Crime spree ends near Rankin

Murder suspect shot, killed

RANKIN, Texas (AP) — A man wanted in the shotgun slaying of his mother-in-law in her downtown Odessa office intended "to kill the rest of his family because his wife had left him," says a witness whose car was stolen during a bloody statewide crime spree.

Mark Edward Powell, 27, of Big Spring, was shot and killed late Saturday after deputies and state game wardens forced his car off the road, about one mile east of Rankin on U.S. Highway 67, an Upton County sheriff's spokesman said. Kevin Worthington, 23, said Powell stole his car near the West Texas community of Iraan. In an interview with The San Angelo Standard-Times, Worthington said he stopped after Powell pulled up behind him on a desolate highway to ask for a road map.

"When I looked up he had a 12-gauge pointed in my face," Worthington said. "He said, 'Get out or you're dead,' so I did."

Worthington said he was locked in the trunk of a car Powell was driving with two teen-age girls that the gunman allegedly took hostage in Odessa.

"He (Powell) said he had killed his mother-in-law and shot at his father-in-law and he was off to kill the rest of his family because his wife had left him," Worthington said. "But he said he wouldn't hurt us."

The trio later freed themselves by kicking out the back seat of the car, Worthington said.

Before Powell was shot, he went on a shooting spree through several West Texas towns and wounded four persons, one of them seriously, said Sgt. Glenn Willeford of the sheriff's department.

Powell was named in a murder warrant in connection with the slaying Friday of Loyce Chapman, 46, at her office at the Odessa Chamber of Commerce.

A man returned to the office with a shotgun after engaging in an argument with the victim, witnesses told police. Mrs. Chapman was struck in the neck and chest by two shotgun blasts fired at close range, police said.

The day Mrs. Chapman was shot, Powell took three teen-age girls hostage and went to Houston, where he "tried to kill his ex-father-in-law," Willeford said.

On the way back to Odessa, Powell released two of the girls, keeping a 16-year-old hostage, he said.

Powell then took a 14-year-old boy hostage, wounded four persons with random shots at two passing vehicles and fired on officers in Rankin who tried to intercept him, Willeford said.

When Powell turned around and headed back for Rankin, officers "made the determination that the subject could not be allowed to get back to town," Willeford said. "The subject (Powell) was terminated one mile east of Rankin."

Powell's car nearly overturned when he hit a bridge, he said.

The car "came to a stop and the kids jumped out and ran back toward the patrol car," he said. The hostages were not injured.

WASTED POWER — Unidentified young couple gaze at the Schuylkill River — and each other — near a low dam in Philadelphia. There are 40-50 dams on Pennsylvania rivers that would be good sites for small power plants and this location is a prime example.

Three Texas House members sent packing

By the Associated Press

Three Texas House members were sent packing in Democratic runoff elections Saturday, and a fourth squeaked past his opponent to win the nomination.

Reps. Emmett Whitehead of Rusk, Herman Lauhoff of Houston and Don Cartwright of San Antonio were ousted from office by voters in their districts.

Rep. Smith Gilley of Greenville, who had heavy backing from the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, a liberal business-backed Lowell Cable of Sulphur Springs by about 150 votes, according to unofficial returns.

But House Speaker Bill Clayton predicted recounts would be requested in that race and in two others. Clayton said Beeville Mayor Pro Tem Joe Moran defeated Pleasanton businessman Bob Lunsford by 114 votes, and Russell Tow of Woodlands, a former legislative aide, downed Russell Wiggins of Conroe by fewer than 200 votes.

"I just bet you they are going to ask for a recount. I know I would if I had a race that close," Clayton said.

Although Clayton said results of the 14 runoffs for House seats were 8-to-6 for conservatives, the losing incumbents were from the conservative side of the House.

Lauhoff, considered the most moderate of the lot, lost to political newcomer Clint Hackney, 28, a lawyer. Whitehead, who was best known for his efforts to put a halfway house for juvenile delinquents next door to U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, was defeated by 35-year-old Jim Turner, a Crockett lawyer.

Cartwright, backed by the San Antonio Rights to Life Committee and business, fell to former legislative aide Joyce Dorrycott, a Southwest Texas State University political science teacher.

Ms. Dorrycott, Turner and Hackney are regarded as supporters of moderate-to-liberal Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, who is challenging Clayton in his bid for an unprecedented fourth term as speaker.

Several other candidates want to succeed Clayton if he drops out of the race, which he says he will do if his Brilab difficulties continue past Labor Day. The leading conservative contender to succeed Clayton is Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Bryant's forces claimed nine of the 14 runoffs were won by candidates who would vote for Bryant over Lewis.

Clayton said his own vote count was not changed materially by the runoffs.

"I can't tell it made much difference. I think as far as my business (speaker's race) is concerned, it looks about the same," he said.

A greater-than-usual number of Republicans seek election in November. GOP candidates, including 24 incumbents, seek 89 of the 150 House seats. In the Senate, 13 of the 16 open seats have Republican candidates.

The GOP had only two legislative runoffs Saturday. Houston lawyer Richard Parker Jr., former legislative counsel to U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, defeated real estate man O.J. Striegler for the right to oppose Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston in November.

Changes in the political and economic composition of Ogg's district make it particularly vulnerable in the eyes of Republican strategists.

In the Galveston area, attorney James E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson defeated builder Ed Stewart of Friendswood for the GOP nomination to oppose liberal Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, in the general election.

Schwartz, a senator for more than 20 years, will be dean of the Senate if he is re-elected.

Unofficial returns in House races showed these other runoff results:

—Steve Wolens, a white lawyer, defeated black auto parts worker Charles Rose in a racially mixed Dallas district now represented by conservative black Clay Smothers.

—Juan Hinojosa of McAllen, a former John Hill campaigner, defeated Eddie de la Garza of Edinburg, a nephew of U.S. Rep. Eligio de la Garza, for the seat vacated by Rep. Cullen Looney.

—Former Baytown city councilman Jim McWilliams, now a resident of Hallsville in East Texas, defeated David Brown of Henderson for the seat now held by Rep. Ben Grant.

—Larry Browder of Shepherd, cousin of retiring Rep. Jim Browder, defeated E. R. Norwood of Liberty.

—Bruce Gibson of Godley, legislative aide of departing Rep. Ed Mayes of Granbury, defeated retired highway engineer George Black of Stephenville.

—Paul Colbert of Houston, a legislative researcher, defeated former Rep. Ray Lemon of Houston for the right to oppose Rep. Dan Downey, R-Houston who won a non-partisan special election in February.

Soaking rains fall in area

Although area lake levels didn't rise to any extent, Howard County farmers and ranchers rejoiced over weekend rains.

In Big Spring, the moisture started falling Saturday night, let up for a while and then resumed Sunday afternoon. The gauges at the Big Spring Experiment Farm trapped .25 of an inch Saturday night and .42 of an inch Sunday for a total of .67-of an inch. Practically all of it went into the ground.

Big Spring's total for the year now is 7.31, compared to a norm through June 9 of 7.43 inches.

The east part of town received .6 of an inch for the period. The fall reportedly was much heavier in the Comanche Trail Park area, where 1.4 inches fell.

Mrs. John Couch, who resides in the Luther area, said the fall in that part of the county averaged about an inch. High winds in that area Saturday night sent several families to their roofs, but no major damage was reported.

Mrs. Couch said her gauges showed the year's rainfall total to be 7.9 inches. Of that amount, 5.4 inches fell in May.

West of town, Mrs. Bill McIlvain, who lives on the Wilkinson Ranch, said the rain totaled 1.25 inches, which brought the year's total of 8.25 inches. It was an ideal rain, Mrs. McIlvain added.

The fall at Elbow was measured at .7 of an inch. Coahoma reported anywhere from .5 to 1.5 inches of moisture.

Around Ackerly, the rain averaged from .75 to an inch. In Ackerly itself, the fall was measured at .8 inch.

The community of Welch in Dawson County reportedly had 2.5 inches of moisture fall in just 15 minutes Saturday.

Earthquake

kills two near Mexicali

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — A powerful earthquake destroyed 50 homes in a rural farm community, killed at least two persons and triggered rumblings in an old volcano long believed extinct, Mexican state judicial police said today.

The quake, which also was felt in Southern California and southern Arizona, measured between 6.2 and 6.7 on the Richter scale and struck at 8:28 p.m. PDT Sunday, lasting almost a full minute, authorities said. The epicenter was 50 miles southeast of this U.S.-Mexico border city.

Police said a girl was killed when the roof of her home collapsed in the farming area known as Oaxaca, about 25 miles south of the border. A man also died there when a railroad bridge fell on his car.

By daybreak, at least 60 people were treated for injuries by the Mexican Red Cross in Mexicali.

Details on the rumblings at the volcano, Sierrita Prieta, were sketchy, but the mountain is in the Mexicali area and is the site of an experimental geothermal power plant.

Authorities said it would be several days before they knew the extent of damage or injuries throughout the Mexicali Valley, into which the Colorado River flows.

The All-American Canal, which also carries water from the Colorado into California's Imperial Valley along the border, was reported damaged and there was some flooding in rural areas of the agricultural valley. However, the only damage reported in the United States was at an electrical transformer which blew out in Brawley.

The quake was felt as far north as Los Angeles. Some small aftershocks also were recorded.

Personnel management funds sought by city

City of Big Spring will seek a favorable review Wednesday from the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission of a grant application to the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

The grant is for $18,738 from the TDCA for personnel management system improvement and training. The city of Big Spring will provide a match of $19,521 and the total budget will be $38,259.

The city is attempting to update its personnel policies, which have not been revised since 1969, the Planning Commission reported.

"The present recruitment and employee selection process is also outdated," the Commission reported in a memo. "The city's present methods are especially too vulnerable to noncompliance with regard to Equal Employment Opportunity regulations."

The city will hire a professional consulting firm to develop and maintain a personnel management system. The firm will work with the city to develop an employee handbook, an effective recruitment and selection process and a training program to prepare employees for promotion.

The project will be administered by the personnel director, Emma Wiggins. Training sessions will be held at Howard College and the city's buildings. About 40 staff members will receive 30 hours of onsite workshop training.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Be specific

Q. As a taxpayer, I am concerned that my tax money is not being spent wisely in Howard County. It has been brought to my attention that some of the office personnel in the courthouse do not have enough work to keep them busy. They do not come to work on time. When they do come in they sit idly or do various other things not related to county work. They take extra lunch time and they leave early in the day. In my opinion, these people are not earning the fulltime pay that they are receiving. I would like an explanation for this and I would like to see something done about it.

A. There are two things wrong with your inquiry. First, you should sign your name. (It will not necessarily be used). Second, you should deal in specifics. Similar complaints are often lodged against public agencies, likely as not by people repeating a charge, but the accusers do not often deliver specific charges. The Herald does not have the personnel to sit with stop watches and see what the office routine at the courthouse might be but would be pleased to carry such complaints to department heads at the courthouse, if the departments and the complainants are identified.

Calendar: Tax meeting

Israel Horowitz wrote this humorous drama about a pretentious New York theatrical agent whose long-time assistant dies, leaving him to cope with business and life by himself. The play is based on a Ring Lardner short story. Monday night baseball will show either The New York Yankees tangling with the California Angels at Yankee Stadium or the New York Mets squaring off with the Los Angeles Dodgers at Dodger Stadium, 7:30, ABC.

Carter and Cubans

MIAMI (AP) — Miami blacks who want justice and money from Washington, and Cuban-Americans who want their relatives freed from Communism planned to confront President Carter today with a flurry of picket signs and demands.

"Get angry!" Golden Frinks of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference urged blacks at a peaceful meeting Sunday night. "Make Miami the word everybody uses to describe progress. They've got the same problems all over this country as you've got right here in Miami."

Blacks from a number of civic groups, felt rioting could erupt again if race relations don't improve.

Carter's plans for today were not made public in detail, but the White House said he would address the annual meeting of the Opportunities Industrialization Centers, a network of training and economic programs for the disadvantaged and unskilled.

Racial violence claimed 16 lives and caused $100 million in damages beginning May 17, after four white former policemen were acquitted in the beating death of Arthur McDuffie, a black Miami businessman.

"The blacks here have been deprived and somewhat cowardly down," Frinks told the peaceful gathering at Mount Zion Baptist Church. He predicted racial trouble would spread to other cities if the lot of blacks doesn't improve in Miami.

The black leaders called for swift help from Washington to speed the rebuilding — and improvement — of riot-torn areas.

The Cuban-Americans planned to give President Carter the names of thousands of loved ones — "good people" — and to ask for a new boatlift of refugees from Cuba.

They said many of the Cubans for whom the boatlift was planned lost their place to undesirables dumped into the United States by President Fidel Castro.

The boatlift — the "Freedom Flotilla" — has been trickling to an end in recent days after bringing in 112,000 refugees.

"I only want that they be free," a tearful Antia Sorras said Sunday as she added the names of her mother, three sisters and two brothers to the list. "I think this is my last chance to get them."

"Give us our friends," pleaded a gray-bearded man, waving a fistful of the papers over his head before handing them to Wilfredo Navarro, head of United Cubans. Navarro said local leaders had promised to turn the list over to Carter.

False Soviet attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon computer that sent a false alarm indicating Soviet missiles were headed for the United States was intentionally left on to see if it would happen again, officials say.

It did.

Now, after two false alerts in four days last week, officials say they think they know what caused the problem. The computer has been taken out of use until it is fixed.

The incidents, however, triggered warnings from the Soviet Union and some members of Britain's Parliament over the weekend that such errors, if undetected promptly, could push the world to the brink of nuclear confrontation.

But the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, Air Force Gen. David C. Jones, said in an interview with the unofficial military newspaper Star and Stripes that the false alarms do not mean "we are trigger happy." Rather, he said, the Soviets should view them as proof "that we are ready and that we can respond in a very few minutes" to military threats.

Supreme Court actions at glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are major actions taken by the Supreme Court on Monday:

Shopping Center Petitions — The court ruled unanimously that a California shopping center did not have the right to stop high school students from soliciting petition signatures on the premises. It said a shopping center is a business establishment that "is open to the public to come and go as they please."

Abetting a Crime — The justices also decided unanimously that a person who aids and abets a federal crime may be convicted even though the principal defendant is acquitted.

Statutory Rape — The court agreed to determine the constitutionality of a California law that makes it a crime for men or boys to have sexual intercourse with consenting females under age 18, although females cannot commit a crime under the law. The California Supreme Court has ruled that the discrimination is permissible in preventing teenage pregnancy.

Rights of Mentally Retarded — In a case from Pennsylvania, the justices agreed to review an appeals court ruling that mentally retarded patients have a right to be treated in settings "least restrictive to personal liberty." The lower court decision would require transfer of most patients from a hospital claimed to allow inhumane and dangerous living conditions.

Arrest Rights — The court, in an Arizona case involving the stopping of a vehicle importing illegal Mexican aliens, agreed to determine just when police may stop and question persons suspected of committing a crime.

Consumer Information — The justices ruled unanimously that the Consumer Product Safety Commission may not give product information to the public without first deciding whether industry information it has gathered is accurate and that public disclosure is fair.

Lawyers Fees — The court held, 7-2, that federal courts may award lawyers' fees to victims of discrimination who win their cases before state agencies or in state courts.

Miss Lopez won best featured actress in a musical for "A Day in Hollywood, A Night in the Ukraine" and Patinkin was chosen best featured actor in a musical for "Evita."

Best actress couldn't hear audience cheer

NEW YORK (AP) — Phyllis Frelich acknowledged the honor but couldn't hear the cheers as she accepted the best actress prize for her performance in "Children of a Lesser God" in Broadway's 34th annual Tony awards.

Miss Frelich has been deaf since birth.

The drama, along with the musical "Evita," was a big winner. Miss Frelich celebrated with co-star John Rubinstein, who was named best actor, and "Children" author Mark Medoff, who took home the award for best play.

She captured the hearts of the audience by giving a glowing acceptance speech in the sign language of the deaf.

Miss Frelich seemed to gasp with glee and joy as she signed her thanks to the theater community and to Medoff "for writing me such a beautiful story," that of a stubborn deaf student falling in love with her determined teacher.

Her speech was translated by her husband, Robert Steinberg. It was the story of their love — between a deaf woman and a man who can hear — that inspired New Mexico State University drama professor Medoff to write "Children."

"Evita," snared seven awards, including best musical and best director for Harold Prince, running his Tony record to 14. No one else comes close.

The sentimental loser was Mickey Rooney, 59, widely cheered when his nomination for best actor in a musical, "Sugar Babies," was announced. Rooney, who lost out on an Academy Award in April, when he was nominated for best supporting actor in "The Black Stallion," lost again Sunday to Briton J. Dale, whose effervescent portrayal of P.T. Barnum in the musical "Barnum," earned him best acting honors.

Seal coating of county roads to begin July 7

By DON WOODS

Howard County Commissioners awarded a contract to R.E. Jones Gravel Company for 3,700 cubic yards of gravel in their regular meeting today. Seal coating on county roads will begin July 7.

James bid $5.74 a cubic yard for 3,300 cubic yards of grade five gravel and the same from 400 cubic yards of grade three gravel.

The roads and amount of gravel to be used on them is as follows: N. Knott, 400 cubic yards; S. Vealmore, 200 yards; S. Luther, 400 yards; Birdwell, 300 yards; County Road E., 350 yards; County Road West, 350 yards; W. Base Road, 300 yards; Wasson, 300 yards; Allen, 150 yards; E. Howard, 300 yards; warehouse 750 yards.

The gravel at the warehouse will be used for patching. The location is central for Road and Bridge Department work.

James' cost for transport per mile was higher than the other bidder. Price Construction, but the James trucks will not have as far to travel.

Price Construction $7.50 per cubic yard for both grades.

Commissioners signed a contract with the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal Board for use of the computer in the office of the county tax assessor-collector.

The contract begins Oct. 1 for three years at $1,000 a month. "This will save them a lot of money and it is a break even situation for us," said Commissioner David Barr.

The tax appraisal board will use the computer to read cards used in reappraisal of land in Howard County. The reappraisal is mandated by the recently passed Senate Bill 621.

Howard County bought a card reader computer attachment to service the appraisal cards with the understanding that the appraisal board would pay for use of it.

Howard County Librarian Ronald Tester has resigned in favor of what he says is a better offer from the Fort Worth library system. The resignation is effective June 21.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard discussed with commissioners the lock box that controls looking mechanisms on all the cells in county jail.

Texas Jail Standards Commission has allowed a variance on one of their requirements if a qualified repairman makes maintenance checks periodically on the locking system.

The commission requires that there be two exits from the jail in case of an emergency.

"It's a little technical. You've got to know how it's put together. Right now if that box locks up we have to go in with an acetylene torch and cut the box off," said Standard.

Standard requested that someone from the maker of the system show a deputy and a local locksmith how to do maintenance on the lock box.

Standard said one trip from a Southern Steel representative would be sufficient. Southern Steel made the system and is based in San Antonio.

Cost for the trip would be $340 per day plus 40 cents a mile. Cost would be around $1,000.

Part of the problem is deputies need to know how to use a leverage bar to raise the 200 pound plates to get to the mechanism.

Standard said currently the only way to get to the mechanism would be by "trial and error" which could be "serious."

He said the locking mechanism could get jammed if someone laid a towel or a bar of soap on the runner of some of the cell doors.

In other action, commissioners approved the summer library program and part-time summer help.

Clark confesses for American 'crimes' in Iran

PARIS (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark urged the United States to apologize for past actions in Iran and said he is not bothered by criticism or possible prosecution for traveling to Iran in defiance of a presidential ban.

"I love my country too much not to confess" alleged American crimes in Iran, Clark said Sunday in a television interview. "We owe the Iranian people a lot. We owe them an apology. We have supported the (deposed) shah and he has brutalized them and he has caused the deaths of many of them."

Clark recommended the United States "let things cool off" instead of pushing economic sanctions aimed at pressuring Iran into releasing the 53 American hostages, now in their 219th day of captivity. He predicted sanctions would drive Iran closer to the Soviet Union.

Clark arrived in Paris Sunday from Tehran where he and nine other Americans attended a "Crimes of America" conference last week. All 10 face possible 10-year prison terms and fines of $50,000 each for violating President Carter's ban on travel to Iran.

Asked about the possible prosecution, Clark said, "The fine doesn't bother me, I don't have it, and I hope a jail term wouldn't bother either."

"My defense will be that America is founded on freedoms," Clark told interviewers on the ABC-News program "Issues and Answers."

Asked how he felt about being called a "traitor" in the United States, Clark said he was just trying "to make my country just."

Republican Sen. John Tower said in a television interview Sunday that Clark's trip to Tehran was "seditious" and fell into the same category as an earlier trip by Clark to Hanoi during the Vietnam war.

But Secretary of State Edmund Muskie told television interviewers he would be willing to meet with the 10 Americans "if any of them think they have useful information to impart."

Clark acknowledged that the presence of the Americans at the anti-American conference in Tehran did not produce any concrete moves toward the immediate release of the hostages.

"I wasn't expecting any miracles," he said. "We went there believing it was impossible to do anything immediately on the release of the hostages."

However, another member of the delegation said the Americans went to Tehran "seeking a quick solution to a crisis that threatens world peace."

John Tudor Walsh, the Baptist chaplain at Princeton University, spoke at a news conference after he arrived in New York along with Kay Camp, president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Three other delegates flew to Boston and said acknowledgment by U.S. officials of past intervention in Iranian affairs is a necessary step toward the release of the hostages.

The three were Mary Anderson, an economics lecturer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a representative of the American Society of Friends; George Wald, Harvard professor emeritus and winner of the 1967 Nobel Prize in physiology and the Rev. Charles Kimball, a minister studying at Harvard.

Three other members of the delegation returned to New York Friday, and the 10th American, John Gerassi of New York, remained in London after becoming ill. Clark, who was President Lyndon Johnson's attorney general from 1967-69, said he planned to stay in Paris for "a couple of days" before returning to the United States.

In Iran, meanwhile, Tehran Radio broadcast a Foreign Ministry denial of a report in a Pakistani newspaper that the three Americans held at the ministry would be released in the next few days.

The newspaper Jang, in a dispatch from Tehran, said the release of Charge d'Affaires Bruce Laingen, embassy security chief Michael Howland and political affairs officer Victor Tomseth would be independent of an overall settlement of the hostage issue. The three were visiting the ministry when the U.S. Embassy was seized Nov. 4 and have been under virtual house arrest since then.

In his drinking water

Gasoline was last thing Texan expected to find

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — In this era of energy shortages, gasoline was the last thing Rick Arlington expected to find in his drinking water.

At first, the Arlington family thought a natural metal or sulphur deposit was adding the strange taste to their water. Then they discovered they could set the water on fire.

The problem became so acute that Parker County health officials warned Arlington the water could kill him. Tests by the Texas Department of Water Resources determined the water was contaminated by gasoline.

Now, every time Arlington turns on a faucet, a mixture of water and gasoline pours out, and when a member of the family takes a shower, he says, the gasoline fumes are so strong he has to open the windows.

Arlington discovered the problem after he bought his old house outside this Northeast Texas town, where he hoped to raise five prize cutting horses. The natural stone house sits on five acres of rolling, wooded land and the water comes from a new, deep well.

Records show a Gulf Oil Co. pipeline, less than 200 feet from the Arlington property, broke in 1968. State officials now believe gasoline from that old rupture collected in an underground crevice and began seeping into the water supply when the previous owner drilled the new water well.

Water Resources investigator Gary Barton said the contractor who drilled the new well was aware of the gasoline contamination and, in fact, used fuel siphoned from the old well to run his automobile.

Barton's report said it is possible the gasoline has contaminated the underground aquifer that serves other homes, and neighbors now are complaining of funny-smelling water, too.

Steve Adams said he has to haul water from town for drinking and cooking. His mother, Delcia Adams, 71, lives next door. She has stopped bathing in the water, she said, because it makes her skin crack.

Dave Gill, regional director for the water resources department, said the Arlington case was referred to Austin headquarters to see if further action is warranted.

Meanwhile, Arlington says wryly, there are new rules in his house: no smoking in the shower, no cigarette butts in the toilet and, "for goodness sake, don't use well water if a grass fire breaks out."

Big-city mayors search for relief

SEATTLE (AP) — Big-city mayors with restive voters and unemployed constituents back home are playing election-year politics in their search for relief and will be able to present their case to each of the four major presidential candidates.

The predominantly Democratic group gave Republican candidate Ronald Reagan a round of applause Sunday and won a promise that he would give them the money to solve their own problems if he is elected.

Independent John B. Anderson was on today's program at the U.S. Conference of Mayors' week-long meeting. President Carter is scheduled for Tuesday, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is expected on Wednesday.

Most of the mayors have endorsed Carter's reelection bid, but their anti-recession demands are causing some alarm among Carter representatives.

General Telephone Co., CWA pact requires vote

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The Communications Workers of America and General Telephone Co. of the Southwest reached a tentative agreement early today that could end a three-week strike of 5,000 workers.

The breakthrough was announced by Commissioner Vincent Guy of the Federal Mediation Service, who issued a brief statement about 3:30 a.m. and declined to elaborate on it.

Guy said the agreement still requires a ratification vote of the union, but he said it had the backing of union officials. The terms were not revealed.

"Pickets may remain several more days pending completion of the union's required constitutional procedures regarding ratification," Guy said.

California earthquake measured

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An earthquake measuring 6.2 on the Richter scale rolled through Southern California, Southern Arizona and a portion of Mexico, but caused little damage.

Scientists at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena said the quake struck at 8:28 p.m. Sunday and was centered in Mexico, about 50 miles south of Mexicali on the U.S. border and 125 miles southeast of San Diego.

Some small aftershocks also were recorded.

Authorities said the only damage reported was an electrical transformer blowout in Brawley, Calif. Mexican Red Cross officials said they hadn't received any requests for assistance.

The rolling motion of the earth lasted 60 to 90 seconds near the epicenter. Buildings swayed and water splashed out of swimming pools in the Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

The Imperial Valley, just 60 miles north of the epicenter, suffered $16 million in damages last October when a quake measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale struck the area.

Tehran has problem it can't live with

Ronald Reagan may have a better plan for freeing U.S. hostages in Iran than Jimmy Carter. The issue will loom very large in the upcoming general election. That is for sure. If the Iranians have done nothing to liberate the hostages, Reagan will be an odds-on favorite to sweep to victory, although other factors are involved. If the hostages are freed, then Carter has a chance to win. That much is conceded.

BE THAT as it may, and no matter how Iran adjusts to the economic sanctions that American and other nations are imposing upon the middle east nation, Iran's capital city, Tehran, is its own worst enemy. In short, Tehran can't live with its successes. It is a political jungle where the political rhetoric of Khomeini is nothing but religious fervor and Khomeini's religion is based on fanaticism, hate and suspicion.

Tehran has other nagging worries, though. It is the world's most polluted city. Its problem is a peculiar one. It is a city surrounded by mountains on three sides, preventing proper air circulation. The terrain on which the city is built is high above sea level and receives little benefit from air currents that sweep down from the Russian Steppes to the Caspian Sea, the Quzvin Plain and Central Iran. These currents miss Tehran and the foul air is not carried away.

Motorists say that even vehicle engines do not run properly in Tehran's city area because the lack of oxygen in the air means their carburetors function less sufficiently. Air pollution from the internal-combustion engines account for 85 percent of Tehran's air pollution.

The city currently is supposed to have more than a million cars, more than 30,000 small trucks and 60,000 lorries using the Tehran streets day in and day out. The average number of engines running in the streets at any given time, including night, is over 750,000.

The fumes these mechanical monsters emit is so intense that on most days it is not possible to see Alborz Mountain from the city.

THE DEGREE OF pollution in traffic-congested central areas, experts say, is now about 300 parts per million. By contrast, in the northern areas and in other parts where large numbers of trees are found, it averages between 30 and 40 parts per million.

Planting more and more trees in the central city might reduce the problem to some extent, but trees might not be able to survive under such conditions.

City authorities have been trying to get the police to crack down on owners of cars giving off excessive smoke, as a preliminary step against air pollution. But such action to curb the traffic would be most unpopular.

Through pollution caused by automobiles or political crusade, the Tehran people seem determined to kill themselves. Perhaps we should let them alone.

Pull out stops

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

Did someone maneuver you into having the woman your husband almost married for lunch on Wednesday?

Well, according to a newly revised book, you have to pull out all the stops for the day. "Polish the brass and silver, order flowers, scatter a few interesting magazines and a volume of Proust, complete with paper cutter, prominently on the table. Prop numerous invitations on the mantelpiece and dress the children in new clothes.

"BEFORE LUNCH, serve dry martini. Then creamed lobster soup, fried chicken à la Marengo, mervelle aux marrons (a chestnut dessert), cheese wafers and coffee.

"The implication is that, realizing she is outmatched, the ex-rival probably will decline the next invitation, if any."

If you should have an aunt at your house that just visited the dentist, you should serve a tray to her in bed. The menu consists of cream of chicken soup, mousse of sole, asparagus in season and orange jelly flavored with sherry.

The book is called, "The Perfect Hostess" and tells what to do in extraordinary circumstances, like having the prime minister drop in.

"I haven't read the whole book yet, but I can bet that there are certain situations they missed.

For instance, say your ex-husband from two marriages ago drops in. What would you serve him? Most probably two raw eggs tenderly dumped over his head, garnished with bacon strips and hash browns, accompanied by the oil, very hot.

Then we have the relatives category, of which there are two. Those we like and those, well, let's just say, we just don't appreciate.

Now since I don't know all of your relatives, we'll have to go by mine. Now you would think that those you like would get the big turkey dinner. WRONG! With my relatives, the turkey goes to those I'd rather not see. I feel that food should match the personalities of those you are serving. Therefore, the turkey would be garnished with tomatoes and lemons since that's probably what they are anyway.

FOR THE GREAT-AUNT and pain-in-the-neck cousin that you could easily go the rest of your life without ever seeing again, you would serve dried hamburgers, a carrot stick and a glass of water. Maybe. And if you really want to do it right, have cream of cabbage soup. Have you ever tasted cream of cabbage soup?

If you have Ronald Reagan over, serve him roast beef and peas, something he's used to from the dinner circuit. And make sure you serve everything from the right.

If Henry Kissinger comes for dinner, start him off with a good stiff drink, and then finish him off with matzohball soup and chow mein.

If Jimmy Carter should show up, serve him one dish for each thing he's done for the country. Yes, I know he'd be starving, but think of it this way. It would be cheap to feed him.

Teddy's choice

Evans, Novak,

WASHINGTON — The year's most brutal demonstration of Jimmy Carter's unpopularity has transformed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's simple desire to salvage personal and family honor into a difficult personal choice that divides his loyal supporters into passionate camps.

Before the June 3 primaries in a heart-to-heart conversation with a close family friend, Kennedy laid bare his deepest hope: to emerge from his often humiliating pursuit of Carter with restored honor. But having humiliated President Carter with five out of eight primary victories, merely withdrawing from active battle with the family banner honorably flying is not enough.

Many of his staunchest backers want him to carry that banner right into Madison Square Garden to test the miracle machine. The senator's refusal to accept telephone calls from the president Tuesday, the sharpest snub to a president since Gen. George B. McClellan turned Abraham Lincoln away from his door in 1861, signaled his own frame of mind. Kennedy finally returned Carter's call Wednesday and agreed to an Oval Office meeting on Thursday.

COOL-HEADED professionals within the Kennedy camp feel the time for fighting is finished, with fratricide, not a Kennedy victory, the likely yield in Madison Square Garden. That is the view of the highly respected Rep. Paul Simon of Illinois, one of Kennedy's most important early supporters. "If he called me to ask whether to stick it out or heal the wounds, I'd say heal the wounds," Simon told us.

To Teddy Kennedy's inside aides and advisers that is a counsel of defeat they spurn. With their emotions at fever pitch following the senator's best Tuesday all year, and Carter's cheerless "victory" party here Tuesday night, ardent Kennedyites are spoiling for more fight.

Former Gov. Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin, a top Kennedy adviser, called the senator Wednesday morning but found him asleep. His relayed message: "Stay in all the way." Many Kennedy backers around the country agreed. "The time to regroup is after the nomination has been made at the convention." Mayor Richard Fulton of Nashville told us. Don Hanni is Democratic chairman of Ohio's Mahoning County (Youngstown), where Carter's name means runaway inflation and recession-style unemployment. After his county backed Kennedy in a landslide, Hanni said he wants Kennedy "to go all the way to the floor (of the convention) and let's see what happens."

Although Carter captured Ohio by a comfortable margin, he lost blue-collar Democratic Cleveland and Toledo, as well as Youngstown to Kennedy. In Ohio as in the nation, where Democratic presidential nominees should be strongest, Jimmy Carter was weakest. That invites supporters like Don Hanni to stick with Kennedy.

But such lingering dreams are outweighed by the nightmare of party civil war for most party leaders and Democratic candidates this fall. Kennedy supporters are included in both categories.

"When this primary season ends," a top Kennedy backer in Cleveland running for local office told us last week, "the split has to end or I'll go down." That view is largely shared by at least one member of Kennedy's political high command: Joe Crangle, the veteran party leader in Buffalo.

Non-Kennedy Democrats are getting frantic in their desire for Kennedy to stop.

Case of nighttime hiccupper

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have to get up at night to void every hour, and as soon as I put my feet on the floor I get hiccups. If I get up 10 times I get hiccups 10 times. Can you tell me why? I'm sure my kidneys and bladder are nowhere near to my stomach or whatever causes hiccups. I am 81. — R.E.A.

Do you mind if I separate your two problems? I am not sure they are directly related, although there is a remote possibility.

Most urine is produced during the day. When that pattern is reversed, and when nighttime urination is as frequent as yours, something is amiss. Heart disease, kidney disease or adrenal gland disease can be associated with nighttime urination. If the quantity of urine is large, then diabetes, both the ordinary sugar diabetes and the rarer diabetes insipidus, must be considered. If the amount is small, then urinary obstruction, perhaps from enlargement of the prostate gland, is a possibility. Bladder infection, too, can cause frequent small-quantity urination episodes. So first try to find the cause of this nighttime problem.

A hiccup results from a sudden contraction of the diaphragm, the broad internal muscle separating the chest and abdominal cavities. The garden variety hiccup is caused by some irritation of the stomach, as a sudden stretching of it after too rapid eating. Now, constant and unstoppable hiccups are seen in severe kidney disease, in hiatal hernias or even at times in pneumonias. The nerve that tells the diaphragm to contract is in the neck, and pressure on that nerve from enlarged neck lymph nodes, for example, can cause hiccups. Other possibilities abound.

But back to your problem. You're right; the kidneys and bladder are not anatomically close to your diaphragm. I suppose I could get off the hook by invoking the idea of some "reflex" action involved in putting your feet on the cold floor. But this is not a prime concern. Why you have to get up so much is. That should be investigated.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have had trouble walking and have had leg problems most of my life. I have always suspected that one leg was shorter than the other. My wife says no. My doctor says no. Here it is 1980, and I still think I'm right. How do I accurately measure my legs, and if one is shorter than the other can a special shoe help? — T.S.

Your wife could take the measurements. Put the end of the tape measure on the top part of the pelvic bone. You find that just opposite the naval. Measure down to that little knob on the inside of your ankle. I suppose an easier way would be to put the end of the tape measure at your belt and measure straight down to that ankle bone on each leg. That would give you a reasonable idea of equality. But it wouldn't give you precise leg measurement per se.

Most people are left or right legged, just as they are right or left handed. That usually is no problem as the anatomy adjusts. It can be a problem, though, and if so, a lift in one shoe goes a long way toward solving it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. K — Acute brain syndrome is a term applied to many of the mental and nervous system conditions that result from alcohol abuse. One of these conditions is Wernicke's disease. In this, there is disturbance of eye movement coordination and instability in walking. These conditions occur when the person is sober. The victim may also be confused and listless, unable to concentrate on even the simplest of tasks. The B vitamin thiamine is often necessary to restore function. Your husband should improve, but he obviously needs more than medical help.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can passive smoking hurt people? — B.K.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been having emotional problems and am seeing a psychiatrist. He says I should quit relying on religion so much and learn to do things on my own more. Do you have any opinion about this? — S.V.

DEAR S.V.: I do not agree with his opinion, and I know many psychologists and psychiatrists who are Christians and who would say the opposite of what he has told you. They would say that full healing must include the spiritual dimension, and that apart from a personal relationship to Jesus Christ we will never completely be what we could be.

Having said that, I should point out that I do not know the details of your problem and would not pretend to suggest what the full answer to your situation may be. Yes, it would seem (on the basis of what you say) that you should seek out a trained Christian psychologist or psychiatrist who

People who passively inhale smoke from others' cigarettes do have changes in their lungs. You probably saw the reports in the papers. This passive smoking is not as harmful, of course, as is the direct inhalation of a heavy smoker subjects himself to. There should be a message in this for parents who smoke at home.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you please help a 17-year-old girl like me? I am so worried. I don't know what to do or who I can talk to. When I go to sleep I lay awake thinking of what I should do. Who will listen to me? My problem is bed-wetting. I was hoping that there is some kind of operation for it. Please help. It is almost an emergency. — Miss D.D.

You have my deepest concern for your problem. I can appreciate the "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Donohue's booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

understands your spiritual situation and can help you with your emotional problems. It may be that he also will tell you to begin to do things on your own if you have (for example) problems with your self-confidence. But he will also tell you to look to God for the strength to do this. He also can point you to other Christians who have had similar problems and can be of help.

I know that this is probably a difficult time for you. However, God loves you very much and will never leave you or forsake you. My prayer for you is not only that you will get well, but that this will be a time when you grow in your relationship to Christ. He wants you to commit this problem to Him and trust Him to help you. It is hard to trust God, I know, when things are not the way we wish they were. But that is when trust grows most. The Bible says, "We also rejoice in our sufferings, because we know that suffering produces perseverance, character; and character, hope" (Romans 5:3-4).

Documentation

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Justice Department officials may have tampered with the FBI's ABCAM investigation by ordering undercover agents not to pursue promising leads against seven members of Congress.

The favored seven have been identified as House Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Mass., House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Reps. James Florio, D-N.J., William Hughes, D-N.J., James Howard, D-N.J., and Jim Mattox, D-Texas.

This charge will be documented in a forthcoming book by Bob Greene, Newsday's veteran investigative reporter. The confidential outline indicates that the book will be based heavily on evidence from Mel Weinberg, the government's star witness in the ABCAM caper.

WASHINGTON is a mecca for unsavory financial transactions which are often consummated in cash, with no records lying around to cause later embarrassment. But eight members of Congress were implicated in the ABCAM scandal, most of them caught on videotape pocketing greenbacks passed out by undercover FBI operatives posing as bagmen for an Arab oil sheik.

Seven others were mentioned as legislators whose influence could be purchased with the right amount of muzzins. Now it will never be known whether they would have accepted bribes, because the investigations were quietly cut off. In all seven cases, the only incriminating conversations were with the middlemen who boasted of congressional connections they may have exaggerated.

It reported on May 6 that the ABCAM investigation had been erratic in pursuing leads. "Some leads were pursued; others were not," I wrote. I revealed that a middleman had promised to produce Speaker O'Neill and that the FBI undercover men had expressed great interest. But then nothing happened. I also noted that Justice Department officials had expressed no interest in pursuing a lead involving North Carolina's Lt. Gov. James Green, who is active in President Carter's re-election campaign.

Greene's book outline goes further. Citing evidence from Weinberg and other sources, Greene declares: "Weinberg and the agents who worked with him were frustrated and bewildered at a series of orders from the Justice Department in Washington which prevented them from pursuing what they regarded as promising leads."

THE OUTLINE names the seven legislators and points out significantly: "The intermediaries who offered these congressmen had already successfully delivered other congressmen into the federal net."

The document doesn't identify who issued the orders scotching the pursuit of the seven members of Congress. But the ABCAM investigation was closely supervised in Washington by Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and Philip Heymann, head of the Justice Department's criminal division.

Footnote: A spokesman said that the Justice Department "did not give any instructions to cease pursuing any promising cases." But my associate Gary Cohn and West Coast correspondent Michael Viner contended from competent sources that the FBI agents were definitely instructed not to pursue the seven members of Congress. The language used to halt an investigation was: "We don't think it would be profitable to pursue that case."

PENTAGON PIPELINE: A secret Army study, titled "Army Concerns, Impacts and Costs," warns that construction delays, equipment shortages, lack of funding and other constraints jeopardize U.S. readiness overseas. In closed-door meetings with congressional leaders, administration officials have advocated substantial budget cuts for every major agency except one: the Defense Department. Yet all the fat that the armed forces have accumulated actually hinders their military efficiency... President Carter has asked the Commerce Department to pick up some of the Pentagon's sea lift costs.

At the same time, the president's budget experts have been trimming and tightening the department's budget. This has led Commerce Secretary Philip Klutznick to ask the budget office discreetly about "a possible supplemental appropriation... in light of the defense issue the president has asked me to address."

SLOW LEARNER: Even after nine months on the job, Energy Secretary Charles Duncan continues to make flubs that have members of Congress shaking their heads.

At one recent Capitol Hill hearing, for example, he referred to Doris Dewton, assistant administrator of the Energy Regulatory Administration, as "Mr. Dewton."

Duncan committed a more serious gaffe at an appearance before the House trade subcommittee. Asked to explain an important technical point in the proposed oil-import fee, Duncan confessed that he did not fully understand it.

"I am a layman," he explained airily. "I am not a lawyer."

At this, Rep. James Shannon, D-Mass., reminded Duncan with some asperity, "You are the secretary of energy."

Cuban agitators await quiz in El Paso

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Mon., June 9, 1980 5-A

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Sixty Cuban refugees banished from an Arkansas processing center awaited hearings here today to decide whether they will be deported.

Dozens of officers worked overtime to prevent the refugees from repeating the riots that put their fate in question.

A U.S. Border Patrol spokesman said late Sunday that the refugees spent a quiet first day at the patrol's minimum-security detention center. The group flew in Sunday from Fort Smith, Ark., and boarded buses for the short trip to the center.

About 30 federal officers met the refugees at the airport, and formed a double ring around them as they descended from the boarding ramp two-by-two. A squad of 30 armed guards, 23 of them border patrolmen from the El Paso office, had accompanied the Cubans from Arkansas.

The refugees, ranging in age from 20 to 35, are considered agitators by federal authorities, and immigration judges will decide whether they must be deported.

They were taken from the government processing center at Fort Chaffee, Ark., after June 1 riots in which 100 refugees were arrested, four buildings were burned, five persons were shot and 37 others were injured. In addition, 19 state troopers were treated for injuries suffered during the outbreak.

The disturbances began the last week in May when about 300 Cuban refugees — reportedly frustrated at delays in processing — tried to escape from the camp.

El Paso INS official Robert Lally said refugees believed to be "hardened criminals" and those known to have been "heavily involved" in the riots had been screened out and were not brought here.

Military security since has been beefed up, on orders from President Carter. Immigration authorities at Fort Chaffee said they identified the instigators of the trouble and have segregated them from other 15,000 camp residents, who fled Cuba hoping to make the United States their home.

Lally said he planned to borrow officers from the Border Patrol, as well as put some of his own personnel on overtime, to guard the refugees during their stay. He said he did not know how long the exclusion hearings will take.

"We'll take all the (security) steps we can. How much security we'll actually need we don't know," Lally said.

The 60 Cubans will be separated from the other aliens at the detention center while they await exclusion hearings before three El Paso-based INS immigration judges.

Lally said exclusion hearings are used for aliens trying to enter the United States, as opposed to deportation hearings which apply to aliens already in this country.

MRS. RICHARD BRENT CLIFTON

Couple united in San Antonio

Ann Sandlin and Richard Brent Clifton were wed in a Saturday evening candlelight ceremony May 31 in the Sunset Ridge Church of Christ, San Antonio.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar flanked by two 14 branch candelabras decorated with leather fern and snoflake chrysanthemums as the tower bells rang out the 8 p.m. hour. Roy Frank Osborne, minister, officiated. Arranged over the baptismal was a spray of calla lilies, snoflake chrysanthemums, white roses, carnations and Australian eucalyptus. Flanking the baptismal were two tall brass standards holding Boston fern. Pews were marked with candles decorated with pittosporum and snoflake chrysanthemums.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ocie DeWitt Sandlin, San Antonio. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Max Coffee, 2808 Cactus, are the parents of the groom.

The bride chose to wear a candlelight gown designed by Piccioni fashioned with an empire bodice with rounded neckline of Alencon lace over French point de'esprit net, hand embroidered with seed pearls with long sleeves ending in two rows of crystal pleated organza. The skirt flowed into a bell shape over the underskirt of crystal pleated organza with the back gathered at the waist sweeping into a chapel length train of candlelight ivory satin. The candlelight cathedral length veil fell from a pearl encrusted Juliet cap of English net bordered with Alencon lace hand embroidered with seed pearls. Finishing her attire was a white sapphire lavial on a gold chain with a dropped pearl which belonged to the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Eva Nail and his mother. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of three cattleya orchids surrounded by Stephanotis.

The processional and recessional music was played by Isabel Castillo, San Antonio, on the organ. The Sunset Ridge Chorus directed by Jack Carrington provided the vocal selections a cappella.

Florence Elaine Harrison, San Antonio, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Unger, Houston, Doris Astoria, San Antonio, Cathy Marie McDonald, Zionsville, Ind. and Susan Janice Truxal, cousin of the groom, Dallas.

James S. Hopson, Dallas, served as best man. Groomsmen were Randal Wayne and Mark Everett Truxal, cousins of the groom from Abilene, J. Lynn Kitchens, Abilene, and William Fisher Leighton, San Antonio. Anton Pierre Spaeth, Corpus Christi and Richard Kevin Rumly, San Antonio, seated the guests.

A reception honoring the couple immediately followed the wedding in the La Hacienda Room at Los Patios, San Antonio. The bride's table featured a four tier white wedding cake decorated with candlelight ivory colored flowers and topped with three cattleya orchids on a white lace table cover. Crystal and silver appointments were used. The groom's table, covered with a white linen cloth, featured a spice cake with beige icing enhanced with purple grapes and green leaves. Crystal and brass appointments were used.

Members of the houseparty were Yolanda Delgado, Mrs. William Van Dyk, Ms. Janie Denton, Mrs. Rocky Boggs, sister of the groom from Abilene, Mrs. Gerald Swindler and Ms. Joyce Johnson.

The bride is a graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School, San Antonio where she attended Trinity University and was a member of the Chi Beta Epsilon social club.

Graduating from the University of Texas with a psychology BA, she was a member of the UT Longhorn Singers. Mrs. Clifton is a supervisor of sales operations at the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in Dallas.

The groom is a Big Spring High School graduate who attended Howard College. Clifton attended Lubbock Christian College and graduated magna cum laude from Abilene Christian University with a BBA in accounting. Licensed as a certified public accountant in 1978, he is currently enrolled in Southern Methodist University School of Law in Dallas.

The Cliftons are at home in Dallas.

JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent

Now you can read "energy labels" on appliances — and feel like a whiz! They tell you how much your annual "energy cost" will be to run the appliance. It's budget-wise to do this, since you can save much money — depending on your choice of appliances.

Here's why: If you choose an energy-efficient appliance that will save you lots of energy dollars through the years, even though it costs more to buy than standard models, your savings may be great. Remember that the price tag on an appliance isn't the total price. One needs to consider the operating costs, too. How to decide is the part that confuses many of us — but now there's an easy way, AND even a "super-easy" way.

First, look for the yellow-and-black "Energy Guide" labels on new models of appliances. Older models will not have the tags. They're on seven types of major household appliances — refrigerators, freezers, dishwashers, clothes washers, water heaters, room air conditioners and furnaces.

Here's the "super-easy" way to decide which appliance is more energy-efficient: Read the big number of the yellow-and-black labels — see which is lower, and take that model home with you, providing it meets your needs otherwise, of course.

But what if the energy-efficient appliance will cost you more to buy initially? Does the higher purchase price offset the energy savings? This is a common question, since many energy-efficient appliances do cost more to buy due to insulation differences or more efficient motor parts.

Often, the lower energy cost of the more efficient model will offset the higher purchase price over the appliance's lifetime. There's an easy way to figure all this out, so you'll know for sure. Request the Energy Guide worksheet from the County Extension Office to guide you along, fill out the top half, then do your figuring on the bottom half.

Basically, here's what you'll be doing: First, calculate the difference in purchase price between the two models in question by subtracting the cost of the standard model (it's the one with the higher annual energy cost — and it has a lower EER, or energy-efficiency rating) from the cost of the more energy-efficient model.

Next, determine the annual energy cost of the two models — since the big number on the yellow-and-black label is an "average" cost based on an "average" utility rate. To find your own actual energy cost, you'll need to know what your local utility companies charge you for electricity or gas. Call your utility companies and ask what they charge for a kilowatt hour of electricity — and a therm of gas. Then use the chart at the bottom of the yellow-and-black tag to determine the average annual energy cost of the standard model versus the energy-efficient one.

At last, you're ready to figure out the total amount of money you'll save with the more energy-efficient appliance over the long run.

Two simple steps will give you that figure.

1) Multiply the annual energy-cost savings by the number of years you expect to keep the appliance.

2) Subtract the difference in purchase price from the result.

TWEEN 12 and 20

The world needs southpaws, too

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm left-handed in a right-handed world. My baby brother is 2 and it appears that he is going to be left-handed also. I'm teaching him to be right-handed so that he won't have to go through all the misery that I went through. Even as I write this letter at school, I'm having trouble because the desk I'm using was made for right-handers.

My mother thinks that I should not tamper with my brother's development but I feel I should work with him to make sure that he is right-handed. What is your opinion? My mother asked me to write to you. — Doris, Odessa, Texas

Doris: I wouldn't advise changing your brother to a right-hander. Let nature take its course. Did you ever stop to think that in some cases it is a definite advantage to be a "southpaw"? Did you ever hear of Babe Ruth or Sandy Koufax?

Dr. Wallace: I am a high school dropout and have a full-time job washing dishes at a swanky restaurant. I have a good brain and my parents are putting pressure on me to return to school to get my diploma.

I told them that it didn't take a diploma to be successful and that in five years I would own this restaurant. I know there are many who made it without a diploma, but if you could give me the names of a few I'd really appreciate it. It might get my parents off my back. — Rick, San Francisco, Calif.

Rick: Mark Twain, Thomas Edison, John Philip Sousa and Andrew Carnegie are a few high school dropouts who "made it" big, but the list of those who "made it" and had a diploma is overwhelmingly greater.

I'd advise you to get that diploma. Check with your high school counselor. It may be possible to continue working part-time and finish your high school work at the same time.

Dr. Wallace: I feel sorry for handicapped people and I would like to do something for them. Whenever I see someone who is handicapped, I just want to rush up to them and offer to help, but I feel I will embarrass them.

It just tears me up when I see a handicapped person struggling, and so one offers a helping hand. What can I do to help? — Beth, Seymour, Ind.

Beth: You can help and your help is wanted and needed. Contact community hospitals and offer your services. Many teens are needed to assist in the children's and geriatric wards.

The handicapped do not need sympathy or someone to feel sorry for them. What they need at times is just a little boost.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20 in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 23-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. J. L. Avery speaks on women in U.S. economy

Johnnie Lou Avery spoke to the Altrusa Club the evening of June 5 on the role of enterprising women have had from the beginning of this nation to the present time, in economic development.

Citing individual women, she showed how the work of women has always been essential to the economy and has been an important influence in the development of the economy in every level of our history. This was shown by interesting vignettes of women who have stepped outside the assigned limits to work in business or professions, or to shape economic affairs in nontraditional ways.

Mrs. Avery said, "We have been taught only half the economic history of the United States, because the history books depict the prosperity of America as being strictly man made while in reality, enterprising women have always been part of the American scene."

Stories were told of Mary Goddard, newspaper publisher, who printed the signed copies of the Declaration of Independence that were circulated among the colonies; Abigail Adams, wife of a President who managed a farm and invested the money to enable her husband to be a politician, a costly venture in the early American days; Sarah Todd Astor, whose business sense and investments in real estate made her husband one of the wealthiest men in America; Catherine Beecher who saw the need to encourage women to go into the teaching field and made it a standardized profession; Margaret LaForge, niece of the owner of Macy's, who made that into the foremost retail establishment in the world by training personnel in the psychology of buying, displaying, and appealing to the interests of women consumers; Margaret Haughey who went from a servant to a millionaire by selling milk and bread door-to-door and then used her wealth to build orphanages and hospitals; Hetty Green, known as the witch of Wall Street, who was criticized for becoming a millionaire manipulating the stock market exactly as Joseph Kennedy did; Clara Barton, who organized the Red Cross; the Everleigh sisters who opened "high class" brothels in Omaha and Chicago that catered to an international "trade"; Sylvia Porter, financial wizard and advisor on today's financial scene and Katherine Graham, owner and publisher of one of the largest, most influential newspapers in the world.

Mrs. Avery concluded that women have been a consistent force in American economic history, but histories have ignored them because they are not usually mechanical inventors whose accomplishments can be credited to single individuals. Women seldom invent the sort of thing that can be drawn, described, and filed in a patent office. Therefore the achievements of women have been defined in other than economic terms whenever possible.

Children View Childbirth? Report Says They're Bored

DEAR ABBY: As the director of Emergency Nursing Services at St. Joseph Hospital in Orange, Calif., I have seen it all, so if you aren't already sick to death of the controversy over whether children should be present in the delivery room when Mama gives birth, I submit the results of such an experiment:

"A team of doctors observed the behavior of 28 girls and 12 boys who witnessed delivery in an alternative birth center. The children ranged in age from 3 to 14; 18 children were aged 4 to 6 years, and 10 were aged 7 to 9. All youngsters were prepared in advance through books, films and childbirth education classes. Children were accompanied by a support person (other than the parents) who answered questions and provided comfort if needed.

"Two children slept through the entire process, and two others slept during their mother's labor but awakened for the delivery. During the early labor, three children played with the support person, eight watched from a distance and 25 interacted with the mother, asking questions and timing contractions.

"In the late stages of labor, eight children wandered in and out of the delivery room and three were asked to leave because they were distracting the mother, who appeared to be overly upset by their behavior.

"Of the 33 children who were in the room during delivery of the infant, 29 watched, whereas the other four showed no interest whatsoever.

"Only five children watched the delivery of the placenta. The other youngsters were preoccupied with the infant, who usually was near the mother's breast.

"Children were more conscious of the sounds and sights of labor and delivery, although most were not upset by the mother's cries. Despite curiosity about the birth process, youngsters appeared bored during labor.

"Their excitement after birth was short, and they usually resumed their normal routine as soon as the baby was born.

"The observers concluded that childbirth is an adult event and the presence of children meets the parents' rather than the siblings' needs and wishes."

KATE REEVES, R.N.

DEAR ABBY: I see so many letters in your column from women who are in love with married men and are waiting for them to get a divorce. Take it from a woman who wasted nine years on a married man. No matter how much he loves you and how little feeling he has for his wife, one thing will always hold them together: money!

My married lover begged me to be patient until he could work it out so we could marry. Of course, he was never able to work it out.

Married men will still because their children "need" them, or because their wives are "emotionally unstable" or "physically ill." But if they told the truth, they would admit that they stay married because divorce is too expensive.

Abby, why do these men lie through their teeth? NINE YEARS WASTED

DEAR WASTED: Not all men lie through their teeth. Some pay through the nose.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

OPEC can't agree on oil price

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The divided Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries begins formal talks today on a price compromise that would substantially raise the world's oil bill and increase U.S. gasoline and heating oil costs more than 7 cents a gallon.

But conference sources said Saudi Arabia, OPEC's leading "dove" which opposes the compromise, probably would reject the proposed deal in hopes that supply and demand forces on world oil markets will force "hawks" to accept lower prices later this year. Iraqi Oil Minister Tayeb Abdel-Karim said Sunday he will propose a compromise price of $32 a barrel. This means hawks would have to drop their prices $3, middle-of-the-roads raise theirs $2, and the Saudis increase theirs $4.

If the OPEC militants accepted the price cuts of $3 a barrel from their current prices of up to $38.21, the compromise would raise the average OPEC price by almost 5 percent.

Under this formula, the deal would add about 7.5 cents a gallon to U.S.

gasoline and heating oil prices, according to industry analysts. It would boost OPEC's oil income by about $15 billion a year from $315 billion.

The compromise's overall effect would be an average price increase because countries raising prices produce a larger volume of oil than countries lowering them.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer with 9.5 million barrels a day of output or one-third of the OPEC total, would raise its price from $28 to $32. The United Arab Emirates and other middle-of-the-road members would raise their prices by $2 a barrel. This group includes Iraq and Kuwait. The "hawks" which would have to lower prices to achieve unity are Iran, Algeria, Nigeria and Libya.

The Saudi oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, who has said he opposes the compromise, bargained informally with price militants on the eve of the conference opening in this North African capital, delegates said.

The Saudis feel it might be best to reject the compromise on grounds that excess supplies of oil on world markets could force hawks to lower their prices and result in an agreement at a lower price level later this year, conference sources said.

Yamani recently predicted that oil prices will "collapse" by the fall because of reduced demand caused in part by the U.S. recession, which has cut into economic activity and therefore the need for oil.

Iran has already had trouble selling its oil, which is priced $7 a barrel higher than Saudi crude although the quality is virtually identical.

The proposed compromise would reunify OPEC oil prices because similar crudes would have similar prices.

Some OPEC militants added surcharges on top of previously fixed prices to create the current disarray inside OPEC. The meeting here will be the group's fourth effort since March of last year to put its prices back in line.

In Caracas, Venezuela, last December, OPEC left each country free to set its own prices.

Vampire bats stick to blood

Much-maligned bats face destruction of caves

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic
News Service

WASHINGTON — Merlin Tuttle doesn't like the expression "blind as a bat." Bats, he points out, aren't blind.

He winces when somebody calls bats verminous and filthy. Their parasites, according to Tuttle, are no worse than those of dogs and cats. And those chilling stories about bats attacking people and getting caught in their hair really bother him.

"I've worked with 150 species for 20 years in a dozen countries and I've never been attacked by a bat, nor have the other bat researchers I know," said Tuttle, who now is studying the fringe-lipped bat in Panama on a grant from the National Geographic Society.

Less than 1 percent of all bats are thought to have rabies. Fewer than 10 people in this country have died of rabies caused by bats in the 34 years since record keeping began. People are rarely bitten, Tuttle said, except when they handle a sick bat found on the ground. Tuttle, curator of mammals at the Milwaukee Public Museum, sometimes gets dozens of calls in a single week from panicky citizens on a bat "hotline" he operates. If, for example, bats have settled behind the caller's chimney, Tuttle might advise that the animals be left alone. They probably aren't doing any harm, he says.

Contrary to what many of his callers might think, bats are not birds. They are the only true flying mammals. There are about 900 kinds of bats in the world, representing one-fifth of all species, but despite their numbers they are little understood.

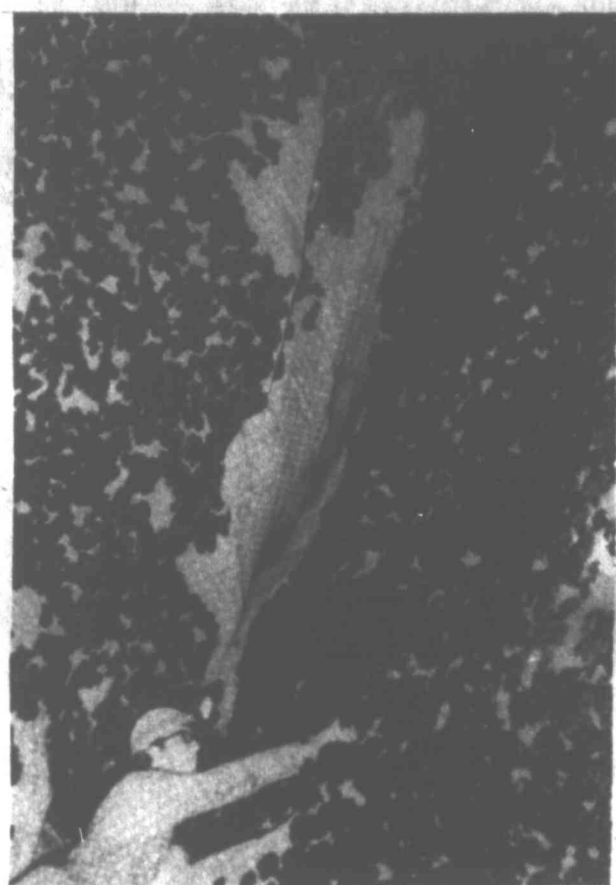

"They're nocturnal, somewhat secretive, often seen only as silhouettes, and they come out of eerie places like caves," he pointed out.

Turned into monsters by myths, bats have lived in the shadow of Count Dracula and the like. But bats often are gentle, docile creatures, Tuttle reports, and some can readily be trained. And bats help control insects. One insect-eating bat, for instance, can gobble up 1,000 bugs in an hour.

Some bats spend their lives in caves, while others use caves only for hibernation. This dependence now threatens their existence. Use and destruction of caves by explorers, souvenir hunters, developers, and others has meant huge declines in some U.S. bats in recent years.

Four bats — the gray, Indiana, Virginia big-eared, and Ozark big-eared — have been placed on the U.S. endangered species list. Wildlife officials believe, for instance, there might be only 200 Ozark big-eared bats left, half of them clustered in one cave. Such gatherings are common among bats.

"In some caves there are a million or more bats, and if something blocks the entrance, that could be it for the whole million."

Some have harems

Frogs and figs all part of bat expert's night

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic
News Service

WASHINGTON — A career as a bat researcher has its drawbacks. For one, it's mostly night work.

But three scientists studying bats on grants from the National Geographic Society have found that, like most other animals, bats have plenty of secrets waiting to be uncovered.

The fringe-lipped bat of Barro Colorado Island, Panama, mainly eats frogs, according to the man who has spent many hours in the jungle watching them — Dr. Merlin Tuttle of the Milwaukee Public Museum.

These bats are so adept at choosing their meal that they can sort the poisonous ones by listening to their mating calls.

But the frogs aren't so dumb either. Looking up at the night sky, they spot silhouettes of predator bats cruising over the pond. As the bats come close, the frogs halt their courtship calls.

"The frogs are all calling at once, and the moment a bat glides over, the frogs all shut up and the jungle is suddenly quiet," Tuttle explained.

But the bats have caught on to this, and often glide low over the water to hide from the frogs' view. Sometimes they also "turn off" their sonar so that they don't give off any telltale ultrasonic frequencies.

The greater fishing bat of Trinidad presumably wouldn't touch a frog. It prefers fish, and it catches them by emitting sounds and waiting for them to bounce back from fish that have broken the water surface.

Dr. Patricia Brown of the University of California at Los Angeles, who is studying the bats use not one but two types of sound pulses.

While fishing, for example, the bats might start out using FM (frequency-modulated) sonar and then switch to a constant frequency, later returning to the first type.

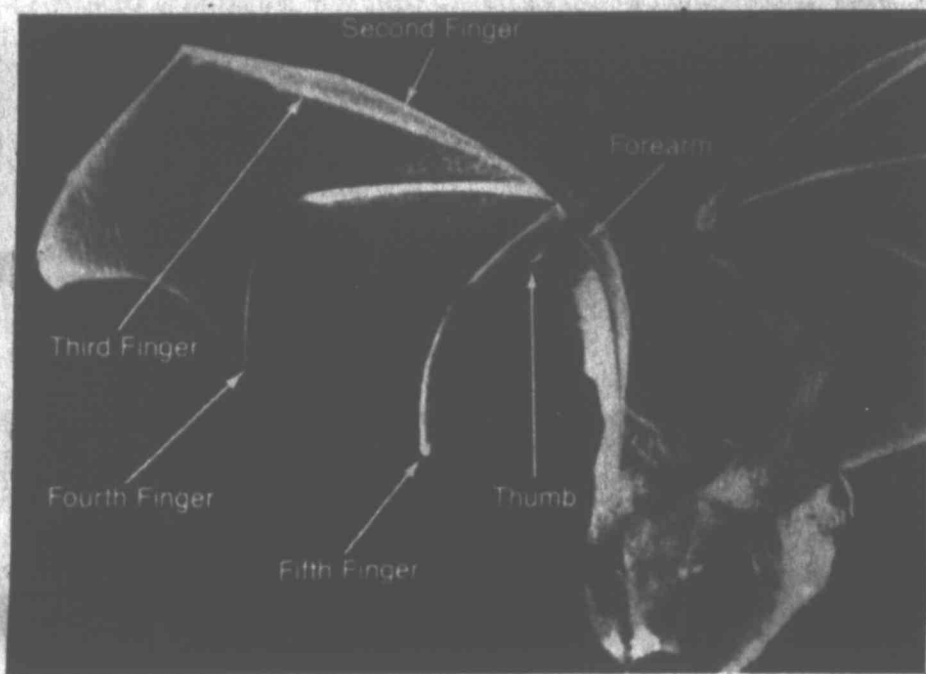

She theorizes that the bats switch around to get as much information as possible about their prey.

The bats Dr. Douglas Morrison follows around in Panama choose a more stationary target for dinner — figs. They are Jamaican fruit bats, and they have big brown eyes, and they have a protruding nose that, according to the researcher, gives them the look of a gnome.

Morrison, an assistant professor at Rutgers University, found that some male fruit bats maintain harems by vigorously defending tree hollows used as day roosts by females.

To track the bats, Morrison attached tiny radio transmitters to the fur on their backs between the shoulder blades. To see them in the dark, he flooded the bats' area with infrared light, invisible to the naked eye, and watched through a special viewing scope.

"The harem males spend the whole night chasing off other bats," he reported. "So the harem males have four to 15 mates, while other less aggressive males might end

BATS — hundreds of them — hang on the walls of a cave in northern Alabama. Two-thirds of the country's known gray bat population uses the cave for hibernation. Bats are of the order Chiroptera, which means "hand wing." The bones in their wings, shown in the hairy fruit-eating bat above, are the same as those in the human arm and hand, but the bat's hand expands to form its highly maneuverable wing. Insectivorous bats can use their wings to scoop insects out of the air. Other bats don't eat insects at all. The one above prefers figs.

Taxpayer's agreement reached in Corpus

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The feuding City Council and the Corpus Christi Taxpayers Association have decided to call a truce.

Both groups announced Sunday night they have unanimously decided to end a battle over a tax-reducing proposition that voters passed in April.

Under a nine-point resolution approved by both groups, the council will drop its May 22 lawsuit pending against the taxpayers' group and the taxpayers will end a drive to recall council members.

Councilman Jack Best also said he would drop a $17 million libel and slander suit against the association.

Association leader Tom Hunt Sr. said the group already had collected between 12,000 and 15,000 signatures on recall petitions.

At the press conference, Mayor Luther Jones and Hunt each read half the resolution.

"I called for council members to consider discounts for early payment of taxes and creation of industrial districts as alternatives to higher property taxation."

Rig fire hurts five

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Marathon Oil Co. officials returned to an offshore natural gas well today in an effort to determine the cause of a fire that injured five persons.

"We still do not know the cause... We'll try to put it all back together and see what caused it," Marathon spokesman Olaf Westgaard said late Sunday.

The gas fire, first reported to be a blowout of pressure in the well pipe, burned for more than six hours Sunday before it was extinguished at 5:30 p.m. CDT, Westgaard said.

Three crew members remained in good condition at Lake Charles, La., Memorial Hospital, and two others were released Sunday, he said.

Marathon employees John Robin, 45, of Parks, La., and Sidney Stuart, 55, of Carthage, Texas, suffered compressed vertebrae and neck muscle spasms, respectively. Contract employee Lewis Underwood, 32, of Iowa, La., was hospitalized for smoke inhalation.

Employees David Haiko, 27, Ville Platte, La., and Roland Russe, 50, Purbis, Miss., were treated and released.

The 42 crew members aboard the rig, more than 100 miles from shore, were evacuated safely after the fire was discovered, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Jeff Huse.

"The crew successfully abandoned in their life-saving capsules," he added. "That's the way they were picked up. It all happened in about 20 minutes." He said the crew was evacuated to another Marathon-owned rig nearby.

The fire first was noticed at the area where oil and natural gas are separated, Westgaard said.

"The word I get is that the fire started at the water level and spread up the rig, then engulfed the derrick," Huse said.

Sugar Land inmate killed

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — A prison inmate was killed while working at the Texas Department of Corrections unit here over the weekend, a prison spokesman said Sunday.

"Apparently there was an accidental death... involving an inmate in a dump truck," said TDC spokesman Rick Hartley.

He identified the inmate as Albert Scott Fischer, 24, of Victoria County. He was killed Saturday night.

Hartley said no other details would be available until today.

Fischer was sentenced to five years in prison after he pleaded guilty to an aggravated assault charge in August 1978. He was accused of beating a man in a Victoria motel.

Cal Boykin Jr., due to return

Cal Boykin Jr., son of the long-time manager of the Crawford and Settles Hotels here, has been in the U.S. Embassy in Syria about a year.

He is expected to return to his home town, College Station, Tex., at any time. He was fortunate enough to get out of Iran before the U.S. hostages were taken captive there.

Cal Boykin Sr., now 77, resides in Miles, Tex., where he is supervising the remodeling of the family home. The father divides his time between Miles and Austin. He says he still travels quite a bit. Mr. Boykin will observe his 77th birthday Aug. 4.

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — Now the man — or woman — who has everything can buy a place to put it.

For only $68,000, you could be the proud owner of your own island.

The half-acre treasure chest sits in the middle of Lake Parsippany, in exotic northern New Jersey, and the seller says it's a bargain.

Real estate broker Albert Harbula describes the property as "just a vacant island waiting for a house."

Harbula's firm is selling the island for its unnamed owner, who bought it several years ago, intending to build a house there.

The seller had plans drawn up for a house on the island, but abandoned the idea "for personal reasons," Harbula said.

Golden medal in skill toss

MOSCOW, Tenn. (AP) — Giving her cotton-chopping arm credit for winning the skillet toss, Dorothy Wade has collected a pewter medal and a new frying pan at the 1980 Summer Games — Tennessee style.

The weekend games, which ended Sunday, were organized by this rural West Tennessee community after President Carter called for a boycott of the real Olympics to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The organizers also included a 10-kilometer run, named for Carter, a three-mile bicycle race, a canoe race, horseshoe pitching and tobacco spitting.

"It's my cotton chopping arm," the 41-year-old grandmother said after heaving a No. 5 black, cast iron skillet 71 feet, 11 1/2 inches to win both the overall and senior division skillet toss.

Ryan finding his stuff

HOUSTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan, Houston's multi-million dollar strikeout artist, has some bad news for National League hitters.

"I had good stuff tonight and I'm pitching better now than I was earlier this season," Ryan said. "My fastball is moving real well and I'm getting my breaking pitches over now."

Ryan struck out 10 batters, but was not the pitcher of record as Houston rallied for a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants Sunday night.

The Giants came up with a ninth-inning run on a triple by Johnnie LeMaster and a single by Jim Wohlford to tie the score against winning pitcher Joe Sambito, 2-0. The Astros came back with an unearned run in the bottom of the inning to extend their winning streak to five games.

Art Howe started the rally with a single off losing pitcher Greg Minton, 2-3. Luis Pujols sacrificed pinch-runner Julio Gonzalez preceding an intentional walk to Bruce Bochy.

Gonzalez came home from second with the winning run when San Francisco second baseman Rennie Stennett fielded Rafael Landestoy's grounder and threw wildly to second base in an attempt to force Bochy.

Ryan allowed only three hits over the first seven innings, but was removed after surrendering a two-run home run to Jack Clark with two outs in the eighth inning.

The Giants scored a second-inning run on LeMaster's RBI single, but Houston came back in the bottom of the inning to tie the score against San Francisco starter Vida Blue on a triple by Enos Cabell and Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly.

Houston added a pair of fourth-inning runs on a triple by Jose Cruz, Cesar Cedeno's sacrifice fly, and Pujols' run-scoring infield single.

Cedeno's run-producing single in the fifth accounted for Houston's other run. "He (Ryan) has pitched well lately," said Houston manager Bill Virdon.

"He is throwing his breaking ball for strikes now and slaying ahead of the hitters most of the time. That's something he wasn't doing earlier in the season."

Ryan said he started off well against the Giants, but grew tired in the late innings.

"I wasn't as sharp at the end because I had thrown a lot of pitches," Ryan said. "I made one bad pitch that put them back in the game. Otherwise, I felt I had a good outing."

The victory kept the Astros one game behind first place Los Angeles in the NL West.

SAFE DIVE FOR THIRD — Astro Cesar Cedeno (28) dives into third base as Giant shortstop Johnnie LeMaster covers third. Cedeno had singled to right center field sending Rafael Landestoy home. Cedeno went to third on the throw home, in the fifth inning. The Houston Astros went on to win the Sunday night contest 5-4 in the Houston Astrodome.

Choices tough in NBA draft

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most intriguing drafts in recent years will unfold Tuesday when the 23 National Basketball Association teams dip into the college ranks for reinforcements.

"There are questions about all these guys — not whether they'll make it, but how big," says Marty Blake, the former general manager who now runs a scouting service for the NBA and is as familiar as anyone with the college crop.

"There is one superstar, Darrell Griffith," said Blake, referring to the 6-foot-4 guard who led Louisville to the NCAA title. "You can't go wrong picking him. But after that there are questions."

Those questions are what make this draft so interesting. Last year it was clear to all that players like Earvin "Magic" Johnson, David Greenwood, Bill Cartwright and Calvin Natt would make it big in the pros, but there's far more uncertainty this time around. So many players are rated so evenly, it's tough to choose between them.

Teams can swing deals to try and improve their position in the draft up until today's 8 p.m. EDT trading deadline. But Blake says the parity among the players available makes a difference of a couple of turns in the selection process relatively unimportant.

While Griffith may be the cream of the crop, he may not be the first player picked. Boston owns the No. 1 choice, having obtained it from Detroit as part of the M.L. Carr-Bob McAdoo deal, and the Celtics' top priority is a center to break in behind Dave Cowens, who will be 32 in October. The Celtics figure they may not get another center like this to draft a center and are leery of using the top pick on a smaller player.

They tried to persuade Ralph Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 freshman, to turn pro but he decided to stay in school. So now they are considering Joe Barry Carroll, Purdue's 7-footer who is rated the top pivot-man eligible for the draft. Another possibility is Kevin McHale, Minnesota's 6-11 center who is considered better suited to power forward by most scouts.

Griffith is the best of the guards available. Other top backcourt prospects include Ronnie Lester of Iowa (despite a knee injury), Kelvin Raney of Ohio State, Andrew Toney of Southwestern Louisiana, John Duren of Georgetown, Sam Worthen of Marquette and Larry Drew of Missouri.

Carroll is the best of a weak group of centers that also includes Mike Gminski of Duke, Roosevelt Bouie of Syracuse and Jawann Oldham of Seattle. The top forwards available include McHale, James Ray of Jacksonville, Mike O'Koren of North Carolina, Michael Brooks of LaSalle, Kiki Vandeweghe of UCLA, Reggie Johnson of Tennessee, Larry Smith of Alcorn State and Ricky Brown of Mississippi State.

16-pound shot hits man's face

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A volunteer NCAA official, hit in the face Friday by a 16-pound iron ball, was in fair and stable condition late Sunday after surgery at a hospital here.

James P. Smith, 35, was accidentally struck by a shot thrown by Texas A&M University shotputter Tim Scott during warmups before the championship event. He underwent four hours of surgery to repair a fractured frontal sinus cavity.

The event was postponed until Saturday, and Scott placed sixth with a sub-par 62-3/4 throw. His throw of 178-5 also failed to qualify in the discus.

"I really don't have any excuses... I thought I could have done better, but I placed, and a lot of people didn't even think I'd do that. I just thank the Lord the man's doing okay. God, I couldn't be happier. The Lord had his eye on us Saturday," Scott said.

Scott said he lost seven pounds after the accident and was unable to sleep Friday night until a trainer gave him muscle relaxants. Smith, an accounts examiner with the Texas Employment Commission, appeared "to lose his concentration for a second and took his eye off the athlete. It could well have been a fatal accident. He was pretty fortunate to get (only) the injuries he did get," said official Don Spencer, who was present when the accident occurred.

Smith turned around, and "the shot was right there in his face," Spencer said.

Randy Matson, NCAA discus and shot-put champion from Texas A&M in 1966 and 1967, said the shot is a particularly dangerous event for officials.

"I've seen 100 close calls, and I've been barely missed myself," he said.

Mrs. Smith said her husband "won't talk about the accident at all, not even to me. But I know that he won't blame anyone. No one really is to blame."

She said she intended to talk her husband out of officiating at future field events.

"Since he loves to run so much, maybe he'll settle for working only the races."

Super play foils Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Kansas City Royals have been putting the victories together in such convincing fashion lately that they kept the faith right until the end, knowing somehow that they'd come through against the Texas Rangers.

"We were down 3-1, but no one on the bench panicked but (Manager Jim) Frey. We were just relaxing, sitting back and waiting to take advantage of our opportunity when it came," third baseman George Brett said after KC's 5-4 victory Sunday night.

Four straight singles tied the game in the eighth inning, Brett smacked a two-run homer in the ninth to give the Royals the lead, and Frank White teamed with U.L. Washington for a superb bases-loaded double play that snuffed out what appeared to be a winning Texas rally in the ninth.

"The double play White and U.L. turned was just awesome — there's no other way to express it. In a pressure situation like that, to be able to turn it, you can't give them enough credit. I thought it was a hit," Brett said.

Bump Wills had walked with one out in the ninth, and Al Oliver's third single of the night had given the Rangers runners on first and second. Rusty Staub hit a shot to left field that scored Wills and would have scored Oliver, tying the game had it not bounced into the stands for a ground rule double, requiring Oliver to stop at third.

Dan Quisenberry, the Royals' third pitcher, walked Pat Putman intentionally to load the bases and set up a force, and Jim Norris hit a hard bouncer through the box.

"It was a situation where if it's a base hit, we lose, and if I knock it down, it's still a tie. In that kind of situation you have to go all out for it. I was just happy I got to the ball. I really didn't think we could turn it for a double play," White said.

Lunging behind second base, White made a backhanded stop, flipped to shortstop Washington on the bag, and Washington's throw to first base beat Norris by a step for the game-ending double play.

"It's the most excited I've been this year," White admitted. Frey confessed to being nervous about the outcome.

"When they got three runs in the first two innings, and as poorly as we played the first three or four innings, it didn't look good for us at all," the Royals manager said.

John Ellis hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly for Texas in the first, and Dave Chalk's wild throw on Wills' potential double play grounder with the bases loaded in the second allowed two more runs in.

Kansas City loaded the bases in the first and fourth, but Willie Aikens flied out to end the first rally, and Washington grounded into a double play to kill the second one.

Tourney ends on wet note

Despite a rain-drenched Sunday, this weekend's third annual Cotton Mize Invitational Fast-Pitch Softball Tournament was deemed the most successful ever.

MCC of Carlsbad, N.M., the only undefeated team in the tourney, was declared the overall winner. Rain halted the contest between the local Cotton's Chippers and Jacksboro Texas in the third inning after the Chippers had built a 3-0 lead.

These teams shared the second-place position.

Taking fourth was Cycle City of Hobbs, N.M., followed by Pollard Chevrolet of Big Spring. The local West-Tex Auto took 10th in the 20-team lineup.

Local All-Tournament players included, Rodney Paige, pitcher, Johnny Mize, 1-B, Kenny Fowler, 3-B, Kenny McMurtrey, S.S., all with the Chippers, and Elmer McMahan, outfield, with Pollard Chevrolet, who was also leading hitter in the tourney.

The tennis world now fixes its eyes on Wimbledon, and inevitably Borg was asked if this will be the year when he will win the French, Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and the Australian.

Was Temperence Hill 50-1 shot?

NEW YORK (AP) — "This horse, in my opinion, had no business to be a 50-1 shot, if for no other reason, than someone had the confidence to put up $20,000," said John Ed Anthony.

But the crowd of 58,000 at Belmont Park Saturday for the Belmont Stakes was less swayed by the $20,000 put up by Anthony to supplement Temperence Hill into the final race of the Triple Crown than they were by Temperence Hill's three straight losses and his opposition which included Genuine Risk, Codex and Rumbo.

The crowd also had to be aware of Temperence Hill's dismal fifth-place performance as the 3-5 favorite in the Pennsylvania Derby May 26. "He didn't get beat, he forfeited," said Anthony, a lumber manufacturer, who races as Lobolly Stable, from Fordyce, Ark., the home of Bear Bryant.

So when Temperence Hill broke from the gate with nine other 3-year-olds in the 1 1/4-mile Belmont he was 53-1. The crowd roared in anticipation of the duel between the Genuine Risk, the filly who had won the Derby, and Codex, the colt who scored a controversial win over her in the Preakness.

With a quarter of a mile remaining, Rockhill Native, the beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby, was a half-length in front of Genuine Risk... and there was Temperence Hill third only a head back. Codex, the 8-5 favorite, was fourth and fading. He finished seventh. Rumbo, the 9-5 second choice, was fifth and that's where he would finish.

As the three leaders shot past the three-sixteenths pole, Charisie Cantey left her CBS-TV commentator's position — she was stationed there to observe the horses warming up — and headed for the winner's circle. "The last 70 yards I broke running," said Charisie, who exercises horses and whose husband, Joe, just happens to train Temperence Hill. "I beat Bing (who finished ninth and remained winless in 10 races)," joked Charisie.

When she got to the winner's circle, she was joined by her husband, Anthony and his wife, Jockey Eddie Maple and Temperence Hill who got to the wire in 2:29.2-5 on a muddy track, two lengths ahead of Genuine Risk. Rockhill Native finished another 1 1/4 lengths back.

Believers in Temperence Hill, who is named after a Methodist Church in a tiny settlement five miles from Fordyce, were rewarded with a $108.80 mutual return for $2.

The duel between the filly and Codex never developed. There were no fireworks between Angel Cordero Jr., rider of Codex, and Genuine Risk's jockey, Jacinto Vasquez who claimed foul against Codex in the Preakness. The foul was disallowed, causing Mr. and Mrs. Bert Firestone, the filly's owners, to appeal to the Maryland Racing Commission. The commission upheld the stewards in a 3-1 vote last Wednesday.

Second or not, Genuine Risk remains the queen of thoroughbred racing and her place in the legends of the sport are secure. She is only the second of her sex to win a Derby and the first to race in all three Triple Crown events. In fact, none of her male rivals ran in the entire series this year.

LONG-SHOT WINS THE BIG RACE — Temperence Hill, a 53-1 long-shot, with Eddie Maple astride, pulls away from Genuine Risk, center, piloted by Jacinto

Vasquez, during Saturday's running of the Belmont Stakes at New York's Belmont Park. Rockhill Native with John Oldham in the irons came in third.

Boyer axed, Mets' spell broken

Time finally ran out on Ken Boyer and the magic finally ran out on the New York Mets.

Boyer became the first managerial casualty of the 1980 season, getting fired between the St. Louis Cardinals' 6-4 and 9-4 losses to the Montreal Expos Sunday. Whitey Herzog, fired by Kansas City after the 1979 season when he failed to guide the Royals to a fourth successive title in the American League West, takes over the reeling Cardinals tonight in Atlanta.

The Mets, trying to win back New York's hearts with the slogan, "The Magic Is Back," cast their spell over Pittsburgh for the third straight time in the opener of their doubleheader, winning 6-4 on Steve Henderson's two-run, tie-breaking single in a three-run seventh inning.

It also dropped the Pirates into second place in the National League East, one game behind the Expos. But New York's four-game winning streak came to an end in the nightcap with the Pirates winning 3-0, thanks in part to Mike Easler's third home run of the twinbill.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles shaded Atlanta 3-1, Chicago silenced Philadelphia 2-0, Cincinnati edged San Diego 1-0 and Houston defeated San Francisco 5-4.

Two-run doubles by Andre Dawson in a three-run fourth inning and Rowland Office in a three-run seventh propelled the Expos to their sweep. Homers by Gary Carter and Warren Cromartie keyed the victory in the opener. The Cardinals have lost five in a row (and 22 of 27) while Montreal has won its last six.

Mets 6-0, Pirates 4-3 Henderson, who leads the NL in batting with a .349 average to Hernandez' .343 and has a 13-game hitting streak going, drilled his game-winning single off Kent Tekulve in the seventh inning of the opener. Frank Taveras' single off loser Enrique Romo had tied it.

But the magic vanished in the nightcap. Tekulve learned with Eddie Solomon for a six-hitter and Easler, who had driven in all of the Pirates' first-game runs with two homers, hit his third to seal the triumph that gave the Bucs their split.

Dodgers 3, Braves 1 Dusty Baker drove in two runs against his former teammates, one of them with his 10th home run, in the Dodgers' victory in Atlanta.

But the turning point came after Larvell Blanks doubled. Bill Nahorodny singled him home and Mike Lum drew a walk to chase Dodgers starter Don Sutton in the seventh inning.

Rick Sutcliffe took over and immediately picked Nahorodny off second base for the third out.

Cubs 2, Phillies 0 The Cubs' Lynn McGlothen silenced Philadelphia on six hits, getting last-inning help from Bruce Sutter. Mike Tyson's double in the third inning (following McGlothen's double) and Ivan DeJesus' single in the sixth accounted for Chicago's runs off Dick Ruthven.

Reds 1, Padres 0 Rookie Charlie Liebrandt tossed a three-hitter and got the only run he needed when Dan Driessen homered off Randy Jones in the second inning of the Reds' victory over San Diego. It was Liebrandt's third complete game of the year. He retired 11 consecutive batters in one stretch.

NEW HAT FOR WHITEY — Dorrel "Whitey" Herzog, named Sunday to take over as manager of the faltering St. Louis Cardinals, wears a Cardinals baseball cap after introduction by the Cardinals chairman and president August A. Busch Jr. (over Herzog's shoulder). Ken Boyer was fired as manager between games of a double header in Montreal. Herzog's wife Mary Lou looks on as Whitey answers questions at a news conference.

Orioles take leisurely walks

The Baltimore Orioles just about walked over the California Angels Sunday.

"To be able to get people out, you have to be able to throw the ball over the plate," sighed Angels Manager Jim Fregosi after watching his pitchers give up 11 walks. "If you don't throw it over the plate, people play around the rosy and score runs."

The result of those off-target tosses helped the defending American League champions beat the Angels 13-8.

"There should not be that many walks in a major league game," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, who also saw his pitchers give up eight. "There comes a point where you have to throw your best pitch over."

The Angel pitchers walked five batters in the fifth inning and three in both the second and sixth. The wildness led to big innings for the Orioles in the fifth, when they scored six runs, and in the sixth, when they added four more.

Al Bumby drove in five runs and Kiko Garcia four for the Orioles.

In other AL action, the Boston Red Sox whipped the Oakland A's 6-1; the Cleveland Indians turned back the Chicago White Sox 7-2; the Detroit Tigers stopped the Milwaukee Brewers 9-5; the Minnesota Twins beat Toronto 5-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before the Blue Jays came back to gain a split with a 6-4, 13-inning triumph in the nightcap; the Kansas City Royals edged the Texas Rangers 5-4 and the Seattle Mariners blanked the New York Yankees 5-0.

Baltimore starter Steve Stone, who gave up two runs in the first inning and one run in the third, was replaced by Sammy Stewart, 2-5, when Larry Harlow walked to lead off the fourth and Freddie Patek doubled him home. Stewart surrendered an RBI triple to Rick Miller, but then limited the Angels to two hits the rest of the way.

Chris Knapp, 1-3, was the loser.

Red Sox 6, A's 1 Butch Hobson, whose error at third base early in the game led to Oakland's only run, broke a 1-1 tie with a three-run homer in the ninth to lead Boston over the A's.

Hobson's drive over the left field fence came after Dave Hamilton, 0-2, issued walks to Jim Rice and Dwight Evans. The Red Sox added two more runs in the ninth on an error and Fred Lynn's RBI single.

Tom Burgmeier, 3-1, was the winning pitcher in relief. Indians 7, White Sox 2 Jerry Dybzinski doubled to key a three-run second inning and drove in another run with a suicide squeeze bunt in a four-run sixth to lead John Denny and Cleveland over Chicago.

Dybzinski doubled in a run in the second after a pair of walks. Rick Manning then followed with a two-run single off Britt Burns 7-4.

Denny, 6-4, won his fourth game in a row, and fifth in his last six starts. He allowed only three hits and one run in the six innings he worked while striking out five.

Tigers 9, Brewers 5 Stan Papi's two-run single capped a five-run first and John Wockenfuss drove in two runs with a single in the eighth as Detroit beat Milwaukee.

Dan Petry, 3-3, pitched the first seven innings, allowed three of Milwaukee's eight hits and retired 13 straight batters over one stretch as the Tigers snapped the Brewers' four-game winning streak.

Jim Lentine hit his first major league homer on the game's fourth pitch to ignite the big first inning against Bill Travers, 3-3.

Mariners 5, Yankees 0 A two-run homer by Tom Paciorek ended a string of 21 scoreless innings for Seattle and triggered the Mariners over New York behind the combined six-hitter of Glenn Abbott and Shane Rawley.

Abbott, 5-2, earned his third straight victory and also helped the Mariners end a four-game losing streak. Ron Guidry, 6-2, took the

Nelson ready for Open

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Nelson, helped by a confidence-boosting seven-shot victory before a hometown crowd, figures he's ready for golf's biggest challenge — the U.S. Open.

"I feel like I play well in stretches, so I think my chances are pretty good," Nelson said of the Open after nailing down the third tournament conquest of his career Sunday with a closing 5-under par 67 for an easy victory in the $300,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"They are two different kinds of golf courses, though, and it'll be a different kind of game," Nelson said.

His $54,000 victory Sunday came on the hilly, 6,945-yard Atlanta Golf Club course and his 270 total was a whopping 18 shots under par, but well off the record 23-below-par total posted by Andy Bean a year ago.

"They say something around par might win the Open," Nelson said of the event beginning Thursday on the tough Baltusrol Golf Club course in Springfield, N.J.

Nelson, who lives in nearby Acworth, started the final round Sunday with a 2-shot edge over Bean, the big Florida blaster who never got his game untracked.

It became a cakewalk for Nelson after he put together three straight birdies. At No. 6 he chipped in from 25 feet, then followed with an eight-foot putt on the seventh and a wedge to within a foot on No. 8.

No one came close the rest of the day.

Little loosens up

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Sally Little has quit two old losing habits, scoreboard watching and self-pressure.

As a result, the tall, slender South African was toasting her first major title Sunday night. Her new loose style produced a victory in the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

"I didn't look at the scoreboard the last few holes. I've had problems with that in the past and gave it one of these," said Little, clutching her throat in a choking gesture.

"I have a new attitude — just go out and play. I had been putting too much pressure on myself. I can't do that. I couldn't draw the club back," she said.

Little beat the winds of the Nicklaus Golf Center Grizzly's course so well she was the lone player in the field under par.

Her 73-285 was three under

Farm Stanton couple honored as 4-H adult leaders

COLLEGE STATION - Three area 4-H leaders were most honored at the 1980 State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University June 4. Mrs. Bobbe Mitchell of Sanderson and Sam and Nancy Yates of Stanton were recognized as the top adult leaders in District 6 (Far West Texas) of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, 4-H's parent organization. Both parties received a plaque provided by the Texas 4-H Foundation, 4-H's state service organization.

Mrs. Mitchell has been an adult 4-H leader for four years. The homemaker is an organizational, project and activity leader serving the Terrell County Junior 4-H Club. The club's membership jumped from 15 to 50 in one year under her leadership. She leads projects in foods and nutrition and clothing as well as helping with record books and method demonstration.

Meeting slated here Thursday

The National Association of Retired Federal Employees Chapter 1095 will meet at 9:30 a.m., Thursday at the Older Adult Center in the Kentwood Addition. Lunch will be served at noon. Those attending will hear a report from Mrs. Katie Spivey on the NARFE State Convention. All retired federal employees are welcome to attend the meeting.

GI interest rate drops

Veterans Administration chief Max Cleland recently announced the largest decrease in the VA's GI home loan interest rate in history - from 13 percent to 11.5 percent, effective May 15. The rate had dropped to 13 percent April 28, from the record high 14 percent ceiling set on April 3. For a veteran buying a home with a 30-year, $50,000 GI loan, the 1.5 percent rate decrease will lower the monthly payment by about $58.00, Cleland said.

Woman gets jail term for non-support

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) - A 36-year-old divorcee has been sentenced to 90 days in jail for non-support after her ex-husband testified that if he had filed to make the payments, he'd be jailed. When Robert and Susan Barr divorced in October, Barr was awarded custody of their two children. Mrs. Barr, a machinist at a Roseville plastics factory, was ordered to pay $29 a week in support, according to Macomb County Judge Raymond Cashen.

Woman gets jail term for non-support

In early February, Barr filed a non-support claim against his former wife. But Cashen declined to jail her at that time. The judge changed his mind Wednesday, and for the first time in his six years on the bench ordered a woman jailed in such a case. "This time, I told him (Barr) that he had the responsibility of raising the children, and asked him what he would do if he were the judge," said Cashen. "He said, 'Well, if it was me up here, you'd throw me in jail.' "I said, 'I guess you're right,' and sentenced Mrs. Barr to 90 days."

The Clinton Township woman was later freed after she paid the $300 she owed in child support payments.

instrumental in developing county-wide 4-H programs. Mrs. Mitchell coordinated the 1980 Terrell County Fair and 4-H Project Show and organized the county fair board. She has worked to gain much county and community support for this new project. She is also a member of the West of the Pecos Cowbells Association and was largely responsible for this organization sponsoring awards for District 4-H beef cattle demonstration and judging events.

Mr. and Mrs. Yates have been active in 4-H as adult leaders for 14 years, serving the Ranch Hands 4-H Club in Martin County as organizational, activity and livestock project leaders as well as providing support for the entire 4-H program in the county. The couple has devoted much time and financial resources to all areas of 4-H and have provided guidance for many winners at livestock shows throughout the state.
