Seepage shakes city hall

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
To compound the headaches it already has, the Big Spring Water and Sewer Department had only a four-man field crew working Thursday, eight short of the desired number.

City Hall regularly maintains 12 on a work crew to deal with problems that arise in the city with the water distribution system. Among their responsibilities is handling "trouble calls." These matters include pipe and meter box leaks, sewer stops or any situation where water is not staying within the channels.

Thursday, the city had seven men on the payroll for this function. Of these, three were on sick leave. Of those left on the job, not one man was working who had more than two months experience.

City Manager Don Davis said three more men were hired Thursday. These new employees will begin Monday.

Turnover, Davis acknowledged, is a problem in this particular department. Assistant City Manager Bill Brown added that resignation and replacement problems started around October 1979.

Since last fall, Davis said, "We have had about a 300 percent turnover in this department." What this has meant Brown said is that maintaining a trained crew has been hampered.

The reasons for the high turnover are intertwined.

Davis commented, "It is hard to know what or why." He added that low pay, bad conditions and long hours are all factors.

The entry level wage for a water maintenance man is $572 monthly. Davis pointed out that local industries are currently hiring and contractors are seeking workers. The private sector is able to pay a higher salary, and this has induced some to leave.

Davis and Brown both admit that the recent "rush" in breaks is a possible causal factor. During May, 394 "trouble calls" were reported.

In June, the number of problems with the water distribution system went up, with 200 trouble calls being reported the first six days of the month. By June 20, the total number of problems was 506.

"This is the most (calls) we have ever had," Brown said.

Brown said in the June 22 edition of the Herald, "I have never heard the likes of it before. It has created a very chaotic condition in the water department."

The large number of calls has meant the work crew being on duty at times around the clock. Some men have put in as much as 30 hours overtime, the two administrators recalled.

The water and sewer department had formerly been using a standby rotation of three men. Each man was paid to be ready for a call during any hour. But, Davis said, "Everybody has been on call."

Brown added, "Then it is a matter of who is willing. It makes for a difficult situation."

The small crews have affected the city's capacity to respond to breaks.

"It affects your efficiency," Brown said. "It makes our response time considerably slower."

Brown said the work crews performance has been admirable in light of the situation.

"We have some terrifically hearty individuals who are trying," he said.

America: Place for dreams to materialize for two Cubans

By STEVE HERSHBERGER
FORSAN — For Eduardo and Alberto Santos-Maidique this small, oil-rich community 10 miles south of Big Spring is a place for them to realize their dreams.

Eduardo and Alberto, twins, were weightlifters in the Cuban athletic program. They came to the United States from the Castro-controlled republic about six weeks ago — during the height of the Cuban immigration wave.

They are now working for American Well Service in Forsan, earning $5.50 an hour on a 40-hour week and getting about 20 hours of overtime. With this money, they hope to bring their wives and children to the United States.

They also are intent on entering amateur weightlifting competition, with the aim of possibly competing in the 1984 Olympic Games for the United States.

An indication of their strength is that both can easily bench press 450 pounds.

"They said they could move more than that," said Tito Arencibia, a supervisor at Cosden Oil and Chemical in Big Spring, who served as a translator for the two.

The twins started body building at age nine. At age 22, they were admitted to the Cuban athletic program, which trains men and women for international competition.

"A professor saw them and said they were prospects," Arencibia said. "They looked stronger than the average."

The twins were sent to the "Farm of the Monkeys." In Cuba, the agency overseeing the sports training program divides the athletes into two groups. The first group consists of those actually competing in international events. These individuals stay in a place called "Sports City."

The other group is made up of those who have the potential to be future competitors. These athletes stay in the "Farm of the Monkeys" — far from "Sports City."

At the training center, the twins would awake at 6 a.m. each day. By 8 a.m. they were to warm up for about an hour, then lift weights for several hours.

After lunch, the two followed the same pattern, an hour for warming up followed by several hours of pumping the iron.

The two spent 10 years at the "Farm of the Monkeys." During their time there, a Cuban coach or trainer never apprised them of their progress or potential. "They never let them know about it," Arencibia said. "A Soviet coach came over and said they were good prospects. The Soviet Union man said they could make it."

But, they were not allowed to enter an international meet. The reason for this treatment, Eduardo said, was they never would express loyalty to Castro.

"They (twins) said you had to have a revolutionary background," Arencibia said.

The twins told Arencibia that Cuban officials also had a mistrust of the two, due to their being involved in "Alpha 66" in 1964.

"There was a conspiracy to overthrow Castro," Arencibia said. "They were involved in it."

At the age of 16, the twins entered in 1963 a military school to train as tank mechanics. During their time in the school, both became associated with persons on the outside plotting to overthrow the Cuban government.

The role they played in "Alpha 66" was to supply the insurgents with ammunition, weapons and grenades, which they were taking from the military.

Castro agents infiltrated the conspiracy and uncovered the persons involved. The Cuban leader executed the conspirators. Alberto was implicated and had to serve six months in solitary confinement.

During the time of the conspiracy, the twins' brother, Guillermo, successfully escaped from Cuba. Guillermo was a helicopter pilot in the Cuban Army. On a routine flight with a captain one day in 1964, Guillermo decided he was going to fly to Florida. A fight between the brother and his superior ensued, resulting in Guillermo killing the captain.

Eduardo and Alberto have not heard from him since his escape from Cuba. Since coming here, they have tried to find their brother. They have contacted the FBI, but Guillermo's whereabouts have not been discovered yet.

In the Spring of this year, the twins approached the Cuban Interior Ministry, asking if they could leave Cuba for the United States. Permission was granted.

On May 1, Alberto left on a small boat carrying eight other people. On the same day, Eduardo departed on a craft with four others. They landed in Florida the following day and were

As troops withdraw, special units sent in KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The Red Army, while pulling several thousand troops out of Afghanistan, has been sending in fresh units of specially trained anti-guerrilla fighters and new equipment to press the war against rebel forces, well-informed sources in the Afghan capital say.

"The Soviets are readjusting the composition of their forces — not reducing their troop strength," one of the sources asserted.

The Kremlin announced two weeks ago it was withdrawing a division of troops, which normally would amount to 11,000 men. But the Kabul sources said they believed the number returning home was about 5,000, including many whose skills proved useless in the guerrilla war.

Soviet air transport activity here has tripled in recent weeks, eyewitnesses said, and in one three-day period during the past week about 25-30 Soviet cargo aircraft landed at Kabul airport.

The sources, all of whom asked not to be named or identified by nationality, said the Soviets were flying in fresh troops trained in guerrilla warfare tactics in Tashkent — the closest big Soviet city to the Afghan border.

Each Soviet cargo plane is capable of carrying about 120 soldiers, but there was no firm estimate of the number of crack counter-insurgency troops that have arrived. This is because the Soviets have their own secluded airstrip adjacent to the main international airport and because many flights arrive after the airport closes.

Witnesses said, however, that during a two-day period this week they saw 20 military trucks packed with soldiers and 50 trucks filled with new equipment on the road from the airport into the city.

In New Delhi, India, an Afghan traveler just arrived from Kabul told reporters Thursday that commando-type units of Soviet soldiers have appeared in Kabul and vicinity.

drunkenness. The only traditional Islamic punishment not known to have been carried out by the current regime is the cutting off of hands and other parts of the body.

The Yugoslav news agency's report did not elaborate on what form of compensation would be demanded by the Islamic Republican Party, which holds most of the seats in the newly elected Iranian parliament. But Tanjug quoted the party's official newspaper as saying the compensation was for "U.S. interventions and dominations" in Iran.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, in an interview with the English-language daily newspaper Enghlab Eslami, was quoted as saying he had received reports United States through agents in Iran was trying to topple the revolutionary government by "sowing discord and splitting up personalities and groups against the president."

Bani-Sadr also mentions "reports about a conspiracy at airports" but did not elaborate.

The Islamic Republican Party newspaper also accused the United States of trying to rid the international scene of the deposed Shah of Iran before the Iranian Parliament has a chance to address the issue of the hostages.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi is battling cancer and serious infection at a Cairo, Egypt, hospital. Iran has demanded the shah's return as a precondition for release of the hostages.

Iran toughens on hostages; four Iranians stoned to death

Iran's majority Islamic Republican Party will demand compensation for U.S. involvement in Iran over nearly 30 years, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Tehran on Thursday.

Tehran radio reported two men and two women were stoned to death for crimes ranging from sodomy to prostitution in Kerman Province early Thursday. It was the first reported stoning execution since Islamic rule was established in Iran in February 1979.

There also have been reports of lashing convicts for such crimes as

Flames destroy vacant house

A blaze totally destroyed the old Rauls Place, located about three miles west on the Andrews Highway (SH 176), about 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

According to the Howard County Sheriff's Department, fire department crews from Big Spring, Sand Springs and Jonesboro answered the call, but were not able to save any of the structure. The building was a one story, unoccupied and unfurnished home.

Flames, one county resident called in, could be seen as far as Highway 87. No one was injured.

Cause of the flame has not been determined.

Action/reaction: Principals pact

Q. I have been told that the new principal at Big Spring High School did not have his contract renewed at New Caney where he was high school principal. Is this true?

A. Recently appointed Principal Bill McCrary was on a multi-year contract when he was hired by Big Spring Independent School District, according to District Superintendent Lynn Hise.

TODAY

The Howard County Library will not have Story Hour today only. Heritage Museum will be closed Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Independence Day celebration will take place under the auspices of the All Veterans Planning Council at the Veterans Memorial Monument located at the Howard County Courthouse, 9 a.m.

11th annual Highland South Fourth of July parade, starting at the east end of Highland Drive and ending at Goliad Street, 10 a.m. Bikes, trikes, motor-power vehicles and people in unusual costumes encouraged to take part. At the finish, a speaker will address the crowd and refreshments will be available.

The Senior Dance will be from 8 to 11 p.m. at the Senior Center in the Big Spring Industrial Park, site of the old Officer's Club. People over 60 years of age will be admitted for $1 cover charge. There will be a live band.

The Howard County Library will be closed in observance of the Fourth of July Holiday. Fifth annual Evening Lions Club Fast-Pitch Softball Tournament gets under way at Johnny Stone Park with two games at 8 p.m. Dozen Texas teams are entered. Public welcome. No admissions charge.

SATURDAY

The Howard County Library will be closed in observance of the Fourth of July Holiday.

Bank deposits here show seasonal drop

Deposits in Howard County's four banking institutions experienced an expected seasonal drop of nearly $10 million during the second quarter of 1980 while loans were up $7 million.

The four banks showed a big gain in deposits from a year ago, going from $135,358,347 to $178,811,319 for the period ending June 30, 1980.

State National of Big Spring showed the biggest drop in deposits during the quarter, skidding a little more than $7 million. First National, the county's biggest bank, came closest to holding its own. Its deposits were down only $274,052 from a record high

All four of the banks showed sizeable gains in loans, with the total figure up by $7,039,872.

One county banker attributed the decrease in deposits and the gain in loans to the fact that farmers are again borrowing money to get their crops in the ground and the fact that the annual income tax paying time fell during the second quarter of the year.

Because 1979 was a record breaking year in many respects in Howard, the amount paid out in income tax was believed substantial.

Attorney wants new trial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — U.S. Attorney James Lorenz says he will seek a new trial in the case of a federal guard accused of the rape killing of a young Mexican.

A mistrial was declared on Wednesday after six days of deliberations on charges against Michael Edward Kennedy, 24, of the Federal Protective Service. A new date will be set on Monday.

"We feel it's appropriate to re-try," said Lorenz. "It's a type of case that has to be resolved."

The case involves Maria Lopez de Felix, 19, whose frail body was found last Nov. 25 inside the abandoned U.S. Customs House near the San Ysidro port of entry, where Kennedy was on patrol. She had entered the United States illegally to join her husband.

Mayor wins showdown

BRISTOL, R.I. (AP) — Providence Mayor Vincent U. Cianci Jr. apparently has won a showdown with local officials on his right to march in the town's Fourth of July parade.

Town Administrator Sarah Amaral said the mayor would not be arrested if he attempted to march Friday, as the town had threatened.

The parade committee said it wanted to bar Cianci, the Republican candidate for governor, from participating because he is not a state or town office-holder, as required under parade regulations.

The mayor, who has been an unauthorized marcher for the last five years, cited his years in the service and said the matter had political overtones since his opponent will be participating.

Wife innocent of murder

LYNDON, Kan. (AP) — A 22-year-old woman who shot and killed her 38-year-old husband on Christmas Day to end what she described as a nightmare of sexual abuse has been found innocent of murder charges.

An Osage County District Court jury delivered the verdict in favor of Deborah Davis on Wednesday after seven hours of deliberations.

"I'm really happy people understood what I went through," she told reporters following the verdict on the killing of James Curnutt. She said she was going to Maryland, where her mother and other family members live.

"I need that close family living for a while," she said.

Loop hole closes store

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — FBI agents have closed down three liquor establishments that operated on the Navajo Indian Reservation for decades through a loophole in a federal statute.

The three bars, all located just west of the New Mexico state line in eastern Arizona, were closed Wednesday.

The FBI obtained the search warrants after receiving complaints from Navajo tribal leaders several months ago. Although federal statutes allow agents to destroy liquor supplies found on the premises, the FBI said the contraband would be held by authorities.

The warrants alleged violations of two sections of federal law dealing with the sale and transportation of alcoholic beverages on Indian reservations.

U.S., Mexico to try to case export backlog

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Mexico plan high-level meetings in Texas next week to try to facilitate the transfer of thousands of tons of grain exports awaiting shipment to Mexico in rail yards along the U.S. side of the border.

Ambassador Robert Krueger, U.S. coordinator for Mexican affairs, said the discussions will begin Monday in Brownsville and will continue later in the week in Laredo and El Paso.

In a telephone interview, Krueger said the grain has not been shipped to Mexico because of a shortage of rail cars in Mexico.

Robert Smith, undersecretary of agriculture for transportation, will take part in the talks along with senior executives from U.S. rail lines, Krueger said.

Alfredo Suarez Rabago, assistant general manager for the national railroads of Mexico, will head the Mexican delegation.

"It's important for both sides that we reach a solution," Krueger said.

According to some estimates, Mexico's grain imports from the United States will range between 7 million and 9.5 million metric tons this year.

Heat taking its toll on commodities trading

Weather news continued to dominate agricultural commodities trading Thursday but pre-holiday sentiment caused some selling to take profits or liquidate positions in the grain market.

Soybean, corn and wheat futures traded lower for most of the day. Hot, dry weather in the Southwest and the Mississippi Delta area has caused concern that spring plantings might suffer.

At the close, soybeans were 4 1/2 cents higher, wheat was 3 cents lower in deferred July to 3 1/2 cents higher in spot July, corn was 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents higher, and oats were 2 1/2 to 5 1/2 cents higher.

Cotton prices were 24 to 77 cents lower per pound.

Coffee futures continued to decline, with the spot contract off 8.8 cents per pound to close at $1.5787 a pound.

Copper futures rose 1.8 to 2 cents per pound.

Cattle futures gave a mixed performance, with traders balancing their buy

Police Beat — Window is damaged

A plate glass window was cracked by a rock between Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning at Toyland, 1206 S. Gregg. The owner believes it may have come from under a tire of a vehicle which turned around in front of the store. The window was valued at $250.

A television, stereo and air conditioner were stolen from the residence of Shara Hernandez, 609 S. Bell between Wednesday night and Thursday morning. Value of the items was estimated at $540.

Two persons were arrested in Lamesa Thursday. Johnny Johnson, 23 and Judy Kay Johnson, 25 were arrested on warrants. Johnny Johnson has been charged with issuance of bad checks. Judy Kay Johnson is charged with forgery.

Judge upholds restraining act

HEREFORD, Texas (AP) — A federal district judge Thursday upheld a temporary restraining order limiting participation in a strike by Texas farmworkers.

Mary Lou Robertson of Amarillo left restraining order, issued Monday by state District Judge David Wesley Gulley, virtually intact. She did strike a specification that pickets must be at least 50 feet apart.

The restraining order prohibits secondary boycotts and forbids Texas Rural Legal Aid from participating in or encouraging demonstrations, boycotts or strikes. It also specifies that no more than two pickets can be within 50 feet of an onion field and that they must allow workers to enter or leave fields freely.

Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, called the injunction harsh but said the farm workers would abide by the terms "to show they are orderly, peaceful and law-abiding."

Wednesday, Bonilla asked Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to provide mediators to monitor the onion harvest to "alleviate any tensions and try to prevent any conflict or confrontation" between striking farmworkers and police.

"I think it's appropriate that we have a mediator there to show that we mean business," Bonilla said Thursday. "At this point, we're satisfied with the actions we're confident will be taken by the Justice Department."

Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson, meanwhile, said he was considering asking Texas Rangers to relieve his deputies in maintaining the peace.

"When you're tired, you make mistakes — and we don't want any mistakes," he said.

The onion strike spread to another field Thursday, as about 100 workers walked out on the T.J. Power & Co. near Hereford, Castro County. The workers were demanding 80 cents a 53-pound sack, along with water and sanitary facilities in the fields.

Union organizers moved in to adjacent Parmer County to recruit, and coaxed the Power walkouts to join a picket line at a Power packing shed later in the day.

A spokesman said "a small group" also picketed Hereford Brand's field in Parmer County, near Lazbuddie.

But workers were back in the fields of two Deaf Smith County onion growers where the Texas Farmworkers Union has caused disruptions.

About 200 onion clippers and sackers walked out of Howard Gault Co. onion fields last week demanding a pay increase from 45 cents to $1 per 53-pound sack. The strike later spread to fields owned by Griffin & Brand.

Weather Stubborn system keeps weather hot

By the Associated Press

A stubborn pressure system refused to budge again Thursday, focusing stagnant, hot air on Texas and driving thermometers past the 100-degree mark.

As evening settled over the state, at least 17 cities had readings of 100 degrees or above.

Afternoon highs shattered temperature records in Wichita Falls, Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin and Abilene, and tied a 49-year-old record of 103 in Waco.

Wichita Falls was the hot spot in the state once again with a high of 114, breaking the 1931 record of 107 and tying the all-time high for the month. It was the 10th consecutive day of record-breaking temperatures and the 11th day in a row of 100-plus degree readings.

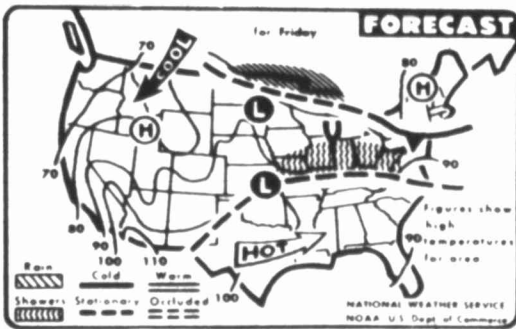

Dallas-Fort Worth registered 109 Thursday, breaking the 102 record set in 1978, the year temperatures broke 100 for 18 days in a row in July.

And Austin reached 100 Thursday afternoon, breaking a 25-year-old record of 99.

At least 61 persons have died of heatstroke or heat-related ailments as the staggering heat wave wraps up its two-week hold on the state.

Winds were southerly Thursday, ranging from 5 to 10 miles per hour.

The National Weather Service forecast more hot, dry weather for the Fourth of July weekend, with a slight chance of scattered thunderstorms along the upper Texas coast.

WEATHER MAP — The National Weather Service for today predicts rain along the northern Great Lakes region. Showers are also predicted for some areas of the Great Plains region ranging eastward toward the Middle Atlantic states to include Pennsylvania. It will be hot throughout the nation and extremely hot in the Southwest.

IT'S SURE IS HOT — Temperatures will soar to over 100 degrees today as the heat wave continues. Today will be a good day to enjoy Comanche Trail Park as this little girl is doing or join in the July 4th festivities.

CARTER ARRIVES FOR TWO DAY VISIT — President Carter is greeted by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California at Los Angeles International Airport Thursday as the president arrived for a two-day campaign swing of the state. Following a speech to the National Education Association convention here Carter will leave for Oakland, and then to Merced on Friday for more speeches.

Carter rails against Reagan tax cut policy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Carter traveled to Ronald Reagan's home state Thursday and promptly lambasted the former California governor for advocating wide-ranging tax cuts.

Carter said they would cost $280 billion and would represent "a wholesale retreat" from the battle against inflation.

Reagan spokesman Lyn Nofziger said, "Let him (Carter) tell all that nonsense to all the auto workers who are out of work and to all the people who are trying to combat inflation."

Referring to Carter's statement that the Reagan tax cut would undercut interest rates, Nofziger interjected, "brought on by the inept economic policies of Jimmy Carter."

Without mentioning that his own party had pressured him into considering a tax cut proposal next year, Carter told the NEA convention that the Republican-sponsored tax cut plan that has been twice rejected so far is "the most recent example of the simplistic approach to serious issues."

"We cannot wish away or promise away America's problems," he said.

The president was welcomed by the largest and most enthusiastic crowd he has addressed in recent months. But a band of perhaps 20 Communist Workers Party demonstrators in the back of the huge convention hall sought to disrupt Carter's speech by chanting and waving banners protesting war and fascism. The demonstrators, most of whom were wearing NEA convention credentials, were hustled out of the hall by local police. Some were wrestled to the floor and handcuffed.

The crowd of 6,000 to 8,000 conventioners, however, shouted down the demonstrators with chants of "Carter! Carter!" The president ignored the demonstration going on several hundred feet in front of his podium and simply delivered his speech above the noise and was repeatedly interrupted by applause.

Cuban twins in Forsan sent to Eglin Air Force Base in Pensacola, Fla.

They came to West Texas through a friendship between a Big Spring woman and a chaplain at Eglin.

Chaplain Juan Salinas was calling persons throughout the country, seeking sponsors for the refugees.

"He informed me they were having difficulty finding sponsors for the men and women there," said Lovelia Perez of 415 Westover in Big Spring.

Captain Salinas asked her to sponsor the twins, and she accepted. Working with others in the community, Ms. Perez managed to find the twins jobs at American Well Service. They are presently staying with Ms. Perez.

Aggie Turner with American Well Service said she has been pleased with the two, commenting they have done well despite a language barrier.

Interestingly, Turner said that the Spanish spoken by the two Cubans is noticeably different from the Spanish of West Texas, even Chicanos here have difficulty communicating with them.

But, Turner said, "They have amazing strength. They work real hard."

Ms. Perez commented that the Cubans express appreciation for the freedom enjoyed in this country.

"They say how beautiful it is here," she said.

Wife of church Polluted water found assailant files for divorce in Georgetown wells

LINDEN, Texas (AP) — Gretchen King filed for divorce Thursday from Alvin Lee King III, the man charged with five murders stemming from an assault on the First Baptist Church of Daingerfield.

In a simple one-page petition filed by Mount Pleasant lawyer Bird Old, Mrs. King said she and her husband married June 29, 1956 "and ceased to live together as husband and wife, June 22, 1980," the day of the church shootings.

King is hospitalized in good condition at Galveston suffering from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. He is held without bond and also has 10 charges of attempted murder filed on him.

"The marriage has become insupportable because of discord or conflict of personalities between the petitioner and respondent that destroys the legitimate ends of the marriage relationship and prevents any reasonable expectation of reconciliation."

King was scheduled to go on trial the day after the shootings to answer incest charges filed by his 21-year-old daughter.

Mrs. King was found bound to a chair in the couple's rural Daingerfield home by law enforcement officers shortly after shootings.

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — State health authorities said Thursday that three of Georgetown's seven water wells show indications of being polluted by sewage.

All residents of the Central Texas city, plagued for almost a month by the "miserable" of nausea and diarrhea, were urged to continue boiling all drinking water.

City authorities worked with the state in obtaining additional chlorination equipment for the water wells.

Charles F. Foster, director of the water hygiene division of the Texas Department of Health, said later Thursday that samples from the three wells showed the water to contain fecal coliform bacteria.

"The presence of fecal coliform indicates sewage pollution," he said.

However, Foster said, observation of sewer lines in the approximate area of the wells failed to reveal the source of contamination.

City officials have estimated a majority of the residents of this city of 10,000 had been stricken at one time or another by the malady. Some were hospitalized but most were treated at home or in doctor's offices. The duration of the illness was four to six days. There were no known deaths.

Foster said on June 30 the three suspected wells were disinfected with chlorine and samples collected which indicated the contamination had decreased. Subsequent samples indicated a return of contamination to the wells.

"In view of these findings the Texas Department of Health believes it advisable for residents to continue boiling water until further notice," said Foster.

Ocean liners: Going in style

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
Smithsonian News Service

At 9 a.m. sharp she came into sight. Passing the Statue of Liberty, the Norway headed slowly up the Hudson River, saluted by fireboat spray, by fleets of tugs and by helicopters fluttering over her gleaming decks. The bright blue-and-white ship then turned into her Pier 52 berth, a surviving symbol of the grand days of ocean liner travel.

"The last great maiden voyage in history," shipping historian John Maxtone-Graham believes.

Many of the Norway's sisters from the old days have been gutted and sold as scrap; a few now lie wrecked and rusting in foreign waters; one is a tourist attraction and another rests in dry dock, waiting for another chance at sea. But the Norway managed to outmaneuver such a fate — though just barely.

Launched in 1960 as the France, maritime history's longest express liner was taken out of service in 1974, the victim of high labor and energy costs and a losing battle with jet service to Europe. But on May 16, under her new name and Norwegian ownership, she arrived once again in New York, en route to a new life in the West Indies.

In her earlier incarnation, the France had ferried thousands of passengers across the North Atlantic in the "grande luxe" tradition that survives only on the Queen Elizabeth, the last ocean liner plying the Atlantic sea lanes. As the born-again Norway, she is now expected to compete for a share of the seaborne Caribbean cruise trade, but like the smaller ships already profiting in those waters, she surely will seem more like a "floating hotel" in competition with land-based resorts than a form of transportation steaming toward a destination.

The same, however, could not be said about one of her ancestors, the Britannia, the first Cunard transatlantic team packet, which was launched in 1840. Charles Dickens, sailing to the United States two years after the little ship's maiden crossing, complained that his cabin was "an utterly impractical, thoroughly hopeless and profoundly preposterous box." Worse, the dining room reminded the British author of a "hearse without windows."

As in Dickens' day, ocean travel through the years has not been all champagne bon voyage parties, haute cuisine and deck tennis. From the late 1800s to 1921, to Atlantic liners carried millions of European immigrants to the United States in usually cramped, unhealthy steerage quarters. Other serious chapters of transatlantic shipping unfolded during World Wars I and II when the converted and camouflaged luxury ships transported thousands of GIs to European and Asian battlefields.

Yet the impact of the ocean liner does not end with its cultural and military roles. "The ocean liner has a fascinating social history, and now has considerable nostalgic appeal," Lisa Taylor, director of the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Design, says. "But perhaps its most important legacy is what it shows us about design."

From the massive bulk of hull and propulsion systems to the smallest detail of shipboard life, the liner was meticulously designed, she explains, and as one of the largest objects in the world, it exerted great influence in matters of design. In effect, it was a design laboratory. During the 1930s and '40s, buildings, movie sets and interiors were created which incorporated the materials of the liners' streamlined, modernistic look — steel tubing, indirect lighting, plastics and other metals that today continue to serve artists and designers.

Then too, "the size, speed and luxury of an ocean liner has seemed to symbolize the 20th century," Richard Oliver, curator of design at Cooper-Hewitt, suggests. Along with the skyscraper, transcontinental train and airplane, he adds, the passenger ship has represented "progress and the integration of art and technology."

All transatlantic express ocean liners, Oliver explains, shared three design goals — "the desire for speed and stability, which involved the hull, superstructure and propulsion system; the accommodation of passengers, crew, service functions and machinery in a rational way; and the design and decoration of interior spaces for comfort and luxury."

Reminded, perhaps, of Dickens' woes at sea, designers at the turn of the century thought in terms of fast, reliable express service that at the same time would distract passengers from the often unpleasant ordeal of sailing the hazardous, foggy North Atlantic. To improve stability and speed, iron and steel replaced wooden hulls and decks of earlier years; propellers and compound steam engines took over the work of paddle wheels and simple steam engines. In the 1920s, turbine engines and the conversion from coal to oil added still more power.

As for the interiors, Arthur Davis, the designer of the Aquitania (1914), once recalled the design concepts prevailing before the 1930s. "When I first engaged to start this work... I said to the directors of the company that employed me: 'Why don't you make a ship look like a ship?'" But the answer I was given was that the people on these ships are not pirates... and the one thing they want to forget when they are on a vessel is that they are on a ship at all." The idea at the time was to give the passenger the illusion that he was living in a luxurious London club, a French chateau, a Bavarian castle or maybe an Italian palazzo.

The contemporary design dictum that form follow function would apply as well to changes in ship design that occurred in 1921, the year the U.S. Quota Act was enacted to limit the flow of European immigrants to the United States. On early ships, there were just two passenger classes — first, which received the lion's share of space, and steerage, which produced most of a company's revenue. This inequitable arrangement, typical of the day, did simplify design and planning, according to Oliver. But when the Quota Act was passed, the immigrant flow dried up overnight, as a result, design goals changed radically and quickly.

The steamship lines began altering the former steerage space to accommodate the booming 1920s tourist trade — a logical step that took up the financial slack but one that nevertheless carried with it complex planning decisions. Most ships were redesigned to accommodate three classes — sometimes four — and the quarters and facilities for each, early 20th-century shipboard service standards dictated, had to be self-contained and separate from the others.

Complicating the design process was a fundamental feature of ocean travel: "Life aboard a liner is not like everyday life, but rather like an extended house party," Oliver says. "Accordingly, the public spaces were designed not for work but for diversion."

The major precedent-setting breakthrough in ship design came in 1927 with the launching of the Ile de France, influenced by the 1925 Paris Exposition that popularized the Art Deco style, the ship's interiors were the "great divide from which point on decorators looked forward rather than back," John Maxtone-Graham says.

The ornately carved surfaces of earlier ships, for example, gave way to marble, glass, lacquered surfaces and synthetic materials. From then on, ship interiors "came to have a design quality that related to that of the hull and superstructure," Oliver says. Graphic artists captured the change, depicting the liners as sleek, streamlined forms with clean deck lines and short, sweeping funnels.

A final destination for transatlantic ship design was reached in the early 1950s with the commissioning of the United States. With its aluminum and synthetics, she was a ship that looked like a ship. Of the overall appearance, her designer once noted, "The United States is a ship, not an ancient inn with oaken beams and plaster walls."

Decked out in a resort-like look in contrast to the United States, the QE2 (probably the last superliner to be built) today sails the Atlantic as practically a democratic experience. The ship, unlike her earlier sisters, has only two classes.

The Norway, meanwhile, will cruise the Caribbean with no class distinctions at all in her fine, contemporary-looking public rooms. But in some ways, this revived liner still has a rudder or two in the past. Recalling the days when references to land in ship design were mandatory to calm queasy passengers, one side of the Norway's old promenade deck has been named Champs Elysees, the other, Fifth Avenue.

A spokesman at the meeting said when Congress debated the tax, there was little talk of the impact on the small royalty owner. One speaker said the tax could cost Oklahomans more than

The royalty owner may get a tax break. The Senate Finance Committee voted to give royalty owners a $1,000 tax credit against their 1980 tax returns. This would be for one year only, however. The amendment still has to be approved by the full Senate, House and signed by President Carter before it becomes law.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL
It's often said that figures never lie, but liars often figure. You see, statistics never tell the full story. We all know the percentages of the increase of crime. We're told of the crowds who riot, and are given estimates of how many cheat the IRS. The number of marriages ended in divorce is a commonly reported commodity. We're statistically bargained with the negative.
A few years ago, Mr. Charles Gould, publisher of the San Francisco Chronicle, recently spoke up for the other side of America... the positive side.
Did you know that 89 million Americans stayed married last year? And how about the 196 million of our citizens who lived within the law, and were not arrested? That's a pretty good number of well-balanced folks! There were 115 million who maintained their ties with some kind of religious community. We're not ALL dropping the faith. Seventy-five million Americans paid taxes in 1974. And forty-nine million students did not riot, destroy their classrooms or threaten their teachers. Something like 9 million young men did not burn their draft cards. And there were 4 million teachers and professors who did not strike.
Now this is not to say everything is well with all our people. But it is proof that there is always another side. So think of it the next time you think of America.

Criminals get special treatment in U.S.

America must be one of the few places where criminals get exemplary treatment from the time the law initially leans on them. (Certainly it has never happened anywhere else down through the corridors of time.)

The lawbreakers are first read their rights, which are considerable for an individual who might have been guilty of the Crime of the Century. He or she is told the taxpayers will stand the expense of a lawyer if they do not feel up to paying the tab.

They are given every opportunity to unlock their jail cells by posting bond, which not infrequently their court-appointed attorneys have been known to arrange.

IF THEY'RE lucky or know the beat real well, they avail themselves of an attorney who is an expert at plea bargaining and can arrange for them plead guilty to a lesser charge.

The laws are so written that they usually get off with probated sentences if the courts determine that they violated the law for the first time.

It was recently disclosed that millions of dollars in Social Security benefits are being paid jail and prison inmates who have claimed disability. Need it be said that those prisoners are already being supported by the taxpayers, who pay for their food, clothing and housing.

(The flow of such money into the prisons, officials of penal institutions say, is contributing to monumental problems in drug trafficking, prostitution and gambling within the walls.)

Because such prisoners are, in effect, being paid twice, the burden of supplying the money comes down on the backs of those faceless, muted individuals who pay the freight.

Throughout their incarceration, the prisoners are given every opportunity to rehabilitate themselves. They can master a trade that will stand them in good stead the remainder of their lives, if they want to apply themselves to honest toil.

SUCH OPPORTUNITIES invariably cost you and me money, but in their case society reasons it owes them something. For that reason, the taxpayer foots the bill.

Once they are freed, most states provide them with pocket money, enough to tide them over until they can adjust to life on the outside.

There is a stigma attached to any man or woman who is sentenced to be confined within prison walls, but there is no reason why that stigma should be a strait-jacket he or she has to wear the remainder of their days. A couple of hundred years ago, some prisoners would be banished to lonely islands and a hopeless existence. Now, society helps them during the worst of their travail and is prepared to lend them a helping hand once their servitude does end.

Only, in America...

Highs, lows

Around the rim

James Werrell

"Airplane!" a movie slated to appear here in about a week, is vulgar, sophomoric, loud, repetitive, silly and not a bad flick at all.

This movie is definitely from the sledgehammer school of comedy, drawing its inspiration from such masters of the genre as the Three Stooges and "Mad" magazine. Much of "Airplane!" is less subtle than a Jerry Lewis dance number.

As is apparent in the title, "Airplane!" is a takeoff (pun intended, replete with all symbolic implications) on "Airport." That alone should draw some viewers. No matter how crudely done, it is a joy to watch all those creepy, saccharine stereotypes from the original being skewered.

THE BASIC PLOT (as if one were needed) involves a wartime pilot, who, after being spooked on a bombing run, is now afraid to fly. In danger of losing his girl, a stewardess, he boards "Airplane!" with her on a flight to Chicago to try to win back her affections.

As fate would have it, a strange malady afflicts the crew, and the chicken pilot is forced once again to face his fears and climb into the cockpit. There are plenty of flashbacks to keep things hopping, and the laws of gravity and reality are rudely ignored with new characters boarding the plane in mid-flight.

As with any movie that aspires to non-stop comedy, "Airplane!" is a collection of highs and lows. And when I say low, I'm talking about breaking virgin ground at the lower end of the low comedy scale.

When, for example, the scared pilot says, "Boy, if the captain hears about this, (the bleep) is really going to hit the fan," everyone in the theater knows that the next scene will be a shot of the bleep actually hitting the fan.

IF YOU CAN STOMACH that, though, you will also see some pretty inspired stuff. Is it a stroke of warped genius to picture two black dudes talking jive lingo with subtitles underneath, or am I a little sick in the head, too?

Sample dialogue: "We've just received a message from the hospital."

"The hospital! What is it?"

"Oh, it's a big building you take people to when they get sick."

"Airplane!" also features the largest number of walk-ons and cameos since "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." Howard Jarvis is an irate taxi passenger; Jimmie Walker is a mechanic; Kareem Abdul Jabbar, in a major role, is a co-pilot; etc.

Remember, though, you've been forewarned about the lows, most of which occur near the end of the movie. But there are a couple more curiosities that might draw you into the theater: Peter Graves being hilarious; and the answer to the question, "Whatever happened to Barbara Billingsley?"

Still hope

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — We have been rocked by one news shock after another until our confidence in America has been shaken. A rabid ayatollah has held 53 of our countrymen in humiliating bondage. Greedy oil sheikdoms have driven up petroleum prices, creating an energy crisis and reducing us to supplicant status.

The Russians have defied us in Cuba and Afghanistan. Their puppet, Fidel Castro, has sent expeditionary forces to install hostile governments in Angola, Ethiopia and South Yemen, threatening our oil routes. Our own allies have balked at U.S. leadership and have undercut the U.S. economy with their aggressive trade.

THERE IS A RECESSION at home, precipitated by the White House in the hope of checkreining galloping inflation. The recent violence in Miami demonstrates that the running sores of racial strife in America have not healed. The Abscam disclosures provide dismaying evidence that political corruption didn't end with Watergate.

Our country is being vandalized by tidy specialists who scrupulously obey the codes of their narrow professions, but claim no responsibility to larger realms — chemists whose wonders foul the air and the sea; economists whose rules speed the materialistic change that is obliterating social mores with catastrophic effect; agriscientists who would poison the land tomorrow so that it might yield a bigger crop today; lawyers who endlessly complicate their procedures while justice languishes; politicians who, in the name of getting the most for their districts, bankrupt the commonwealth.

Yet I feel in my gut that this wracked land still offers the best and brightest hope for the future. In 1814, the British redcoats seized Washington and burned the White House and we survived. Before the Civil War, we lived half free and half slave and we survived. Time and again, depressions gripped the land and we survived. In the 1940s, the Hitler holocaust threatened the world, and we helped the world to survive.

Today, the United States still possesses the world's greatest resources and wealth. Our industrial and agricultural production surpass that of all other nations; our technology is the most advanced. No foreign despot would dare attack our shores.

FOR OPPRESSED PEOPLES everywhere, this is still the land of their dreams. In the beginning, it was the Pilgrims. Today, it's refugees fleeing from the horrors of Cambodia, the tyranny of Cuba, the economic repression of Haiti, the cruelties of Vietnam. People of all colors and creeds yearn to attain the largesse of liberty American offers. In contrast, the Soviet Union has no refugee problem.

Our forefathers built on these shores the greatest nation in history. We need only pull together as they did, putting sacrifice ahead of selfishness as they did, to keep it great.

INSTANT AMNESIA — When

Jimmy Carter made his absurd claim that the botched rescue mission had somehow made the situation of our hostages in Iran "more manageable," it was a signal to everyone in the administration to play down the American captives' plight.

Bureaucrats at the State Department and other agencies eagerly took their cue from the White House, just as they did when the crisis was being played up for Carter's benefit in the primaries. Worse yet, the business-as-usual prescription was also swallowed obediently by members of Congress and their staffs.

Capitol Hill sources tell me the hostages have now become "passee" in Congress. As just one example, a key staff member of one congressional committee said he now spends a token few hours a week on the hostage situation, where he used to devote every working day to it.

Most shameful of all has been the compliant attitude of the press in sweeping the hostages' desperate plight under the rug. With few exceptions — notable Walter Cronkite's dogged nightly reminder of the Americans' lengthening captivity — the media has let Carter get away with his cynical manipulation of the hostage issue, just as it helped him hype the situation into a front-page crisis before the rescue-mission fiasco.

But one government agency has refused to forget the hostages. The Central Intelligence Agency's special task force on Iran has, if anything, been working longer hours than before on the situation. As turbulence grows in Iran, a typical day for the CIA staffers is anywhere from 12 to 14 hours.

TANNING HIS HYDE — Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, recently voted against a legislative amendment offered by Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., prohibiting federal payment for abortions. Not long afterward, Hance got a call from a gravel-voiced rancher back home. What in the blue-eyed world was "this here hide amendment" all about, the constituent asked.

Hance explained his views on abortion at some length. Finally the rancher broke in to ask, "What in the hell does rape and incest have to do with me selling my cattle hides to foreign markets?" Hance realized the constituent was referring to a different piece of legislation entirely, and laid the rancher's fears to rest. "I was sure worried about you there for a minute, son," said the rancher. "I thought Washington had caused you to lose your mind."

STRANGE TIMING — The Environmental Protection Agency recently organized a speakers bureau of agency personnel to "actively pursue speaking opportunities with environmental groups in order to point out the Administration's strong record of environmental accomplishments." Those of suspicious mind might think this was an illegal use of federal employees to promote Jimmy Carter's re-election campaign. But an EPA spokesman insisted with a straight face that the purpose of the new speakers bureau was to push EPA, not the president.

Accidental master-stroke

Evans, Novak,

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's preemptive strike on tax reduction, which sent Democratic politicians reeling in confusion, was not, as commonly perceived, a masterstroke of astute strategists but the end product of confused backroom machinations that accidentally wound up happily.

Reagan's call for an immediate tax cut was not even contemplated a week before it happened. It began as an end run around his senior staff by one outside adviser, partly to undercut Reagan's tenacious adherence to Rep. Jack Kemp's tax reduction theories. Instead, it wound up supporting Kemp while still placating his enemies, and put President Carter and the Democrats on the defensive.

"This shows the virtues of disorganization," one Reagan insider told us. "If we ever get organized we may be in trouble." Reagan's accidental masterstroke never could have happened in a tightly controlled campaign, such as Richard Nixon's. But it also showed that Reagan will not be deflected from his course of sustained tax reduction.

THE CENTRAL figure in what happened was Dr. Charles E. Walker, a former deputy secretary of the treasury and now a Washington super-lobbyist. He had been economic adviser of fellow Texan John B. Connally's ill-fated presidential campaign, but turned up as chairman of Reagan's tax policy committee immediately after Connally's collapse.

Walker's first step in his new role was to criticize the economic speech delivered by Reagan April 8 to the American Society of Newspaper Editors. That speech, written mainly by Kemp, was one prolonged cheer for the Kemp-Roth bill to reduce individual income taxes 10 percent a year for three years. Like his corporate clients, Walker tends to traditionalist Republican hostility against such populist tax reduction.

Walker tried all spring to get Reagan on record in cutting down or stretching out Kemp-Roth — without success. He also wanted to get Reagan out front for a bill panted after by corporate business, traditionalist Republicans and Charley Walker: faster tax depreciation for new business equipment. This collided with growing determination in Reagan's inner circle not to say anything, to sit on his lead in true Nixonian fashion.

Walker solved that with characteristic audacity. On June 20 in Chicago, Reagan met with big business supporters. Walker turned ritual into policy-making by warning that Carter might well preempt Reagan on tax cuts. So, why not propose a one-year 10 percent tax cut, with business depreciation attached? Great idea, said Reagan. Reagan's principal policy-making staffers were offhanded, taken by surprise.

Dr. Martin Anderson, Reagan's top domestic adviser, was left high, dry and visibly angry back in California. "That will teach him not to attend meetings," cracked Walker. Also marooned was Kemp, his long tax-cut courtship of Reagan seemingly wiped away by one afternoon in Chicago.

Kemp was not even aware of what had happened until four days later, when he and his ally, Rep. David Stockman of Michigan, were summoned across the Capitol to Sen. Robert Dole's office. There they found Charley Walker sprawled across the sofa, holding a statement proposed for Reagan's release in Los Angeles the next day.

Blood supply factor in ear noises

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What causes ear noises and what can be done to get relief from this problem? I am 60 years old and have a constant high-pitched sound in my right ear. My doctor cannot give me satisfactory help — Mrs. M.F.

Sound heard by and originating in a person is called "tinnitus." There are about as many reasons for tinnitus as there are structures involved — more, in fact. A recent study lists 68 separate possible causes.

Among chief causes are wax impacted in the ear canal, fluid in the middle ear, diminished blood supply to the inner ear, disturbance of the small chain of bones that conduct sound signals. Some are correctible, some are not.

The high-pitched sound you report (especially if there is hissing) points to a problem with the cells of the inner ear's hearing structures. They can be damaged by diminished blood supply, as happens in atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). Certain drugs — some antibiotics and aspirin — can cause it.

All one can do is to try to pinpoint the cause and eliminate it if possible. It is easy to remove the earwax, but correcting the damaged cells of the inner ear may be impossible. If drugs are the cause, the answer is simple: discontinue them or reduce dosage — with your doctor's approval, of course.

If you cannot find a treatable cause, then you can try to mask the sounds. A bedside radio may provide sufficient noise for masking. In some instances, a sound-producing hearing aid device can be used to help cover up the noise.

Ear noise is a symptom that warrants investigation. It can lead to treatment for something more serious than the annoyance of the sounds.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am expecting my third child. Early in pregnancy I had a bad case of the flu, with swollen glands and sore throat. My doctor tells me not to be concerned about this. I am worried about birth defects, although I know there is no concrete evidence. Could you give me some information concerning flu and birth defects? I am terribly nervous. — Mrs. A.J.

Birth defects resulting from influenza, if they do exist, must be very, very rare. Most authorities on viral infections do not believe that the developing fetus is at risk of having any abnormalities as a result of the mother having had flu.

I can understand your distress, but you really do not need to have such great concern. If there were an association between flu and birth defects, that would be well-known by now. Influenza is a common illness and many, many women have had it during pregnancy without any effects on their babies.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had a fainting problem caused by an irregular heart beat. In 1976 my doctor prescribed quinidine tablets. While taking them I have never fainted and I feel great. But now my doctor wants to implant a pacemaker. I am wondering why this is necessary. I am 70 years old. — W.P.

While quinidine can abolish some of the irregularities to the heart beat that caused your fainting spells, it cannot cure them all forever. Your doctor felt that a pacemaker is more valuable in your case. Implanting a pacemaker sounds worse than it actually is. It is a safe procedure that will provide you with a reliable heart beat without medication. I agree with your doctor. Since your doctor is advising a pacemaker, I am assuming that your own natural heart pacemaker must be failing and causing some irregularity to your heart beat.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What kinds of foods should one eat or avoid during and immediately following a bout of intestinal flu? — A.W.

The person should keep himself

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I hope you will pray for me. Alcohol has me in its grip, and the future seems hopeless. — T.F.A.

DEAR T.F.A.: Alcoholism is one of the greatest scourges of our nation. It destroys the health and well-being of countless individuals and causes untold grief among families and friends. The words of the Bible have been proved time and time again: "Wine is a mocker and beer a brawler; whoever is led astray by them is not wise" (Proverbs 20:1).

But you know this through bitter experience, I suspect. And yet your problem is that you seem to be powerless to do anything about it. Does that mean there is no hope? No! There is hope — hope in Christ. The most important thing I can urge you to do is to get on your knees, confess your sins to Christ, and then invite Him to come into your life and cleanse and forgive you. The Bible says, "Everyone who believes in Him receives forgiveness of sins through His name" (Acts 10:43). That is a wonderful truth, and you can know it in your life if you will repent and turn to Christ.

Christ will help you with your alcoholism as you allow Him to control your life. No, it may not be an easy or smooth road, although with some people Christ seems to remove all desire for alcohol at once. But Christ will do several things for you as you grow in your relationship to Him. For one thing, He will give you a new purpose and meaning in life. He will surround you with His love and show you that you are very valuable in His eyes — far too valuable to destroy yourself with alcohol. Then He will give you new friends, Christians who love you and want to help you. (You may even find that God will lead you to Christians who have been in the grip of alcohol also and have conquered it through Christ.) And He will help you through His Holy Spirit to have a new strength to resist temptation. God bless you as you turn to Christ.

Gov. Clements agrees that new property tax laws need fine tuning

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he agrees with a lot of unhappy taxpayers but Texas' new property tax laws need some "fine tuning."

Clements told a Thursday news conference that he agrees "in principle" with two proposed state constitution changes presented him earlier in the week by a delegation from Dallas.

The proposals, if passed by the Legislature and approved by voters, would allow homeowners a 20 percent homestead exemption from local property taxes and would set a 10 percent ceiling on annual property tax increases for residential homeowners.

"I don't think these hardships were intended by the Legislature on single family dwelling owners," Clements said. "In fact, we (the governor's office) have offered to help them draft their legislation."

The constitution changes would affect 1979 tax reform legislation — aimed at eliminating tax inequities by establishing a uniform assessment system to appraise property at full market value. In the past assessments varied among individual taxing units.

The Dallas delegation told Clements the new tax laws have resulted in staggering tax increases for homeowners, sometimes as much as 250 percent.

On other matters Clements said: — The governor's office was ready to help local communities hard hit by record drought and heat levels. He said he was surprised he had not received any requests for relief through low-interest loans made available when a community is designated a disaster area because of unusual weather.

Despite published reports of money needs by the State Project for the Deaf he had not received a single request from any member of the commission. "I'm ready to help and I'd like to help but I have heard nothing from any of them," he said.

He "wholeheartedly supports" the report of his public school advisory committee, including a recommendation that teachers must take competency tests.

Had sent a telegram to all Texas congressmen supporting a proposed compromise in the railroad rate bill. He said the original deregulation act would allow railroads "to levy unreasonable rate increases in monopoly markets."

Farm Texas ranks third in farm exports

AUSTIN — First in the export of cotton, lard and tallow, and cottonseed oil, Texas was third overall in United States' agricultural exports during 1979, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has announced.

The state was among the top 10 exporters in 10 other commodities.

Texas farm exports were valued at $2,047.4 billion. Illinois was first with $2,896.7 billion and Iowa second with $2,840.8 billion.

Brown said sharp drops in the export of wheat and rice caused a $47.5 million decline in cash receipts. Wheat declined from $252.5 million in 1978 to $155.2 million. Rice dropped from $206.7 million to $168.6 million.

"Despite these declines, agriculture was the only area of trade that helped to offset our growing trade deficit," Brown said. "Agriculture provided a trade surplus of $15,799,000 while non-agricultural trade gave us a deficit of nearly $43 million."

Total U.S. farm exports came to $32 billion, 17 percent above the previous year. Ten states, including Texas, accounted for 57 percent of the total.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, increases occurred in almost every commodity group.

Critical stage hasn't been reached on ranges

LUBBOCK — Crops, animals and people all wilted in one of the longest recorded heat waves in Texas' history. But it's no reason for farmers and ranchers to reach for the panic button, agree two Texas Tech University professors and a meteorologist at the National Weather Service office in Lubbock.

"The quality of the rangeland is going down, but there's nothing critical yet," Dr. Donald F. Burzloff, chairman of the Department of Range and Wildlife Management, said Monday as temperatures again soared to the century mark.

Most rangeland "got a reasonably good start" this year and matured early, he said. But continued dry weather created low-quality forage. This caused declining weight gains for cattle, down from a normal 1 1/2 pounds per day to about three-quarters of a pound, he said.

If the heat wave were to continue for a couple more weeks, Burzloff said, cattle would require supplemental feed or would be marketed early. An early break in the heat wave would produce "no noticeable loss" in weight gain, he said.

Crops held their own, although cotton is better able to withstand a continued heat wave than either corn or sorghum, said Dr. Dwane G. Miller, chairman of the Department of Plant and Soil Science.

"So far, crops are not hurting too much," he said. Irrigated crops would fare better than dry-land crops during a prolonged dry spell, he said. But "the dry spell is definitely going to have an effect on yields."

Corn, with its broad leaf area, would be first to be hurt during a prolonged heat wave, Miller said. Next to be hurt would be sorghum.

Cotton, with its smaller leaf surface now, was in better shape to withstand June's dry spell, he said. "With a prolonged dry spell, cotton's deeper rooting system will help it better survive dry stress than corn or sorghum."

When the mercury zipped past 100 degrees Monday for the eighth straight day, Lubbock tied the record for Sunflower seeds were up 65 percent, hides and skins 58 percent and meats and meat preparations 23 percent. Declines occurred in dairy products, cottonseed oil, and peanuts and peanut oil.

Soybeans, feedgrains, wheat, cotton, and hides and skins comprised 72 percent of the total U.S. agricultural export value. Cotton exports registered a 12 percent value gain over last year, totaling $1.9 billion. Texas cotton exports were valued at $671.5 million, an increase of nearly $20 million. California, Mississippi, Arizona and Arkansas were also major cotton exporting states.

Texas was second in the export of hides and skins, valued at $124.4 million. The state was sixth in feedgrains, valued at $366.1 million. Lard and tallow was worth $87.1 million and cottonseed oil sold for $68.9 million.

The ranking and value of other Texas agricultural exports are:

Meat and products, second, $78.1 million; sunflower seeds, fourth, $2.2 million; peanuts and peanut oil, fourth, $31.1 million; fruits and preparations, fifth, $24 million; nuts and preparations, fifth, $4.3 million; vegetables and preparations, sixth, $28.9 million, and poultry and products, seventh, $18.5 million.

the second longest heat wave on record. The record was in 1924, when the temperature reached 100 degrees 10 days in a row. In 1928, the mercury also reached three figures for eight straight days.

Last month was either the hottest June on record or one of the hottest across the state, said Ken Wigner, special programs meteorologist for agriculture at the National Weather Service. High daily records were recorded throughout West Texas and in North Central Texas. Dallas-Fort Worth recorded the all-time high — 113 degrees — two days in a row. Wichita Falls set an all-time record of 117 degrees. El Paso had more than 20 days of 100 degree or higher temperatures — a new record of consecutive 100 degree days.

Lubbock missed its all-time record during the heat spell by only one degree — the record high is 109 degrees. But nearby towns did set new daily records: the temperature peaked at 111 degrees in Matador, Spur and Paducah, Wigner said.

Although many farmers and ranchers claim Texas and a large adjacent area of the Southwest are suffering another cyclical drought, similar to those of the 1930's and 1950's, Wigner is hesitant to call the present dry spell a major drought. The weather service only has data going back 70 years, he said, not a long enough time to indicate whether drought cycles exist.

Reason for the heat wave, Wigner said, was a high pressure system "in all levels of the atmosphere except for the surface." This high pressure forces air toward the surface and the air warms as it descends, he said.

The high pressure settled over Texas because the jet stream shifted to the upper Midwest. "As a result, we can't get any moving systems" such as a cold front or an upper level impulse that could bring rain.

Many people believe August is the hottest month, but Wigner said that is not so. The greater average humidity during August just makes the month seem hotter.

Festooning fire fingers streak down the sky while soft July breezes stir across upturned faces and the band plays softly.

Suddenly I see beyond the framework of our celebration. I see fireworks and flags, hard-boiled eggs and potato salad, a parade down Main Street, cotton candy, roller coasters, and the dance at the country club. I see a little band of people crossing the ocean to make a new life. A woodsman hacking a trail westward, a man and his woman working together to make a home in the new wilderness. I see rous of graves in France, marking fallen doughboys, four young men raising a flag on Iwo Jima, and an astronaut blasting off to yet a new frontier. I see a sweet land of liberty.

One of the most important things this land stands for is a man's right to worship God in the way he wants. Go to your church and take advantage of this precious heritage.

MARIO LANZA JAYNE KENNEDY

Joan Kennedy in Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joan Kennedy, eager to relax after months on the campaign trail, has checked into a luxurious Mexican fitness spa for a few weeks, friends and aides say.

James Flug, press secretary for Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Edward Kennedy, said Wednesday that Mrs. Kennedy went to the Rancho La Puerta in Tecate several days ago. An official at the resort denied that Mrs. Kennedy was there.

Marsha Chellis, a close friend and frequent traveling companion, said Mrs. Kennedy's health was "just fine."

"She just wants to do something physical after the hard work of the campaign," said Ms. Chellis. "It's all for good, positive reasons. There are no problems at all."

The spa offers gyms, swimming pools, tennis courts, massages, special diets and cosmetic treatments.

CBS fires Jayne Kennedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jayne Kennedy, co-host of CBS TV's "NFL Today" show, has been fired for allegedly violating her contract by joining a prime-time series on rival network NBC, sources say.

Miss Kennedy, who replaced Phyllis George on the football show two years ago, was notified by mail of her release from CBS. The network said she broke her contract when she joined the cast of "Speak Up America," an NBC series to be broadcast this fall.

Miss Kennedy said she had been given oral permission several weeks ago to work outside of "NFL Today." However, a CBS lawyer said last week that CBS didn't feel Miss Kennedy could meet the demands of both shows.

CBS would not comment on the matter.

Mob culprit, book says

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of singer Mario Lanza, who died in Italy in 1959, believed her husband was killed by underworld figures because he backed out of a concert planned by reputed mob kingpin Charles "Lucky" Luciano, according to an upcoming book.

The New York Daily News reported today it had obtained a manuscript copy of "Lanza, His Tragic Life," co-authored by close friend Terry Robinson for Prentice-Hall.

According to the News, the authors say Lanza, who fled to Italy when the federal government sought back taxes, was hounded by underworld figures who wanted him to sing for them. He agreed to a charity concert at Luciano's urging, but missed a rehearsal and was told that if he failed to perform he would "never again perform in public."

Lanza became frightened and checked into a hospital, complaining of leg pains. The day after the concert, which went on without him and was a failure, Lanza was found dead, an empty intravenous bottle feeding air into him. The chauffeur who found him and the nurse disappeared.

No dividends paid on lapsed policies

U.S. taxpayers continue to carry the burden of a hoax perpetrated for years concerning dividends on Veterans Administration insurance policies. Thousands of veterans have been led to believe that they are entitled to an insurance dividend on their World War II GI insurance.

VA is receiving thousands of telephone calls and letters weekly from World War II veterans and others who have been deceived into expecting dividends on GI insurance they allowed to lapse years ago. The manpower and postage required to respond to these inquiries is exorbitant.

The only dividend that the VA pays is on policies that are still in force from World War II and Korea. Jack Coker, Waco VA Regional Office Director, explained. He said that the hoax crops up each year when official-looking application forms, complete with an address where they are to be mailed, mysteriously appear in various parts of the country. As a result, Coker said, news stories and reprints of the phony application are appearing in such publications as those issued by unions, company personnel offices and some veterans' publications.

VA has been paying an annual dividend on those policies still in force. This is customarily announced at the beginning of each year and is usually paid automatically on the anniversary date of the policy. There is no need for a veteran to make any contact with VA about this payment, Coker said.

The hoax has been visible since 1948, but Coker said the bogus application may have surfaced after a special dividend was paid in 1950 and 1951.

Domino players eyeing tourney in Big Spring

The third annual National Texas-style Partnership Domino Tournament, which will be held in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum here July 24, 25, and 26, is receiving entries from throughout the Southwest.

The Big Spring tournament will feature approximately 100 partners, who will be competing for top prize money. The total prize money to be awarded to the winning couples will be determined by the number of entries received for this year's tournament.

The Tournament is the only one of its type in the nation and receives regional, state and national coverage. During the three-day event, teams which have paid $100 per team, will play an estimated 20 hours against other teams to reach the semi-finals. Trophies will also be awarded to the top 12 teams, and top prize money will be awarded to the winning team, with lesser amounts going to other top teams.

"Texas Style Dominos" differ from other domino games in that entries draw seven dominos and use only the first double played as a "spinner." Only the spinner can be abutted on all four sides.

The national tournament was conceived in 1978 by George McAlister, while writing the book "Dominos-Texas Style", which he co-authored with his playing partner, Lloyd McLeod.

Individuals interested in entering the festival are being asked to contact the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1391, Big Spring, 79720. All entries for this year's tournament must be received by noon, July 23.

Reagan would terminate grain embargo if elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's campaign and congressional Republicans, launching another dual assault Thursday on Carter administration policies, pledged an end to the Soviet grain embargo if the former California governor were elected president.

A group of Capitol Hill GOP lawmakers, holding a news conference on the Mall in front of the Agriculture Department, made Reagan's position known while the former California governor and his wife Nancy were vacationing in Mexico.

Reading a statement approved personally by Reagan, virtually certain to be the GOP standardbearer this fall, the Republicans asserted that "Jimmy Carter's grain embargo, which has fobbed American farmers for months now, has had virtually no impact on the Soviet Union."

So far, 21 senators, including Carter challenger Edward M. Kennedy, have endorsed legislation that would terminate the embargo. Dole said attempts will be made to enact the bill later this year.

It was the second time the Reagan campaign and Republican members of Congress teamed up to castigate Carter policies. Last week, Reagan and the Republican lawmakers held companion coast-to-coast news conferences to announce the candidate's call for a $36 million income tax cut in 1981.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who helped organize the embargo and tax cut news conferences, said the series will continue, "if we can find pay dirt anywhere. As long as they continue to bungle everything I'm sure we'll continue to have news conferences."

In the statement read on his behalf, Reagan claimed that the embargo, imposed in retaliation for the Soviet military thrust into Afghanistan, has resulted in a net loss to taxpayers of $1 billion. He said the embargo has been an ineffective tool to punish the Russians for aggression and has been disastrous for American farmers.

Our entire agricultural economy is paying a heavy price for the administration's failure," Reagan said in the statement. "Net farm income is down 40 percent from last year ... Jimmy Carter's grain embargo should be ended — Now."

Carter imposed a partial grain embargo on Jan. 4. He withheld from shipment to metric tons of grain.

Malawi missionary slated for Evangel Temple Sunday

The Reverend Warren Newberry, an Assemblies of God missionary to Malawi, Central Africa, will be guest speaker Sunday morning at the Evangel Temple, the Reverend Terry Wilson, pastor, has announced.

In 1966 Malawi, formerly called Nyasaland, gained its independence and became the Republic of Malawi. Five and one-half million people live in this landlocked country where the Assemblies of God maintain a Bible school, printing presses, and an International Correspondence Institute outreach.

Mr. Newberry and his wife, Annette, have been ministering in Malawi since 1968. They have taught in the Bible school since their arrival. Mr. Newberry has served as its director since 1971. Their ministry has also included construction of church buildings and missionary residences. When the Bible school is not in session the Newberrys engage in general missionary work and tent crusades throughout the country. In addition, Mr. Newberry has served as general treasurer of the national church, executive committee member, district superintendent, national youth director and chairman and treasurer of the Field Fellowship of Assemblies of God missionaries in that country.

About his missionary activities, Mr. Newberry says, "The work has never appeared more promising than it is right now. The door is wide open in Malawi for missionary work."

Mr. Newberry holds a B.A. degree from Southern California College in Costa Mesa, Calif. He also has done graduate work at Fuller

Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif. and at the Assemblies of God Graduate School in Springfield, Mo. Mrs. Newberry holds an A.A. degree from Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa, and a B.S. degree from Southwestern Assemblies of God College in Waxahatchie.

Before missionary appointment, the Newberrys pastored churches in Stanton and in Dana Point, Calif.

For the past two years, Reverend Newberry has been the missionary-in-residence at Southwestern Assemblies of God College, serving as chairman of the Missions Department. The Newberrys plan to return to Malawi on Aug. 3.

In this special missions rally, Mr. Newberry will present African songs, curios, and an audiovisual presentation. The public is invited to attend.

Bible delivery continues in war-torn Southeast Asia

NEW YORK — Scripture distribution in Vietnam and Kampuchea (formerly Cambodia) is continuing in spite of the hardships of war and political and economic turmoil.

Reports received at American Bible Society headquarters here indicate, however, that Scripture distribution is proceeding at a much slower pace than in the past. Bibles are in extremely short supply due to import restrictions and in many areas, completely unavailable.

According to Bible Society official Chan Young Choi, who is based in Hong Kong, communication with the Bible Society in Vietnam was infrequent throughout the whole of last year. Distribution and financial reports were received, although belatedly.

"It is difficult to expect a normal situation under the present circumstances," Mr. Choi wrote. "Nonetheless, the Bible Society is functioning."

Mr. Choi also said there are indications that Bibles are rationed in Vietnam due to the limited inventory available. A request has been received for 5,000 Bibles and 10,000 New Testaments to be shipped to Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon).

"Preparation for the production and shipment to Vietnam will be made as soon as we get certainty of an import permit," Mr. Choi wrote.

Mr. Choi reported that efforts are being made to have representatives from the Bible Society visit Vietnam.

Bible Society officials are hopeful for a breakthrough in 1980 which will allow greater supplies of Scripture to go into the country.

Information on Kampuchea is much more scarce. No word has been received from Bible Society representatives inside Kampuchea since March 1975.

Meanwhile in Reading, Pa., 1,000 delegates to the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church narrowly approved a resolution backing Clark's trip to Iran and his call for a commission to investigate Iranian charges against the United States.

"Such a mission is undertaken at some personal risk," the council said, but "it is to be recognized that efforts on behalf of justice and world peace often require both individuals and groups to test existing regulations."

ABS chosen as sole source of Bibles for ex-Cubans

NEW YORK — Officials at the Cuban refugee camp at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida are accepting only American Bible Society (ABS) Scriptures for distribution among Cuban refugees.

Rabbi Marvin Labinger, Chaplain Colonel, explained the decision was based on a desire to avoid flooding the camps with denominational material. ABS Scriptures are nondenominational by design and intended for use by all churches.

Over 270,000 Scriptures have been supplied by ABS to chaplains, churches, relief agencies, and individuals for distribution among the refugees.

Many of these Scriptures have been contributed free-of-charge. In addition, many of the Scriptures are being distributed by ABS Volunteers, who donate time and, in many cases, money to provide the refugees with Spanish Bibles, New Testaments, Scripture Portions, and Scripture Selections.

Mrs. Nellie Bicksler, one of the 37,000 ABS Volunteers throughout the nation, recently ordered 775 Spanish Scriptures for a refugee camp near her home in Fort Walton Beach, Florida. The Scriptures ranged from the Gospels of John and Luke in Spanish, to Spanish Selections and Scripture Coloring Books in Spanish for children. An ABS Volunteer from Scottsdale, Arizona, recently ordered 1200 Spanish New Testaments to be delivered to the Cuban refugee camp at Fort Chaffe, Arkansas. In an unusual arrangement, the Volunteer had the New Testaments delivered to the camp by an Arizona doctor who had volunteered his medical services to the refugees.

Scripture distributors report that the response to the Spanish Scriptures has been tremendous. The need for God's Word is so acute that government officials have had to tightly control distribution channels within the camp to assure an equitable distribution system.

Priest praised for trip

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — An Episcopal priest who was among the 10 Americans who defied President Carter's ban on travel to Iran has received appreciation for it from his church.

The Episcopal Church's 44-member executive council approved a resolution expressing to the Rev. Paul Washington of Philadelphia "its appreciation and concern for his sincere efforts in the cause of justice and peace."

Washington was part of a group led by former Attorney General Ramsey Clark in participating in an international conference in Tehran on grievances against the United States.

"Such a mission is undertaken at some personal risk," the council said, but "it is to be recognized that efforts on behalf of justice and world peace often require both individuals and groups to test existing regulations."

Pope limits approval of priestly requests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II reportedly has begun reviewing applications for priests for return to the lay status and approved some of the requests but on a more limited basis than before.

He had halted the process when he became pope in 1978, although until then, the dispensations had been regularly granted by the late Pope Paul VI — about 30,000 in his 15 years in office.

A backlog of about 4,000 unanswered applications had built up under John Paul II, and the National Catholic News Service says it has learned he began acting in mid-June on some of them.

The news service also quoted reliable sources as predicting the early issuance of a Vatican document setting stricter rules for laicizing priests than those in effect under Paul VI.

Brethren denounce U.S.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The annual conference of the Church of the Brethren called on the U.S. government to publicly apologize to Iran's people "for its complicity in the repressive policies" of the former shah.

Delegates claimed "illegal actions of the United States in establishing the reign of the deposed shah" and also said Iran's holding of U.S. hostages is illegal and called for their release. The 175,000-member "peace" denomination, with its historic pacifist position, pledged support to conscientious objectors to draft registration and conscription and also said:

"Open, non-evasive withholding of war taxes is a legitimate witness of our conscientious intention to follow the call of discipleship to Jesus Christ."

Garcia favorite among Hispanics

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — In 29 years as an attorney, Matt Garcia found few things more frustrating and time-consuming than dealing with the troubled, undermanned Immigration and Naturalization Service. Ironically, the problems that once forced Garcia to waste hours waiting in line in INS offices now rest squarely in his lap. He's the president's choice for the agency's new commissioner. "I've handled only a few immigration cases. But when I did go to the immigration offices, I learned to wait," recalled the 52-year-old Democratic state representative in a recent interview.

"I waded through the people to get to the desk, gave them my name, told them my business and then I took my seat. I waited, and I waited, and I waited until my name was called. "The offices were literally teeming, overflowing with people," he added. "Men, women, children and crying infants were everywhere. It was a madhouse. "I remember thinking then that the staff probably felt worse at the end of the day than they did that morning. That compounds itself over weeks and months," he said. "At the time, I never imagined I would someday have to deal with those problems. "I think the agency's main problem is frustration at not being able to cope with a problem that's growing bigger and bigger every day," Garcia said. "I recognize that is a tremendous challenge. I'm not so egotistical to think I am the Messiah. I'm not going to walk in and in one sweep of my hand, rid the department of all of its ills. "I will go in there and try," he vowed.

Hispanic leaders laud Garcia as an outstanding attorney, legislator, administrator and national political leader sensitive to the seemingly unsolvable problem of illegal immigration from Mexico. They point to Garcia's record as an active civil rights attorney, his eight years in the Texas Legislature and his national political prominence as a vice chairman of the Hispanic American Democrats. They see Garcia as a hard-working, compassionate man who can end what they contend is the repressive "Tortilla Curtain" mentality of the U.S. Border Patrol. "Matt Garcia is a credit to San Antonio and the nation," said Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens. "He is one of the foremost Hispanic leaders of the country."

But Garcia's critics dismiss the nomination as merely a naked attempt by President Carter to woo vital Mexican-American votes this election year. "Everybody sees that it's just politics, pure and simple. The Carter people believe Matt Garcia can pull in additional Mexican-American votes," said San Antonio News front-page columnist Paul Thompson, a frequent Garcia critic. "Even if it is, Matt is absolutely qualified," countered state Sen. Bob Vale, once Garcia's law partner, but now a political foe. But Thompson and other critics disagree, calling

MATT GARCIA

Garcia an inexperienced administrator and a marginal legislator who will be outclassed in Washington. "He's affable, not an unlikeable fellow," Thompson said. "But I feel that by appointing him, it shows they have no serious intention of doing anything about the problems." The critics also claim Garcia has vigorously lobbied for a federal judgeship, leaving the legislature at a critical time last year to meet in Washington with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen about a vacant judgeship. Garcia denies the charge, saying that he only talked to Bentsen at the request of those who wanted him nominated to the federal bench. "I have never sought a federal appointment," he said. "I have twice declined state judgeships. My ambition has not been great." When White House officials called about the INS job, Garcia said he actually refused twice because he did not want to leave his lifelong home and "lucrative" law practice. "I grew up, married and raised four kids here. Now I have two grandkids to enjoy. I didn't want to leave," he said. He agreed on the third White House request — but only after a long conversation with good friend Leonel Castillo, who resigned as INS commissioner last October. "I wanted some questions answered. I wanted to know why he resigned. I won't reveal why, but he told me. I asked his advice. He advised me that I can do more from within to change things than from without. He told me I had his support," Garcia said.

Castillo said he was resigning only to run for mayor of Houston, but acknowledged the INS was riddled with problems. He said the agency has failed to concentrate its resources in the Southwest where the workload is heaviest. It is further hampered by archaic methods of keeping records. Morale is low, and the staff is too small. There also have been numerous allegations of brutality by the border patrol.

Garcia said he hopes to ease bureaucratic problems with a streamlining program now under way.

Candidate says lawsuit frivolous

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Democratic nominee for the Court of Criminal Appeals said Thursday the suit challenging his qualifications for the office is "frivolous and totally without merit."

"The only people who have questioned my qualifications are people who don't know me," said Austin attorney Michael McCormick, 34, who is the unopposed Democratic nominee for the Place 2 seat on the high court bench.

McCormick and state party chairman Billy Goldberg, along with other party officials, were named as defendants in a suit filed in Waco which alleges McCormick is not qualified to hold office because he has not practiced law for 10 years.

McCormick was licensed in September 1970.

McCormick defeated the 67-year-old incumbent, Judge W.T. Phillips of Waco, in the June 7 run-off election. McCormick said the issue of his qualifications was "raised in the campaign, and the voters rejected it overwhelmingly."

Two Waco attorneys, Tom Ragland and Pat Beard, asked district attorney Felipe Reyna to authorize the challenge. Reyna filed the action Wednesday, but said that Beard and Ragland would prosecute it.

"I agreed with Mr. Beard that there is a legitimate question of law in the Texas Constitutional provision that says the candidate must be a practicing attorney for 10 years," Reyna said.

Ragland said that the suit was filed because "we've just recovered from the (Texas Supreme Court Judge) Don Yarbrough fiasco, wherein it came to light that he wasn't qualified to serve."

"I don't even know Mr. McCormick, so there's nothing personal involved," Ragland said.

He added that although he had voted for Phillips, neither he nor Beard was "actively involved in the campaign."

"I voted for him (Phillips) and would vote for him again, but that has nothing to do with this," Ragland said.

Defeated candidate Phillips said he had "no comment to make" on the lawsuit.

"I didn't have anything to do with it. I know nothing at all about it," he said.

He said that if the suit is successful, the Democratic executive committee would appoint a nominee to run in the November general election.

Federal disaster relief may be only hope

By the Associated Press
Federal disaster funds may be the only help in sight for crops and livestock dying from record-breaking temperatures, but those in the business of providing relief from the heat are reporting brisk sales.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Thursday the weather over the July 4th weekend may determine if Texas has a catastrophe because of the heat, drought and insects.

"It's not a catastrophe yet," Brown said, "except in South Texas where we lost a hay crop, but another three or four days without rain and it could be a real disaster."

Livestock farmers will be eligible to apply for drought aid under a federal emergency feeding program, and crop producers will be able to seek relief in the form of disaster payments.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday he was surprised the state has not been asked to help communities hard hit by drought and heat problems.

"We're just burning up," said V.H. Neumann, 65, from his 1,660-acre farm 50 miles west of San Antonio. "Everything is gone. We will try and salvage what we have for hay, but as far as the grain is concerned, it is gone."

Brown said farmers began spraying 1.5 million acres of corn in the Texas Panhandle Thursday to eradicate mites that proliferate during the hot weather.

Six planes were spraying more than 1 million acres north of Amarillo, where as many as 100 grasshoppers a square yard have been reported, he said.

The danger of fires has compounded the farmers' and ranchers' problems.

Pat Ehart, head of the Texas Forest Service's fire control department, said fires in June were six times higher than normal — 63 fires over 700 acres. Normally, the service fights about 10 fires in June.

"We're coming into a severe condition, and it's a full month or two ahead of our normal fire season, which usually starts in August. We see no relief in the future," said forest service spokesman Lou Sloat. "With the Fourth of July season coming up, we're going to have some potential for some real good fires."

The hot weather's effect on employment remains to be seen, said Terence Traveland, assistant chief of the economic research division of the Texas Employment Commission.

"Obviously if this continues it will have an effect at some point on agricultural employment but we have nothing yet," he said.

John Spragins, assistant director of the Texas Tourist Development Agency, said while June figures would not be available for a month, he is certain the heat has discouraged tourists.

He said he had noticed fewer cars on the highways and fewer people in swimming pools.

If the scorching weather continues, he said, "Of course it will affect our tourism, particularly out-of-state. However, if this should break and return to normal weather there may not be much difference."

At the Dallas Zoo, attendance is about normal, said employee Ann Moore. "A lot of people come out of here red-faced, but it doesn't seem to bother them," she said.

That's not the case, however, at Texas Ranger Stadium in Arlington.

"Our attendance is off, but our club is off," said Stan McIlvaine, director of operations for the baseball team.

He attributed the low attendance to the heat — and the Rangers' low standings.

Small towns and cities are not immune from the hot, dry weather as several have asked or ordered residents to restrict water usage.

Houston Mayor Jim McConn Thursday placed restrictions on lawn watering in the state's largest city. He limited lawn sprinkling and car washing to the hours of midnight to 5 a.m. Plants may be watered between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m.

McConn received City Council authority Wednesday to invoke rationing if water demand exceeds 39 million gallons three consecutive days. Daily demand this week, as temperatures continued to hover just over 100 degrees, has ranged as high as 410 million.

5,000 expected to weather heat for Willie Nelson's last picnic

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The security began two weeks ago, state troopers are at mobile command posts, and medics are on hand with snake bite kits, disposable scalpels and oxygen.

It all starts and ends with Willie Nelson, and up to 60,000 people are expected to jam the singer-movie star's country club for Friday's eighth and final Willie Nelson Fourth of July Picnic.

"We intend to make this the smoothest picnic ever," promoters said at the beginning of a long press package that includes defense information for residents in the subdivision around the Pedernales Country Club.

Organizers say this is the last picnic.

Nelson opens the show at noon on the concert site at the seventh, eighth, and ninth fairways. A long list of other stars will keep the continuous show going until the host goes back to work at 10 p.m. for the final two hours.

Earlier in the week picnic organizers fought off rumors that the Texas heat wave would interfere with the mass gathering. There is supposed to be plenty of water on hand, but Shelly Selover of Columbia Records said wise concert-goers will bring their own water. Temperatures have topped the 100-degree mark for the past two weeks.

Mayday Medical Services, an organization specializing in first aid for large outdoor gatherings, planned to have about 120 people on hand. Mayday had some advice for Willie fans who think a cool beer might be the best thing on a hot day.

"Beer dehydrates you, so drink a glass of water for every one of those cold beers," a Mayday staffer said.

In the event of trouble, Justice of the Peace Leslie Taylor will be on hand to set bonds. The judge had planned immediate trials at the picnic site for minor offenses. Jurors were to be selected from the crowd.

However, she changed her plans this week after some lawyers said such trials might deny defendants their full rights. Her court was to be set up Thursday night. She said this idea is not "to shake down people for fines.

"I'll be there to give them an option which won't be available if I'm not there," she said.

The mobs expected to head to the country club, which is 27 miles west of Austin, forced highway officials to make detailed traffic studies. A five-page report by Travis County Engineer David Preble details the best way to handle the traffic, but concludes:

"Traffic is going to be so heavy as to congest and completely stop" on two major roads.

"I think the availability of a helicopter during the day of July 4 would be very helpful ... to spot the bottle necks and direct emergency wreckers or fire equipment on how to reach areas of need," he suggested.

Colts sprint by Red Sox for city title

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Coca-Cola Colts returned the city Little League championship to the American League for the second straight year, using a strong hitting attack in the early innings with the two-hit pitching of Jimmy Rogers and Randy Hayworth in taking a 7-2 win over the Casa Blanca-Alberto's Red Sox before a packed crowd last night in their home park.

The Colts played excellent defense in the game for all the marbles, as they were never seriously threatened in the contest.

After a scoreless first inning in which neither side reached base, the Colts used a Red Sox error along with a Harry Marquez double and a Neely McCormick single to jump out to a 2-0 lead.

The Colts, with Johnny Hobbs managing them for the 29th straight season, then scored more than enough to clinch the win in the third, as they established complete control of the contest for the city bragging rights. Jimmy Rogers opened with a single, and one out later Sam Ross was hit by a pitch from Red Sox hurler Arthur Hilario. Hayworth then doubled to plate one runner, and Marquez's two-run single gave the new city champions a 5-0 advantage. McCormick then capped the uprising with a run producing single for a 6-0 lead.

But the Red Sox came back with a slight rally in the bottom of the third. Sammy Loya reached base safely on a hard smash too hot for the Colts second sacker, and after advancing to second on a passed ball, scored on the initial Red Sox hit, a single to right-center by Chris Lopez.

Rogers was then replaced on the mound by Hayworth, who retired the next two hitters to end the threat.

Both teams settled down to play more effectively in the final three innings.

The Colts scored their final run in the fifth when Marquez, who had reached base on an error, scored on a hit to left field by Zane Rutledge.

The Red Sox came back to score an apparent run in the bottom of the fifth, but they were victimized when umpires ruled that one of their baserunners had left too soon, thus forcing the lead runner back to third.

The final Red Sox run came when Hilario, who was hit by a pitch, raced home on a double to the wall by Hugo Hernandez with nobody out in the sixth. But Hayworth retired the final three Red Sox hitters in order, the last two on strikeouts, to end the game and give the American League regular season champions the city title.

The loss ended a very successful season for the Red Sox, who had not been beaten until last night's finals.

The Colts thereby replace the Hawks of the American League as city champs. The Hawks made the playoffs, but were defeated in the opening round of play.

In the preliminary game for the consolation title, the Yankees defeated the Rangers by a score of 5-4. Both of the teams were from the National League.

GOT HIM — Red Sox base runner Chris Hill (sliding at right) is tagged out by Colts catcher Sam Ross during second inning action in last night's city championship contest at the American League Park. Watching the action is umpire Jack Griffin and Red Sox hitter Sammy Loya. Hill's attempt to score on a double steal was one of the few the Red Sox had during the evening, as the Colts won 7-2.

11 tough teams ready for Lions Club Tourney

The Cottons Chippers, managed by the legendary pitching whiz Cotton Mize, are considered the early favorites in the Fifth Annual Evening Lions Fast-Pitch Softball Tournament starting tonight at the Johnny Stone Memorial Park.

The Chippers, who currently sport a record of 26-11, are the defending champions in the affair, but will be tested by an 11-team field including some of the better teams in the West Texas-Eastern New Mexico area.

One of those teams, Lamesa Sporting Goods, is the defending state champion in their classification, and has to be considered a threat for the Lions throne.

A total of five Big Spring teams will be entered. Other than the Chippers, other local outfits entered include Pollard Chevrolet, Wes-Tex Wrecking, Quality Transport, and the Big Spring Farm Supply.

Out-of-town teams coming for the Lions Tourney include Sterling City Diamond H, Sterling City Merchants and Sterling City D&H, Tahoka Merchants, Lubbock Tornados and the San Angelo Supersports. The tournament is a double elimination event. Action begins tonight at 8:00 p.m. until midnight, and will begin again on Saturday morning at 8:00 a.m. concluding Saturday at midnight. The final game is slated for sometime Sunday afternoon.

The biggest trophies ever will be presented for the outstanding teams and individuals. First, second and third place teams will receive most handsome trophies, and each member of the champion team will receive an individual trophy.

Ten All-Tournament members will also receive trophies, as will the Most Valuable Player, the Most Valuable Pitcher, and the best dressed team.

Cottons Chippers won the trophy for the best dressed team at the recent Cotton Mize Invitational, Carlsbad, New Mexico, ended up winning that tournament.

A six-man umpiring crew, headed by Byron Harris and Larry Robard, will handle those chores.

Both the north and south parks will be utilized at Johnny Stone. Action at 8:00 tonight in the opener finds Quality Transport against Sterling City Diamond H, while Lamesa will battle Sterling City Merchants at the same time.

The Chippers will open their quest for the championship at 9:30, at which time they face San Angelo Supersports. Wes-Tex Wrecking plays Lubbock Tornados at the same time, 11:00 p.m. contests find Pollard facing the Tahoka Merchants, while the Farm Supply will meet Sterling City D and H.

Dickie Leopard heads for Irving Nimitz

ACKERLY — Dickie Leopard, head football coach at Sands High School the past two years, will be an assistant mentor at Irving Nimitz under Mike Farda.

Farda, who revamped the Colorado City program a few years back, moved to Irving Nimitz from an Oklahoma school.

"It's an opportunity I couldn't turn down," Leopard said in explaining his decision to move to Nimitz, which is a large Class AAAA school. "Farda's a very good coach, and one that is well respected. It will give me a better chance at a head coaching job at a higher classification" (than at Sands, a Class A school).

Leopard, who distinguished himself during his high school playing days at Coahoma, also expressed his desire at moving to the large Irving school. "It will be a challenge for me," he said. "I've never been involved, either as a player or a coach, at a school of that size."

Replacing Leopard will be his assistant the past two years at Sands High, Jimmy White.

Leopard took over the Sands program during a deep depression in regard to the fortunes of the Mustang program, two years ago, but sees progress was made. The Mustangs won only two games the past fall, but were much more competitive than in past years.

The former Sands grid mentor feels that the 1980 team should experience more success, too. "They've got a schedule in which they could win quite a few games," he said.

Leopard is married to a former Big Springer, Carla Sundry.

MISSED THIS TIME — Colts hitter Randy Hayworth misses a pitch from Red Sox hurler Arthur Olague during second inning action in last night's city championship contest played at the American League Park. Hayworth did enjoy damage, however, scoring twice and hurling the last three and two-thirds innings as the Colts captured the city title with a 7-2 win.

International League offers praise for help

The International Little League came close to folding the past year, but thanks to some much needed help from the Federal Prison Camp, did not.

International League President Terry Forrest expressed his deep gratitude earlier in the week for the efforts of many of the people involved with the FCC, for their efforts helped the Little League circuit in many ways.

Charlie Johnson, President of the Camp JCs, organized the work. Efforts were made to improve not only the field, but the concession stand, press box and seating arrangements.

Those mentioned in many instances included Johnny Smith and Ken Sears, as well as Wendell (Howard Cozell of the International League) Jones, among others.

'Baddest Man in Town' gets state boxing OK

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State officials have licensed 28 novice fighters for a "Baddest Man in Town" boxing contest next week in Corpus Christi.

Henry Villagomez, assistant director of the Department of Labor and Standards, said Wednesday officials and equipment will be checked before the final OK is given for the fights.

The contest features inexperienced fighters competing for a $1,000 prize. The runnerup will get $500.

McCovey makes giant waves in final home appearance

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rennie Stennett hit a two-run single in the first inning and Willie McCovey drove in a run in the third in his final home game as the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 Thursday.

Stennett's hit, which drove in Joe Strain and Jack Clark, gave the Giants a 2-0 lead that they never relinquished. However, the day belonged to McCovey, who will play the final three games of his career this weekend in Los Angeles.

Chrissie rallies to oust Navratilova at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Being Wimbledon champion doesn't make you popular with the tennis fans.

The crowd at Center Court Thursday cheered madly for Chris Evert Lloyd as she defeated Martina Navratilova, champion for the last two years.

"They are more for me now that I am not winning all the time than when I was the champion," said Lloyd.

"Maybe it was because I married an Englishman. Or maybe just because I was the underdog."

Lloyd came from a losing position in the second set to win 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 in a fluctuating semifinal that aroused the crowd's emotions. Navratilova, whose serve and volley game made her the world's No. 1 woman player on grass the last two years, slid to defeat after leading 3-1 in the second set and 40-15 on Lloyd's service.

Bjorn Borg, going for his fifth straight men's crown, downed unseeded Brian Gottfried 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 to reach the final.

Borg will play either No. 3 Jimmy Connors or No. 2 John McEnroe, who meet in the second semifinal Friday. Connors defeated Roscoe Tanner, last year's defeated finalist, 1-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Navratilova said the final will depend on Goolagong, the elegant but unpredictable Australian.

"It's all up to Evonne," Navratilova said. "Chris is steady. Evonne is up and Have fans stuffed All-Star ballots?

America's baseball fans have successfully folded, spindled and mutilated the computer-card All-Star vote. How else can you explain some of the selections for Tuesday night's game in Los Angeles?

Garry Templeton, shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals, will not be there. He is easily the best player at his position, certainly in the National League and perhaps in all of baseball. He finished third in the fans' balloting.

Templeton led the vote most of the way but wound up being beaten by — believe this if you can — Bill Russell of Los Angeles and Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati. Templeton is the No. 2 hitter in the National League at 326, compared to Russell's 293.

Would the Cardinals consider trading their shortstop even up for LA's man? Sure, if the Dodgers throw in the parking receipts from Chavez Ravine.

Templeton, given to putting now and then, greeted news of Russell's election by saying, "It's a joke."

A year ago, he had one of baseball's most quotable lines, turning down All Star status by saying, "If I ain't startin', I ain't departin'."

But this game is in Dodger Stadium, and there is some evidence of ballot-box stuffing in Tinseltown. The first exhibit is Russell's selection at shortstop. The second is Dodger Steve Yeager's runnerup finish as catcher with 2,119,196 votes, just 60,000 short of starter Johnny Bench. The man who ought to be starting, Ted Simmons of St. Louis, finished third, just like his teammate, Templeton.

Yeager is batting 194. He has assembled 19 hits this season, an average of six per month. He received roughly 111,000 votes for each of those hits.

Then we have the matter of second base for the National League where Davey Lopes, another Dodger, will start. He received 3,862,403 votes, the most for any player on the ballot, and thus wins the Gillette Trophy presented to the popular-vote champion. To earn this honor, Lopes has batted .245.

The leading hitter in the National League is first baseman Keith Hernandez of St. Louis, the defending batting champion and co-Most Valuable Player a year ago. He, like the other top Cardinal candidates, finished a badly beaten third in the balloting.

Of the top 10 hitters in the National League Thursday morning, only one — Reggie Smith — is in the starting lineup for the All-Star game. Smith, of course, has the good sense to work for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Hooray for Hollywood. The American League isn't in much better shape, through no fault of the fans. The first three hitters in the top 10 did win election but two of them — Milwaukee second baseman Paul Molitor and Kansas City third baseman George Brett — are on the disabled list and will miss the game.

But Bucky Dent of the New York Yankees will start at shortstop, elected with a plurality of some 444,000 votes, despite the fact that he's hitting only .256 to 330 for Robin Yount of Milwaukee and 323 for Detroit's Alan Trammell, both of whom were chosen as backups.

Don't blame the strange complexion of the teams completely on the fan vote, though. AL Manager Earl Weaver did some funny things completing his squad.

He needed a man from Seattle and picked pitcher Rick Honeycutt, who has lost five straight and six of his last seven decisions. If the All-Star Game had been played in April or May, Honeycutt was your man when he'd won six straight. But it's in July. Why not Glenn Abbott, 7-3, if he wanted a pitcher, or Tom Paciorek, batting .333, from the Mariners?

He needed a man from Oakland and chose outfielder Rickey Henderson, essentially for his 33 stolen bases. Why not pitcher Mike Norris, 10-5 with a 2.55 earned-run average, or Tony Armas with 14 homers and 50 runs batted in?

Where's Boston's Tony Perez, leading the AL with 58 runs batted in? Where's Kansas City's John Wathan, batting .330 and a major factor in the Royals' dash to the top of the AL West?

Where are all the All Stars?

Ziegler's hot in Western Open

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Larry Ziegler fired a course record 31 on the back side with five straight birdies and shot a 3-under-par 69 Thursday to share the first-round lead of the Western Open with two other tournament-hardened pros.

Ziegler, a non-winner since 1976, posted 38-31 in the morning over the standard 36-36-72 Butler National course. He was tied in the afternoon by Hale Irwin, 1979 U.S. Open champion, with 35-34, and Tom Kite with 36-33.

Some of the diseased greens on the 7,067-yard course look as if they have been torched, but the low scorers in an opening day of perfect weather found them not too troublesome.

Dear Abby

Fascination with Fat Needs Trimming

DEAR ABBY I am a 29 year old bachelor with a problem concerning my preference in women. I am not a weirdo or kook who goes in for kinky sex. I am a normal, fairly successful professional man.

To get to the point, normal size women do nothing for me. It takes a fat woman to really turn me on. I don't mean one who is pleasingly plump. I mean a very obese woman — and the bigger the better.

The most satisfying sexual experience I've ever had was with a woman so fat that her belly practically hung down to her knees. (I never knew exactly how much she weighed, but she had to be at least 400 pounds.) Most men would probably have found her repulsive, but to me she was wonderfully exciting. Of course, I'd never been in public with such a woman.

I am not proud of the fact that I am ashamed to be seen with women whom I find fascinating in private. Should I see a psychiatrist about my unusual preference?

WITHHOLD NAME AND CITY

DEAR WITHHOLD: Yes, since you are ashamed of your preference and probably would be happier were you able to function as well with a "normal-size" woman. I see nothing wrong with your fascination for fat females, but there is something cruel and exploitive about using them only as sex objects.

DEAR ABBY I think anyone who starts his lawn mower before 8 a.m. should be shot! Whatever happened to common courtesy? What if a neighbor was up all night with a sick child? What if a neighbor works the night shift? What if a neighbor has a long awaited, well-earned day off, and wants to catch up on a few extra hours of sleep?

I've never heard of anyone getting a prize for the first lawn mowed in the morning, and I've been at it for 35 years. "Love thy neighbor" includes consideration of this sort. Please print this, the offending neighbor never misses reading your column — nor do I.

SLEEPY TIME GAL

DEAR GAL: According to my mail, the early morning mowing problem is a chronic pain in the ear to many. I don't recommend shooting at sunrise anyone who mows at that hour, but your complaint is valid, so call on your neighbor and ask (civily) for a little more consideration.

DEAR ABBY Whenever I ask my wife how she feels, she says, "I'm tired." Abby, I am so tired of hearing her say she's tired. I am at the end of my rope.

I help with the cooking and cleaning and make no special demands on her, so I can't be for the life of me understand what she has to be so tired about. Is this normal?

Please don't suggest that I stop asking her how she feels, because if I do she will think I no longer care. We have been married almost 25 years.

CARING HUSBAND

DEAR CARING: Everyone gets tired occasionally, but to be chronically tired is not normal. I urge you to insist that your wife see her doctor for a thorough physical checkup before she gets too tired to go. Her chronic fatigue could be due to boredom, poor nutrition, insomnia, insufficient exercise, menopause or a symptom of a serious medical problem. Don't put it off.

CONFIDENTIAL to those who have sent for Abby's booklets: Please, please be patient. I am literally deluged with orders and am getting them out as quickly as possible.

Bay windows, attics, stairs reborn in houses of the '80's

AUSTIN, Texas — Designs for houses in the 1980's will be characterized by a concern for the quality of life and a style of architecture which "doesn't turn its back on the past," a University of Texas associate professor of architecture predicted recently.

Speaking to participants in "Update '80," an alumni program sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education and the UT Extension Students' Association, James Coote said that, without a doubt, a major theme in the 80's will be reaction against the wasteful use of resources, both in the kinds of materials used to build houses and the process of building itself.

"Most architects now are getting intensely involved in these kinds of ideas," Mr. Coote said as he outlined solar energy devices being used now. Private homes designed by Charles Moore, Turner Brooks, Steve Baer, Charles Schultz, Frank Gehry, Robert Venturi and Michael Graves were among those selected by Mr. Coote as designs which "illuminate some aspect of the future" of architectural design.

A black, barn-like cluster of California condominiums (by Charles Moore and partners) is evidence of "a new kind of sensibility, in which the past is respected," he said.

Attics, bay windows, towers, stairs, cozy fireplaces and homey materials are being reborn, Mr. Coote said, as are old-fashioned energy-saving devices such as shutters, and porches.

"Inclusivism," a style which "includes as many things as possible," is another future trend, he said, in contrast to the starkness of designs by the French architect Le Corbusier and the American designer Frank Lloyd Wright.

A homeowner's personal mementos and trinkets, which would have been banished by Le Corbusier ("He allowed only one very special object, preferably an El Greco original.") can now be included in the living space, Mr. Coote added.

Use of color, sometimes in imitation of the natural landscape around the home, also will characterize homes of the 80's, the architecture professor suggested, explaining that Michael Graves has used earth tones near the ground, intermediate colors higher and blue to light purple hues toward the sky in painting a home's exterior.

Decorations, not used at all by the pioneer designers Wright and Le Corbusier, "has become an issue of the 70's," said Mr. Coote.

"Of late, people have realized that's a very limiting attitude," he reported. "Why not use color and patterns?"

Homeowners with the money to afford custom-designed dwellings may find themselves looking at walls of exposed concrete or corrugated industrial metal, he said. The trend-setting architect Frank Gehry is now exploring "the possibilities of commonly ignored materials, which he believes may be enjoyed for their own qualities," he noted.

The Harry Ransom Center on the UT campus has exposed concrete walls, Mr. Coote pointed out.

Increasingly, homes will be designed with the idea of "adding a dimension of spiritual or emotional satisfaction" for the occupant, Mr. Coote predicted.

"I'm not suggesting we all move in tomorrow," he told the audience. "What I am suggesting is that in your own homes, you can look at what you do have in a new light."

Criticism resented

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am writing to you because you always put marijuana smokers down. Well, I have smoked pot for a couple of years and even smoked it with people your age (I think you are in your 40s).

Do you really think pot-heads will stop smoking just because you don't approve? If you can't say anything good about marijuana, don't always criticize it.

Us marijuana smokers don't bother you so why don't you stop bothering us? Think whatever you want about pot, but please keep it to yourself. — Pothead, Huntsville, Ala.

Pothead: I am not putting marijuana smokers down, I'm putting marijuana smoking down. I will never approve of the intake of dangerous drugs or anything else that is a hazard to life or limb.

Dr. Wallace: Our girlfriend is dating a half-breed. We have been telling her that she is cute enough to get a full-breed (a white guy). Her mom refuses to allow her to see this guy but she sneaks around and sees him anyway.

Personally, I don't want to be her friend anymore because it might hurt my reputation. Should I just stop seeing her or should I tell her why I won't be her friend? — DeDe, Zanesville, Ohio

DeDe: If this girl is seeing a full-breed, half-breed, quarter-breed or any other breed, what does this have to do with your friendship? Don't be a "fair weather" friend.

But if you do decide to end your friendship with this girl, have the courage to tell her the reason and do it privately.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 25-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

TBEA selects local woman as conference delegate

Doris Huibregtse was selected by Texas Business Education Association as a delegate to the 19th Annual Mountain-Plains Business Education Association's Leadership Training Conference, which was held at the Holiday Inn Downtown in El Paso on June 25-26.

M-PBEA is a professional business educators' organization which includes members from a nine-state area — Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Wyoming.

The selection of the delegates was based on leadership potential and professional endeavors in business education. Three were selected from each of the nine states.

The Leadership Training Conference was directed by Joseph Nebel, Omaha Public Schools, Omaha, Neb., who is past president of M-PBEA. Frosty Troy, editor of The Oklahoma Observer, Oklahoma City, Okla., was the dynamic consultant for this conference on "Dimensions in Leadership."

Dr. Doris Slaaten, Minot

State College, Minot, N.D., conducted a session on "Parliamentary Procedure Techniques," and Dr. Marcella Mouser, Emporia State University, Emporia, Kans., spoke on "Professionalism in Business Education."

Other topics were "How the Effective Leader Manages Time" by Dr. Dennis Mott, Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, Okla., and "Effective Convention Planning" by Dr. Oscar Schuette, Metropolitan State College, Denver, Colo.

Mother's Day experiment becomes rewarding hobby

Ex-highway patrolman Larry Christensen likes to think small.

Formerly of Utah, Christensen now farms in the Knott Community but claims he's an artist at heart. His specialty is miniatures, including jewelry.

Several years ago Christensen decided to paint a picture on a necklace for Mother's Day. The task, although tedious, proved to be rewarding and his interest spread to painting on other smaller objects, including cigarette lighters, pens and cuff links.

"I like to use a porcelain base," stated Christensen. He and his wife, Harvelyn, experimented with china paints, but they scratched easily. Each painting had to be fired and cooled.

"We used an epoxy glaze on the paintings and it proved excellent," he added. The glaze doesn't chip, according to Christensen, and is almost as resistant to wear as the fired porcelain paintings.

Christensen, the father of three, is a graduate of Brigham Young University with a degree in art. He and his family moved to Texas approximately eight months ago.

What started as just a Mother's Day gift has expanded into almost a full-time hobby.

The public is invited to view Christensen's work on display at Art 'N' Craft World in the College Park Shopping Center.

He will be teaching there each Wednesday and Thursday night.

For more information about the class, contact Sherry Hodnett at 263-0591 or (915) 965-3470.

Mickie Dickson

For Mickie Dickson, working at the Herald is the fulfillment of a long-time dream.

"I wanted to write for a newspaper since I was a senior in high school," Mickie commented. Her dream came true about a year and a half ago.

She was hired as the assistant family page editor. Her responsibilities include writing family and home related feature stories, typing up club reports and weddings and engagements. Mickie fills in when the family page editor, Robbi Crow, is absent.

Mickie is a graduate of Norman High School in Oklahoma. She attended the University of Oklahoma and the Blackwood Business College in Oklahoma City. She has taken the Dale Carnegie and Dorothy Carnegie courses and journalism courses at Howard College.

Past experience includes working for several years in an optician's office in Oklahoma City and in the accounting department of the Oklahoma Allergy Clinic. She was also a secretary to the reimbursement officer at the Mental Health Center in Norman.

She is a member of the First Church of God, where she sings in the choir and teaches a Sunday School Class of junior girls. She is also the president of the Women of the Church of God.

Mickie is active in the community by belonging to the Eagle Forum.

Her plans for the future revolve around her job and writing. "I plan to keep on writing for the Herald and may do some free lance writing in the future."

New ruling won't give prosecutors advantage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The judge who penned the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals opinion giving prosecutors the right to appeal cases to the U.S. Supreme Court says the decision will have little effect on the state's judicial system.

"They have already been doing this," Judge Wendell Odom said Thursday.

However, the president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association predicted the 5-4 ruling will give the prosecution an added advantage.

"Most defendants, other than Cullen Davis, don't have enough money to fight prosecutors," said Robert Jones of Austin.

The court ruled Wednesday that Gregg County District Attorney Odus Hill could ask the U.S. Supreme Court to consider the case against Joseph Faulder, sentenced to die for the 1975 murder of Inez Phillips, the widow of a former Gladewater mayor.

The Court of Criminal Appeals previously reversed the conviction, saying Faulder's confession was taken in violation of the U.S. Constitution. In its Wednesday ruling, the court said Hill had the right to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to decide federal issues raised in the case.

Odom said, "I see practically no effect," from the decision.

Prosecutors already have taken a few cases to Washington, he said. Wednesday's major decision was required because it was the first time a defendant asked for a writ of prohibition against a prosecution appeal.

Odom said the ruling would affect less than half the cases reversed each year by the Court of Criminal Appeals. The court reverses about 9 percent of the cases it hears. He disagreed with Judge John Onion who said the ruling would spark an "avalanche" of appeals of prosecutors.

A lawyer for the Texas District and County Attorneys Association said the opinion — which brought shrieks of dissent from some of the judges — would not do much to change the system.

"It costs an awful lot of money to take a case to the Supreme Court," said Mike McCormick. "Most prosecutors will be very reluctant to take any frivolous cases up."

McCormick is the Democratic nominee for the Court of Criminal Appeals seat now held by Judge W.T. Phillips, who dissented in the decision.

McCormick said prosecutors probably will not gamble on a U.S. Supreme Court ruling. He said a district attorney would go to Washington only when "he knows he has it in the bag," or in cases where obtaining a conviction on retrial might be different.

The Faulder case might fit into that second category, Hill said it would be difficult to convict Faulder if the confession is not allowed as evidence.

In the statement, Faulder said he broke into the home and beat and stabbed Mrs. Phillips during a robbery.

"Without the confession the evidence would be very circumstantial," Hill said, adding his chances of getting the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case are slim.

He does not feel he is violating the Texas Constitution's ban on appeals by the prosecution.

"The state constitution only applies from one state court to another," he said.

However, Faulder's lawyer agreed with Judge Truman Roberts who said the decision, in effect, rewrites the Texas Constitution.

"I realize the court has the right to interpret the state constitution, I don't think it has the right to ignore it," said Vernard Solomon, a former Harrison County district attorney.

Later Thursday, a West Texas prosecutor who was chastised by the Court of Criminal Appeals for bypassing it and going to the Supreme Court with an appeal in 1978 said, "What the decision does is reassure prosecutors who want to follow the federal law."

"They now know they can resort to the Supreme Court without fear of some sort of sanction by the Court of Criminal Appeals," Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis said.

In the case Curtis took to Washington, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the Court of Criminal Appeal's reversal of a forgery conviction.

Curtis bypassed the Court of Criminal Appeals by getting the trial judge to delay setting a retrial date.

"It had not occurred to me you needed the Court of Criminal Appeal's permission to follow a federal statute as to what the Supreme Court can review," he said.

After the Supreme Court action in the forgery case, the Court of Criminal Appeals said it would not entertain any more appeals of that type.

Curtis was on a panel that formulated a proposed Texas Constitution amendment to be voted on in November. If approved, and if enabling legislation is hammered out, points of law could be appealed by the defense or prosecution before a verdict is reached.

Jobless rate is sliding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate unexpectedly edged down to 7.7 percent in June, but the 0.1 percent dip from May masked a spreading erosion of jobs caused by the recession, the government said Thursday.

Total employment fell by 451,000 in June, with large numbers of layoffs reaching out broadly beyond the auto and housing industries for the first time since the economic downturn began this year, the Labor Department said.

And, for the first time in 20 years, the jobless rate for men surpassed that for women, as the early effects of the recession exacted a heavier toll on male-dominated industries, the department said.

In other economic developments Thursday:

—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board authorized federal savings and loan associations to begin issuing credit cards to their 22 million customers. The board also proposed rules that would allow interest-bearing checking accounts by the end of the year and authorized the start of other customer services that will make thrift institutions more competitive with commercial banks.

—The Federal Reserve Board announced it would complete a phaseout of special credit controls it put into effect in March, now that the measures have contributed to an easing of inflation and a deeper-than-anticipated recession. The board cut the credit restraints in half in late May after they began producing their desired effect of cooling consumer and business credit demand.

The Labor Department said the decline in the jobless rate between May and June likely was a statistical fluke. The latest figures followed an unprecedented surge in unemployment from 6.2 percent in March to 7.8 percent in May, but department analysts said Thursday that they may have overestimated the May rate.

WHERE IS THE WEIGH STATION? — This city limit sign on Hwy. 6, south of College Station seems to post a warning to passing truckers. The sign fails to express the fears of city and county officials who warn of the dangers stemming from the use of fireworks in connection with the Fourth of July holiday due to the hot dry weather Texas is experiencing this month.

No concession seen in 'new' Soviet position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carter administration officials said Thursday there is no major concession in the new Soviet position on negotiations to limit intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

The mere expression of willingness to negotiate on something everyone agrees should be negotiated is no marvelous concession, said one State Department official, who asked not to be identified.

Publicly, the administration said only that the new Soviet position would be studied "in a constructive spirit" by the NATO alliance.

The Soviets earlier this week told West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt that they were no longer insisting that NATO suspend its decision to install 572 new, intermediate-range missiles in Europe before negotiations to limit that class of weapons could begin.

The West Germans relayed the Soviet position to Washington Wednesday, and Schmidt made it public in a speech to the Bundestag on Thursday.

One State Department official speculated that the Soviets changed their position to "reward" Schmidt for being independent of the U.S. and visiting Moscow at a time when the U.S. favors limiting high-level contacts with the Soviets because of Afghanistan.

The U.S. officials said there were many aspects of the Soviet position they still found vague and unclear. Until those aspects are clarified, they said, they could not speculate on whether negotiations might begin.

"We'll try to follow it up and see what they have in mind," one official said. But he added that no meetings with the Soviets to discuss the matter have yet been arranged.

Spokesman John Trattner said it was likely that the administration would send a delegation to Europe to consult with other NATO countries about the alliance's response.

The whole question of intermediate-range nuclear weapons is "intensely complex," one official said, and the willingness to negotiate only forces East and West to confront a number of difficult problems.

Thus far, nuclear arms control negotiations have been limited to "strategic weapons," which are defined as those missiles and bombers with intercontinental range.

Death toll at 14; officials fear rise

By the Associated Press

"This could be a long hot summer," the National Weather Service said Thursday as Oklahoma entered its 11th day of 100-degree-plus heat.

Oklahoma City set a record Thursday when the mercury climbed to 105, tying a record set for the date in 1894.

Tulsa reported a 103 Thursday afternoon.

A high record was also set Wednesday when the temperature in Oklahoma City also reached 105. The previous record was 103 set in 1931. Tulsa registered 104 and its lowest temperature today was 80.

The overnight low in Oklahoma City was 76 and by 9 a.m. the mercury had climbed to 88 in Oklahoma City and 84 in Tulsa. Oklahoma's death toll from the heat officially stood at 14, but that figure could rise as doctors report further cases to health officials.

The state medical examiner's office in Tulsa reported seven heat-related deaths and six were reported by the office in Oklahoma City. Also, a Fort Sill soldier died in a Texas hospital. In addition, two persons were found dead Wednesday in Lawton and officials said autopsies probably would add them to the heat toll.

Water problems have been reported in Tulsa, McAlester, Noble and Cache. Voluntary rationing is underway in Tulsa and McAlester.

Noble, in southern Cleveland County, has run out of water. The town's two water tanks are empty and the only water is in the lines.

Noble police are enforcing a ban on washing cars, filling pools and other non-household uses, Noble Clerk Margaret Leslie said.

She said Noble doesn't even have any water to fight a fire.

Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co., which serves a good portion of central Oklahoma, said the hot weather has caused record demand and consumption of electricity.

On Wednesday, demand was 4.23 million kilowatts, with the 24-hour consumption at 81.3 million kilowatt hours.

The peak last year was set on July 13, with a demand of 3.81 million kilowatts and a 24-hour consumption of 72.6 million kilowatt hours.

Fifteen grass fires — all caused by fireworks — were reported Wednesday night in Lawton.

One agricultural official estimated 450,000 chickens died in a single sweltering afternoon.

Thousands of turkeys have also succumbed to the heat.

The weather service said Oklahoma has a long way to go to tie the record of number of plus 100-degree days.

The record was set in 1936, when Oklahoma City registered 22 consecutive days when the mercury was above 100.

The record of that year of 113, still stands as the hottest temperature recorded in Oklahoma City.

In 1966, there were 19 consecutive days of plus 100 temperatures from July 1-July 19.

Sixteen consecutive days of 100 or higher temperatures were reported in 1943 and 1956.

Dance is held for elderly

Senior citizens danced to a band provided by the Big Spring Prison recently at the Nutritional Health Site at the old Officers' Club at the Industrial Park.

The band, which played country music, was sponsored by the Big Spring Jaycees. The group included four musicians and an announcer who played old time favorites for the 70 who attended.

The dance class is held each Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Nutritional Health Site for the benefit of the Senior Citizens who want to learn to dance and for the pleasure of those that just want to practice what they already know. Any person over the age of 60 is welcome to attend. There is no charge.

J.V. Cherry is asking $15,000 from Basin Construction Inc., for injuries sustained when Cherry was allegedly struck by a Basin vehicle.

The 70-year-old Cherry claims he sustained injury to his knees and neck when he was struck at the intersection of Lancaster and W. 4th. Steve Foster was driving the Basin vehicle March 1, 1979 when the accident allegedly happened.

Y aquatic programs scheduled

The Big Spring YMCA is now taking registration for the next term of its aquatic programs, scheduled July 7-July 31. The YMCA teaches all levels, six-months to adult.

Preschool level classes are water babies, 6 months to 36 months, and Tadpoles, three-five years old. Water babies classes are Tuesday and Thursday, 6:30-7:15 p.m. A parent must be with the child in the water. Cloth diapers and rubber pants are required on the infants. Tadpoles classes are also Tuesday and Thursday, 6:30 p.m. and at this level of instruction, the child is taught basic swimming skills and personal safety skills ie. floating.

Older youth, six-years-old and above, are enrolled in the YMCA progressive program. The beginners or Polliwogs, meet on Tuesday and Thursday, 4:30-5 p.m. They learn personal water safety and elementary life-saving. Minnows, or advanced beginners meet on Tuesday and Thursday 5-5:30 p.m.

They learn additional strokes, floating and improve their endurance. Fish, Flying Fish and Shark classes are on Tuesday and Thursday, 5:30-6 p.m. They learn additional strokes and skills and to broaden knowledge of all water safety.

The fee for any YMCA youth swim instruction class is $3, $15 for non-YMCA members. For additional information call 267-8234.

Founding fathers lived to productive, ripe old ages

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — How fared the Founding Fathers after that frantic first Fourth of July in Philadelphia in 1776, when nobody set off firecrackers but everyone swatted at the flies coming in the Statehouse window from the livery stable next door? Many lived to an astonishingly productive old age.

Benjamin Franklin, then 70, went on to help write the Constitution and died at 84, his last act being an appeal to Congress for a speedy end to slavery.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both became presidents of the U.S. and both died on July 4, 1826, 50 years to the day after the second Continental Congress finally approved the Declaration of Independence they had largely brought about.

Adams died at 91, Jefferson at 83. In the winter of their lives, at the instigation of Dr. Benjamin Rush, a Declaration signer who called them "the North and South poles of the American Revolution," these two old adversaries reconciled their differences in a correspondence that is one of the glories of American letters.

"You and I ought not to die until we have explained ourselves to each other," Adams wrote in 1811.

And so they did explain themselves to each other, the New England Christian moralist and the Virginia secular democrat, comparing ideas on religion, philosophy, science, slavery, the excesses of the French Revolution, the growing pains of the new Republic, their conflicting theories of popular government and the increasing infirmities of old age until the letters grew fewer. And the end for them both came as cannons boomed and churchbells — some of them cast by Paul Revere — clanged out a birthday salute to the nation.

"Jefferson still lives" were Adams last words. He was wrong. Jefferson had died a few hours before, although diehard Federalist detractors spread the rumor he had taken some laudanum, an opium-based hallucinogen, to steal the final curtain from Adams on that 50th Fourth.

James Monroe died on the Fourth of July five years later, age 73.

Paul Revere lived to 83. Besides turning out church bells and cannons and fine silverware, he busied himself in his old age making boilers for something Robert

Fulton called a steamboat. James Madison died at 85, after following Jefferson to the White House and as president of the University of Virginia.

Tom Paine died penniless, alone, forgotten at age 72 in New Rochelle, N.Y. His body was lost when a friend attempted to transfer it to a more dignified grave in England.

Broke but beloved everywhere in the land, the Marquis de Lafayette returned from France in 1824 at age 67 with a son named George Washington Lafayette and a handsome young Scottish mistress, Frances Wright, for a triumphant and garishly

eventful tour. Congress awarded him

$200,000, a whole township in Florida, a ride home on a Navy frigate and a glittering New Year's Day banquet.

State might require test for new boxers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State officials looking to stop the spread of "Tough Guys" boxing contests might adopt rules requiring inexperienced boxers to take a sparring test.

Director Bob Busse of the Boxing and Wrestling Division of the Texas Department of Labor and Standards said Thursday a "Baddest Man in Town" contest scheduled for Tuesday in Corpus Christi apparently will meet all state requirements.

But those rules might be tightened to prevent any similar contests in the future, he said.

The contest was postponed in June when Attorney General Mark White filed suit against the promoters. Busse said the contests,

Author of Aggie War Hymn dies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP)—J.V. "Pinky" Wilson, who wrote the Aggie War Hymn while serving in the front line trenches during World War I, died Thursday in Burnet. He was 83.

The famous Texas Aggie fight song has been part of Texas A&M University football since 1921.

Services for the retired rancher and 1920 A&M graduate are set for 10 a.m. Saturday in Burnet.

Wilson was a Marine Corps private in November 1918, when he wrote the words and music to the song on the back of a letter from home.

The song was finished in the Argonne Forest near the end of the war.

Wilson was adept on several musical instruments. A regular singer in quartets, he committed the song to memory and discarded the letter.

He is survived by his wife Irma, a son, Joe P. Wilson of Roanoke, and four grandchildren.

HCA, General Care Corp., announce merger agreement

Hospital Corporation of America, of which Malone-Hogan Hospital of Big Spring is an affiliate, and General Care Corporation have jointly announced the signing of a definitive merger agreement for the acquisition of General Care of HCA. Upon consummation of the merger, HCA will pay $18 per share in cash for each outstanding share of General Care common stock. Total value of the acquisition will be approximately $78 million. Spokesmen for HCA and General Care indicated that completion of the merger is subject to certain conditions and compliance with various regulatory requirements, including approval by holders of at least 60 percent of General Care common stock at a special shareholder meeting expected to be held later this summer. In addition, HCA and General Care indicated that consents to the merger have been received from substantially all the owners of undivided property interests in General Care hospitals. Thomas F. Frist Jr., M.D., president of HCA, said that he is looking forward to the consummation of the merger. General Care chairman Marvin P. Friedman stated that General Care's board of directors unanimously approved the merger agreement and intends to recommend approval of the merger to its shareholders. General Care owns a majority interest in eight acute-care hospitals, boasting approximately 1,300 beds. HCA operates 158 hospitals with approximately 24,000 beds. Both HCA and General Care common stocks are listed on the New York Stock exchange. HCA has also signed a definitive merger agreement for the acquisition of seven hospitals owned by General Health Services, Inc., subject to certain conditions and compliance with various regulatory requirements. Completion of the merger will also depend upon approval by a majority of the GHS stockholders at a special shareholder meeting expected to be held later this summer. Leon Hamlin, President of GHS, stated that the GHS board of directors unanimously approved the merger agreement and intends to recommend approval of the merger to its shareholders. GHS common stock is traded NASDAQ (GHSL). The seven hospitals operated by GHS have approximately 1,300 beds.

City will spend $20,000 soon to plug holes in water system

The city will spend $20,000 soon to try to plug some of the holes in the water system, said City Manager Don Davis, today. "We have several thousands of dollars budgeted for replacing pipes, but we have been so busy patching the leaks, we haven't had time to spend the money," said Davis. He has authorized Assistant City Manager Bill Brown to solicit quotes from private contractors to do the work. Approximately $12,000 will be spent on labor, while about $8,000 will go for materials, said Davis. "We know where the hot spots are, and we will start there. This is just a start, but it may give us some relief," he added. June was the worst month ever for leaks in the city's water system. Officials received well over 500 trouble calls, when 200 calls are considered excessive, according to Brown. A committee appointed earlier this year to study the city's water system recommended that nearly $1.5 million be spent to improve or replace distribution pipes. Davis estimated that even that much wouldn't completely revamp the system, "but it would certainly help." "We will probably plan on spending between $40,000 and $50,000 a year on system improvements. We will have to replace pipes all over town, and get away from just patching them. Right now, in a lot of cases, we are putting clamps on top of clamps," said Davis.

Dr. Ferguson relieved of duties as superintendent of BSSH

Dr. Grace Ferguson, superintendent of the Big Spring State Hospital since 1977, has been relieved of her duties, effective immediately.

Kent Johnson of Austin, head of the legal division for the State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, made the announcement this morning, adding:

"Dr. Ferguson is on administrative leave with pay until July 31, 1980, at which time her employment with Big Spring State Hospital will terminate."

Dr. Wallace C. Hunter, staff psychiatrist and a former superintendent of the local hospital, has been appointed acting superintendent of BSSH by John J. Kavanaugh, MD, chairman of the State Department of MHMR.

New publication debuts today in local trade area

A brand-new publication, named "The Window Shopper," makes its debut in the Big Spring trade area today.

The 12-page publication will be choc-full of local news and advertising bargains offered by local merchants.

It will be delivered directly by special couriers to 5,000 homes in Glasscock and Martin counties, as well as to residences in Howard County. It will be published each Thursday, appearing on that day so that families can count on it as an integral part of their shopping missions in Big Spring.

Fourteen advertisers are combining to help bring the initial "Window Shopper" to you.

Advertisers in the publication are making it available to readers without charge.

"Leukemia Research Hitch-A-Thon: Gloucester Engineer to San Francisco," the signs reads. The man holding the sign is a blond-headed slender man in his late 30s. He is a chief technician in the British Royal Air Force, and he is intent on crossing 5,000 miles of the continental United States by thumb and foot.

"I am hitchhiking from Washington, D.C., to San Francisco," said David O'Brien of Gloucester, England. "I have been promised $6,000 if I can complete the trip." The money, he added, will go to the Leukemia Research Fund in Great Britain.

O'Brien landed in our nation's capital June 20 and started his trek the following day. The executive director of the American Society for Leukemia, James Fitzgerald, gave him his first ride, which was for 35 miles.

The next ride was given by one of the two ladies, who, pardon the expression, have picked him up so far.

"She was a school mistress," O'Brien said. "She said her husband would kill her if she picked up a hitchhiker." The lady, nevertheless, asked for O'Brien's address, so she could write him and his family later.

On his first day, O'Brien made 404 miles, all the way to Columbus, Ohio. It took him five days to make it to Texas, being left off in Dallas.

He has been in the Lone Star State five days, traveling from the Big "D" to Houston, then San Antonio, San Angelo and Big Spring. He hoped to make it to Amarillo by yesterday's nightfall.

The heat has been the most amazing aspect of his Texas experience.

"It is unbelievable," he said. "The first day it was 115 degrees in Dallas." In comparison to his home, the temperature in Texas "is about 40 degrees higher," O'Brien said.

The Lone Star State has been the setting of an alarming experience for

O'Brien. "I was frightened Friday when the guy gave me a trip from Dallas to Houston," O'Brien said. "I am not used to a guy taking out a 44 (pistol) and putting it in his glove compartment."

O'Brien thought of Trans-America hitchhike about a year ago.

"I had a death in the family from leukemia," O'Brien said. "18 months ago my mother died." After that experience, O'Brien became involved in efforts toward curing leukemia. This involvement, he said, "snowballed."

There are practical reasons why the British man came across the Atlantic instead of thumbing his way across Europe.

"It wasn't possible to hitchhike on the continent (Europe)," he said. "I would have language problems over there. O'Brien is functional in French and German, but the other languages, such as Spanish or the Slavic tongues, he can not speak."

He added that problems would arise with him trying to cross Communist countries.

O'Brien carries a 70-pound pack and does not carry much money.

"I only carry with me roughly $40," he said. He eats twice a day, hearty breakfast and a healthy dinner. During the middle of the day, he subsists on "liquids and sweets."

For lodging, he stays in either hotels or motels or at someone's house. News media persons have put him up for a night on two occasions.

He keeps track of his mileage by verification slips, with each driver signing his name to the number of miles taken.

O'Brien also keeps a diary-like account of his experiences and may write a book of his experience once back home. One thing that book will contain, he said, is commentary on CB radio talk, which is an American institution that fascinates him.

Into Big Spring, a total of 31 drivers

DENVER BOUND — David O'Brien, a technician from Gloucester, England with the British Royal Air Force had his thumb up and out in Big Spring, Monday waiting for a lift to Lubbock. O'Brien is currently making a 5,000-mile hitchhike across the continental United States for the British Leukemia Fund.

had given him a hitch. The distances have varied from 150 to 200 miles to four or five.

"Everybody has put up with me from the first start," he said. "They couldn't do enough for me."

He added, "People have been so kind. They have taken me 40 miles out of their way sometimes."

With that, the British man put on his 70-pound pack and left, saying, "I wonder if I will make Amarillo tonight."

would take place at the hospital. Kent Johnson was contacted in Austin last week by a member of the Herald staff, at which time he was asked to substantiate the story.

At the time, Johnson tersely said: "Dr. Ferguson is still the superintendent at the Big Spring State Hospital. Other than that, I can offer no comment. I hope you understand my position."

Dr. Ferguson could not be reached for comment this morning.

State Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder, who represents Big Spring and Howard County in Austin, said it would not surprise him if Dr. Ferguson contested Dr. Kavanaugh's decision by appealing to the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Rodeo labeled one of best ever

Officials with the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo felt like this year's extravaganza was one of the best ever.

Skipper Driver said today that attendance was up over last year's, adding that an official total crowd count is still in the process of being completed.

A total of 350 cowboys competed for between $6,000 to $7,000 in prize money. A Greenville cowboy proved the most successful of the group.

Sandy Kirby won $900 by tying with Lee Newman of Weatherford in the bull riding competition and placing in third in the bare back riding event.

Other winners included Jack Himes of Big Spring, bareback; Cody Lambert of El Paso, saddle bronc; Willard Moody of Wynnewood, Okla., calf roping; Gerald Rogers of Crane, steer wrestling; Bing Crosby and Freddy Mason of Crystalval team roping; Sharon Youngblood, of Lamesa, barrel racing.

IT WASN'T ALL LIKE THIS—Scott Roman, 7, had the right idea when he decided to take a snooze at the amphitheater in Comanche Trail Park today. He was one of approximately 30 children who participated in the three-day 4-H Day Camp which ends today. The bundle of activities combined with the heat made Scott use his ingenuity. Thanks to the counselor, he was back in the swing again within a few minutes.

13,663 in labor market

Employment continues steady in County

While the nation's jobless rate climbed, Howard County's labor picture remained steady during the month of May.

Texas Employment Commission preliminary figures show that 13,663 out of a labor market of 14,232 were employed in Howard County during May, making the local unemployment rate 4 percent.

The May figures compare to a 3.9 percent unemployment rate for the previous month. A total of 13,672 out of 14,227 were employed in April.

Statewide, unemployment was creeping upwards during April and May. In April a total of 5,968,200 had a job out of a labor pool of 6,287,000. This left 298,800 without jobs, or 4.8 percent.

In May 5,967,400 Texans were employed out of a labor market of 6,281,900, leaving 314,500, or 5 percent, without jobs.

The statewide and local unemployment rates were substantially lower than the national figures.

In April, 7 percent of the nation's workers were without a job.

The following month the unemployment rate jumped to 7.8 percent. In terms of numbers, the number of unemployed increased by 889,000 to 8.2 million. In May, there were 105.1 million in the labor market.

The May demographic breakdown of the unemployed shows that 6.6 percent were adult men; 6.6 percent adult women; 19.2 percent teenagers; 6.9 percent white; 13.9 percent minorities; and 35.2 percent minority teenagers.
