KING OF THE HILL IN ONE-ON-ONE FIGHT
Old man porcupine walks away unscathed

Two dogs learn lesson

An unfair fight

By TOMMY HART

Two dogs belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Forshee of the Tubbs addition got too nosy and too hostile to suit a 30-pound porcupine Sunday morning and wound up in Veterinarian Hank Thompson's office for treatment of injuries to their bodies and their plombs.

Both canines, a 220-pound Great Dane named Quincy and a 30-pound female with a checkered background named Judy, had numerous quills taken from their noses, lips and tongues after being placed under sedation. The repairs to their bruised egos likely will take a little longer.

The porcupine, which is quite rare in this area, apparently didn't want to leave the Forshee premises after the dogs had beat a retreat. It took the combined efforts of Forshee and his next door neighbor, Robert Wash, to prod the animal into leaving.

Forshee had always thought Quincy was big enough to 'hold off an army.' Now he's not so sure. The Great Dane, along with the smaller dog, apparently decided that discretion was the better part of valor and had removed themselves to a remote corner of the yard when Forshee went outside his house to investigate.

Forshee said that when he first sighted the porcupine, he thought it was a giant tumbleweed that had blown into the yard.

Even after the Forshees got the dogs to the vet, they had their problems. Lifting a 220-pound mastodon like Quincy isn't an easy thing, especially when the animal is hurting and has other ideas.

The medication finally worked and surgery was performed on both dogs. The medication, in fact, worked so well that Quincy slept all day, waking up just in time for supper. The Great Dane has a great appetite and his biological clock assures him of not being late for dinner.

Will he know a porcupine the next time it comes calling? The Las Vegas book makers should offer such odds.

Court lets Christmas pageant decision stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, turning away a dispute over how public schools observe religious holidays, today refused to disturb how Christmas pageants are run in Sioux Falls, S.D., schools.

The pageants were attacked as unconstitutional because they include religious hymns and dialogue about the birth of Jesus.

By a 7-2 vote, the justices left intact a ruling that upheld the use of such pageants. Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall voted to hear a challenge to conducting the pageants in public schools, but four votes are needed to grant such review.

In other matters today, the Supreme Court: —Told the Washington state Supreme Court to restudy that tribunal's ruling giving persons stopped for suspected drunken driving the right to a lawyer's immediate help.

—Rebuffed the federal government's attempt to reinstate a $10,000 fine against the AFL-CIO for illegal political campaign spending.

—Refused to sidetrack a lower court's study, to begin Thursday, of a law aimed at helping workers who lost their jobs when the Rock island railroad went bankrupt.

The Sioux Falls controversy dates back to 1977, when Roger Florey's son Justin participated in a kindergarten Christmas program his father felt had excessive religious content.

Under past Supreme Court rulings, public schools are barred from sponsoring "religious exercises." The high court outlawed mandatory school prayer in 1962, and in 1963 outlawed daily Bible readings.

Iran, Iraq both report strong gains

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq claimed its helicopter gunships set fire to gas installations in besieged Abadan and its tanks killed 74 Iranian troops, while Iran reported its forces destroyed two Iraqi oil terminals on the Persian Gulf and killed 185 enemy troops in Iraqi-occupied territory.

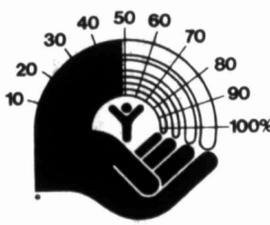

An Iraqi communique said waves of its gunships pounded a natural gas storage center and a gas pipeline in Abadan, the last Iranian stronghold along the Shatt al-Arab estuary at the northern end of the Persian Gulf. It said Iraqi infantry and tanks killed 74 Iranians in ground assaults on the city's northern and eastern gates. The communique acknowledged 11 Iraqis killed.

An Iranian communique said Iranian forces attacked Iraqi troops Sunday on the northeastern bank of the Bahmanshir River, on the northeast side of Abadan, inflicting losses on the invaders and driving them back from the edge of the waterway. The communique also said Iranian airborne forces and artillery "crushed" Iranian forces on the road linking Abadan and Mahsahr, 50 miles to the east.

Another Iranian communique said navy commandos stormed Iraqi oil loading terminals at Al Bakr and Khor Alamina, on the Persian Gulf, and "completely destroyed" the two facilities.

"Iraq will not be able to export any oil through the Persian Gulf" as a result of the "suicide operation mounted by Iran's naval heroes," the communique said. It also claimed Iranian warplanes have demolished 70 percent of the big oil refinery in Kirkuk, the center of Iraq's petroleum industry 150 miles north of Baghdad.

Both Iran and Iraq suspended oil exports after the war broke out seven weeks ago.

Polish court rules in favor of union

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish Supreme Court ruled today in favor of the nation's biggest independent union, registering its charter without a disputed clause and averting a new wave of strikes.

After a session of nearly three hours, presiding judge Witold Formanski said the Warsaw district court had exceeded its authority last month when it added to the charter of the "Solidarity" trade union a phrase asserting the Communist Party's supremacy.

Formanski said the lower court had "no right to either cross out any sections of the charter, nor to add anything."

Under an agreement reached Sunday at a Solidarity meeting, lawyers for the union, which claims as members some 10 million of the country's 18 million workers, prepared an annex to the charter. The annex repeats the legal bases for the union, including international labor conventions, the agreement ending the Gdansk area strikes last August and the Polish constitution.

Solidarity's leaders had threatened to strike Wednesday if the high court rejected their appeal, and union leader Lech Walesa was expected to call off strike preparedness plans at a televised news conference today.

The constitution states the Communist Party's "leading role" in the building of a socialist society. Union leaders claimed the clause added by the lower court implied that the party played the same role in the union's operation, placing its independence in question.

"We accomplished what we set out to accomplish on the 31st of August," Walesa told thousands of cheering supporters when he emerged from the downtown court building.

"However, this is the beginning. In front of us is a big line of work. And everyone has his own piece of this line. No one is going to blame Leszek (diminutive for Lech) because if anything fails it will be your fault not mine. We are to work hard and to control."

State Department delivers U.S. response to demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher led a small party of officials to Algiers today to deliver the U.S. response to Iranian demands for the release of the 52 American hostages, the State Department announced.

Department officials said it was highly unlikely that Christopher would meet with Iranian authorities, who have been using Algeria as an intermediary. But they said the United States remains willing to hold face-to-face talks.

"We have a year's story to tell, and if Algeria is to act for us, they have to be fully informed," said one U.S. official who asked not to be identified.

Christopher left Washington unannounced at 1 a.m. EST on the flight to Algiers.

No details of the reply he carried with him were made public.

Department press officer Sondra McCarty said in a prepared statement that the U.S. response, which had been prepared over the last week, would be given to the Algerian foreign ministry for transmittal to Iranian officials in Tehran.

Algeria has been a go-between in indirect negotiations between the U.S. and Iran aimed at ending the hostage crisis, which entered its 54th week on Sunday.

Christopher met with Algeria's ambassador to Washington, Redha Malek, four times last week.

The State Department said Christopher was accompanied to Algiers by Harold Saunders, assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs; Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Carswell; State Department legal officer Roberts Owen and Arnold L. Raphael, a special assistant to Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie.

The Iranian Majlis, or parliament, voted on Nov. 2 to set four conditions for release of the hostages.

Four dead, one hurt in Wichita Falls shootings

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Dusk was welcome in this North Texas city Sunday night. It marked the end of the most violent Sunday anyone can remember — a bloody day of gunfire that left four men dead and a fifth hospitalized with gunshot wounds.

"Offhand I can't think of any time when this has happened before," said Police Chief Curtis Harrelson. "It is certainly unfortunate..."

Harried detectives in this city of 100,000 said the shootings were unrelated and there seemed to be no logical reason for the sudden outbreak of itchy trigger finger.

"It just happens to be odd for any day, Sunday or any day of the week," Wichita Falls police officer Billy Henderson said Sunday evening. "It's out of the ordinary to have that many killings on one day in a town this size."

The first outburst was reported about 1 a.m. CST when a woman shot and killed a man she said was trying to break into her apartment. The victim was identified as Jimmy Don McCalister, of Wichita Falls.

About 12 hours later, two men shot it out on an eastside street, police said.

Witnesses told investigators the men began arguing about 1:30 p.m. and one man fired a .22-caliber rifle, striking his opponent three times in the chest, police said. The wounded man returned fire with a .410-gauge shotgun, killing the first man, police said.

The rifle victim died en route to a nearby hospital, police said.

The victims were identified as Oliver Evans, 34, who died en route to the hospital, and Keith Hutchinson, 25, both of Wichita Falls.

About 2 p.m., a man and woman found the body of a fourth shooting victim on the north end of Lake Wichita Dam, investigators said.

The man apparently had been beaten and shot in the head, but authorities did not know how long he had been dead, Henderson said.

Barbuto seeks release

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for former Judge James V. Barbuto say they hope to obtain his release from prison so he can be treated for an inner ear disorder.

James Burdon, a Barbuto lawyer, said the plea would be made this week to the judge who presided at the trial of the former Summit County probate judge.

Burdon said Barbuto, 60, has Meniere's Disease and Chillicothe Correctional Institute can't adequately treat the illness, characterized by dizziness and deafness. Barbuto was sentenced in August to one to five years for gross sexual imposition stemming from a 1974 incident involving a court clerk.

Reputed mobster acquitted

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Reputed mobster Aniello Della Croce has been acquitted of racketeering charges on a federal judge's ruling that the prosecution's case "contained a basic flaw."

Della Croce, 66, indicted last year by a federal grand jury, was alleged to have ordered Anthony Plate to kill Charles Calise because of an alleged loansharking debt.

U.S. District Judge Norman C. Roettger signed Della Croce's acquittal order Friday after court testimony and documents supported the defendant's contention that he was in a New York City prison at the time he allegedly ordered the slaying.

Sky-diver safe after fall

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Ken Hamilton says he never lost consciousness — even after landing on rocks — when his parachute failed to open fully as he jumped from an 875-foot-high bridge.

Hamilton was in satisfactory condition Sunday at a Charleston hospital. "I'm feeling fine," said the 27-year-old parachutist who earlier had landed safely from an airplane onto the bridge.

Hamilton suffered broken bones and cuts Saturday during a jumping exhibition in what organizers called the First New River Gorge Bridge Day. The state highway bridge was closed to permit pedestrians to enjoy a view of the scenic gorge.

Chicago man charged

PARK FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Police have arrested a Chicago man and charged him with the attempted murder of a woman he allegedly held hostage for 18 hours.

Michael Abmore, 24, was arrested Sunday, moments after police pulled Vicky Fryor, 27, from the car in which Abmore had attempted to flee, said Acting Police Chief Fred Romano on Sunday.

Police said two of their squad cars rammed Abmore's car against a building and officers shot out its tires. Romano said Abmore had dated Miss Fryor, but they had recently broken up.

Criticisms of Luther disavowed by Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican disavowed a German Catholic criticism of Martin Luther after it threatened to put a chill on Pope John Paul II's meeting with Lutheran leaders during his visit to West Germany next week.

A Vatican specialist on relations with the Lutherans, Monsignor Aloys Klein, said the criticisms of the leader of the 16th Century Protestant Reformation in a booklet distributed by the German Bishop's Conference did not reflect the position of the Roman Catholic Church. He said church officials in West Germany were publishing an epilogue to correct the statements.

The pope in his weekly blessing Sunday to the crowd in St. Peter's Square also sought to soothe the angered German Protestants by emphasizing his plans to meet with them during his five-day visit beginning Saturday.

"I consider this visit particularly important also from an ecumenical point of view, all the more since it comes on the 450th anniversary of the famous Augsburg Confession," he said.

The Augsburg Confession was an unsuccessful attempt by Lutherans to achieve doctrinal reconciliation with the Roman church.

About half the 63 million West Germans are Protestants, and most of them are Lutherans, while about half are Roman Catholics.

The booklet that angered the Lutherans, "Short History of the German Church," was by Catholic historian Remigius Baeumer and was issued to give background information on the pope's visit.

In it Baeumer said Luther's "Reformation brought no reform, but the splitting of the Church," and the "boundlessness of his anger and his polemic...made him blind to Catholic truth." It also said Luther's writings were not original but were just a rehash of the arguments of most Catholic interpreters of the Bible in the Middle Ages.

Baeumer followed this with a newspaper interview in which he said only a "complete idiot" could expect the pope to apologize for the excommunication of Luther.

A spokesman for the Lutheran Church, Dietrich Sattler, told another German newspaper the booklet angered many Protestants and "has not made members of the Lutheran Council eager to meet with the pope."

But he said the council would go through with the meeting and would explain to the pontiff the importance it places on relations between two churches "equally strong in numbers."

The German Bishop's Conference said in a statement that it was unaware of what Baeumer had written and would publish a new addition with an "explanation" by the historian.

Jurors resume discussion in KKK trial

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jurors resumed deliberations today in the murder trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and American Nazis charged in the shooting deaths of five communist demonstrators at a "Death to the Klan" rally last November.

Superior Court Judge James M. Long, who presided over the 21-week trial, advised jurors Friday to take their time in reaching a verdict. They deliberated for a short time before recessing for the weekend.

On trial were Jack Wilson Fowler, 27, and Roland Wayne Wood, 35, both of Winston-Salem; Jerry Paul Smith, 33, of Maiden; Coleman Blair Pridmore, 37, and Lawrence Gene Morgan, 28, both of Lincolnton; and David Wayne Matthews, 24, of Newton.

Each was charged with five counts of murder and one count of felonious riot. The charges stemmed from the deaths of five people at a "Death to the Klan" rally Nov. 3, 1979.

Long told the jury it could return verdicts of first degree murder, first degree murder by premeditation and deliberation, second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter or innocent.

Kill moose for drugs?

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A surge of moose poaching in Vermont and New Hampshire is believed to be connected to a drug smuggling ring, game and fish officials said today.

At least eight to 10 moose have been killed in the last two weeks in "the most bizarre thing we've ever encountered," said Charles Barry, New Hampshire's fish and game director.

"We have strong reason to believe that the people involved in this are also involved in drug trafficking, and some of these moose may actually be traded for illegal drugs," Barry said.

CRMWD budget is up 11.6 percent over '79

The $8,127,836 budget adopted recently by Colorado River Municipal Water District directors for 1981 is up $941,963 or 11.6 percent over 1979. Seventy-two percent of the increase is due to estimated higher electric energy costs.

The board approved an estimated $8,609,373 in revenues for 1981 leaving a net revenue of $487,537.

Operating expenses were pegged at $4,917,589, up $893,215 over the current budget figure. Administration and general expense was projected at $497,589, up $37,773, and recreation expense $98,943, up $7,071. The board also anticipated equipment replacement costs at $144,300, up $23,700 over the current year. Debt service, after applying interest earned on various funds to reduce the total, will be $3,210,247, up $42,390. If interest rates go up during the year, earnings might make the net debt service costs less than 1979. Employees were voted a 12.5 percent cost-of-living adjustment.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, told the board that a new base rate approved by the Texas Public Utilities Commission will add about 34 percent to Texas Electric Service Company charges, plus fuel adjustment increases (because TESCO cheap gas contracts are expiring at the end of this year) which would make the weighted average increase in KWH be about 59 percent.

Total power costs, however, will rise only around 31 percent because recent rains will permit up to 12,000,000 gallons a day, instead of 4,000,000 estimated for this year. To be pumped from Lake J.B. Thomas rather than making up the difference from Lake E.V. Spence water, which has a substantially longer distance and much greater lift. The budget anticipated a total power bill of $3,098,222.

By delivering a greater percentage of water from Lake Thomas and less from Lake Spence, and by beefing up the pumping capacity west of Big Spring, the district could save $102,000 in 1981 in water royalties in well fields.

How will the budget affect water rates? That won't be known until the rate-fixing time in January, but Ivie conjectured that it likely would not be more than about 4.3 cents per thousand gallons, but if more revenues can be generated, rates may not have to go up after all.

At a meeting this morning before Howard County Commissioners and about a dozen farmers produced a possible beginning to a solution for a problem not often experienced in this area — too much water.

Four of the men — Richard Yarbar, E.W. Richardson, Howard Newton and Skeeter Murphy — were appointed as representatives of the group and will hopefully meet with Commissioners and Soil Conservation representatives this afternoon.

Skeeter Murphy, whose house was pictured under water in the Herald two weeks ago, gave his version of the problem.

"Seems like everyone cares about the water on his place and nobody cares where it ends up. I know where a lot of it ends up," he said.

The immediate problem is the temporary body of water, that has come to be known as Perkle Lake, that accumulated after the September deluge here.

One farmer said water was deep where it flowed into a lake on his land for 30 or 40 hours. "If my lake had been empty when it started it would have filled it 10 times," he said. This is part of the water that ended up in Perkle Lake.

Commissioners are considering whether to channel the water out or pump it out. At the same time, a more permanent solution is being considered. A three or four inch rain now could cause problems, said one farmer.

"That's the most serious thing we're up against right now. It's possible next spring we could be in this situation again or worse," he said.

The group discussed asking farmers north of the Fairview-Knott area to lend a hand. But others commented that these farmers have "got it like they want it" because the water doesn't accumulate on their land. Farmers are putting more land into cultivation than ever and need the acres sometimes covered with the temporary lakes.

One farmer said commissioners were partly to blame. "The county has been pretty negligent with letting their ditches get filled with sand and not keeping it cleared," he said. Water would not have washed across farmland as much, he said.

Commissioner W.B. "Bill" Crooker responded that it was impossible to prepare for a 15-inch rain. He said it had never happened here before.

Another problem surfaced. That is the water standing on roads too deep for farmers to travel. "We're drying several miles out of the way to get out of town," said one farmer. He told engineers two years ago that they should have allowed for a big rain when they built the road, but their attitude was, "What does a farmer know?" he said.

Bids for the Lomax Fire Station building, new sheriff's office cars and janitorial services were opened this morning.

A-K Construction was awarded the $16,453 contract for their low bid. Spring Country Builders were second lowest with a $18,111 bid. Their building was 96 square foot larger, making the building 50 cents per square foot cheaper than A-K's.

However, the commissioners only budgetted $15,000 for the building and didn't need the extra space, so they accepted the lower bid.

Spring Country contributed the 96 square foot bid because it was the prefabricated manufacturer's standard size closest to the county's specifications.

Reinert Welding offered a $21,437 bid, Abbott Building offered $27,875 and Chapparral offered $21,450.

Pollard Chevrolet was awarded a $13,983.48 contract for two new cars for the sheriff's office with trade-in. Bob Brock offered a $15,743.34 bid for 1981 cars. Pollard bid for 1980 cars.

Janitorial bids were opened but figures were not released because commissioners are going to add an insurance requirement to the specifications for janitorial service.

Bomb in Beirut cars kills 12, injuries 20

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two booby-trapped cars exploded today in a crowded public square in predominantly Christian East Beirut, killing at least 12 people and injuring scores of others, 20 seriously, police said.

The Sassin Square, in the residential neighborhood of Ashrafieh, was filled with lunch hour crowds when the bombs exploded within five minutes of each other, witnesses said.

At commission meeting

Flood woes discussed

By DON WOODS
A meeting this morning before Howard County Commissioners and about a dozen farmers produced a possible beginning to a solution for a problem not often experienced in this area — too much water.

Four of the men — Richard Yarbar, E.W. Richardson, Howard Newton and Skeeter Murphy — were appointed as representatives of the group and will hopefully meet with Commissioners and Soil Conservation representatives this afternoon.

Skeeter Murphy, whose house was pictured under water in the Herald two weeks ago, gave his version of the problem.

"Seems like everyone cares about the water on his place and nobody cares where it ends up. I know where a lot of it ends up," he said.

The immediate problem is the temporary body of water, that has come to be known as Perkle Lake, that accumulated after the September deluge here.

One farmer said water was deep where it flowed into a lake on his land for 30 or 40 hours. "If my lake had been empty when it started it would have filled it 10 times," he said. This is part of the water that ended up in Perkle Lake.

Commissioners are considering whether to channel the water out or pump it out. At the same time, a more permanent solution is being considered. A three or four inch rain now could cause problems, said one farmer.

"That's the most serious thing we're up against right now. It's possible next spring we could be in this situation again or worse," he said.

The group discussed asking farmers north of the Fairview-Knott area to lend a hand. But others commented that these farmers have "got it like they want it" because the water doesn't accumulate on their land. Farmers are putting more land into cultivation than ever and need the acres sometimes covered with the temporary lakes.

One farmer said commissioners were partly to blame. "The county has been pretty negligent with letting their ditches get filled with sand and not keeping it cleared," he said. Water would not have washed across farmland as much, he said.

Commissioner W.B. "Bill" Crooker responded that it was impossible to prepare for a 15-inch rain. He said it had never happened here before.

Because of 'backroom maneuverings'

Oil company claims financial ruin

DALLAS (AP) — A Houston oil company contends it was driven to financial ruin by the maneuverings of a California petroleum marketer a summer ago while Americans endured long lines at the gasoline pumps.

Research Fuels Inc., in pleadings filed in federal court, alleges it was forced into bankruptcy by bribery, conspiracy, backroom deals and a blatant disregard of federal regulations that controlled the price and flow of gasoline during the critical 1979 shortage fueled by the Iranian crisis.

But the attorney for Oasis Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles argues the RFI allegations are simply tactics of desperation by the directors of a failed company.

"Their allegations are ridiculous," said Oasis attorney Tariq Kadri in a telephone interview from his Los Angeles office.

The confusing morass of corporate bickering has been dropped in the lap of the federal courts.

Act One of the legal drama began today in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert W. Porter, who scheduled oral arguments on a motion for summary judgment in a suit filed by Oasis against the Department of Energy and RFI.

Oasis wants Porter to enjoin the DOE from interfering with its "contractual right" to gasoline it contends was conveyed when Oasis purchased 84 RFI gas stations and two supply contracts in October of 1978.

Sources on both sides of the courtroom aisle concede Oasis likely will emerge the winner. But in either case, the decision is expected to be appealed.

However, a ruling could clear the way for RFI to pursue its $33 million cross-action against Oasis, which had been stayed pending a resolution of the original suit.

Allegations contained in the cross-action generated a storm of controversy in Ohio, where Oasis recently won the contract to operate 16 gas stations on the Ohio Turnpike.

They also prompted inquiries into Oasis activities by the Justice Department, the FBI, the Department of Energy enforcement division and the Senate anti-trust committee, sources told The Associated Press.

"Oasis has not done anything illegal or unethical and absolutely denies any wrongdoing whatsoever," said Kadri.

He maintains Oasis is unaware of any investigations and has not been contacted in person, by writing or telephone by any investigators for any federal, state or local agency.

However, one source said Oasis executives were told to expect subpoenas from the DOE and the Senate anti-trust committee.

In a rare departure from a policy of neither confirming nor denying reports of investigations, the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles issued a statement last month saying it "currently has no criminal investigation in progress respecting any information received concerning Oasis Petroleum Corp."

In the statement released in response to an article in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the U.S. attorney's office said "a matter relating to the enforcement of administrative subpoenas" had been referred by the DOE to its civil division.

Sources told The Associated Press they had been questioned by assistant U.S. Attorney Dean Allison.

Alexander Williams, chief assistant to the U.S. Attorney in Los Angeles identified Allison as the "chief of the special prosecution unit in our criminal division."

RFI contended in its cross-action that Oasis bribed RFI President Larry Gray with the inducement of "lucrative consulting fees." And that Gray, the RFI's chief negotiator in the October sale, then acted in the best interest of Oasis.

"Oasis didn't offer anyone a bribe. And Oasis paid fair value for the properties and lease hold interest and RFI attorneys ... rendered an opinion that the price was fair," said Kadri.

Gray said in an affidavit filed by Oasis that he negotiated in full faith for RFI and informed its directors that Jack Smith, a former Oasis vice president, twice offered him a $25,000 bribe to reduce the purchase price of the stations.

Smith claims Gray approached him with offers of getting a better deal for Oasis if he could "get a little something for himself."

Frank Cahoon, a Midland oilman and one of the founders and directors of RFI, said Gray had told him that "Oasis had talked to him about job possibilities," but he would not take the offers.

Cahoon said he did not know Gray would take a job at Oasis until shortly before Gray left RFI in May 1979.

Congress may be unsure of purpose Wednesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic-controlled 96th Congress opens its lame-duck session Wednesday uncertain of what it will accomplish. Unclear, too, is the fate of a $39.8 billion tax cut bill endorsed by President-elect Ronald Reagan.

The measure was drafted by the Senate Finance Committee and is supported by both Sen. Russell Long, D-La., the committee chairman, and Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who will assume Long's role in January when Republicans take control of the Senate for the first time since 1954.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, who will become majority leader in January, said Sunday he thinks the bill "will pass the Senate. I think we can move pretty promptly on a tax bill."

But what happens in the House, he added, is another matter.

There, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the Ways and Means Committee chairman, says he will not move to block the bill following his defeat Tuesday.

But Ullman, whose committee would likely take up the measure, says he also would not want to move any Senate-passed bill forward unless President Carter and the Democratic leadership concurred.

So far, Carter and his economic advisers are sticking with their argument that a tax cut now would be inflationary and should be delayed until next year.

And Carter could still veto any tax cut passed this session. Baker said Sunday he had "grave doubts" the president would sign any tax-cut that emerged from the lame-duck session.

The Finance Committee's bill includes about $22 billion in individual tax cuts and nearly $18 billion in cuts for business. The $37 billion tax cut Reagan supports would cut individual tax rates 10 percent a year for three years.

Yet, Reagan said last week, "it would be fine with me" if the Finance Committee bill won speedy approval.

Even before reaching the president's desk, however, any tax cut faces several other obstacles:

—House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has said he doubts the lame-duck session will pass any legislation except appropriations bills needed to keep the government running.

—Expedient action on a tax cut could be frustrated on the Senate floor by what one top congressional staff member called a lot of bitter, "wounded tigers," who might prevent passage from being a "neat and speedy process."

—Additional time could be taken up if Democrats, who will also see their House majority cut 33 seats come Jan. 3, try to push through pet projects.

—And the volume of work facing the lame-duck session may be enough in itself, Ullman said, to prevent any consideration of a tax cut.

Indeed, the lame-duck session must pass 10 stalled appropriations bills — without which most federal agencies have no money to operate — or extend further the stopgap financing that has kept the government going since the fiscal year began Oct. 1.

In part, it was failure to pass the regular appropriations bills by the beginning of the fiscal year that necessitated the lame-duck session.

The stopgap bill Congress adopted before recessing for the election allows agencies to spend at the fiscal 1980 level until Dec. 15.

The lame-duck session, the first since 1948, also has before it:

—Action on the overall federal budget for the fiscal year. The House and Senate must still reconcile differing versions of the measure, which is sure to have a multibillion-dollar deficit.

The House Budget Committee was taking up the matter this afternoon.

—The Alaska "lands" bill, which would protect some 100 million square miles of federal lands in Alaska from development. Differing versions have passed the House and Senate.

—An industry-financed "superfund" to clean up hazardous wastes.

Snake may have tried to swallow 7-month old

DALLAS (AP) — Police say they will ask a grand jury to investigate the death of a 7-month-old girl who was slowly suffocated by an 8-foot python that may have tried to swallow her.

A spokesman from the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office said it may have taken Toni Lynn Duboe as long as five minutes to die from "traumatic asphyxiation" after the pet snake crawled from its 30-gallon aquarium and into her crib.

It's illegal in Dallas to keep snakes in private residences. However, Sgt. Gus Rose said he would present the case to a grand jury.

"It could have been hungry, and probably was," Rose said.

Robert Eugene Duboe, the child's father, was "deeply grief-stricken," police said.

According to police, Duboe told them he was awakened by his wife after she found the infant early Saturday. He said the animal left a trail of blood — apparently from wounds on the child's face — as it crawled to a wooden ledge over the dead girl's crib.

He said he wrestled the snake into another bedroom, shot it with a .25-caliber pistol, then partially severed its head before throwing it back into his daughter's room, where police found it.

Another daughter, 5, who was asleep in the room, was unharmed.

Rose said Duboe told him the snake usually was fed a hamster every two weeks and that it had been about that long since the reticulated python — which was 4 inches in diameter, weighed 7½ pounds and was 2 years old — last ate. Duboe bought it about 18 months earlier.

A cold front dipped into the central part of the nation this morning, dusting parts of the mid-Mississippi River Valley and the upper Great Lakes with a light coating of snow.

Elsewhere, showers were scattered over the Pacific Northwest and western New York, while a dense fog blanketed much of the north Atlantic coast and the Gulf Coast states.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 5 in International Falls, Minn., to 79 in Miami and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

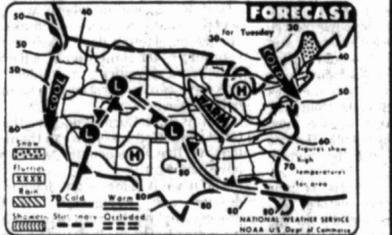

The National Weather Service predicted showers today for parts of the Northeast and Northwest. Thundershowers were expected to extend along the northern half of the Pacific coast and over southern Florida.

WEST TEXAS: Mostly fair through Tuesday except partly cloudy southwest. Continued warm afternoons. Highs Tuesday 70s north to 80s south. Lows tonight low 40s north to low 50s south except mid 30s mountains. Clear Wednesday.

McQueen's body cremated without ceremony Saturday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The body of actor Steve McQueen, who died of heart failure after cancer surgery last week, was cremated in California without ceremony, his publicist said.

Warren Cowan said Sunday that McQueen's widow, Barbara Minty, told him cremation had taken place Saturday.

Cowan said McQueen had requested that there be no services, adding he did not know what McQueen's family planned to do with the actor's remains.

McQueen's body was flown back to the United States on Friday, after his death in Juarez, Mexico, earlier in the day, Cowan said. The star of such movies as "Bullitt" and "The Cincinnati Kid" died of heart failure 13 hours after cancer surgery.

The actor had sought unconventional nutritional therapy for a rare form of lung cancer, mesothelioma, which had spread throughout much of his body.

Neile Adams, McQueen's first wife and the mother of his two children, denounced his doctors as "charlatans and exploiters" and warned against "unproven cures."

"What bothers me is that all the publicity surrounding Steve will convince other innocent people to be misled into going down there for Laetrile and other unproved cures," she said.

Ms. Adams said because McQueen died of heart failure after cancer surgery, doctors have been freed of responsibility in his death. "They can say he died of a heart attack instead of cancer," she said.

The 50-year-old actor's treatment included Laetrile, intramuscular injections with living animal cells, vitamins, an organic diet, coffee enemas and castor oil rubdowns.

Program honors veterans

A Veterans' Day program sponsored by the Big Spring High School Student Council, scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in front of the Veterans' plaque in the main foyer of the high school, will coincide with the nation's observance of Veteran's Day.

Bobby Brasel, president of the Student Council, will preside and will introduce high school principal William A. McQueary who, in turn, will introduce guests from the community's various service organizations.

There will be a moment of silence honoring the deceased veterans, after which "Taps" will be played by a member of the Big Spring High School band.

The program will close with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Beverly Wheeler.

The plaque bears the name of 65 former Big Spring High School students who died in battle during one of the nation's wars. This will be the fifth straight year such a program has been held at the high school.

Artists of Month named by Chamber

CHAD SMALL

REBECCA RUSSELL

KELLY NEWTON

KRISTIE GRIMES

Four young artists are being recognized as November Artists of the Month by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

Kristie Grimes, the 13-year-old daughter of Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Jerry S. Grimes is in the 8th grade at Rannels Junior High School. She has been taking art lessons from Virginia Whitten for over two years.

Besides art, Kristie is involved in many other activities. She is on the YMCA Swim Team, a member of the National Junior Honor Society, and is presently the writer for Rannels' "Megaphone" that appears in the Sunday newspaper.

Besides art, Kristie's other hobbies include snow and water skiing, reading, and writing poetry. One of her poems will appear in the January, 1981 issue of Women's Day Magazine.

Kristie plans to someday enter the field of science and research.

Chad Small, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Small, is ten years old and in the fourth grade at Kentwood Elementary School. Chad has been taking art lessons for nearly two years. He is also interested in football and baseball, model cars and airplanes. Chad is involved in Webelos Scouting. He is very accomplished in oil, pen and ink, and mixed media art techniques.

Rebecca Russell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ray Russell, is 17 years old and a Senior at Big Spring High School. Becky is a member of the National Honor Society and has recently been recognized as Commendable Student by PSAT-NMSQT for her score on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT).

Her other interests include church activities, sports and country western dancing. She studied art for two years at Big Spring High School under Kathy Davis and Mike Randall and has been studying with Virginia Whitten for two years.

Being a very creative person, Becky has become an accomplished artist in oil, mixed media, watercolor, and is exceptionally talented in her drawing ability. Kelly Newton, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Newton, attends Washington Elementary School. Although she is the youngest student in Mrs. Whitten's class and has only been taking art for seven months, Kelly has made rapid progress in oil, pen and ink, and watercolor techniques of painting.

Her talent and interest in art won her the privilege of taking a two-week summer art class at Rannels Junior High School which was sponsored by B.S.I.S.D.

In addition to art, Kelly is involved in many church activities, music and bicycle riding. She was recently awarded the "prize of the day" for the dirtiest face in art class.

Dear Abby Which Has Final 'Right': Mother or Unborn Child?

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you told that woman not to have an abortion regardless of what her husband wanted. But you added, "It's your body." Abby, once a woman has conceived a child, it is not only her body, there is another body to consider, another life — the life of her unborn child. For a woman to abort her child is murder, and there is just no other way to look at it.

GOD-FEARING CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Please read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Since so many women and ministers read your column, I would like to present the Biblical view on abortion:

A woman has the right to abort an accidental pregnancy if she so chooses.

The fetus is not a living soul, but a living organism. It is a part of the mother's body — connected by the umbilical cord. The fetus is not a human soul until the umbilical cord is severed and the fetus takes its first breath of air and is able to survive on its own outside its mother's body.

The Bible clearly states: "God breathed into Adam's nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul" (Genesis 2:7).

A message for Brad

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: This summer, I met a really nice guy at camp. He is 17 and I'm 16. Both of us got along great. We spent a lot of time walking through the woods and telling each other our secrets.

About two days before we were to go home, Brad and I had a big argument. The next day, he came up to me and said that he was sorry, but at that time I couldn't say the same to him.

On the last day, I was busy and didn't hear him say goodbye to me (my sister heard him). When I found out, I went looking for him but he had already gone home.

When I got home I was brokenhearted. He was on my mind so much that I had to go into a hospital for my nerves.

My problem is that he has my address and phone number but I don't know his. I tried to locate him through the long-distance operator but had no luck. Every night I pray that he will write to me but my prayers have not been answered. Please help me — Nota, Elyria, Ohio.

Nota: This column appears in 14 Ohio newspapers. Maybe he might be reading this and your prayers will be answered. In case he is not, write a letter to him in care of his high school if you know the name of it. Also write to the newspaper in his town and place an ad in the Personal Section of the classified ads asking Brad to contact you. Good luck!

Dr. Wallace: I'm really frightened and don't know who to turn to. I can't discuss the problem with my parents because they would say that I did something to encourage it. Please let me explain.

I'm not really pretty and I'm not really a good student and I'm not very popular.

About a month ago when I was walking home from school, I'm 16, an older man in a car followed me for about a block. The next day he followed me again and I made the mistake of smiling at him. Now every day he follows me all the way home which is almost a mile.

I told my best friend what was happening and she told me that since he was breaking no law, that I couldn't do anything about it. Dr. Wallace, I'm scared and don't know what to do. — Lynn, San Antonio, Texas.

Lynn: You are under the protection of school law from the time you leave your house in the morning until you reach home in the afternoon (if you go directly home) when you attend school.

Go to your principal immediately and give him a good description of the man, the make, model and color of his car and his license plate number.

Then tell your parents about the incident and your discussion with the principal. This man is sick and needs to be sent to a place where he can receive help.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Since I lost 45 pounds at Pat Walker's—these are my only hang-ups.

Joyce Major's True Story:

I looked pregnant in this picture, but I wasn't.

After my five children had grown up, I looked in the mirror one day and decided it was time to take care of my own body.

Although I had dieted once in a while over the years, all I'd accomplished was hunger headaches, so I knew I'd need extra help to reach my goal.

When I took my 180 pounds to the nice people at Pat Walker's, they were so encouraging. The counselors explained how their Symmetricon passive exercise unit works, and let me try a treatment to see how relaxing it is (I didn't even have to change clothes). And they started me thinking about sensible eating habits, so I wouldn't feel hungry while I was losing weight.

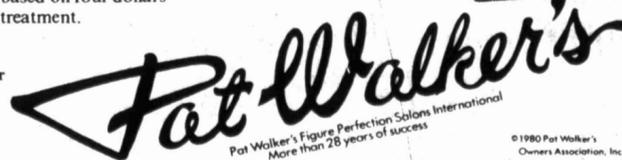

Was Pat Walker's program the extra help I needed? Well, I'm now down to 145 pounds (I'm 5'7 1/2" tall), and I've lost a total of 42 inches, including —hooray!—4 1/2 inches from my hips, 6 1/2 inches from my stomach. The nicest part is, my skin hasn't sagged a bit.

With all my crafts and hobbies, I'm busy as ever, but with Pat Walker's help, I'll always have time to look good.

Make an appointment now for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. What's the real scoop on the ice-cream man?

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers kick returner Carl Roaches has established two facts in his first season in the National Football League.

He can break the long one and he's not just another ice cream truck driver.

Roaches rocketed down the sidelines 74 yards for an apparent touchdown on a punt return against Denver only to have the play nullified by an official who inadvertently blew his whistle.

He'll be putting his kick return talents on display again tonight when the New England Patriots and the Oilers meet in a key battle of division leaders in the AstroDome.

As for the reference to his summer job as an ice cream truck driver, Roaches wishes it never had come up. "People seem to think that's all I was capable of doing and it kind of made me mad," Roaches said. "I'm not just an ice cream truck driver."

Roaches, a graduate of Texas A&M, fit all too well into the "Odd Job Department" of past Oilers players. Johnny Dirden drove a cement truck before signing an Oilers contract. Guido Merkens, another specialty team member, was discovered while playing on a slow pitch softball team.

The comparison was too much for sports writers and sportscasters to resist. No sooner had Roaches completed his abortive touchdown run against the Broncos than broadcasters were shouting: "And just a year ago, this guy was driving an ice cream truck!"

Actually, Roaches said, he was working for ARCO Chemical as a process operator when he decided to seek a tryout with the Oilers prior to this season.

"They made it sound like some guy came in off the street who had never played football before and started doing what I did," Roaches said.

"I did drive an ice cream truck but that was last summer and it was only because I owned four or five trucks. I was only doing that while I was looking for something else. It should be put in its proper perspective."

Roaches' return against the Broncos, although it was wiped out, proved it could be done.

"We knew that it was good," Roaches said. "Everything was good except the official. A clip or offside would have been harder to take because then it would have been our fault. But we did everything right and now we know we can do it again."

Roaches just hopes that when he does, he won't be described as the ice cream truck driver who put the Oilers in a "good humor" by driving for a touchdown and "cooling off" the opposition.

At least winning is painless

By The Associated Press
Wellington Mara, president of the beleaguered New York Giants, is feeling pretty good today after his club's upset of the Dallas Cowboys.

But last week, as with most of the other weeks this season, was an ordeal, only more so. He made a visit to his dentist, who is not particularly interested in sports. "How's your team doing?" asked the tooth-yanker, whose reading habits apparently also never get beyond the corset-ad page.

"Not too good," replied Mara. "We're one and eight."

"That's rough," commiserated the dentist. "What's wrong?"

"Well," replied the Giants' chief executive, who needed this kind of questioning about as much as he needed the toothache. "Let's suppose you're the chief doctor of a big hospital and you had only interns to do the operating, what would happen?"

"I'm afraid we'd lose a lot of patients," said the doctor. "That's just it, Doc," Mara said. "We lose a lot of games."

Mara doesn't just get it in the dentist's office. He gets it at the Meadowlands in New Jersey where the Giants lose most of their games. He gets it when he tries to sneak out of the stadium, unnoticed. And he gets it when the postman delivers the mail.

"Sure, it bothers me greatly," Mara said. "But it isn't a situation that I can reverse just like that, as much as I would like to. I can only wait, be patient and suffer."

"It's the same for the fans, and no one could be more sympathetic than I. After all, I consider myself the consummate fan. I have been tied to the fortunes of the Giants as long as I can remember."

The Giants aren't a Johnny-Come-Lately team in the National Football League. Neither are the Maras. They have been there from the very beginning and their roots run deep.

Wellington's dad, Timothy J. Mara, bought the Giants' franchise in 1925 for $2,500. Some put the figure at closer to $500. It was part of a loosely-organized, doddering circuit known as the National Professional Football League.

"People keep saying I should spend money and buy a championship like George Steinbrenner of the Yankees," the Giants' executive said. "They don't realize we operate under a different structure than baseball. When we pick up a free agent we must give up compensation."

Mara said people forget that the Giants' current administration — General Manager George Young and Coach Ray Perkins, both with excellent credentials — is less than two years old.

"We took a team that couldn't put us in the Super Bowl and replaced with a young team, mostly with two and three years' experience," he said.

"I think the best team we ever had — even better than the 1956 and 1963 championship winners — were the 1937-38 teams. We had 17 second year players on the '37 team and won the division. In '38 we won the NFL championship only to have the team decimated by the War. I think we've got to give these kids a chance."

Georgia all alone at 9-0-0

By The Associated Press
All Georgia wanted was a first down. Instead, the Bulldogs may latch onto first place in the national college football ratings.

While second-ranked Georgia was pulling a rabbit out of its hat in the form of a record 93-yard Buck Belue-to-Lindsay Scott touchdown pass play with 63 seconds left to overtake No. 20 Florida 26-21, top-rated Notre Dame ran out of miracles and needed Harry Oliver's 47-yard field goal with 4:44 remaining to salvage a 3-3 tie with a Georgia Tech team which is suffering through its worst season (1-7-1) since 1934.

That left Georgia (9-0-0) as the nation's only unbeaten-major team, although Notre Dame and Southern California are undefeated but once-tied. The Bulldogs' exciting triumph, which included 238 rushing yards by freshman sensation by Herschel Walker — 72 for a touchdown on the game's fourth play — for a single-season school record 1,334 yards with two games to go, also gave them at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference crown.

Besides Notre Dame and Florida, the only other member of The Associated Press Top Twenty to stumble was eighth-ranked UCLA, which lost 20-14 to Oregon.

Meanwhile, with the bowl bids coming up next Saturday, third-ranked Florida State whipped Virginia Tech 31-7, No. 4 Southern Cal trounced Stanford 34-9.

Two are honored

By The Associated Press
A pair of Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association players closed out their 1980 football season with spectacular Saturday night performances, winning TIAA player of the week honors.

The league's Offensive player of the week was McMurry quarterback Mark Cox, a 6-2, 195-pound junior from Weatherford. Cox established a TIAA single-game record with 486 yards in total offense in the Indians' 47-39 win over Austin College for the league championship. Cox completed 21 of 39 passes for 351 yards and a conference record six touchdowns against the Kangaroos, while rushing 12 times for 118 yards. Cox broke five McMurry individual records in the process, leading the Indians to a 9-1 season in the non-scholarship, Texas-only conference.

On defense, sulross State cornerback Henry Paige, a 5-7, 152-pound freshman from Sebastian, logged seven tackles, two assists, one interception and three pass deflections in a 35-34 squeaker over Trinity to nail down third place in the league.

Angelo tops local swimmers

San Angelo swimmers topped both Big Spring teams in a meet held here, Saturday.

Local girls varsity members put up a hard fight, but were edged by the San Angelo team, 44-37. Local boys scored 31 to San Angelo's 49.

"Individually we had some excellent performances from all our swimmers. We're just not strong enough as an overall team at this point," said Coach Harlan Smith. "Hopefully in the weeks to come we will gain that strength," he added.

In their next meet, the varsity teams will go up against Abilene High and Abilene Cooper at the Abilene YMCA, beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday. Junior vasily swimmers will meet Midland Lee in the Big Spring YMCA pool, 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The following is a list of Big Spring finishers in the Saturday-night meet.

Giants flea-flick Cowboys, win 38-35

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — It was just your routine, run-of-the-mill 38-35 National Football League game. Nothing special, unless you consider that the New York Giants had the 38 and the Dallas Cowboys the 35.

Come to think of it, that's pretty special.

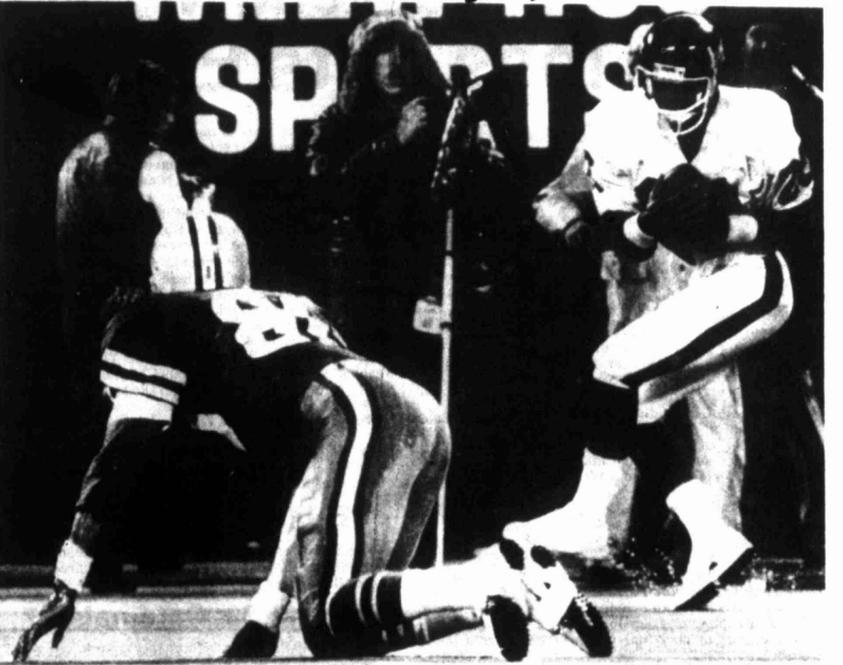

The Giants had not won a game in two months. And they had not beaten the Cowboys since 1974, when Phil Simms, Mike Friede, Larry Heater and Leon Perry all were in high school.

Simms threw for 351 yards and three touchdowns. Friede caught seven passes for 138 yards. Heater and Perry gave New York 117 yards on the ground. The Giants needed all those good numbers plus five interceptions to overcome a 183-yard game by Tony Dorsett, who scored two touchdowns for Dallas.

"We got ambushed," said Dorsett with a shrug. "We were playing a team with a 1-8 record. Emotionally, we were not as high as we would have been against a team with a better record. Instead of making them play our game, they made us play theirs. It tells you that we're human."

The margin of victory was Joe Danelo's 27-yard field goal with 67 seconds left to play. The Giants positioned the ball for the three-pointer with a 40-yard flea flicker that came straight out of sandlot football.

New York had just taken over at the Dallas 47 with 2:22 to play when linebacker Brad Van Pelt, who had two interceptions, stacked up Robert Newhouse on a fourth-and-inches.

SLIPPERY WIN — The New York Giants Gary Woolford, right, intercepts a Dallas Cowboys pass Sunday with seconds remaining as the Cowboys Drew Pearson

"I thought to myself then, we can't lose now," said Simms. "I knew we'd get it down and score."

The route they took was unexpected. With a heavy rain making the ball slippery, the Giants went for the flea flicker. Simms handed off to Perry, who faked an inside run and then pitched back to the quarterback, who fired to Friede.

"I told Leon if he was in doubt, not to pitch it back," said Simms. "I wasn't going to take much chance with it."

Perry pitched, though. "The conditions were bad but we had gotten it down in practice," the running back said.

For Friede's part, he wasn't surprised at the call.

"Not at all," the rookie said. "Who would expect it?"

Certainly not the Cowboys. Van Pelt positively glowed over the victory. He's one of the few Giants who were around the last time New York beat Dallas.

"It's been a long time," he said. "You tend to forget what it feels like to win, coming into the locker room and enjoying that feeling."

Coach Ray Perkins, always the stoic, took a leisurely puff on his postgame cigar and allowed himself a small smile.

"Somebody," he noted, "lost a lot of money. I know that."

Weekend NFL action Poke loss puts Eagles two ahead

A sign behind the end zone at the Louisiana Superdome read, "See You Again in January." The Philadelphia Eagles would like nothing better than to comply with that request.

The Eagles, who beat the winless New Orleans Saints 34-21 Sunday behind three touchdown passes from Ron Jaworski to Harold Carmichael, moved a step closer to their divisional title when the New York Giants upset the Dallas Cowboys 38-35.

"We've got a two-game cushion on the Cowboys now," said Jaworski, who finished the day with 21 completions in 32 attempts for 323 yards — one of eight passers to surpass 300 yards for the day.

Philadelphia's 9-1 record is the best in the National Football League and good for a two-game lead over Dallas in the National Conference East. The division crown would be the first step toward a berth in the Super Bowl Jan. 25 in New Orleans, but the Eagles aren't making any hotel reservations just yet.

"The Super Bowl is just too far away to worry about," said defensive end Claude Humphrey. And Coach Dick Vermeil warned, "We're not a shoo-in for anything yet."

Maybe not, but the Eagles are a lot better off than they were a week ago — thanks to the Giants' first victory over Dallas since 1974. Phil Simms completed 18 of 33 pass attempts for 351 yards and three touchdowns for the Giants, who intercepted five passes by Dallas quarterback Danny White.

Simms hit rookie Mike Friede with a 26-yard pass on a flea-flicker play to set up Joe Delano's 27-yard field goal with 1:07 to play that provided the margin of victory over Dallas.

Elsewhere, the Atlanta Falcons and Oakland Raiders took over sole possession of first place in their respective divisions.

Steve Bartkowski completed 31 of 47 passes for 378 yards in leading the Falcons to a 33-27 overtime triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. That win, coupled with the Miami Dolphins' 35-14 upset of the Los Angeles Rams, gave the 7-3 Falcons a one-game lead over the Rams in the NFC West.

The Oakland Raiders, led by rejuvenated quarterback Jim Plunkett, beat the Cincinnati Bengals 28-17 for their fifth consecutive victory. Oakland, 7-3, pulled one game ahead of San Diego in the AFC West when the Chargers were upended by the Denver Broncos 20-13.

The Cleveland Browns moved one-half game ahead of Houston in the AFC Central by edging the Baltimore Colts 28-27, but the Oilers will have a chance to draw even tonight when they host the New England Patriots in Monday Night Football.

The Pittsburgh Steelers continued their comeback by beating the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 24-21. Pittsburgh, which lost three in a row earlier this season, is now one game back of Cleveland.

The Patriots, meanwhile, lead Buffalo by just one-half game in the AFC East. The Bills pulled out a 31-24 thriller over the New York Jets.

Besides Jaworski, Simms and Bartkowski, other quarterbacks to pass for more than 300 yards were Doug Williams of Tampa Bay, Joe Theismann of Washington, Jim Hart of St. Louis, Archie Manning of New Orleans and Dan Fouts of San Diego.

Vikings 34, Lions 0

The Vikings forced Detroit into eight turnovers and sacked Lions quarterback Gary Danielson seven times en route to their first shutout since 1975.

Eagles 34, Saints 21

Carmichael caught touchdown passes of 10, 6 and 25 yards for the Eagles, the first time in his career he's gotten three in one game.

Falcons 33, Cardinals 27

Reserve running back Ray Strong burst through the line for a 21-yard touchdown at 4:42 of overtime to give Atlanta the victory.

Dolphins 35, Rams 14

Unheralded rookie David Woodley, an eighth-round draft choice, passed for three touchdowns and scrambled for two more as Miami surprised Los Angeles.

Raiders 28, Bengals 17

Plunkett ran 4 yards for the clinching touchdown midway through the fourth quarter as Oakland won its fifth in a row.

Broncos 20, Chargers 13

Larry Brunson's 53-yard kickoff return helped spark Denver, which gave up big yardage to San Diego's Fouts but limited him to just one TD pass. Broncos Coach Red Miller awarded a game ball to his entire defensive unit.

Browns 23, Colts 27

Brian Sipe passed for two touchdowns and Charles White ran for two, but after Baltimore's Bert Jones threw two scoring passes in the last 1:27, the margin of victory turned out to be a missed extra point by Baltimore's Steve Mike-Mayer in the second period.

Steelers 24, Bucs 21

Pittsburgh's defense forced two first-quarter turnovers, the Steelers turned them into 10 quick points and the Bucs never caught up. A late interception by safety Donnie Shell led the victory.

Bills 31, Jets 24

Joe Ferguson's third touchdown pass, a 31-yarder to Frank Lewis with six seconds left, gave the Bills the victory. "It looked exactly like it was drawn up on a blackboard," said Ferguson.

Chiefs 31, Lions 0

Steve Fuller marched the Chiefs 91 yards in 11 plays in 3:21 to set by Arnold Mergado's 1-yard run with 40 seconds left to beat Seattle.

Bears 35, Redskins 21

Vince Evans hurled touchdown passes of 40 and 12 yards to James Scott and another of 54 yards to Walter Payton, who earlier broke up the middle for 50 yards, as the B's led to a 35-0 halftime lead and coasted past Washington.

Packers 23, 49ers 16

Lynn Dickey completed 15 straight passes and finished with 24 of 33 for 244 yards as the Packers overcame a 13-0 deficit and beat San Francisco. Dickey has completed 130 of 202 passes for 1,578 yards in his last six games.

OH, THE PAIN — Miami Dolphins Joe Rose (80) grimaces as Los Angeles Rams defender Johnnie Johnson (20) knocks away a pass from Dolphins quarterback David Woodley during the third quarter at Anaheim Stadium Sunday. The Dolphins beat the Rams, 35-14.

Arithmetic favors Baylor

DALLAS (AP) — The Baylor Bears clinched a tie for the Southwest Conference championship with Saturday's 42-15 rout of Arkansas and can wrap up the host spot in the Jan. 1 Cotton Bowl by beating Rice in Houston Saturday afternoon.

But should Baylor lose, it will open up a realm of other possibilities, giving Texas and Southern Methodist chances at appearing in the Dallas classic.

Baylor is 8-1 for the season and a perfect 6-0 in SWC action and must lose to both Rice and Texas, in a Nov. 22 game at Waco, to blow its opportunity to go to the Cotton Bowl.

If Baylor stumbles the worst it can do is 6-2, and Houston, Texas and Southern Methodist could match that record by winning the remainder of their games.

SMU has two games left, at Texas Tech next Saturday and in Dallas against Arkansas on Nov. 22.

Houston also has two games remaining, at Texas Tech on Nov. 22 and against Rice on Nov. 29.

Texas has three games to play. The Longhorns are at Texas Christian next Saturday, at Baylor Nov. 22 and in Austin against Texas A&M on Nov. 29.

SMU has two chances, both of which hinge on Baylor losing both its games and both the Mustangs and Texas winning the remainder of theirs.

Should Texas lose any of its last three games, SMU can't go to the Cotton Bowl no matter what happens to Baylor. The only alternatives left would be a 2-way tie with Baylor or a 3-way tie involving Baylor and Houston, and the Bears would advance either way since they beat both.

On the other hand, Texas can go to Dallas on Jan. 1 only if SMU gets knocked out of the running. The Longhorns would advance in a 2-way tie with Baylor or a 3-way tie involving Baylor and Houston by virtue of wins over both teams.

But in any 3-way or 4-way tie involving SMU, the Mustangs would get the nod. Unless one team has beaten all the others, the SWC breaks the deadlock by sending the team that has gone longest without a Cotton Bowl appearance. That would be SMU, which hasn't since its 24-9 loss to Georgia in 1967.

SMU's losses in SWC play have been to Baylor and Houston. Houston lost to Baylor and Texas, and Texas fell to SMU and Texas Tech.

Houston, the Cotton Bowl host team on three of the past four years, can't go by any calculations. The Cougars would lose to Baylor in a 3-way tie involving SMU and to Texas in a 3-way deadlock involving the Longhorns.

Baylor made its only appearance in the Cotton Bowl in 1975 in a 41-20 loss to Penn State. Texas went to the Cotton Bowl six straight times from 1969-74 and returned in a 38-10 defeat to Notre Dame in 1978.

Wheeler is lone loser

With the battle for district races and playoff berths coming down to the wire, only one of the 40 ranked teams in The Associated Press schoolboy football poll took it on the chin during the crucial ninth weekend of play.

Defending state champion Temple, ranked first in Class 5A, stomped outgunned Copperas Cove, 70-0, as backup running back Grady Broadus accounted for three touchdowns and set up another with a 50-yard interception return. No. 2 Port Arthur Jefferson rolled to a 55-6 win over Nederland. Jefferson quarterback Todd Dodge secured his place in state gridiron history by moving into the No. 2 spot on the all-time 5A passing list.

Dodge hit 20 of 32 passes for 306 yards and three touchdowns to raise his career tally to 4,343 career yards. That places him behind only Tommy Kramer, the Rice University and Minnesota Vikings signal-caller who performed his high school heroics at San Antonio Leo. No. 9 Wheeler in Class 2A was the lone loser, falling to Canadian, 20-14.

In other games involving top-ranked Class 5A teams, No. 3 Odessa Permian crushed San Angelo Central, 34-8; fourth-rated Conroe bombed Conroe McCullough, 36-6; and fifth-seeded Bryan whitewashed Round Rock, 28-0.

No. 6 Highland Park demolished Garland Lakeview Centennial, 28-3;

GETTING HER GRIP — Bareback bull rider Tonya Tucker gets her grips in the chute before her turn to ride the bucking bronco in Long Beach recently. Tucker, who was last year's World Champion in women's bull riding, is assisted by her boyfriend, Otie Stevenson.

Rodeo family wins together

Taking the bull by the horns

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It's not easy being a mother when your little girl is face-first in the dirt and 1,500 pounds of steak with the horns still attached is barreling down on her.

It's at times like that Jan Edmondson reconsiders her rodeo career and the role model she provided for her seven children.

At 13, daughter Dawnita is the youngest of the 12 top-ranked bull riders on the all-women's professional rodeo circuit. She faces some tough competitors when she puts her 110 pounds atop a 1,300 pound Brahma and they fly into the arena.

Mom, for example. At 37, Mrs. Edmondson is the oldest of the top 12 bull riders.

And last year's world champion in women's bull riding was Tonya Tucker — Mrs. Edmondson's 20-year-old daughter and Dawnita's half-sister.

All three grew up on Jan's father's ranch in Garden Valley, Idaho, where the family produced rodeos. While their dad does that, the kids ride rodeos across the country and in Mexico, spending the school year in Ponder, Texas, 30 miles north of Fort Worth.

"It's just a sport to us," shrugs Mrs. Edmondson, a grandmother-to-be who has been in pro rodeo for 25 years. "All my kids ride. They start out on calves when they're 2 or 3, then work their way up to steers and bulls."

Mrs. Edmondson, Dawnita and Tonya squared off with nine others for the 1980 Cowgirls Rodeo Association National Championship Finals, which began Saturday.

When it was over Sunday, Mrs. Edmondson had split 3rd and 4th place in the bareback bronc riding, tying with another woman but sharing the prize money. Tonya split 1st and 2nd in bronc and bull riding and left the rodeo with world championships in both events, said rodeo public relations director Rylon Nilson.

Dawnita's results were not available immediately.

Dawnita's bull was so feisty it mashed the eighth-grader's leg against the chute and tossed her sky-high about two seconds out of the gate. Tonya was riding with a broken hand and was flung to the dirt before the six-second qualifying time was up.

Mrs. Edmondson opted not to ride the bulls because her three broken ribs hurt and she was afraid further injury would jeopardize her chances in the bareback bronc finals.

"Not that mishaps are anything new to her. 'You're talkin' to the wreck of the rodeo circuit, honey,' she smiled painfully. Her cheekbone is broken, the result of an August encounter with an angry bull.

Their biggest fear in the ring is for each other.

When her mother is in the ring, "I'm scared all the time," Dawnita says. "Especially after watching her get hurt in rodeo after rodeo."

Mrs. Edmondson says her stomach somersaults when her girls are on top of one of the snorting beasts about to charge from the chute.

"If they were scared, I wouldn't allow it," she says. "But as long as they keep a clear head, there's not going to be any serious injury."

Mrs. Edmondson plans to give the sport up "when I get too old. But I haven't gotten there yet."

Studies show Americans are still coupon hungry

By The Associated Press

Americans are clipping more coupons than ever before, despite a campaign by one of the country's biggest food chains to do away with coupons completely.

Thirty-nine percent of the shoppers questioned by the A.C. Nielsen Co. in a recently released nationwide survey said they used more coupons than they did a year earlier. An additional 17 percent said they used coupons "somewhat more." Thirty-seven percent said they used about the same number of coupons as they did in 1979 and 7 percent said they used fewer.

The Nielsen study indicated that 76 percent of all households — more than three families out of four — use coupons.

The anti-coupon campaign came from Giant Foods, a Washington-area chain which argued that shoppers would be better served if manufacturers lowered prices on all items instead of issuing coupons. Giant also said low-income consumers — who need the savings most — use coupons least because they do not buy the magazines and newspapers where the offers appear. And it claimed that fraudulent use of coupons, particularly through misredemptions, costs consumers millions of dollars.

Early this year, Giant prepared and distributed a film on coupons, including an interview with Esther Peterson, the president's adviser on consumer affairs. At the time, Barry Scher of Giant said the company would like to see coupons eliminated. "There are alternatives to coupon programs," he said.

Eileen Katz, of Giant's consumer affairs department said in a recent interview that the store "received a lot of mail on the issue."

Texas politicians begin thoughts of redistricting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With the presidential election over, thoughts of Texas politicians turn to the redistricting of state and federal legislative districts.

Taking the 1980 census and making Senate, House and congressional districts fit the new population figures is the major job of the 1981 Legislature.

Some think it probably will cause a special session.

For one thing, the final census figures may or may not be ready by the April 1 target date for legislative debate to begin.

Vince Barraba, national director of the census, met in San Antonio last week with staffers of the House Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts, which has been holding redistricting hearings.

The figures gathered by census takers will be available April 1, Barraba promised.

However, if those numbers have to be adjusted because of an alleged undercount of minorities, as a Detroit court order prescribes, no one knows when the new figures will be ready.

U.S. District Judge Horace W. Gilmore, in a suit brought by the city of Detroit, ordered the Census Bureau to adjust its figures, saying the alleged undercount was unconstitutional because it diluted the voting strength of blacks and Hispanics.

The Justice Department, which must defend the Census Bureau, has not yet decided whether to appeal, a delay possibly caused by the presidential election. The department has until the latter part of November to decide.

If the Census must adjust its figures according to the Detroit court order, the final figures will not be available until late 1981 or early 1982, Barraba said at the San Antonio meeting.

Some of those involved, who don't want to be quoted, say there probably will be efforts by some states, including Texas to delay redistricting until 1983 because of the adjustment fuss.

Texas lawmakers have been doing as much as they can to be prepared for the census report.

The Texas Legislative Council, as authorized by the 1979 Legislature, voted to spend $515,000 for a special computer system that would be used exclusively for the redistricting effort.

A redistricting committee can draw a map and the computer would reveal the exact population, sex, age, color, occupations and all vital details.

The House redistricting committee, headed by Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, has been holding public hearings throughout the state since early September. They will continue through Dec. 10.

Farm Food stamp plan may be put on strict diet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The food stamp program may be put on a strict diet next year.

The federal program, which helps feed about 22 million Americans or approximately one in 10, faces sharp cutbacks if several incoming Republican leaders have their way.

With Ronald Reagan in the White House and the GOP in control of the Senate for the first time since 1954, cost-cutting measures are expected to find a favor unseen in recent years.

The food stamp program has grown rapidly in recent years and is likely to be a fat target for GOP leaders vowing to pare the federal budget.

"The food stamp program is in big trouble," said Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland in assessing the impact of last week's conservative Republican landslide.

While continued Democratic control of the House of Representatives may forestall drastic food stamp reductions, prospective GOP Senate leaders say they are determined to make the effort.

The leader of the drive is likely to be Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who is in line to become chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Helms has been one of the strongest critics of food stamp spending and has vowed to cut the program.

Helms, now the ranking Republican on the Agriculture Committee in the lame-duck Senate, said he believed that waste, fraud and general abuse are rampant in the program.

Earlier this year he said that 15 percent of the recipients did not qualify for the subsidies but received them because the Agriculture Department couldn't stop fraud. He said after the election that the program could be cut as much as 40 percent without denying stamps to the most needy.

"The future as far as I'm concerned is to reduce it to those who are truly needy," Helms said.

He said the program "has got to be changed so you won't have so many free-loaders on it." The government shouldn't be "dishing out these food stamps to people who don't deserve them," Helms added.

Food stamp spending ran into a barrage of opposition last May, when Congress voted to spend an extra $2.56 billion on top of the $6.2 billion that had already been provided to keep the program going for the rest of the fiscal year.

Memories of child slaying still cause fear in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — It has been more than 3½ years since the child killer known only as "the Babysitter" struck in the suburbs north of Detroit, but fall is still a time of fear in Oakland County.

When the first snowfall comes, parents worry the killer may try to add to his list of victims — two girls and two boys, ages 10 to 12.

The unsolved slayings also were brought to mind by the killings of 11 black children and the disappearances of four others in Atlanta since July 1979.

bodies were found.

"The first snowfall always brings back thoughts," said Herbert Baker, director of guidance and pupil personnel services for the Birmingham schools. The last of the four victims, Timothy King, 11, attended elementary school in that district.

"People are still very much concerned about it," said Sheriff's Sgt. Richard Birmingham. "Calls (of suspicious activities) are turned in much more readily now."

Police theorize that the killer approached his victims, somehow gained their trust and persuaded them to go somewhere with him.

Mark Stebbins, 12, of Ferndale, was last seen alive Feb. 13, 1976. His body was found six days later in a parking lot in Southfield.

Jill Robinson, 12, of Royal Oak, ran away from home Dec. 22, 1976, after an argument with her mother. Her body, with a shotgun wound in the face, was found four days later in Troy.

Kristine Mibelich, 10, went to buy a magazine at a party store three blocks from her home on Jan. 2, 1977. Her body was found 19 days later in Franklin.

King was last seen talking to a man in a parking lot next to a blue Gremlin on March 16, 1977. His body was found seven days later.

Some investigators say the killer may no longer be in the area, but for the past two winters there has been a communitywide effort to educate children on safety.

A fast-food chain printed signs on placemats warning children not to talk to strangers. Similar warnings were found on milk cartons sold at local supermarkets. Thousands of T-shirts with special slogans were sold, and social workers and psychologists visited classrooms to instruct children on what to do if they were approached by strangers.

But detectives are no closer to solving the killings than they were in 1976, Birmingham said, when 159 investigators from a dozen communities collected more than 16,000 tips and spent more than $2 million in the process. Five are still working today.

Consumption of gasoline decreases within state

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock Thursday said during the past year gasoline consumption in Texas took a nosedive at a time when the number of vehicles on the state's roads increased.

He said during the state's past fiscal year, which ended Aug. 31, Texas motorists consumed 8 billion gallons of gasoline.

Figures for the 1979 fiscal year show that more than 8.5 billion gallons of gasoline were sold in Texas and about the same amount sold in 1978.

Bullock put total vehicle registration in Texas for the 1980 fiscal year at 11.9 million vehicles, compared to 10 million vehicles on Texas roads during 1979.

"A half billion gallon drop is significant at a time when the state's car and truck population is skyrocketing," Bullock said.

"Our analysis doesn't show whether people are driving less or getting better mileage, but they are definitely buying less gas," he said.

Texas motorists used between 600 and 700 million gallons of gasoline a month, Bullock said.

Bullock said his office collected $399.4 million in gasoline taxes during the past year, compared to $417 million turned into the state during 1979.

He said three-quarters of the tax goes to the highway fund and one-quarter is put into the Available School Fund.

Gasoline is taxed at five cents a gallon and diesel fuel is taxed at six and a-half cents a gallon, according to Bullock.

Diesel fuel tax revenues amounted to more than $78 million during fiscal 1980, compared to $70.7 million during 1979.

About 5 billion gallons of diesel fuel were sold in Texas last year, Bullock said.

A comparison of vehicles and consumption of gasoline for 1980 shows the "average" automobile or truck used 680 gallons of gasoline during the 12-month period.

Registered vehicles and gasoline consumed during 1979 "averages" out to 843 gallons a year.

Tower shuns minority leader job

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) - Texan John Tower, who now ranks sixth among Republicans in the U.S. Senate, says he has no intention of seeking the post of majority leader, although he will continue to head of the Armed Services Committee.

Tower, who enters his 20th year in the Senate in January, said Wednesday that position should go to the current minority leader, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

Republicans, who gained Senate domination in Tuesday's election, "are perfectly happy with the current leadership," Tower said Wednesday.

Tower, who has cultivated a "hawk" reputation in military affairs, was mentioned earlier this fall as a possible defense secretary under President-elect Reagan. But the senator said Wednesday he had not been contacted about any Cabinet position.

Houston (AP) - The Texas Department of Corrections Board may end a frustrating 2-year search for a prison farm site today by approving a previously unmentioned tract in Grimes County, a board member says.

The board was to hear from a site selection team during today's meeting in Huntsville. Board member Ruben Montemayor said this weekend the board's choices have, in effect, narrowed to the 6,000 acre site 75 miles northwest of here.

"If it (a recommendation to for the Grimes County tract) comes before the board, we'll pick it," said Montemayor, of San Antonio. "Time is of the essence."

Two previous selections by the board have gone down the drain and negotiations for a tract of land in Walker County, which borders Grimes County, fell through last month when the seller withdrew the offer.

Montemayor said the Brazos Valley tract is "probably the best site," although he declined to specify other details, such as a proposed purchase price.

The board first started searching for a new prison farm site two years ago and had targeted the lower Rio Grande Valley because of its long growing season, but those plans fell through.

In May of this year a plan to buy the 5,300-acre La Casita Farm in Starr County along the Mexican border was killed by overwhelming local opposition.

Travel vouchers submitted to the Comptroller's office by a member of the selection committee indicated he had made visits to Eagle Pass, Cotulla, Clarksville and Huntsville.

There was no mention of Grimes County.

Board member Harry Whittington said last week the new site was "not in the Valley," but would release the proposed site. He said some area residents knew about the plan, but general advance secrecy was advocated.

The Grimes County site came under local fire two weeks ago when advertisements protesting the proposal were printed in a Grimes County newspaper.

The most vocal opponent, Charles Coates, said a state-owned prison farm will remove valuable land from county and school tax rolls and create demands for local services paid for by Grimes County residents.

"It's not real comfortable living next to a prison farm because the people there are not first-class citizens," said Coates, who owns 150 acres adjacent to the proposed site.

He said the TDC should find a site far away from populated areas.

The site fronts FM 1227 near Courtney and consists of five tracts belonging to five separate owners, said Betty Jane Burlin, president of the Grimes County Chamber of Commerce and the real estate agent who represents the owners.

The location is 15 miles south of Navasota, a town of about 5,000.

Mrs. Burlin said the prison farm has a projected payroll of $2 million and 250 employees, many of whom will live in the county.

"I don't see how that can do anything but help the economy," she said. "As president of the Chamber of Commerce, if I thought it was detrimental in any way, I certainly wouldn't have encouraged it. I've tried to match a willing buyer with the willing seller."

She would not disclose the names of the owners or a purchase price.

If approved by board members, the site must be endorsed by a three-member panel comprised of Gov. Bill Clements, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and TDC Board Chairman James Windham. Clements has promised public hearings before any decision is finalized.

Thus, job hunting on the Hill, where a new senator typically will get up to 2,000 applicants for an average of 30 or so positions, will be more brutally competitive than ever as the Democrats count their losses and the Republicans their Capitol gains.

Wichita Falls (AP) - Just two weeks before the presidential election, a Democratic Party regular in Waco was genuinely optimistic.

"It's just not fashionable to say you're for Jimmy Carter," he said, but when it comes time to mark that secret ballot, most people will vote for him because the alternative is so awful."

The man guessed wrong. Even his own traditionally Democratic county went for Republican Ronald Reagan, 30-26 to 25-37. That tally is almost identical to McClellan County's 1976 results - 30-091 to 25-370 - except that four years ago, Carter was the winner and former President Gerald Ford the loser.

Unfortunately for Carter, McClellan County was just one of 97 Texas counties that abandoned him between 1976 and 1980. Howard County was another.

Worse, in the 94 counties Carter held on to this year, his support had eroded. For instance, in traditionally Democratic Nueces County (Corpus Christi), his 20,000-vote margin against Ford collapsed to less than 5,000 vis-a-vis Reagan.

And the telling blow, as expected, came in just a handful of counties.

In 1976, Carter won Texas despite Ford's victories in the three vote-rich counties of Dallas, Tarrant (Fort Worth) and Harris (Houston). In 1980, he lost all three counties again - but by a combined 389,943 votes, about 284,000 more than in 1976.

This time, however, Carter did not have the support in smaller cities and rural areas to offset the urban losses, and the state's 26 electoral votes went to Reagan.

Dallas, Tarrant and Harris counties typically go for Republican presidential candidates. In 1980, they were joined by two urban counties that do not, El Paso and Bexar (San Antonio).

Of the state's 254 counties, Carter carried 191, or 75 percent, in 1976. Last week, Reagan took the 63 Ford won in 1976 and added Carter's lost 97.

Result: Reagan, 160 counties, for 2.5 million votes; Carter, 94 counties, for 1.8 million votes.

Carter retained support, if deflated, primarily in South and East Texas, with their large minority populations, labor-dominated Southeast Texas and a scattering of yellow-dog Democrat ("I'd even vote for a yellow dog if the Democrats run one") counties in Central and West Texas.

He carried most of the Panhandle in 1976. In 1980, Swisher County stood alone as Carter Country, though the 2,000-vote margin of 1976 had dropped to 400.

In far West Texas, given El Paso's defection, only Presidio County went for the president.

In West Texas in 1976, the counties with the major cities - Taylor (Abilene), Tom Green (San Angelo), Ector (Odessa) and Midland - had been notable Ford holdouts in Carter's 1976 sweep. Last week, the four counties were joined in the GOP column by neighboring rural counties stretching north to Wichita Falls.

Howard County gave Carter a 2,000-vote margin of victory in 1976; Reagan carried it this year by more than 2,200 votes. Wichita County (Wichita Falls) also defected, transforming Carter's 3,000-vote margin of 1976 to a 5,000-vote defeat.

Reagan expanded the GOP claim from San Angelo south to the Rio Grande with his victories in Crockett, Terrell, Val Verde and Kinney counties.

Prison site may be chosen

WASHINGTON (AP) - Though stunned by Ronald Reagan's landslide, 33-year-old Sandy Dickey nodded off last Tuesday night secure in the belief that her own career in government, like that of her Democratic boss, had at least four years to run.

Wrong.

As she waited for the coffee to brew Wednesday morning, Miss Dickey learned how quickly the promise of politics can turn to quicksand. Though she works for a senator whose term isn't up until 1984, Miss Dickey is about to join hundreds of other Capitol Hill employees in an elite unemployment line.

"It just didn't dawn on me until I heard it on television that morning that the Republicans would control the new Senate," she said. "None of us had any idea... we just didn't anticipate it."

Any congressional staff member's fortunes, of course, are as fickle as those of the boss. But the irony of Miss Dickey's work, for $21,500, on the Civil Service subcommittee headed by Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., is that his job security was affected not one bit.

"The senator was in sort of a daze himself that day," she recalls. "He walked up to me and just said 'I'm really sorry. I don't have the subcommittee anymore.'"

"I gave myself three days to be depressed," she said. "Now it's time to pull myself together, to recognize that I'm part of something that hasn't happened in 25 years and try to make the best of it."

Once a Shelby County employee in Memphis, she campaigned for Sen. Jim Sasser and then joined his staff in Washington three years ago, soon to transfer to the subcommittee post offered by Pryor.

"I came because this is the center of politics," she said. "I've had a chance to work on lobby reform, on sunset legislation for government regulation, on civil service reform... I don't really want to go back to Memphis."

"But then, I can't be closing any doors. Not now."

The changeover in Senate control could boost the ranks of the congressionally unemployed to a number rivaling that of the new jobhunters in the executive branch, where 2,900 people serve at the pleasure of the president.

In 1978, about 1,300 were thrown out of work at the Capitol, even though Democrats retained control of both Houses. The loss of all committee chairmanships in the Senate and the defeat of four incumbent chairmen in the House is certain to boost that figure much higher this time. Moreover, the change in Senate control probably means the departure of Sergeant at Arms F. Nordy Hoffman, whose office holds rein over scores of support jobs, ranging from elevator operators to computer specialists.

Thus, job hunting on the Hill, where a new senator typically will get up to 2,000 applicants for an average of 30 or so positions, will be more brutally competitive than ever as the Democrats count their losses and the Republicans their Capitol gains.
