Elkin's Round-Up Song

I've been thinking today
As my thoughts begin to stray,
Your memory's worth more to me than gold;
As you ride out on the plain,
In the sunshine and the rain,
You'll be rounded-up in the Master's fold.

(CHORUS)

He'll round us up in glory, bye and bye,
When the milling time is o'er,
And we stampede no more,
We'll be rounded up in glory, bye and bye.

As we look out on the plain,
To the cowman that has fame,
The storm and the lightning flashes by,
There we'll meet to part no more,
Upon the Golden shore,
And he'll round us up in glory, bye and bye.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

I'd like to live a well-planned life,

William T. Carleton, in one scene in "Gloria's Romance," the George Kleine motion picture novel from the pens of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, was so moved by Billie Burke's grief when she was supposed to be suffering from delirium, that he had to blow his nose pretty hard to actually keep from crying. Lyric Tonight.

An Attractive Window Display

One of the most tastefully decorated windows we have seen is that seen at the People's Store. Not enough to crowd it, but just enough to show up in an attractive way the goods he handles—shoes, clothing, dress goods, etc.

William Roselle, the David Stafford of the "Gloria's Romance" production, featuring Billie Burke, is possessed with a longing to go to Mexico with the New York national Guard. His contract with George Kleine prevents his doing so until the film is finished, but the moment the last scene is "shot" he expects to be off for a little shooting on his own account. Lyric Tonight.

Railroad Offices Move

Lubbock, Texas, Sept. 8.—The general offices of the South Plains & Santa Fe have been moved here from Crosbyton.

Henry Kolker, who heads the supporting cast of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance," has experienced not a little trouble with his eyes since working under the studio lights. One morning after a number of "close-ups" had been taken, Henry's eyes bothered him so much that he had to be excused from work the rest of the day. Lyric Tonight.

Only 50 Counties Submit Tax Rolls

Austin, Sept. 8.—Only fifty counties have submitted their tax rolls to the comptroller's department, although these must be in by Oct. 1, according to the law.

The first county to send in its tax roll was McMullen county, with a valuation for 1916 of $2,763,789. The largest county thus far in is Bexar county, with a valuation of $110,213,564 for 1916.

Use for Old Newspapers.
Old newspapers are invaluable. After the garbage can has been emptied "line" the pail with two or three thicknesses of newspapers. The garbage man will empty papers and contents. Saves scrubbing the can and keeps it clean. Line the pan under the burners of gas stove with newspapers. There is no danger of the paper catching fire, and the paper catches the burned matches, grease, etc., and may be removed frequently without having to wash the pan.

About the Wedding Ring.
The wedding ring is of gold to signify the nobility and durability of affection. The form is round to imply that love should never end. The place is on the third finger of the left hand, where the ancients thought there was a vein that came directly from the heart, and where it is always in view. The third finger being a finger least used, the ring may be least subject to wearing out.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate to wash from the pores of the body the various day fermentations, the dirt-putting "toxins" and "poisons" which give a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

Eat dinner with the Methodist ladies Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Breathe Deeply.

Recall all of the best singers you know and you will find that the majority of them are usually well developed in the throat and chest. Singing is a splendid exercise when considered in connection with the vital necessity of deep breathing. It is recognized as absolutely necessary for perfect health, and even if one cannot sing, at least the effort, if rewarded with good health, is not to be despised for its beneficial effects.

Preparedness.

Young Adrich was writing in the paper for his loved one to appear, when her small brother came in and said, "Well, Chester," said Adrich, "what did your sister say?" "She told her I was waiting?" "She didn't say nothing," replied the small brother. "She just took off one finger and put it in her mouth."—Life.

True "Native Son."

He was an enthusiast, even for a native son, and shortly after his arrival in New York he found himself in the midst of a group of men who were in a heated discussion of Halley's comet. He could not risk a chance to get in a good word for the dear old comet. "What," he exclaimed, "Halley's comet here? I know! But you should have seen that thing from San Francisco."

Sincerity.

Sincerity is the most commendable wisdom and an excellent instrument for the speedy dispatch of business; it creates confidence in those we have to deal with, saves the labor of many inquiries, and brings things to an issue in a few words; it is like traveling in a plain beaten road which commonly brings a man sooner to his journey's end than byways.—Addison.

Trial Changed To San Antonio

Georgetown, Texas, Sept. 8.—Upon his own motion, Judge S. S. Fisher of the criminal court here today transferred the case of Dr. E. B. Taylor of Travis county, charged with murder in connection with the death of his cousin, Eugene S. Burleson, near Austin, last November, to Bexar county. Dr. Taylor was released on $10,000 bond to appear before the Thirty-seventh district court in San Antonio, Oct. 2. The case was tried here last February on a change of venue from Travis county and resulted in a mistrial. Much interest has been manifested in the case on account of the prominence of the principals, who were cousins.

In Villa's Power

By GEORGE E. COBB

(Copyright, 1918, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Tomorrow — the target!"

"You mean at?"

"Yourself."

"I cannot see from that narrow-barred window, because the place is overgrown with vines and the sun is low in the sky. These scoundrels are so close to their victims that they can see their marks and train their marksmen at a time."

Ned Davison looked interested. He was frightened, for he had anticipated death for a week past. To be in the hands of Villa's formidable band was to be doomed. He had been captured while crossing a ford, had been recognized as an American and given five days to live.

It went the harder with him because he was a newspaper correspondent. To the ignorant Mexicans shorthand notes, written on his cuffs, a professional star he wore aroused the suspicion that he was a spy. "Twenty a day" was the order given to vacate the many cells in the prison, and the day of days for the young newspaper man was only 24 hours distant now.

That morning a new cellmate took the place of the one executed the day previous. He was a big, typical Westerner, but with none of the customary bravado. He told Davison that he carried a safe-conduct from an affiliated rebel band, and that as soon as the Villa group had time to verify its genuineness he would be set at liberty.

"You can do something for me," said Ned, as he arrived at the conclusion definitely that there was no promise of intervention of friend or foe in his behalf.

"What is that?" asked his cellmate.

"I haven't a living relative in the world," narrated Ned, "but I would like my newspaper friends in Chicago to know my fate. If I write a letter to that effect will you see that it reaches its destination?"

"I sure will," pledged the Westerner—"a sassy job, but I'll do it faithfully."

"Thank you," said Ned in a subdued tone. Then he looked down and reflected, and then he reached into a pocket nearest to his heart, drew out a photograph, reversed it and wrote the words in pencil: "Miss Alvirra Woodson, Tucuman."

"I feel I am burdening you with too many of my troubles," expressed Ned apologetically, "but this is regarding a very dear one who will miss me. Send this card to the address I give, if you possibly can," and he added the line: "Faithful till death."

So forceful were his emotions that he bent his head, battling to overcome them in the presence of another. His companion accepted the card, gazed at the beautiful face on its other side, and uttered a great gasp.

"She—the lady is a—relative?" breathed he in tremulous tones marked with unsteadiness.

"No, but had I lived she would have been my wife," replied Ned mournfully. "It was on her account that I was captured in the danger zone. She was living there with friends when this war trouble broke out. She expected that her father would come for her, and waited beyond the limit of safety. I met her quite incidentally and we became friends and then engaged. We arranged to leave for the North and I was seeking to buy or hire a conveyance, when I was captured."

"I will accept and execute both of the missions you intrust to me," said the Westerner.

A change serious and meditative had come over him. He was somber and evidently troubled all the rest of the day, and the next, and paced the cell incessantly. Two hours before the announced execution, however, he removed his coat and vest. It was to reveal a thick padded garment which fitted like a sweater. Ned regarded it with some mystification.

"You are to put this on," spoke his cellmate.

"I—and why?" challenged Ned wonderingly.

"Because it may save your life. Listen, my friend, there is a chance of your escaping. I am something of an inventor, and this garment is made of a bulletproof cloth I have been experimenting on for years. It shall be yours, for my detention here will be brief."

"But how does that help me?" inquired Ned.

"Thus far: when they lead out the fated twenty late this afternoon, of whom you are one, each is marched out upon a narrow platform overlooking the ravine. They attach a small glass disk over the heart of the victim. Then an expert shows his target practice. The bulletproof jacket protects you from neck to hips. It is scarcely possible that a bullet will stray beyond those limits. When the disk you wear is shattered, throw up your arms and reel. You fall out of sight, you are supposed to drop where former victims have fallen. The sides of the ravine are sloping, vine-covered, full of orifices. Try to check your fall at some of these, wait till dark, and speed to the rescue of the girl who is waiting for you thirty miles across the chapparal trail."

"How shall I ever thank you?" murmured Ned.

"By being true to that dear little girl of yours," answered the Westerner earnestly. "If you do not escape with your life, I will attend to the instructions you have given. If you do, we shall meet again," declared the speaker in a strange tone that impressed, while it perplexed Ned.

The Villa group passed Ned Davison from hand to hand when he was led forth from his prison. Six victims preceded him on the fatal platform.

His turn came, the glass disk was affixed directly over his heart.

"Ready—fire!" came the command. There were jeers of derision. Ned felt a throbbing thud about the waist line. The garment he wore was indeed bulletproof. A new rifleman supplanted his predecessor. A sharp report rang out, the bullet sped true to its aim, shattered the glass disk into a thousand fragments, and Ned Davison sank from view.

Frankly, as he landed ten feet down with a shock, he clutched at straggling vines and bushes. At length he managed to halt himself. He crept to covert in a depression sheltered by thick vines.

It was just before dawn that he reached the home of his fiancée. There must be no dallying now! On foot they started together, choosing a remote route for the American border. At a town over the line in New Mexico Alvirra was placed in the hands of a relative and word went to her father of her rescue.

Two days before he arrived, to Ned had been seeking her. He had been misled, and had been told to go to Oregon to find her telephone awaiting him.

"My father, Mr. Davison," introduced Alvirra, when Ned called upon her that evening. And Ned Davison recognized in the newcomer the man who had saved his life through the bulletproof garment!

Changes in Coastline.

Some years ago there was discovered in the British records office an elaborate map of the North American coast from Cape Cod to the Navesink Hills, which is believed to date from about 1715. It gives a wonderful illustration of the changes that a coastline may undergo in 200 years. To begin with, it shows that Cape Cod was at that time an island, and that near the point where was the natural passage from the Atlantic to Cape Cod bay. The point is located where the channel existed, and the following notation was put in by a British officer, probably Capt. Cyrius Southback, sent out to capture Bellamy, the pirate:

"Ye place where I came through with a whale boat, being ordered by ye governor to look after ye pirate ship White, Bellamy, commander, cast away ye 26th day of April, 1717, where I buried 102 men drowned."

On this chart the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard are shown as a group of six islands.

Mystery of Dreams.

Just as sleep is a natural phenomenon of life, so dreams are a natural phenomenon of sleep. Doctors say that the longest dream we ever have—even the dream that seems to carry us through several days—perhaps occupies no more than a single second!

Some authorities maintain that if any one of our dreams were to last longer than a single second we should die. Other authorities are convinced that we do not dream at all when we are asleep, but only the fraction of time when we are (as Shakespeare has expressed it) "twixt sleep and waking."

It is also argued that dreams are nothing but distorted ideas and images passing through the drowsy mind, and being no more than extraordinary variations of things that have happened, or of things that we have thought, or read in our waking moments, they can have no possible association with our future. But, on the other hand, dreams have been credited with prophetic meanings since the days when the world was young; and dreambooks are still published and purchased and consulted.

PRAISE FOR YANKEES

Lee Magee Rated Second to Ty Cobb by Manager Stallings.

Would Not Be Surprised to See Rejuvenated New York Team Lead American League—Catchers Are Doubtful Quantity.

In the opinion of that performer of baseball miracles, George T. Stallings, manager of the Braves, Lee Magee, outfielder of the Yanks, is second only to "Ty" Cobb as a ball player. Stallings also declares that it would not cause him the least surprise to see the rejuvenated Yanks lead the American league this year. "Lee Magee is the ace in the Yankee deck," was the way Stallings put it.

"Some people have questioned my sincerity in rating Magee just behind Tyrus Raymond Cobb as a ball player. Yet that is where I place him."

"I would have paid anything within reason to get him for the Braves. If he isn't a sensation in the American league this year I'll be sadly mistaken."

"The Yankees can win this year. It will be a close race. I imagine, in the Johnson circuit. Given fair catching and a few breaks of the game, Donovan will bring home the bacon."

"I honestly believe that your Yankees have a wonderful chance to win the pennant in the American league this season. The only thing that I am doubtful about is the catching department."

"The Yanks have the pitching strength, a clever infield with Baker, Peckinpaugh, Gedson and Fipp, and a remarkable outfield with Malsel, Magee and Gilhooly."

"Nunamaker I know is not a great catcher. Nor is he even a good one. The youngsters—" runner and the plate, while the ball speeds toward him, making it impossible for the player to reach the coveted scoring pan, writes Ed Wray in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The general public has rather exalted the catcher who pulls such stunts, on the theory that any player showing such devotion to his team that he is willing to incur injury, if he can halt the enemy, deserves a reward.

On the same theory, the boy that robs a bank to help a starving brother ought to be exalted.

In the instance of the backstop no new rule is really necessary, if officials would enforce the existence of regulations against interference. For interfering is precisely what Mr. Dead-Game backstop is doing, when he interposes his body, without the ball in his possession, ready for a bonafide attempt to tag an opponent.

The rules should entitle the runner to a chance to touch the plate or the base, any condition which prevents this is illegal.

Better Iron It.

The other morning little Helen was watching mother press one of her coats. Helen asked why this had to be done. Mother said to get the wrinkles out. Later mother was sitting on the porch with Helen in a large reed rocker. The impression of the reed on mother's arm wrinkled it a great deal. Helen seeing this exclaimed: "Mamma, look at your arm! Don't you think you had better iron it?"

Realized It Would Be Close.

The moment the razor touched his face, the man in the chair realized that he was in the hands of an amateur. "Will you have a close shave, sir?" asked the barber. "It looks like it," returned the victim, moodily. "At present the odds against my getting out of this chair alive seem very heavy indeed."—Boston Transcript.

To Remove Lip Stains.

Chocolate or cocoa stains can be removed from linen by rubbing the spot with a piece of butter. Let it stand awhile, over night if possible. Then wash out with warm, soapy water. Milkew stains can be removed by the following bleaching fluid: Dilute one part of Javelle water with four parts of water. Moisten the milkewed spots with the liquid, and as soon as the stain disappears rinse immediately in clear water, as the bleach is harmful if allowed to remain too long. This same bleach is also to be recommended in removing tea, coffee, wine and fruit stains.

One fundamental principle of the diet, considered for any length of time, must supply a variety of chemical substances combined in different ways.

"structural" needs. It also must supply the building substances—protein, fat, and form internal energy. It seems appropriate that more than one should be used in its preparation.

In the Rubber Fields.

While the most approved methods of tapping the milk to rubber in South America is by coagulation in smoke, the natives of Africa frequently resort to the practice of covering their bodies with the fluid as it is taken from the tree, and after there has been sufficient evaporation the rubber residue is scraped off and molded into cubes. In the Fiji islands the rubber workers use their mouths as "retorts" or "separators," the rubber pellets as they form being taken in the fingers and molded into balls.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day, it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast, each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

Mighell-Adams

The First Methodist church was the scene of a beautiful wedding Thursday evening, when Miss Vivian Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Adams and Mr. Joe Mighell, Jr., were married, Rev. G. S. Hardy officiating, using the ring ceremony.

The chancel was banked high and massed with smilax and ferns, which formed an attractive back ground for baskets overflowing with golden sunflowers advantageously placed, and each entrance high archway were formed of ferns and wedding bells in white and gold were hung, prettily carrying out the wedding colors of white and gold.

The aisles of the church and the space about the altar was carpeted in white. The following musical program preceded the entrance of the bridal party.

Voice Solo, At Dawning, Miss Ruth Morgan.

Violin Solo, Love's Old Sweet Song, Ted Meyers.

Voice Solo, Mrs. C. A. Eagle, O. Heart of Mine, Bridal chorus, used for the processional, was sung by the bride's Sunday School class of 28 little girls.

The bridesmaids, Misses: Mary Hardy, Dorothy Trammel, Ruth Bertram, Ura Williams and ushers Messrs. L. Adams, (oldest brother of the bride,) E. O. Collins, Louie Hardy, entered first, advancing to the altar by the inspiring music of the bridal chorus.

The bridesmaids wore gowns exquisitely fashioned in gold cloth, lace and taffeta. Their hair ornaments were of gold maline and white daisies, they carried white tapers in gold holders tied with gold maline, showered with white daisies, charmingly featuring the bride's colors.

Next came the matron of honor, Mrs. E. O. Collins, gowned in white silk net over satin, carrying an arm bouquet of white Schasta daisies and lace ferns.

Following the matron of honor was the little flower girl, Dorothy Blair Adams, of Mobile, Ala., niece of the bride—fairly like in a frock of white net over white taffeta, carrying a basket of white Schasta daisies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. W. J. Adams, wore a handsome costume of white brocaded illusion over cloth of silver, with corsage and court train was fastened to the shoulders by pretty pearl ornaments and the veil fell to the edge of the train, from a becoming lace cap of lilies of the valleys and pearls. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride and her father were met at the altar by the groom, attended by Mr. Milton Adams, brother of the bride. During the ceremony the lights were partially turned off and the pretty glow from the candles and the soft strains of Midnight's Summer Dreams, played by Miss Vera Shepherd, indeed made a beautiful picture.

As the bride and groom rose from the wedding prayer—the happy notes of Mendelssohn's wedding march (recessional) was sounded and the entire bridal party marched down the middle aisle. Miss Viva Shepherd was pianist for the entire musical program. Mr. John Focht accompanied the chorus on the cornet. Mr. and Mrs. Mighell left on the 9:30 Sunshine Special for Clouderoft for a week, then for a trip into New Mexico.

They will be at home on their return at their pretty apartments in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Polks.

Mrs. Mighell traveled in a most becoming blue coat suit with fur trimmings, hat, gloves and boots to correspond.

The out of town guests members of the bridal party were: father and mother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mighell, L. J. Adams and little daughter, Dorothy Blair of Mobile, Ala.

A Correction

In the Journal's write-up of the Cowmen's Re-Union in yesterday's issue we somehow made a mistake in some of the names of the men who prepared the barbecue and take this method of correction.

G. R. West, an old time cowman, and one of the oldest in this section of the country, having come here in 1883 and settled close to Sylvester, contributed his time, both in buying slaughtering and preparing the barbecue. Failure to make mention of this in yesterday's write-up was entirely unintentional, and was an oversight in the writer.

Mr. West was ably assisted in barbecuing the meat by the famous old camp cook negroes, Buek Johnson and Julius Massey.
