WORKING ON UNIQUE SAFETY RECORD — Morning shift workers at Cosden Oil and Chemical Company's local refinery will have cause to remember their Monday sign-on. Officials of Cosden were on hand to shake the hands of each worker for contributing to a record of a million man hours without losing any time due to injury or accident. In the top photo, Cosden president Ken Perry (far right) and Ron Medley (second from left) grasp the hands of workers reporting for duty. All employees of the plant qualify for $50 gift certificates, redeemable locally, for contributing to the record. The signs posted at the entrance to the refinery (below) tell the story.

In injury-free man hours

Going for second million

Cosden Oil & Chemical Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of American Petrofina, Incorporated, today announced the completion Sunday of one million manhours worked at its Big Spring plant without a lost time accident. This more than triples the previous record of 349,122 manhours without a lost time accident.

Kenneth W. Perry, Dallas-based Cosden president, was on hand this morning to congratulate the workers coming off the midnight shift along with employees going onto the day shift.

He said the Company was extremely proud of the employees' efforts and contributions to the outstanding record. The Big Spring plant, which is a 60,000 barrel-per-day refinery and a large petrochemical complex, has had only one lost-time accident in more than a year. The last occurred Aug. 28, 1979. That accident resulted in only one day lost from work.

The Company also announced today that each of the 676 employees working at the Big Spring plant would receive a $50 gift certificate, redeemable at any of the large group of participating Big Spring merchants. The almost $35,000 to be spent in the local community will have a significant impact, Perry said. He added that the gift certificates enclosed with a personal letter to the employee's home creates awareness of the importance the Company places on its safety program.

Ronald D. Medley, operating vice president headquartered at Big Spring, today announced a new goal of two million manhours without a lost time accident.

He said a good safety program involves three elements: First, top management establishes the basic philosophy; second, daily involvement of the individual supervisor; and third, the individual employee's attitude toward his job and fellow employees. He attributed the Big Spring plant operating for the first time for more than a million manhours without a lost time accident to everyone's safety consciousness.

Volcanic ash drifts over three states

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Abrasive volcanic ash coughed up by Mount St. Helens drifted over three states today following a volcanic eruption that killed at least five people, left 21 missing, and forced thousands to flee a mile-wide wall of steaming mud.

The ash — which prompted health warnings — fell half an inch deep on the ground up to 500 miles away following Sunday's convulsion that turned day into night in much of eastern Washington, Idaho and western Montana.

A plume of steam and ash was still billowing 14,000 feet high from a crater a half-mile wide today, but there were no sightings of the gas fuming rivers of mud and gas which roared down the flanks of the peak earlier. There were no sightings of lava flows during the eruption.

Both the Cowlitz the Toutle rivers were dropping after being swollen Sunday by the mudflows.

"It's still perking, but it is not as violent," said Sam Frear, a spokesman for the Forest Service said. "We hope we've seen the worst."

Rescue helicopters planned to take to the air to search for the 21 people still missing. The Red Cross estimates between 2,500 and 3,000 persons have been evacuated.

The explosion early Sunday knocked 1,300 feet off the top of the once pristine and snow-covered 9,677-foot peak, which until March had been quiet since 1857.

"It looks like the aftermath of an atomic explosion," said Dwight E. Reber, a pilot for Columbia Helicopters Inc. of Aurora, Ore.

Ash and flows of gas and newly formed rock poured from the mountain throughout Sunday.

The mudflow — the consistency of wet cement, moving at 50 mph — pushed floodwaters before it, swept up cars and houses and snapped concrete-and-steel bridges like toothpicks. (See Mt. St. Helens, Col. 3, Page 2A)

Following child's death

Woman charged with murder

By DON WOODS
Gunshot victim Kaylee Thomas died at 8 a.m. today in Texas Tech Health Science Center in Lubbock.

Nelda Thompson, 51, 1609 Avion, has been charged with murder. She was originally charged with aggravated assault but the charge was changed to murder because of the girl's death.

Kaylee, 12, was shot in the head Saturday at 12:49 a.m. on Hilltop Road.

According to a person closely connected with the case, state welfare stepped in Saturday and removed three girls and a boy from the home of Carol and Bob Thomas, Kaylee's parents.

The children are Evette, 15, Tabatha, 9, Patricia, 5 and Ronni, 2. T.J. Setters and her husband, Charles, are taking care of the brother and sisters. Mrs. Setters is Carol Thomas's sister. Mrs. Setters and her husband, Charles, live in Odessa where Charles works as a truck driver.

Setters and his wife will be contacted by State Welfare this afternoon about taking permanent custody of the children.

Kaylee contacted Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin a few weeks ago asking to be removed from the home.

"She said her mother would go off and leave her for two or three days at a time and go to Odessa," said Heflin. He said she wanted to live with some neighbors down the street.

Nelda Thompson, the suspect, was at the home of Chief Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Bill Whitton when she was picked up by an elderly man who had the girls in his car.

Whitton's daughter, Patty, is the wife of Ms. Thompson's son, Woody Howell. The three of them were allegedly arguing when Ms. Thompson came from the house. Deputy Whitton and his wife are reportedly on vacation in Florida.

Ms. Thompson had allegedly been drinking, according to one of the witnesses. When she pulled the gun from her purse the weapon discharged, hitting her in the finger. The bullet then went through the windshield and struck Kaylee in the back seat, witnesses said.

Patsy Hulet, 12, was also in the backseat. One source said Patsy pulled Kaylee down into the seat when she saw the gun but Kaylee broke free. The source said when she sat up again the shot struck her.

Patsy quoted Ms. Thompson in a telephone interview Saturday night "I didn't hit no kid in the back seat." "I know she did," said Patsy.

Patsy screamed when the shot fired and Kaylee fell over in her lap. The brass casing was cradled between the wrist and elbow of Kaylee's right arm.

According to Linda Eggleston, secretary for Justice Heflin, Mike Eggleston took the gun from Ms. Thompson and had custody of her when sheriff's deputies arrived.

The Herald was told Saturday that Ms. Thompson had the gun in hand when the deputies arrived.

The Egglestons live next door to Deputy Whitton. Mike Eggleston is a member of the Big Spring police force.

Assistant Director of Nursing Edith Blackburn at the Lubbock hospital said Kaylee had registered no brain waves on an EEG administered by the Lubbock hospital Sunday.

The girl was being kept alive by a respirator, Mrs. Blackburn said.

E.A. Richters to quit job as Coahoma mayor

Coahoma Mayor E. A. Richters will be resigning his position at the 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Coahoma City Council Tuesday in City Hall.

Richters told the Herald he is going into a stock farming business with one of his sons in Forney in East Texas. He plans to move from Coahoma on May 30.

Richters has served two terms as a councilman on Coahoma's governing body and one year as mayor. He was elected to the top spot in the April 8, 1979, election. He beat Ross Roberts and write-in candidate Joe Swinney.

Working out drainage problems on Main and Ramsey Streets, purchasing of equipment; and the adopting of a one percent sales tax in the city were listed as accomplishments by Richters. The mayor also said during his time on the council, Coahoma started using federal revenue sharing money for street paving and improvements.

He came to Howard County in June 1952, working in the civil service at Webb Air Force Base.

Richters moved to Coahoma in 1960. He came to the small east Howard County community "on account of the school system."

He was active in the community. He served as president of the Quarterback Club and the Lions Club. He also drives a school bus and helps in the school's maintenance program.

"I never believed in being idle," Richters said.

He was first elected to the city council in Coahoma in 1975. A suit between the Colorado River Water District and the city of Coahoma prompted him to run.

"They (city council) were in a turmoil with the water district," Richters related.

He said, "It was an issue to be settled by grown men, not the courts." Richters reasoned that he and everyone in Coahoma was both taxpayers and water users so residents were having to pay double for the court costs.

Richters added that the suit is still not settled.

Serving on the city council was an "educational" experience, Richters said, adding that anybody on a local governing body will learn much about people.

He sees a city councilman's role as a peace maker and a business manager.

"Everybody should have one seat on the city council," he said.

Action/reaction: Most dangerous

Q. What is the most dangerous athletic activity in this country, football, lacrosse or boxing?

A. None of the above. It's bicycling, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. There are 1.4 million bicycle accidents a year. Serious injuries from such mishaps total 80,000.

Tops on TV: 'Moviola'

Tony Curtis stars as producer David O. Selznick in the second installment of "Moviola," airing at 8 p.m. on NBC. The three-part series offers vignettes of famous and infamous occurrences in Hollywood's recent past. This one, "The Scarlett O'Hara War," deals with the massive search for an actress to play the heroine in "Gone With The Wind." The lovely Cheryl Ladd of "Charlie's Angels" notoriety will star in her own special at 9 p.m. on ABC. Guests include Jeff Conaway, Joyce DeWitt and the Charlie Daniels Band.

Calendar: PTA meeting

College Heights PTA will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the College Heights School cafeteria.

Big Spring High School Choral Department's annual Spring Concert, 8 p.m. High School Auditorium. Admission price, $1.

Halfway House Fund gains; linens needed at facility

Donations to the Halfway House Fund over the weekend totaled $2,900.

The latest gifts lent hope that the facility's board of directors will be able to achieve its goal of $13,908.33, a sum desperately needed to retire old debts incurred by the agency.

The sum collected as of noon today totals $11,069.88. That means that less than $3,000 is needed to pass the objective.

Among the latest gifts are $1,500 given anonymously and $500 from Doris Chalk Cole.

The directors have issued an appeal for sheets, towels, pillows and pillow cases, which are needed to bring the Halfway House's linen inventory back to par.

Those with supplies they would like to share with the Halfway House residents can deliver them to the HH, 901 W. 3rd Street, or call the facility. Someone will pick them up.

Anyone wishing to help close the gap on the final objective can make their checks out to the Halfway House Fund and forward them to the Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring, 79720.

In pursuit of Olympiad—II

Politics denied Owusu shot at medal

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
He did not even get to compete.
The 1976 Montreal Games was Joshua Owusu's best opportunity to capture an Olympic medal. Josh's former track coach, Bill Lane, said, "He would have won in '76," said Lane, who coached Josh at Angelo State University. "That was his year to win. He could wake up in the middle of the night and jump 25 feet for you."
Unfortunately for Josh, a transplanted Big Spring resident from Ghana, the decision of African politicians prevented him from his quest for an Olympic medal.
"I was ready for 1976," Josh said. "By the end of June 1976, I had the second best jump of those competing in Montreal." Josh had jumped earlier in the year 26-feet, 10 1/4 inches. He was listed by Sports Illustrated as a top contender for the gold medal in the long jump.
Shortly before the opening of the Games on July 18, 1976, 30 countries, mostly African, withdrew from Montreal. One of these countries was Ghana.
In the Summer of 1976, a New Zealand rugby team visited white-ruled South Africa. The Supreme African Sports Council charged the visit by the team was unofficially blessed by the Wellington government.
The sports council demanded that either Wellington send its Olympic team home or the International Olympic committee expel New Zealand. Neither happened.

A fourth of the 119 participating nations left Montreal. A total of 600 of the 8,340 competing athletes were involved. One of these was Josh.
"At first I was bitter," Josh commented. "When I heard about the boycott, I told my coach I was going to jump for another country. I just wanted to get into the Olympics. I spent too much time for it not to compete."
"He could wake up in the middle of the night and jump 25 feet for you."
Josh added, "After I lost in '72 (Munich), I worked terribly hard to get back into shape for this one. The Olympics is the climax of all athletics to me."
In 1972, Josh had competed in the Munich Olympics. There in a Pre-Olympic Meet in Post Stadium he had the best mark of those competing in the long jump event.
In the finals, though, Josh finished fourth with a jump of 26-feet, 3 1/2 inches. The mark was 3/4 of an inch short of a bronze medal. The mark was also 2 and 1/2 inches short of his pre-Olympic mark.
"I didn't know all the details of the walkout," Josh said. "After I found out about the issues and what efforts were made to solve the problems, I could sympathize with my country's stand."

In 1973 and 1974, Josh had blitzed the amateur track and field circuits.
"By the end of June 1976, I had the second best jump of those competing in Montreal."
Josh won in 1973 the triple and long jumps in both the All-African Games and the British Commonwealth Games. This year, he also defeated 1972 Olympic gold medalist Randy Williams in the Astrodom Federation Indoor Meet in Houston.
In 1974, Josh took first in four events in the Lone Star Conference Meet. He won the long jump with a leap of 25-feet, 5 1/4 inches. He captured the triple jump and the 440-yard dash. He ran a leg on the winning 440-yard relay.
At the 1974 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Meet, Josh set a new record in the long jump, springing 25-feet, 8 1/4 inches. His record setting feat was his fifth national title in four years of competition for the little state school in San Angelo. Three of his five titles were in the long jump.
In four years at Angelo State University, Josh was twice named the top field performer in the Lone Star Conference.
Following graduation with a bachelor's degree, Josh entered Texas Tech University and began graduate study in chemical engineering.

Josh continued to work out in Lubbock and moved to Big Spring in the Spring 1976, taking a job as a process engineer with Corden Oil and Chemical. He felt at the time coming here he was in the best shape of his track career. All the cards seemed to be in his favor.
"I was so confident. That's the main reason I was so disappointed, because I was all set to go."
"I felt like I had a very good chance at winning," Josh said. "I really thought my only competition would be Arnie Robinson."
He added, "I was so confident. That's the main reason I was so disappointed, because I was all set to go."
Robinson did go on and win the 1976 gold medal in the long jump, with a mark of 27-feet, 4 1/4 inches. Randy Williams, the gold medalist in the long jump in 1972, took second with a jump of 26-feet, 7 1/4 inches — more than three inches shorter than Josh's best jump.
"I was probably more disappointed (in 1976) than 1972," Josh said. "There my dreams went down the drain."

Cannibal Draw reunion nears

Saturday's third annual Cannibal Draw Reunion here may attract a record crowd, according to organizer H.M. (Mac) Underwood.
Underwood said that 51 had definitely said they will be in attendance. Another ten said "maybe." Seven eligible people are on vacation this week. Five others invited have yet to be heard from.
The reunion will be held starting at 7 p.m. in the Brandin Iron Restaurant. Underwood advised the registrants to dress comfortably. The meal will be "dutch treat" and orders can be taken from the menu.

Representatives of local news media will be special guests. Getting special invitations were photographer Bill Forshoe, and newscasters Jim Baum, John Brooks and Bill Birrell.
Mayor Clyde Angel is eligible to attend and has indicated he will be on hand.

Deaths

Sarah Griffith

Sarah Mae Griffith, 75, of Nel Road died at 12:03 p.m. Sunday in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.
Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Larry D. Sheppard Chapel of Memories with the Dr.

Greathouse is winner of award

Big Spring State Hospital Superintendent, Grace Renee Ferguson, M.D., M.P.H., has announced the recipient of the Psychiatric Aide of the Year Award during ceremonies held Friday in the Follett All-Faith Chapel. Receiving this year's award is Kenneth Greathouse, MHMR Services Assistant for Multiple Disabilities Unit.
Chuck Gildrie, president of the Mental Health Association from Abilene, made the presentation, which honors the aide who shows exceptional ability to perform the duties required when working with psychiatric patients. An employee's efficiency, attitude, training and rapport with patients are taken into consideration.
Greathouse was nominated by his co-workers and his supervisor with the final selection being made by a committee of BSSH staff members.
Betty Condray, R.M., chairperson of the committee commented, "The choice this year was extremely difficult because we had many qualified aides nominated. Big Spring State Hospital is fortunate to have the type employee which Mr. Greathouse represents."
Greathouse, a resident of Howard County since 1973, graduated from Gonzales High School. He joined the BSSH staff in September, 1978.

Joe Echols

Services for Joe Echols, 79, who died this morning in a local hospital will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel. Burial will be in Mt. Olive Memorial Park.
He was born Oct. 6, 1900 in Callahan County. He came to Howard County as a small child with his parents William and Ida Echols. He spent most of his life in Howard County. He was a farmer.
Survivors include two sons, Roy Echols of Leveland; and Joe Theron Echols of Portland, Ore.; three sisters, Willie Davis of Palm Desert, Calif.; Lola Harris of Odessa; and Ruby Philpott of Carlsbad, N.M. He has eight grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Josie Bass

Mrs. Josie G. Bass, 60, died this morning at her residence. Services are pending at Holder Funeral Home in Owensville, Ind. Local arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.
She was born April 18, 1920 in Orlando, Noble County, Okla. She married Hollis Bass, March 9, 1945 in Chicago, Ill. He died March 23, 1966. She had been in Big Spring three days. She owned and operated the Kentucky Basin Dam Boat Dock near Paducah, Ky., before retiring.
Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Esther Rist of Stillwater, Okla.; four brothers, Elmer Moelling of Deerport; Gilbert Moelling of Elk City, Okla.; Virgil Moelling of Fort Worth and Clyde Moelling of Wichita, Kan.; a cousin, Mrs. E.A. Fiveash of Big Spring.

Police beat Burglars get bolder

Burglars were busy in the city over the weekend.
Lewis Johnson, 811 N.W. 4th, told police that while he was sleeping an intruder slipped into his bedroom and stole $42 in cash from a pair of pants lying on the bed. Including damage to the home caused by the break-in, loss was estimated at $62.
Burglars broke the padlock on the front door of the home of Cathy Moring, 305 E. 13th, sometime between 1 and 6:15 p.m. Sunday. Once inside, the intruders stole a watch and a pewter box from the bedroom. Loss was estimated at over $200.
Sometime during the last week, burglars broke into the home of Gonzalo Hernandez, 1303 Owens. Stolen were a variety of men's and women's clothes. A television set was left lying on the bed as if the burglars planned to return for it.
Loss was estimated at $300.
Officer William Price spotted two suspicious people running south from the Auto Supermarket, 901 W. 4th, 2:45 a.m. Sunday, but was unable to catch them.

When the patrolman checked the store, he found a west window broken.
Owners found that the only thing missing was a box of surplus keys. Damage to the window was estimated at $10.
A set of car ramps was stolen from the carport at the home of George F. Boyer, 2503 Kelly, sometime over the weekend. The ramps were valued at $18.75.
Thieves stripped trucks of 43 gas caps, and deflated 49 tires in the Midas International Company lot in the Big Spring Industrial Park. Loss was estimated at $164.26.
While Jerry W. Orr, Boyd, was staying at the Mid Continent Inn, Saturday night, thieves stole the spare wheel and tire from the rack on his truck. Loss was estimated at $342.
Charley Beard, 404 N. Bell, knows who took his 38 caliber Police Special, 5 p.m. Sunday. She threatened to use it on him if he tried to stop her.
A headline on a 1975 Austin belonging to Yvonne Payne, 509 Johnson, was broken by vandals, Sunday night. Loss was estimated at $20.
Two suspects in a small yellow car broke the traffic signal at Third and Main, 3:35 a.m. Sunday. Damage was estimated at over $50.
Traffic accidents were light over the weekend. Two brothers were treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital and released after the motorcycle they were riding collided with a car driven by Terri Cole, 608 Washington, as the bike entered the street from the brothers' driveway at 1309 Princeton.
James Winchester, 12, the driver of the bike, and Kenneth Winchester, 9, sustained only minor cuts and bruises in the accident, which occurred 4:23 p.m. Sunday.
A three-vehicle mishap occurred at 1100 E. 6th, 7:43 a.m. today. Vehicles driven by Leonard C. Weathers, Grants, N.M., Kimberly A. Preston, 1425 E. 6th, and Arcenio Chavez, 202 Nolan, collided at that intersection.
A vehicle driven by Ismael Paredes, 1901 S. Monticello, struck a light pole at Morrison and Birdwell, 5:45 a.m. Sunday.

Louisiana GOP seat lost

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Republican Party has lost the first congressional seat it held in Louisiana since the Reconstruction.
Democrat Billy Tauzin defeated Republican James Donlon, 61,996 to 54,924, in a special election Saturday for the 3rd District seat. Tauzin will complete the unexpired four months of the term of Gov. Dave Treen and have the incumbent's edge in this fall's election.
Treen resigned in March when he was inaugurated as Louisiana's first GOP governor in 103 years.

Arsenic report a hoax

HOULTON, Maine (AP) — A Maine truck driver who had New York City police searching for bags of potatoes that he said contained arsenic has admitted that the report was a hoax, police said.
Gary Bishop of Houlton told his employer, the Eastern Potato Dealers of Maine, and Maine State Police Sgt. William Robinson that he whipped up the story in hopes it would hasten the return of the missing potatoes.
Authorities said the 34-year-old driver could be charged with issuing a false report to police. Bishop said he had been afraid to tell the truth after New York reporters began covering the story.

Iranian asks for asylum

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — An Iranian graduate of the Citadel has requested political asylum in the United States.
Mansour Rashtchian, 25, one of 435 cadets who graduated from the state-supported military college over the weekend, says he is afraid he will be killed if he returns to Iran.
Rashtchian, who holds the rank of 2nd lieutenant in the Iranian Navy, says he can't go home because he is accused of being an agent for SAVAK, the shah's secret police. He is the only one of 27 Iranian students who came to the Citadel in 1975 who has not returned to that country.

Mormons stage gathering

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — It resembled a Super Bowl crowd with more than 87,000 persons packing the Rose Bowl.
But it was the largest gathering in the history of the Mormon Church Sunday when church president Spencer W. Kimball told his followers that the church's work is not complete.
In a voice sometimes faltering, yet with traces of passion, Kimball encouraged the congregation to bring in more Hispanic members in the southwestern United States. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints membership in southern California is estimated at 250,000.

Mt. St. Helens finally erupts

Besides the five people killed, at least 21 persons were missing on the sides of the mountain — including crusty, 84-year-old resort operator Harry Truman, who had long refused to leave.
Officials late Sunday reported eight killed, but said today that three people had been counted twice.
The victims apparently were caught in the flooding or by the heated mudslides as glaciers on the mountain melted, authorities said.
A helicopter crew saw two of the bodies trapped in a car about 15 miles from the volcano, said Air Force Reserve Capt. Robert J. Wead.
"These people were fried with the heat," Wead said. "Trees and all the vegetation were laid out flat — singed, burned, steaming, sizzling — a terrible looking thing."
Bob Christiansen of the U.S. Geological Survey said a shock wave from the eruption devastated a mile-wide swath for 15 miles on the mountain's north side. He said not a tree stump was left.
Spirit Lake, a popular recreation area at the base of the volcano's north side, "doesn't exist," Reber said. It was obliterated by the flows of debris and hot mud flowing down the mountain's sides.
Forest fires, started by lightning from the ash cloud above the peak, burned thousands of acres. Fire officials said conditions were too dangerous for firefighters.
The ash and hot gases spewed from the volcano in a towering plume nearly nine miles high, with westerly winds spreading it across Washington and Idaho and into Montana.
At Missoula, Mont., about 500 miles downwind from Mount St. Helens, falling ash reduced visibility to almost zero and the State Highway Patrol said that by nightfall all roads west and south of Missoula were closed. There was a half-inch of ash on the ground at Missoula.
Schools were closed in seven Montana communities including Helena, Missoula and Butte and the Montana Standard, Butte's daily newspaper, canceled home delivery this morning to allow carriers to stay home.
"It's just like midnight," Sgt. Larry Gamache of the Yakima County Sheriff's office said Sunday afternoon at Yakima, Wash., about 100 miles downwind. "All the street lights and neon signs have turned on. There is heavy smoke and ash — up to four inches of the sand-like stuff in some places."
The eruption was visible at Vancouver, Wash., more than 50 miles to the southwest, and the air pressure of the initial 8:39 a.m. PDT explosion was felt at Vancouver, B.C., more than 200 miles to the north.
The mountain began rumbling March 27, for the first time since 1857. Before Mount St. Helens erupted, the last volcano to erupt in the contiguous 48 states was California's Mount Lassen in 1914-17.
The wall of mud, debris and logs slithered down the north fork of the Toutle River, destroying several bridges on the Spirit Lake Highway, said the Washington State Patrol.
About 2,000 people were evacuated from the downstream town of Toutle and nearby low-lying areas, about 30 miles northwest of the mountain.
When the mountain erupted, there were two earthquakes registering 5.0 on the Richter scale, the University of Washington geophysics department reported. The university, in Seattle, said the quakes were as large as any previous jolts to hit the peak since it erupted in March.

FROG MASTER AT WORK — Frog jockey Bret Bloom of Monterey, Calif., had a word of advice for one of his amphibians during the final day of competition at the annual Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee at Angels Camp, Calif., Sunday where his frog, "Oh-No," went on to win with a jump of 19 feet, 9 1/4 inches.

In exotic birds

Illegal border traffic

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — These illegal aliens cross the border under harsh conditions — jammed into wire cages or gunny sacks, squeezed into hidden car-door compartments, often pumped full of tequila to keep them quiet. The mortality rate is high.

These aliens are birds. Parrots and other exotic birds are being sneaked over the Mexican border, and federal officials say they bring their smugglers millions of dollars for what often are small investments.

The illegal trade has gone on for decades but now is on the rise. "There's been a marked increase in bird smuggling, which reflects the increasing popularity of birds as pets," said Jerome Hollander, a federal Customs spokesman in Los Angeles. "More smugglers are seeing the value in it."

Pet shop owners and individuals will pay top prices for parrots, and that means there's lots of money in smuggling them — "pound for pound more value than in marijuana," Hollander said.

A smuggler can buy a bird in Mexico for a dollar or less and sell it for several hundred, Meisner said.

Last month, a San Diego Customs auction of 120 birds seized in a 1979 smuggling attempt brought $50,000, including $2,100 for each of four macaws and $2,300 for a pair of eclectus parrots, Hollander said.

Dave Meisner, a Customs special agent in Southern California, said smuggled Mexican birds alone bring $5 million to $10 million a year in the United States. Many other birds from South and Central American jungles are brought through Mexico, he added.

Smugglers often sell their birds to pet shops. They fill cages with parrots and carry them across the border in remote places, or they silence the birds with tequila, put them in sacks and stick them under the seats, in the trunks or in the door panels of their cars.

The object is to avoid the federal quarantine required for all imported birds.

The quarantine is aimed at preventing the import of diseases, including psittacosis, a bacteria that can cause pneumonia in people, and Newcastle disease, a virus that apparently is harmless to humans but deadly to birds.

Federal authorities recall how Newcastle disease spread through California's poultry industry in the 1970s, forcing destruction of 12 million chickens at a loss of $56 million.

After that, bird imports were banned for a time. Later, strict import rules went into effect, requiring bird importers to submit them for 30-day quarantines — for which importers must pay.

People bringing one or two birds across pay $80 to keep one bird for 30 days and $100 for two birds at the several border quarantine centers. Several places in Texas and California have commercial bird-import centers, with quarantine facilities available for thousands of birds. In the Los Angeles area, 47 quarantine centers handle birds arriving by air from international export areas.

"It's obvious that birds are smuggled to avoid the quarantine period, because it costs money," said Richard Swindler, in charge of Customs investigations at Nogales, Ariz.

Smugglers also appear to have little concern for spreading diseases. Officials say the death rate among smuggled birds is high, from either sickness or lack of adequate care in transportation.

Individuals bringing exotic birds in as pets also must submit them for quarantine. But because of red tape and because bird peddlers in Mexico often give advice on smuggling, officials said, many people bring them across illegally.

"You can go down to Tijuana and buy a bird," Meisner said. "They'll wrap it up and tell you how to smuggle it across the border. And they'll even take Mastercharge or Visa."

Big-time operators are being caught at an increasing rate, with half a dozen major cases in Southern California and Arizona this year.

Among the cases are: — Five persons arrested, including a Tucson pet shop owner, after Customs officers saw 156 birds passed through the border fence on May 1. The 139 half-moon conure parrots and 17 lilac-crowned parrots were valued at $10,000.

— Three persons arrested April 13 when an undercover Customs officer took delivery of 50 military macaws worth $800 each.

— A Mexican arrested April 3 after an officer found 70 parrots in his car at Nogales. The birds were worth $14,000.

GTE employees jailed; one injured

PORTLAND, Texas (AP) — Three General Telephone Co. of the Southwest employees were jailed for investigation of malicious mischief this weekend and leaders of a strike against the company said several unrelated picket line incidents left at least one striker injured.

San Patricio County Deputy Van Elliot said the three men were arrested after witnesses told authorities they saw the men trying to cut company telephone cables Saturday night.

The men were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Charlott Griffin, who set preliminary bond at $10,000, Elliot said.

Almost two dozen separate incidents of vandalism against company property since the Communication Workers of America went on strike just after midnight Friday, company official Clovis McCallister said at company headquarters in San Angelo.

About 8,000 workers in four states — 5,000 of them in Texas — are involved in the walkout, union leaders said.

T.O. Moses, of CWA Local 12171 and chairman of the union bargaining committee said Sunday two strikers were involved in picket line incidents over the weekend.

Shortly before 11 p.m. Saturday night, picketer Don Mills was struck by a car leaving the General Telephone company parking lot at Coppell, just northwest of Dallas, Moses said. Mills was knocked up onto the hood of the car and suffered minor injuries, Moses said.

CWA member Janice Mills was struck by a rubber dart from a passing vehicle at a picket line in Del Rio, Moses said.

Moses said "CWA has advised each member that CWA does not condone nor encourage" vandalism of General Telephone property, and offered to repair damaged equipment "without charge to the company."

McCallister said there were 12 incidents of damage to company equipment in Broken Arrow, Okla., a Tulsa suburb, five incidents in the Dallas suburb of Garland, and other reports of vandalism in Plano, Rosharon, Weslaco, Texarkana and Hobbs, N.M.

However, he said none of the incidents led to serious interruptions of telephone service, "as far as I know."

The two cut cables near Texarkana interfered briefly with service to the Red River Army Depot and some homes, but service was restored to the depot, company officials said.

Flash flood watch along Texas coast

By the Associated Press
Thunderstorms dumped as much as 4 inches of rain on parts of South Texas before dawn today, and a large portion of the Texas coast was placed under a flash flood watch.

The flood watch stretched from Aransas Pass to Port Arthur and 100 miles inland. It was effective until noon.

The bulk of the overnight rainstorm fell on Victoria, where 4 inches were measured since rain started falling Sunday night. Heavy rains and gusty winds also lashed Corpus Christi during the early morning hours.

The South Texas storms raged along a stationary cold front stalled in the Coastal Plains. Far behind the front, temperatures in the Panhandle dipped into the high 40s.

Conservatives rejoice over change

Two agencies peculiar to government may have benefited by recent changes, brought about by the resignation of Cyrus Vance as U.S. Secretary of State.

Edmund Muskie, the Democrat from Maine, left the U.S. Senate to take Vance's old job. He was succeeded as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee by Sen. Ernest Hollings, the Democrat from South Carolina.

Muskie earned his spurs in the upper house as a liberal. He consistently voted for programs that called for the spending of a lot of big bucks.

ALTHOUGH HE IS regarded as no friend to energy-rich states like Texas, Hollings is convinced that government needs to become more fiscally responsible.

Hollings, let it be said, has done an about-face in taking a stance against unlimited spending. It was only about a year ago that the senator from South Carolina appeared ready to fall in step with liberals on domestic spending. This year, he has not only voted for curbing the flow of federal money to domestic problems but has stumped for the cutbacks and asked others to join him.

When the Republicans proposed to reduce the budget by $2.5 billion, Hollings was the only Democrat on the committee to go along with the idea.

Hollings must have been listening to some of the taxpayers back home, for he was moved to remark:

"A lot of us feel that the thing is getting out of hand, that nobody's in charge. Unless Congress gets control of the budget, we're headed for disaster."

Hollings has yet to prove that he is a man who can get things done but the mere fact that he is expressing alarm over the size of the government's deficit places him ahead of Muskie.

THE TAXPAYERS got another break recently when Rep. Robert Drinan, a Jesuit priest, was told in so many words to vacate his seat in the lower house by the Pope of Rome.

Drinan was occupying the seat from the Fourth District of Massachusetts. There is a good chance that the voters could elect a fiscal conservative in the padre's place.

Closer to home, Cong. Jack Brooks of Beaumont, long recognized as one of the big spenders in the Congress, will have to wait a while to learn if he can return to Congress. His 246-vote edge was close enough to dictate a recount. Even if finally declared the winner, it appears that people like Brooks, who has been in the house 28 years, would get the message that the electorate wants a return to sanity in spending programs.

There may be hope yet for the nation.

Media events

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

The Democratic caucus was to be held in Frog Lick, Ala. The three networks sent their cameras, equipment, technicians and reporters to Lyle's Bait Shop in Frog Lick waiting in anticipation, hoping the nation will realize what a fantastic news operation they have.

The three old men sat in front of the store. One of them announced, "Ready boys? ... Heads it's Teddy, tails it's Jimmy."

IT SOUNDS RIDICULOUS, doesn't it? It never happened, but Harper's Magazine had the good taste and intelligence to run a cartoon on the above story on a few months back.

With the race to the White House starting earlier and taking longer, we, the public are subjected to more and more "media events."

That is when something will be scheduled specifically for the cameras that would normally have no news significance. Sometimes, it is the only thing a television news team has to show on the tube that night. After all, the reporters have to bring back something to their superiors. The competition is tough out there. If there is nothing newsworthy, they have to have something visual to bring back while they talk over the film. Video is all important with television news.

When you watch television network news at night, how much of the real news are you getting compared with reading a newspaper? Recent studies show the answer is — not much.

Sure, you get to see the way a candidate walks and talks. But rarely will you ever get to see or hear anything that contains any real news substance.

If you don't believe it try it yourself. Measure the front page of the New York Times. Measure the amount of presidential campaign news coverage and then measure the amount of space devoted to the issues. Do the same with a half-hour news cast. How many minutes are devoted to the campaigns and how much of that is devoted to the issues? If you do this over a period of weeks, the percentages will show the New York Times winning out every time.

When you watch network news, what do you see? The candidate getting on a plane, off a plane or shaking hands in a crowd. In 1976, Jimmy Carter gave the airplane entrances and exits one final touch, the clothing bag over the shoulder.

IN THE ABOVE STUDY I mentioned, you might see what issues the networks and the newspapers spend the most time on. This year I would bet the networks are going with Iran, while the newspapers are going with the economy. The story of the economy, probably the most important issue right now, is not visually effective.

If anyone has ever gone to a presidential campaign rally, the first thing one notes is that everything is geared to that all important network television camera. The local television cameras come after that in importance to the candidate. They are followed by still photographers and then newspaper reporters. After all, they only have to listen, they don't have to see.

The expression "pressing the flesh" so the politicians can get "close to the people" has been said so often, the people — and worse than that, the politicians themselves — actually believe it. What it is really for is to get on the local and network evening news. Politicians know the networks have to have something to take back. They comply, and quite willingly.

I'm waiting for the day that Mr. Cronkite and his colleagues will say that the reporter covering Kennedy told us he went through eight cities, making the same speech and creating media events. And then follow it up with similar reports on the other candidates.

Commie link

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — A secret agreement between the Soviet Communist Party and the Sandinista Marxist Party of Nicaragua, signed in Moscow in late March, points to major new Soviet intervention and a possible Nicaragua-Cuban military accord in the increasingly-hostile Caribbean backyard of the United States.

"The Soviet government would be unlikely to sign a party-to-party agreement with a foreign country unless Moscow regarded that country as a reliable, long-term partner," a leading Latin American authority told us.

The secret agreement between the two ruling parties is regarded by non-communist Latin nations as a dangerous Soviet intrusion into the Central American heartland. It appears aimed at planting Soviet influence and arms smack on the bridge between the Americas, flanked by what used to be the peaceful lake of the Caribbean but what is now becoming an alien sea dominated by the Soviet dependency of Cuba.

What is actually contained in the secret party-to-party agreement is not known here or by the governments of principal Latin American countries. There is reason to suspect, however, that Moscow is encouraging a military link between communist Cuba and the Sandinistas, who toppled Anastasio Somoza's right-wing dictatorship last year. That link would guarantee money, arms and supplies for Nicaragua.

If so, Moscow would gain automatic entry to the struggling Sandinista regime through a kindly intermediary.

Cuba's Fidel Castro, Without Castro, the Marxist revolution in strategically-placed Nicaragua could not have succeeded last summer.

The Soviet plan is to communize Central America and, using that land bridge as a dagger pointing north and south, extend its influence onto the two continents. What is surprising to top policy-makers in the Carter administration is the speed with which this Soviet campaign is progressing, and the increasing boldness of the men in Moscow and their agents in Havana.

U.S. intelligence sources are now certain, for example, that Castro is upgrading his estimated 144 SAM-2 anti-aircraft missile sites on Cuba. Now single-stage rockets, the Soviet-made SAM-2 is acquiring three new boosters. Some U.S. officials believe the purpose is to provide better air defenses for possible U.S. retaliation against a Soviet-Cuban decision to redeploy nuclear weapons in Cuba some time in the future.

After the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, the Russians promised never again to move offensive nuclear weapons into Cuba. But the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan broke the back of détente and U.S.-Cuban relations are at a new low — poisoned in part by Castro's deadly missionary work in Central America. Castro is clearly preparing for new confrontation with Washington.

He now has at least 2,000 Cuban agents in Nicaragua, including military advisers who control a small training camp at Esteli and a fortified air facility at Montelemar. Some U.S. officials claim that although the Sandinista regime is controlled today by pro-Castro Marxists, a political power struggle continues within the revolutionary group.

If so, there was no sign of it during the four-day, late-March Moscow summit between the Sandinistas and two of the highest Soviet leaders, including Politburo member A.P. Kirilenko and Boris Ponomarev, Moscow's chief liaison with foreign Communist Parties.

Melanocytes are cause

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Last summer my face tanned in blotches. There were places on my forehead and the lower parts of my cheeks that just didn't seem to tan. By winter it was not so noticeable, because my tan had faded. But it is still slightly blotched. I have noticed a few other women with the same problem. [am] Could you tell me what could be causing this and what can be done to avoid it this summer? — Miss L. M.

Special cells of the skin are responsible for tanning. They are called "melanocytes," which when stimulated by sunlight produce skin pigment — melanin.

There are several possible causes for the blotchiness. Some women on the Pill develop a condition called chloasma, brownish patches. The same situation is found in some women during pregnancy, and this is often referred to as the "mask of pregnancy." Hormones are involved in both instances.

Another condition involving the melanocytes is called vitiligo (VIE-tih-LEE-go). This is caused by a lack of melanin production. The result is outwardly the same, only instead of brown patches causing the blotchiness it is actually the non-pigmented areas that cause it. For this, some success has been reported with the use of psoralen drugs followed up with exposure to sunlight.

A fungal infection called "tinea versicolor" can produce the uneven tanning appearance. Its presence is determined by examining skin scrapings under a microscope. Treatment is with anti-fungal lotions.

If extra melanin production is the cause, use of sunscreen lotions and avoidance of excessive sun exposure should minimize the problem. Wear a broad-brimmed sun hat.

Tanning under any conditions is not the most healthful thing one can do for skin. Excess sunning can cause premature aging of skin. I don't expect this warning to have the slightest effect on the numbers of sun worshippers this summer.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain "middle pain." Why does it occur in some women at the time of ovulation? I am one of those women who experience this. I don't really understand it and am confused, even a bit scared. I get regular examinations and my doctor can't find any problems. — J. K. C.

This is a form of pain some women get midway in their menstrual cycle. The German for it is "mittelschmerz," the term more commonly used.

It is thought to be linked to ovulation, which occurs at mid-cycle. The pain may last from a few hours to two or three days, so for some women it can be a difficult problem. Simple analgesics help most.

Sometimes there is simultaneous bleeding that may mimic a menstrual period. There is no agreement as to why this happens, although it may be related to a drop in estrogen levels, which occurs at the time of ovulation.

If there is doubt as to the cause of the bleeding or if there is no regular menstruation later (and no pregnancy), a D&C is done to rule out conditions such as growths that commonly cause uterine bleeding.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A friend, a woman, developed acne and the cause was said to be from injections of vitamin B-12 she was getting. Is this possible? — Mrs. T. T.

Yes, it is apparently fairly common, especially in women. The acne disappears within a week or two of discontinuing the injections. The acne usually appears a week or two after beginning the therapy.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will a man with gonorrhea always know he has the illness? — H. K.

There is a myth that needs to be destroyed when talking about gonorrhea. It is popularly thought that all infected males have symptoms (the typical discharge) and that all women have few or no symptoms. That is simply not true. As many as 20 percent of infected men will not have the discharge or other signs of gonorrhea. The numbers of infected women who have no signs range from 30 to 60 percent of cases. A good deal of gonorrheal infection is transmitted by people who have minimal signs and symptoms.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know smoking pot is not supposed to be good for me, but it feels so good when I do it that I don't want to stop. I think it helps me deal with my problems. Can you give me any reasons why I should stop? — H. W.

DEAR H. W.: I do not believe that using marijuana (or any other drug, including alcohol) really helps you deal with your problems. In fact, the opposite is the case. By relying on such things, you hide from your problems and never solve them. Some day you will discover that your problems are still there, and may even have become too overwhelming to solve completely.

You have already suggested one reason why you should stop using this drug — it is not good for you. Recent medical tests seem to confirm this clearly, and you are risking permanent damage to your body (including your brain) by continued use. But it is also harming you emotionally. By refusing to face up to your problems and solve them, you are failing to learn what it means to accept responsibility. You cannot have a full and satisfying life unless you learn to accept responsibility.

There is also a more basic reason why you should stop your dependence on this drug. It is a spiritual reason. God created you and loves you very much. You are not here by chance; instead, God has a purpose for you in life. You will find His purpose only if you give your life to Him and let Him guide you. At the present time you are allowing yourself to be ruled by your own desires. In one sense, you are allowing this drug to take the place of God in your life.

I urge you to turn to Jesus Christ and invite Him into your life. You are separated from God because of your sins, but Christ died on the cross to take away your sins. Let Him come into your life and give you a new purpose and courage for living. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Philippians 4:13).

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is lichen planus? What causes it? Is it dangerous? Is there a cure for it? I have had it for 10 years and recently got the name for it. It always appears in the summer and dries up in the winter. — R. F.

This is a chronic itch and inflammation of skin and often of the lining of the mouth. It appears as an itchy, reddish cluster of nodules that eventually meld together. Skin surfaces affected usually are the hairless areas of the wrist and forearm. The ankles and abdomen are less common sites.

It lasts from 15 to 24 months, but in some people it can persist for years. A variant of lichen planus, called lichen planus actinicus, is what you may have. This appears on skin exposed to sunlight. The cause is, not known, except that the sun's rays play a role.

If skin eruptions are localized the application of steroid creams help. If sunlight increases the severity, then, of course, avoiding the sun helps. Take some comfort in the knowledge that it often goes away spontaneously in two years. It's not a serious affliction.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Joseph Kraft

Immediately after the busted rescue mission in Iran, I asked a half dozen senior Democrats about the possibility of an inner-party revolt that would force an open convention and the unhorsing of President Carter. All scoffed at the notion. One — the man who figured to have the keenest feel for delegate sentiment and the most to lose from a Republican victory — said: "I swell in the world of reality."

Reality changes, to be sure. But my mini-sampling suggests that several hugely unlikely conditions will all have to come together in a brief period before a serious threat to Jimmy Carter can be mounted in the Democratic Party. The conditions for a Democratic earthquake are as follows:

FIRST, RONALD REAGAN has to open a commanding lead over Carter in the opinion polls. At present senior Democrats do not take the former California governor all that seriously. They believe that he is shallow, inexperienced and prone to make bad mistakes on the stump. They think that with attention going first to Kennedy, then to George Bush, then to John Anderson and now to Carter, that he has yet to be exposed to the full glare of media scrutiny. They expect he'll sink, not rise, in the polls.

Nor are they impressed by the pulling power of the Republican Party. I cited an analysis of the Wisconsin and Kansas primaries made by Horace Busby, a former aide to President Johnson who now works as a business consultant. The Busby analysis shows that 60 percent of the Republican primaries as against only 40 percent in the Democratic primaries.

Those numbers suggest, to me and to others, the possibility of a Republican landslide in the fall. But the senior Democrats seem confident that with a little work they can continue to hold comfortable majorities in both houses. So one condition necessary to shake them into action is convincing evidence that Reagan can beat Carter so badly as to threaten Democratic control of the Congress.

A second condition is a strong showing by John Anderson in the polls, and also in raising money, and in getting his name on the presidential ballot. The senior Democrats all think of a two-man race — Carter versus Reagan. They acknowledge wide-spread disaffection in the Democratic Party. But they place the unhappiness chiefly among liberal Democrats on the two coasts. They believe that in the end, the liberals, faced with the prospect of Reagan, will return to the fold and vote for Carter.

Anderson is important because he represents respectable middle ground. If he begins to show strength, the liberals will not feel pinned to a choice between Reagan and Carter. They can deliver a message by going to Anderson in droves. In that event, nobody could predict the outcome, and the confidence of the senior Democrats in Carter would again be badly shaken.

A third condition is the withdrawal of Sen. Edward Kennedy. The senior Democrats, in touch with both the Kennedy and the Carter camps, report an unprecedented degree of personal animosity. The two leaders have contempt for each other, and, as usual, the loyalists down the line feel even more bitter.

THE KENNEDY FORCES think of Carter as a Democrat who has adopted Republican policies — a renegade. The senator and his people talk of carrying the fight through the primaries and on to the convention floor. Even if beaten there, it is not clear the Kennedys will back Carter for president.

The Carterites regard Kennedy as a would-be usurper. They are prepared — as a recent session of the committee making arrangements for seats and floor passes at the convention in New York showed — to play hardball all the way. While it is possible that Kennedy would withdraw to make room for a third candidate, Carter would never get out unless Kennedy quits first.

The supreme testing time for all these possibilities remains weeks off. A Kennedy withdrawal is not even thinkable until after the June 3 primaries in California, Ohio and New Jersey. The true dimensions of Gov. Reagan's appeal will probably not emerge until he finally nails down the nomination — presumably in the California primary. As to the Anderson campaign, it is only into its first days. The effort to put the candidate's name on the ballot in 50 states, for example, is, while going strong, still in the study phase.

Big changes in outlook are equally unlikely after the Republican convention in mid-July. The first nomination tends to freeze developments until after the second.

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor: I — as both irritated and amused tonight while reading the article entitled Battle of New Orleans brewing in Big Spring. I was surprised to read that three county officials spent a total of $1,266.67 on a three-day business trip to New Orleans. This figure seems ridiculous, since recently my aunt and uncle took a week-long trip to Georgia in a gas guzzler for less than $500.

I realize that prices are high in New Orleans because I have been there. But it seems to me the money they could have saved if they had been a little more economical might have gone for much needed improvements in the county.

Totally amusing was the fact that these big spenders tipped only $2. on the trip. The last time I boned up on my etiquette, the correct rate for tipping was 15 percent. At that rate the tips for food alone should have been $66.61.

Sincerely,
Marian Williams Heffington

A boy's courageous story of willpower

DALLAS (AP) — Timmy Boynton is trapped in a body that no longer responds to his wishes. For the last two years, he has escaped from that prison by blinking his eyes and twisting his mouth.

Timmy, who will be eight this month, is the victim of a hit-and-run accident. Paralyzed from the neck down, his doctors say he never will move again.

On April 28, 1978, while playing outside his east Dallas home, a car struck Timmy, snapping his spinal cord, both his arms, his collarbone and puncturing his lungs.

"When I saw him, I couldn't believe it was him," said his father, Timothy Boynton. "I went to pieces."

Rushed to a nearby hospital, Timmy was in a coma for three months, hanging on a slender thread of life and tubes that ran through his body.

"Everybody told me he'd be a vegetable," said Boynton, 45.

Then, an amazing thing happened. Timmy blinked his eyes.

It was his first attempt at communication. And what was first a tiny movement has developed into a sophisticated language of blinks, eye rolls and grimaces.

After a year at one hospital, the money ran out, Timmy's father said. Boynton, who supports three other children on his $10,000-a-year salary as a city water department worker, had Timmy made a ward of the state and transferred to Parkland Memorial Hospital.

"He may have another legal guardian, but he's still my boy," Boynton said. "I visit him every day. I never was for charity, I've always worked for a living. I had to swallow my pride, because there was no way that I could pay for him to stay at Baylor (University Medical Center)."

The two carry on a very special conversation, father asking son questions, and repeating the grimaced answers aloud. It has not been easy for the Boynton family, who endured much before Timmy's accident.

Boynton walks with a severe limp from a basketball injury, his wife has difficulty talking from a childhood disease. One sister suffered spinal meningitis just before the accident and the brother who witnessed the hit-and-run has emotional adjustment problems.

"It hasn't been the easiest," Boynton admitted.

For the driver of the car, who eventually was arrested, the penalty was a $40,000 fine and five years' probation.

Should parents drink?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Tim, 17, from Santa Barbara, Calif., thinks his parents' drinking is a bad example for his sisters and him but his parents disagree so he is asking for his peers' opinions. Theresa Wilke, 18, from Hagerstown, Md., and Jess Ortiz, 17, from San Antonio, Texas, will do the honors.

Dr. Wallace Both of my parents are considered social drinkers and have a couple of cocktails, each night either before or after dinner.

I think they are setting a bad example for me and my two younger sisters, ages 16 and 15.

My parents always shrug it off by saying that teens have minds of their own and their drinking will have no effect on the children. I disagree.

I'd like to hear what you and the guest teen writers have to say about this. P.S. I'm a Christian — Tim, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Tim: I'm going to lay a little research data on you so you can share it with your parents.

A recent Youthpoll America survey shows that there is a direct relationship between drinking parents and drinking teens. The results of high school seniors interviewed showed that 53 percent of them drank beer, wine or liquor. But the percentage jumped to 68 percent for seniors in families in which both parents drink and drops to 33 percent in families in which neither parent drinks.

Tim, this is pretty good proof that you are correct in your thinking. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Tim: In our family, my dad drinks liquor socially, but my mother does not drink any alcohol whatsoever.

I'm 18 but my dad has been fixing a cocktail for me every now and then since I was 16. I'm not a lush but I enjoy a shot of whiskey in a glass of cola. I guess you could say that I probably wouldn't be drinking if my dad was a teetotaler.

Therefore, I think my dad's drinking did influence me but I don't believe social drinking is wrong. — Theresa, Hagerstown, Md.

Hello Tim: I think both your parents and you are correct. Some teens do have minds of their own and do not pick up the bad habits of their parents while others pick up the bad habits and use the excuse that it's all right because "my parents do it." Personally, I do not drink (I have tasted beer) and neither does my mother but my dad takes a nip occasionally. — Jess, San Antonio, Texas

If you would like to be a guest teen writer, please write to me, in care of this newspaper, stating your sex and age.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

British woman samples West Texas lifestyle

The size of Texas overwhelmed a British woman during her visit with her brother in Forsan.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Harvey of Essex, England, visited between April 15 and May 15 her brother, the Rev. Jack Clinkscales, the Baptist minister in Forsan.

"Chiefly, I see the difference in the immense distances," Mrs. Harvey said of her impression of Texas and the United States.

She added, "The traffic is different. We have a much different volume of traffic." She pointed out that Americans can drive long distances without seeing anyone.

Her visit here consisted of trips to New Mexico, El Paso and Juarez and different points in West Texas.

She was also able to view the primary elections which took place May 3.

"I think your people go all out for politics," she mused. "We have parties. They all have their fair share of time on television. That is the British sense of fair play."

She added that England sets spending limits on campaigns for office.

"If they spend over that amount, they get an investigation into what they have spent it for," she said.

Mrs. Harvey is a retired librarian, working for the Essex County Council for over 40 years. She visited the Howard County Library here and remarked, "It was very encouraging to see a lot of English authors on their shelves."

She was fascinated by the diversity of the people in West Texas.

"The people I have met seemed to be very well informed," she said. "They seemed to me to be very gifted. They have a wide variety of interests."

She was shocked by one thing, the eating habits of Americans.

"You serve such large portions of food and it is not eaten," Mrs. Harvey said. "To me that is distressing."

Despite the awe at Americans' appetites, Mrs. Harvey said she thoroughly enjoyed her visit here.

"I think the warmth of the people is immense," she said. "Their hearts are as big as Texas."

Humorous signs of aging revealed to Past Matrons

Mae Hayden and Zan Ryan were hostesses at a "Dutch Treat" dinner-meeting Tuesday evening for the Past Matrons' Club of Big Spring Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, in Alberto's Crystal Cafe.

Bernice Davis read the Mother's Day message from the Worthy Grand Matron Kathy Johnston, Grand Chapter of Texas, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Johnston gave the thought for May. Happiness is being a Mother and a Granny."

Mrs. Andrews introduced Mary Anne Hartin, worthy matron-elect of Big Spring Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Hartin shared her theme, colors and goals with the members. The Past Matrons' Club will host a reception for Mrs. Hartin following the installation of officers on June 13 at the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Hayes Stripling Sr. gave the program "How to Know You're Growing Older." She told the members that "everything hurts and what doesn't hurt, doesn't work. The gleam in your eyes is from the sun hitting your bifocals. You feel like the night before, and you haven't been anywhere. Your little black book contains only names ending in M.D. You get winded playing chess. Your children begin to look middle aged. You finally reach the top of the ladder, and find it leaning against the wrong wall.

You join a health club and don't go. You begin to outlive enthusiasm. You decide to procrastinate but then never get around to it. Your mind makes contracts your body can't meet. A dripping faucet causes an uncontrollable bladder urge. You know all the answers, but nobody asks you the questions. You look forward to a dull evening. You walk with your head held high trying to get used to your bifocals. You turn out the light for economic rather than romantic reasons. You sit in a rocking chair and can't get it going. Your knees buckle and your belt won't. You regret all those mistakes resisting temptation.

You're 17 around the neck, 42 around the waist, and 96 around the golf course. You stop looking forward to your next birthday. After painting the town red, you have to take a long rest before applying a second coat. Dialing long distance wears you out. You're startled the first time you are addressed as an old timer. You remember today, that yesterday was your wedding anniversary. You just can't stand people who are intolerant. The best part of your day is over when your alarm clock goes off. You burn the midnight oil after 9 p.m. Your back goes out more than you do. A fortune teller offers to read your face. Your pacemaker makes the garage door go up when you watch a pretty girl go by. The little gray haired lady you helped across the street is your wife. You sink your teeth into a steak and they stay there."

The members sang "Happy Birthday" to Dorothy Hull and Vera Gross.

Memorial service observed
The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met at the Kentwood Older Adult Center, May 15 at 6:30 p.m. for a pot-luck supper, followed by the regular business meeting at 7:30 p.m. with J.W. Weidel, president, presiding.

A memorial service was held remembering members who have passed away during the past year. G.C. Ragsdale read the Psalm 23, then as he called the name of the departed members, a rose was placed on the Bible in their memory. The ceremony was concluded with a prayer by H.J. Eastham. Mrs. Birdie Walker provided background music. Those honored were Mrs. Irene Orenbaum, Mrs. W.T. Bradberry, J. Harold Parks, Mrs. E.A. Williams, W.C. Ragsdale and O.L. Rush.

The following were appointed on a committee to assist in setting up tables for the supper: Ben Boroughs, C.F. Whittington, C.A. Smauley, D. Boyd and J.W. Weidel.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. J.W. Weidel, Mrs. Dale Smith and Mrs. J.J. Richardson.

The next meeting will be June 18 at 6:30 p.m. followed by the regular meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Eagle Forum organizer to speak at meeting

Eagle Forum will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Mrs. Cindy Miller of Midland, who was instrumental in organizing Eagle Forum in Big Spring, will be here to speak. She will answer questions on Eagle Forum and also inform on what Eagle Forum has done, not only statewide but also on the national level.

Mrs. Miller is a mother of four. She has been appointed by Governor Clements to serve as a hearing judge for the Texas White House Conference on Families and she will also be attending the Los Angeles hearings as a delegate. She is the Regional and Research Director for the Texas Eagle Forum. She is also the Public Affairs Analyst for the National Research Studies Unit of Eagle Forum.

Eagle Forum is a non-partisan organization which tries to inform the public on different issues. Eagle

Forum has been responsible for bringing to the public a meeting with the candidates for city council and mayor and for sponsoring a meeting between Mike Ezzell and Larry Shaw for the public's benefit.

You do not have to be a member of Eagle Forum to attend this meeting. We hope you will attend to find out for yourself what Eagle Forum is and exactly what it stands for.

Dear Abby

Readers Cross Over Cross-Eyed Advice

DEAR ABBY: I wanted to scream when I read your advice to the 15-year-old who asked how she could help her best friend, who was pretty and had a nice personality but had no dates because she was cross-eyed. You told her a "kind and loving friend" would suggest it might be possible to correct her cross-eyes with surgery.

People who give advice to their friends in that manner assume two things: that such friends are either (a) too stupid to have noticed the defect, or (b) too cowardly or dishonest with themselves to try to correct it. Both assumptions are an insult!

Many physical defects cannot be corrected, and those of us who have them rarely discuss even with our best friends the years of effort and thousands of dollars we've spent before the doctors advise us to resign ourselves to living with the problem and any social rejection it may incur.

A "kind and loving friend" would never mention the defect, but would instead say, "Being your friend has brought so much joy into my life that I consider you a person of beauty whom I love to see." Sign me...
STILL CROSS-EYED AFTER 10 YEARS OF EYE EXERCISES AND THREE OPERATIONS!

DEAR STILL: You are right, of course, as I soon realized after seeing the feedback in my mail. One letter came pouring in to support my naive and unrealistic approach. Mea culpa. Mea maxima culpa.

DEAR ABBY: There is this guy at work who keeps asking me to go out with him. So far I've turned him down because he's really nothing special, is rather loud, dresses carelessly and his language is on the crude side. Do you think it would be OK if I go out with him until something better comes along?
MANITOBA, CANADA

DEAR MANITOBA: I wouldn't. What if something better comes along and sees you out with him?

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the person who objected to left-handed handshakes:
Boy Scouts always shake with the left hand, the reason being the left hand is closer to the heart. Baden-Powell, the founder of the Scouting movement, adopted this method of greeting people after his experience with the Masai tribe in Africa.

These people would approach with a shield in the left hand protecting the heart. As a sign of trust, they would transfer the shield to the right hand while raising the left in greeting, thereby exposing the heart.
FORMER SCOUT LEADER

DEAR LEADER: Many others wrote to inform me that Boy Scouts shake with the left hand, but you are the only one who told me why.

DEAR ABBY: I've been wanting to write this for years. I am disgusted with all those wives who write to say how disturbed they are because of their husbands' snoring.

I loved to hear my husband snore. I knew he was home, alive and safe with me.
I am a widow now, and I'd give anything to hear him snore again.

Wait in line not as long as for child

ALLAS (AP) — A long line snaked from door at Hope Cottage this weekend, the campers' oblivious to the hot afternoon sun and evening showers.

They waited with the devotion of rock star fans, hoping to get the best seats at a concert.

But they were young couples — many childless — waiting for the chance to adopt a baby.

Mike and Debby Henry have waited nine years for a child, so the 64 hours they spent camped didn't seem so long.

The Henrys led a line of about 25 couples who have tried — and failed — to adopt a baby. In today's birth-control conscious society, there is a decided shortage of adoptable infants.

But in a small newspaper ad last week, Hope Cottage said it would begin accepting applicants for infants at 8 a.m. today.

The wait, at least for the Henrys, was worth it.

"We've never been committed (assured that they will get a child) but we wanted to be here first," said Mrs. Henry. "We've been married nine years and have tried to adopt for three years. It's worth the wait just to get in (to apply)."

Hope Cottage Director Betty Ray Rushing said it will be the first time the agency has accepted applications for the adoption of white infants since April 10, 1978.

Couples whose applications are accepted probably will be able to adopt within a year, she said.

"I really hate to see them (prospective parents) do this (camp out), but I and my staff just haven't been able to figure out any more equitable way," Ms. Rushing said Sunday evening.

But Tom Deel, No. 14 in line, had no complaints.

Deel and his wife, Sally, were on the way to see their first adopted child, 17-month-old Jennifer, at a Dallas hospital when they passed Hope Cottage Sunday afternoon.

"... When we saw there already were people there, I decided to stay," he said. His wife went on to the hospital, he said, where Jennifer is scheduled for cleft palate surgery today.

"We've been talking about adopting another child for some time," said Deel, who said Jennifer was adopted through a family, not an agency. "It (the desire for adoption) is something that just grows stronger all the time. It's just something we really want to do."

He said he and his wife would not mind adopting another handicapped child.

Crickett and Frank Laywell snagged a No. 7 place in line at 5 p.m. Saturday.

After 10 years of marriage, the Laywells adopted Melanie, now 3. This time, Mrs. Laywell said, they want a boy.

"We've been trying to adopt a baby brother for Melanie since she was two years old. Now, we understand, there's less than a year's waiting time."

They Laywells spent their nights in a bed in the back of a covered pickup truck. But others weren't so lucky.

"Some of the people were sleeping outside last night (on the sidewalk in front of the agency) when the sprinkler system came on," Mrs. Henry said. "Everybody started running around trying to get the food out of the way."

And as rain began to fall Sunday evening, the "campers" scooped up their belongings and scurried to trucks, campers and under the building's balcony.

"The best thing about this has been making friends with the other couples," Mrs. Henry said. "If for some reason, we're not accepted as prospective parents, we haven't lost anything."

More common sense needed

Will politics always rule money?

NEW YORK (AP) — The failures of economic policy in the past few years has proven the need for more common sense and less financial gadgetry, but that isn't to say the nation will guide itself by that knowledge.

Politics, the economists say, will always override sound fiscal and monetary judgments if only because politicians inherently believe that money solves problems, especially their own re-election challenge.

But economists too are at fault, some of them anyway, for they have failed to communicate the dangers and sometimes have buried their heads in clouds of statistics and analyses and printouts that add up to zero.

An illustration was provided the other day when a follower of — if not believer in — economic forecasts came upon a year-old assessment by an esteemed, highly paid member of the forecasting fraternity.

The forecast made back then in early 1979 stated that by the same time next year, which is now, the country would be emerging from recession. Understandable enough: It was a simple error. Anyone can make them.

Two factors, however, compounded the error: 1. Without apologies, the economist simply offered a new forecast. The recession into which we are descending (the earlier forecast had said we'd be recovering) would be more severe than was expected.

2. It was made to a group of lawmakers, who presumably wouldn't have accepted his testimony unless the possibility existed it might affect their thinking on how to run the legislative affairs of government.

The blame isn't limited to politicians and economists alone, because everyone knows that he or she had a bit to do with our troubles, such as running up credit and otherwise spending beyond one's means.

But the consumer at least can argue that he acted as he did because the politicians were acting the way they did, that is, spending money like it was only paper. If money was to become just paper, the consumer reasoned, why shouldn't he get rid of it as quickly as possible?

We are now trying to recover from that disaster by returning value to paper money, which in just half a decade lost half its buying power. We are trying to assimilate the lessons learned, or rather relearned.

The first of them is that there is no way anyone, with the possible exception of Uncle Sam, can continue indefinitely to spend beyond his means. Eventually, the bills catch up with you, and maybe the law too.

The second could be that you can't please everyone. There are too many social problems in the world to conquer them all at once. Besides, solutions require brains and dedication as well as money.

LEONARD VANDEVER

Vandever honored

A retirement party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Leonard E. Vandever was held in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, here, recently. Vandever, Senior District Production Supervisor in Coahoma, is retiring after 42 years of service with Atlantic Richfield Company. He has been supervising the production operations in Coahoma since 1970.

Vandever began his career with Danciger Oil Company in Artesia, N.M., in 1938. He worked there until 1950, when Danciger was involved in a merger with Southern Production Southern Production, in turn, merged with Sinclair Oil Co., in 1966. In 1969, Sinclair merged with Atlantic Richfield.

In December of 1970, Vandever transferred to the Coahoma area office as District Production Supervisor. In 1970, he was promoted to Senior District Production Supervisor, his current assignment.

He and Mrs. Vandever will continue to reside in Big Spring following his retirement May 31.

Dickey wants one more race

WACO, Texas (AP) — Curtis Dickey, the world's fastest football player, flirts with his first one more time before he gives up track for his professional career.

Dickey, the NCAA 60-yard indoor dash champion, says he will compete in one more meet before he ends his track career.

His sore hamstring permitting, Dickey will compete in the NCAA track and field meet beginning June 5 in Austin. However, he was not expected to compete in the Quad-Conf meet among the Western Athletic Conference, the Big Eight, the Southeastern Conference and the Southwest Conference in Austin next Saturday.

"I'll give my leg some rest over the next couple of weeks so I'll be ready," said Dickey. "My career's not over until the NCAA's, and I'm really looking forward to that. I've been there before and done all right and I know that I'll do it again."

"I've been running track all my life and it will be hard to give up. I love it."

Dickey lost the 100 Saturday night, at the SWC track and field championship meet, to Houston's Carl Lewis and finished second behind Lewis in a 440-yard-relay anchor duel. However, Dickey earned the Aggies six points with his third-place finish in the 100 and shared in the Aggs' eight points with a second-place windup in the 440.

Texas A&M won the team championship over the Houston Cougars and Dickey was much of the difference.

His hamstring problem was aggravated when he spent a week in Baltimore working out for the Colts of the National Football League who had made him their No. 1 draft pick.

"I thought Curtis Dickey did just great," said Texas A&M assistant coach Ted Nelson. "Here he had been up at Baltimore and he had a bad leg. He's coming into a lot of money soon and he didn't have to be here. He did it out of loyalty to Texas A&M."

Dickey said, "Without the hamstring trouble I think I could have won the 100 but last Monday I lifted weights pretty heavy and ran a bunch of 40-yard dashes for time ... and I was in two-a-day workouts."

"Wednesday night I came back to College Station and Thursday we came over here to Waco. Then I ran Friday and ran again Saturday ... it just makes you tired to go through so much."

Lewis compiled 30 1/2 points as he also finished second in the long jump and won the 200, in addition to his 100 win over Dickey.

The Aggies posted new SWC records in the 400-meter dash, the high jump and the pole vault. Leslie Kerr ran the 400 in 45.56, Jimmy Howard high-jumped 7-3 Randy Hall vaulted 17 feet.

Phillies stifled by Ryan's heater

HOUSTON (AP) — It may be only a coincidence that a fire extinguisher hangs beside Nolan Ryan's locker in the Houston Astros dressing room.

But the Philadelphia Phillies would say it's in the right place after Ryan scorched the Phils with 10 strikeouts Sunday and permitted only four hits to fuel a 3-0 victory that ended a five game losing streak.

Ryan, 2-3, had three of his pitches clocked at 98 miles per hour, and in the eighth inning when he drew a standing ovation for striking out three in a row, the three strikeout pitches each were timed at 96 mph.

"You've got to have your fundamentals down almost perfect to hit the ball at that speed," said third baseman Mike Schmidt, who walked twice and struck out twice. "We're going to need a few more at bats against him to figure him out."

Ryan, off in his usual slow start, had lost three in a row and in his last outing heard scattered boos from Astros fans.

"I think I started even slower this season than I have before but I've gotten better each time out and I felt real good today," Ryan said. "The big difference today was getting ahead of the hitters and my breaking stuff helped me do that."

Ryan ended his first complete game of the year as strong as he started it.

"I get into a groove and I'm usually as strong at the finish," Ryan said. "I am in good shape and I don't seem to get tired."

The Astros got all the runs they needed in the first inning off losing pitcher Randy Lerch, 0-6. Rafael Landestoy led off the game with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored on Jeff Leonard's single.

Catcher Luis Pujols doubled and Ryan walked in the second inning and were driven home on back to back singles by Landestoy and Terry Puhl.

Philadelphia's Manny Trillo, who tripled with two out in the fifth, was the only Phils runner to reach third base against Ryan.

Ryan walked pinch hitter Greg Gross and yielded a single to Pete Rose to start the eighth inning but then struck out Bake McBride, Schmidt and Greg Luzinski to end that threat.

That's when the Phils started looking for the fire extinguisher.

"Ryan and J.R. Richard are among the top five or six pitchers in the league," Schmidt said. "When you play the Astros, you just have to accept the challenge."

In SWC Tourney Texas in driver's seat

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas will meet tonight the winner of this afternoon's Arkansas-Texas Tech game in the Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

The Longhorns beat Arkansas 6-4 Sunday in the second round of the double elimination tournament.

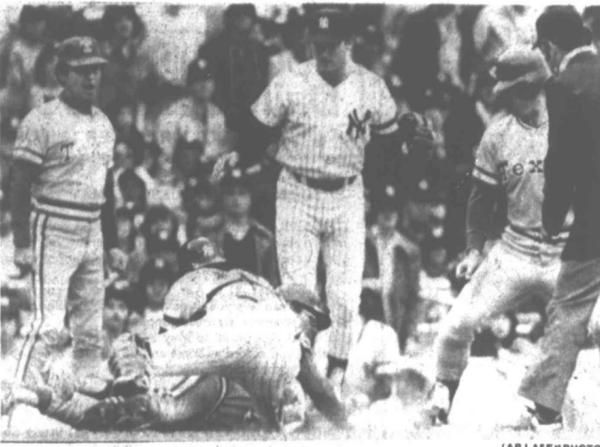

Robert Culley scored the winning run when Arkansas outfielder Reggie Thomas slipped on the wet turf chasing a fly ball.

Culley's run broke a 4-4 tie in the top of the eighth and Mike Zatopek drove in another run before heavy rain delayed the contest for 45 minutes.

Arkansas threatened with back-to-back singles in the ninth but reliever Jimmy Tompkins, 2-0, got Luis Zambrana grounded back to the mound for the final out.

"We got some breaks," said Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson. "Maybe we (both teams) were too keyed up."

In the afternoon elimination game, the Red Raiders trailed the 16-ranked Aggies 5-0 after 2 1/2 innings but went on to win 8-5. Pat Moore's pinch-hit, three-run double broke a 5-5 deadlock in the bottom of the fifth and completed a Tech comeback that began when Raider assistant Coach Jimmy Shankle was tossed out of the game. Shankle protested a third-strike call in the fourth inning.

WHO'S ON THIRD? — It may look like a baseball players convention, but it's just a baserunning foulup in the fifth inning of Sunday's game at Yankee Stadium as two Texas Rangers baserunners found themselves at third base at the same time. Yanks catcher Rick Cerone tags out the Rangers' John Grubb, left, under the eyes of third base coach Jackie Brown and third baseman Graig Nettles after Grubb got caught in a run down. The Ranger's Jim Sundberg, right, who arrived from second on the play, keeps his foot safely on the bag under the eyes of umpire Dale Ford, right, who ruled Grubb out. Texas won the game, 5-4.

Nixing Watson's Texas Bonanza Lietzke wins Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — At 28, Bruce Lietzke admits he chokes a bit, marvels at Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw, lacks a killer instinct and is leery of golfing superstardom.

He lies, or at least it seemed so Sunday. The slender, curly haired Lietzke gunned down Watson and Crenshaw in a glittering televised shootout and swept to a 1-shot, $54,000 Colonial National Invitation tournament.

He fired pressure-packed closing rounds of 71 and 69 on the treacherous par-70 Colonial course, scuttled a Crenshaw playoff bid with a clutch 25-foot putt and torpedooed Watson's ballyhooed "Texas Bonanza."

"It was an exciting afternoon," he said. Lietzke secured his fifth tour title with birdies at the 70th and 72nd holes, overtaking Crenshaw with his 25-footer at 18 for a four-round total of 271.

Preakness controversy mars outstanding time

BALTIMORE (AP) — Genuine Risk, the nation's most beloved filly, has a welt over her right eye, a souvenir from Saturday's controversial 105th Preakness Stakes that ended her bid to become the first Triple Crown winner of her sex in history.

Angel Cordero Jr., who rode Tartan Stables' Codex to a 4 1/2-length victory over Genuine Risk, was absolved of any wrong-doing by the stewards after a foul claim was lodged by the filly's jockey, Jacinto Vasquez.

But the controversy lingers because of the following Genuine Risk attracted since May 3, when she became the first Kentucky Derby-winning filly in 65 years and because many television viewers, perhaps prompted by race analyst Eddie Arcaro, saw the race differently through the eyes of ABC cameras than the Pimlico stewards did.

Arcaro, a former jockey, observed that Codex should have been disqualified for interfering with Genuine Risk as they battled for the lead entering the stretch.

Not only did Vasquez claim the filly was bumped by Codex, he said that Cordero reached over with his whip and hit the filly. After checking the filly Sunday, trainer LeRoy Jolley was asked if Genuine Risk's welt could have been the result of Cordero's whip.

"I don't know how it happened," he said. "It could have been from clods of dirt. Anything can happen in a race."

But Jolley's assistant, John Nazareth, was still bitter about the outcome, saying about the welt, "Where else could it have come from than Cordero's whip?" He also called the stewards "incompetent people" who should be fired.

Viewers voiced their disapproval to local newspapers and radio stations while Pimlico security officials were tipped by a New York police agency that a bomb threat had been made against Cordero shortly after the race.

Officials searched Cordero's rented limousine and his belongings in the jockeys' room but found nothing. Jolley admitted that rough riding tactics, which Cordero sometimes employs, are part of the game. "The unfortunate part," he said, "is the part nobody wants. It takes away from the horse who won."

Cordero denied that he bumped or used the whip on Mrs. Diana Firestone's Genuine Risk. "I didn't touch the horse," he said. State steward J. Fred Colwill said of the incident, "Cordero definitely did come off the rail as Vasquez approached him with the filly. Cordero went slightly wide, but in our opinion it did not hinder the filly enough for disqualification. The stewards did not see the winner hit Genuine Risk as claimed by Vasquez."

Vasquez said, "He (Cordero) did his job the best he could to beat me, but he hit the filly over the head with the whip. I thought this was a race track, not a rodeo. I think they should take his number down. It is no different than any other race, no matter what the purse is."

"They took the heart out of my filly when he brushed me," Jolley added. "When a horse goes a mile in 1:36 and gets bothered, it's tough to regenerate."

Wayne Lukas, trainer of Codex, said his colt was "the best horse in the race on May 17." Of the controversy, he said, "I don't think it's right for me to make an evaluation. The stewards have five or six angles."

Codex, who missed the Kentucky Derby because Lukas failed to nominate him because of an oversight, took the lead midway through the far turn. At the top of the stretch, the record crowd of 83,455 cheered as Genuine Risk made her move on the outside. But Codex also drifted to the outside, apparently brushing the filly, and pulled off to an easy triumph.

His time of 1:54.1-5 for the 13-1/8 miles equalled Spectacular Bid's second-fastest Preakness in history and was only one-fifth of a second off the track record.

Collecting three hits for the Eagles were Cynthia Puello and Pegh Burt, while Millie Correa, Elly Healy and Tonya Gilstrap had two hits. Diane Arnold, Molly Martines and Diane Hill also hit safely for the winning team.

Lisa Sula had a double and two singles to pace the Lionettes. Adrienne Allen had two hits, with Leslie Ochoa and Lisa Salazar both adding singles. Bustamante was also the winning pitcher, with Allen taking the loss.

INTERFERENCE CHARGED — Codex, ridden by jockey Angel Cordero, right, edges by Genuine Risk, who had jockey Jacinto Vasquez aboard, in the final stretch of the Preakness at Pimlico Race Track, Md., Saturday. Vasquez charged that his horse was interfered by Cordero causing him to lose the race. The objection was dismissed by the judges and Codex was declared the official winner.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes going against the unwritten "book" of baseball strategy works.

But trying to be unorthodox didn't work out for the Yankees Sunday as the Texas Rangers downed New York 5-4 in 10 innings on a two-out RBI single by Jim Norris.

But trying to be unorthodox didn't work out for the Yankees Sunday as the Texas Rangers downed New York 5-4 in 10 innings on a two-out RBI single by Jim Norris.

Norris, a left-handed hitter, was facing the Yankees' Ron Davis, a right-hander, in the 10th inning. Right-handed batting Johnny Ellis was on deck and Al Oliver was on third.

"I thought about walking Norris," said Yankees Manager Dick Howser, "but Ellis his low-ball pitchers like Davis pretty well and I decided to let him pitch to Norris. It almost worked out."

Norris hit a hard grounder that second baseman Willie Randolph was unable to field on the rain-soaked turf. It skidded into center for the game-winning hit.

French, Soviet leaders meet today in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev met today, and the French leader was expected to press for new proposals for the withdrawal of Russian troops from Afghanistan.

The summit, arranged in unusual secrecy, was Brezhnev's first meeting with a Western government head since the Kremlin last December began sending an occupation force now said to number about 85,000 troops into Afghanistan, its Central Asian neighbor.

U.S. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met in Vienna, Austria, last Friday for the first high-level East-West talks since Moscow's Afghan intervention. Muskie called the session "frank and candid," and Gromyko said they differed on all issues.

Giscard d'Estaing has insisted the West must retain some lines of communication with Moscow, and last week the French Olympic Committee rejected President Carter's call for a protest boycott of the Moscow Olympics this summer. But French sources said the meeting with Brezhnev did not alter the French government's view that the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan is "unacceptable."

The sources said Giscard d'Estaing would seek clarification of the pro-Soviet Afghan government's peace plan as well as the Warsaw Pact call last week for an international conference to ease world tensions.

The peace plan, also announced last week, calls for negotiation of non-aggression pacts with Afghanistan's neighbors, Iran and Pakistan, and a U.S. pledge that it will not aid the Moslem guerrillas battling the Afghan government, in exchange for a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan. The United States rejected the proposal and demanded that the Russians withdraw first.

French sources said Giscard d'Estaing also hoped the meeting would produce a clearer picture of Brezhnev's views on the U.S.-Iran crisis and East-West relations.

NEW HOME BUILT BY COAHOMA TRADE CLASS
Open House scheduled this afternoon

Class shows off new house Open house held in Coahoma

COAHOMA — Open House was held from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the new house constructed by the General Construction Trade Class at Coahoma High School under the Building Trade Program J.W. Weaver, the instructor, teaches a class of 12 students.

Weaver and his students complete one house a year. They do all except the wiring, brick work, air conditioning, insulation and tile work. Some plumbing has to be contracted.

Weaver's classes have now built seven houses, all located at the east end of Ramsey Street in Coahoma. Most of the instruction is one-on-one on-the-job training. Very few hours are spent in the classroom.

This year's house has approximately 1,554 square feet. It has three bedrooms, a family room with a fireplace, two baths, closed-in double garage and storage area, central heating and air conditioning, built-in dishwasher and stove, is carpeted except for the bathrooms, the kitchen and the utility room. The home is insulated for fuel economy and is total electric.

The Coahoma Building Trade Class of 1979-80 has been outstanding in its achievement. VICA members distinguished themselves in District and State competition. Dennis Grandon won first place in Carpentry in District. Herman Hogue captured a second place in the same event in District and was fourth in State in the Technical Information Contest. Ambrosio Uranga finished fourth in District in Carpentry.

GAIL ROACH

TNA Award to Roach

Gail Roach, a member of the graduating class of 1980 Howard College Associate Degree Nursing Program, was honored as the second annual recipient of the Texas Nurses Association Award, during Convocation ceremonies for nursing graduates held recently.

The award, which was presented by Mrs. Ellen Brooks, President of TNA, District 24, carries with it a first year paid membership in both the American Nurses Association and the Texas Nurses Association. Mrs. Roach was recognized for her contributions in community service, and her involvement in the Texas Nursing Students Association, the student counterpart of TNA, while a student in the ADN Program.

"Gail Roach has consistently displayed the positive qualities of informed and caring participation, which we believe are the hallmarks of professionalism," stated Mrs. Brooks. "The members of District 24 are pleased to honor Mrs. Roach in this manner, and welcome her as a member of the professional organization for Registered Nurses."

Holders quit school posts

COLORADO CITY — Kent Holder has resigned his position as band director at Colorado City High School after seven years.

His wife, Betty, has also quit as choir director at Colorado City Middle School.

The Holders are moving to Glen Rose to be nearer their children and grandchildren.

The school board has also accepted the resignation of Pat Parker, journalism, speech coach and drama teacher. Betty Rees, history teacher at the Middle School, Marian Craddock, Homemaking teacher, and Forrest Fox, Distributive Education teacher, Craddock and Fox plan to retire.

Board member Gene Blasinsgame has also resigned. He recently became assistant manager for a janitorial firm. Because the school purchases large amounts of supplies from the firm, Blasinsgame cited a conflict of interest as the reason for his resignation.

Reports of the number of dead varied, with some counts as high as 19. Police disputed that number, saying the county was officially reporting 10 deaths and the city five. The count included the dead officer. Four violent deaths during the weekend were not counted because they were not related to the disturbances, police said.

The rioting began less than three hours after an all-white jury returned its verdict in Tampa in the fatal beating of Arthur McDuffie, the insurance executive. Nine people died the first night, including three whites who were dragged from their cars and beaten to death, police said.

The arson and looting continued in many parts of Miami the second night despite a curfew and pleas from prominent black and white leaders. One of the four Sunday-night fatalities occurred when a policeman shot a black man trying to run the officer down with a car, authorities said.

Several of the weekend killings were grisly. One body had an ear and tongue cut off. One victim was burned beyond recognition. A motorist deliberately ran over a dead man three times.

Firefighters said snipers kept them from extinguishing several dozen blazes, which sent columns of smoke above the city skyline.

Police were told late Sunday not to pursue looters alone and not to risk their lives unnecessarily. Thieves were reported plundering stores in riot-torn areas without interference, but two policemen were shot and wounded while investigating looting in the Liberty City section in northwest Miami.

Jones imposed the curfew Sunday in three sections of Miami patrolled by rifle-toting National Guardsmen, city police and Florida Highway Patrol troopers. He said today it would like remain in effect tonight.

Harms said the curfew seemed to be reducing physical violence, "but the fires have increased considerably as have the property crimes.

Racial riots leave 15 dead in Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Snipers roamed, fires burned and looters went unchallenged in Miami early today, as two nights of racial rioting left at least 15 dead. Authorities said the violence was abating as the morning wore on but could rekindle at any time.

The rioting sparked by the acquittal of four policemen in the fatal beating of a black man was the worst in terms of fatalities in a U.S. city since July 1967 when Newark and Detroit exploded during what became known as the "long hot summer" of racial turmoil.

The dead included eight blacks and six whites killed in the often grisly violence, and a policeman stricken by a heart attack. More than 371 people were injured, 12 critically, in the chaos that began Saturday night. Over 450 arrests were made, many for violating the 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew.

HC trustees set to meet

Howard College trustees will consider the employment of a director of the LVN Program on the Lamesa campus and the resignation of other personnel when they convene in regular session at noon Tuesday in the college board rooms.

The trustees will also study the SWCID admissions policy, consider new instructional programs and lend attention to the Affirmative Action Annual Report and amendments to the Affirmative Action Plan before hearing a report from Dr. Charles Hays, the college president.

The school's financial report will also be offered and authorization given for the payment of bills.

Margin due shrinkage

Through the first four months of the year the Colorado River Municipal Water District was running a quarter of a million dollars under budget for the period, but this was a seasonal distortion. As heavy pumping of water to meet summer peak demands begins, that margin will shrink steadily.

Through April, expenses amounted to $1,081,592 as compared with a four-months' projection of $1,341,457. The reason for the difference is the charge for electric power of $550,533 as compared with a budgeted $787,385 for the period. Of the expenditures, $896,395 were for operations, $156,249 for general and administrative, and $28,948 recreational. Revenues for the first four months amounted to $2,387,971 compared with a budget estimate of $2,537,926 for the four months.
