from her in fact.

She owed the art teacher some tuition money last week so she wrote out a check and put it in an envelope. She addressed the envelope to "Lee Meriweather, Beaumont, Texas 77708."

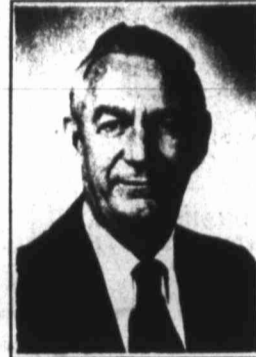

A few days later, the telephone rang at the Sherman house and according to Mrs. Sherman's son, David, the following conversation took place.

"This is Lee Meriweather," the caller said. "Do you know who I am?"

"You're my mother's art teacher," David replied. "No, I'm an actress on 'Barnaby Jones.' I was wondering why she (Mrs. Sherman) sent me a check."

After a few seconds, David and Ms. Meriweather figured out what had happened, and the actress volunteered to mail the check back to the Shermans.

"When you do, would you also send an autographed picture?" David asked. And she did. Check and picture arrived Monday.

Fire erupts in condemned chemical warehouse today

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — A plume of black smoke from a fire in a condemned chemical warehouse heaved 15 miles across heavily populated urban areas today, and officials closed schools and urged children and old people to stay indoors.

Five firefighters were injured in the fire which burned throughout the night at the Chemical Control Corp. warehouse where 35,000 barrels of toxic and explosive chemicals were stored. It was brought under control this morning.

While schools were closed in Elizabeth City and neighboring Staten Island, N.Y., officials said there was no indication the smoke from the fire was toxic.

New York Mayor Edward Koch, who arrived at the scene about dawn, likened the precautions to "a smog alert in California."

"We're going to take some precautionary procedures, not to frighten people because they shouldn't be frightened," Koch said.

The cloud of smoke stretched 15 miles south of Elizabeth just after dawn, authorities said.

State Police Superintendent Clinton Pagano said he believed one of the firefighters was critically injured, but details were sketchy.

Flames from the fire which broke out Monday night leaped 200 to 300 feet in the air through the night, illuminating the dark cloud. Repeated explosions hurled barrels of chemicals hundreds of feet high.

The warehouse on the Elizabeth waterfront was closed by New Jersey officials last year after at least 35,000 barrels of deadly, unmarked chemicals were found piled outside the building in punctured, leaking drums. The chemicals included nitric acid, picric acid and nitroglycerine.

Scientists from the Environmental Protection Agency tested the smoke from the fire today and said they found no evidence of toxic materials including cyanide, chlorine, chlorinated hydrogens, benzene and phosgene.

FUTURE CONTROLS

It is suggested that controls be imposed on milk prices, to implement these controls. The government would, of course, have to set up a council. The council would in all probability establish the following price control rules:

1. Old Milk-any milk produced from a cow born on or before December 31, 1972. The milk can be sold at the May 1973 price adjusted for inflation.

2. New Milk-Any milk produced from a cow born on or after January 1, 1973. This milk can sell for the September 1975 price adjusted for inflation.

3. Stripper milk-Any milk produced from a cow that makes less than 10 pints a day or alternately any milk produced by a group of cows that graze at a density of less than 10 per acre. This milk can sell at the 1979 uncontrolled price.

4. "New" New Milk-Any milk produced by a cow born after May 31, 1979, that grazes 2 1/2 miles from another cow or in a ravine a thousand feet deeper than the nearest cow. This milk can sell at the June 1, 1979, uncontrolled price adjusted for inflation.

2 years after the implementation of the above price control rules, a study of all milk producers shall be conducted (cost to government not to exceed 740 million) to determine if milk producers are showing profits in excess of 3% . . . if 10% or more are exceeding the maximum, a windfall profit tax shall be imposed immediately to grab 60% of the gross income or 30% if the herd is comprised of 49 head or less. The proceeds of this tax shall be disbursed where ever it will buy the most votes for the incumbent politicians.

Steers host Lee in 5-AAAA tilt

The Big Spring Steers will be seeking to pull a repeat of their first half encounter with Midland Lee this afternoon when the two teams square off at four o'clock at Steer Park.

The Steers, winless in their first three second half encounters, were in the same shape when they visited the Lee Rebels in the first half. Lee, was undefeated. But the Steers exploded en route to a 13-10 win.

The game is of much more importance to Lee than the Steers in regard to title chances. The Rebels are currently in a five-way tie for first place in the second half with a record of 2-1. The other teams with marks of 2-1 are Odessa Permian, Abilene, Odessa and Midland. First half champion Abilene Cooper is 1-1.

Other first half games find San Angelo at Midland, Odessa at Abilene, and Abilene Cooper at Odessa Permian.

For 1980 All-Star game

Carew heads ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew of the California Angels, the alltime leading vote-getter, heads a group of eight players who continue an impressive string by appearing on the All Star Game ballot for the 11th consecutive year.

Besides Carew, the All Star perennials are Johnny Bench, Bobby Bonds, Reggie Jackson, Pete Rose, Reggie Smith, Willie Stargell and Carl Yastrzemski.

The ballot, announced Monday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, contains 144 players — nine at each position infield position and catcher plus 27 outfielders in each league. Fans across the United States and Canada will vote from May 9 through June 23, electing the starting lineups for the All Star Game scheduled for July 8 at Los Angeles.

The election, sponsored by Gillette, has attracted more than 12 million votes in each of the last three seasons and a total of 71,397,372 since the balloting was returned to the fans in 1970.

Carew, who has led the vote for the last three seasons, now has received 22,858,453 votes, just ahead of Bench's 21,130,097. Carew also holds the single season ballot record with 4,292,740 in 1977. That was the same year when a record 12,562,476 votes were cast.

The 1980 ballot has three clubs — Boston, California and Philadelphia — with eight candidates each. Eight other teams — Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Kansas City, Milwaukee, the New York Yankees, Los Angeles and St. Louis — each has seven nominees.

Randy Lightfoot fired at WTSU

CANYON, Texas (AP) — West Texas State University track coach Randy Lightfoot will not be back next year, athletic officials announced Monday.

Athletic Director Dr. Myron Dees said Lightfoot will be relieved of his duties and his contract will not be renewed at the conclusion of the current track and field season.

Dees said he had discussed the decision with Lightfoot, a former track star at Odessa Permian and the University of Texas.

"He and I agreed he was stepping into hard situation following on the heels of Bob Kitchens, who built and developed the program," Dees said.

A class-action discrimination suit was filed by six female WTSU athletes last week, but officials declined to say if the suit played any part in Lightfoot's dismissal.

Laraba signs with Tulsa U

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Brad Laraba, a swingman from El Paso, Texas, has signed a national letter of intent to play basketball at the University of Tulsa.

Laraba, 6-foot-4 and 180 pounds, averaged 16.5 points and five rebounds last season for El Paso's Burgess High School. He was listed on all-star teams on the city, district and regional levels, the university said Monday.

Laraba was recruited by new Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson. Richardson, who guided Western Texas to the juco championship last season, previously coached at Burgess High.

WINS MARATHON — Bill Rodgers of Sherborn, Mass., breaks the tape to win the Boston Marathon for the fourth time Monday, in two hours, 12 minutes and 11 seconds.

Bob Horner sent back to minors

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner, the Atlanta Braves slugger who left a college campus to become the National League's Rookie of the Year two seasons ago, made the All Star ballot Monday — then was demoted to the minors.

"Bobby Cox called me and told me and if you think the shock's worn off, you're completely wrong," Horner told The Associated Press Monday night after it was learned the Braves' third baseman had been optioned to the club's Class AAA farm at Richmond.

"This is incredible," said Horner. "It's beyond incredible. It's something words can't describe, really."

Al Thornwell, the Braves' executive vice president who confirmed the move, said, "He was stunned, but on reflection, he shouldn't have been. All he has to do is read his stats."

Horner, hailed as one of baseball's best young hitters following two excellent seasons, was mired in a 1-for-32 slump. He had only two singles in 34 trips, an .060 average, and failed to drive in a run as the Braves opened with a dismal 1-9 record. He also had committed six errors in nine games, and saw action only as a pinch hitter Sunday against Cincinnati after being benched by Manager

Cox at the suggestion of owner Ted Turner. "He has 72 hours in which to report, but I hope he would report right away, in time for tomorrow night's ball game," Thornwell said. "I hope he'll be back within the next couple of weeks. Just as soon as he can regain his confidence, I hope he'll be back."

Horner, the nation's No. 1 pick in baseball's 1978 summer draft, joined the Braves in June that year after being named college baseball's Player of the Year at Arizona State. He never played a day in the minors, seeing action in 89 games and earning the NL's Rookie of the Year award when he batted .266 with 23 home runs and 63 RBI.

Despite a bitter contract dispute with Turner that kept Horner out of spring training in 1979, the 22-year-old slugger was even more impressive his sophomore season. He smashed 33 homers, had 96 RBI in 121 games and had a .314 batting average, fifth best in the league.

"OK, I've had 10 bad games," Horner said. "I've had 210 pretty excellent games for those people. If 10 games in my career determines whether I'm going to stay on the major league team or not, I can't fathom that."

For third straight year

Rodgers wins Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Rodgers, one of the world's foremost distance runners, can mark down 1980 as a year of both bitter disappointment and personal triumph.

The 32-year-old former school teacher trained months in hopes of a shot at Olympic Gold, but settled Monday for a third consecutive, and fourth since 1975, Boston Marathon championship.

"I'd rather be in the Olympics than anything, but I don't even know if I would have made the team," Rodgers said after becoming only the second runner ever to win the 26-mile, 385-yard jaunt from Hopkinton to Boston's Back Bay three years in a row.

Controversy marked the women's race as officials feared a possible hoax. Rosie Ruiz, a 26-year-old office worker in New York, running only her second marathon, originally was declared the winner in a course record of 2:31:56, breaking the mark of 2:35:15 set by Joan Benoit in 1979.

However, race director Will Cloney said later there were "grave doubts" that Ruiz had run the entire course and officials would investigate in the next few days. Ruiz later said she was upset, claiming she had run the route.

However, he cooled his temper in a hot sun, ran his chief rivals into the pavement, overcame cramps and won the 84th Boston marathon in 2 hours, 12 minutes, 11 seconds, defeating Italy's Marco Marchei by about 500 yards.

In the 70-degree weather, Rodgers' course record of 2:09:27 last year was not threatened.

"That was the toughest race I've ever run in Boston," Rodgers said. "I was freaked out. I was drying (from dehydration) at the end. I ran real hard to make my breakthrough (about the halfway mark)."

"My legs are real beat. It was a struggle just to get home. The crowd drove me. My legs started to go with eight miles left. It was pure willpower then. On the hills I gutted it out, getting cramps the last six miles." Even while hurting, Rodgers was too much for the starting field of 5,400, which counted 3,663 men and 236 women among finishers in the official clocking period of 3½ hours.

Marchei, making his first visit to Boston, was runnerup in 2:13:20, outduelling Ron Tabb of Houston after both had been put away by Rodgers about the halfway mark. Tabb was third in 2:14:48, followed by another Boston newcomer, Michael Koussis of Greece, in 2:16:03, and Paul Friedman of New Brunswick, N.J., in 2:16:46.

After charging into the lead, Rodgers ran almost a solo race. However, less than one mile from the finish he came to a near stop eluding one horse that had bolted, and veered around a second.

Gervin spurns lucrative pact

Worth 5.1 million

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have offered unhappy George Gervin a new lifetime contract worth $5.1 million. But Gervin's agent says Gervin will demand to be traded if the Spurs don't drastically increase their offer.

Officials of the National Basketball Association team, stung by a "poor boy" image in the national media, revealed Monday that they had offered the three-time scoring champion the choice of the $5.1 million pact over 35 years or a 5-year deal worth $2.85 million.

"We have made what we consider to be our best offer," said Spurs President Angelo Drossos. "They're not even close." Gervin's agent, Pat Healy, said by phone from Tacoma, Wash., adding that Gervin seeks a minimum of $1 million per year for seven years.

"George wants to play out his career in San Antonio. But if their offer is irrevocable, George has no choice but to ask to be traded," added Healy. "He is the most consistent and proficient player in the NBA today. He is the best, so he should be the highest paid."

Healy said Gervin had rejected both of the team's offers 10 days earlier when talks broke down between Healy and Drossos.

Gervin, 27, currently has a $350,000-per-year, non-guaranteed contract, which has three years remaining and pays him only a third of what at least four other NBA stars earn.

Drossos agreed to renegotiate the contract after the season ended. But there was widespread speculation in the national media that San Antonio and the Spurs could not afford to keep a superstar like Gervin.

Drossos then broke his own rules against revealing salaries by calling the unprecedented Monday news conference and outlining the team's two offers.

"For too many weeks, we have heard our franchise — and our city — chastised as some kind of poor boy operation," Drossos said.

"This may not be the greatest offer made to an athlete, but it is one of the greatest offers ever made to an athlete who has three years remaining on a binding contract at considerably less compensation," he added.

Drossos said he went public to erase the "poor boy" image and assure Spurs fans that the team is serious about competing for an NBA title.

But Healy denounced the revelations as "un-professional" and said it would hurt the negotiations. Gervin also said he was upset by Drossos' actions.

Healy said he and Gervin were "shocked" when they heard what Drossos had done.

Drossos said the $5.1 million offer would be guaranteed for five playing seasons at $400,000 per year and 30 years at $100,000 per year beginning in 1990.

The $2.85 million offer, he added, would be guaranteed just for five playing seasons. Both offers include $100,000 signing bonuses.

No Two Are Exactly The Same

It's nice to be able to pick an item from the shelf and know that when you get home and screw it in or plug it in its going to fit. That's standardization.

But there are some areas of our lives where even the thought of standardization is repulsive. Funeral service, certainly has to be unique for each family, if it is to satisfy emotional needs. In grief, people need personal attention, not something packaged neatly and pulled from a shelf.

Personal attention is a feature that distinguishes services at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Dome can't stop Foster

By the Associated Press
No park can hold strongman George Foster — not even the Houston Astrodome.

Playing in one of baseball's toughest stadiums for the long ball Monday night, the Cincinnati slugger muscled a pitch into the left field bleachers to help the Reds beat the Houston Astros 6-5.

"I'm different from a lot of people," said Foster after his towering shot in the windless park. "When I get hold of the ball, it's going out."

The home run was the fourth of the young season for Foster, who has hit more home runs (15) during the last four years than any other player in the majors.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles edged San Francisco 4-3; Pittsburgh whipped Montreal 7-1 and the New York Mets blanked Philadelphia 3-0.

The Reds led 6-1 in the sixth inning before putting down a pair of late-inning rallies by the Astros, who scored two runs apiece in the sixth and seventh.

Dodgers 4, Giants 3
Reggie Smith and Ron Cey hit two-run homers in the first inning and Smith contributed a key defensive play in the seventh to lead Los Angeles past San Francisco behind the combined seven-hit pitching of Burt Hooton and Steve Howe.

Hooton left the game after seven innings when his arm tightened, and Howe was greeted by Darrell Evans' base hit. Evans was sacrificed to second, and Larry Herndon stroked a base hit to right, but Smith's throw to the plate prevented Evans from scoring the tying run, and Evans was cut down at second.

Pirates 7, Expos 1
John Candelaria pitched a six-hitter and Dave Parker and Lee Lacy each knocked in two runs to lead Pittsburgh past Montreal.

Candelaria drove in Pittsburgh's first run with a sacrifice fly in the second inning and the Pirates broke open the game in the sixth with three runs, one of them doubled home by Lacy.

The Pirates extended their lead to 7-0 with three runs in the seventh on Parker's two-run triple and Lacy's RBI single.

Mets 3, Phillies 0
Ray Burris and Neil Allen combined on a five-hitter, and Joel Youngblood and Frank Taveras drove in key runs as New York beat Philadelphia. The Mets continued to trouble Steve Carlton. They now hold a 26-23 career edge over the southpaw, one of baseball's top pitchers. It was Carlton's first loss this season after two victories.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when John Stearns opened with a single, took second on an infield out and scored on Youngblood's single. The Mets made it 2-0 in the fifth on Taveras' RBI single.

Burris, 2-1, allowed four hits, struck out four and walked five in 7-1/3 innings before needing Allen's relief help.

One swing enough for Brewers

By the Associated Press
The book says you bunt the winning run to third base with one out in the bottom of the 11th inning. Gorman Thomas has read the book, but he prefers a different ending.

Thanks to a game-tying pinch single in the bottom of the ninth by Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper, the Brewers and Cleveland Indians were in overtime when Mark Brouhard was nicked by a pitch from reliever Victor Cruz to start the 11th.

Up stepped Thomas, the American League's 1979 home run king. Thomas squared around to bunt but Cruz' delivery sailed over his head and back to the screen, with Brouhard advancing to second on the wild pitch.

"That took off the bunt," Thomas said. "I was going to take one swing and, if nothing happened, I was going to bunt on the something on my own to get the runner to third base."

Something did happen. Thomas' third home run of the season, giving the Brewers a 7-5 victory.

A's 4, Mariners 2
Pinch hitter Jeff

Newman's tie-breaking two-run double in the ninth inning lifted the streaking A's to their seventh consecutive victory. Newman doubled off reliever Dave Heaverlo, who was sold to Seattle by Oakland just before the start of the season. Heaverlo had replaced Shane Rawley after a pair of two-out hits. The Mariners went ahead 2-1 in the third on Leon Roberts' two-run homer. The A's tied it in the eighth on Dave Revering's homer.

Rangers 3, Tigers 2
Jon Matlack continued battling back from elbow surgery with his third straight strong pitching effort and Jim Sundberg smashed his second home run of the year. Matlack allowed six hits, struck out eight, walked two and retired 19 of the last 22 batters he faced before Sparky Lyle got Lynn Jones to hit into a game-ending double play with the bases loaded after walking Dave Stegman to force in a run.

Yankees 3, Orioles 1
Ruppert Jones singled home Rick Cerone with two out in the bottom of the eighth while Tommy John held Baltimore to three hits before needing last-out relief from Rich Gossage. Graig Nettles' first home run of the season gave the Yankees a 1-0 lead in the third inning off Mike Flanagan.

Red Sox 9, White Sox 8
Dwight Evans doubled home the winning run to cap a three-run rally in the bottom of the eighth inning against Randy Scarbery. Jack Brohamer drove in the first two runs of the inning with a game-tying single. Rick Burleson, Jim Rice and Carlton Fisk homered for Boston while Wayne Nordhagen and Harold Baines connected for Chicago.

Blue Jays 7, Royals 1
Dave Stieb hurled a five-hitter and blanked Kansas City until Pete LaCock's RBI double with two out in the ninth. Toronto scored three runs in the fourth inning with the help of a throwing error by shortstop U.L. Washington and an RBI double by Damaso Garcia. John Mayberry, a former Royal, hit a two-run double to cap Toronto's four-run ninth inning.

Lakers, Sonics open series tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Laker Coach Paul Westhead says "it's show up and play time," as his team begins its Western Conference championship series tonight against the defending National Basketball Association champion Seattle SuperSonics.
"You have to put your words into action now," said Westhead. "And I think our guys are rested, and eager and anxious to find out what it's like to play the champs."
"The Seattle SuperSonics are the best in basketball until someone knocks them out of the playoffs. They are still the status quo."

The opening game of the best-of-seven series will be the Lakers first in a week since, after a first-round bye, they wrapped up their series against Phoenix in five games Tuesday night.

The Sonics could, however, be suffering from battle fatigue as they open play in the Lakers' Forum.

Seattle was extended to the limit in winning playoff series over Portland and Milwaukee.

Ted spends some of his route earnings as well as saves some of them. His interest in money goes beyond his job — his hobby is collecting old money and banknotes. He also enjoys building models.

Demand-supply causing woes in productivity
HOUSTON (AP) - Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas says plummeting productivity can be blamed on forcing the demand side of the economy and starving the supply side for more than a generation.
"A vast reservoir of demand has been created with virtually nothing done to encourage supply," Bentsen said. "Our business and industry are simply not investing adequate resources in new plants and equipment. We are asking American workers to do tomorrow's job with yesterday's tools."
