VICTIM REMOVED — An unidentified smoke-blackened woman is carried to safety from a fire at the Stardust Cabaret Club in Dublin early Saturday. (AP LASERPHOTO)

Arsonists set disco fire that killed 49?

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Police said Saturday they are investigating rumors that arsonists set the early morning flash fire that swept through Dublin's biggest nightclub at a Valentine's disco dance, killing 49 young people and injuring at least 130 others.

A police spokesman said several survivors reported they saw two men go behind a curtain near the stage minutes before the fire broke out there. But he added, "As far as we are concerned, these reports are all unconfirmed."

There was no indication any foreigners were caught in the fire, the spokesman said. Dublin reporters said they believed all of the victims were Irish, and most were residents of the working-class neighborhood surrounding the Stardust Cabaret.

Parents of missing youngsters descended on the city's seven hospitals Saturday. Some went in despair to the city morgue.

The morgue was not big enough to contain all the dead, and Irish soldiers put up a tent in the yard to lay out the bodies.

Police said they were checking rumors of arson but did not know the cause of the blaze.

Witnesses at the Stardust Cabaret said the fire erupted just before 2 a.m., knocking out the electricity and plunging the 700 to 800 young patrons into darkness and panic. Some witnesses said windows were barred, preventing escape from the intense smoke and flame.

"We were trying to get out by the exits but they were all closed. One that was not locked opened inwards but everyone was trying to push it out and could not get out," said Brendan Higgins, 16, his face and hair burned and his hands badly cut.

"I was almost unconscious. Someone dragged me into a little room where I put my fist through the window to try to get some air. There were three of us in the room. The fire was coming on top of us and I could feel the hair on the back of my head burning," Higgins related after being treated at a hospital. "Then I was on the ground looking up and shouting 'I am dying,' and I really thought I was. But then another lad broke out the window completely and pulled me out."

Survivors said hundreds of youths were crowded into the former food processing plant in suburban Artane for a disco-dancing championship.

Most survivors who saw the fire as it began said it burst from behind a partition near the stage, setting ablaze a curtain which flamed upward and started the ceiling burning.

Then the power failed and the teenagers swarmed for the front entrance, groping for other unlighted exits, witnesses said.

They said the ceiling flared into a fireball, showering the dancers with molten material. Some patrons were burned or asphyxiated as they struggled to open locked doors or tore vainly at windows covered on the outside with vandal-proof iron bars, the witnesses said.

Dublin coroner Patrick Bofin, a pathologist, said 90 percent of the dead were burned beyond recognition.

Detectives probed the debris, and police said they were looking for remnants of a polystyrene-type material which made up the ceiling.

Liam Buttery, owner of the club, refused to speak to reporters. A barman said 775 meals were served before the fire and that the Stardust had a capacity for 1,500 but was partitioned off.

The fire was the worst disaster in the Irish Republic since the Jan. 8, 1979, explosion of the French tanker Betelgeuse in Bantry Bay killed 50 people. A movie theater fire at Drumcollagher Co. in Limerick in 1926 also claimed 50 lives.

Number of illegal aliens here jumps by 300 percent

By JAMES WERRELL

The number of illegal aliens processed in Big Spring has risen 300 percent since restrictions on the capture of aliens were dropped on Jan. 15, said Jim Stone, U.S. Border Patrol Agent stationed here.

A ban which prohibited the Border Patrol from raiding private businesses was imposed last spring in hopes of obtaining a higher census count. The only exception to the ban was the pickup of aliens from other agencies, such as area police and sheriff's departments, and from railroad cars, said Stone.

"The ban was begun because of the census, but it was ridiculous for it to last 10 months. It doesn't take that long to get a census," said the agent.

Local agents estimated that while restrictions were in effect, the number of illegal aliens captured during an average month, was less than 100. With the lifting of restrictions, that total rose to 130 for the first half of this month, said Stone.

"Without the restrictions, our main source of illegal aliens is Midland industries," he added.

Agents stationed here are Stone, Charles Hensley, Al Garcia and Buryl Williams, who recently received a promotion to the rank of supervisor and will be transferred to Del Rio.

Figures released earlier this month showed that the number of illegals arrested by local officers for the week of Jan. 9-15 was 31. The following week, 56 were apprehended, and the week after, the count jumped to 61.

Veteran patrolman moved to Del Rio

Buryl Williams, U.S. Border Patrol agent stationed in Big Spring for the past four years, has been promoted to the rank of Supervisor in Del Rio.

Williams has been with the Border Patrol in Big Spring since Oct. of 1976. During the spring of 1980, he and fellow agent Al Garcia were stationed for four weeks in Key West, Fla., helping to control the influx of refugees from Cuba.

Williams will report for duty in Del Rio Tuesday.

Reagan makes personal pitch for budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — One by one, they came to the White House for a preview of the budget cuts, and afterward, even President Reagan conceded his economic package would be tough for many to swallow.

"I can assure you by morning I'll be hung in effigy," Reagan told one group.

The president's message, personally delivered to congressmen, governors, mayors, state legislators, businessmen, blacks, agricultural leaders, Hispanics and labor leaders, was this:

The economy is in terrible shape and the government must tighten its belt and pass out billions of dollars less for usually sacred social programs and aid to cities and states.

The scope of the proposed spending cutbacks, as much as $50 billion, will be revealed by the president in a speech to a joint session of Congress on Wednesday night.

Reportedly, the cuts include a phase-out of the government's public service jobs program, reduction of the extended unemployment benefits program and cuts in welfare programs.

But sources say those stringent measures will be softened by a proposed 30 percent cut in personal income tax rates, spread out over three years, and accelerated depreciation writeoffs for business.

From the start of his new administration, Reagan has gone to extraordinary lengths to enlist followers for his budget-slashing. For example, he made a rare presidential visit to Capitol Hill to make a pitch to congressional leaders. And during the last three weeks, the president sat through hours of meetings with leaders of various constituencies.

'Russian roulette' kills Chicago lad

CHICAGO (AP) — A 9-year-old boy died Saturday after he was shot playing "Russian roulette" with three other youths during a club initiation, authorities said.

Sean Shields of Chicago died of a gunshot wound in the hip about 12 hours after he was admitted to Little Company of Mary Hospital, according to a hospital spokesman.

A 14-year-old youth, whose name was not released, was named in a juvenile petition charging murder, police said.

According to police, Shields and two 11-year-old boys were invited to the 14-year-old's home for an initiation to a club the older youth was forming.

The 14-year-old lined the three others against a wall, produced a .38-caliber revolver and emptied all but one of the shells from the gun, police said.

He pointed the gun at each of the youths in succession and pulled the trigger, police said, but the gun did not fire until he pointed it at Shields.

Says Allman of inmate's claim

No one exposed to hepatitis

By CAROL HART

An inmate at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp has charged in a conversation with the Herald that another inmate known to have infectious hepatitis was housed in a dorm at the camp with other prisoners and ate several meals in the cafeteria with other men before he was quarantined.

John Allman, superintendent at the Big Spring Federal Camp, answered the accusation by saying that as soon as officials knew the man had hepatitis, he was isolated.

The inmate who contacted the Herald said that a man with hepatitis was brought in a bus under the custody of a federal marshal to the camp Jan. 20. The man was transported to the camp with six other inmates, and all were detained at the local camp.

Jerry Edwards, assistant superintendent, verified this after checking records. Officials originally said the inmate was a "self-committal," who entered the prison on his own after being told to report.

The allegations made are "not correct," said Allman. He said when the man was admitted to the camp, he underwent a routine medical examination, which is required for all entering inmates.

"Every man is given a physical workup, including a blood test," Allman said.

"No one was exposed. There is no problem to the community, or to the inmates and staff at the prison," Allman said.

David Huff, medical administrator at the camp, said blood samples and other medical tests taken at the Big Spring Camp are sent to a lab in Abilene, and results are available in about 48 hours.

When tests showed that the man had hepatitis, he was "isolated," said Allman.

Huff said that the ill inmate was given a private bath, and was served meals separate from other prisoners.

Jerry Edwards, assistant superintendent at the camp, said the ill inmate was served his meals on paper plates. The medical staff went to the ill man's room, said Huff, rather than allowing him to walk through the halls.

Approximately a week ago, the ill inmate was hospitalized, because "we felt in his interest, it was the best thing," said Huff. "He needed frequent blood tests," Huff continued, "and we felt they could best be conducted in a hospital."

Huff said he has talked to inmates at the prison and to staff members fearful of contracting hepatitis, "telling them 'I was as close to him (the ill inmate) as anybody,' and that 'I feel we were not unduly exposed.'"

He said "I have a little girl and a wife at home, and I wouldn't endanger them. It's not something to panic about."

Huff said hepatitis could be transmitted only through contact with food or excrement, by direct contact through the mouth, or through an injection through the skin.

Huff said that he has seen the man since he was hospitalized, and that he is doing "beautifully." Plans are to release the man back to the prison camp within a week.

Refineries face new gas glut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The stock pile of gasoline at American refineries is fast approaching a record inventory that may cause slowdowns or shutdowns of the facilities and could eventually lower prices, oil industry expert Dan Lundberg said Saturday.

Consumer conservation of gasoline and continued production of fuel oil for winter heating were combining to create stocks of 277 million barrels of gas at refineries, in pipelines and at large terminals throughout the country, according to the Lundberg Letter, an oil industry publication.

"What the refineries are going to do with it, I don't know," Lundberg said. "The industry may have to drink it."

Lundberg said refinery production runs are at "uneconomic rates," dropping in January to 72.7 percent of capacity, from an already low of 76.6 percent in December. Refiners are faced with "even greater slowdowns, perhaps shutdowns."

Refiners generally like to run at about 90 percent capacity, the newsletter said.

A record surplus of 283.1 million barrels, set in April of last year, brought an average 1.2-cent price drop over an eight-month period.

Balloonists abandon trip

MURCHPUR, India (AP) — Two American adventurers landed their balloon near this village in northern India on Saturday, abandoning their attempt to make the first non-stop, round-the-world balloon flight.

Maxie Anderson and Don Ida told The Associated Press they were both fine, but their 20-story balloon had failed to gain enough altitude to cross the Himalayan mountains separating India and China.

Sinatra to make $2 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Sinatra will make "something over $2 million" for four performances in Buenos Aires in August, according to a spokesman for the performer's Argentine promoter.

The spokesman, who wished not to be identified, said promoter Ramon "Palito" Ortega reached agreement with Sinatra in Lake Tahoe for four performances August 5-8 in the Argentine capital.

Len Rosen, a spokesman in New York for Sinatra's publicity agent, Lee Solters, confirmed that Ortega flew to the Nevada resort Thursday to negotiate the contract. But Rosen said he would not offer any details about money.

"We never offer any information about financial matters. That's Mr. Sinatra's business," Rosen said.

The spokesman for Ortega, who stopped here on his way back to Buenos Aires, said Saturday that the fixed fee for the four concerts was $1.65 million, but that the agreement also gave Sinatra an amount equal to 80 per cent of whatever major Buenos Aires hotels spend to promote his Argentine debut.

"We calculate that the performances will gross between box office and receipts about $2.5 million," the spokesman said. Asked what would be Sinatra's share, he said "something over $2 million."

"This is a record figure not only for Argentina but for all of Latin America. We know of no other American performer who has gotten this much," the spokesman for Ortega said.

Ex-hostage told to report

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Sgt. Billy Gallegos, one of the hostages held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, will report by Feb. 27 to the Marine Corps Security Battalion at Quantico, Va., where he will either be given an early discharge or be reassigned to another embassy.

The 22-year-old Gallegos' term of enlistment ends in October, and he has said he probably will leave the service for college to study law or police science.

A Marine spokesman at the Pentagon said Friday that if Gallegos wishes to serve overseas, he probably would be given his choice of sought-after places where security guards are needed.

He also could choose assignment to a Marine unit other than an embassy security squad or, depending on his qualifications, might opt to seek an officer's commission, the spokesman said. An early discharge is another option, according to the spokesman.

Since their Jan. 20 release after 444 days of captivity, Gallegos and the eight other Marine guards stationed at the U.S. embassy in Tehran have been on special leave. The time off has been in addition to the regular annual leave of 2½ days each month marines receive.

He could not be reached for comment on his plans.

Fire erupts on riverfront

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A spectacular blaze erupted at a riverfront complex on the city's south side Saturday and threatened for a time to ignite a huge storage tank containing gasohol.

Authorities said the three-alarm fire followed a series of explosions which rocked the area surrounding a Texaco Co. bulk oil facility at the foot of Gasconade Street. The first explosion, according to authorities, occurred as two drivers and a workman were fueling two gasohol tanker trucks.

As many as six more explosions of less impact ripped the immediate area as fire enveloped and sent a column of thick, black smoke drifting to the north over the downtown area.

After the flow of gasohol was shut off to pumps were fueling the trucks, the fire was contained about 75 minutes after it had broken out.

BS postal employee is honored

Pearl B. Shifflet, window clerk at the Big Spring Post Office, has been selected the 1980 Retail Employee of the Year in the far flung West Texas Postal District.

D. E. Holster, Midland Postmaster, Sectional Center Manager, came to Big Spring Friday to give Ms. Shifflet a plaque and a check. The ritual took place in the offices of Postmaster Frank Hardesty of Big Spring.

The West Texas District embraces post offices as far away as Corpus Christ, San Antonio, El Paso and Austin. Ms. Shifflet became eligible for the honor by having been declared winner of one of 12 monthly contests staged within the district. The local woman has been with the local post office for 13 years.

Ms. Shifflet also received a congratulatory letter from Robert L. Hodges, San Antonio, manager of the West Texas District Office of the U.S. Postal Service.

Kids can now be taught here

Teaching hearing impaired

By CAROL HART

Children of elementary school age or younger who have hearing impairments no longer must be bused to deaf education programs in Midland, thanks to funding from the Regional School for the Deaf in Odessa, and the efforts of several Big Spring residents.

Mrs. Lillian Hill, formerly of San Antonio, has been teaching a class for hearing impaired youngsters since August at Bauer Elementary, 108 NW 9th St. She and her assistant, Mrs. Sharon Minyard, now have three full-time students, and a two and a half year old girl who attends on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Mrs. Hill explained that hearing-impaired children don't get the constant input of language that hearing children receive during their early years. Deaf children entering public school enter "with no language," she added.

To combat this, "it's ideal to start them as soon as a hearing impairment is noted."

In a city the size of Big Spring, Mrs. Hill reasons that there might be other children who are hearing impaired but whose parents and teachers aren't aware of the classroom offered at Bauer.

"We need to know of any other child who seems to be having problems," she said. "They need to be tested."

Should tests reveal a hearing problem, the students may join the class at Bauer.

Students in the hearing impaired program are "in class all day," Mrs. Hill said. These students might not function well in a hearing classroom, and are given the benefits of the "total communication of sign language and speech together."

During the day students in the hearing impaired classes learn a structured language, and study math, reading and a variety of other subjects. "We try to get in as much as possible," Mrs. Hill said, adding that she and Mrs. Minyard teach children on three different educational levels.

Students in the class include Gary Mears, 4, Gentry Shortes, 7, and George Hernandez, 12. The two and a half year old girl works with her parents and a teacher who comes to her home on the days that she does not attend class at Bauer.

In addition to studies, students in Mrs. Hill's and Mrs. Minyard's class branch out in many directions. For Valentine's Day, each child

Firm delivers 5 rigs

By ANDREA COHEN
O.I.L. has been rigging it up lately.

Oilfield Industrial Lines saw the completion of its first oil rig the beginning of the year outside Clinton, only a small token in expressing my appreciation for an outstanding accomplishment.

"Keep up the good work and your dedication to provide the best possible service to our customers, keeping in mind that Courtesy Does Pay and is recognized by top management in the U.S. Postal Service."

Hardesty said he had had many compliments on Ms. Shifflet's ability to deal with postal customers.

The rig, which took approximately five months to build, is powered by 2,000 draw works. The total spread from ground to crown is 172 feet and has a drilling capacity of 25,000 feet.

Cost has been estimated at $6.4 million. That figures out at from $250 to $300 a foot.

According to Homer West, public relations officer, the rig was the first of five that had been constructed and delivered.

"We feel like we learned a lot," he said, "and have overcome many of our problems on the first five rigs. We feel we'll be able to work smarter than harder."

Two rigs are under construction to be delivered in March and two more are being readied for an April delivery.

"We've set out to do two rigs a month," West stated, "as much as a major manufacturer can do. We have the facilities to turn out four a month. The facilities here will allow us to do it. We have better rig-up facilities than any rig up company in the world."

"We're taking over two more buildings and by mid-year, we will be manufacturing our own draw works. We'll also be manufacturing our own traveling equipment and rotary tables."

"We're working with a concern out of Canada and England and a concern out of Tulsa on a six-rig setup. We also have expectations of working on second and third rigs with companies we've already done business with."

"Since we've lived in Big Spring, from a company standpoint, we've felt like we haven't been accepted like we would have wanted. The shortcomings have been our own what with being in operation 14 to 16 hours a day, we haven't been able to mingle in the community. It's our fault. I hope the people of Big Spring will forgive the shortcomings."

took yarn, a glass bottle, plenty of glue and lots of imagination and made vases for their mothers as a Valentine Day gift.

The local program is equipped to take more children, said Mrs. Hill, depending on their age level. Children who are junior high age or older attend school in Odessa.

Bauer was chosen as site for the program because "we had the room" said Harland Huibregtse, principal. He also spoke highly of Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Minyard, saying they are "fine teachers."

Hearing impaired children "need" special classes stressed Mrs. Hill. "Many teachers don't know the program is here," she said. "Teachers need to be aware. Any level of hearing impairment qualifies students, especially if they are having trouble" in another classroom.

"We have the space and the room for expansion," she said.

She urged anyone in the community who knows of deaf students to "please refer them to Gene Adkins, who is in charge of special education for the Big Spring Independent School District."

Mrs. Hill and Huibregtse have also instigated a program for hearing impaired students at Bauer who would like to learn sign language. On Mondays, Mrs. Hill conducts a sign language class to kids who are interested, and so far, many children have turned out to learn the signs.

The children in the sign language classes "think it's fun," said Mrs. Hill. "They want to learn to communicate with the other kids, and we've been getting a good response."

An average of 50 students have been staying after classes on Mondays to learn the signs. Teachers attend a sign language class on Thursdays.

Other schools interested in starting up a sign language program for their students could contact Sharon Gilley at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, said Mrs. Hill.

It was the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf which brought Mrs. Hill to Big Spring. Her husband, Sam, is director of counseling at the facility. Mrs. Hill has a bachelor of arts degree in early childhood education, and a master's degree in the education of the deaf, and obtained them both from Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Minyard has worked with deaf education for over two years, and worked with the Regional School for the Deaf program out of Midland last year. She helped transport local kids to Midland last year, and said she learned sign language from classes she took through Howard College. Her husband manages the Social Security Office in Big Spring.

Stewardess strangled

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Police say a 35-year-old Braniff Airlines stewardess who was addressing Valentine's Day cards in her apartment was strangled with an electric cord after a violent struggle. The body of Beverly Antoinette Brunea was found Friday about 3 p.m. by her boyfriend, Leo Bailey, when he came home from work to the apartment the couple shared.

Police Lt. L.T. Smith said there was no apparent motive for the attack, but that "whoever did this is going to be marked up because there was quite a struggle."

Contrast in living standards staggering

Yank missionaries work with poor in Matamoros

By SUSAN STOLER

Associated Press Writer
MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Georgian Bencomo once ran through dark alleys in her native Cuba to escape arrest for teaching religion against Castro's orders in the 1960s.

The 65-year-old former teacher takes her faith to a different people now—the poor living in this U.S.-Mexico border city and on ranches outside town.

She is one of several American citizens who live here and work in a special program initiated by the local Roman Catholic bishop.

Although Mexico is an overwhelmingly Catholic country, few people have had formal religious instruction.

The Mexican bishop invited the Texas Catholic Conference to send lay volunteers to help serve the spiritual, educational and social needs in several poor neighborhoods.

Mrs. Bencomo gave up a comfortable retirement in Beaumont to slough through ankle-deep mud to reach the colonias, or neighborhoods, assigned to her.

The contrast in living standards between here and Brownsville, Texas, just across the Rio Grande, is staggering.

Brownsville has one of the lowest per capita income in the nation at $5,024. Yet that is twice what a brick factory worker brings home in what is considered a fair-paying job here.

Male unemployment is 45 percent and adult illiteracy runs about 40 percent. Children often drop out of school at age 12 to help support the family.

The American volunteers live austere lives by U.S.

standards.

Mrs. Bencomo has a simple, one-room apartment with a toilet and shower. Her room and board are provided by the volunteer program. She also gets a $50 monthly stipend and medical insurance.

Primitive conditions prevail in the areas she visits to register children for religious instruction. She also seeks out persons needing special medical attention and refers them to doctors who will perform the work free.

"There's no electricity, sewage, running water and no real streets. Five or six houses share one faucet. People have outhouses over holes in the ground. When it rains the sewage overflows and gets into all the puddles," she said of the neighborhoods.

"But I love the work," she added in heavily accented English. "I have been doing this all my life."

She and her husband waited four years for permission to leave Cuba in 1967. They left all their belongings, including her wedding ring, and flew to Miami.

Her husband died soon afterward from hepatitis complications. She became an American citizen and taught Spanish in San Antonio, Buffalo, N.Y., and Beaumont. She read of the Mexican lay volunteer program last year in a Spanish-language church newsletter in Beaumont.

Like the other American volunteers, she encountered Mexican priests who were somewhat skeptical of the "gringos."

"We may be poor, but we are proud," said the Rev. Cayetano Rosas, who works with Mrs. Bencomo.

"The United States is a very paternalistic nation and that is not the way to help. Don't give someone a fish. Teach them how to fish," he said of his initial suspicions.

Rosas now boasts of his parish having a psychologist in Bernardo Santo-Colomo, another volunteer.

Santo-Colomo was working as a counselor in a battered women's center in Brooklyn, N.Y., when he heard of the volunteer program.

He holds counseling sessions in a room behind the small wooden church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help.

"The problems are more of a family nature than individual matters because all the family members are very involved with one another," he said.

The volunteers spent a week here before making a final decision to enter the two-year program. However, adjustments have been difficult at times.

"I found it hard to talk with people at first because of the low level of education here," said volunteer Greta Schofield, a native of Costa Rica and former Pan Am stewardess.

She works in another parish, with similar problems of unemployment, poor health conditions and poverty. Next door to the parish church is an empty lot where squatters have built makeshift houses without running water.

Many men in the area work in brick factories for $12 a day, said the Rev. Pedro Contreras. Many neighborhood families have moved to Matamoros from the interior of Mexico, hoping one day to cross into the United States—legally or illegally, he added.

The priests working with volunteers agree the parishioners have responded warmly to the Americans.

The Rev. Idelfonso Sosa, coordinator of the project and secretary to the Matamoros bishop, said he hopes to encourage the growing Mexican middle-class to take on lay volunteer programs and let the Yankees go home.

Bare-root roses are an excellent buy and now is the time to plant them. It is a good idea to immerse entire plant in water for several hours to be certain all canes and roots are plumped up. Be sure to make holes large enough to spread out roots without bending or cutting back. Set plant in hole so that bud union ("knob" where canes grow) is just above soil level. Use a root stimulator and soil conditioner in the hole. After you have planted a rose and watered it well, mound soil, damp peat moss or sawdust over bud union and around canes to conserve moisture. gradually and carefully remove it when leaves begin to expand. To protect new roses from hot spring winds it is wise to place a protective wrap, such as plastic or cardboard around the plant, leaving the top open so that the plant will receive full sun.

Many people understand term 'math anxiety'

Experts in math find it difficult to understand the term 'math anxiety,' but such a condition exists with many people. Loosely defined, the term is a gnawing doubt about one's ability to understand and manipulate numbers. Only in recent years has it become recognized as a common source of stress and embarrassment.

WRITING IN A recent issue of Independent School, Sheila Tobias stated "overwhelmingly, the math-anxious feel inadequate or foolish." "Since many people regard mathematics as the ultimate test of intelligence, fear of math can have a damaging effect on self-confidence." Students have shown that women are far more likely than men to suffer from 'math anxiety.' The evidence of male superiority, however, was not attributed to an innate intellectual disparity between the sexes. Rather, the different social, environmental and cultural influences on boys and girls in their formative years have been cited to explain observed differences in mental functioning.

It remained for two Johns Hopkins University researchers to conclude that proficiency in math may, in fact, be an inherited sexual trait. Information for the Johns Hopkins study was gathered over a period of eight years as part of researcher Julian Stanley's study of precocious youth.

DURING HALF A dozen talent searches, students took both the math and verbal portions of the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Boys and girls performed about equally well on the verbal tests but the boys showed a decided edge in mathematical ability in every talent search.

Another team of Johns Hopkins researchers are of the opinion that social factors probably played some part in causing the talented girls to come up short compared to the boys in the S.A.T. math questions. School administrators around the country are discovering there is an acute shortage of math teachers, despite the fact that enrollments are declining and a glut of teachers in general exists.

In many cases, teachers are being brought out of retirement to teach math and some cities are scouting the whole country, looking for math teachers.

The business world, of course, makes it more difficult for the talent scouts because invariably it can offer higher paying jobs to those knowledgeable in math. Too, a general aversion to mathematics is noted in a lot of teachers.

It's ironic, to say the least, that the quality of math instruction is declining just when computers and advanced technology have put a higher premium than perhaps ever before on mathematical understanding.

In dubious battle

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The furious attack on federal spending now being unleashed by the Reagan Administration opens—in a double sense—a dubious battle. The outcome of the fight inside the Congress is in doubt. Even more in doubt is the impact that even a total Administration victory would have on the major enemy—inflation.

The battle plan has been drawn up in a skillful way by President Reagan's Budget Director, David Stockman. Mr. Stockman says that all federal programs will be cut, and that the reductions will feature equity as between different groups in the country. Leaked information already shows that big cuts will come out of the darlings of the construction lobby—spending for highways, airports, and sewer and water systems. Farm subsidies are to be reduced. Almost certainly Stockman has up his sleeve a surprise slash at one of the more outrageous giveaways to super-rich corporations.

AS TO REDUCTIONS in social spending for people in trouble, the new Budget Director has penetrated beyond the wonderful labels — labels like Social Security and Unemployment Assistance—to the minute detail of the programs themselves. In case after case he has found spending at levels not previously envisaged for purposes only tenuously related to the original program.

Social Security, for example, has had tacked on to it programs benefiting students who are dependents of retired, disabled or deceased workers. Those student benefits have almost nothing to do with the original idea of a pension scheme. Moreover, students are eligible for other benefits. By killing their entitlement, the Administration figures to cut $100 million out of 1981 spending, and $200 million out of the 1982 budget.

In similar manner, the school lunch program will be reshaped so as not to benefit the vast majority of users who enjoy middle-level incomes. The food stamp program would be amended to bar those who have high incomes during certain periods of the year. The Unemployment Assistance programs would be consolidated to prevent benefits being paid on top of benefits for those said to suffer from foreign competition.

Going behind the labels to the real programs represents undoubted achievement. The Reagan Administration has made what was unobtainable subject to scrutiny. It has converted scared cows to profane cows.

Still, the battle inside the Congress will go very hard. Many interested parties will join forces to lobby against the Administration. Even if the President does very well in the cutting operation (and I hope he does), the savings are bound to be small—maybe $15 to $20 billion. At precisely that point there comes into question the relevance of the spending battle to the war on inflation.

THE ARGUMENT advanced in naked form by the President in his speech on Feb. 5 is that federal spending creates deficits, and the deficits create our "economic mess." A more sophisticated gloss is that inflation now feeds on expectations of inflation. Those expectations can only be broken by a show of government determination to cut the budget, especially the entitlement programs.

Once that test is passed, the argument continues, confidence will return to the markets. Long-term interest rates will go down. Productive business investment will rise. More goods will become available. Shortages will end, and inflation abate.

Men are more 'watery' than women

Men are more 'watery' than women

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 23 years old, weigh 135 pounds, and have for four years. I haven't been able to put on weight. I would really like to improve my looks and body bulk. My fitness coach has me lifting barbells. No results. Can you help? — F.M.

You can put on weight if you'll do a little homework.

You'll have to make a trip to the library for a book on how many calories there are in various foods. Then you should keep a record for a week of how much of which foods you are eating and how many total calories you are getting from them. That number of calories represents the amount of food you need just to stay at your 135 pounds. Assuming you maintain your present physical activity, you have to increase the number of calories by an extra 1,000 a day if you want to gain a pound a week.

You can get that with between-meals snacks — a peanut butter sandwich, fruit, milkshake and nuts, for examples. Again, you have your calorie chart to help you add up the extra 1,000 calories. This is in addition to what you eat normally. While you are at the library, check out the book "Food for Sport" by Dr. Nathan J. Smith. It will give you some good tips.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently you published a letter from Mrs. D.W., who wanted to lose flab in the abdominal area. You advised her to do situps with her knees bent up. Otherwise, you wrote, her back muscles would shorten and produce a protruding abdomen. You were right. I have been doing situps for months with my knees unbent. The result; a protruding abdomen, as you predicted. Now I am bending my knees. Question: Is there any way to stretch my back muscles out again? — E.K.

You can stretch any muscle. A stretching exercise for both the lower back and the legs is the time-honored bending toe-touch done with the fingertips. If you can't get all the way down, don't force it. It will come in time as your muscles stretch. That, of course, is exactly what happens, which is the best argument for such exercise as back muscle stretches to reduce a paunch.

Another good exercise is to sit on the floor with your knees bent comfortably and try to touch your nose to a kneecap. Keep the knees stationary and bent at an angle so as to make the nose-touch difficult. You'll be able to do all sorts of neat tricks once you stretch those back muscles. Continue the knees-bent situps, though.

Dear Dr. Donohue: You advised a young lady to continue swimming and to do situps to reduce a protruding abdomen. You also suggested inhaling and holding for a count of six. Will these same exercises (situps and retracting the abdominal muscles) help a 56-year-old woman? — M.B.

If she is in good health physical condition to begin the exercises, they should help. The older the woman, the more cautious should be the exercise program.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What does physical training do to the heart that makes me able to run three miles farther now than I could when I first started? — B.H.

A wonderfully basic question, B.H. Your increased capacity for exercise is due not only to what happened to your heart, but also because of other important changes in your body. Your heart is now able to pump more blood with each beat than when you began. That is one thing that has happened. There are also more blood vessels in your muscles now and that means you are able to deliver more blood supply to them. There are also changes within the muscle cells themselves. There are now more energy factories (mitochondria) in them.

That makes you able to burn the fuel brought to the muscles by the blood more efficiently than before. And these are really only a few of the changes your exercise brought about. I didn't even mention the lung improvements. Let's hear it for exercise!

Dear Dr. Donohue: How long should it take for my back sprain to heal? — K.G.

Just to be sure we are talking about the same thing, let's define a back sprain properly. It is caused by a sudden bending of the back with force enough to tear ligaments. The pain is usually from muscle spasms, which occur as a protective reaction to the ligament damage. If this is what you have, the pain should subside within a month or three weeks.

If there has been nerve damage, the healing time will be much longer. Usually the term back sprain is misused, and that's why I wanted to be specific about a definition. Have you been told this is what you have?

Not all back pain originates in the back. In his newest booklet, Dr. Donohue explains the spine, its muscles and nerves and how you can help yourself avoid back problems or ease those you may already have. For a copy of the new booklet, "Backache and Spine Problems," send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have tried to read the Bible but I can't seem to understand it. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. L.N.

DEAR MRS. L.N.: You are to be commended for your desire to know the Bible. It is through a careful study of the Bible that you will gain a deeper understanding of God's personality and his plans and promises for your life. "All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness, so that the man of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work" (II Timothy 3:16, 17).

The following suggestions should aid you in your study:

1) Ask your pastor to give you "the Bible in a nutshell." Since much of the Bible is history, one of the keys to a proper interpretation will be understanding the historical sequence of its 66 books.

2) Read from the beginning of books and in sequence. For instance, if you are studying the Gospel of Luke, start with chapter one and read straight through to the end.

3) Buy a Bible dictionary or your local Christian bookstore. When you come across unfamiliar terms and names, look them up. (The bookstore employees might also be able to recommend a few well-written study guides on individual books of the Bible to help get you started.)

4) Read your Bible daily and take notes on what you learn (write down new insights on God's character, promises he offers, directions he gives for daily life).

5) Pray before you read, asking God to teach you important truths.

6) Apply what you learn to your own personal life. This is the true goal of Bible study — to allow God to mold your personality and to give you guidelines for living. "I will show you what he is like who comes to me (Jesus) and hears my words and puts them into practice. He is like a man building a house, who dug down deep and laid the foundation on rock. When a flood came, the torrent struck that house but could not shake it, because it was well built" (Luke 6:47-48).

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — For more than a decade, the federal government has been losing its multimillion-dollar war against the international dope traffickers. But one government agency thinks it knows how to reverse the tide of battle.

The U.S. Customs Service wants to get back the responsibility for narcotics policing, which was taken away from it and given to the Drug Enforcement Administration during the 1970s. It's a suggestion that is not surprising in Washington, where bureaucratic infighting over "turf" can be as intense as the struggle against the problems involved.

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS SAW the Republicans' return to power—and their determination to cut government spending—as a golden opportunity to recapture some of DEA's functions and, of course, its budget. The Reagan administration will have to referee the long-simmering inter-agency feud that has again bubbled to the surface.

Budget officials told my associates Indy Badwar and Jack Mitchell that no firm plans for the narcotics budget have been formulated yet. But one official acknowledged that DEA's functions "duplicate a variety of agencies, not just Customs."

The drug agency naturally will not sit quietly while it is dismembered like baloney through a meat slicer. But it has severe image problems to explain, as well as the inescapable fact that it has failed to stop the flood of narcotics pouring into the United States each year.

Despite some highly publicized drug busts, DEA's critics contend that the agency is an expensive washout and is torn with internal dissension and low morale. The charges are partially corroborated by some of its own agents.

There have been embarrassing incidents that lend credence to the criticism. Federal investigators have been looking into charges of preferential baggage-inspection treatment ordered by the head of DEA's New York office. And allegations of perjury and harassment in the Western Regional Office forced a recent shake-up there.

IN THE PAST 18 months, federal investigators have told Congress that "the Drug Enforcement Administration and the law enforcement community in general have moved slowly in effectively using conspiracy laws to immobilize major drug traffickers." They also faulted DEA's parent agency, the Justice Department, which they said "has not adequately planned or directed prosecutive efforts against major traffickers." They also faulted DEA's parent agency, the Justice Department, which they said "has not adequately planned or directed prosecutive efforts against major traffickers."

Eminent legal scholars say a fourth prosecution in a non-capital case is virtually unprecedented, and "raises the issue of retaliatory prosecution." Connick disagrees, insisting there is no intention to "persecute" Novel. WATCH ON WASTE: All over the United States, homeowners are turning down their thermostats every night in hopes of surviving the skyrocketing cost of fuel. But the Voice of America hasn't gotten the word. The propaganda poobahs insist on heating or air-condition their offices 24 hours a day, every day of the year—even though only a handful of VOA staffers are usually working after regular hours and on weekends. Overtime utility bills in one recent fiscal year came to more than $457,000.

A LASSIE WALKS DOWN A ROAD IN WESTERN IRELAND Beauty abounds in Kodak film to be screened here Tuesday

Skilled Britons, Irish star in film set for Tuesday

From a Welsh woodworker who carves a rolling ball inside a lovespoon handle to an Irish newspaper peddler who sells his wares—and even makes change—while running between moving cars in downtown Cork, Eastman Kodak Company's "Britain and Ireland... An Adventure in Pictures" abounds in individuals who make their livings with a very special—and photogenic—brand of skill.

In London, England, the individual is Bert Burns, and the skill is driving a taxi for the world's finest taxi system. A cabbie for 32 years, Burns recalls the months he spent on bicycle learning every club, hotel, restaurant, street, square, market and lane in London in order to pass the stiff licensing exam. He shows off his seasoned driving style and even spots an Ogden Nash ditty about "The Comforts of London Cabs" as he takes travel show viewers on a tour of London's Mayfair District for shopping and sightseeing.

In Edinburgh, Scotland, the individual is Hugh MacPherson, and the skill is the manufacturing of bagpipes and all the accessories necessary for the kilted pipe player. He is so devoted to his work that his family had to join the business to see him. MacPherson's people make a bagpipe on screen as he tells about the boyhood fondness for the kilts and pipes that still motivates his efforts 54 years later.

In the hills of Abergnolwyn, Wales, the individual is Gordon Rhodes, and the skill is that of volunteer conductor on a vintage, narrow-gauge railroad carefully preserved and maintained by railroad hobbyists from throughout Britain. A draftsman for the London Gas Company most of the year, Rhodes spends two weeks of his vacation—or "holiday" as he calls it—working on the tiny Tallylyn Railroad. He welcomes travel show viewers aboard his steam-powered line to see how the wee Welsh railroad "gets into your blood."

In Limerick, Ireland, the individual is George Imbusch, and the skill is harp-making. A retired engineer who made furniture for himself and his children, Imbusch set about making a harp with "a perfect and beautiful tone" after a daughter's friend complained about the harp she played. Succeeding to his own high standard on his sixth try, he has since made 193 harps—including the one seen in the travel show—in 12 years of "retirement."

Potters, harpists, pipers, poets, dancers, equestrians, glassblowers, sportsmen who throw 19-foot, telephone-pole-like cabers end-over-end in a carefully prescribed manner—viewers come to realize the range of skills behind each and every country the travel show visits. One of the most unusual skills portrayed is that of the Irish farmer cutting peat from his turf field to wrap his farmhouse in future winters. Johnny Townsend talks freely about "the back-breaking work" and "the special spade that digs just deep enough" as he demonstrates a skill money can't buy.

"You can't make a profit off this peat business," Townsend warns. "It's for my personal use only. You can't go anywhere and buy it. You just dig it yourself."

The film will be shown in the Big Spring High School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, for the enjoyment of the public. Admission fee is a modest $1 and proceeds will be turned over to the United Way. The sponsor is the Big Spring Herald.

Tickets are available at The Herald through Tuesday afternoon.

Make love, not law

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Make love, not law was the Valentine's Day proposal Nevada assemblywomen proffered their male colleagues.

The Assembly's running battle of the sexes ground to an uneasy truce during typical end-of-the-week hijinks when the Assembly's five women members asked their 35 male counterparts Friday to kiss and make up.

It was an act of the utmost magnanimity: the assemblymen had just convened a men's caucus meeting in the Assembly men's room to recommend that the women's caucus be dissolved.

Speaker Pro Tem Karen Hayes introduced this "resolution":

"Whereas, when the women members of the Assembly of the 61st session of the Nevada Legislature first gazed ... upon the male members, the women's eyes popped out, they got all choked up inside and chills ran up and down their spines; and whereas, the women then knew that the men would take a little getting used to ... now, therefore, be it resolved, that the male members of the assembly be 'our valentines' and be it further resolved that we'll resume the battle Monday!"

Bus firm fires 13 drivers

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Transit System officials say they have fired 13 drivers after marked dollar bills that were placed in bus coin boxes could not be found later when the fare boxes were opened.

DTS general manager Cliff Branch said the drivers were dismissed for "improper fare handling, a specific item in our personnel policies, not for stealing a dollar."

Texas is getting half the UPS service it should.

If you live in Texas, you can send a package by UPS to any address in the continental United States—except to another address in Texas.

The reason is, UPS does not now have what's known as intrastate operating authority in Texas.

Our 5000 people and 2300 vehicles here are permitted to handle parcels coming into or leaving the state, but not parcels from one point in Texas to another.

This is a serious handicap for thousands of Texans, particularly businesspeople, who depend on prompt, economical parcel transportation. It deprives them of a service that's available to their competitors in other states.

The Texas Legislature is now discussing a bill which would clarify the authority of the Texas Railroad Commission (the agency that regulates transportation matters) to consider requests such as ours to provide service from and to all points in Texas.

We feel this bill would be a step forward. We'd like to see it pass, and we'd appreciate your support. If you agree with us, a note to your Senator and Representative in the Texas Legislature could be very helpful.

Some Texans still fighting daylight-saving time

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The problem, say critics, border on the insurmountable.
For one thing, Walter Cronkite or Dan Rather, his replacement would air at 4:30 p.m. in most of Texas. Prime time would start at 6 p.m.
Supporters, however, say it's almost an ethical question: Should a man have to go to work in the oil fields, or a child wait for a school bus, while it's dark.
Rep. Jay Gibson, D-Odessa, says it's time Texans had their say on whether they want daylight-saving time to continue.
It's a problem with a legislative history like the Blue Law—it comes up a lot but never gets anywhere.

Gibson is pushing a bill calling for a non-binding 1982 referendum on daylight-saving time.
"I really don't have a position on it," said Gibson. "But I've heard some people complain they have problems with the transition. The main problem is in the oil fields in West Texas."
Daylight-saving time became federal law in 1967. From the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October states are required to make the change. There is an exception for states whose lawmakers vote to exempt themselves from the change, such as Arizona. Texans have tried several times.
The late Rep. Will Smith, D-Beaumont, thought it was a matter of ethics when he fought daylight-saving time in 1967.

"The federal act is a strong and direct infringement on state's rights," he argued.
Drive-in theater owners opposed it because it added an hour of daylight in the evening, anathema to the outdoor movie business. Parents complained their children had to wait in the dark for the morning school bus. Farmers said it fouled up the milking schedule.
Television executives, railroads, airlines, stock brokers and anyone else who did business across state lines wanted to keep in step with the rest of the nation, and therefore, favored daylight-saving time.
Daylight time was a Sun Belt-Frost Belt issue before those names existed.

A 1967 pamphlet called "Keep Texas on Standard Time" took a damn-the-Yankee approach.
"Daylight-saving time may be needed in the northeastern states but it just isn't needed in Texas where there is plenty of daylight during the period from May to October already," said the pamphlet.
Attempts to kill daylight time in Texas did not go far in 1977 or in any subsequent session, despite periodic efforts.
Max Emert says it's time for another try.
"I just don't like it. It just fouls up everything," he said.
Emert is president of Yale E. Key, Inc., an oil well servicing outfit in Odessa. He called Gibson about it.

"Out here in the oil field about the time we get to go to work in the daytime they put us back an hour," he said. "I just definitely don't care for it. We ought to leave our time alone."
So, the great daylight-saving time debate might enjoy another go-round in the Capitol. The bill has been referred to the House Committee on State Affairs.
The prospect of another fight does not excite Rush Evans, general manager of KTBC-TV here.
"It seems like every session we have to go testify against efforts to do away with daylight-saving time," he said.
Evans favors consistency. Walter Cronkite is beamed from CBS to KTBC at 5:30 p.m. Austin time. If Texas did not go on daylight time, Cronkite would air on Evans' station at 4:30 p.m., unless the station videotaped everything and held it for an hour.

"It keeps us in step with everybody else in the country," he said of daylight time.
Even some groups that used to fight daylight time now say they don't care all that much.
"For several years it was a strong issue," said Mike Miller, president of the Texas Farmers Union. "I think people have gotten accustomed to it. I just don't hear much about it."
"We've maintained a policy that we'd still like to see it abolished, but it's not a major issue," said Miller.

Farm groups guarantee Reagan facing battle

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan has a guaranteed battle on his hands when Congress reviews his proposed cuts in aid to farmers, farm groups promised this week.

David Stockman, Reagan's Budget director, has proposed a $2-3 million slash in the $9 million food stamp program, a 25 percent across-the-board cut in Farmer's Home Administration loans and termination of the $522 million alcohol fuel-biomass loan program.

The suggested cuts, part of the president's overall plan to reduce federal spending, are contained in a preliminary budget report which has been submitted to members of Congress.

The report makes no mention of farm price supports, dairy supports and commodity loans, items Stockman and Secretary of Agriculture John Black have already targeted for cuts.

"I'm numb. Just numb," said Reuben Johnston, legislative director for the National Farmers Union. "There will be a battle on this, a bloody battle."

Block, in a recent interview, tried to dissuade criticism of the proposed reductions.

"Everybody, including farmers, will have to tighten the belt," Block said. "But farmers should know that they have someone (Block) who will push for more exports which are the lifeblood of agriculture. Also (the Reagan Administration) will seek greater funding for research projects for agriculture."

The new chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Democrat E. Kika de la Carra of Mission, said a proposal to end the USDA's alcohol fuel loan program will get a closer look from his panel.

Of the possible gasahol cuts, "I hope that's not the case," said de la Carra. "Alcohol production is such an integral part of agriculture that is not used. I might agree with some cutbacks in demonstration programs, but as for reducing the emphasis, I will not be a party to it."

Stockman defends the proposal to terminate the Team program, saying all companies should raise capital through private lenders.

In the Stockman report, food stamp benefits would be reduced 35 cents rather than the current 38 cents for every dollar earned and gross income eligibility levels would be lowered.

The proposed 25 percent across the board reduction in Farmer's Home loans would sharply cut loans for middle-income farmers, wastewater treatment facilities and home buyers in rural areas.

Farm groups, still reeling over reports that Reagan may maintain the Russian grain embargo, say farmers are fed up.

David Senter, Washington director of the American Agriculture Movement, said "farmers are not going to take this. They will stand up and fight."

Senter added the proposed cuts could force many farmers out of business.

"Without such things as home loans, we'll lose a lot of new farmers who are barely surviving now," Senter said. "And we cannot afford to lose more farmers."

Margie Williams, director of government affairs at the National Association of Wheat Growers, said "we realize that everybody will have to suffer. But our point is that we have suffered enough with the embargo."

But one farm group spokeswoman defended the proposed cuts, saying they are necessary to curb inflation.

"Our major concern is inflation and reduction in spending is necessary," said Grace Ellen Rice of the American Farm Bureau Federation. "We will support the president as long as the cuts are made in other areas."

Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who has been a strong advocate of food stamp cuts, said the proposed reductions are "interesting." He would not elaborate.

Medfly may trigger aerial spraying soon

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — Texas officials and citrus growers say they would start aerial pesticide spraying if faced with an infestation of the Mediterranean fruit fly like California is fighting.

"If we have an outbreak down here, we're going to the airplanes come hell or high water," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Friday at a meeting with Lower Rio Grande Valley citrus growers.

The Texas citrus industry nervously is watching California's efforts to eradicate the damaging pest in Santa Clara and Alameda counties. Officials here worry that the fly could migrate and wipe out the $70 million citrus industry.

Prof warns use of food as weapon 'has number of negative impacts'

WASHINGTON — A report written by a Texas A&M professor for an agriculture industry group meeting here warns that export controls — like embargoes — should be used "only in extreme instances of national security."

The study, "U.S. Farm Export Strategies for the Eighties" by Dr. Michael Cook, professor of agricultural economics, added that "Agriculture should not be singled out in the administration of export control."

The Cook report, written under the direction of the Agriculture Council of America, takes no position on continuation of the embargo. But it said "the use of food as a diplomatic weapon has a number of negative impacts on the agricultural sector."

The conclusion mirrors one reached by Agriculture Secretary John Block in a recent interview regarding farmers' views of the 13-month-old embargo on grain sales to the Soviets.

"Farmers are patriotic Americans," said Block, who has argued the embargo should be lifted as President Reagan vowed to do during the campaign. "They feel they have been unfairly singled out in the grain embargo."

"In the long run, lifting the embargo is important," Block said. Reagan is reportedly leaning toward a continuation of the embargo at the urging of Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

The impacts listed include a loss of the world's impression of the export nation as a "reliable supplier;" a fluctuation in supplies that creates "uncertainty" at every level in the production and marketing system; and generally, a dip in prices "which in the long run might cause inefficient allocation of resources."

The ACA is composed primarily of agribusiness representatives and while the report carries few recommendations for either agriculture or the export market, it built a strong case for the importance of commodity exports in the U.S. economy.

Since 1974, agriculture exports have shown more than a sixfold increase from $7 billion to over $43 billion in 1980. Grains and products led the way throughout the decade, but the largest percentage jumps in exports came in cotton, sugar and poultry.

Buy before May 1st and you'll receive a $100 rebate direct from the factory — plus you can defer monthly payments until May, too. But $100 and deferred payments are not the only reasons for installing Gas Air Conditioning.

Gas Air Conditioning Systems are very energy efficient. They now use less gas energy because the constantly burning gas pilot has been replaced with a new pilotless ignition system. Pilotless ignition saves gas, and saving gas will save you money.

Gas Air Conditioning is also very dependable. It's built to last and last with no loss of cooling capacity. Hand-crafted of sturdy stainless steel components. Gas Air Conditioning has fewer moving parts and no compressor to wear out or break down. That means less wear and lower maintenance costs. And to prove its dependability, Gas Air Conditioning gives you the longest warranty — the 10-year "No Sweat" limited warranty — twice as long as all others.

Gas Air Conditioning. It's energy efficient. It's designed to lower maintenance costs, to lower operating costs. Gas Air Conditioning will save energy and that will save you money. And when you combine Gas Air Conditioning with adequate conservation measures, like caulking, insulation, storm doors and windows, you'll save even more.

But don't wait too long. The $100 rebate ends May 1, 1981. Call now for a free home cooling survey and cost estimate. There's no obligation.

Manufacturer's limited warranty covers all defects in material and workmanship on the sealed refrigeration unit for ten years from date of installation of the air conditioner when it is installed in a single-family residence. All other parts are warranted for one year from date of installation.

Poll shows senator in solid shape

Staubach to make run at Bentsen?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A poll taken for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen shows the Texas Democrat in solid shape as he looks ahead to a 1982 re-election campaign. The benchmark poll, Bentsen's first since he won election to a second term in 1976, shows him with a strong approval rating from voters throughout the state. A copy of the poll the senator commissioned from two Texas firms was obtained by The Associated Press.

It shows Bentsen, who has not yet officially announced his intention to run for a third term, with 50 percent of the voters ready to vote for him in 1982.

A high percentage was undecided or did not know — 34 percent — while 16 percent was opposed.

Bentsen was strongest in the traditionally Democratic Lower Rio Grande Valley, his home base, and weakest in North Texas.

The poll prepared by Louis, Bowles and Grove Inc. of Dallas and by Shipley and Associates Inc. of Austin was based on a 700-voter sample contacted in January.

Political analysts say it is not unusual for an incumbent senator to fare well in a poll taken long before an election, when an opponent has yet to surface.

Meanwhile, a Republican group trying to persuade former Dallas Cowboys star Roger Staubach to run against Bentsen in 1982 is gearing up its efforts.

Albert Forrester of the Alamo Political Action Committee said an office will open in Dallas within six weeks, despite continued comments from Staubach that he does not plan to start a political career.

Forrester said the political action committee sent 71,000 pieces of fund-raising mail out in January and is preparing in its second mailing to send out 500,000 pieces.

"Since we started with nothing, we're going to have to carefully harbor our resources," he said.

Forrester, a Texan living in Washington, said he was not discouraged by Staubach's response.

"He can continue to say exactly what he's saying if he will give consideration to the results we achieve," Forrester said. "Our success would give him plenty of reasons to reconsider."

Bentsen won handily in 1976, defeating former Dallas congressman Alan Steelman with a 57 percent to 43 percent margin.

In the new poll, 49 percent said they had a favorable impression of Bentsen and 16 percent said unfavorable. Twenty-one percent did not know or had no opinion and 13 percent had never heard of the senator.

Broken down by party affiliation, it was 45 percent favorable to 24 percent unfavorable among Republicans, 58 percent favorable to 7 percent unfavorable among Democrats and 43 percent favorable to 20 percent unfavorable among independent voters.

When asked if they would vote for Bentsen next year, 61 percent of Democrats said they would while 8 percent said they would oppose him.

Forty-four percent of Republicans said they would vote for him while 27 percent said they would not. Among independents, 43 percent said they favored Bentsen and 17 percent were opposed.

Cardinal says pray for rain

NEW YORK (AP) — Cardinal Terence Cooke has called upon the city's Catholics to pray for rain to ease New York's water shortage.

But just in case those prayers are not answered, he's also asking the archdiocese's pastors, school principals and institutional chaplains and religious superiors to find new ways to save water.

Officials said Friday that the city's reservoirs are at 39.9 percent of capacity, an increase of 8.1 percent because of this week's rain. There is enough water in reserve for 145 days.

Child deaths

Latest bones found are animal remains

ATLANTA (AP) — One day after the discovery of two more children's bodies, about 200 people gathered Saturday for a police-sponsored seminar on how to deal with children's emotional problems caused by the slayings of 17 black youngsters.

At the same time, 200 volunteers searching for evidence in the slayings found what appeared to be small leg bones in a south-west Atlanta neighborhood. But authorities said later that the bones were animal remains.

Parents, social workers, teachers, youth leaders and psychologists met at Atlanta University for the all-day conference designed to help children and parents cope with deep, widespread fear.

Teague endowment announced

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Student leaders at Texas A&M University Saturday announced the creation of a special endowment for an annual Olin E. Teague Memorial Speaker during the Student Conference on National Affairs.

The announcement was made by senior Tom Beecroft, chairman of SCONA 26, as the four-day conference ended. Beecroft called the late congressman a SCONA mentor and said he had been instrumental in bringing speakers and support to the conference.

Beecroft said SCONA supporters hope to raise $50,000 to finance the endowment in memory of Teague. Each year, proceeds from the endowment will be used to attract a specialist on world affairs to speak to the student leaders.

Some welcome news for beef raisers — and eaters — from the food and nutrition board of the national academy of sciences. Great exception was taken to the Report of Dietary Goals issued by the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Health. That board member, Dr. Robert Olsen, who is also professor of biochemistry at the St. Louis University School of Medicine, said that the report, which downgraded meats — particularly beef — as nutrient sources, was "just not true." Olsen also said that the consumer advocate of the 1970's "set his own rules." According to Olsen, the idea that beef will fall out of favor with the American homemaker during the 1980's is "ridiculous." He stated that beef contains a very small amount of saturated fat, and a small amount of cholesterol, but is a very important source of iron and protein.

Missing lady mystery

MIDLAND (AP) — On the wall over Edward's desk hangs a photo of a pretty young woman. She has blue eyes, reddish-brown hair, stands 5-foot-7½-inches tall and weighs 120 pounds.

She is "so skinny her mother said she could get away without wearing a bra," said Ward, a lieutenant in the Midland Police Department. "Not a day goes by that I don't think of her. I never even met her, but I feel like I know her."

The woman in the picture is Kristy Lynn Booth, who is 20 years old—if she is still alive—her parents don't know for sure. Her clothes still hang in her bedroom at home, and her belongings remain untouched in hopes she may someday return. But they admit there is little hope.

She vanished from a nightclub in this West Texas oil town on a bitter cold February night more than a year ago, leaving her coat and even her shoes behind at her table. No one who knew her has seen or heard from her since.

Police have pressed an intense investigation since then, but they remain baffled. Ward said there is very little evidence beyond the waist-length coat and the two pairs of shoes she left behind—brown sandals and maroon-colored dress shoes with three-inch-high wooden heels.

"I'd give anything to clear this case," Ward said. He believes she is dead, but he has no proof. Her parents, Tom and Myra Booth, agree with that unhappy conclusion.

"I can't accept the fact that she wouldn't be in touch with us some how, some way, if she were still alive," Mrs. Booth said.

Booth, a retired Marine Corps master sergeant, said he thinks his daughter, who lived at home and worked as a cocktail waitress, is buried somewhere in Midland County.

"But you can't give up hopes," he said. We still have her things. Her car has not been driven since we brought it home. My feeling is that she is dead, but we're not giving up any of her belongings. We're going to go on hoping and praying."

Miss Booth's activities leading to her disappearance on the night of Feb. 2, 1980, have provided police more questions than answers, Ward said. He and other police sources and witnesses believe she spent the evening this way:

Miss Booth, a boyfriend and a girlfriend drove to the Dimensions nightclub, where the boyfriend led the two women out and took Miss Booth's car on an errand, supposedly to pick up some drugs.

At 10:50 p.m. Miss Booth's girlfriend, who was sharing a table with her, was unable to find her. The last time she saw her friend, Miss Booth was dancing. Since her belongings were still at the table, the girlfriend, who has undergone repeated police interrogation including some sessions under hypnosis, assumed she would return. But she didn't.

The boyfriend said he returned to the nightclub at 11 p.m., as scheduled but was unable to find either of the two women. He said he left alone in Miss Booth's car.

The next day, the car, a maroon over white, 1977 AMC Pacer, was found abandoned on a state highway leading out of town. It had been driven 268 miles the day of Miss Booth's disappearance—the mileage was recorded by a mechanic who worked on the car the previous day. The boyfriend told police it had quit running and he left it there.

Ward said no significant clues were found in the car. The boyfriend, an ex-convict who served time in Missouri, quickly became the prime suspect. But Ward said he later passed a lie detector test and "We don't really have a crime until we have a body."

The woman's family has offered a $2,000 reward for information that would resolve the mystery, and Ward has responded to hundreds of tips on the case—"I have a briefcase full of notes, tips, hundreds of photographs—but frankly we really have nothing substantial."

Cash stockpiled in money market funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Cash has been pouring into money market mutual funds at a furious pace in recent weeks at the expense of bank accounts and the stock, bond and commodity markets.

But some analysts view the stockpile of money in those funds as a future source of demand for stocks.

"All generals know that you can't fight a war without plenty of supplies, particularly ammunition. For the stock market, the ammunition is cash," observes Lee H. Idleman of the Investment Committee of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

In the past six weeks the assets of the nation's 100 money market funds have surged by a record $15.2 billion, adding about $2.9 billion in the latest week, to raise their total to a record $89.8 billion, according to the Investment Company Institute.

"Obviously only a small portion of this money is earmarked for eventual equity (stock) investment. Nevertheless, the magnitude of this reserve has to be impressive," Idleman says. "So, as the market exhibits continued nervousness over inflation, taxes and interest rates, armchair generals can take heart that the ingredients for waging successful warfare are falling into place."

While investors were preoccupied with the course of interest rates and President Reagan's preparations of budget and tax cut plans in the past week, the stock market tumbled. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished the week at 931.57, down 20.73 points, with declines every day but

Tuesday, when there was a mild 1.45-point upturn.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 2.03 to 72.80, and the American Stock Exchange market value index gave up 8.12 to 339.31. Standard & Poor's 500-stock composite index fell 3.62 to 126.96.

Big Board volume averaged 37 million shares a day, against 45.34 million the week before. It was the lowest daily average since the week ended Jan. 2, in which there were four trading days.

Ex-students start drive

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech University Ex-Students Association Thursday announced the start of a fund-raising campaign which will, in five years, triple the amount of the organizations annual giving and, at the same time, establish a $500,000 endowment for scholarships.

The endowment is the main focus of a long-range plan adopted by the association. Using the slogan "Target: 85," the association will work to raise the amount of annual giving to $750,000 from at least 12,000 contributors by the end of 1985.

The endowment will be created from that amount. Other funds, beyond the cost of operating the association, will go to the university as contributions toward academic excellence in a variety of areas.

Announcement of the campaign was made by association President J.L. Guley of Tyler. Texas Tech President Lauro F. Cavazos endorsed the project.

"In visiting with Texas Tech alumni, I have discovered that they well understand the great need for a sizable scholarship endowment to ensure that no able student will miss the opportunities our exes have had. Tech ex-students have told me they support my own interest in academic quality. I look on 'Target: 85' as their way of demonstrating that support," Dr. Cavazos said.

Association Executive Director Bill Dean said that the campaign is the first major fund raising effort undertaken by the association in recent years. "In 1979," he said, "gifts to the association increased by 20 percent, and we repeated that 20 percent gain in 1980. By comparison with other schools, however, we believe we should and can be doing better."

$2 million donation

KINGSVILLE (AP) — Texas A&I University received the largest gift in its history Friday, $2 million from the Caesar Kieberg Foundation to establish a wildlife research institute.

The donation was announced by acting president Dr. Richard C. Meyer. He said the institute will be established as part of a planned South Texas Regional Studies Center and will conduct research into wildlife diseases, native plants, commercial use of wildlife and ecology of native plant and animal species in South Texas.

The grant is the first phase of a comprehensive fund-raising program, details of which will be announced later this year, Meyer said.

Sul Ross State known for cowboys, rodeos

ALPINE, Texas (AP) — If you want to be a Baptist minister, you could learn it at Baylor University. An aspiring physicist might choose the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. If you decide to study law, they say Harvard has a real fine school.

But if you want to grow up to be a cowboy, boss, the smallest publicly funded university in the state of Texas may be just the place for you.

Most students at Sul Ross State University come from the surrounding ranchland, grew up in boots and blue jeans and consider the aroma of an open cow pasture that wafts through parts of the school's rambling campus "natural."

University President Bob Richardson says some of that is bound to rub off on the other students, "no matter where they come from or what they major in. "We have a strong geology department, and we're strong in biology and teacher education. But the character of the school has more of a Western flavor than any other school in the state," he declared.

For one thing, Sul Ross has a football team, but the only athletic grants available, funded by local civic leaders, go to rodeo riders.

Also, it is the only university in Texas where students can learn how to make shoes for their horses.

Besides that, students in the school's range animal science program learn how to "break" horses, judge cows, breed hogs and feed

By SAM GLADDEN
An assembly was Wednesday to honor Goliad students who have made either the Maverick or the Merit Honor Roll this year. Bobby Madigan won by a technical knockout; Johnny Barraza, by decision; Jackie Johnson, decision; and Henry Ysaguirre, knockout in the first round. These boys, plus Joby Hinton and John Swindell, returned to Odessa Thursday night for another tournament.

Junior Historian Club, sponsored by Mr. Wallace, has set March 4 as the date for its play "George Washington at Yorktown."

Kickoff breakfast for 'Superspeech'

The kickoff breakfast for 'Superspeech'—a non-profit, volunteer organization formed by individuals in the private business and professional sectors of the community and representatives of the deaf community of the city and county—will be held Friday at 6:45 a.m., at K-Bob's Restaurant.

Margie Baker, the board of director's secretary-treasurer, said about 200 invitations to local people had gone into the mails and she expects a good response.

Featured speaker at the Friday breakfast will be Mrs. Charlotte Collums, executive director of Arkansas Superspeech, one of the most successful of its kind in the country. She will explain in detail the aims and motives of the program.

The board of directors meet in the SWCID cafeteria at noon Monday to iron out details for the breakfast.

William Eckstein is board chairman. Others on the board, in addition to Mrs. Baker, include State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, Elliott Mitchell, legal advisor; Dr. John Marshall, Dr. Harold Smith, Dr. Dickey Stanley, Mrs. Yvonne Kimbell, Mr. and Mrs. B.L. Settles, Mrs.

Carla Warrington, Laurie Todd and Bob Coltrane. Dr. Charles Hays, Dr. Douglas Burke and Shannon Gilley are all on the advisory board.

The organization is in the process of developing, planning and implementing programs for Superspeech. Objectives are:

(1) To sponsor and conduct free sign language classes, workshops, seminars, and symposia for the purpose of teaching hearing businessmen and women and others, basic sign language including business and professional terminology and orientation to deafness.

(2) To develop support and distribute a sign language book consisting of basic business signs including chapters on specific areas of business, i.e., medical, legal, etc.

(3) To increase the employment opportunities for deaf individuals and upward mobility by fostering support systems and understanding within those businesses and professions employing deaf workers.

(4) To advocate for and with deaf people on those issues, activities, or services which bar them from full participation as citizens of this state.

Three tons of marijuana confiscated in Big D

DALLAS (AP) — In one of the largest seizures in Dallas County history, officers have confiscated more than three tons of marijuana with an estimated street value of $3.1 million.

Three men remained in custody Saturday after officers acting on a tip stopped a tractor-trailer truck loaded with 6,200 pounds of the weed.

A police spokesman said the trio probably would be charged Monday.

Dallas Police Sgt. Tom Sherman said the late

Friday arrests near Rowlett were part of "an ongoing investigation."

He said the men were "known marijuana dealers."

Police said they were acting on information that the marijuana, described as "premium grade," was being shipped north from the southern part of the state.

Sherman said the truck and another vehicle used as an escort were stopped after a 30-minute chase. He said a 24-year-old Laredo man was driving the truck and two Dallas men, ages 23 and 24, were in the lead vehicle.

Arson suspected in school blaze

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A multimillion-dollar blaze of "suspicious" origin damaged more than 90 percent of John Tyler High School early Saturday, authorities said.

One fireman was hospitalized for smoke inhalation and exhaustion.

Off-duty firefighters and units from eight nearby towns were called in to fight the three-alarm fire, which was reported about 4:45 a.m. and was brought under control about two hours later.

The school board set a 2 p.m. meeting Sunday to assess damage and decide where the school's 2,300 students will attend classes. Classes were called off for Monday, said Assistant Superintendent Don Agnew.

Flames already were coming out of the building's roof when firefighters arrived, said Fire Chief Gerald Weaver. He said he was listing the fire as suspicious in nature, although it may be several days before officials can determine exactly how the blaze started.

WHAT IS ESTATE PLANNING?

The term "estate planning" has been used by various businesses and professional disciplines to mean any number of things. Why do we use such a fancy label? Estate planning could more simply be called "CARRYING OUT YOUR WISHES."

The nature and amount of property you own, the number of family members, and most importantly, your personal wishes all enter into the planning process.

The primary consideration in all "plans" should be the enjoyment of these assets by the husband and wife. If your estate is large, you may want to engage in lifetime gifting. If your estate is modest, you may want to keep it intact but plan for the most beneficial transfer of the unused assets upon your death.

The extremes in the planning process are: (A) Do nothing and let the chips fall where they may. (B) Plan strictly for an ultimate savings in the income and inheritance taxes without regard to personal concerns. (C) Somewhere between the extremes of (A) and (B) is a happy medium of conserving the estate, minimizing taxes and planning for your own personal comfort.

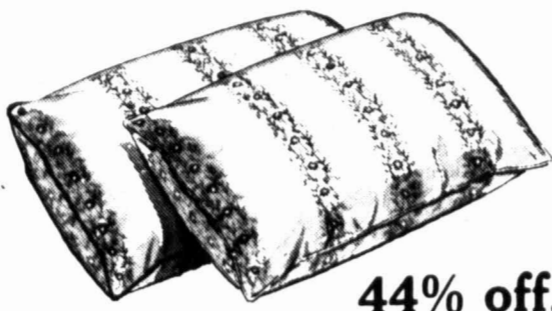

Many people profess to be "estate planners," but by far the best planner is yourself. With the assistance of trained professionals you can become acquainted with the planning procedures and the results.

There are several good, easy-to-read sources of information on financial planning. If you have assets worth $200,000, if either you or your spouse is seriously ill, or if you are in your retirement years, start the planning process with some introductory reading.

The average person spends forty years working and accumulating assets. A great many of us spend less than a couple of days giving any serious consideration to the transfer of these assets on our death.

UNDERGROUND CABLE — Southwestern Bell will lay several hundred miles of underground cable in West Texas during 1981 to increase the capacity of long distance and residential circuits. Here, a cable splicing technician from Odessa, Steve Smith, is shown at work near Alpine.

Ma Bell to spend billion on communication needs

Southwestern Bell will invest more than $1 billion over the next 12 months to meet the communications needs of its Texas customers.

Doyle E. Rogers, vice president for Southwestern Bell in Texas, said the 1981 investment represents the fourth consecutive $1 billion state construction budget for the company.

Southwestern Bell provides service to 4.9 million customers, representing some 8.8 million telephones in almost 500 Texas cities. The company is adding phones at a rate of 450,000 annually. By 1985 the total number of Texas telephones is projected to reach 11.7 million.

Call volumes within Texas also have shown a significant increase over the past few years. In 1980, Texas customers made more than one billion long distance calls, compared to about half-a-billion in 1975.

Last year, during an average business day, Texas customers placed some 62 million calls. Of that number, 4.6 million were long distance.

To keep pace with the state's continued growth, Southwestern Bell this year will place about 7,000 miles of underground cable, much of it replacing aerial lines which are easily affected by adverse weather conditions. The company also will contract or enlarge switching offices to handle the ever-increasing number of calls and continue to bring customers the newest in telecommunications products and services.

Texas has one of the highest percentages in the nation of customers served by Electronic Switching Systems (ESS). Nearly 60 percent of the state's customers are served by the computer-operated switching gear which provides flexibility, is faster, more reliable and offers service options not available with older electro-mechanical equipment.

State control of bilingual education sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Education urged Saturday that U.S. District Judge Wayne Justice's ruling on bilingual education be appealed, saying the state knows what's best for school students.

Adoption of the resolution came on voice vote but board member Virginia Currey of Arlington asked to be shown

James is moved by parent firm

HOUSTON — David W. Biegler, president of Pool Well Servicing Company, has announced that Kenn James has been transferred to Odessa as the Central Permian District Manager.

James is responsible for the administration and operation of 22 rigs located in area yards in Big Spring, Lamesa, and Odessa, Texas; Hobbs and Artesia, N.M.

He joined Pool Well Servicing Company in June 1980 as District Manager in Snyder. He has nine years of experience in the oil field. His background includes working as a fluid specialist, with experience in gavel packing, acidizing and cementing.

Born in Dallas, he was graduated from W. H. Adamson High School and attended the University of Texas in Arlington. He continued his business administration studies at Glendale University in California. Although more than half of his business career has been spent in West Texas, he has also worked in London, Iran, Singapore and the Philippines.

James is a member of the American Petroleum Institute. He also serves on the advisory committee of Western Texas State University in Snyder.

Pool Well Servicing Company, headquartered in Houston, employs more than 2,000 people who provide production rig services in major U.S. producing basins. The company owns and operates more than 280 workover and drilling rigs in Texas, California, Louisiana, Michigan, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Wyoming.

as voting "No". "I consider it a waste of time and money to appeal this matter," she said. "The money and time would be better spent doing what the U.S. Supreme Court will tell us to do anyway."

Board member Wayne Windle of El Paso supported the resolution, saying he felt El Paso school teachers involved in bilingual education had more "expertise" in the subject than an East Texas judge.

Justice of Tyler ruled Jan. 12 that bilingual education programs in Texas are "wholly inadequate" and ordered lawyers for the state and the Mexican-American groups that filed the suit 10 years ago to come up with a plan by March 2 to expand and improve the programs.

On Feb. 3, the new U.S. education secretary scrapped the previous administration's guidelines that would require schools to teach most subjects to students in their native languages up to Grade 12 if necessary.

Texas schools currently provide bilingual education from kindergarten through Grade 3, if there are sufficient numbers of students with limited English-speaking ability.

"The State Board of Education believes that the responsibility and authority to select educational programs of instruction and methodology to meet the needs of these students must lie with the state and its school districts," said the state board's resolution.

The resolution added that the board "recognized that the English language is the basis of instruction in all Texas public schools and that it is the policy of this state to ensure the mastery of English by all students" and "it is the policy of the State Board of Education to ensure equal educational opportunity to every Texas student."

The resolution said Justice "has ordered a bilingual education program for all limited English proficient students in all grades, thereby mandating a particular teaching method to address a concern best reserved for the state and those trained in educational matters."

School Commissioner Alton O. Bowen reported earlier that the Texas Education Agency had reduced its staff by 110 persons since last Aug. 7.

"We have used those funds to improve the salaries of those who are willing to do more work," he said, "with loss of any quality or quantity."

'Racehorse' Haynes to defend Vickie Daniel

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, the prominent Houston defense attorney, will add Vickie Daniel to his list of notable clients.

Haynes said he agreed to represent Mrs. Daniel in her murder trial for the shooting death of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., after talking to her late Friday.

"I think it's a defensible case," he said. He added that he will lower his fee because Mrs. Daniel's funds reportedly are tied up in probate court proceedings.

"I'm very pleased Haynes has agreed to help her," said Andrew J. Lannie of Baytown, Mrs. Daniel's attorney.

The athlete's end: "Breaking up is hard to do."

It was late in the half, with just over a minute to go. Facing a second down and 10 on their own 45, I figured on a pass, although it was somewhat of an abnormality from Darrell Royal's Wishbone attack.

Lam Jones came in motion from his left halfback position, making the pass seem more obvious. When QB Ted Constanzo stepped back dropped back after taking the snap, I back-pedaled from my cornerback position to the deep third, definitely concerned about Lam, who had won a gold medal in the Montreal Olympics two months earlier on the US sprint relay team.

But suddenly, a screen developed to my side of the field. I read it quickly, and as Constanzo flipped the ball out to the Longhorns junior fullback, Earl Campbell, I was racing toward him.

An earlier attempted assault on the massive Campbell had made an impression on my mind, and I didn't want him to have a full head of steam before I arrived.

It wouldn't matter. As I ran full speed ahead, on the hash marks at Rice stadium, about five yards before I reached Campbell another driving force knocked me in a 90-degree angle toward the Texans' bench. I would later learn that that force was UT guard Will Wilcox, who rammed his helmet into the side of mine in completely knocking me out of the play. It was one time I wished I could have tried to tackle Campbell.

Seconds later, I awoke from the UT sidelines, only remembering the many faces looking down from their orange and white uniforms. The play had just finished, but I felt like I had entered the twilight zone.

Walking back to the huddle in a somewhat dazed state, free safety Robert Susen pointed toward my arm.

"Sonuva... Scooter," he growled in his rasp, still pointing toward my arm and arding a few more obscenities.

Looking down, my right wrist and hand were completely hanging off in a frightening manner. I tried to snap it back in place, and the pain finally overcame the twilight zone. I knew it was broken in two separate pieces. Reality was worse.

Moments later, leaving the screaming crowd of 60,000, I sensed that it was over. Not the game, but my football playing career. Something I had worked for since Gra-Y, sacrificed for and loved. I was relatively assured that I wouldn't get into a pro camp, and being my senior season at the Southwest Conference school, my college eligibility was over.

It hurt, and for the time, I wanted to run. But it hurt too much to run. As I arrived in the locker room, I was escorted by the team doctor and my father, who had run down from the stands. Usually, it would have embarrassed me for my father to come down from the stands when I was hurt, but this time I was glad.

Doctor Smith, an aging man who had helped Rice athletics for nearly half-a-century, asked if I wanted to remain until halftime to be with the team.

We were losing, 28-10. Campbell, Lam Jones and Alfred Jackson, all who would later make their names known in the NFL, had exhibited their skills quite well. I knew that a couple of the defensive coaches would be screaming at the defense and raising hell, and at the time, I wanted no part of it.

I could stand the screaming coaches, the fact that maybe we hadn't played well, and the wild fans, but the broken wrist, which had suddenly ended my life, was too much. The whole night was turning into something that seemed like a bad LSD trip.

After getting the arm rearranged and set, and going back to the locker room to get dressed, I was met in the trainer's office by the defensive backfield coach, Mike Dean.

A former captain at the University of Alabama, he was a young coach that still seemed to grasp some of the things that made a 21-year college football player tick.

"What finally happened out there," I asked, motioning with my left hand toward the stadium.

"I think it ended up 42-23," he said. "Kramer had a great night passing, but we just couldn't ever stop them. I thought we could, too."

"Hey, Nate," he continued, speaking softly. "I just saw the x-rays and talked to the doctor. I know it's going to be hard to accept, but it's over. You couldn't play with the wrist broken by the arm like it was. You might cripple yourself by doing so, and I couldn't let you do it. I couldn't let you risk what very might be a permanently crippling injury to play. I know it's going to be hard, because I still miss it myself, and I'm 29 years old."

I couldn't manage more than a mumble, but let him know I appreciated what he had said.

Later, after going to eat with my brothers and parents, I let them know what the doctor, and Coach Dean, had said. My father listened again, although he already knew.

My family knew what it meant to me, and I could hear my mother cry softly in

Aggies keep Big M with win over Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M's Vernon Smith nullified the second-half shooting of Rice's Ricky Pierce Saturday night as the Aggies defeated the Owls 71-56 to win their fourth straight Southwest Conference Basketball game.

The Aggies, 12-9 for the season, boosted their SWC record to 5-7 while the Owls dropped to 11-11 and 6-6 standards.

A&M hit 52 percent from the field and threw up a strong man-to-man defense that netted them a 30-23 halftime lead.

Pierce, who scored 17 of his game-high 28 points in the second half, hit 14 of Rice's first 18 points to start the second half and the Owls pulled to within a one-point 40-39 deficit with 13:27 to play.

But Smith, held to six points in the first half, also broke loose, finishing with 24 points and seven rebounds.

Freshman guard Reggie Roberts scored 18 points and sophomore forward added 10 points for the Aggies.

Bobby Tudor was the only other Owl player in double figures with 12 points.

It was billed as the "Battle of the Big Girls" Saturday night when the Howard College Hawk Queens hosted the Amarillo College Badgers in Garrett Coliseum, with both nationally ranked teams having bonafide All-Americans inside.

And while it was much more than just two women on the court, in the end it was the Hawk Queens "big girl" 6'3" Kelly Lyons that won Round 1 in propelling the HC women to an exciting and important 70-61 triumph in the Western Conference bout.

Lyons, despite playing only 32 minutes in the game, poured in 26 points and controlled the action around the backboard. To typify the final outcome, she blocked her All-American opponent Olivia Jones' final shot with but four seconds remaining. It was only an academic block, as the game was well in hand by that point. But the icing no doubt tasted good to Lyons.

The important Hawk Queen win allows Coach Don Stevens crew to remain in the thick of the Western Conference race, putting both Amarillo and themselves into a two-way tie for second with 6-2 league marks. Western Texas has the same number of losses, but is in first place due to their eight conference wins. Odessa is also still in the running, sporting a WJC mark of 7-3.

Both teams scored easily in the opening minutes of play, but the intense defense by both teams began taking their toll by the midway point in the first half.

With both teams trying to work inside to utilize their strengths and work on drawing fouls from the opposition, Lyons picked up her third foul with 7:52 remaining in the half and the Hawk Queens holding a 24-22 lead.

But as has been the case in a couple of Howard College losses this year when Lyons wasn't in the line-up, Stevens' crew of basically freshmen hung tough.

Amarillo did manage to take a 37-36 halftime lead when big Nancy Kicurek worked her way for a field goal just before the buzzer. Still, the Hawk Queens had stayed in the thick of the game without Lyons, basically behind the scoring of Melissa Luna and Carrie Lee-Luffick.

The second half began both cautiously and sloppily, as neither team could hit the bucket. HC's Carol Wasserman finally did with 17:27 left to knot the score at 37, but Amarillo's Mitzi Marquardt came back to give her team the lead only 15 seconds later.

It would be the Lady Badgers last advantage in the game.

Arkansas throws SWC race into tie

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas' defense helped push the Razorbacks into a first-place tie with Houston in the Southwest Conference basketball standings Saturday — a position Coach Eddie Sutton doubted his team could achieve weeks ago.

"At one time we were 2-3 in the conference and it would have been easy to go into a tailspin," Sutton said after Arkansas beat Houston 70-55.

"I wish we had the rest of our games here in Barnhill Arena. I think we could win the title if we did."

The Razorbacks held

Houston guard Rob Williams — who had averaged 26.0 points per game — to one field goal in the second half as Arkansas went to a press.

"They hurt us with the press when we had only one guard in the game," said Houston coach Guy Lewis. "Arkansas played very good defense. I'm not totally dismayed by this. We've both still got four games left."

Houston held the ball for five minutes of the second half to quiet Arkansas' boisterous 9,300 fans, Williams said.

"In the second half their defense pushed us out pretty far," he said. "That's what shut me down. I wasn't expecting them to play any zone. I kinda liked the crowd. They yelled at me a lot, but it didn't bother me. I don't think the spread offense lost our momentum."

Defender stays tough in Florida Tech edges Baylor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Dot Germain fired a 2-under-par 70 Saturday and took a 2-stroke lead after the second round of the LPGA's $100,000

S&H Golf Classic. Germain started the day 3 strokes behind first-round leader JoAnne Carner, who shot a 69 over the 6,214-yard, par-72 Pasadena Golf Club course Friday but stumbled to 2-over-par 74 Saturday. Germain's 36-hole total was 141.

The final round of the 54-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament was set for Sunday with the winner receiving $15,000.

Play was again hampered by strong, gusting winds which forced the golfers to alter their swings to compensate.

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech moved into a tie for third place with Baylor in the Southwest Conference basketball race by beating the Bears 56-53 Saturday night behind the late clutch free throws of Bubba Jennings and Nelson Franse.

UCLA dominates No. 5 Arizona St.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sophomore center Cliff Pruitt's 15 points, including three free throws in the last 66 seconds, brought eighth-ranked UCLA a 64-61 victory over No. 5 Arizona State in Pacific 10 Conference basketball Saturday.

Each team now has a 7-4 record in the league, while Tech moved to 13-10 for the year and Baylor dropped to 12-11.

Tech built a 32-27 halftime lead and then fought off a desperate second-half attack by Baylor to stay in front most of the time by 1 to 3 points.

But with 1:55 left, Tommy Temaat scored on a 15-foot jump shot, and Teagle sank a lay-in for a 51-50 Baylor lead. Jennings countered with a 20-foot jumper with 71 seconds left, and Tech never relinquished the lead again.

points for the Frogs, who raised their season mark to 8-15 and their SWC record to 5-8. The up-and-down Mustangs fell to 7-16 and 3-10.

Sophomore guard Dave Piehler led SMU with 20 points on 10 field goals but no other Mustang was able to score in double figures.

SMU led 24-23 at the half but patience and the four-corner offense let the Horned Frogs gradually pull away through the second period.

It marked the first time since 1965 that the Horned Frogs had swept both regular-season conference games from the Mustangs. Deckery Johnson added 13

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Deadly outside shooting by seniors Jeff Lamp and Lee Raker carried top-ranked Virginia to a nine-point halftime lead, and the Cavaliers went on to a 73-58 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball romp over Clemson Saturday.

Irwin cruises in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — Hale Irwin, displaying the smooth intensity that won him two U.S. Open titles, fired a 10-under-par 62 and moved to a 5-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $325,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Irwin, fighting his way out of a slump that started almost two years ago, put together a 54-hole total of 196, 20 strokes under par on the 6,881-yard Waiialae Country Club course and matching the best three-round total on the Professional Golfers' Association Tour this season.

Irwin played a near-flawless round in the ideal weather — warm and sunny with gentle trade winds — that has contributed so heavily to the extremely low scoring in the tournament.

He didn't have a bogey in matching the tournament record and the best single round of the season, set Friday by Britain's Nick Faldo, and put himself in command with birdies on five of his last six holes.

Spurs kick Mav L streak to 12

DALLAS (AP) — Guard George Gervin scored 14 of his game-high 28 points in the third quarter Saturday night and the San Antonio Spurs inflicted the 12 straight National Basketball Association game loss on the expansion Dallas Mavericks 107-99 before 9,826 fans in Reunion Arena.

The Spurs, who have a healthy 11-game lead in the NBA Midwest Division, won their seventh game in their last eight outings.

The Mavericks, who tied their club record with another string of 12 consecutive losses, trailed only 61-57 at halftime as Jim Spanarkel scored 18 of his 22 points in the first half.

However, Gervin scored four of San Antonio's first six buckets in the third quarter as the Spurs ripped off 10 straight points to pull comfortably away from the Mavericks.

Philly schoolgirl breaks Chamberlain's record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The great Wilt Chamberlain's record of scoring 90 points in a high school basketball game have been bounced right out of the city's record books by a 17-year-old girl.

Linda "Hawkeye" Page, a 5-foot-9 senior guard, scored 100 points in Dobbins Tech's 131-38 victory Friday over Mastbaum — 10 points more than the legendary "Stilt" scored 26 years ago for Overbrook High in a 123-21 thrashing of Roxborough. "What I wanted to do was break Chamberlain's record," said Page, who came within 14 of the state record set by Bristol High School's Pete Cimino in 1960. "I still can't believe it. One hundred points!" she said. "I came home, told my family and they didn't believe me either. They didn't start believing until they saw it on the TV."

Earlier this season, she scored 87 points against Roxborough. Page made 41 of 57 attempts from the field and 18 of 21 free throws before scouts from St. Joseph's, North Carolina State, Old Dominion, Tennessee and Louisiana Tech. Those five schools still are in the running from more than 100 colleges courting her for their teams. Chamberlain was 36 for 41 from the floor and 18 for 26 at the foul line on Feb. 17, 1955. He sat out the fourth quarter. "In the summer, I play basketball outside with the boys," Page explained. "They beat you up on the court... you learn to accept the punishment and come back. The boys play harder and stronger. By competing against them, it makes me play better."

McEnroe, Vilas set for Grand Slam finals

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — John McEnroe cruised to a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Brian Teacher Saturday to advance to the finals of the $300,000 Pepsi Grand Slam Tennis Tournament.

Earlier in the day, Guillermo Vilas defeated Vitas Gerulaitis 6-3, 2-6, 6-4 in the other semifinal of the rain-delayed tournament at Boca West. McEnroe's victory sets up a repeat of last year's Grand Slam consolation match, which McEnroe, ranked No. 2 in the world, won in straight sets.

Choate found watching games on TV tough

(Con't. from 1-B)

the dark area outside the dorm. She tried to get behind my brothers so not to be heard. I wanted to cry with her, but not in front of the rest of the family.

For the next two years, I worked out hard. I knew that I probably wouldn't get the chance to play again, but it was still hard to accept. Finally, my senses caught my desires, making me realize that even if given the chance, I was out of shape to compete on a big level mentally, if not physically.

Most every athlete that has set lofty goals for himself, or just loved playing a particular sport, probably has experienced something similar when it has been cut off in such a swift fashion.

I have told those still playing my story before, and in some instances realized that they couldn't relate to it for a different reason.

One of my best friends, David Houser, was that way. A stellar wide receiver who rewrote the pass receiving books at Rice, he was signed by the Cincinnati Bengals before the 1979 season.

After being released on the final cut-down in early September, he was promised by the head coach that he would be picked up when someone else was injured. Two people were hurt at his position during the season, but no call. Both times the Cincinnati staff gave him the runaround. Instead of being hurt, he ended his career bitter.

Another person who related his organized football ending to me was Putt Choate.

Putt, as he will admit, lived for football, and did very well at it. After a sterling

Hangin' Out

Nathan Poss

career at nearby Coahoma High School, he received numerous major college scholarship offers.

I met him while helping show him around Rice. He probably wasn't too impressed, signing a month later with SMU. Still, we have been friends since that meeting.

At SMU, Putt developed into a massive 6', 230-pounder who worked his way into the starting line-up as a sophomore. He continued to improve, and following his senior year, was a consensus choice as an All-Southwest Conference linebacker.

Putt admitted that his main goal in life up to that time was to play professional football. It was something he had worked for many years.

Overlooked in the NFL draft, he was signed to a free agent contract by the Atlanta Falcons. During training camp with the Falcons, he was progressing rapidly when suffering a broken leg in an NFL exhibition contest.

He was placed on the injured reserve list, and later released by the Falcons. Shaken, but not ready to give up on his professional aspirations, Putt sent word to every NFL team of his past in hopes of getting another chance.

The chance came, as the Houston Oilers inked him last April to a free agent contract. But during training camp, the Oilers released him.

I knew that Putt had to be hurting inside. He probably shouldn't. A bright, handsome man with a college degree, he still had more than most have in life at age 23.

But, still, his football dream was all but over.

Putt finally accepted a job working in Odessa, and talked to me last week about his first few months away from football. And even though he progressed one step past where his football career was ended, I saw our "cold turkey" comparisons similar.

"Man, it's really hard for me to watch a football game now," Putt said. "You know, the few pro games I watched, in every one I saw some guy I played against in college, and I would say to myself, 'Hey, I know I can play as good or better than that guy.'"

"Oh, sure," he continued. "I'd watch every time anything came on about SMU, or a few high school or college games, but I couldn't get myself to watch a pro game. It just hurt too much."

But while some people don't handle the "cold turkey" period in their athletic lives well, (at times, that included me) Putt finally channeled his in the proper direction.

He's opening up a new all-purpose weight lifting gym in Odessa next month, hopefully helping some younger athletes work and enhance their futures. As well as make Putt some money, I'm sure.

He still admitted, however, that he would like to play again. "No question about that," Choate explained, "but it's economically not feasible right now. I have a good paying job, and this new gym should keep my mind off it. I'll admit though, I sure did miss it at first, and probably will some more."

His gym will be named "Putt's Olympic Gym," and will be located in Odessa. It will feature all types of equipment, as Putt bought what he felt is the best way for developing each particular muscle.

Besides the weight training, it will also have a sauna, whirlpools and showers. "I'm going to do it right," Putt added.

"Weight training is what got me as far as I did in football," the former All-Southwest Conference linebacker mentioned in explaining some of his reasoning behind opening the gym. "That's also true in a lot of sports. We're going to give instruction in many sports. What's good for a football player might not be good for a basketball player or a swimmer, and vice versa."

"We're going to give instruction to fit the particular sport," he added. "And of course, for those with organized sports that just want to come lift on their own, we'll get out of their way."

Choate has plans for approaching the Odessa schools and talking to their coaches about his gym, hoping they'll send some prospects for his training.

"With the younger guys that have never lifted," Choate explained, "I'll explain overall strength and conditioning. After six months, I'll go into specialization with the individuals."

That means he'll bring them along slowly, and properly, just like cold turkey from athletics is slow.

Some ween themselves in the field of sportswriting, and some open up olympic gyms. But what's wrong with that.

SCORES 100 POINTS — Linda Page, 17, of Philadelphia's Dobbins Technical High School, answers questions Friday about the game in which she scored 100 points and her 2,000th career point. The game was played Friday afternoon against Mastbaum High.

Oilers hire line coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers head coach Ed Biles Saturday named Joe Galat as defensive line coach for the upcoming season.

Galat becomes the fifth new coach selected by Biles, and leaves only a linebackers coach to be named.

"I've followed Joe's career and have been very impressed with the coaching jobs that he has done," Biles said. "He has always been a fundamental type coach, and after speaking with him earlier in the week, I became convinced that he would be right for our situation here."

"Aside from having a solid background in coaching, Joe is an excellent family man and I'm sure that his presence will be another positive step towards putting together the type of program we all want — a winning one."

Kush beat players, says aide

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — At least 13 Arizona State University football players were forced off the team in past years because of methodical harassment and brutality by former Coach Frank Kush, documents filed with the Arizona Supreme Court have alleged.

Robert Hing, attorney for Kevin Rutledge, also filed a special action with the high court Friday charging Kush earned $163,000 in 1979-80 but hasn't filed income tax returns for those years.

Hing's motion includes statements made behind closed doors under oath by former assistant coach Bob Owens. His testimony was given last week in the chambers of Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Thomas Kleinschmidt.

Rutledge filed a $2.2 million suit against Kush claiming he was punched by the coach and forced off the team. During the three-week trial, Rutledge's attorneys have tried to introduce evidence of past brutal acts against other players.

Kleinschmidt has refused to permit the evidence.

Kush's attorney, Warren Platt, asked the Supreme Court Friday to dismiss the case on grounds Kush's coaching methods were justifiable. He also has asked to have allegations of brutal acts against other players barred from the trial.

The trial is scheduled to resume Tuesday, but Hing has asked for a delay until the Supreme Court rules on his motion. A Feb. 24 hearing has been scheduled.

Owens said in Hing's motion that Kush tried to rid the team of players he didn't want.

"A player (who) either physically wasn't capable of performing the task that we asked, or would continue to make mental mistakes... would be subjected to verbal abuse, and in some instances physical abuse," he said.

He also said Kush "would kick the player on the ankles or on the hand, and on occasion in the butt." Other acts included "grabbing of the face mask or striking the player on the head."

"I've seen him use pieces of irrigation pipe, board, rope or pieces of rope, pieces of wood," Owens said.

Poor marks don't matter in baseball

By the Associated Press

Despite a 4-8 record last year, Dave Frost is winding up a big winner with the California Angels.

The right-handed pitcher will be $12,500 richer this coming baseball season, thanks to his victory Thursday in an arbitration case in Anaheim.

The right-handed pitcher who underwent elbow surgery last year had been asked to take a 5 percent cut from his $100,000 contract of 1980. But his agent, David Sloane, took the case to arbitration and announced that Frost would receive $112,500 for 1981, representing his salary of last season plus a cost-of-living boost.

Meanwhile, two players with the San Francisco Giants went different ways in arbitration disputes with their team.

Shortstop Johnnie LeMaster was awarded a $155,000 salary, $20,000 more than the figure proposed by the Giants for the coming season. He hit .215 last year.

Pitcher Greg Minton was shooting higher, for $265,000, after a season in which the relief pitcher saved 19 games. But arbitrator Ben Aaron, sitting in San Francisco, ruled in favor of the team, which offered $180,000.

In other developments, right-hander Lamarr Hoyt signed a one-year contract with the Chicago White Sox. The 26-year-old Hoyt had a .9-3 record last season with a 4.58 earned run average after joining the club June 17.

In stove league talk, Manager Billy Martin expressed an interest in acquiring 1978 Cy Young winner Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees. Martin, speaking in Scottsdale, Ariz., said that Yankee owner George Steinbrenner was interested in trading the left-hander for one of Oakland's top right-handed pitchers — Mike Norris, Rick Langford or Matt Keough.

"There might be other players involved," said Martin, "but I can't tell who they are."

Chisox offer was just too good

NCAA probe had nothing to do with Potts leaving SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Athletic Director Russ Potts is leaving Southern Methodist University for "the chance of a lifetime" with the Chicago White Sox, not because the SMU football program is being investigated by the NCAA.

"I can look you in the eye and tell you the two situations are totally unrelated," Potts told reporters. "I regret this fine institution has this problem but I'm proud of what I've done in the last three years." SMU President Donald Shields said the school is doing its own study of the charges and will report to the NCAA in April.

Potts said the timing of his announcement, coming in the middle of school boy football recruiting season and just after school president Dr. Donald Shields had confirmed the NCAA investigation, was unfortunate but the White Sox were "pushing me to get up there even sooner than this."

"I didn't want to leave earlier and jeopardize anything," he added. "This puts sort of a damper on my announcement."

"I never thought I would leave SMU," said Potts. "It's a strong career departure for me. A lot of my friends are surprised. If you had told me six months ago I would have had this opportunity I would have bought you a white jacket and called an ambulance."

"It's the chance of a lifetime," he said.

Shields said, "Russ did just an incredible job. We'll miss his versatile talent, constant enthusiasm and unrelenting drive for excellence."

Potts, 41, came from Maryland and raised SMU football game attendance from 26,000 in 1977 to 56,000 in 1979, after moving SMU home football games from the Dallas Cotton Bowl to Texas Stadium in suburban Irving.

His SMU promotions were tagged "Mustang Mania" and the White Sox hope Potts' brainstorms will rub off on their cable television contracts. He will be in charge of marketing.

Chicago co-owner Eddie Einhorn befriended Potts 10 years ago when Einhorn was president of TVS and Potts was athletic director at Maryland. Einhorn's network televised the Maryland basketball games.

Potts said he had turned down offers from five colleges who wanted to hire him away from SMU before taking Einhorn's offer.

Shields said a search for a successor of Potts' caliber would begin immediately.

Potts will remain on the job until March 7.

Allison, wrecks, new cars the topic

Many questions in Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Daytona 500 Grand National stock car race always is a big event, but none of the first 22 can match Sunday's running for key unanswered questions going in.

—Can anyone beat Bobby Allison and his controversial Pontiac LeMans that have so dominated the week leading up to the $780,000 race?

—Will they manage to run the entire 200 laps on Daytona International Speedway's 2.5-mile, high-banked oval without any of the testy new cars flying through the air like a wounded pigeon?

—Will the new cars run close enough together for 500 miles to keep the expected 125,000 spectators and a national television audience interested in nearly three hours of racing? NASCAR officials and the Grand National teams have been debating all three of those questions since Feb. 7, when the downsized 1981 cars mandated by the sanctioning organization for this season made their first appearance on the Daytona trioval.

—Even with pole qualifying, the Busch Clash and two qualifying races, we still don't know what's going to happen over the long haul," said Allison, who won the pole last Monday with a fast lap of 194.624 mph.

Allison, a 43-year-old veteran from Hueytown, Ala., and his Harry Ranier Racing Team entry surprised everyone among the Grand National contingent by showing up with the sleek LeMans.

The limited edition car was listed among the legal models designated last fall by NASCAR, but somehow everyone but Ranier's crew missed or ignored it.

The silver and black car appears to be a rabbit in the midst of a pack of turtles among the rest of the 1981s at Daytona.

During the past week — with other teams complaining about Allison's advantage and the unsettling tendency of the cars to suddenly fly off the ground — NASCAR allowed increases in the size of the spoilers.

Because of the instability of most of the new cars, the drafting among even the top drivers has failed to produce the nose-to-tail "freight trains" of past years.

Cold shooting Steers can't overcome Permian

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

The Odessa Permian Panthers took advantage of a very cold shooting bunch of Big Spring Steers here Friday night to take a 55-45 District 5-AAAAA triumph.

The win allows the Panthers to retain at least a slim hope of contending for the second half title in league play, boosting their mark to 2-1. The Steers will now be forced to play for total pride, as they fell to 1-2 in the second half and 11-17 on the year.

Neither team enjoyed much success from the field, as the defense in the game dominated for both sides. But maybe that defense played by both teams seemed a little tougher due to the poor shooting. In the end result, it was the free throw line that spelled the difference. While both teams managed 20 field goals, Permian connected on 15 of 22 free throws, compared to an anemic five of 13 by the Steers.

The low scoring contest began just that way, with the teams tied 10-10 after the initial stanza. In fact, the only Steer to show much offensive production in the first quarter was Bobby Earl Williams, who had eight of the Big Spring points.

The Steers managed to take the lead in the second quarter, playing their best of the game for the first five minutes of the stanza. With three minutes to go before intermission, Big Spring held a 22-17 lead. But while both teams had been somewhat cold up to this point, the Steers actually froze out half time and in the third stanza.

Permian, with the help of a couple of very questionable calls, scored the last nine minutes of the half for a 26-22 advantage. It was a lead that they would never relinquish.

Neither team could score much in the opening minutes of the third quarter, and with Permian holding a 29-24 lead, Big Spring Coach Ed Haller moved some former JVs into the contest for Williams, James Doss and Dickie Wrightsil. That didn't help, as the Panthers took advantage and boosted their lead to 39-30 entering the final stanza.

The Steers got within seven on a couple of occasions in the final stanza, but Permian controlled the ball well enough to preserve the win.

The Steer defense was tough throughout, but the locals just couldn't find their shooting touch. The only person who could was sophomore Jerald Wrightsil, who canned 11 of his team leading 13 points in the final half. Williams ended with 11 for the Steers.

Permian's Greg McDonald led his team's charge with 13 points. Most of those came in the final quarter to help the Mojo hold off any Big Spring attempts at a rally.

The Steers return to action on Tuesday, at which time they visit Midland Lee.

5-AAAAA Roundup

Midland, San Angelo set for showdown

Midland and San Angelo continued to roll toward their Tuesday night showdown for the lead in District 5-AAAAA with triumphs on Friday night, while Abilene Cooper remained in the second half race with a victory over Midland Lee.

Midland, the first half champion, improved their second half mark to 3-0 by taking an easy 85-62 win over Abilene. The Midland team had all but salted the game away by the halftime, leading 42-21.

Midland's 6'9" all-anything, Herbert Hohnson, had a magnificent night. The senior scored 33 points, had 20 rebounds and dished out 10 assists as the Bulldogs rolled to their 13th straight win and improved their overall record to 27-3.

San Angelo, also 3-0 in the second half, had no trouble dispensing with hapless Odessa High. The Angry Orange had the game in hand with a 37-22 halftime lead.

Greg Diebitsch led the San Angelo team with 17 points, while Rayford Wright of OHS took high point honors in the game with 22 points.

Abilene Cooper remained somewhat alive in the second half by improving their mark to 2-1 with an exciting 69-63 triumph over the Lee Rebels.

Cooper led most of the way, but Lee tied the game with less than four minutes to play. But Cooper regrouped to win going away.

Lanny Dycus and Barry McLeod paced the Cooper attack with 24 and 20 points, respectively.

Steer JVs lose at buzzer

The Odessa Permian JVs rallied in the final three minutes and won on a 15-foot shot at the buzzer in a game against the Big Spring JVs for a 42-40 decision Friday evening.

As what would be the case in the varsity game, the Big Spring team lost the game at the free throw line. Permian hit on only six of 15 from the foul line, but Big Spring was even worse, canning only two of 15 charity tosses.

Permian went to the free throw line with four seconds left and missed. But a Big Spring JV player missed the rebound, and Permian handled the ball and quickly scored to win it.

Three BSHS JVs had eight points in the game. They were Jinx Valenzuela, Tom Cudd and Anthony Randle.

By quarters: Big Spring 16, 6, 12, 6, 40; Odessa Permian 14, 4, 12, 12, 42.

BIG SPRING (40) — Jackson 3-0; Williams 1-0; Rubio 1-0; Randle 4-0; Cudd 3-2; Watson 2-0; Valenzuela 4-0; Harris 1-0; TOTALS 19-24.

Forsan girls move closer to recapturing 5-AA title

PLAINS — The Forsan girls took one more step toward reclaiming their District 5-AA girls basketball title, but the Forsan boys rally fell short at the final gun in action against Plains here Friday night.

The Forsan girls, which won the first half title outright, remained perfect in the second half with one game to go by scoring a 47-38 win. The contest was anything but fast paced, but Coach Ron Taylor's crew still came out on top.

That sets up their Tuesday night battle with another second half undefeated team, Morton. Should Forsan win, they will claim the 5-AA title and a berth in the state playoffs. But a Morton win would force another deciding game between the two schools for the 5-AA crown.

The Forsan girls were extremely cold in the early going. In fact, they didn't score their first points of the game until only 58 seconds remained in the first stanza, and trailed after one quarter 6-4.

But they warmed up somewhat at that point and led the remainder of the way.

Rhonda Gaskins played probably her best game of the year for the Forsan Buffalo Queens, leading the team with 14 points. Christ Adams and Karla Cregar added 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Taylor praised the efforts of Gaskins and Cregar in the win, which boosted the Forsan girls season record to 23-3.

The Plains boys led throughout their battle with the Forsan boys, but not before the visitors put on a frantic rally in the closing minutes.

Trailing 49-35 entering the final stanza, Forsan narrowed the margin to two points, and nearly sent the game into overtime. But a shot by Preston Daniels at the buzzer that would have forced an overtime period barely rolled off the rim, allowing Plains to escape.

The loss was the fifth consecutive in second half 5-AA play for the Forsan boys, and dropped their season mark to 10-14.

They also play host to Morton on Tuesday.

In the girls JV game, Forsan suffered their initial loss in 5-AA action by a 44-38 count. Vicki Baggett, Teresa White and Dena Clark all had 12 points for the Forsan girl JVs.

Morton takes key wins over Stanton

MORTON — The Morton Indians outscored Stanton in every quarter to ruin any hopes the Buffaloes had at the District 5-AA boys title here Friday night, taking an 87-67 triumph.

Morton, the first half champion, now stands at 4-1 in the second half and 21-9 on the year. Stanton is also 4-1 in the second half and 20-7 on the year.

McReynolds led the Stanton team with 19 and 16 points, respectively.

The Morton girls took an equally important win in the girls battle, scoring a 52-39 decision over Stanton.

The win allowed Morton to move their second half record to 5-0; and set the stage for their showdown at Forsan on Tuesday.

As in the boys game, Morton outscored Stanton in every quarter.

Morton was led in the scoring column by Sharon Lynch's 17 points, with Gail Williams adding 12.

Stanton, now 1-4 in the second half and 8-14 on the year, was paced by Lana Looney's 20 points.

Both the Stanton boys and girls finish on the road against Seagraves on Tuesday.

Morton jumped out to a 19-12 lead in the contest and gradually extended it. They were led by Ronnie Patton's 20 points and Bruce Johnson's 19.

BSHS golfers finish 19th in 45-team San Antonio shoot

SAN ANTONIO — Austin Crockett braved the cold and drizzling weather to win the San Antonio High School Golf Invitational here Friday afternoon.

Crockett put together a two-day total of 612, 11 shots better than second place San Antonio Churchill. A total of 45 teams were entered in the affair.

Big Spring overcame some problems to finish 19th in the large field. The Steers had a total score of 675.

Pacing the Big Spring attack was David Stephens, who used 165 strokes over the two days. Other scores were David Hamill (167), Brian Mitchell (176), John Basden (177) and Scott Underwood (178).

Corpus Christi Carroll's Roger Salazar claimed the medalist honors in the San Antonio Tourney, using only 146 strokes in the bad weather. That was only one stroke better than his next competitor, Sam Bassett of San Antonio McArthur. Ray Sanchez of Seguin was third with a 149 total.

The Big Spring boys return to action next Thursday for the Del Rio Invitational. That tourney will run through Saturday.

BSHS Coach Howard Stewart indicated that physical problems are hurting the Steer golfers at present. The usual number five player, Cary Wiggins, started Cobalt treatment in Houston and will miss up to five weeks. David Hamill twisted an ankle on Friday and his status is questionable entering this week.

C-City, Breckenridge split pair

COLORADO CITY — Colorado City and Breckenridge played a pair of District 7-AAA basketball games about as close as you can, and when the air had cleared, both teams had one win a piece.

The Breckenridge girls claimed a 44-43 win over Colorado City, improving their second half mark to 3-2, while C-City fell to 1-4.

In the boys game, Colorado City's Doug Johnson scored at the buzzer to vault the Wolves to a 50-48 triumph. The win gave the Colorado City boys a second half mark of 2-1, while Breckenridge is winless in the same tries.

Lyons too much at end for AC

Lutrick was hot from the outside, supporting Lyons 26 point night with 13 of her own, while Wasserman came off the bench to can 10 points. Nine were in the second half in the stretch when the Queens took the lead for good.

Jill Floyd will probably be overlooked by the box score freaks, scoring only five points, but certainly not by Stevens or the fans. Her defense and overall floor game was nothing short of excellent.

But AC's Jones showed why she was an All-American last year as a freshman, hitting a couple of field goals over the next minute, and starting a successful fast break that narrowed the Hawk Queen lead to 52-51 with eight minutes to play.

Lyons then hit for two straight buckets to give HC a little breathing room, only to see AC's Jessica Wiley and Jones bring their team back to 58-57 with four minutes to play.

At this point, Lyons and her teammate put on a final four minute exhibition that would prove to devastate Amarillo.

She hit seven points in the final four minutes, as well as blocking four Amarillo shots. Her lay-up off a feed from Luna with 1:18 to go gave the Hawk Queens a near insurmountable 67-59 lead, and after AC scored a field goal, Lutrick's 15-footer from the side nailed the final coffin in the Amarillo setback.

And while Lyons was superb in the important triumph, it was not a singlehanded effort. As in Jones had a good game for most, but not an All-American one. Much of that is due to Lyons, Luna and the rest of the Queens. Jones led AC with 16 points, with Kocurek adding 12.

The Hawk Queens hit the road for an important game on Thursday against Odessa, a team that they have beaten twice this year. A third win for the HC team would knock their age-old nemesis Odessa College out of the WJC title chase.

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — A blazing 25-foot-high cross burned in a wooded field Saturday night as the Ku Klux Klan and Galveston Bay fishermen joined in a protest against the influx of Vietnamese refugees to this area.

Security was tight, both from KKK members and local law enforcement officers.

Shortly before the cross burned, a small boat nearby, labeled "USS Viet Cong," was set afire.

About 250 people showed up for the rally on the 30 acres near this Gulf Coast community about 45 miles southwest of Houston and near the coastline.

Labor leaders gearing to revamp 'politics'

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO, stung by setbacks at the polls and facing a White House assault on its favorite federal programs, is getting ready to revamp its political operation as organized labor marks its 100th anniversary.

Among the issues facing the labor federation's 35-member policy-making council at meetings beginning Monday in this resort city is the possibility of an end to the AFL-CIO's historic neutrality during the presidential primary season.

Leaders of the 13.5-million-member AFL-CIO have seen their influence wane in the nation's capital, where President Reagan is poised this week to outline budget cuts aimed at reining in federal spending.

The AFL-CIO is one of the few national organizations that has indicated a willingness to buck the budget-cutting tide sweeping the nation's capital.

Neither president Lane Kirkland nor the top AFL-CIO officers have dwelt on the electoral setbacks of last fall, but Kirkland has talked of the need to reassess the organization's political structure, particularly the Committee on Political Action (COPE).

Kirkland has said that organized labor should celebrate its 1981 centennial not only by bragging about past victories but also by preparing "to deal forcefully" with future challenges.

A host of American labor unions existed before 1881, but this year marks the 100th anniversary of the formation of the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions, which organized a number of unions into a single group. It was succeeded in 1886 by the AFL.

Local weatherization work to be inspected

Sid Wieser, executive director, leads a group of Texas Department of Community Affairs officials here Thursday to inspect weatherization work accomplished on houses by teams assigned by West Texas Opportunities Inc.

The Department of Energy authorized that up to $1,000 in government money could be spent on houses occupied by families living below the poverty level. Last year, a total of 85 such residences were repaired here under such an arrangement, at no expense to the householders.

Most of it was done under the supervision of Howard McSpadden of Lamesa, director of Weatherization for West Texas Opportunities Inc.

Such improvements as window and door repairs, replacement on siding and ceiling replace is made by the carpentry teams. No more than $100 can be spent on each roof if it is specified.

After the improvements have been accomplished, the work is inspected by Clark Stout on assignment by the Texas Department of Community Affairs. Clark must give his final okay before the final payment is authorized.

Accompanying Wieser here will be John Geisweidt, Robert Guerra and a Mr. Ready. The group will look at about ten houses in a two-hour period.

In a ten-county area that includes Big Spring, West Texas Opportunities have completed work on 384 houses in a year's time. In addition to the 85 in Big Spring, three were finished in Glasscock County and one in Gail.

Janet Everhart of Lamesa is the executive director of West Texas Opportunities Inc.

Squeezing cures from aloe vera

LA VILLA, Texas (AP) — For centuries, gel from the leaves of the aloe vera plant has been applied to burns, cuts, rheumatism, ulcers and acne. The government scoffs at claims of curative powers, but aloe vera farming is booming in Texas' Rio Grande Valley.

R.C. Benson bought an aloe vera farm five years ago when he didn't know an aloe vera from a cactus. Now he grows more than 200,000 of the plants and owns a business that makes creams and lotions from the succulent's inner gel.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration prohibits companies from claiming aloe vera products cure specific ailments, but Benson and others report rising sales as the public looks for "natural" organic medications.

"We really have to rely on our customers to do our advertising," Benson said. Commercial production started here after World War II.

"It's not a textbook business," Benson said. "It's farming, marketing and manufacturing." He and his wife, Joyce, a professional golfer, operate the Hilltop Gardens nursery about 10 miles northeast of Harlingen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. They raise the plants on 65 acres and have a processing plant on the grounds.

Aloe vera, also a popular ornamental house plant, is grown in rows. Plants send out thick, long leaves. The juicy gel within the leaves feels cool on the skin.

The bottom leaves are cut by hand to get at the gel, which then is peeled in strips and separated from plant fibers in a centrifuge-like machine. The resulting liquid is pumped into cold storage tanks and used to make creams, sun-tan ointments, shampoo, soaps and cosmetics.

The Bensons bought an existing business from Lee Ewald, known locally as the "mother of aloe vera" because she started the local industry in the 1940s. Now in her 80s, she lives in an Illinois nursing home.

"We were living in Houston but didn't like the climate," Benson said. "This just happened to be advertised in the Wall Street Journal. I didn't even know what an aloe vera plant was."

Bill Coats said he became interested in aloe vera as a pharmacy student.

Coats now heads a 13-year-old company that cultivates plants on 75 acres near Mission. The gel is processed at the farm and shipped to Garland to be made into various products. Coats said his company chalked up over $100 million in retail sales in 1980.

After four years of experimentation, Coats said he developed a patented process to turn the raw gel into useful products. As the aloe vera business has grown, Coats has sold off his five drugstores in the Dallas area.

"Other people in the industry are riding our shittails because we're the only ones doing testing to get it approved by the FDA," he said.

Coats says athletic injuries and burns respond well to aloe vera application, but the FDA — which puts the burden on manufacturers to prove claims of its curative value — disagrees.

He started with six plants in his back yard, then increased it to 200 plants and finally to several acres of plants.

Activist eyes mayor's job

ATLANTA (AP) — Andrew Young, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, says he probably will announce his candidacy for mayor of Atlanta on April 6.

"That's sort of what I'm thinking — nothing official about it. I've just started talking about April," Young said Friday.

The civil rights activist was appointed to the U.N. post by former President Carter but resigned after protests over his meeting with representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Excitement of inauguration is recalled by Sheppard

Mrs. Peggy Wennerlind will serve as Legislative Chairwoman and Mrs. Evelyn Elrod will chair the Membership Committee, it was announced at the Thursday meeting of the West Texas Women's Republican Club, held in the La Posada Restaurant.

Mrs. Elrod said the 1981 dues are $6 and urged all members to assist in recruiting new members and encouraged all past members to rejoin the club. She said the club will host a membership brunch in March and the member recruiting the most new members will get a special gift.

Mrs. Dene Sheppard, president, announced a White House Conference on Aging will be held in Washington, D.C. in December to draw attention to the growing number of older Americans and the policies needed to maximize the resources of this important segment of the population as well as meet their needs.

The National Federated Republican Women's Biennial Convention will be held in Denver, Colo., Sept. 16-19, and Waco will host the Texas State Convention Oct. 16-17.

A history of the club will be included in the book being compiled by the Historical Commission. Mrs. Polly Mays asked all members to submit their family history.

Mrs. Sheppard, Mrs. Betty Wrinkle and Mrs. Mays attended the meeting of Republican Women's Club in Midland Wednesday. Mrs. George Bush, Jr., related the Bush family experiences at the presidential inauguration.

Spring delegation with six tickets in the seated area and five in the standing section for the inaugural ceremony.

The Stenholms, later hosted an informal chili luncheon for the group in his office.

There were nine balls held throughout the city and stars and dignitaries attended each one. Mrs. Sheppard said, "When we visited with taxi drivers, waitresses and the people in the crowds, the overall feeling was positive about our new president, one of renewed faith in our nation and hope for the future. Even those who did not vote for Mr. Reagan felt good about his election."

She also stated that Governor Bill Clements is so well thought of by people in that area. Having served as Under-Secretary of Defense, he had earned universal respect.

Attending the inauguration from this area were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sheppard, Mrs. Lola Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wrinkle, David Wrinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Turner, Matt Turner, Ben Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Christopher, Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Wrinkle and Mrs. Sheppard recapped the Inaugural activities. They recalled that Saturday evening a "Lone Star-Studded Texas-Style Gala" honoring Vice-President and Mrs. George Bush was held.

A Governor's Reception was held Sunday afternoon. Those attending had opportunities to visit with each of the 50 governors, then receive a souvenir signed by each.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Womack and Son, Ton, hosted a buffet for the group Sunday evening. Don, once manager of Texas Electric Service Co. in Big Spring, is now vice president of Texas Utilities in Washington, D.C. Cong. and Mrs. Charles Stenholm also attended.

Monday, a "Six Flags Over Texas Brunch" was hosted by Gov. and Mrs. Bill Clements and Texas dignitaries. Specialty food of each of those countries which flew flags over Texas were served to over 6,000.

That evening the local group attended the televised "Gala" held in Landover, Md.

Bess Truman celebrates 96th

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman, the nation's oldest living former first lady, celebrated her 96th birthday with a "surprise" party including cake and Valentine's Day decorations.

The guests at Friday's party included the Secret Service agents assigned to guard Mrs. Truman and her sister-in-law, Mary Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace said Mrs. Truman seemed pleased by the party.

Call goes out to Democrats

People who have pledged themselves as members of the Democratic party are being invited to attend a meeting scheduled Tuesday, Feb. 24, in the District Courtroom of the Howard County Courthouse.

Purpose of this meeting, according to party workers, is to unite and strengthen the party within the entire county.

Everyone who attends, will be encouraged to offer his or her views on any matter concerning the party.

A slate of officers will be nominated and elected during the meeting. All jobs within the party are wide open, party workers insist.

Library provides help in filling out tax papers

REBECCA TAYLOR
 Reference Librarian
 Once again, the Howard County Library is offering a special cassette, provided by the Internal Revenue Service, on preparing your income tax returns. The cassette gives step-by-step instructions for filling out the 1040-A and 1040 with schedules A and B. The cassette may be checked out for one week for use on your cassette player.

For more aid in filling out tax returns, the library has an assortment of regularly updated materials on reference in the Business Room. Though the materials don't check out, you are welcome to work in the library and are invited to take advantage of our Xerox copier service when needed.

One part of the tax service is a news sheet called "Tax Week." Each issue covers, in brief, changes in tax laws, new court or IRS rulings and a short tax puzzle to test your understanding of current tax structure.

Periodically, as needed, Commerce Clearing House publishes booklets on various topics such as "Crude Oil Windfall Profit Tax Act of 1980" or "Energy Tax Credits for Home and Business." Also part of the series are certain annual topics such as "Supplementary Tax Tables-1981", "Tax Angles for Special Tax Payers-1981", and "Tax Planning-1981".

The main body of information on taxes is contained in the five volume "Federal Tax Guide". The first portions are filled with explanations of all aspects of the tax laws and includes numerous examples. The remainder gives the actual laws and case rulings on unclear areas.

As new laws are enacted, cases decided or new interpretations handed down, they are incorporated into the body of the set. The loose-leaf pages are withdrawn and new ones added each week in order to keep pace with the most recent developments. The topical index is exhaustive in its coverage making it easier to locate the exact information needed.

If these were all your Howard County Library offered on taxes, the offering would be extensive, however, there is more. The chances are that you have needed to file a different form occasionally from the usual ones, i.e., child care expense, moving expense, or energy tax credit. If so, you already know how difficult it can be to locate the form you need. The Library holds a copy of every official tax form issued by the IRS.

'The Magic Flute' booked at Casa Manana

FORT WORTH — Casa Manana Playhouse presents a premier production of "The Magic Flute" in February. Author Mildred Ballinger has adapted Mozart's opera to appeal especially to youth-oriented audiences.

Filled with magic and fantasy, "The Magic Flute" offers all the elements of a good fairy-tale with plenty of action, laughter, and usual characters.

The plot centers around a kidnapped Princess, Pamina, who is the daughter of the Queen of the Night. She is held captive by the evil Monastatos who has stolen magical powers from the magician Sarastro.

The hero, Tamino, teams up with a comical bird-catcher, Papageno.

From Silver Ghost to Silver Spur

Still 'The heart and soul of a masterpiece'

JOHN J. SCHALER III — Dealer and collector of fine automobiles, invites area residents to compare the Rolls-Royce to any other fine motor car. A leasing plan is available that enables the individual to have all the pleasures of ownership without losing a great deal of cash flow.

THE SPIRIT OF ECSTASY — Designed by Charles Sykes in 1911 to combat a "rash of vulgar mascots," Charles Stewart Rolls, who marketed the car designed by Frederick Henry Royce, did not live to see this trademark of his cars.

75 years of excellence

A car is a car is a car—unless it is a Rolls-Royce. From the handcrafted grille to the stainless steel exhaust system, each Rolls-Royce is truly a unique masterpiece.

The John J. Schaler III Collection, Highway 80, Midland, is one of approximately 70 Rolls-Royce dealerships in the United States. There are two other dealers in Texas (located in Dallas and Houston), but Schaler is the only one in the state whose main line is the Rolls. Why Midland? "The business climate in this area is the best in the nation," stated Schaler. "This is a fresh market for us, and even now, still widely untapped because many people don't yet know we are here."

Schaler came to Midland from Indianapolis, Indiana and Palm Beach, Florida. He is a long-time Rolls dealer, a founder of the Rolls Royce Owners Club, and a collector of antique and classic cars. When asked which car is his favorite he simply says, "I like them all!"

The Midland dealership opened its doors in September, 1980. "We still haven't had our grand opening," said Schaler. "We have been so busy that we just haven't found the time." He isn't too concerned about the lack of time, however. Since the dealership opened, he has tried to keep between 20-25 cars in stock, but they are selling so quickly that keeping that number has become next to impossible. "Right now we are having difficulty in getting enough cars because the new models will not arrive until sometime in March or April," explained Schaler. "The Silver Shadow II and the Wraith II are no longer in production, and will be replaced by the new Silver Spirit and Silver Spur."

Anyone planning to purchase a Rolls-Royce for less than $100,000 should act quickly, for the new model prices will start between $125,000 and $150,000. Present prices start at approximately $80,000 and go up to $200,000.

What makes a Rolls-Royce so expensive? In a word, everything. The fortunate individuals who are able to purchase one (or more) of these unique cars have not only purchased an automobile, but also an extremely sound investment. "Very few people have ever lost money by purchasing one of these cars," said Schaler, "because almost everyone who trades one in after about two years can get the original price back in trade. Also, most of the cars appreciate a great deal over the years, when properly cared for."

These cars require and deserve more care than do most cars. The interior upholstery is made of English hide, and must be properly cared for in order to maintain its beauty. The remainder of the interior is a work of art in its own merit. Standard equipment includes cruise control, individually adjustable electric seats, two separate thermostatically controlled air conditioning systems, and AM-FM stereo radio with quadraphonic eight-track or cassette player. Deep pile carpets and wool rugs cover the floor. Door panels are accented by walnut veneers and inlays, and wood from the same walnut tree is used to cover the fascia (dashboard). Schaler commented, "An extra set of the wood from each tree used is kept by the factory. If the wood in any car is ever damaged an exact replacement can be ordered, thus keeping the car in completely original condition."

Each car is painted with a minimum of 12 coats and up to 25 coats of laquer (enamel paint is not used). Only the mirror is made of chrome, with the remainder of the exterior such as the fender and radiator cover and grilles beige made of hand polished stainless steel. The 412 cubic inch V-8 engine is made of all aluminum, and is hand-machined and hand-fitted. After each engine is completely built, it is tested for 24 hours at full throttle. Every tenth engine is then dismantled and checked for any possible defect. If a defect is found, the other engines are also dismantled and the problem corrected. The tests that each engine must pass and the careful attention to detail are the main reasons why over half of the Rolls-Royce automobiles or her late 20's to early 40's. "Most of our customers are in oil or land related businesses," said Schaler, "but we have customers from many fields, including a surprising number of ranchers. We also have five good customers in Big Spring."

"People appreciate the quality of our product and our service," explained Schaler. "We have one of the finest detail shops anywhere, and a service radius of 300 miles. For example, we will pick up and deliver to our customers in the Big Spring area as well as Midland and Odessa." Even the shop area is unique, in that it is spotlessly clean. The latest equipment is used to diagnose and correct any problem, and an ample parts and accessory supply is maintained. Paint is also in stock to match any Rolls-Royce sold at the dealership, in the event that touch-up work is needed.

ever built are still on the road today.

The time required to complete each car ranges from three to eight months, and a total of only 3,000 cars are built each year. The United States, of course, receives only part of this total. "We try very hard not to sell two cars that are exactly alike to people in the same town," said Schaler, "but with our sales volume increasing at the present rate, that is becoming increasingly difficult. We still try to at least reverse the exterior colors."

The mechanical warranty covers three years or 50,000 miles, while the paint and coach work is covered by a one year warranty. The Lotus is the least expensive model sold, with prices starting at about $37,000. The Aston Martin is a sports car priced comparable to the Rolls. Mr. Schaler believes that his business has had a positive effect on the Midland area, and that this effect will become even more noticeable in the future. "When a business such as ours comes into an area, many other fine stores and businesses will follow because they see a market for their goods and services. This, of course, causes the economy of the area to increase. In short, the people of this area have given us their business, and we have helped increase the growth of the area in return."

MRS. JAMES T. SHAW

Cindy Beth Payne weds James T. Shaw

The Christian Church of Big Spring was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding of Cindy Beth Payne and James T. Shaw.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Hardage, Route 2, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Shaw, 2709 Rebecca. The 7 p.m. ceremony was performed by Tommy Smith, brother-in-law of the bride, before an arch covered with greenery and apricot carnations. Baskets of cream and apricot flowers and hurricane lamps stood on each side of the arch. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Donald Hauser.

Pre-nuptial selections were performed on the piano by Mrs. Mark Lightfoot. An A Capella chorus consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson, David McWhorter, Mrs. Fran Bordsoske, Kathy Shaw, Mrs. Mark Lightfoot, Laura Moore, Robert Green and Don Green performed the vocal selections.

The bride was attired in an off-white formal length gown of Venice lace. Floating panels flowed from the waist to overlay a deeply flounced hem. A capelet with a high buttoned neckline fell to the waist, and she wore a crown of baby's breath in her hair. She carried an old-fashioned garden bouquet of apricot carnations, tulips and baby's breath.

Mrs. Carol Thompson served as matron of honor, and Tracey Smith, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both wore gowns of apricot crepe with Empire waist and overlaid with printed chiffon. Each carried a single carnation tied with apricot ribbons.

Credit history is important

What is credit? Credit is the privilege of "buying now and paying later." It is also the ability to obtain credit.

Creditors will issue credit if they think you can repay the money. They consider the 3 C's: your character, capacity and collateral. They want to make sure you are creditworthy. Among the factors creditors consider are: a good credit history, enough income, applicant not overloaded with debts, legal age, stable residence and employment record, assets (including checking and savings accounts).

How should women begin to build their own credit history? There are several things you can do. Open a savings account and a checking account in your own name to demonstrate your ability to manage money. Apply for a charge account at a local department store. Pay your bills promptly. After several months, apply at another department store. Apply for a gasoline credit card, using your other accounts as credit references. Take out a loan against the security of your savings account. Or, apply for a small loan and deposit it in your savings account. The purpose of the loan is to demonstrate your ability to repay your loan promptly. The finance charge is a small price to pay for establishing a credit history.

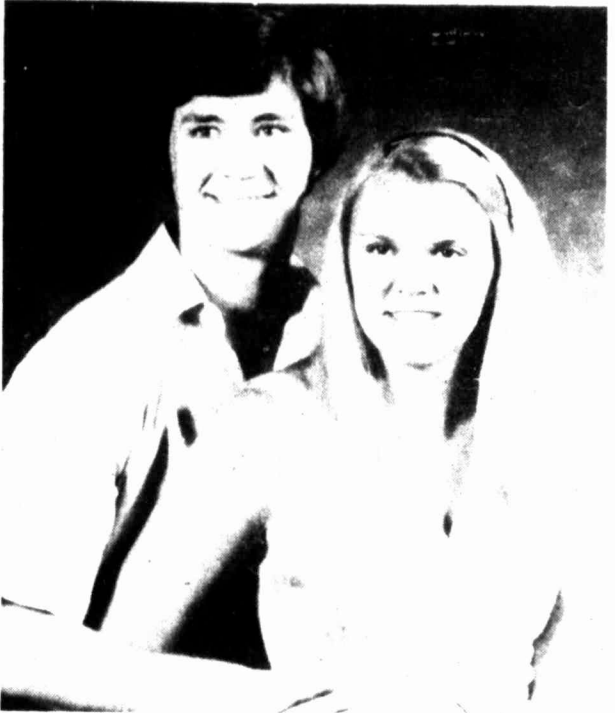

Apply for a national retail credit card, using your other credit accounts as references. Apply for a national bank credit card such as Visa or Mastercard. Guidelines for granting credit in this category are usually more stringent so it helps to have established a good local credit history first.

If you have no recorded credit history, then you have no credit rating. And if you have no credit rating, then it's much harder to prove your credit-worthiness.

What should you do? Use your own name (Carol Allen Doe), not your social title (Mrs. John Doe) whenever you apply for credit. Additional information will be provided on "Women and Credit" in a leader training session Monday, Feb. 16. If you have questions or would like to attend this training, please call Janet Rogers, 267-8469, County Extension Office.

Men spending more on clothes

Men are spending more for clothes than ever before—but spending it for different kinds of clothes than in the past, Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, reports.

Men are buying fewer suits as they focus their purchasing power instead on active sportswear and work clothes, including jeans, she adds.

Ms. Vanderpoorten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Valentine's Day wedding performed

Donna Davidson and Mark Miller were united in marriage in a Saturday afternoon ceremony at Hillcrest Baptist Church.

The 2 p.m. rite was conducted before two seven-branch candelabras enhanced by white gladioli and red carnations, flanked by two arrangements of red roses on each side, by Dr. Phillip McClendon, pastor. White bows with streamers enhanced by red Valentines adorned the pews.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Davidson, Big Spring and Mrs. Iva Schirmer, Lubbock. Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Miller, Idalou, are the bridegroom's parents.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Carey White at the piano and John Walker accompanied himself as soloist on the guitar.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a floor length white knit gown over taffeta, fashioned with an empire lace bodice enhanced with seed pearls and fashioned with a rounded neck-line. The skirt, featuring pinch pleats, flowed gracefully to the lace-trimmed veil of illusion which fell from a white velvet cap outlined in seed pearls and featuring three pearl hearts.

The bridal bouquet, a heart-shaped arrangement of red roses and baby's breath, completed the bridal attire.

Vicki Phillips, served her sister as maid of honor. Best man was Chad Fisher, Clovis, N.M. Mike Starnes, Lubbock and Stan Feaster, seated the guests.

A reception honoring the union was held in the church reception hall immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table, covered with a white lace cloth over a red underlay, was centered with an arrangement of red and pink roses. The three-tiered white wedding cake was enhanced by three shades of pink roses topped with blown glass bells.

MR. AND MRS. CECIL LEATHERWOOD

MRS. GARY STOVALL

Toni Hale, Stovall Solemnize Vows

The wedding vows of Toni Hale and Gary Stovall were solemnized in a ceremony Saturday evening in the home of the bride's parents.

The 7 p.m. double ring ceremony was performed before an arrangement of burgundy and pink silk roses enhanced with baby's breath and accented with floating candle lights in frosted crystal candelabras, officiated by Eric Dickey, minister of the Sand Springs Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hale, Rt. 3. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stovall, Rt. 3, are parents of the groom.

The bride chose to wear a formal length gown of candelight ivory crystal organza with imported French Chantilly lace yoke quilted with crystal pleating with matching pleating forming the stand-up collar, trimmed in pearls, re-embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Inserts of matching lace accented the sheer bishop sleeves which ended in crystal pleating. The chapel-length train fell gracefully from a full A-line skirt, edged in wide crystal pleating. The fingertip length veil of illusion, falling from a lace bandeau, completed the bridal ensemble.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of burgundy and pink silk roses enhanced by ivory ribbon lace.

Mrs. Ray Don (Dianne) Stovall, sister-in-law of the groom, Midland, served as matron of honor and her husband, brother of the groom, as best man.

A reception immediately following the ceremony honored Mr. and Mrs.

Stovall in her parent's home. The bride's table was covered with burgundy satin overlaid with white lace centered with burgundy candles in imported crystal holders.

The two-tiered cherub columned wedding cake decorated with pink hearts and covered with satin burgundy was topped by the bride's mother and topped with a pair of white bisque angels and pink ribbons and silk Crystal chandelier pointments.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Jack Westfall, Odessa; Mrs. W. L. Stovall of Sugar Land, Texas; and Mrs. Owen Lewis, San Antonio and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Easmeier and Sammy of DeRidder, La.

The bride and groom are both graduates of Coahoma High School. The bride is a recent graduate of Odessa Supply. The groom is employed by John Wilson Drilling Company, Odessa.

Following a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the couple will be at home in Odessa.

Cathie Key, McKinley exchange wedding vows

Cathie M. Key became the bride of Larry Dale McKinley Saturday afternoon in the Trinity Baptist Church with Dr. Claude Craven pastor officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry F. Jones, 102 Mur. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. McKinley, Tulsa, Okla.

An arch of candelabrum stood at the altar with a basket of white mums, carnations and roses on each side. The couple knelt on a prayer bench during the ceremony, and together lighted the unity candle following the ceremony.

Organ music was performed by Mrs. Larry Adkins, and Mrs. Dennis Churchwell was vocalist.

The bride wore a wedding gown that had been passed down through her family since 1929. It was made of heavy wedding slipper satin with trapunto quilting of lilies-of-the-valley outlining the front and back of the yoke. Sleeves were long, fitted and pointed. Peplum began just below the waist in front and fell down the back of the skirt, and ended above the cathedral-length train. The fingertip length veil, outlined in matching lace, fell from a hat adorned with lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of yellow Sweetheart roses mixed with white feathered carnations, lilies of the valley, and sprinkled with hearts.

Dear Abby

In Affairs of Heart, The Truth Can Hurt

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I find it hard to believe that your mail is running 3 to 1 against informing a friend that her husband is having an affair. Why would anyone want to live in a dream world? Just because they aren't aware doesn't mean it's not going on.

I would want to know if my husband were having an affair. Something in our relationship would have to be terribly wrong if he went looking elsewhere for love and comfort. He should be coming home to me. If I am not made aware of the problem, how can I deal with it? Not knowing is no help at all.

REALISTIC IN LONG ISLAND

DEAR REALISTIC: Your letter makes a lot of sense, but read on for another view, which also makes sense.

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you advised against telling a friend that her husband is having an affair. Why? Because if an affair is really to be told, the wife is a complete idiot, she doesn't have to be told! All the signs are there for her to read. Suddenly he has a lot of extra "work" to do. He starts coming home very late and very tired. Often he isn't where he says he'll be.

A wife who has had a good marriage can tell from the way her husband looks at her (or doesn't look at her). By the way he touches her (or doesn't touch her). His ardor slowly cools. ("Sorry, dear, I have a lot on my mind these days.")

If a woman pretends she doesn't "know" when her husband is having an affair, she just doesn't want to know, which is also her right, right?

"KNEW" IN BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

DEAR KNEW: Right!

Sterling silver... it gleams, it sparkles, it glows. "But oh," we hear modern brides wail, "I'll have to polish it all the time!"

Here at the ACCENT SHOPPE, we'd like to dispel that notion right away. Nothing keeps sterling as sparkling as constant use and prompt washing and drying. If you use your sterling frequently, polishing about twice a year is all that's necessary. If you use it only for special occasions, keep it wrapped in a tarnish-preventive cloth or in a drawer lined with tarnish-preventive cloth. Then, whenever you use your silver, it will be a shiny reflection on you!
